A head-on collision on the C.P.R. at Streetsville, between the Chicago express and a train bearing the soldiers from Toronto who had been out on a Thanksgiving Day manoeuvre, caused the death of two soldiers and the injury of thirty others. License Inspector Foster, of Dundela, was in town today, and showed The Leader a copy of a letter he was in receipt of, complaining of liquor being sold in four or five places, and also threatening him that if he did not act, the writer would take the matter up with someone else. It was signed "A Citizen." The funny part of the letter was that it bore no date, neither was the name of the place on it. It would be very hard for Mr. Foster to act on such a matter. If anyone has complaints to make it would be wise to put the date on, and also the name of the place complained of. It is not fair to the inspector to write such letters as the one referred to.

Mr. Albert Sweet, of Waddington, spent Sunday in town. "Dutch" pitched ball in Des Moines, Iowa, this summer, and of the fourteen games he pitched seven went to his credit. One game he pitched was eighteen innings, but he lost by the score of 6 to 5. He returns to Des Moines in March next to get ready for the season.

Charles Becker, the former police lieutenant, convicted of procuring the murder of the gambler, Herman Rosenthal, was yesterday sentenced to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing during the week of December 9th. Becker's execution will be stayed, however, by a notice of appeal from the verdict of the jury soon to be filed by his council, which may take a year to determine. He was at once delivered into the custody of Sheriff Harburger who immediately left with him to take a train to Sing Sing prison, where the convicted man will be placed in solitary confinement until his fate is determined.

Yesterday's Toronto News gives out the following pleasing news to his many friends in Morrisburg concerning Sir Mackenzie Bowell:—"Advice from Wellesley Hospital at 2 o'clock this afternoon indicated that the condition of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who fell on the stairs of the Albany Club some days ago and has since been confined at the hospital, is improved. The patient spent a better night than he has done for some time and despite his age, Sir MacKenzie's recovery is confidently expected. The hospital authorities, however, decline to predict how soon he may be moved to his home in Belleville."

There was quite a mix-up at the entrance to the Temperance House yard on Monday morning, when Mr. James MacKenzie's colts, driven by Mr. Ed. Duval, took fright at the noise of a tin pail which was in the wagon, and started up Main street. When opposite Geo. Dillon's butcher shop Mr. Duval jumped, and in so doing the horses were pulled into the entrance of the hotel. "Billie" Coir was just driving out of the yard at the time, but jumped from the rig, thus saving himself. The colts landed in the meat rig smashing it to pieces and also hurt Coir's horse somewhat. Fortunately no one was injured.

Dr. Silas J. Bower, a very popular physician of Waddington for over 45 years, suffered a stroke on Friday last and died Sunday night. His sons Will and Henry, and Mrs. C. J. Parker, of New York, arrived on Saturday.

At Riverside last Friday night, Mr. A. J. W. Becksted's refrigerator was visited by thieves. Evidently they intended having a party that evening, as they carried off several pounds of meat a cake and six pies. Mr. Becksted, hopes these people will be kind enough to return the plates.

After a long illness, Vice-President James S. Sherman died at his home in Utica, N.Y., last night, of uremic poison, by caused Bright's disease, complicated by heart disease. Though he was a running mate of President Taft at the election on Tuesday next, and his name appears on the ballot, no irregularity will be caused.

The big steel freighter Keystorm with 2400 tons of coal, went on a shoal about two miles west of Allen's Dock, and about 15 miles west of Brockville, during a fog on Saturday morning last. She tore a big hole in her bottom and soon filled and rolled off the shoal into the deep water, which is said to be from 120 to 150 feet deep at that point. The crew were all rescued and taken to Brockville. The loss is estimated at $120,000.

BEFORE THE P. M.

The King v. Bernice Hutt. This was a prosecution for theft which came up before Justices of the Peace Wm. Eager and W. K. Farlinger, yesterday afternoon. The prosecutor was Louis Bergeron, uncle of the accused, of the Township of Osnabrock, in the County of Stormont, farmer. The evidence for the prosecution was to the effect that Bergeron hired the accused to work for him as a farm laborer for seven months, commencing on 9th March last, for which he was to receive $20 per month, with board and lodging, and if the accused proved a steady man, Bergeron said he would give him in addition a certain coat when his time expired. The accused lost 12 days during the seven months, and made it up by working till the 21st inst. When he left his employer he took with him a set of single harness which hung in a closet off his bedroom, and which was valued at $25. After the evidence for the prosecution was concluded, the accused elected to be committed for trial at Cornwall at the next court of criminal jurisdiction, and applied for bail. The accused was accordingly committed for trial, and bail granted.

Mr. R. F. Lyle appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. A. Flynn for accused.

FOUND DROWNER

In Puddle of Water Along Roadside Near the Hamlet of Lady Smith, in Matilda Township—An English Blacksmith, Named Goulding, the Victim—Worked at Williamsburg, and Was Well Liked.

(By our Williamsburg Correspondent)

Williamsburg, Ont., Oct. 30.—On Friday afternoon of last week the citizens of the little hamlet of Lady-smith, in the township of Matilda, were all excited at the finding of the body of a man lying drowned in a ditch, and nearby a horse and buggy.

They knew a tragedy had happened, but were too scared and too timid to make any investigation. However, Messrs Saxon Casselman and Bruce Strader, who were out hunting, happened on the scene shortly after and, taking in the situation at once, pulled the body up on the bank of the ditch. The body was still warm, though life was extinct. It proved to be that of Harry Goulding, a blacksmith, who came out from England about two years ago, and who had been in the employ of Mr Edward Beckstead up to a few months ago, when he left to run a blacksmith shop of his own. The deceased was in our village a week ago Saturday night, and it is presumed he went from here to visit a friend, Mr George Purchon, who just recently moved to Maple Ridge. It seems on Friday Mr Purchon gave him a horse and buggy to go to Ladysmith to get a man to come and plough. It is understood the deceased was subject to epileptic spells. He had almost reached the end of his journey when he was suddenly stricken, and as the roads were very rough, and he was riding in a side-spring buggy, he was jolted out into the ditch, where he was found. The coroner, Dr. Loocke, was summoned and held an examination, pronouncing death due to drowning. The body was removed to the residence of Mr Foster, nearby, and was taken in charge by Mr C. Pitt, undertaker, being afterwards taken to Maple Ridge, where the funeral was held on Sunday afternoon at 1 p. m., from the residence of Mr Geo. Purchon, interment being in Maple Ridge cemetery.

The deceased was talking to Mr Frank Madden, as he was going up the road, about a half hour before he was drowned. He was well liked in this vicinity.

