Trinity United W.A. Makes Plans For Harvest Home Dinner

The October meeting of the Woman's Association was held in Trinity United Church dining Hall on the afternoon of Thursday last. The business was in charge of the president, Mrs Alf Jarvis, assisted by Mrs D. M. McElheran, as secretary.

It was decided to serve the Harvest Home Dinner and the menu planned. Mrs McElheran reported the new gowns and mortar boards for the members of the choir had been received.

The guests received a warm welcome from Mrs A. J. Forward and Mrs Arthur Bailey. Mrs William Hamilton read the devotions and offered prayer and the passage of Scripture was read by Mrs A. J. Forward.

Mrs Lyle Marcellus reported for the parsonage committee, Mrs Harold E. Merkley said 45 calls had been made by the visiting committee and Mrs Howard Kittle explained the sending of letters and cards. The flower fund collection was taken by Mrs Graham Smith.

The theme of the programme, "Give to thy neighbour today, not waiting till tomorrow, when it may be more convenient," was introduced by the convener in words written by Emerson.

Papers with a bearing on the theme were read in sequence by Mrs Stanley Shay, Mrs William Hamilton, Mrs Howard Kittle, Mrs Graham Durant, Mrs Charles McMillan, Mrs Alfred Jarvis, Mrs W. B. Rowe and Mrs A. J. Forward.

Two solos interspersed the readings and were deeply appreciated. Mrs Stanley Shay sang the poignantly lovely "Evening Hymn" and Mrs Charles McMillan sang the promise "I Would Be True," both to piano accompaniment by Mrs Eric Casselman, who also acted as pianist in the absence of Mrs Harry Allison.

Following Mizpah Benediction tea was served by the convener and her committee.—S.C.

SCHOOL PATROL GOING STARTED THIS WEEK

The school patrol started this week with their job of directing wandering feet in the right direction at the noon hour. The system, while only in operation for a few days, seems to be really working well.

The paddle-bearing children are stationed at all the important crossings from the schools. The children seem to be obeying the orders quite well, although some fooling is evident on the part of the older boys until the novelty wears off.

SATURDAY IS APPLE DAY

This coming Saturday is Apple Day for the Scouts and Cubs of the community. It is the day they ask for a small donation to keep the wheels of scouting turning for another year.

The boys will be on the street early and late Saturday. They will have baskets of juicy red apples and will be calling on you.

Buy an apple and help the Scouts and Cubs on Saturday.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH MARKS ANNIVERSARY AT BERWICK

Anniversary services were held recently at St. Paul's United Church, Berwick, Rev Mr Manson, Kars and Osgoode, conducted the morning service, assisted in the evening by the minister of the charge, Rev H. M. Beach.

The choir assisted at the service with the "Awakening Chorus" in the morning and "My Garden of Communion" at the evening service.

On Tuesday evening a turkey supper was served in the Community Hall, Berwick, to a capacity crowd.

On a per capita basis Canada imported more than any other nation in 1954; in that year imports were valued at $323 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

John Maxwell, proprietor of Community Theatre, has procured the excellent safety film, "Devil Take Us," and plans to show it at the theatre for the rest of the week. The film is not long, only taking 20 minutes to show, but those 20 minutes are packed with good advice and graphic demonstrations of traffic safety.

Constable Wm. Hunsburger and Glenn White have arranged with the manager of the theatre and the schools in the area to have a special showing, free, of course, for all the public and separate school children and about 130 of the school section children from the township. They will see the film Friday morning. Members of the high school will be in Mountain for the Field Day and will not be able to be on hand. The film will be shown all week along with the regular features at the Community Theatre. It will be of benefit for all adults to see.

There are about 2,200 Indian reserves in Canada.

Accident Kills Mrs. Ken Ault Thanksgiving Ends in Tragedy

Mrs Kenneth Ault, 41, well-known and respected resident of Winchester, was fatally injured Sunday night in a two-car crash in which six other people were hurt on Highway 31 near Glen Becker, two miles south of Williamsburg.

In serious condition in Winchester and District Memorial Hospital are:

J. Kenneth Ault, 45, co-managing owner of Ault Creamery, Ltd., who suffered a broken pelvis, possible bladder puncture and other internal injuries.

Carol Ault, 19, his daughter, who had both ankles broken and received numerous severe lacerations.

