HENRY'S Shorthand School Ottawa, Ont.

No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.

Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

Chesterville Assessment Reduced $30,000

Counties' Council approved the action of the equalization of assessment committee in recommending the deduction of $30,000 from the equalized assessment of the village of Chesterville at its Thursday session. This action was taken on the grounds that the valuators did not take into consideration the exemption allowed on the condensed milk factory in this village. The new assessments for Chesterville is $475,287.

The text of the report submitted by Thomas Johnston, chairman of the equalization of assessment committee, is as follows:

"The village of Chesterville having appealed from their assessment as fixed by by-law in June, 1930, your committee discussed the matter of appeal and after going fully into the matter appointed a sub-committee composed of Messrs. McLachlan, Shaver, Crowder, McDonald, Hamilton, Morrison, Munro, Gallinger, Murray, the County Clerk, and Mr. Elliot, clerk of the village of Chesterville, to examine the rolls of the said village for the year 1922–1929. The sub-committee find in investigating the 1922 rolls of the village of Chesterville that the valuators at that time did not take into consideration the exemption allowed on the condensing factory amounting to $34,700. Your committee therefore recommends that the equalization of assessment of the village of Chesterville be reduced $30,000."

Hockeyists Return

The ranks of local hockeyists were again at normal the first of the week when the tide turned from Galt to less pretentious circles. Among the contingent from hereabouts the only one to stick for further trial was Ralph Hummel, who is said to be going strong and will likely catch a place with one of the pro. teams.

Following the annual meeting of the Central Ottawa Valley league it appears there will be no change in the circuit, the four teams of last season, Cornwall, Finch Russell and Chesterville, signifying their intention of again carrying on. Kemptville was expected to make application for a franchise but is now understood to look with more favour on the Rideau group.

It would make things interesting in the C. O. V. if one Ottawa team was grouped with it. Ottawa is as easy to get at from any of the towns entered as is Cornwall and would prove a big drawing card all along the line. Notre Dame and the Primrose clubs are seeking grouping in Ottawa territorry and if switched into the Central Ottawa would find all the opposition they would require.

Presbyterian Supper and Concert Drew Good Crowd

The chicken supper and concert held last Thursday evening under the auspices of the Board of Managers of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church attracted a large crowd and was a thorough success.

The supper ws served bv the ladies of the congregation promptly at six in the Town Hall and the spacious, well-laden tables were immediately filled and a line-up started for the second sitting. The chicken was plenteous, backed by copious quantities of scalloped potatoes, pumpkin pies, daughnuts, cakes, and what-nots, and all were certainly enjoyed by the diners.

The concert was presented in the church with a large audience in attendance. The programme was opened by the chairman, Rev. A. H. Sproule, followed by a selection by the Oddfellows' Quartette. Mr. Sproule, who has only recently taken charge of the parish, having come here from Delta, said he was very pleased to come to a congregation that could arrange a supper and concert such as had been prepared and put over with such success. He also expressed his appreciation for the large attendance . This was followed by a tenor solo by Mr. G. W. Brooks and several selections b·· Miss Smith, a brilliant elocutionist of Hallville, who delighted her audience with recitations and received hearty applause. Mr. O. L. King also rendered a tenor solo which, with two selections by the Oddfellows' Quartette, completed the programme. The accompanists were Mr. P. G. Hewitt and Mr.. J. A. Morris

The proceeds of the evening exceeded $100.

Chesterville Women's Institute

"Our Creed" was the topic of a very fine paper given by Mrs. P. S. Boyd at the Institute meeting on Tuesday evening.

The possibility of securing a school nurse in this locality was discussed and a hope entertained that some plan might be devised whereby Chesterville might be able to take advantage of the splendid offer made by the Department of Health.

Mrs. P. Allison had charge of "Current Events" and gave a number of items which were most interesting.

The tea hostesses were Mrs. O. L. King and Mrs. A. E. Bolster. Tea was poured at a prettily decorated table by Mrs. A. E Forward and Mrs. P. Allison, assisted by Mrs. F. Smith and Mrs. Chas. Munro.

Connaught Barn Burns

Yesterday afternoon the new barns on the farm occupied by Gordon Murphy in the Connaught settlement, about seven miles north east of Chesterville, were destroyed by fire with their entire contents. One colt in the building when fire was discovered was gotten out without injury. This is the third barn to be destroyed by fire on this farm in recent years, one having been burned about two years ago.

Mrs. Catharine Barkley Laid to Rest

Scenes of sorrow marked the funeral service held Tuesday afternoon for Mrs. Catharine Barkley, widow of the late John H. Barkley, of Connaught, who died in her sixty-fifth year at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Aden C. Casselman, of Berwick, as the result of a brief illness.

The funeral service was held in the United church, Chesterville, from the home of her son, George H. Barkley, and was conducted by Rev. Dr. Roberts, of St. Luke's Presbyterian church, Finch, of which the deceased was a member. Dr. Roberts was assisted by Rev. Newman, after which interment was made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

A wealth of floral wreaths banked the coffin, bearing a striking tribute of the wide circle of Mrs. Barkley's friends. A large number of mourning relatives and friends gathered to pay their last respects to one who had endeared herself to all b·· her kindly disposition and genial personality.

She leaves to mourn her loss, five sons and three daughters—Donald, of Williamsburg; George, of Chesterville; Charles, of Saskatoon, Sask.; Archie, of Finch, and Crawford, of Perth; Mrs. J. R. O'Brien, of Ottawa; Mrs. Kenneth R. Baker of Ogdensburg, N. Y,, and Mrs. Aden C Casselman, of Berwick; also three brothers and four sisters—Dan Gillies and Archie Gillies, of Finch; Andrew Gillies, of Florence, S. Dak.; Jennie and Mary A. Gillies, of Finch; Mrs. John Annable, of Winchester, and Mrs. Mike Burton of Aultsville.

The pall bearers were—Duncan McNaughton, John McDougall, of Finch; Will Casselman, Dave Allison, Henry McMahon and John Manley, of Chesterville.

Anglican Guild Tea

The Guild of Holy Trinity church were sponsors for a most delightful tea and food sale at the home of Mrs. James Hanna last Saturday afternoon when the home was tastefully decorated in keeping with the Autumn season. Mrs. T. J. McGee and Mrs. A. Morris presided at the tea table, with Mrs. Ed. Gillard, Mrs. A. Harradine and Mrs. A. Peake in charge of the home baking. Mrs. H. H. Casselman looked after the finances while Mrs. Bronskill and Mrs. Hanna presided in the tea room.

Farmers' Week At Our Store

There has just been mailed to you a copy of the 1931 Dr. Hess & Clark Catalogue. This cata logue gives complete records of many actual experiments made at their Research Farm. See how much better those cows did on stock tonic. See what happened to those wormy shoats that got Hog Special. See what a difference poultry Pan-a-min made on egg production.

We suggest that you read this catalogue page by page. You will find it interesting as you duplicate those records on your own farm, thereby increasing the profits from your cows, hogs and chickens.

Come in and let us talk these things over

Beginning Saturday we are having a special FARMERS' WEEK featuring the Dr. Hess Products of which we now have a complete line.