The Late R. J. Cunningham

On Friday morning the 18th inst., the grim reaper, death cut off, in the prime of life, one of our most highly respected citizens, in the person of Mr. R. J. Cunningham. He had been in poor health for some time but during the last week sank very quickly. The best of medical skill at home, in Ottawa and Montreal, had been employed, with no avail. The funeral was held on Sunday in Trinity Methodist church, when the Rev. W. H. Stevens and Rev. S. A. Woods participated in the services, the latter preaching on the text "For we are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good work." The bearers were six of his brethren belonging to the A.O.U.W., as he was a faithful and zealous member of that Order. The remains were interred in the Grantly cemetery, near the home of his childhood. He leaves to mourn his demise his wife who was Miss H. Coulthart, of Morewood, and several brothers and sisters and a host of friends. Mr. Cunningham was a man of quiet demeanour, but possessed many sterling qualities which won for him the esteem of all who knew him.—Chester-ville Record

"The Town Marshal"

Can one evil mind poison a whole household? Is the human brain capable of producing disastrous effects on a household by adverse suggestive thoughts? Do we realize, adequately, how our mental attitude influences our lives and the lives of those about us? All these questions are asked in "The Town Marshal", a new play from the pen of Lem B. Parker, and produced by O. E. Wee. And the answer? Well, the play is the answer. For one-half its course is built on a condition of affairs in a typical American family of to-day. The inner life of each member is shown and there is the subtle feeling produced that all is not right, that one mind is not in full accord with the peace and happiness of that household. The crash comes. Then "The Town Marshal" shows his hand and solves the mystery and brings each member of the little family circle, back to peace and happiness. Music Hall, Monday, Nov. 4th. Prices 25, 35 and 50c.

ONLY A MONTH;

OR, A CURIOUS MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

CHAPTER XXI.—(Cont'd)

That chapter of her life was over, and she was quite well aware that the next chapter would seem terribly dull and insipid. For a moment the thought alarmed her. "What have I been doing," she said to herself, "to let this love get so great a hold on me? Why is it that no other man in the world seems to me worth a thought, even he may be better, and may live a nobler life than Frithiof?"

"It is after all only natural to feel this going away," she reflected. "Like the tree, I shall soon grow steady again." And then she heard Lance's voice calling her, and, going to the nursery, found a child's dispute in need of settling, and tiny arms to cling about her, and soft kisses to comfort her.

Meanwhile, Frithiof and Sigrid had reached the model lodgings, and, key in hand, were toiling up the long flights of stone stairs. All had been arranged on the previous day, and now, as they unlocked their door, the moment seemed to them a grave one, for they were about to begin a new and unknown life. Sigrid's heart beat quickly as they entered the little sitting-room. The door opened straight into it, which was a drawback, but Mrs. Boniface's present of a four-fold Japanese screen gave warmth and privacy, and picturesqueness, by shutting off that corner from view; and, in spite of extreme economy in furnishing, the place looked very pretty. A cheerful crimson carpet covered the floor; the buff-colored walls were bare indeed, for there was a rule against knocking in nails, but the picture of Bergen stood on the mantel-piece between the photographs of their father and mother, serving as a continual remembrance of home and of a countryman's kindness. Facing the fire was a cottage piano lent by Mr. Boniface for as long as they liked to keep it, and on the open shelves above a corner cupboard were ranged the blue willow-pattern cups and saucers which Sigrid had delighted in buying.

"They were much too effective to be banished to the kitchen, were they not?" she said. "I am sure they are far prettier than a great deal of the rare old china I have seen put up in drawing-rooms."

"How about the fire?" said Frithiof. "Shall I light it?" "Yes; do. We must have a little one to boil the kettle, and Swan-hild is sure to come in cold after that long journey. I'll just put these flowers into Cecil's little vases. How lovely they are! Do you know, Frithiof, I think our new life is going to be like the smell of these chrysanthemums—healthy and good, and a sort of bitter-sweet."

"I never knew they had any smell," he said, still intent on his fire. "Live and learn," said Sigrid, laughingly holding out to him the basket of beautiful flowers—red, white, crimson, yellow, russet, and in every variety.

"I should like to come to King's Cross too," said Sigrid. "But perhaps it is better that I should stay here and get things quite ready. I hope Swanhild will turn up all right. She seems such a little thing to travel all that way alone."

When he had set off, she began with great satisfaction to lay the table for tea. She put everything tidy in the bare little kitchen, where, in truth, there was not one unnecessary piece of furniture.

At last she heard the door handle turned, and Frithiof's voice. "You'll find her quite a domesticated character," he was saying; and in another minute Swanhild was in her arms, none the worse for her lonely journey, but very glad to feel her cares at an end.

"Oh, Sigrid!" she cried, with child-like glee; "what a dear, funny little room! And how cozy you have made it! Why, there's the picture of Bergen! and oh, what a pretty-looking tea-table! I'm dreadfully hungry, Sigrid. I was afraid to get out of the train for fear it should go on. They seem to go so dreadfully fast here, everything is in a bustle."

"You poor child, you must be starving!" cried Sigrid. "Come and take your things off quickly. She really looks quite thin and pale, does she not, Frithiof?"

"She doesn't feel so very bony," he said, laughing. "Oh, and I did eat something," explained Swanhild. "There was an old lady who gave me two sandwiches, but they were so dreadfully full of fat."

"What do you think of your new bedroom?" Frithiof asked.

"It's lovely!" cried Swanhild. "What a funny, round bath, and such a tiny washing-stand, just like the one in the old doll's house on three legs. And oh, Sigrid, auntie has sent us three lovely eider-down quilts as a Christmas present, only she thought I might as well bring them now."

"There's one thing which we had better make up our minds to at once," said Sigrid, when at length they rose. "Since we have got to wait on ourselves, we may as well try to enjoy it and get what fun we can out of it. Come, Swanhild, I will wash the tea things and you shall dry them."

"As for me," said Frithiof, suddenly appearing at the kitchen door in his shirt sleeves, "I am shoe-black to the establishment."

"You! oh Frithiof!" cried Swan-hild, startled into gravity.

"I assure you it is in the bond," he said, smiling. "Sigrid is cook and housekeeper; you are the lady help; and I am the man for the coals, knives, and boots. Every respectable household has a man for that part of the work, you know."

"Yes, yes," she hesitated; "but you—"

"She clearly doesn't think me competent," he said, laughingly threatening her with his brush.

"Order! order! you two, or there will be tea-cups broken," said Sigrid, laughing. "I believe he will do the boots quite scientifically, for he has really studied the subject. There, put the china in the sitting-room, Swanhild, on the corner shelves, and then we will come and unpack."

By nine o'clock everything was arranged, and they came back to the sitting-room, where Frithiof had lighted the pretty little lamp, and was writing to Herr Sivertsen to say he would be glad of more work.

"Come," said Sigrid, "the evening won't be complete without some music, and I am dying to try that piano. What shall be the first thing we play in our new home, Swan-hild?"

"For Norge," said the little girl promptly.

"Do you know we had quite a discussion about that at Rowan Tree House the other night," said Sigrid. "They were all under the impression that it was an English air, and only knew it as a glee called 'The Hardy Norseman.' Mr. Boniface calls Frithiof his Hardy Norseman because he got well so quickly."

"Come and sing," Frithiof, do come," pleaded Swanhild, slipping her hand caressingly into his and drawing him toward the piano. And willingly enough he consented, and in their new home in this foreign land, they sung together the stirring Norway national song.

CHAPTER XXII.

"My dear, she is charming, your little Swanhild! She is a born dancer and catches up everything with the greatest ease," said Mme. Lechertier one autumn afternoon, when Sigrid at the usual time entered the big, bare room where the classes were held.

"You think she will really be of use to you, madame," asked Sigrid. "If she is no good we should not of course like her to take any money."

"Yes, yes," said Mme. Lechertier. "You are independent and proud, I know it well enough. But I assure you, Swanhild will be a first-rate little teacher, and I am delighted to have her. There is no longer any need for her to come to me every morning, for I have taught her all that she will at present need, and no doubt you are in a hurry for her to go on with her ordinary schooling."

"I have arranged for her to go to a high school, in the mornings, after Christmas," said Sigrid, "and she must, till then, work well at her English or she will not take a good place. It will be a very busy life for her, but then we are all of us strong and able to get through a good deal."