Irving Dallek, 34, of Massena, N.Y., driver of the car which collided with the Ault vehicle, who suffered severe shock, several broken ribs and a possible lung puncture.

Richard Dallek, 12, his son, who was badly cut and shaken up when thrown through the windshield.

Mrs Dallek and a daughter, Susan, 7, were slightly injured and were released after treatment at the hospital. Another daughter, Janet, 3, was uninjured.

The Ault family had been in Aultsville with relatives for a Thanksgiving dinner and were returning to Winchester when the crash occurred.

Driving north, Mr Ault swung out violently to avoid a cyclist on the highway. His car was almost broadside to the road when the Dallek car plowed into it. Both cars were reduced to wreckage.

The injured were taken to hospital in two Winchester ambulances and two cars were commandeered on the highway. Mrs Ault, who had suffered internal injury, died en route.

Mrs Ault was the daughter of Mr and Mrs G. I. Shaver, Ottawa, where she was born and received her education.

In 1932 she married Mr Ault, now a prominent Ottawa Valley businessman and one of the leading dairymen of the province.

In addition to her daughter, Carol, she is survived by another daughter, Mrs Sam McKercher (Marjorie), and a brother, Bernard, of Ottawa.

Mrs Ault was an active worker in all ladies' organizations at Winchester United Church and was president of the Woman's Auxiliary this year. Mr Ault is treasurer of the church.

Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. Wednesday. Burial was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

ON SUNDAY, October 2nd, approximately 3,000 spectators and more than 50 ponies met at Frank Ryan's Kilreen Farm, Ottawa, for their first Gymkana. The above picture shows the final contestants in the costume event. The original Canadian Pony Club was established in Toronto in 1921, by Col. R. S. Timmis, who is now Honcurary Chairman of Canadian Pony Clubs Advisory Board. This present Ottawa Valley Branch of the Pony Club was formed by Miss Barbara May in December of last year. It now has seven sub-branches and an eighth one pending.

OCTOBER GOLD

October's Midas touch is more than skin deep. Goldenrod and yellow maple leaves are only its most visible witnesses. Even the brighter stars that crowd an October night sky, even the extra brightness of city lights sparkling in the cooler air, tell only part of what is happening under the magic of the month.

October has a way of making all things we have loved more precious. The hours that once belonged to bright summer afternoons now glow more softly, but pass no less sweetly in the tangy, smoke-scented dusk or in cozy firelight.

Undistracted by daylight activities that fill the summer months, we have the time and the mood to cherish these hours the more. And why should we not do so? After all, we can relive in them so many of the gay and triumphant moments that marked the longer days now past. That hole-in-one, that first successful adventure on a strange reach of river, that set of tennis we nearly won—October does not take these treasures from us; October gilds them where they are not pure gold, and burnishes them when they are.

And what October finds us without some new friendships to warm the months ahead and with some old friendship newly tested, deeply tried, and found true?

In the longer, brighter days of summer we took these—the old and new—in easy, almost casual, stride. But now in a quiet, lengthening twilight of the year we take time to assay this recently acquired wealth.

Then there is the renewed seriousness with which all folk, older or younger, return from the Elysian field of summertime to the greater or smaller tasks that make pleasure possible—without which, indeed, we might find mere pleasure intolerable. And this is best of all the Midas tricks October performs: to fuse the silver of our delights within the iron of labour—and make this priceless alloy that looks so much like, and may well be, gold.

'In Clover'

When a friend tells you "I'm in clover," you may have a fair idea of what he means. On the other hand can you be so sure, asks the Christian Science Monitor.

Is he in trifolium pratense? (He well could be at any time between May and September, or in the "opposite" months of the year if he lives in Australia. There this common red clover now flourishes, thanks to "foreign aid" from the pollenating American bumblebee which emigrated to the antipodes at a critical moment in the Australian career of trifolium pratense.)

Or is he in trifolium arvense? (This is a particularly encouraging sort for superstitious folk to roll in, being otherwise known as rabbit-foot clover. Every child knows the legend of good fortune attached to finding a four-leaf clover. But even Dame Fortune herself has yet to find a four-leaf rabbit-foot clover. And when she does she is just going to sit down and wait for something nice to happen to her.)

