DEER HUNTING '73 - NO BUMPER CROP

Don't expect a bumper crop of deer anywhere in Eastern Ontario this year.

That's the cautious advice being offered deer hunters by wildlife experts in the eastern region of the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources on the eve of the deer season starting November 5.

Eastern Ontario deer herds have suffered through two severe winters, last year and the year before, which reduced adult populations and also affected reproduction from surviving adults, according to the Natrual Resources deer watchers.

The forecast is considered extremely conservative and considered "sticking your neck out" by the biologists because it is impossible to hold the deer herds under close, continuous observation or even count them.

The biologists also depend on hunter reports and analysis of lower jaws turned in. Here too, there is no guarantee. Hunting patterns and numbers may vary from year to year.

Given three years of mild winters and reduced kill by dogs when there is a crust on the snow, the herds can bounce back. But increased fawn crops must also find their way into the adult population to produce further fawn increases, before mild weather and reduced dog kills can have full effect.

Evidence and observation seems to indicate there was a fawn increase last spring.

In fact the 1973 fawns bear close scruting. Early observations of fawns this spring indicate there may be many larger-than-average fawns abroad this fall. They could easily be mistaken for adults when reports are being filled in. Also, hunters may have to readjust their thinking from the past two seasons when reading tracks.

In the counties of Grenville, Leeds and Lanark and Ottawa-Carleton west of the Rideau River the deer season opens November 5, closes November 8. In the five eastern counties plus Ottawa-Carleton east of the Rideau the season is the same except that only shotguns and bows are allowed and no dogs. In an extended area around Algonquin Park the season is November 5 to November 17. Between Highway 401 and Highway 7 in Frontenac, Lennox and Addington and Hastings Counties the deer season is November 5 to 10.

Summaries of hunging regulations for 1973 can be picked up at local Ministry of Natural Resources offices.

STORIES FROM SILENT JAWS

How healthy are the deer herds in Eastern Ontario?

Unlike humans they don't stand still to be counted or examined medically.

But it's still not impossible to find out. Biologists with the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources can determine herd conditions, potential and age distribution by examing the lower jaws of deer that have been killed during the season. This analysis is tremendously important to not only the deer themselvles, but wildlife experts planning deer management programs, and hunters.

To increase the number of jaws being turned in to Natural Resources offices in Eastern Ontario this year, the Ministry is offering a small reward — a crest signifying the owner is a Successful Deer Hunter, 1973. It's the only crest of its kind in Ontario, and is being offered in addition to the reward for deer hides turned in.

On Tuesday, September 25, 1973, an historical plaque commemorating Louis de Baude, Comte de Frontenac, was unveiled at his birthplace, the old royal chateau in St.-Germain-en-laye, near Paris, France. The marker was erected by Ontario's Ministry of Colleges and Universities, acting on the recommendation of the Archaeological and Historic Sites Board of Ontario. The unveiling was performed jointly by the Honourable Fern Guindon, Ontario's Minister of Labour and M. Jean Chastang, Mayor of St.-Germain-en-Laye. They appear from left to right in the photograph. This special plaque ceremony was held as a result of the City of Kingston's Tercentenary celebrations. Comte de Frontenac founded Fort Frontenac on the site of that community in 1673.

Impact of new farm operators on Eastern Ontario

"A new type of neighbour relationship has emerged that is much less personal and interdependent than that of a generation ago .... For the 25 percent of the new operators who came from an Urban environment where they were accustomed to more impersonal relationships in everyday life, this lack of old-fashioned neighbourline s s was not a difficult or new problem."

The above observation represents one of the findings to two researchers responsible for a recently published study. Sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and food, the survey entitled "A Socio-Economic Study of New Farm Operators in Eastern Ontario," was conducted by James M. Purvis, head of English, Social Science and Mathematics at Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology, and Henry F. Noble, senior economist, Land Use Section of the Economics Branch in Toronto.

Another interesting observation is that the average acreage of the farms studied was 199 in 1963 compared with 240 acres in 1970. In some instances, ARDA farm consilidation had made it possible to increase acreage.