"And her work with me is purely physical and will not overtask her," said madame. "Dear little soul! she has the most perfect manners I ever saw in a child! Her charm to me is that she is so bright and unaffected. What is it, I wonder, that makes you Norwegians so spontaneous? so perfectly simple and courteous?"

"In England," said Sigrid, "people seem to me to have two sides, a rough home side, and a polite society side. The Bonifaces reverse the order and keep their beautiful side for home and a rather shy side for society, but still they, like all the English people I have met, have distinctly two manners. In Norway there is nothing of that. I think perhaps we think less about the impression we are making; and I think Norwegians more naturally respect each other."

Swanhild prospered well on that first Saturday afternoon, and Mme. Lechertier was quite satisfied with her little idea as to the Norwegian costumes. They had only just returned and taken off their walking things when there came a loud knock at the door. Swanhild still in her Hardanger dress ran to see what was wanted, and could hardly help laughing at the funny-looking old man who inquired whether Frithiof were in.

"Still out, you say," he panted; very provoking. "I specially wanted to see him on a matter of urgency."

"Will you not come in and wait?" said the child. "Frithiof will soon be home."

"Thank you," said old Herr Sivertsen. "These stairs are terrible work. I shall be glad not to have to climb them again. But houses are all alike in London—all alike! Story after story, till they're no better than the tower of Babel."

"Frithiof has gone for a walk with a friend of his," she explained. "But he will be home in a few minutes. I always persuade him to take a good walk on Saturday if possible."

"In consequence of which he doesn't get through half as much work for me," said Herr Sivertsen. "However, you are quite right. He needed more exercise. Is he quite well again?"

"Quite well, thank you; though I suppose he will never be so strong as he once was," she said a little sadly. "You see overwork and trouble and poor living must in the long run injure even a strong man."

"There are no strong men, now-

HOW TO GET BETTER LIGHT From COAL OIL (Kerosene)

Tests by Prof. McKergow, McGill University, Montreal, on leading oil-burning lamps show the Aladdin Mantle Lamp is the most economical and gives over twice as much light as the Rayo and other lamps tested. It is odorless, safe, clean, noiseless. Guaranteed. Better light than gas or electric. To introduce the Aladdin we'll send a sample lamp on.

a-days, it seems to me," said the old author gruffly. "They all knock out sooner or later—a degenerate race—a worthless generation."

"Well, the doctor says he must have had a very fine constitution to have recovered so fast," said Sigrid. "Still, I feel rather afraid sometimes of his doing too much again. Were you going to suggest some more work for him?"

"Yes, I was; but perhaps it is work in which you could help him," said Herr Sivertsen, and he explained to her his project.

"If only I could make time for it," she cried. "But you see we all have busy lives. I have to see to the house almost entirely and there is always either mending or making in hand. And Swanhild and I are out every afternoon at Madame Lechertier's academy. By the bye, that is why we have on these peasant costumes, which must have surprised you."

"It is a pretty dress, and takes me back to my old days at home," said Herr Sivertsen. "As to the work, do what you can of it, there is no immediate hurry. Here comes your brother!" and the old man at once button-holed Frithiof, while Roy, who had returned with him, was ready enough to talk with Sigrid as she stood by the fire making toast, little Swanhild in the meantime setting the table for afternoon tea, lighting the lamp, and drawing the curtains.

Will you be one of the 108 farmers who will receive our Prize Contest checks?

THERE will be twelve cash prizes in each of the nine provinces (108 in all) in the 1912 Prize Contest for Canadian Farmers. The 1911 Contest was so successful in awakening interest in the use of Concrete on the farm, that a second contest, in which three times as many prizes are offered, was decided upon for this year.

The Contest this year is divided into three classes, "A," "B," and "C," and there will be four prizes in each class. (First prize, $50; Second prize, $25; Third prize, $15; Fourth prize, $10.) Thus there are three $50 Prizes, three $25 Prizes, three $15 prizes, and three $10 Prizes, for each province.

DESCRIPTION OF CLASSES

In Each Class there will be First, Second, Third and Fourth Prizes ($50, $25, $15, and $10) for Each Province.

CLASS "A"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who use most "Canada" Cement on their farms in the year 1912.

CLASS "B"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send photographs of the best concrete work done with "Canada" Cement on their farms in 1912.

CLASS "C"—Prizes to be awarded to the four farmers in each province who send in the best description, telling how any piece of concrete work was done with "Canada" Cement. (Entries for this prize must be accompanied by photographs of the work.)

Don't think that you must use a large quantity of cement in order to win a prize. The quantity of cement used does not count in Classes "B" and "C." Many of last year's prize winners used very little cement.

When you enter the Contest, you have a chance to win a cash prize of $50 as well as the certainty that you will add a permanent improvement to your farm. If you haven't a copy, be sure and ask for our book, "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete." It will not only suggest many improvements that you can use in entering the Contest, but will tell you all about the use of concrete on the farm.

Just write your name and address on the attached coupon, or use a postal card, and we will send full particulars of the Prize Contest and a copy of "What the Farmer Can Do With Concrete" to you absolutely free.

COUNTIES COUNCIL

(Reported by Counties Clerk.)
Cornwall, Oct. 21st, 1912.
The Council met at 8.30 p.m., having been delayed an hour by late arrival of train from east.
The Warden in the chair.
Roll called. All the members present except D. D. McDonell, who missed his train and reported at 10 p.m.
The Clerk announced that after the June session the date for Fall Assizes had been fixed for 15th October, thereby necessitating a change of date of both this and regular session, to avoid a clash. He had failed to obtain a change in date of Court, and had been obliged to secure the written and unanimous authorization of the members to a postponement of Council sessions for a week from 14th inst. to this date, due notice of change being given as to this session in the Cornwall Standard for four issues.
Upon motion of Mr. Tanney, the Warden extended an invitation to Mr. Cameron, of Iroquois, an ex-member, who was present in chamber, to take a seat within railing.
Mr. Cameron availed himself of the invitation and took his seat accordingly, after briefly thanking Warden and Council for the honor.
The Clerk then briefly explained the object of the meeting, which was to take into consideration By-law No. 1648, providing for the issue of a series of debentures, extending over 20 years, at 4 1/2 per cent., for $50,000, to defray expenditure re House of Industry and Refuge, and to give it its third reading, and finally pass it if it was considered advisable to do so. He expressed the opinion, based upon enquiries made, that in the present glutted condition of the security market, it would be impossible to secure anything like par, or even much better than a five per cent. basis for the debentures, if offered now, and suggested that the present by-law be abandoned, and a new one introduced, figured on a 5 per cent. interest basis, which would yield at least par value, and possibly a considerable premium.
This new By-law could be finally passed in January, and in the meantime money could be borrowed on note at 5 per cent. to meet requirements. The only additional expense would be cost of re-advertising, which he had ascertained would be about $37.00.
Considerable discussion followed, remarks being made along the same lines by the Warden, Messrs. Huot, McLeod, Pollock, Cass and others, and with a view of disposing of the By-law.
It was moved by Mr. McMillan, seconded by Mr. Rombough, that By-law No. 1648, aforesaid, be now read a third time.
The above motion, upon being put by the Warden, was declared to be defeated upon the following division, viz.:—
Yeas—Messrs. McMillan, Robertson, Rombough and Shaver. Total, 4.
Nays—Messrs. Brown, Calder, Cass, Chambers, Cooper, Countryman, Dickson, Gibson, Harding, Huot, Kennedy, Marcellus, Merkle, Millar, Morrow, McDonell (S. J.), McDonald (A. A.), McLennan, McLeod, McRae, Pollock, Rae, Ross, Shanks, Tanney, Timmins, Watters and Whitteker. Total, 28.
Upon motion of Mr. Shaver, seconded by Mr. Brown, and carried unanimously, this Special Meeting was declared closed.
(Sgd) M. S. Beckstead, Warden.
(Sgd) A. I. Macdonell, Clerk.
First Day.
Cornwall, Oct. 21st, 1912.
The Council met this day in regular session at 8.50 p.m., at close of Special Session.
The Warden in the chair.
Roll called. All the members present except Mr. McDonell (D. D.), who missed his train connect-