Or is he in trifolium hybridum? (If so, his being "in clover" does not necessarily make him a good credit risk. For he could be sleeping beside any roadside from Maine to Idaho, hidden behind the hedge of his own beard, with all his collateral wrapped in a red bandana tied to the end of a stick.)

Is he in trifolium repens (Sure a little bit of heaven fell from out the sky one day, and after they had given it a proper name the shamrock grew on it. But could you keep it in Ireland? No more than you could an Irishman. You will find it or its cousins everywhere).

Is he in trifolium agrarium? (Then let him lie there as in a golden fleece, among the dull yellow florets, on a couch for Croesus, the colour of riches beginning to stale as they did for Midas, a place to dream of measureless wealth and the dull satiety said to be its sequel.)

So he is in clover? Let him be more specific. A sage has observed of men facing temptation that he never saw a man saying he could take an indulgence or leave it alone when he was leaving it alone. So of him by his own report is "in clover." He so often seems to be just at the moment out for ready cash. As if that mattered.

Light Along The Way

The editor of one of our Canadian magazines recently took issue with the Revised Standard Version of the Bible. One of the arguments he advanced was that it is a backward step to forsake the beautiful English of the King James, or Authorized, version. He has evidently had little experience with the application of religion to life, for his argument completely overlooks the real value of the word of God.

The Bible is not, primarily, a boo k of great English, any more than it is a great book of any of the other languages in which it is written; and it ought not to be forgotten that the Bible first appeared in Hebrew and Greek, from which it was translated into Latin, then German, long before an English translation appeared. The Bible is primarily the book to teach Christian truth, and when such is clothed in outworn expressions much of its value for the average man is lost. If he must read words whose meaning have changed he will either misunderstand the teaching or completely lose interest in it.

Bible reading today is not a popular pastime. It is hard to imagine many foregoing appealing Sunday TV programmes to read the Word of God. The English of Shakespeare may be the greatest ever written, but that does not mean that it has the following of a best selling novel, the English of which is abominable. Yet man must read the Bible if he is to know the Truth; and he must read it, therefore, so that he can understand it. It is to overlook one of the most important functions of the Church and her scholars to argue that their efforts to clarify religious truth is a backward step.

Is it not also curious to recognize that those who are loud in their clamour for progress, who support the use of wonder drugs, vaccines, new suggestions for highway traffic control, and all the other advances in life should suggest that religion ought not to advance? Is there no room for growth in man's spiritual understanding, and no need for him to clarify his knowledge of the will of God by deeper probing and further seeking? Dare he ever be satisfied with his grasp of God's revelation in the Bible?

It is to his own advantage, and the advantage of the world he lives in, that man "read, mark, learn and inwardly digest" the Word of God; but if he cannot understand the word for his age, how can he be expected to read it? If the Truth is not clear, how can he know?

Small Cows For Small Farms

Dwarf fruit trees of various varieties have made it possible for many city people to have an archard in their own backyards. One can even have a tree yielding several varieties of apples. So far, however, nurserymen have not come up with any one tree which will bear cherries, apples, pears and plums in their respective seasons. But such a tree should not be ruled out of the realm of possibility.

If one lives in the suburbs, it is, perhaps, quite possible to keep a few chickens — largely depending upon the good will of the immediate neighbours.

But this miniature farming can go still farther, apparently. Though none have made their appearance in these parts so far, there are such animals as miniature cows. And they are quite practical, giving good milk and being quite suited for beef.

These small cattle are Dexters, commonly known as a "house cow" or "poor man's cow" in its native England. Originally mountain cattle, they are extremely hardy and can withstand the severest winter. They are not choosy about their feed and will eat weeds and even thistles, grazing to an even-cropped pasture—a distinct possibility to the man who doesn't like mowing grass!

Gentle animals, they are easily handled and two can be grazed on an acre of land. A cow is about the size of a Shetland pony, a calf about the size of a full grown cocker spaniel. A steer, ready for market, weighs about 350 pounds after being butchered.

ISN'T IT FUNNY

When the other fellow takes a long time to do something, he's slow. But when I take a long time to do something, I'm thorough.

When the other fellow doesn't do it, he's too lazy. But when I don't do it, I'm too busy.

When the other fellow goes ahead and does something without being told, he's overstepping his bounds. But when I go ahead and do something without being told, that's initiative.