Conveyance Is Declared Void

Judgment has been handed down by Mr. Justice Logie, in Weekly Court, Ottawa, in an action following a case of alienation of affections ,by which conveyance of goods of the loser in the suit was declared fraudulent and void.

Last January, George Blain, an Ottawa Valley resident, sued Samuel Wylie, a neighbouring farmer, for alienation of his wife's affections, and was awarded $6,600. An appeal was lodged by the defendant, but was lost. It is alleged that Wylie disposed of all his property, including his farm, so that when seizure was made to satisfy judgment there were no assets. Blain issued a writ to set aside the sale of the property, asking judgment without trial. Mr. Justice Logie's judgment supports the aggrieved husband.

Illegal Entry Charged

Brockville.—Although nine years a resident of the United States, John Jackson, formerly of Maitland, near here, is being held in the county jail at Canton, N. Y., on a charge of illegal entry followin~ an indiscreet return to Canada on his part for the purpose of attending a funeral. Jackson is said to have been warned that if he left the United States and attempted to return he would be arrested, and immigration officials made good their threat and are holding him on a charge of illegal entry.

Iroquois Store Robbed

The new store of W. E. Bolton, King street west, Iroquois, was burglarized at the week end, merchandise to the amount of $2,000 in men's furnishings being taken, as well as $70 from the safe.

The till was left untouched, with $65 contents. It is supposed the thieves gained admittance through a cellar window as the door leading from the cellar steps to the store had been pried open.

Breeder Attacked By Bull

Cornwall.—Mr. M. J. McKay, the well-known Holstein breeder of Grants Corner, a few miles from Cornwall, is in the General hospital suffering from a fractured collar bone and hip and a bad break above the left knee, as a result of being attacked by one of his prize bulls in a large stall in one of his barns.

Doctor (pompously): "My dear sir, it's a good thing you came to me."

Patient: "Why? Are you broke?"

Friend: "I suppose your wife misses you a good deal?"

Travelling Salesman: "Well, no; for a woman, she has a remarkably good aim."

Bertie was proudly showing his friend his new car.

"Well. what do you think of it?" asked Bertie.

"Humph," growled his friend. "I should have thought you would have had something more uncommon."

"It's dashed uncommon," retorted Bertie. "It's paid for."

News and Information For the Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Commercial fruit production in Canada last year had a value of $19,501,240, of which Ontario accounted for $8,656,097.

Agricultural Education.

That the Ridgetown Vocational School has been successful in its attempt to strengthen relations between agriculture and education was the statement of Acting Premier Henry at the recent opening of the new $85,000 wing. Ridgetown was host to a distinguished gathering for the occasion, including the Acting Premier, Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture; Dr. G. I. Christie, president of the O. A. C.; Dr. F. W. Merchant, Chief Director of Education, and F. S. Rutherford, Actin~ Director of Technical Education. In his address, Hon. Mr. Kennedy stated that the development of such schools in the province depends on the success of the Ridgetown institution. It was his hope to see similar schools dotted over Ontario.

Ploughing Match Winners.

W. O. Grenzebach, R. R. 7, Woodstock, is the ploughing champion of Ontario. He won that title on the last day of the International Ploughing Match near Stratford, when he took away first honours in the jointers in sod, open. This is the second time he has won the title, having first captured it in 1927. In taking first place this year, he defeated a classy field, including John R. Hargreaves, of Beachville, who won the honour in the last two years. The intercounty championship this year was won by York, with Brant second. There were 14 entrants in this competition and the battle was keen from start to finish. The trophies were presented at a largely attended banquet in Stratford the final night of the match, at which the chief speakers were the Hon. Robt. Weir, Federal Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. Thos. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture.

O. A. C. Team's Good Showing.

Competing against dairy cattle judging teams from practically every agricultural college in the United States, students representing the O. A. C. ranked 11th in the International Dairy Show in St. Louis, Mo., Harold Goble of Woodstock attained the highest standinig in Holstein judging and he won a $500 scholarship for his effort. This is the first time the prize ever came to O. A. C. Other members of the team were Hilton Hartley and E. A. Innes, of Woodstock, and Gordon Engle, of Elmwood.

Big Attendance at O. A. C.

Registrations at the Ontario Agricultural College this fall have mounted to a higher figure than during any year since 1919, when discharge from war service released many men to complete their college courses. The biggest increase is in the freshman year with an enrolment of 150. The total increase in the agricultural courses is 73. This attendance is taxing the dormitory and diningroom accommodation to the limit, since the new residence is still under construction.

Drought Hits Corn Borer.

The prolonged dry spell during the past summer came to the aid of science in the battle against the European corn borer, with a resultant 25 per cent decrease in stock infestation in Ontario as a whole. This information is contained in the report of G. N. Stirrett, Dominion Entomologist, which will be presented at the annual convention of the Entomological Society of Ontario at Ottawa on November 6, 7 and 8. Essex and Kent Counties show 30 per cent reduction. On the other hand some counties in Eastern Ontario, particularly Prince Edward County, show an increase in infestation.

Fall Building Operations.

Building operations on the farm during the late fall are confined principally to hog houses, poultry houses, implement sheds and other small buildings. Those that have concrete foundations or floors can be erected at any time if the concrete is laid before the frost. These buildings are inexpensive, especially if the owner is handy with tools. Lumber dealers have plans and can supply bills of materials and estimates of cost, so that the owner will know pretty accurately what his expenditure will be. A high, well drained spot is best, while the buildings should extend east and west and face south. Convenience in caring for hogs and poultry also should be considered.

Heavy Chestnut Crop.

The chestnut crop in many districts has been exceptionally heavy this year with the market very poor. Many rural stores have found themselves with large quantities on hand and no buyers. In Norfolk County, one of the largest producers of chestnuts, the buying price opened at 25 cents per pound and dropped as low as four cents per pound in some places. The city markets, which in other years have taken copious quantities of chestnuts, have not been buying heavily this year, although the demand has picked up in recent days.

$500 For Best Slogan.

The World's Grain Show slogan contest is now in full swing. What is a slogan? The dictionary tells us that it is a Gaelic word, the war cry or gathering cry of the old Highland clans. In our day, however, it has come to mean a sort of motto. "Strike while the iron is hot" or "Small profits and quick returns" are both examples of present-day slogans. At any rate, the management of the World's Grain Exhibition and Conference offers a prize of $500 cash for the best slogan suggestion. The slogan shall not be more than ten words in length. There is no entry fee for the contest and it is open to the world. Not more than three suggestions are to be submitted by any one person and these must be written or typed plainly on one side of the paper containing the contestant's name and address, and must reach the office on or before January 31. 1931. Address Slogan Contest, World's Grain Exhibition and Conference, Imperial Bank Chambers, Regina, Canada.

Overseas Apple Market.

According to Andrew Fulton, overseas representataive of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, there is still a good demand for bright-coloured dessert fruit on the British market. This is attributed partly to the below-normal shipments of trans-Atlantic fruit. During the week on which the most recent report is based, Ontario apples topped all others in price, selling for $8.60. Mr. Fulton states that all attractively coloured dessert apples will bring good prices on the British market at this time while the green cooking apples are more or less of a drug on the market. Some progress in the shipping and handling of soft fruits is also reported. plums from the Burlington district having arrived in excellent shape and drawing good prices.

Weekly Crop Report.