SHE FAINTED WITH THE AGONY

"Fruit-a-lives" Cured Her Kidneys

MISS MAGGIE JANNACK

MOUNTAIN, ONT., DEC. 14th, 1910
"I desire to let the world know the great debt I owe 'Fruit-a-lives' which saved my life when I had given up hope of ever being well again.
For six years, I suffered from dreadful Kidney Disease. My legs and lower part of my body were fearfully swollen. The pain in my side and legs would be so bad that I would faint with the agony.
Five different doctors attended me and all said it was Kidney Disease and gave me no hope of getting well.
A kind neighbor visited me and mentioned the case of Mrs. Fenwick who had been cured of a sickness like mine. I took 'Fruit-a-lives' and in a short time, I began to feel better—the swelling went down—the pains were easier—and soon I was well.
I have gained over 30 pounds since taking 'Fruit-a-lives'—and my friends look upon my recovery as a miracle."
(MISS) MAGGIE JANNACK.
'Fruit-a-lives' are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c.—or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-lives Limited, Ottawa.

tion and arrived shortly after adjournment.
The Warden welcomed the members back to their labors, and referred to the death of Dr. Steacy, late Treasurer, since last session. In sending his resignation to the Warden, dated a few days prior to his death, and received afterwards, Dr. Steacy had respectfully requested him to convey his best regards and final greetings to the members.
In providing for the appointment of a Treasurer pro tem, a duty devolving on him by statute, he had followed precedent established in 1903, and appointed the Clerk, Mr. Macdonell, to the vacancy until this meeting, exacting the same security, a $10,000 guarantee bond, which had been furnished. He had also appointed Mr. Watson, County Auditor, to make an audit of late Treasurer's books and accounts for the eight months of present year, ending with his death on 1st September, and such auditor had made his audit and report, which would be read and explained by the Clerk.
While the fall session was not usually a heavy one, this present one would prove an exception, as several important appointments had to be made, notably an Inspector of Public Schools for Dundas, a permanent County Treasurer, in addition to which the Rules and Regulations re House of Refuge would have to be considered and approved, as a By-law covering same was to be submitted.
He trusted that all these matters would receive the prompt and earnest attention of the members.
After resuming the chair, the Warden, upon motion of Mr. McMillan, seconded by Mr. Shaver, extended an invitation to Mr. W. J. Ransom, an ex-member, to take a seat within railing, which he did after giving expression to his appreciation of the courtesy.
Upon motion of Mr. McMillan, seconded by Mr. Rombough, the minutes of the last day of the June session, being printed and distributed to members, were taken as read, and upon motion of same mover and seconder, the same were adopted in Council without amendment, and signed by Warden and Clerk.
Upon motion of Mr. Huot, seconded by Mr. Dickson, the various communications in the hands of the Clerk and received by him since last session, were presented by him and received and read, and in substance they are briefly as follows:
1. Letter from Sisters of Hotel Dieu Hospital, expressing their grateful thanks for contribution of $17.25, share of collection taken up among members for hospitals at June session.
2. Letter from Hon. Mr. Rheaume, Minister of Public Works for Ontario, acknowledging receipt of resolution re construction of specimen stretch of good roads in Finch Village, and regretting the impossibility of acceding thereto, as arrangements already made for such stretch in Winchester Township.
3. Letter from Deputy Minister of Education, giving amounts of various Legislative grants to High Schools in these Counties for 1912.

4. Letter from John E. Crowder, Esq., Township Clerk of Mountain, calling attention to dangerous condition of boundary bridge between Mountain and South Gower, and enquiring as to the scope of powers of Mr. Millar, Reeve, as to construction of a new bridge costing about $1500.00.
5. Letter from Education Department, Toronto, expressing approval of Minister to establishment of Rural Continuation School District in Roxborough Township.
6. Letter from Mrs. John Kippan, former matron of gaol, conveying her grateful appreciation of sympathy expressed in resolution of condolence respecting death of her late husband, our former turnkey.

10. Letter from W. D. Jackson, Carp, Sec'y of Eastern Ontario Live Stock and Poultry Show, pointing out its importance, and asking encouragement by monetary grant, to be applied in special prizes, as Council may decide.
11. Letter from Robert Fraser, Esq., Russell, soliciting appointment as Counties' Treasurer, at salary of $900.00.
12. Letter from Deputy Minister of Education, Toronto, expressing Minister's approval, under the amended Act, of the continuance in office of Mr. Froats as P. S. Inspector for Stormont.
13. Similar letter, approving of Mr. Crewson's continuance in office as P. S. Inspector for Glengarry.
14. Letter from A. G. Watson, Jr., Interim Auditor, enclosing report as to audit of late Treasurer's books and accounts to September 1st, and abstract statement of receipts and expenditures, showing balance due by Treasurer of $80.15, composed almost entirely of salary overdraft.
15. Letter from V. K. Greer, Esq., St. Thomas, making application for appointment as Public School Inspector for Dundas County, and enclosing references and testimonials.
16. Similar application from R. C. Rose, Smith's Falls, with copies of testimonials.
17. Similar application from T. M. Henry, Morrisburg, with references, &c., and testimonials as to ability.
18. Letter from James Collison, Esq., Iroquois, applying for vacant

25. Letter from J. C. Alguire, Esq., Registrar of Deeds, Cornwall, enumerating repairs and furnishings required for offices and grounds.

Messrs. Edgar Casselman, Reuben Loucks and Adam Marcellus left on Wednesday morning for Northern Ontario for their hunting grounds.

Mr. Earl Phillips, who was assisting Mr. Henry Garlough in running a corn-outter, had the misfortune to have his right arm cut off almost to the elbow. They were filling Mr. Norman Barkley's silo on Friday last, when accidentally the young man's hand got caught in the feeder and before he could reverse the machine the knives had maimed him for life. There were other men working around the machine when the accident occurred, but it seems the young man had to reverse the machine himself. The other men hastened from the field and bound his arm with binder twine to stop the flow of blood, and he was hurriedly driven to the village, where Dr. M. Locke dressed the arm.

The Bell Telephone Co.'s men, who have been in this locality for almost a month, putting in new lines and making extensive repairs, have about completed their work for the present. A line has been run north to Hess's Corners, up the Sixth to Strader's Hill and to Winchester Springs and Dundela; also to Whitteker Bros. and Edgar McIntosh's, east to N. Marcellus's and south to Mr. Alex Shannette's. Others along the line have connections which will make a complete service.

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, palpitant of the heart, expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, bone pains, hair loose, etc.

PILATE'S REPORT

An Ancient and Interesting Document Found In the Vatican at Rome.