When the other fellow states his side of the question strongly, he's bull-headed. But when I state my side of the question strongly, I'm being firm.

When the other fellow does something that pleases the boss, he's polishing the brass. But when I do something that pleases the boss, that's co-operation.

When the other fellow gets ahead, he sure had the lucky breaks. But when I manage to get ahead—I came up the hard way through ambition and hard work.

Funny, isn't it?

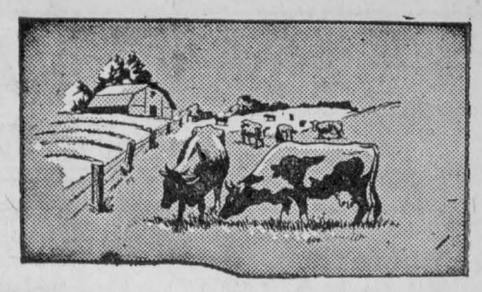
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

One day last week Harry decided he'd get rid of the water that usually lies in front of the tank in the barnyard. He'd waded through mud there long enough. It would be only a simple matter to lay a few tiles along in front of the big, barn door, pour a little cement over them so they'd stay put and run that pesky water out of the way.

He got the shovel to dig a trench. But somebody years before, had deemed it wise to put stones in front of the barn door so he had to get the pick. It wasn't long until he met a big boulder he couldn't lift so he had to get the tractor and a chain to haul it out. The afternoon was wearing on.

The sill under the barn floor had decayed away. We'd been hoping fos some time to get a cement foundation across there. So Harry decided that this was the time to put that in too. As long as he had to get a cement mixer ond gravel and all that he might as well do the two jobs at once. It wouldn't take long to put in 16 - 18 feet of cement wall.

Well, Monday was a holiday and Dad was at home. They would build the foundation. It was simply a matter, they explained at breakfast, of jacking up some stringers until they were in line, building forms and pouring in a bit of cement. So they borrowed a jack and set to work.

Now I shan't attempt to list the unexpected obstacles they had to overcome. There were more stones to haul away. Something proved to be thoroughly rotten. There was quite a problem about a post that wouldn't co-operate. And when night came they were far from being ready to pour cement. They certainly got their share of ribbing when they came in for supper, believe me. "It's only a little job," we re-quoted them. "It won't take long." "There's really nothing to it."

You know those familiar phrases too. For you've said them time and again to yourself. "I'll mend this little hole in these overalls before I start the dinner," you've decided. "It will only take about ten minutes." But before you finished with it you found the bottoms had gone in all the pockets, there was little in the seat between the wearer and respectability and both knees were so thin they wouldn't last through a day. By the time you'd finished the "little job" you'd spent more man-hours than it took to make the overalls in the first place.

And you remember the time you decided to bring in the last load of hay after supper so it wouldn't get wet. You went away back near the bush at top speed and just as you finished the first windrow a slat on the loader broke. You fixed that in jig time and just as you started the last round the tractor ran out of gas. You couldn't leave the whole load there to get wet so someone had to run to the house and carry back gas in a can. The "little job" took until well after dark. You came in hot, tired and ugly.

Then there was the time you voted to paint the stove pipes before the city folks came to visit. That wouldn't take long. But the brush hadn't been cleaned since you painted the cupboard blue, the paint had a leather on it and was hard to mix, you had to move most of the furniture in two bedrooms and the parlour and spread miles of newspapers. When you finished it took twenty minutes to clean up the paint you spilled on the hardwood floor. Besides all the furniture had to be put back. The "little job" had taken all afternoon.

It's like running down street for a can of soup for supper. It will only take a jiffy. But sure as guns you bump into Mrs Tellitall and she's in the mood to explain the details of her operation. Or Jimmie's mother thinks you'd like to know why the teacher can't understand her son. It takes an hour to do the "little job" instead of a jiffy.

And so it goes. You have to wash the mixing bowl and layer pans before you can make a cake. You have to look through all the old papers when you plan to do a hurry-up desk-tidying project. You have to put in two new panes of glass the day you decide to wash the outside windows. And I have to answer the phone five times if I attempt to write this column in a short time.

"Little jobs" have a way of taking a long time. I always marvel at how the experts can work by a timetable.