According to the weekly report of the agricultural representatives, drought is assuming serious proportions in many parts of the province. Not only has ploughing been difficult, but in many sections wells are going dry. Feed grain is plentiful in most sections and owing to the low prices prevailing the bulk will be fed to live stock. As a result, feeder cattle are at a premium. Mangels and turnips have in most parts of the province turned out successfully for the former and a failure of the latter. Live stock generally seems to be shaping up well and farmers throughout the province have already commenced their winter feeding. Many Middlesex farmers are now in the west contemplating the purchase of feeding cattle. The report is of a general tone for the entire province conditions apparently being the same all over.

Mr. Albert Casselman, Finch

Following an illness of two months, the death occurred at Finch on Saturday morning, Oct. 4, of Mr. Albert Casselman, a life-long resident of the vicinity. The deceased was a member of Grantley United church. He is survived by three daughters—Mrs. R. C. Goddard, Westmeath, Ont.; Mrs. Wm. Simpson, Cobden, and Blanche, at home; also six brothers—B F. Casselman, of New Westminster; D. A., of Grainola, Okla.; Ezra, of Emerson, Man.; Henry H., of Fargo, N. Da.; W. J., and Simeon, of Finch; and three sisters—Mrs. D. V. Munro, of Finch; Mrs. H. Dupuis, and Mrs. Rev. R. C. McConnell, of Elgin. Mrs. Casselman passed away Feb. 16, 1925. After a short service at the home on Monday, Oct. 6, the funeral was held in Grantley United church, conducted by Rev. G. N. Maxwell, assisted by Rev. R. C. McConnell, of Elgin.

Interment was made at Grantley cemetery The pall bears were Messrs. A. P. McLean, Alex. Shaver, John Dunbar, D. C. McLeod, and D. P. Cameron.

Beautiful floral tributes showed the esteem in which the deceased was held.

$2,000 Violin For $3.10

Toronto.—Police of this city found a violin valued at $2,000 in a downtown pawnshop and which the pawnbroker claims cost him $3.10. The violin was the property of William Besson and was stolen from his residence on October 19. The violin was made from a rare German pattern.

LITTLE FIBS THAT NEVER WEAR OUT

"Well, I had a good time, but it's good to be back at work again."

"Oh, we don't mind riding in the rumble seat a bit."

"Aw, let the kids stay here, Bill. They don't bother us."

"Listen, I know I'm in, but I'll put in another chip, anyhow."

"Go right ahead, Mrs. Smith! We always enjoy Amos 'n Andy."

"Usually it's very cool here at night. I can't understand why . . . "

"Really, I think your daughter has a marvelous voice."

" . . . And we hope you'll come over and see us real soon!"

"How is it that your hair is quite white, while your beard is very dark?"

"Why, my hair is some thirty years older."

Chesterville May Take Action Through Courts

A delegation composed of Warden Ed. Strader, Councillors Wesley Hamilton and Glenn Shaver, and J. G. Cameron, county road superintendent, will interview ministers of the Provincial Government to secure a proper interpretation of Section 28 of the Highway Improvement Act regarding improvements on roads and bridge in municipalities which are not the property of the Counties. This action was recommended by the committee on roads and bridges to settle the question of the Chesterville bridge which was discussed at the June session of the Counties' Council.

In the report of the committee, submitted at the recent meeting of the Counties' Council, it was stated that George A. Stiles, K. C., acting for the village of Chesterville, had addressed the committee regarding this bridge. After consideration and discussion in which the county road superintendent took a part, they recommended the formation of this special committee.

When the report was presented by H. C. Nugent, Reeve Hamilton of Chesterville addressed Council in defence of the village of Chesterville for the action that they had taken in the matter.

"Apparently there was certain dispute over the refund of money paid on this bridge," said Mr. Hamilton. "The village of Chesterville had pair in $2,576 while the refund from the Government amounted to over $900. I might say that we, of the village of Chesterville, thought it unfair that the United Counties should get both these amounts. But I must say that it was good financing on the part of the other municipalities. Therefore, the reason that we ask this matter be looked into is because we think that it is unfair and unjust that the United Counties should be getting money on the one bridge doubly from the Government and the village of Chesterville, first 50 per cent of the cost from the Government and secondly the whole amount from the village of Chesterville. Furthermore, I believe that this is illegal. In order to comply with the wishes of the United Counties, we were willing to have an interpretation from the Department.

"We have been put to a great deal of trouble but this is the first time in the 19 years that I have been here that we have had to take a matter to the courts to be settled. I do not want you to blame me for this action for the whole business is in the hands of our solicitor now and if he sees fit to proceed with the case, that is his business. The way things are at the present titme, unless we get an interpretation in Toronto, the matter will have to go before the High Court. This is the stand that I am taking in the matter."

"In reply to the statements of Mr. Hamilton and in order not to influence any of the members here, I would like to know where he got his figures in this case. You mention a $900 rebate on the debentures," said J. E. Crowder.

"You got your rebate from the Government," replied Mr. Hamilton.

Mr. Crowder: "But that was on the road and bridge debentures together."

Mr. Hamilton: "Quite right."

Dr. J. H. Munro: "I understood yesterday that we should approach a friendly settlement. Will this committee serve any purpose by going to Toronto? Do you mean that your action will be held in abeyance until this point has been settled?"

Mr. Hamilton: "Surely."

J. D. McDonald: "What do you call a reasonable settlement?"

Mr. Hamilton: "If we get a proper interpretation, well and good."

R. A. Danis: "Will Chesterville abide by this settlement?"

Mr. Hamilton: "I think it will."

J. H. Ross: "Why all this talk? It was agreed in committee to abide by the intepretation of the Department."

Glenn A. Shaver: "I would amend the report to give the understanding that the interpretation from the Department will be agreeable."

Mr. Hamilton: "We are quite willing to leave it as it is."

With these concluding remarks the report was passed.

Rabies Outbreak Reported

Brockville.—Word of an outbreak of rabies in the territory between Morrisburg and Cornwall has reached Dr. D. M. Robertson, Government veterinary inspector here. Two inspectors are investigating the situainspectors are investigating the situation among cattle in that area.

Dog Caused Master's Death

New Orleans.—Ellis Thompson, 30, was taking a nap when his dog caught the blanket and began pulling it from the bed. Thompson grabbed the blanket and the dog gave a jerk, spilling his master to the floor where he struck his head. He died an hour later at a hospital.

The Government official of the county district who had charge of the census which deals with farm products had instructed the old farmer to collect his stock of every description and have them branded.

"I s'pose that's all right," sighed the farmer dolefully, "but honest, mister, I believe I'm goin' to have a terrible time with them bees."

The Late Thos. Wm. MacLean

A home in Chesterville was made sad, a wife and family bereaved, and a village and community saddened by the death of William MacLean on Monday, October 20th, 1930, at the age of sixty-nine years and five months. He was the eldest son of the late John MacLean and Caroline Hummel, being born on May 20th, 1861. and married Mary Elizabeth Gallinger on October 18th, 1882, being stricken down on his forty-eighth wedding anniversary . Living in this vicinity practically all his life, he retired from farming in 1911 and moved to Chesterville, where he spent the remainder of his days.

Being of a loyal disposition, he was a friend to everyone, always ready to give of his time for the betterment of the community, and will be sadly missed.