The public is indebted to the energy of a Christian minister, W. D. Mahan by name, for calling attention to and securing an English translation of this interesting document. He first heard of it through a German student who had spent a portion of several years in studying for curacies in the library of the Vatican at Rome. The German professor did not consider the MS. of sufficient interest to take a copy of it, but years afterwards made mention of it to the minister mentioned. The latter felt a great interest in what he had heard, and finally he wrote to his friend, the German professor, who meantime had returned to Westphalia, Germany, requesting that the latter, who was intimate with Father Freilnhusen — chief guardian of the Vatican — would undertake to procure a translation of the MS. into English. This was finally accomplished at a cost to Mr. Mahan of seventy-two dollars and forty-four cents.

The parties concerned in procuring this translation are unknown to us, but the circumstances leave no room for questioning the fact. The account does not contradict, but fully corroborates the account of the Apostles in the Bible. We give here an English translation of the letter purporting to be Pilate's: To Tiberius Caesar, Emperor, Noble Sovereign, Greeting:

The events of the last few days in my province have been of such a character that I thought well to report the details as they have occurred, as I should not be surprised if in the course of time they may change the destiny of our nation; for it seems of late that the gods have ceased to be propitious. I am almost ready to say, "Cursed be the day that I succeeded Valerius Gratus in the government of Judea."

On my arrival at Jerusalem I took possession of the Judgment Hall and ordered a splendid feast to be prepared, to which I invited the tetrarch of Galilee, with the high priest and his officers. At the appointed hour no guests appeared. This was an insult offered to my dignity. A few days after, the high priest deigned to pay me a visit. His deportment was grave and deceitful. He pretended that his religion forbade him and his attendants to sit down at the table of the Romans, and to offer up libations with them. I thought it expedient to accept of his excuse, but from that moment I was convinced that the conquered had declared themselves the enemies of the conquerors. It seems to me that of all conquered cities, Jerusalem is the most difficult to govern.

So turbulent were the people that I lived in momentary dread of an insurrection. To repress it I had but a single centurion, and a handful of soldiers. I requested a reinforcement from the governor of Syria, who informed me that he had scarcely troops sufficient to defend his own province. An insatiable thirst for conquest—to extend our empire beyond the means of defending it—I fear will be the means of overthrowing our noble government.

Among the various rumors that came to my ears, there was one that attracted my attention in particular. A young man, it was said, had appeared in Galilee, preaching with a noble unction a new law, in the name of the gods that had sent him. At first I was apprehensive that his design was to stir up the people against the Romans, but soon were my fears dispelled. Jesus of Nazareth spoke rather as a friend of the Roman than of the Jews.

One day in passing by the place of Siloe, where there was a great concourse of people, I observed, in the midst of the group, a young man who was leaning against a tree, calmly addressing the multitude. I was told that this was Jesus. This I could easily have expected; so great was the difference between him and those who were listening to him. His golden-colored hair and beard gave to his appearance a celestial aspect. He appeared to be about thirty years of age. Never have I seen a sweeter or more serene countenance. What a contrast between him and his hearers with their black beards and tawny complexion. Unwilling to interrupt him by my presence, I continued my walk; but signified to my secretary to join the group and listen. My secretary's name is Manlius. He is the grandson of the chief of the conspirators who encamped at Etruria, waiting Catiline. Manlius was anciently an inhabitant of Judea and well acquainted with the Hebrew language. He is devoted to me and worthy of my confidence. On entering the Judgment Hall, I found Manlius, who related to me the words Jesus had pronounced at Siloe. Never have I heard in the Petico, nor in the works of the philosophers, anything that can compare to the maxims of Jesus.

One of the rebellious Jews, so numerous in Jerusalem, having asked him if it was lawful to give tribute to Caesar, Jesus replied, "Render unto Caesar the things which belong to Caesar, and unto God the things that are God's." It was on account of the wisdom of his sayings that I granted so much liberty to the Nazarene, for it was in my power to have had him arrested and exiled to Pontus; but thus would have been contrary to the justice which has always characterized the Romans. This man was neither seditious nor rebellious, and I extended to him my protection unknown, perhaps, to himself. He was at liberty to act, to speak, to assemble and address the people, to choose disciples unrestrained by any Pretorium mandate. Should it ever happen—may the gods ever avert the omen—should it ever happen, I say, that the religion of our forefathers be supplanted by the religion of Jesus, it will be to this noble tolerance that Rome shall owe her premature obsequies, while I, miserable wretch, shall have been the instrument of what Christians call providence, and we, destiny.

But this unlimited freedom granted Jesus provoked the Jews; not the poor, but the rich and powerful. It is true that Jesus was severe on the latter, and this was a political reason, in my opinion, not to control the liberty of the Nazarene. "Scribes and Pharisees," he would say to them, "you are a race of vipers; you resemble painted sepulchres." At other times, he would sneer at the proud aims of the Publican, telling him that the mite of the widow was more precious in the sight of God.

New complaints were daily made at the Judgment Hall against the insolence of the Jews. I was even informed that some misfortune would befall him—that it would not be the first time that Jerusalem had stoned those who called themselves prophets—and if the Pretorium refused justice, an appeal would be made to Caesar.

However, my conduct was approved by the senate, and I was promised a reinforcement after the termination of the Parthian war. Being too weak to suppress a sedition, I resolved upon adopting a measure that promised to establish the tranquility of the city, and without subjecting the Pretorium to humiliating concessions.

I wrote to Jesus, requesting an interview with him at the Judgment Hall, and he came. You know that in my veins flows the Spanish, mixed with Roman blood, as incapable of fear it is of puerile emotion. When the Nazarene made his appearance I was walking in my court and my feet seemed fastened with an iron hand to the marble pavement, and I trembled in every limb as a guilty culprit, though he was calm—the Nazarene—calm as innocence. When he came up to me he stopped, and by a signal seemed to say to me, "I am here." For some time I contemplated with admiration and awe this extraordinary type of man—a type of man unknown to our numerous painters, who have given form and figure to all the gods and heroes.

"Jesus," said I to him at last—and my tongue faltered—"Jesus of Nazareth, I have granted you for the last three years ample freedom of speech, nor do I regret it. Your words are those of a sage. I know not whether you have read Socrates or Plato, but this I know, that there is in your discourses a majestic simplicity that elevates you far above those philosophers. The Emperor is informed of it, and I, his humble representative in this community, am glad of having allowed you that liberty, of which you are so worthy. However, I must not conceal from you the fact that your discourses have raised up against you powerful and inveterate enemies. Neither is this surprising. Socrates has his enemies, and he fell a victim to their hatred. Yours are doubly incensed against you on account of your sayings, and against me on account of the liberty extended towards you. They even accuse me of being indirectly leagued with you, for the purpose of depriving the Hebrews of the little civil power which Rome has left them. My request—I do not say my order—is, that you be more circumspect in the future, and more tender in arousing the pride of your enemies, lest they raise against you the stupid populace, and compel me to employ the instruments of justice."

The Nazarene calmly replied:

"Prince of the earth, your words proceed not from true wisdom. Say to the torrent, Stop in the midst of the mountain home! because it will uproot the trees of the valley. The torrent will answer you, that it must obey the laws of the Creator. God alone knows whither flows the torrent. Verily I say unto you, before the Rose of Sharon blossoms, the blood of the Just shall be spilt." "Your blood shall not be spilt," replied I with emotion. "You are more precious, in my estimation, on account of your wisdom, than all the turbulent and proud Pharisees, who abuse the freedom granted them by the Romans, conspire against Caesar, and construe our bounty into fear. Insolent wretches, they are not aware that the wolf of the timber sometimes clothes himself in the skin of the sheep. I will protect you against them. My palace is open to you as an asylum."