Outdoor Roundup

with Joe Foster

Judging from the average hardware or sporting goods store's shell inventory and from the shotguns they carry, the majority of our fall gunnners are still slipping the heaviest loads, with the biggest shot into full choke guns. There appears to be a fairly large group of shooters, not all of them lacking in experience, whose earnest belief is that what they really need to fill the old game bag is a gun that will shoot the farthest.

Who Started All This?

I've often wondered how and where this obsession with long range and high power originated. By and large I don't think we can attach all of the blame to the arms or ammunition makers, although in my own humble opinion ammunition advertising for shot shells lays altogether too much stress on the high velocity loads. In the final analysis it's the man behind the counter of the retail outlet who advises the customer and who has the last word in swaying his purchase. Except for the gunsmiths and these only form a very small minority, of the retail outlets for arms and ammunition, this is a highly seasonal business for the majority of the stores catering to the hunting and shooting fraternity. In which case it's not altogether surprising that in only a very few of these places of business can you find a clerk behind the counter who can dish out competent advice when it comes to the selection of a shotgun, choke boring and shot loads for the game to be hunted. If you have a full choke gun and want to use it for a variety of game, your best bet is to have it fitted with one of the several and excellent multi-choke devices that are on the market today, although with gunsmiths at their busiest right now you'll likely have to wait till next year.

In the Meantime

Not for experts, or for those whose experience has already made clear what shot size is most effective on various game birds in their shotguns, the following information is to help the newer shooter whose barrels are bored to factory percentages.

On Pheasant

For 20, 16 and 12 gauge guns at an approximate shooting distance of 30 yards, whether your barrel or barrels are bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke, your shot size is 7½. For the same bird at 40 yards an improved cylinder barrel in 20 or 16 gauge will do you not good at all, although you may get by with this choke in a 12 bore. Suggested shot size for modified and full choke in the three gauges, No. 6.

For Partridge

At 25 yards 7½'s in all three gauges, whether bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke, with one exception: Don't use a full choke 12 gauge on this bird. If you do and connect, chances are you'll mutilate the game to such an extent that it will only be fit to feed the cat.

Ducks and Geese

For ducks at 35 yards, and this is about the average distance in shooting over decoys, 6's for the 20 gauge in modified or full choke barrels; 7½'s or 6's in the same chokes for 16 gauge guns and a like shot selection for 12 gauge including those with improved cylinder barrels. For ducks at 45 yards you cn skip the 20 gauge gun and even a 16 gauge will only pay off in

Neighbouring Institutes Present at Finch W.I. Meeting Members See Slides of Teacher's Travels in England

Finch Women's Institute held tehir annual grandmothers' meeting in the Community Hall, Finch, with Avonmore, Moose Creek, Crysler, Berwick and Lunenburg branches as guests and over 100 ladies in attendance.

The meeting opened with "The Maple Leaf" and the Lord's Prayer in unison. The president, Mrs Donald Casselman, occupied the chair, assisted by Mrs Ernest Montgomery, as secretary.

Correspondence included a letter from the Department inviting comments on the children's radio programmes, "Young Canada Listens" and Cuckoo Clock House" and an invitation from Berwick to join with them for their Extension Service from the Department, "Choosing and Using Fabrics," to be held in Berwick Community Hall on October 21 from 1.30 to 4 p.m.

Mrs Bell gave the address of welcome to the grandmothers, recounting some memories of her own grandmother and paying a gracious tribute to all grandmothers.

The reply was given by Mrs Stewart Begg, of Crysler.

The president called on Mrs J. McCleverty, of Farran's Point, district president for Stormont, who brought very encouraging and stimulating reports of an Extension Service which she has recently attended and asked for the support and co-operation of all branches and members.

Miss Tomlinson, assistant supervisor of nurses from the County Health Unit, also spoke very encouragingly and introduced the new Public Health Nurse for their district, Miss Nelson.

Misses Phyllis and Anne Bell rendered a beautiful duet, "Silver Threads Among the Gold," which was enjoyed by all.

Mrs Casselman introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Miss Levere, of Cornwall, who was an exchange teacher in England and took coloured slides of her travels while there. She apologized for her amaetur photography, but everyone agreed no apology was needed as her slides were beautiful and she explained each pictures as it was shown and drew such a beautiful word picture with her visual itinerary one almost felt she had been there oneself. Miss Levere brought her lecture to a close with pictures of the garden party at the Royal Palace, to which all exchange teachers were invited by the Queen.