Surviving him are his widow and four daughters—Mrs. H. S. McMurray, Mrs. Wilburn Edgerton, Mrs. Harry Edgerton, and Mrs. Thomas Loucks; four brothers—Edward, of Syracuse, N. Y.; George, of California: Walter, of Gouverneur, N. Y., and John, of Beckstead: two sisters—Mrs. P. E. Ross, of Calgary; Mrs. S. D. Hill, of Ottawa; also fourteen grandchildren.

The funeral service was conducted in St. Andrew's Presbyterian church by Rev. A. H. Sproule, who took as his text the 2nd verse of the 14th chapter of St. John, delivering a very comforting address. During the service the Oddfellows' Quartette sang "Nearer My God to Thee." The pall bearers were Messrs. Miles Marcellus, Bernard Coyne, Howard Fulton, and Wm. Crump.

The floral tributes were a Broken Circle from the family; Wreaths from Mr. and Mrs. John MacLean and family, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Hill, and the Women's Association of Grantley United church.

His body awaits the resurrection morn in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Counties' Council

The October session of the Counties' Council of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry opened at Cornwall on Monday, October 20th, with Mr. Ed. Strader, Reeve of Iroquois Village, who is Warden, in the chair. The Warden said he was glad to welcome the members back to the old family re-union and was glad to be back himself. The session might be a heavy one, as unusual business might come up, and he asked the committees to meet as early as possible the following morning and get matters ready for the Council to deal with. He expressed the hope that the work would go along smoothly and that the session would be a pleasant one. (Applause.)

The Clerk, Mr. A. K. MacMillan, called the roll. The following is a list of the members:

Stormont.

Cornwall Town — W. H. Gallinger, Reeve; R. J. Gravely, First Deputy Reeve; Rene Danis, Second Deputy Reeve.

Cornwall Township—Wm. A. Murray, Reeve; Fred Lefebvre First Deputy Reeve; Hugh D. McDonald, Second Deputy Reeve.

Roxborough Township — John A. Morrison and James Blair.

Finch Township—Henry C. Nugent and George Nichols.

Osnabruck Township — Glenn A. Shaver and James Connors.

Finch Village—D. A. McIntosh.

Dundas

Williamsburg Township — Oscar Beckstead and E A. VanAllen.

Winchester Township — Howard Nesbitt and Roy E. Annable.

Mountain Township — John E. Crowder and Robert Bryan.

Matilda Township—Thos. Johnston and Sidney Thompson.

Morrisburg Village — Edward P. Foster.

Iroquois Village—Ed. Strader.

Winchester Village—J. H. Ross.

Chesterville Village—Wesley Hamilton.

Glengarry.

Charlottenburgh Township—D. S. McIntosh and D. A. McRae.

Lancaster Township—John D. McDonald and Rod A. McLeod.

Lochiel Township—J. A. McCrimmon and W. Irvine.

Kenyon Township—Fred McLeod and M. A. Clark.

Alexandria Town—M. Fitzgerald.

Maxville Village — Dr. Howard Munro.

Lancaster Village—J. R. McLachlan.

Messrs. Glenn A. Shaver and Jas. Connors moved that the minutes of the last day of the June Session, being printed and distributed, be taken as read and signed by the Warden and Clerk. Carried.

The Clerk read a list of twenty-three communications received since the June session and these were referred to the committees to which thev belong for consideration and report, on motion of Messrs. Robert Bryan and D. A. McIntosh.

The Warden asked Dr. J. Howard Munro, Reeve of Maxville Village, to take the chair The Warden then presented the report of the Debenture Committee, of which he is chairman.

The committee reported that the bond market in the early summer was not very favourable, but from July it showed signs of improvement. The committee kept in touch with the market prices and were considering the advisability of calling for tenders when, on Sept. 9th last, C. H. Burgess & Co., Limited, Toronto, made a very attractive private bid at 100.25 and accrued interest. After thoroughly going into the matter the committee dcided that the offer was an excellent one, considering the bonds are of quite short duration, and accepted the offer. Solicitors for the company reported favourably on the Debenture By-law covering this issue and the debentures were delivered to the company on October 11th.

On motion of Messrs. Wesley Hamilton and Thomas Johnston the report was referred to the committee of the whole, with Mr. Strader in the chair, and the report was adopted in committee.

The Warden said as there was no further business ready for presentation, a motion to adjourn would be in order. He also said he supposed there would be no night sessions of Council, as they had been getting along very nicely without "overtime" for several sessions. A number of members expressed their opinion with a definite "no" and that settled the matter.

Messrs. Oscar Beckstead and E. A. VanAllen moved that Council adjourn until 5 p. m. on Tuesday to allow committees to meet and advance business. Carried.

The Council resumed on Tuesday afternoon, when the minutes of Monday evening's session were read and adopted.

As committees had been engaged all day there was nothing ready for presentation to Council and an adjournment was made until 4 p.m. on Wednesday in order to allow committees to proceed with and complete their reports.

The report of the remaining sessions will be published in our next issue.

Our Ottawa Letter

OTTAWA, Occ. 29th.—While tariff revision will undoubtedly be played as the big news of the next session of Parliament a quiet, methodical task of at least equal importance has been undertaken by the Bennet government.

It is a thorough study of the position of agriculture in Canada and out of it will be evolved a policy to meet swiftly changing world conditions which today very seriously threaten both the present and future success of life on the farms of the Dominion.

Since primitive life gave way to ordered progress in Canada, the soil has been the main fountain of out new national wealth. Forest, mines, and streams are annually yielding great and increasing income, but land in its production of wheat, coarse grains, and in its development of livestock and dairy industries provides the backbone of our whole growth—the purchasing power upon which the expansion of our industries and our cities depends.

* * * *

Within the past three years a distinct challenge to the prosperity of those who wrest a living from the soil has developed. There have, of course, been years in the past when the farmers faced hardship. Sometimes it was brought about by crop failure. There were, too, very rare periods when "surplus" world production forced prices below a profitable level for the producer. Generally speaking, however, demand at least was equal to the supply even as yields and acreage multiplied and, though the farmer found no royal road to wealth, his toil was rewarded with a fair measure of the comforts and all the necessities of life.

Years ago we passed the United States as the greatest wheat exporting nation and as late as 1928 predictions were many that another decade would see Canada producing a billion bushels of wheat a year. The records show that we did come within sight of a 600,000,000 bushel crop. For feed, seed, and home consumption we require only approximately 100,000,000 bushels a year. The rest must be sold abroad, either as flour or as wheat. With a 600,000,000 bushel crop nearly 500,000,000 bushels is available for export, which means that practically the entire market for the country's greatest source of national wealth lies beyond the control of the Canadian producer, or of Canadian Government.

The fact was not embarassing until last year, but then, and since then, the whole economic structure which affects the world market for wheat has been rebuilt. France, Italy, Germany, Sweden, the United States, and other countries have raised almost insurmountable barriers against foreign wheat to increase the market for domestic wheat and coarse grains.

While these erstwhile great importing countries of Europe have become largely self-sustaining through tariffs, exporting countries have been maintaing or increasing their acreage. The net result has been apparent in the failure of Canada to market its surplus last year and in the forced selling this year at prices which will not pay the producer for his actual labour and seed, let alone allow a profit on investment and labour.