Jesus carelessly shook his head, and said, with a grace and a divine smile, "When the day shall have come, there will be no asylum for the Son of Man, neither in the earth, nor under the earth. The asylum of the Just is there," pointing to the heavens. "That which is written in the book of the prophets must be accomplished."

"Young man," answered I mildly, "you oblige me to convert my request into an order. The safety of the province, which has been confided to my care, requires it. You must observe more moderation in your discourses. Do not infringe. My orders you know. May happiness attend you. Farewell."

"Prince of the earth," replied Jesus, "I came not to bring war into the world, but peace, love and charity. I was born the same day on which Augustus Caesar gave peace to the Roman world. Persecution proceeds not from me. I expect it from others, and will meet it in obedience to the will of my Father, who has shown me the way. Restrain, therefore, your worldly prudence. It is not in your power to arrest the victim at the foot of the Altar of expiation." So saying he disappeared like a bright shadow behind the curtains of the palace.

To Herod, who then reigned in Galilee, the enemies addressed themselves to wreak their vengeance on the Nazarene. Had Herod consulted his own inclination, he would have ordered Jesus immediately to be put to death; but though proud of his royal dignity, yet he was afraid of committing an act that might diminish his influence with the Senate. Herod called on me one day at the Pretorium, and on rising to take leave, after some insignificant conversation, he asked my opinion concerning the Nazarene. I replied that Jesus appeared to be one of those great philosophers that great nations sometimes produce, that his doctrines were by no means sacrilegious, and that the intention of Rome was, to leave him to that freedom of speech which was justified by his actions. Herod smiled maliciously, and saluting me with an ironical respect he departed.

The great feast of the Jews was approaching, and the intention of their religious rulers was to avail themselves of the popular exultation which always manifest itself at the solemnities of a Passover. The city was overflowing with a tumultuous populace clamoring for the death of the Nazarene. My emissaries informed me that the treasure of the temple had been employed in bribing the people. The danger was pressing. A Roman centurion had been insulted. I wrote to the prefect of Syria for a hundred foot soldiers, and as many cavalry. He declined. I saw myself alone, with a handful of veterans, in the midst of a rebellious city, too weak to suppress disorder, and having no other choice left but to tolerate it. The seditious rabble had seized Jesus, and although they felt that they had nothing to fear from the Pretorium, believing with their leaders that I winked at their sedition, continued vociferating, "Crucify him, crucify him!"

Three powerful parties had combined together at that time against Jesus. First, the Herodians, and the Sadducees, whose seditious conduct seem to have proceeded from double motives; they hated the Nazarene, and were impatient of the Roman yoke. They could never forgive me for having entered their city with banners which bore the image of the Roman Emperor, and although in this instance I had ignorantly committed the fatal error, yet the sacrilege did not appear less heinous in their eyes. Another grievance also rankled in their bosom: I had proposed to employ a part of the treasure of the Temple in erecting edifices of public utility, which proposal was scowled at.

The Pharisees, too, were avowed enemies of Jesus, and they cared not for our government. They bore with bitterness the several reprimands which the Nazarene, for three years, had been throwing out against them wherever he went. Too weak and pusillanimous to act by themselves, they had eagerly embraced the quarrels of the Herodians and Sadducees. Besides these three parties, I had to contend against the reckless and profligate populace, always ready to join a sedition, and to profit by the disorder and confusion resulting therefrom.

FRICK'S ORGAN.

Many and varied are the diversions sought by the man who is overburdened with money. Mr. Henry Clay Frick, the Pittsburgh steel magnate and multi-millionaire, employs an organist, named Mr. Arthur Gibson, at an annual salary of $15,000 to play to him on a magnificent organ. The fortunate organist, in addition to his handsome salary, is provided with a splendid motor car and a comfortable residence.

Every day at 2 p.m. the telephone rings in the Gibson house and the organist motors over to the Frick mansion. There, in the music hall, the silent, gruff money giant sits awaiting his daily music. While the nimble fingers of the organist send forth peal after peal of classical music, Mr. Henry Clay Frick, the tips of his strong fingers joined, listens in silence.

After a particularly weird succession of crashes and thunders from the costly organ, the millionaire's countenance loses its former expression of rapt interest. He leans forward uneasily as the organist concludes with a glorious finale.

"Play 'Dearie!'" he commands. Then the organist sends forth the strains of that popular ballad.

TORONTO CORRESPONDENCE

INTERESTING GOSSIP FROM ONTARIO'S CAPITAL.

The New Corporation Counsel—New Labor Paper—Down Town Problem—A Big Audience.

After several months' delay the City Council has decided to appoint his Worship Mayor Geary to the Corporation Counselship, made vacant by the elevation of Mr. H. L. Drayton to the chairmanship of the Dominion Railway Board. The salary is to be $8,000 a year to begin with. This is not much advance over Mr. Geary's income as Mayor, which was $7,500. But it has the advantage of being permanent. Besides, Mr. Geary has expressed the hope that when he makes good the salary will grow. And it doubtless will. Some aldermen who opposed Mr. Geary's appointment on the ground that he was not a big enough lawyer for the job, said they would be prepared to pay $25,000 a year to the right man. Viewed from this standpoint, it is just a question if the city will not do as well with Mr. Geary on the job as it would with some man with a made reputation at a fancy salary. It is true he has not had much experience in legal work. But this is partly offset by his intimate knowledge of municipal affairs. Besides, he is young, energetic, diplomatic and ardently ambitious.

SOME SORENESS.

The sound criticism of the appointment is on the ground that no member of Council should be appointed to a permanent job during his term of office. In the present instance the Mayor admittedly did not give the subject disinterested consideration, and that is something the public, having decided to elect the City Magistrate, had a right to expect from him on every issue, particularly on one as important as this one. There is a good deal of underlying soreness about this phase of the matter. There is some surprise that Mr. Geary, by his action, has expressed a preference for his legal profession as against political life. He could have had a nomination for Parliament any time during the last five years, and with the star of the Conservative party in the ascendant he might have been expected to have had a brilliant career. And he may yet return to the political arena. Meanwhile he is to be known as G. R. Geary, K. C., Corporation Counsel.

A NEW LABOR PAPER.

The appearance of a new labor paper in Toronto is an event of importance, not so much for the immediate effect it will have in politics or in labor affairs, but because of the potentialities for the future. The editor-in-chief is Mr. James Simpson, formerly a typesetter, more recently for many years city hall reporter for one of the local dailies, and always an active labor agitator, as well as temperance lecturer and Methodist local preacher. He was also a member of the Board of Education for some years and was a member of the Dominion Government's Commission on Technical Education. He will likely this year be a candidate for the Board of Control.

There have been many previous attempts to establish a labor organ in Toronto, but the attempts merely served to help fill the newspaper graveyard. A paper called "The Toiler" was the last victim. There are higher hopes for the latest venture. It starts off with fairly liberal support in the way of stock subscriptions from labor organizations and individuals, so that it is assured of sufficient capital to give it a chance to get on its feet. To prevent control of the publication falling into the hands of any individual or organization, or even group, the number of shares permitted to any one subscriber is strictly limited.