Miss Levere was thanked by Mrs G. MacLean.

Contests were won by Mrs J. G. McElheran, Avonmore; Mrs Alex MacLeod, Crysler; Mrs S. B. Casselman, Finch, and Mrs R. Baxter, Lunenburg.

A lunch and cup of coffee brought a very pleasant evening to a close.

The next meting will be held at the home of Mrs James MacMillan on November 3.

Locketon Lodge At Williamsburg Changes Hands

Locketon Lodge Hotel, one of the largest small town hotels in Ontario, was sold last week to complete Williamsburg district's biggest business transaction of the year.

The new owner, who took over possession on the weekend, is Raymond McIntosh, 38-year-old, well-known Williamsburg businessman who, with his brother, has operated the Williamsburg egg grading station for several years. Announcement that the 125-room building had been sold was made by Max Harris, former owner, who has returned to his St. Catharines home.

Mr Harris purchased the hotel in 1949, and since then had turned it into one of the most prosperous businesses of its kind in the province.

The huge frame structure was erected in 1932 during the era of the late Dr Mahlon W. Locke, famous foot specialist, at a cost of $110,000. When built, the hotel included 125 rooms, 70 of them with baths. Fifty of the rooms are still in operation on the first two floors of the three-storey building.

Besides the fifty rooms in operation the hotel includes dining rooms, lobby and beverage rooms for men and women.

Mr McnItosh, the new owner, is a native of Williamsburg and, except for five years with the Canadian Army overseas, has resided there all his life.

Members of the Senate and House of Commons receive a sessional indemnity of $8,000 plus $2,000 tax-free expense allowance.

Mrs Simon C. McMillan Dies in Hospital

Friends and relatives were saddened to learn of the death of Mrs Simon Cook McMillan which occurred in hospital in Edmonton following a long illness.

Mrs Edith Mary McMillan was born in Grantley 75 years ago, the daughter of the late James J. McMillan and his wife, the former Sarah Adams. She received her education in local schools and became a dress designer by profession.

In 1907 she became the wife of Simon McMillan and moved to Edmonton where they spent the remainder of their lives. Mr McMillan died several years ago.

Always keenly interested in the arts, Mrs McMillan in later adult life studied at the University of Alberta, graduating with honours as a preliminary to entering the teaching profession. Another phase of her activity was the judging of women's work at the fall fairs in the Province of Alberta.

She was a member of the Presbyterian Church and active in all women's interests connected therewith.

She is survived by one daughter, Mrs J. A. Weber, Edmonton; one brother, Jas. O. McMillan, Grantley, and two sisters, Mrs Jack Munro (Nell) and Mrs George Barkley (Ethel), both of Chesterville.

The Rev Doctor White, minister of First Presbyterian Church, Edmonton, was in charge of the funeral service and the soloist was a former Grantley boy, Thomas Gordon , who sang "Unto the Hills." Sam Young and Will Carlyle, who acted as pall bearers, are also known locally.

Interment was in Edmonton Cemetery.

O'BRIEN AND FRIENDS—The Alouette's Harold Patterson (left) and Sam Etcheverry (right), the greatest passing-catching combination in Canadian football, explain to CBC commentator Larry O'Brien their famous passing attack. Patterson and Etcheverry were named Canadian football's 1954 "Pair of the Year." O'Brien is a top name in sports also; every week he is in charge of CBC's Sportspage on the Trans-Canada network, a programme of interviews and sports news, with on-the-spot reports from commentators across the country. Besides his radio duties, O'Brien is a well-known magazine writer and has a column in the Montreal Star.

MACHINE-MADE "MILK" MAY AID LIVESTOCK

Word comes from London that essence of cow—or milk without the cow—is the product of a machine ready for commercial operation.

It consumes fresh grass or other vegetable material, breaks down the cellular structure and spews out the fibrous material. The liquid is precipitated by steam, ready to be fed as liquid, paste or cake.

The residue is rich in proteins, fats, minerals, vitamins, and, with a balance of carbohydrates, can be used as a special livestock boosting food.

Other applications considered possible for the machine are grain drying, vegetable oil production and the preparation of cheap drugs and vitamins for humans.