The one great importing market still open is that of Britain. It is open to the world on the same terms as to Canada. It is open to the 28 cents a day labour of Russia and the peon labour of the Agrentine. Premier Bennett is making an effort to gain a useful preference for Canada in that market but it becomes obvious that one, two, or three years must elapse before any benefit commensurate with our problem can be obtained. Even then, Britain can never absorb the Canadian surplus and it is only reasonable to expect that any preference given Canada will be shared by Australia, India, South Africa, and other units of the Empire.

* * * *

The problem to be studied and solved is really the future of farming as we know it, particularly in the West. Will the sturdy pioneers who opened up the West, and their children, be forced off the land to make way for illiterate Europe? Will bigger farmers and mechanized farming reduce farming costs to a point where Canadian can farm and maintain a Canadian standard of living? Or does the solution lie in the adoption of mixed farming and the development of new world markets for wheat?

These are the questions to which the Bennett Government is directing the attention of its experts in farm production and management, in marketing and in world economics. The problem they are tackling is of as great consequence to the future welfare of Canada as will be the tariff legislation which the next session of Parliament will pass. As a matter of fact, the two matters are closely allied in our national development. That phase will be the basis of another articles.

On Being Fat

By R. A. Kilduffe, in "Hygeia"

There are various reasons for not loving a fat man, but insurance companies love him least of all, for their records show that length of life is materially decreased with those who are overweight—as much as ten years when overweight is excessive.

It is apparent, therefore, that overweight has a definite relation to health, disease and length of life, resulting from a combination of factors. First of all, those who are overweight are less active and exercise less than those of normal weight, which leads not only to the loss of the benefits accruing from intelligent exercise but to constantly increasing overweight.

In the second place, while anyone can see where some of the fat accumulates in those who are obese, more fat has been deposited where it cannot be seen but where it can seriously interfere with important body functions: namely, on and in various vital organs, such as the liver, heart, and kidneys.

What causes overweight, or obesity? In spite of the fact that many fat people insist, and perhaps some of them believe, that they are light eaters, there are two main causes of fatness: lack of exercises and overeating. They go hand in hand and one leads to and encourages the other. The truth of the matter is that obesity, in a way, is a result of laziness and a disinclination to correct improper, though pleasant, habits. We are first lazy; we do not or will not exercise; then we get fat, which makes us lazier, so we get fatter!

The important thing to remember is that, while we notice the results of the process when we get older, it begins when we are young. The young man who is just a little overweight when he is 25 is in grave danger of being just plainly fat when he is 40. Now, how does this condition come about? Lack of exercise and the insidous growth or cultivation of sedentary habits are the chief causative factors. It is to be expected—and the expectation is amply fulfilled by the statistical data of insurance companies—that city dwellers, whose work keeps them mostly indoors and whose habits of exercise are often improper and still oftener irregular, have a tendency to overweight.

It is undoubtedly harder to take off fat than to accumulate it, but what joy when it is gone! There is only one easy way to combat obesity and that is to prevent it. While diet and exercise are the enemies of fat and are best applied before one gets fat, they are usually resorted to—often neither easily nor wisely—afterward.

Now, dieting does not mean starvation nor is exercise synonymus with exhaustion. Nothing is gained by starving for a while and then returning to the trough, nor by straining a poor, fatty, labouring heart and kidneys by violent or excessive physical contortions. Fat may roll around, but it won't roll off, and what has taken years of indulgence to accumulate cannot be dissipated safely by a short period of Spartan suffering.

Before anything is done about overweight one should first know how much reduction is safe and how rapidly and in what way it can be accomplished without damage. The first step, therefore, should be a thorough physical examination by a competent physician to determine whether the overweight has led to or is accompanied by any serious disease of the heart, kidneys, blood vessels, or other organs. Anemia, diabetes, and various endocrine or glandular disturbances should be considered, for any of these will defintely and seriously influence the manner and the rapidity with which weight reduction may be undertaken.

Next comes the planning of the diet. In principle this means that the amount of energy required for the body's necessities must first be determined in terms of food. Just as coal is measured in terms of heat units per pound, so the value of food as fuel or heat is determined as calories. The caloric requirements vary with each individual in accordance with age, sex, size and kind and amount of work performed.

Once the caloric requirements of the person are determined it is easy to adjust the diet to supply slightly less, thus making it necessary to make up a deficit by burning the body fat. By eating from 1,200 to 1,400 calories per day, for example, instead of an actual requirement of from 2,300 to 2,800 calories, the fat person may lose from one pound to one and one-half pounds a week.

The diet once determined is not a fixed factor, however. As one loses weight his caloric requirements diminish but on the other hand as his activities increase he expends more energy and requires more fuel. So the diet must be re-adjusted as circumstances necessitate. Most important of all, one cannot diet for a while and then take down all the bars. Obesity must be held at bay by sheer persistence and force of will power.

The habitually over-dilated stomach is sure to feel empty for a long while but gradually it will accept the situation gracefully, if at first unwillingly.

Finally, the selection of suitable, safe and sensible exercises is essential to restore muscular and nervous tons and body vigour. But nothing should be done without competent supervision and advice!

Faithfully carried out and honestly adhered to, such a programme will effectually reduce weight, but the process will be difficult, relatively long drawn out and, frankly, it will not be fun for a while.

If one believes what one reads—and in this case it is easy because what one wants to believe—fat can be steamed off, melted away by special lotions, and dissolved with pills or powders, all without dieting.

Unless such appliances or performances are combined openly or secretly with the administration of dangerous drugs, these claims are entirely untrue. The joker is found in the directions: namely, that while dieting is unnecessary, reduction is more rapid if fats, sugars and starches are omitted. When any reduction follows the use of such methods it results from following the joker's hint, which is to diet—and only from that.

There are drugs—thyroid extract, for example—that will cause rapid destruction of fat and reduction of weight, but their use is dangerous, even in expert hands. How much more so when their presence in a nostrum is unknown or when they are taken haphazard.

Successful and safe reducing depends on the application of common sense to the problem and on a conscientious, rigorous adherence to the rules of the game. It is a game demanding self-denial and courage, but the game is certainly worth the candle!

Cake and Candies

By Etta Bitta Pye

Coffee, besides its many virtues as a beverage, makes delightful flavouring for desserts and confections, particularly when there is no other ingredient to relieve the rich sweetness of the dish. Here are two inexpensive recipes that are worth a trial!

COFFEE FRUIT CAKE

½ cup shortening
1 cup light brown sugar
2 eggs
¼ cup coffee
1-3 cup milk
1¾ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ pound raisins
⅛ pound citron
¼ pound figs cut in strips

Cream shortening, add sugar, egg yolks, coffee and milk. Sift together flour and baking powder and add slowly. Add fruit, which has been slightly floured, and fold in beaten whites of eggs. Bake in greased loaf pan from one hour to one hour and a quarter.

MOCHA FUDGE

1½ cups granulated sugar
½ cup milk, preferably part cream
1 heaping teaspoon cocoa
4 tablespoons strong brewed coffee
butter size of a walnut
pinch of salt
scant teaspoon vanilla

Melt cocoa, add milk and coffee and sugar, stir until sugar is thoroughly dissolved, place over heat and cool until it forms a soft ball in cold water. remove from heat, add butter and salt, beat strongly until it cools. Then add vanilla and beat briskly until it starts to get solid, then pour into buttered pan or plate to get cold before cutting into squares. English walnuts may be added if desired.