The 43-page study, involving 39 farms in the eastern Ontario counties of Dundas, Glengarry, Lanark and Frontenac, takes a close look at the people who have started new farm businesses in the area between 1963 and 1970.

"The feeling was that it was time to focus on the people coming into farming instead of on those getting out, because their impact on agriculture and community life is important," comments Mr Purvis.

Incorporating 21 tables containing such data as the education levels of new farm operators and their sources of family living income, the study comes to 13 conclusions, based on questionnaires and an exhaustive program of personal interviews.

Interestingly, the research team discovered that 13 of the 39 new farm operators had occupations other than farming, previous to becoming the operators of the farms surveyed. Some of the previous occupations of these 13 operators were: plumber, bricklayer, electrician, carpenter, trucker and hoisting engineer.

The trend toward part-time farming was clearly evident. In the 1970 study, 64 percent of the operators were part-time compared to 44 percent on the same 39 farms in the 1963 study. Farmers in most areas studied felt that this trend toward part-time farming would continue. Only tow operators, both part-time farmers, had no years of farm experience.

Half of the operators in the study said the fact that they had been born on a farm was their reason for taking up farming. at least 2 out of 3 of the full-time farms were inherited. Most part-time farmers indicated they had chosen farming because they "like the outdoors, animals and plants." Greater independence was the reason cited by 6 of the respondents for entering farming.

Copies of this study may be obtained by writing to Mr Purvis at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology, Kemptville, Ontario, or to Mr Noble, Economics Branch, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Toronto.

The United States is the world's third largest agricultural importing country. The United Kingdom leads and West Germany is second.

Mrs. Mansel Flegg hosts Newington W.I.

On Wednesday eving, October 24, the Cedar Brae Women's Institue of Newington held its regualr meeting at the home of Mrs Mansel Flegg. The theme for the meeting was Hallowe'en and Mrs Flegg had her home attractively decorated for the occasion.

The motto was "The World is a Looking Glass; it Gives Back a Reflection of your own Face." The roll call was "Come in costume or pay a fine." Nineteen members and four guests were present, nearly everyone in costume, and on arrival each was given a number. Then there was a parade and guessing contest to see who was behind each mask identified only by her number. This provided much fun and laughter.

When masks were removed the meeting was conducted by Mrs Wm. Pettit, the vice-president, who welcomed the members and guests. Following the opening exercises were the minutes, correspondence, and business. REMEMBRANCE DAY

NOVEMBER 11, 1973

A Time to Pause...

A Time to Remember

Once again, on Memorial Day, we pause to recall, with respect and much pride, the selfless sacrifices of our brave and valiant departed heroes. Gallantly, they marched forth, united as one in defense of freedom. And with unflinching courage and unyielding devotion to cause, they gave their lives so that our precious heritage of liberty might endure. Lest their deeds be forgotten or ignobled, and their sacrifices be in vain, let us all now resolve to be equally steadfast and courageous in preserving that which has been so heroically achieved. Let us dedicate ourselves to ever cherish and uphold that priceless freedom, which is the legacy of those whose memory we honor today.

"The Volume Country Dealer"

As I See It...

By Mike Rowden

Frankly, this week I was in a bit of a quandary as to what to write, there are so many things that need to be said — local politics, the state of our beaches and parks or the lack of them, pollution, etc., are all good topics.

But I think flowers would be the best, not just ordinary flowers but the ones the Department of National Defence bought for the new Defence Headquarters in ottawa.

Over $82,000 for some 2,000 odd plants, that's a lot of hay for flowers for decoration. Particularly at a time when there are cutbacks in defence spending and service improvements.

Naval ships have been tied up in Halifax harbour for some time because of a shortage of personnel to operate them. There are probably dozens of other places where the amount of money could have been put to better use as far as our armed forces are concerned. One place I know of, from first hand experience, is at the Canadian Forces Base in Kingston. The aprtments known as P.M.Q.'s — neat enough apartments by any standard but what with patching and the lack of repairs to the outside of them, they present a leprous-looking sight to both inhabitants and visitors.

In short, that $82,000 would go a long way towards painting these buildings and making them more presentable. Perhaps if living quarters for our service personnel were kept painted and looking attractive, morale would be higher and more young people would be encouraged to look to the Armed Forces for a career. And expensive recruiting programs would be less necessary.