COLOURFUL STORY

A towing service operator, of Syracuse, N.Y., has learned there's a difference between green and green. It all depends on where they are.

Olson was told to pick up a green car for repairs. When he reached the spot, he saw two green cars—one with a light top and green body, the other with a gren top and light body.

Olson picked the one in front, drove it to the garage—only to learn, when the owner arrived, that it was the wrong green car.

In the meantime, the other owner had reported his green car stolen to police.

Olson's face was red.

Miss Thelma Heagle Honoured by Friends

A shower to honour Miss Thelma Heagle upon her approaching marriage was held Thursday evening, September 22 at the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs Arthur Heagle, Chesterville. A social hour was enjoyed by all by means of contests, after which the bride-to-be was escorted to the decorated bride's chair by Mrs Foster Droppo. Mrs Heagle was escorted by Miss Shirley Dillabough and a corsage pinned on each.

Miss Vaughn Barkley read the following address:

Dear Thelma:

We, your friends and neighbours, have assembled here tonight to honour you on your approaching marriage.

Although you have been away a few years, we have not forgotten you and we could not let this joyous occasion pass without gathering together to extend to you in some tangible way our best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

Therefore, we ask you to accept these gifts. With them go our best wishes for future happiness.

Miss Heagle was showered with many beautiful gifts. She thanked everyone and wished that they would come to see her when she is settled in her new home in Ottawa.

All joined in singing "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow," after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses.

SEARCH FOR EGGS 100 YEARS OLD

Tiny, shrimp-like creatures springing up in a recently flooded dry lake have brought scientists to the desert outpost of Camp Irwin, Calif., to search for eggs that may be 100 years old.

The leader of the group, Dr Jas. P. Welsh, Los Angeles zoologist, already has about 40 of the small specimens, which thrive only in hot water and look like a throwback to the trilobite, an extinct prehistoric crustacean.

As far back as anyone can remember—and that's roughly 100 years—the lake was dry until last August when desert thunderstorms suddenly deposited a foot of water.

The army, which had been using the dry lake bed as a landing field, began noticing the small wrigglers, one or two inches long, in the new lake. They called in Dr Welsh.

His theory: The crustaceans were lying dormant in eggs beneath the sun-baked surface, and the rains hatched them. If he can recover some of the eggs, he believes he may have a vital link with post fossil finds.

HOW TO WASH CANDLEWICK BEDSPREAD

To wash a candlewick bedspread, wash in your machine in warm water with a mild soap or detergent from three to five minutes, depending on how much or little it is soiled. If it is white, it can be washed in hot soapsuds.

Rinse bedspreads twice, once in water that is the same temperature as the wash water, and once in cold water. Spreads may be put through the roller-type washer to remove excess moisture before beinb hung on the clothesline.

To dry, hang spread inside out and doubled over the clothesline. The tufts wil lthen rub together and the spread will become fluffy as it dries. Shake out spread occasionally to keep it fluffy.

A youth came to a farmer to borrow a lantern. At first he refused to say why he wanted it, but eventually confessed that he wanted it to go courting. The farmer was scornful.

"I did my courting without a lantern," he said. "Yes," replied the youth, "and look at your missus."

"Smith," asked the restaurant manager to a waiter, "why did that man at table number five leave so suddenly?"

"I dont know," replied the waiter. "He asked for sausages and I told him we were all out of them, but if he would wait a few minutes I'd get cook to make some. I went to the kitchen, tripped over a dog's tail and it yelped. When I came back the man was running out the door."

PURINA FEEDING PLAN FOR THE MILKING HERD

Purina research and customer experience both recommend a 16 per cent milking ration. Higher protein may increase output for a few weeks, but it does not last.

Vary the mount of milking ration according to production and the kind and consumption of hay. "Rule of thumb" rates: High-quality hay —Holsteins, 1 lb. 16 per cent ration to 4 lbs. milk; Jerseys, 1 to 3; medium-fat breeds, in between. With poorer hay, Holsteins may need 1 to 3; Jerseys 1 to 2.

Always grind grain for cows coarse. If it contains much corn or wheat, lighten it up with Bulky-Las. Many prefer to roll wheat. Unless good hay is unusually scarce and high-priced, it cuts costs to feed all that your cows will clean up. "Rule of thumb": Without silage, 2 lbs. hay per day per 100 lbs. body weight (20 lbs. for 1,000 lb. cow) . . . with corn silage, as low as 1 lb. per 100 lbs. body weight.

