MRS T C BROWN DIES

Mrs. T. C. Brown, mother of the Rev. William T. Brown, of the Montreal West Methodist church, formerly of Chesterville, died Sunday at the residence of her son, 71 Wolsley evenue, Montreal West, after a long illness. She was in her 66th year. Last September she went to Montreal with her son, when the latter was given charge of the Montreal West Methodist Church.

BUILDINGS BURNED AT ALLISON POULTRY FARM

Tuesday afternoon W. P. Allison of Morrisburg, met with a serious loss when the poultry buildings and barn situated just east of Morrisburg were totally destroyed by fire of accidental origin, together with over seven hundred fowl, entailing a loss estimated at more than three thousand dollars.

Mr. Allison assisted by another man was engaged in wiring his buildings for a lighting system when the flame from a blow torch ignited a rafter the flames quickly catching in the straw overhead and spreading so rapidly that nothing could be done to save the main poultry building the flames from which spread to the barn which was also consumed together with some implements, a half a car of grain and about three quarters of a ton of feed flour. About a hundred and fifty of the fowl stupified and nearly smothered by the dense smoke were gotten from the building and with the help of neighbors were saved and slaughtered. The only insurance was four hundred dollars on the barn building. When insurance was about to be placed on the other buildings about a couple of weeks ago, at the last moment Mr. Allison decided to postpone it for a short time until his building operations were completed and it had not since been effected.

Mr. Allison's friends from Chesterville who rushed to Morrisburg on being advised of the fire, were loud in their praise of the work and assistance rendered by the neighbors and of the thoughtfulness of Mr. Farlinger in having hot coffee and sandwiches supplied to the workers.

THE LATE JACOB LANE

The angel of death has again visited this community and claimed as its victim a very highly respected and esteemed resident in the person of Mr. Jacob Lane, in his 81st year. Deceased who was thought to be in his usual health was about his home and quite active until on Wednesday Nov. 5th when he suffered a stroke but with the help of a kind physician, a noble wife, and worthy family, it was thought he would recover until on Monday, when his condition became worse from which he did not recover, and he passed peacefully away surrounded by his sorrowing wife, two sons and five daughters They are—Mrs. Jesse I. Casselman, and Mrs. Geo. Stitt of Morrisburg, Mrs. George Froats of Aultsville and Mrs. E. R. Marcellus and Mrs. D. Wells of Hoasic, Mr. Ova Lane of Aultsville and Oscar at the old home Cedar Grove; also two brothers Mr. Geo. Lane of Williamsburg, and Mr. Eli Lane of Massena.

On Oct. 24th, 1919, Mr. and Mrs. Lane celebrated their golden wedding when a number of friends and the family enjoyed a happy reunion with the aged couple. "Uncle Jake" as he was better known was beloved by all who knew him, this being made quite evident by the large number of sorrowing friends who gathered at St. John's Lutheran church on Sunday where the service was held and of which the deceased was a faithful member. His pastor Rev. Meader who had visited his bedside chose for his text in Second Timothy, fourth chapter and seventh verse:—"I have fought a good fight; I have finished my coarse, I have kept the faith," while Mr. Melvin Barkley a warm friend of the family sang "Face to Face," a favorite Hymn of the departed.

Relatives and friends from a distance were—Mrs. Jack Whalen, Mrs. Alfred McMahon, and Miss Kathleen Ruddy of Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. John Ruddy and son of Berwick, Mr. James Fetterley and Mr. Lawrence Jordon of Chesterville, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Young of Massena, Mr. Stanley Lenant and Miss Edith Hall of Madrid, N.Y., Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Gill of Cardinal, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil McConnell of Massena and Mrs. Geo. Brown of Utica, N.Y. Many beautiful floral offerings were placed on the coffin by the family. The remains were laid to rest in St. John's Lutheran cemetery.

FLED FROM BURNING HOME

The frame residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Keck, Iroquois, was completely destroyed by fire Saturday evening and the occupants of the house barely escaped with their lives. Though the ground was covered with snow the Kecks, together with Mrs. Kecks' mother, Mrs. Warren had to cross several fields in their bare feet and clad only in their night clothes. Mrs. Wm. Warren, who lived with the Kecks has since died of shock. She was asleep in the room above the kitchen where the fire started, and was overcome by the smoke before she was rescued.

FIVE-YEAR GAME PRESERVE PROPOSED IN TWO COUNTIES

Action towards the creation of the United Counties of Leeds and Grenville into a game preserve, with special relation to moose and deer, for a perod of five years, was taken Saturday by the Counties' Council, which requested its clerk to ascertain the necessary procedure and report at the next meeting of the Council for final disposal.

It was held by these responsible for the resolution that deer were being chased to such an extent in the rear parts of the counties that they are in danger of becoming extinct.

MOSS MAY DECEIVE YOU IF YOU'RE LOST IN WOODS

Lost in the woods! Completely turned around! You know your camp, or the picnic ground, is north of the woods, but you don't know where north is. Just what are you going to do?

Almost every boy and girl has heard that the one way to find north is to look for moss on the trunks of trees, because moss grows only on the north side. This, however, isn't entirely true.