But no, we must have flowers at Defence Headquarters Perhaps some day we may hear of a worthy sergeant's promotion being misplaced only to be found later under a potted palm tree or an Admiral's discharge has been gobbled up by an imported carnivorous plant.

And new service slogans such as — "Begonias, instead of Bullets", "Tulips not Tanks", or if you want to go all out, "Petunias for Peacekeeping." That would really shake the Israelis and Arabs.

Hallowe'en Day learning experience

Many learning centres such as creative writing, poetry, painting, mask making, song writing, etc. were set up for the pupils at St. Mary's School during the week preceeding Hallowe'en. The children made their own decision as to which ones they wished to partake in. While many children took part in all the learning experiences that were set up, others chose what most interested them. The majority of the "doing" experiences were set up as extra curricular activities outside of regular classroom work and the children worked on their own time, such as after school, lunch time, or at home. The school took the last one and a half hours of Hallowe'en Day and the children were allowed to present their work. Judges were chosen from Room 5, and under the guidance of Mrs Colleen Brown, evaluated and decided whose work was worthy of honourable mention.

The objectives behind the planning of the Hallowe'en programme at St. Mary's School were as follows:

Increased awareness of the child's environment.

The Chesterville Record

To provide practice in the process of thinking.

To develop an understanding of the history of Hallowe'en.

To develop a knowledge of various Hallowe'en customs.

To make the children aware of "safety" within their own environment.

To develop ability to make independent decisions and accept the consequences of those decisions.

To have many opportunities for learning experiences which arouse curiosity and enthusiasm.

snowmobile buyer's guide

It doesn't take a lot of money to get a lot of fun out of winter.

Choosing a snowmobile isn't easy. Especially with so many machines to choose from. But Ski-Doo has an idea that'll help you make up your mind. It's called Elan.

Compact size, compact price

Elan is a different kind of snowmobile. A compact. Because it's shorter than full-size snowmobiles, it's more manoeuvrable in tight situations. And because Elan is lighter than full-size snowmobiles, the whole family can handle it, safely and easily.

Good handling makes Elan a great machine to own whether you're an experienced rider or a newcomer. But, whether you're buying your first snowmobile or your fifth, what you'll like best about the compact Elan is the compact price. It'll take you anywhere the big ones go, for a lot less money.

Full-size track, full-size traction

Although Elan is shorter and lighter than a full-size snowmobile, its track is a full-size snowmobile track. And its ski-stance is a stable 25-1/2 inches wide.

Elan sits on the snow with a ground pressure of less than a third of a pound per square inch. And, carries you through deep snow conditions that leave some other heavy machines wallowing.

A lot of machine for the money

Pound for dollar, Elan is a lot of sled. Because Ski-Doo put a lot into it.

A tough and reliable Rotax engine. An endless rubber track reinforced with flexible embedded rods. A comfortable 3-layer foam sandwich seat. Easy access controls. Tinted windshield. And a full one-year warranty.

There are 5 Elan models, from the economy 250 single cylinder (with choice of electric start) to the 250 twin deluxe and the hot T294SS: five ways to get a lot of fun out of winter for a little bit of money. See them at your Ski-Doo dealer's.

Stormont-Dundas Liberals pleased with re-election of Robert Nixon

As president of the Stormont Liberal Association and the Stormont-Dundas Liberal Assoication, I wish to express my pleasure at the re-election of Robert Nixon as leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario.

I and several other local delegates worked actively for the re-election of Bob Nixon at the Liberal leadership convention because we were convinced that under Mr Nixon's renewed leadership the Liberal Party would have its best chance to gain office at the next provincial election.

We believe that the qualities which Bob Nixon possesses, namely, articulate leadership, dedication to public service, unquestioned integrity, competence and vigor, are what the people of Ontario are seeking.

Mr Nixon's reaffirmation as leader of the Liberal Party in Ontario, along with the party's policies, clearly mark the Liberal Party as the responisble alternative to the smug, indifferent, discredited Davis Government.

Brian Lynch,
President.