Silage: Corn, not over 2½ lbs. per day per 100 . . . grass, not over 3 lbs. (As silage averages 20 to 30 lbs. per bushel, this means about 1 bushel per day to a 1,000 lb. cow.)

If you have lots of grain, mix 400 lbs. chop or rolled grain and 100 Cow Chow Concentrate.

POPULAR ACORN SQUASH

ACORN SQUASH DESERVES ITS POPULARITY as a fall vegetable. It can be prepared in any number of ways and served as a vegetable with the meat course or with a few additions it becomes the main dish for lunch or supper. It is highly nutrituious, easy to digest and colourful. Last, but by no means an unimportant point is its delicate flavour.

Glazed Squash Rings

Wash acorn squash. Cut in rings and remove seeds. Arrange rings in casserole. Season with salt and pepper. Add ¼ cup water. Cover and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) for 40 minutes. Cream 2 tablespoons butter and 1-3 cup brown sugar. Remove squash from oven. Spread with sugar mixture. Return to oven and bake uncovered 15 minutes.

Stuffed Baked Squash

Wash squash and cut in halves or thirds. Remove seeds. Bake 30 minutes, cut side down in covered casserole to which ¼ cup water has been added. Remove from oven. Turn squash halves right side up and fill with meat. Continue baking 25 minutes.

For the filling you could use sausage meat, hamburg or any combination of ground, left-over meats. Add such items as chopped onion, chopped green pepper or chopped celery; tomato juice or soup or left-over gravy. Have filling moist.

For an extra touch, 10 minutes before serving spread squash with mixture of 2 tablespoons creamed butter and 1-3 cup brown sugar.

Squash and Apple Sauce

2 acorn squash
2 tbsps. butter, melted
¼ cup brown sugar
2 cups applesauce

Wash squash and cut in half; remove seeds. Place cut side down in baking dish. Add ¼ cup water. Bake in moderate oven about one hour, or until squash is tender. Turn right side up; brush with butter; sprinkle with brown sugar. Spoon heated fresh applesauce into squash.

This method provides a perfect accompaniment to roast pork or pork chops.

Freezing Hubbard Squash

Hubbard squash freezes excellently. Cut the squash in large chunks; remove the seeds. Cook till tender. If you use a pressure cooker cook for 14 minutes at 15 pounds pressure. Cool quickly. Remove pieces of squash with a spatula to a large platter or tray. Allow to cool till they can be handled easily. Then remove squash from rind with a spoon. Mash or stir well to remove lumps. Cool thoroughly. Pack in cartons and freeze at once.

Use well seasoned with salt, pepper and butter, as a vegetable or use in the following recipe for squash pie.

Squash Pie

1 cup cooked squash
¾ cup brown sugar
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
2 eggs slightly beaten
1 cup milk

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt and spices. Mix well. Add egg and milk; blend. Pour into 9-inch pastry-lined pan. Bake until mixture is set.

full choke, with No. 6 as the recommended load. For geese at 40 yards, 16 or 12 gauge, modified and full choke, shot sizes 4's and 2's. For those who can consistently knock down their ducks and geese out past 40 yards, don't overlook the new magnum loads for standard shotguns chambering 2¾" shells. These magnums loaded with 2's and 4's contain 20% more shot and consequently give a denser pattern than the standard shells loaded with the same size shot.

Woodcock and Rabbits

For 'timber-doodles' at 25 yards No. 8 shot in 20, 16 and 12 gauge guns whether bored improved cylinder, modified or full choke. When it comes to rabbits, the predictable shooting range will vary considerably. No. 6 shot for modified choke in 20, 16 and 12 gauge should take care of most situations. Just before closing off this piece and coming back to that long range and high power business, let all of us remember that regardless of the game being hunted, long range munition and of wildfowl. If the shooting is wasteful both of amdistanceshooter does hit his bird, he's more likely to cripple than kill it, and today that is particularly unsportsmanlike.

ALMOST PASSED TEST —BUT NOT QUITE

Patrolman Donald Robbins was just about to wave Harry Bacon's car through safety inspection at Muskegon, Mich. It had passed everything. But Robbins decided to look inside.