HALLOWE'EN NIGHT OWLS

1 loaf graham bread
1-3 pound butter
1½ cups broken Roquefort cheese
4 chopped pimentoes
1 tablespoon chopped chives, or
1 teaspoon onion juice
2 tablespoons evaporated milk

Cream butter, add cheese, pimentos, chives and evaporated milk and work until smooth. Spread on bread, garnish with capers and pimento strips, and cut in fancy chapes. Serve garnished with sprig of parsley or watercress, or on a lettuce leaf.

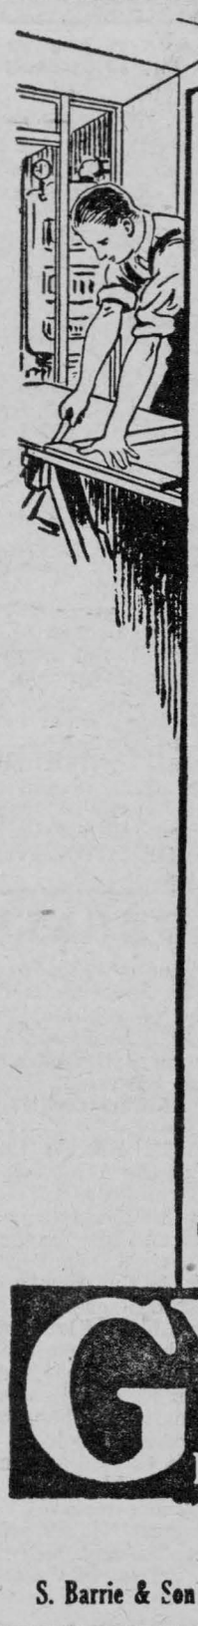

A Conundrum.

Toronto organization passes a resolution to the effect that printing more crime news makes criminals. Well, if that's so, why doesn't printing more cooking recipes make better cooks?

Black Powder

"We shall have to have an auger before we can put the frame together," said my father. "A two-inch auger. You boys had better go to town for it this evening."

We were sitting at supper in our cabin in the hills after a day of hard work in the timbers for the new barn. Harry and I exchanged glances of disappointment but said nothing.

Father had not known of our intended racoon hunt that night; but although he never refused us any rightful pleasure, he always insisted on business first, and we knew better than to argue the matter. So, after we had split the kindling for the morning and filled the wood box, we started on our errand.

We had gone only a few paces when Harry hesitated and said in a low tone, "Wait a minute." Then he slipped back to the rear door.

He reappeared in a moment carrying our muzzle-loading shotgun and the axe; from his shoulders hung the big old powder horn and shot pouch. Understanding his plan at once, I took the axe without a word. Thus we set off for town, with Bob, our Airedale hunting dog, following at our heels.

"Do you suppose father will care?" I asked after we had gone some distance.

"Not if we do the errand first," Harry replied. "When we spring the surprise it will be all right."

That winter, in order to buy a new gun, we had been secretely hoarding our trapping money. Two more good coon pelts would give us enough to make the purchase and surprise our parents. They had been in sympathy with our desire to own a new gun, but they could not afford to buy one for us.

It was an ideal "coon night"—soft, foggy, with a full moon rising late, and the end of the fur season was at hand. We had not many nights to lose, we knew well.

At the store Harry waited outside while I went in and made our purchase, Then, calling Bob, we set out on a long, circuitous route that would take us home through the woods in what for most of the way we knew was good coon country.

We were nearing home when Bob at last struck a warm trail and left us. We sat on the fence that bordered the cornfield in which he was running and tried to follow the course by the rattle of weeds and at patter of his feet on the frozen ground.

After a while we heard his eager, excited yelp in the woods near by, and we knew that he was closing in. We hurried after him and soon recognized the sharp bark announcing that the animal was treed.

It was an old beech tree that had been dying for some years. We had chopped a rabbit out of the hollow trunk that very winter ,and we recognized the spot. The tree stood by the fence that bordered the railway track and was only a few yards from the bank of the creek over which the track passed on a high trestle.

"I always suspected that was a coon tree," I said as we ran to the spot and gazed up into the branches. "What'd we better do now?"

"What do we always do when they go up?" Harry replied, taking off his coat and reaching for the axe.

"I'm afraid we oughten't," I protested uncertainly.

"Why not?" he insisted. "Don't we always cut coon trees? Doesn't everyone cut coon trees?

"Of course, but it's pretty late and we've no lantern. Besides, father doesn't know what we're doing."

Harry was always bolder than I and quicker toact. He gazed up for a moment at the tree shrouded in mist, and then looked around for a good place to drop the trunk. He was a good axeman and could fell a tree tree with considerable accuracy.

"We could come back tomorrow night," I suggested.

"Yes, and we could find them gone, and have our work for nothing: no coons no hammerless breechloader before the duck season opens. You know that the time to cut a coon tree is when the family is at home," he added conclusively and squared away for the chopping.

"Where are you going to throw that tree?" I asked, as he stood resting a moment after the first attack.

"Right toward the creek, just inside the fence. That will give Bob a chance to corner them between the creek and the railway.

We took turns at the axe; we cut a notch in each side of the trunk, and made the notch on the side toward which the tree was to fall much the deeper. At last, as Harry was swinging hard, and the sharp, deep-biting edge was scattering big chips, there was a sharp crack, followed by an ominous silence.

We both leaped back and got under the shelter of a tree near by. The big beech leaned slowly toward the creek. then broke from its stump, swerved toward the railway tracks, and, with a majestic sweep. a rush and a mighty crash, it fell, but not in the position that we had planned. The trunk of the tree fell diagonally across the railway track, so near the trestle that the top snapped off short and fell into the creek just beyond the abutment. Bob dashed off to investigate the coon's nest; but Harry and I, gazing at each other in dismay, had suddenly lost all interest in hunting.

"You've done it now," I said glumly.

"Yes," he rejoined hotly. "You didn't do any of it, did you? Why didn't you remind me of that one-sided top?"

"Because I didn't think of it," I admitted.

"Neither did I," he replied. "Well, Frank, there's no use fussing here any longer. We've got to get that thing off the tracks."

"There'll be the eleven-o'clock passenger," I reminded him, "but I don't believe it's anywhere near time for that."

We scrambled over the broken fence and across the ditch. The tree had been long dead and was very dry and brittle. It had broken into several sections, one of which lay between the rails, diagonally across the ties with an end resting on the end of the trestle. We hurried to clear away the débris, tossing the lighter limbs aside and heaving together at the heavy ones. At last we had cleared away all the stuff except the trunk itself. We tugged and strained at that for several minutes without budging it an inch.

"If we only had a handspike," said Harry as we stopped to get our breath.

I searched among the limbs, but could find nothing that would do. Then I started back for the axe.

"Where are you going?" he called.

"To cut a sapling."

"You'll have to hunt a good while. There's no small growth round here." His voice had an anxious not in it. "Bring the axe here.' 'he went on. We'll have to cut this thing in two; there's no other way."