It has yet to be demonstrated that the labor organizations will support an "organ." The fault with previous publications is that they have been too much "organ," and not enough attention paid to making the paper interesting.

WILL AVOID GENERAL POLITICS.

It is expected that the newspaper will keep away from tariff and other issues of a general character, devoting itself to issues which specifically affect the city laboring man, such as conditions of labor and workmen's compensation. It will, in its general effect, probably emphasize rather than diminish the cleavage between city and country.

Its first political activity will doubtless be in municipal affairs. A labor "slate" for nearly all the civic offices is within the range of possibilities this year. If moderately successful there, the next move, no doubt, will be to get into Provincial and Dominion politics. The establishment of the paper foreshadows the first serious attempt to launch a real labor party in Canadian politics.

IN BOND STREET CHURCH.

In my letter last week some reference was made to the down town problem confronting Toronto churches, and the disposition shown in some quarters to shrink it and in others to meet it. The solemn fact is that of the 50,000 persons living south of College street, only a small fraction has been reached by the churches. Both in preaching and in works it is undoubtedly the fact that some of the churches in down town Toronto are out of sympathy with the masses whom they are supposed to serve.

The church perhaps most popular in many ways with the crowd is Bond Street Congregational, whose destinies are presided over by Rev. Byron H. Stauffer, who came here several years ago from Buffalo. His methods are much less sensational than those employed in this pulp it twenty years ago by the late Dr. Wild, but he contrives to make his services interesting, and he always draws full houses. He is a man of considerable personality, a fluent speaker and embellishes his sermons with frequent references to the affairs of the hour. Some might call some of his addresses lectures rather than sermons, meaning that there is less of spirituality about them than is usual. Bond street church is sometimes compared to a business, of which the preacher is the general manager. Bearing out the analogy, he has there an office which he occupies several hours a day. And yet Bond street has no empty pews, and that is one point gained.

A SPURGEON NEEDED.

What the church in down-town Toronto needs today is a Spurgeon. It wants a man with fire and spirituality. The harvest is waiting for him. He could take such a building as the new arena, which will seat 7,000 persons, fill it three times on Sunday and possibly on any other evening in the week, if he had the physical strength. But where is the Spurgeon coming from?

Down town Toronto needs more, of course, in the way of church service than a preacher, even if he were a Spurgeon. It needs a small army of workers. It has a few now loyal and devoted, but their numbers are sadly out of proportion to the work that is to be done. One wonders of the churches really appreciated the work that lies right at their hand.

TORONTO'S BIGGEST AUDIENCE.

Toronto's new amusement showplace, The Arena, has been successfully launched with a week's "musical festival." De signed primarily for hockey matches, the promoters hope they can make use of it in the off season for all sorts of special productions. The problem will be to fill it. It will hold eight thousand people, twice as many as any other meeting-place in Toronto, and a small city in itself. The sight on the closing night of the opening week, when every seat was filled, was one long to be remembered. The layout of the building is that of an oval amphitheatre, without galleries. All around the oval solid masses of humanity, rising tier upon tier, furnished an impressive sight. It was the greatest concourse of men and women ever gathered under one roof in Toronto.

Unless it is filled, however, the effect of the interior is banal.

The harder a woman is to please, the less a man will try.

MOTHERS NEED CONSTANT STRENGTH.

To Care for the Growing Family, and Her Household Cares.

When there is a growing family to care for and the mother falls ill, it is a serious matter. Many mothers who are on the go from morning to night whose work, apparently, is never done, heroically try to disguise their sufferings, and keep an appearance of cheerfulness before their family. Only themselves now how they are distressed by headaches and backaches, dragging down pains and nervous weakness; how their nights are often sleepless, and they arise to a new day's work tired, depressed and unrefreshed. Such mothers should know that these sufferings are usually due to a lack of good nourishing blood. They should know that the thing above all others they need to give them new health and strength is rich, red blood, and that among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their blood-making, health restoring qualities. Every suffering woman with a home and family to care for should give these pills a fair trial, for they will keep her in health and strength, and make her work easy. Here is strong proof that these Pills do what is claimed for them. Mrs. Henry Thomas, Dryden, Ont., says: "When my second child was born I was so weak and run down that I could scarcely walk across a room. My baby was small and weak also, and cried and worried that the day was starving, as my nurse had turned almost to water. My husband got me a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I began taking them. The first beneficial effects were noticed in that my child began to thrive, as my nurse began to improve, and baby slept better and naturally. It was not long until I began to feel the improvement myself, and I daily gained new strength, and baby was growing very rosy and fat. I continued using the Pills while I was nursing him and found myself with all the vigor of good health, and able to easily do my household work, which had been so great a drag on me before. I am now never without Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the house, and take an occasional dose when I feel tired. I can strongly recommend these Pills to all nursing women, especially if weak or run down."

Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Itching and Burning on Face and Throat

Sores Disfigured So He Dreaded to Appear in Public. No Rest Night or Day. Cuticura Ointment Cured.

"Six months ago my face and throat all broke out and turned into a running sore. I did not bother about it at first, but in one week's time the disease had spread so rapidly over my face and throat and the burning itching sores became so painful that I began to seek relief in different medicines, but none seemed to give me any relief. The sores disfigured my face to such an extent that I dreaded to appear in public. "I suffered terribly and could get no rest night or day. At last a friend advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I had about given up hope, but thought I would have one more try, and so I used a little Cuticura Ointment, and it helped me from the start. I continued using it and in six weeks' time was completely cured, and can say I would advise anyone suffering from skin disease to use Cuticura Ointment, as it is the best healing balm in the world." (Signed) Roscoe Good, Seven Persons, Alta., Feb. 18, 1911.

FOUND RELIEF ONLY FROM CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My little girl when only a few weeks old broke out on the top of her head and it became a solid scab. Then her cheeks became raw and sore and after trying different remedies found relief only from using Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It lasted six months or more, but after a thorough treatment with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment never had any return." (Signed) Mrs. W. S. Owen, Yedkin College, N. C., May 26, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Soap and Ointment have afforded the most successful treatment for skin and scalp troubles of infants, children and adults. A single cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Cuticura Ointment are often sufficient. ## ROYALTY TREASURES SPADES

They Are Relics of Tree Plantings While on Visits.

At this time of year, when royal personages generally visit among their friends, a perfect forest of royally planted trees is springing up, this being the customary memento of such visits.

It is usual on these occasions to offer the distinguished tree planter a new spade with which to perform the operation, a suitable inscription being afterwards placed on the implement, which is preserved as a relic.

Quite the most interesting collection of these tokens is to be found at Sandringham, where a whole avenue of trees has been planted by one or another member of the royal family, from the late Queen downward, or by some hardly less well-known persons. Each tree bears a label giving the date and the name of the distinguished visitor who planted it.

One wonders where the costly but useless gifts, silver trowels and the like, which royalty perforce accumulates, are kept and what becomes of them. Tradition has it that there are cellars full of presentation albums, addresses inscribed on vellum, and other truck of the sort, at Sandringham and at Buckingham Palace.

KILL DIPHTHERIA GERMS.

Last Plan Is to Sterilize Throat and Nose by Hot Dry Air.