Examine trees that stand more or less in the sunshine and others that grow in the dense shade of the woods and you will find a difference. Now remember that moss grows best in the shade and requires a good deal moisture and that the north side of a tree is always in the shade and holds moisture longest because the sun cannot get to it and dry it out.

So moss on the north side gets what it wants—shade and moisture—and usually grows deepest there, even when it is found on the other sides as well.

This, however, does not apply to trees that grow so close together that their trunks get no sunshine at all. On these the moss will grow as readily on the south side as on the north, and when a tree leans so that the upper side catches and holds the most moisture, that side will gather the deepest moss, no matter what side it may be.

It is here you must use your common sense in settling the question and choose only the trees that stand straight and have enough sunshine to dry all sides but the north. Even then one tree alone cannot always be trusted. You must examine a number of trees and choose your direction by the majority. Then, when you have decided which way to turn to go north, hold to that course, don't be frightened, and forge straight ahead, stopping every now and then to examine trees to be sure you are keeping to the course you started and are not circling.

"Where moss grows is north" is, like many another so-called woods, man's law, to be taken with a grain of salt, or, in other words, a little common sense.

FAITHFUL DOG SAVES MASTER FROM BLAZE

Roy Kilpatrick's dog woke his master with difficulty Saturday morning to consciousness that the Kilpatrick home in Westport, was filled with smoke and flames. Half smothered, Kilpatrick did not wake until his dog had scratched his face severely. Dog and man escaped from the burning building, which was destroyed, as well as another house next door, with all its contents. A third house was damaged. There were no casualties.

STOUFFVILLE RESIDENT ASPHYXIATED IN GARAGE

William Simpson Cook, well-known grain merchant of Stouffville, fell a victim to carbon monoxide gas when alone in his garage Saturday morning. Mr. Cook, who would have been 43 years of age on Monday, left his home about 8.30 a.m., but it was not until about 1.30 p.m., that anxiety was felt over his non-appearance. When his fifteen-year-old daughter went to the garage, she found the door almost closed and the air thick with fumes. The body of her father was lying beside the car, in which the engine was running. Dr. S. S. Ball was called, and found that Mr. Cook had been dead several hours. Coroner Dr. Macdonald, of Markham, was notified, but said tonight that an inquest was unnecessary, death having been plainly due to accidental asphyxiation.

INDIFFERENT TO BASEBALL

A vast indifference on the part of the people of Europe to the American national game has resulted in the abandoning of the tour of the New York Giants and Chicago White Sox teams. They played to fewer people than a cricket match would draw on the East Side of New York, and the people who saw the games voted them dull in the extreme. In England the tourists were favored with the patronage of King George, and his presence at any public event is sufficient to draw a crowd of several thousand. But while English crowds dutifully attended were not impressed with the game. It did not appeal to them as a sport. Any claim it made upon their interest was as a quaint American custom, something out of folk lore, and perhaps illustrating the rites of the Red Indians or Aztecs. Cricket, which Americans vote stupid, was held to be far more enlivening than baseball, which Americans consider by all odds the best game in the world, the fastest and the most exciting. The French people, who were also given an opportunity of inspecting the performances of the tourists, had even less sympathy for it than the English, though the French are now to be reckoned as a nation keenly interested in sport. They appear to have thought the game too simple and too lacking in the spirited action of soccer. Americans are naturally shocked at this reception of one of their most cherished institutions, and say that the reason baseball was not properly received across the Atlantic was because the English and French people lid not understand it.

There is much to be said for both points of view. A game whose main outlines and objective cannot be understood in a few minutes is under a handicap compared with a game like soccer or hockey, whose strategy leaps to the eye of the most uninstructed. Both games have their fine points, discernible only to the initiate, but in outline they are clear and distinct. As a spectacle to the unversed, or as an entertainment, both are superior to baseball. Americans would not admit it, but the truth is that baseball is one of the slowest of games. Its narrative does not flow smoothly, but is tormented and halted at almost every step. Even the greatest art of a ball player, that of the skilled pitcher, makes no appeal to the eye. A perfect strike conveys the same impression to the spectators as a ball. Thus a pitcher's battle is admitted by baseball fans themselves to be a tedious performance, which explains the recent adoption of the lively ball to encourage free hitting. Even the difference between a home run and a foul may be a matter of inches which the eye of most of the beholders is unable to distinguish. Much has to be taken on faith in baseball. Persistent propaganda on a scale greater than any other game ever received has made millions of Americans ready to take it on faith; but it is not remarkable that Englishmen and Frenchmen, not having been soaked in propaganda, should be sceptical and find baseball, on its merits, a dull spectacle.

A Necessity

TAMED HUMMING BIRD IN OTTAWA RESIDENCE

To be one of the two women in ornithology's history who have tamed that elusive and somewhat rare American bird, the humming bird, is the distinction held by Mrs. R. A. Brown, of Ottawa, who for the last two months has been the possessor of a beautiful specimen of this brilliantly colored bird, which came to her of its own free will.

The fact that this delicate little creature has lived in captivity for over two months is considered most unusual. Members of the Dominion Government Parks Department have visited Mrs. Brown and taken motion pictures of the bird, which Mrs. Brown says "is no longer than my thumb." The story of how the little flyer first came to her through an open window, has been broadcasted. It is thought it delayed going south until too late, and was attracted through the window by the warmth of the house. It lives almost entirely on insects.