I hurried back and Harry, seizing the axe, swung it high above his head; but even as it descended there came to our ears on the still, foggy night air a faint, long-drawn whistle. The axe fell from his grasp. Cold chills gripped my heart. That whistle was for Baker's Crossing five miles down the track. We must have been in the woods longer than we had supposed.

"She comes through here sixty miles an hour," said Harry, and his voice was hoarse and unnatural as he sank down on the log. There were no stops this side of the crossing, as I knew. There would be none until—it required little imagination to picture that stop. Our log was blocking the approach to the trestle!

"If—if we only had—the lantern!" I cried.

Wondering, I tumbled over the fence and after what seemed a terribly long search found it. I tossed it to Harry who began to bore into the centre of the log. twisting hard with both hands and throwing all his weight on the handle. With each quick turn the bit sank deeper and the chips curled rapidly from the hole. Another whistle, and the rumble of the train came to our ears.

"Make a plug!" he cried as he worked feverishly.

Seizing a piece of limb at my feet, I began to shave it with the axe.

"Work fast," he said. "Make a groove in it."

I understood his plan now. As I worked, the rails began to ring and the rattle of wheels over the joints came to our ears; at last with a final blow of the axe I cut the plug square off at the top. With my pocketknife I hastily cut a groove the length of the plug and leaped to Harry's side. He was pouring powder from the horn into the hole; seizing the plug, he jammed it into the hole and drove it home with the axe; then he scattered the last of the powder thickly about the groove and along the top of the log.

I turned and ran frantically up the track to wave both arms as the glow of the headlight fell upon us, yet I knew that in the dense fog the engineer could scarcely see me. My foot struck a protruding crosstie and I fell headlong, but got to my feet again. As I did so, the big locomotive loomed up in the fog not a hundred yards away, and I leaped from the track as it bore down upon me.

I looked back. Harry was bending over the log, match in hand. There was a flash, but no report, and then the shriek of the engine, mingled with the hissing of steam, the roar of pounding wheels and the grinding of brakes: and the drivewheels threw back showers of sparks as the train tore past me. I knew it could not stop in time. and I braced myself for the crash. I did not see Harry leap from the track. but when it seemed that the engine must be upon the log there came a roar that was almost lost in the noise of the train. The glow from the headlight went out; the long train slid out across the trestle and came to a stop.

Lanterns and voices came toward me. I was sick with terror and hardly knew what I did; but I found myself running back into the woods, bumping into the gray shapes of trees, falling, running again, until I came to a hill up which I clambered until I fell from exhaustion. There I lay listening tothe men shouting and running back and forth. It seemed an age before there came again a slow puffing and creaking. and the train slowly drew away into the night.

I did not know what to do, for I dared not go home without Harry, and I was afraid to go back. But at last I gathered courage and crept back toward the spot, calling at first softly, then in loud despair as the terrible fear grew upon me.

At last I heard a faint reply and, running across the track, found my brother lying at the bottom of the deep ravine that bordered the roadbed on the other side.

I struck a match. His face was blackened, his eyebrows and hair singed, but he sat up in a dazed way and called me by name. I was so glad that I threw my arms around him. I helped him to his feet, and together we climbed back to the scene of the explosion.

There was no sign of the log anywhere, but the broken auger lay by the rail where the wheels had passed over it. Harry sat down on the edge of a tie, rested his head on his arms and began to sob weakly.

"Are you hurt?" I asked anxiously.

He shook his head. "It's those poor people!" he choked. "I saw the cars tumbling and heard the people screaming and moaning. Oh, Frank, I never knew anything could be so terrible!"

"Why, Harry, there wasn't any wreck!"

"I guess not, but I saw it all the same."

Then Bob came up, wagging his tail and he licked our faces, and gradually we both regained composure.

It was almost morning when we crept into the house and crawled into bed. At breakfast we told our story, and father returned with us to the trestle. He looked over the ground, noticed a piece of the log lying in the ditch, and picked up a fragment of the powderhorn from between the rails.

"Better luck than judgment," was his only comment, and we were still uncertain whether we were in for severe punishment.

"I don't understand it," Harry said. "I touched a match to the powder, and it flashed in my face, but there was no explosion. Then I jumped out of the way of the engine, and that was the last I knew of anything."

"It was the loose powder on top of the log that flashed, of course," said father. "The main charge must have hung fire in your improvised touchhole, as black powder will sometimes do, especially if it's damp. That was all that saved your life, my son. And if it had hung an instant longer, the wreck would have been a reality. The log must have blown up square in front of the engine as you fell into the ditch. It was a chance in a thousand, and it should be an awful warning."

A railway detective had a long talk with our parents. We boys remained at the barn, working on the timbers, but as the man left he stopped to shake hands with us.

"It was quick work and a bit of Providence," he said. "But don't let it happen again."

Then we knew that we were forgiven.

DIABETES

Diabetes is one of the metabolic diseases. Metabolism is the process by which our bodies make use of the food we eat and the air we breathe, thus providing the energy required and the materials needed for growth and repair.

The sugars and starches which we eat are converted into glucose, which is used by the body to provide energy. If more glucose is available than is required, the surplus is stored up as glycogen. This store of glycogen is called upon when the body cells demand energy food.

Diabetes upsets this normal functioning. The cells of the body are unable to use glucose, and the liver is consequently unable to store up glyclogen. There is an excess of glucose in the blood which is passed off in the urine, and so, in diabetes, there is sugar present in the urine.

Diabetes results from injury to a part of the pancreas which normally secretes a substance called insulin—the substance that enables the body cells to use glucose. The cause of the injury to the pancreas is not known, so we do not know what is responsible for diabetes. We do know that diabetes occurs most frequently among those whose weight is above normal. Overweight usually arises from a diet that contains an excess of sugars and starches. The enormous increase in the consumption of sugar during the last fifty years may be an important factor in the increase of diabetes. The disease is most prevalent in those countries which show the highest per capita consumption of sugar.

In 1920, Dr. Frederick Banting discovered that it was possible to secure insulin from the pancreas of young animals and to supply the substance to human beings suffering from diabetes, thus furnishing them with the insulin which their own damaged pancreas cannot supply.

Insulin is not, nor was it ever claimed to be a cure for diabetes. It is a remedy which, when properly used, makes it possible to control diabetes in a way which was never possible before. The use of insulin does not mean that in the treatment diet is any less important. Before the discovery of insulin the only treatment was diet. Today, by means of a carefully regulated diet and the use of insulin, when necessary, the diebetic can lead a comparatively normal life.

The case will not be cured. Care can never be relaxed. Supervision by a physician to keep the diet and insulin adjusted to the needs of the case is absolutely necessary. A "hit-or-miss type of treatment leads to disaster. Continuous and careful supervision of treatment by means of diet and insulin robs diabetes of its terrors.

'Fresh from the gardens'

Forty Years Ago

Nobody swatted the fly.

Nobody had seen a silo.

Nobody had seen an aeroplane.

Nobody cared for the prices of gasoline.

Nobody "listened in' 'on the telephone.

Operations were very rare.

Nobody had appendicitis, but many people died of inflammation of the bowels.

Pneumonia was not known, but many died from either "congestion" or "inflammation of the lungs."