The diphtheria carrier seems to be receiving attention the world over, now that we have about made up our minds that we generally if not always get this disease from a living person, and rarely if ever from houses or "fomites." The bacillus dies very soon in light or heat, and when dried, and as we frequently remark, sanitarians no longer try to kill dead things. The last plan is to sterilize the throat and nose by dry hot air, because of the ability of a mucous membrane to stand a higher temperature than the bacillus can. Apparent success is following this treatment in Lyons, France, by a Dr. Rendu, so we are told. If this is true, it may be another instance of success following wrong reasoning from true premises. Finsen thought he was curing lupus by killing the bacilli with light—and that is what is started out to do. Now we know the light is not strong enough to be deadly or it would both the tissues, too. It irritates both the and inflammatory serous re-action finishes the bacilli with an overdose of a germicide.

FRUIT GROWN IN LONDON.

Smoke and Fog Fail to Injure Several Varieties.

Despite the smoke, horticulture flourishes in inner London, England. Ripe edible fruit growing in the heart of the metropolis may seem an absurdity to those who do not know that half a dozen varieties or more are grown and enjoyed annually within the old fashioned cab radius of Charing Cross.

In Staple Inn there are the delightful old service berries, from which the most luscious jam and jelly are made, and the garden of a famous old house in Chelsea, are as good as the Kentish kind. Then in Finsbury Square there are mulberries which grace the table of the Lord Mayor, and there are two vines in New Square, Lincoln's Inn, which yield well and are the prerequisite of the benchers. Peaches are grown in St. John's Wood, strawberries in Porchester Terrace, and rhubarb on a roof in Queen's Gate.

Jerry's Diagnosis.

Little Jerry Clancey was invited to a church picnic, and as he was a general favorite, he was supplied generously with the good things that had been provided for the occasion.

Later in the day one of the ladies noticed Jerry sitting in an obscure part of the grounds and wearing an expression of much unhappiness.

"Why, Jerry, what's the matter?" she asked, kindly. "Haven't you had enough to eat?"

"Yes'm," said the boy, listlessly, "I've had enough. I feel as if I didn't want all I've got."

170,000 AT NIGHT SCHOOLS.

Course for Waiters Added to the Work Done in London.

More than 170,000 students this month returned to their work at the evening schools of the London (England) County Council after the summer recess. Three hundred schools of various kinds are maintained by the council for night instruction, and there is still plenty of room for more students. In fact, the youth of London has not availed itself of the splendid facilities for technical and general instruction provided in nearly the numbers expected.

The authorities argue that this is due chiefly to the cheap amusements provided for the Londoner and not because he is less ambitious than his country cousin.

Besides the usual technical, engineering and domestic science courses a separate school for waiters has recently been started. This school is designed to check the German invasion, which has practically driven the English waiter from the field. In addition to practical table service and pantry work, the waiter students are taught something of food values, menus, bills and technical French. The essentials of a good education are given to them in the form of English, geography and arithmetic.

A DOCTOR'S TRIALS

He Sometimes Gets Sick Like Other People.

Even doing good to people is hard work if you have too much of it to do.

An overworked doctor tells his experience:

"About three years ago as the result of doing two men's work, attending a large practice and looking after the details of another business, my health broke down completely, and I was little better than a physical wreck.

"I suffered from indigestion and constipation, loss of weight and appetite, bloating and pain after meals, loss of memory and lack of nerve force for continued mental application.

"I became irritable, easily angered and despondent without cause. The heart's action became irregular and weak, with frequent attacks of palpitation during the first hour or two after retiring.

"Some Grape-Nuts and cut bananas came for my lunch one day and pleased me particularly with the result. I got more satisfaction from it than from anything I had eaten for months, and on further investigation and use, adopted Grape-Nuts for my morning and evening meals, served usually with cream and a sprinkle of salt or sugar.

"My improvement was rapid and permanent, in weight as well as in physical and mental endurance. In a word, I am filled with the joy of living again, and continue the daily use of Grape-Nuts for breakfast and often for the evening meal.

"The little pamphlet, 'The Road to Wellville,' found in pkgs., is invariably saved and handed to some needy patient along with the indicated remedy."

"There's a reason."

ROB WOMAN DEAD 200 YEARS.

Valuable Jewel Taken From Coffin of Duchess of St. Albans.

What is believed to have been the act of London vandals—the robbery of a woman dead two hundred years—is stirring the indignation of the pious people of County Tipperary and spurring the Irish police in an investigation which promises to lead to a world-wide chase.

The sexton of the old graveyard at Newton Anner found one morning that the ancient tomb of the duchal family of St. Albans had been entered. The old bronze door had been forced, pieces of coffins, old velvet and decayed linen and bones long buried were scattered about the vault. He notified the rector, and the clergyman sent for the police. Investigation proved that the ghouls had crept where a famous Duchess of St. Albans was interred two centuries ago.

It was found later that two men with a strong Cockney accent, evidently Londoners, had remained in the village and had left hurriedly without settling their account early on the morning of the discovery of the outrage. In their room at the inn was found a clipping from a London newspaper giving particulars of the valuables buried with many famous people and describing particularly an emerald necklace and rings which were placed in the vault when Sophia, Duchess of St. Albans, was laid to rest by her husband, the duke of two hundred years ago.

Won Fame on its Merits.—The unbounded popularity that Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil enjoys is not attributable to any elaborate advertising, for it has not been so advertised, but is entirely due to the merits of this Oil as a medicine. In every city, town and hamlet in the country it is sought after solely because of its good qualities.

GOWNS FROM LONDON.

Wife of New Mikado Dresses in the European Style.

The new Empress of Japan, like her predecessor, dresses in European style. In the past she bought most of her own gowns in Paris, but the "fitter" of the shop in the Rue de la Paix which she favored was offered a princely salary by a firm in the West End and migrated to London and with him some of the wealthiest clients of the Paris house.

Once a year or so a representative is sent to Tokio for personal instructions and orders. The Empress herself is of course an artist with all her country's instinct in color. She frequently designs her own gowns.

HAD BAD SORE FOUR YEARS

Zam-Buk Has Healed It!

Mrs. Wilson, 110 Wickson Ave., Toronto, says: "About four years ago a sore spot appeared on the right side of my face. This spot increased in size until it became about half an inch in diameter and very painful. I went to a doctor, but the ointment he gave me did not have any good effect. The sore continued to discharge freely, and was most painful. I had it cauterized, tried poultices, and all kinds of salves, but it was no good, and I continued to suffer from it for four years!

"A sample of Zam-Buk was one day given to me, and I used it. Although the quantity was so small, it seemed to do me some good, so I purchased a further supply.

"Each box did me more and more good, and, to my delight, before I had been using Zam-Buk three weeks, I saw that it was going to heal the sore. In less than a month it was healed!

"I know a lady in the east of the city, whose husband suffered for years with an open sore on his leg. On my recommendation, Zam-Buk was tried in that case. The other day, when I saw her, she told me that it had healed the sore completely.

Zam-Buk is a sure cure for eczema, piles, abscesses, ulcers, scabs, sores, ringworm, cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. 50c. box, all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. In case of skin disease use also Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

"BLACK AND BLUE" BRUISES.

The color of blood is due chiefly to iron in the little blood-cells. When the iron is kept in these little blood-cells, which are living and travelling around in the blood-vessels, the color is red. Hit the skin hard enough to break some of the little blood-vessels beneath the surface and the little red cells escape from the injured blood-vessels, wander about for a while in the tissues, and dies. When they die, the iron that made them red before then changes to black and blue coloring. After a while the iron is taken up by the glands called the lymphatics, and made over again into nice red cells. The iron is taken up very much more quickly by the lymphatics if the black-and-blue spot is rubbed and massaged.