All ladies dresses were lined, even for hot weather.

Skirts reached to the feet.

Ladies wore hoops and bustles.

Cream was five cents a pint.

Milk was five cents a quart.

Top buggies were just coming into style.

Farmers went to town for their mail.

A labouring man got 75c to $1.00 a day.

The hired girl drew $1.25 a week.

Potato bugs were knocked off with a stick into a pan or old pail and were burned.

You never had seen a "tin Lizzie."

The farmer wore a plaid flannel shirt.

A good sheep could be bought for $15.00 to $20.00.

Eggs were 8c to 10c a dozen.

Butter was 15c a pound.

Chickens sold for 25c a pair forty years ago.

The whole family went to church every Sunday, sometimes walking two or three miles or else all piled into a democrat or sleigh and ewnt.

Teacher: "Markham, what is the Equator?"

Markham: "An imaginary line, Miss, running round the face of the earth."

Teacher, facetiously: "And could your mother hang clothes on that line?"

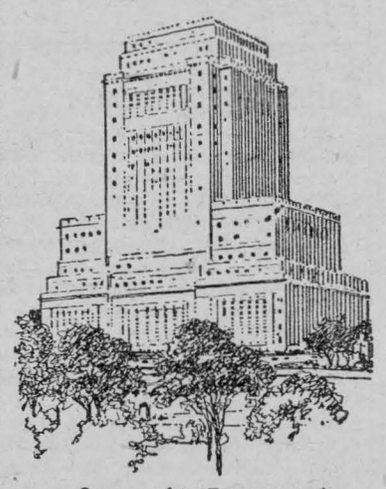

Markham: "Yes, Miss."

Teacher: "And, pray, how do you make that out?"

Markham: "Imaginary clothes, Miss!"

"I sure thought of the old Sun Life of Canada when I was under there!"

A MAN, a mine foreman in Ohio, took out a policy for $2,500.00 on October 16th, 1926.

See one of its Representatives

Four days afterwards, a section of the mine roof fell and twenty-five tons of slate pinned him down. In falling it fortunately formed an inverted "V", else he would have been crushed. Two hours and a half later a rescue party extricated him. As he was being carried to the surface, his first words were:—

"I sure thought of the old Sun Life when I was under there."

AUTOMOBILE INSURANCE

DRIVE in SAFETY

with an Automobile Insurance Policy to protect you against the hazards of Fire, Theft, Collision, Property Damage and Public Liability.

Every Automobile Owner in Ontario should know about the new Financial Responsibility Law effective since September 1st. The new law makes necessary the abi lity to pay for damage.

In its general application, it requires that the motorist responsible for damage to person or property of others MUST PAY either personally or through insurance OR BE BARRED FROM THE ROAD.

The sensible thing to do is to carry Automobile Liability and Property Damage Insurance. It is better to have this insurance and not need it, than to need it and not have it.

HAIL
LIGHTNING

WIND

People who depend upon their crops should not be without some kind of the above insurance.

The loss of crops and barns, sometimes dwellings, is a serious matter to all farmers.

The claims paid through this office, just recently, have been large.

We aim to satisfy our policyholders, and do our utmost on their behalf.

Possibly you believe that you are carrying enough insurance. Think for a moment what a total loss would mean to you. This, as you will admit, is quite possible.

Information regarding various forms of insurance glady given, you are under no obligation whatsoever, just call or write.

A very enjoyable evening was spent on Thursday in games and dancing at the home of Mr. Henry Harper, Elma, in honour of Mr. Silas Harper and his bride. An appropriate address was read by Miss Lydia Robinson and a presentation made.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Droppo, of Bethune, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barkley, from near Morrisburg, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Shaw, of Melvins, for dinner on Sunday.

Mr. John Hanes one of the older residents of Winchester, died suddenly on Monday afternoon just after returning from his son's farm a few miles north of the village. He is survived by his wife and several sons and daughters.

Farmers Win Debate

A very interesting entertainment was given in Lannin's Hall, Winchester, under the auspices of the Women's Institute when two debates were given. The first one was—"Resolved that the prospective farmer needs a better education than the average business man." This assertion was so ably defended by three well-known farmers that they won the day. Their names are—Mr. Robert Carkner, of Harmony; Mr. Arthur Christie, of Melvins, and Mr. Howard Nesbitt, of Winchester Springs, who is Reeve of Winchester Township. Their opponents were Dr. J. J. McKendry, Mr. Aaron Sweet, and Mr. M. Bailey, all of Winchester.

The other subject—"Resolved that the Incubator and Brooder will hatch and raise better Chicks than the old Hen"—was defended by two bright young boys—Gordon Wilson and Dixon Hutt, who won the day. Their opponent were Langton Carr and Hubert Quartz, whose arguments in favour of the old hen were almost equally as good.

The following musical numbers were also enjoyed:

Piano solo—Mrs. I. Fetterly.

Saxophone duet—Sparling Dukelow and Mr. Tett.

Vocal solos—Mr. Geo. Reveler, Mrs. W. J. Cass and Mr. Fred Johnston.

Bagpipe selections by Mr. I. K. Cinnamon.

Chorus—"The Man Behind the Plough," by the four boys who debated.

Mr. J. H. Ross, Reeve of Winchester village, was chairman, and expressed the thanks of the W. I. to all who had helped to make this concert a success, after which "God Save the King" was sung.

Straders Hill

Messrs. George Reddick, of Spencerville, and Bert Reddick and Mrs. Mary McIntosh made a business trip to Montreal Saturday.

Mr. Phil Strader attended the Kemptville Agricultural School Monday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Strader spent Monday with Miss Olive Strader.

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hanson's Sunday, were—Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Casselman and Mrs. Bertha Casselman and two little boys, of Winchester Springs; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hanson, and Mrs. Elizabeth Strader.

Mrs. Guy Strader and little Donald were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Cook Thursday.

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Strader's Sunday, were—Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe and family, of Gallingertown.

Seventeen Pound Cabbage

As far as the growing of monster cabbage constitutes a record, Finch township has the edge on Winchester. The fourteen-pound specimen recently brought to the Record office by Mr. J. B. Merkley was relegated to the second division this week when Mrs. Fay M. Droppo, of Finch township, presented us with a seventeen pounder, one of the finest cabbages we have ever seen. It looks like sauerkraut for us this winter.

Darling—At the Maternity Hospital, Danbury, Conn., on October 21st, 1930 to Mr. and Mrs. Earl T. Darling (nee Jessie R. MacLean), a daughter. (Lois Bessie Rose.)

Honoured by Ottawa Friends On Transfer to Finch

The many friends of Mr. Colin Anderson, late of tne staff of the Bank of Montreal at Ottawa and now transferred to the Finch branch were high in their praises of good fellowship and the exchanging of felicitations at a farewell gathering in his honour at the home of Miss Gertrude Hanes on Wednesday evening, the 22nd inst.

There were about 35 young people in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Hanes acted as the hosts, while Mr. Dickie made a presentation on behalf of the gathering and other friends, with Mr. Ormrod reading the address. Mr. Anderson very fittingly replied.

Cards and musical entertainment to the enjoyment of all concluded a very pleasant evening, at the conclusion of which all joined heartily in singing "Auld Lang Syne," and "He's a jolly good fellow."
