MEETING, MATILDA DISTRICT

The annual meeting of the Matilda District of the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church, convened in Chesterville on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 20th and 21st. All ministers on the District and one candidate for the ministry attended the Ministerial Session.

The full district meeting assembled on Wednesday morning under the Chairmanship of Rev. J. W. P. McFarlane, S.T L., of Cornwall. Rev. A. Hinton, South Mountain, acted as Secretary, while Rev. J. O. Baron of Finch had charge of the statistics of the district. Rev. J B. Howe of Elma was appointed official reporter. The gathering was extra well attended by both ministerial and lay delegates.

Reports from the secretaries of the various departments were received. Givings to the General Mission Fund of the church have reached the sum of $12,102. The educational Society received $489. The total givings for all purposes showed the substantial increase of $4356 on the entire district The report of the statistical secretary disclosed the fact that there are 4843 members of the Methodist Church in Matilda District.

The report of the Secretary of Religious education was presented. The efficiency of this department of the work was proven by increases both in the number of Sunday School Scholars uniting with the church as members and an increased average attendance in the schools

Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill of Morrisburg, District Superintendent of the Woman's Missionary Society, gave a very full and encouraging report of their work for the year The Society contributed a grand total of $4840 for Missions which is an increase of $693 over the previous year. Besides this creditable success, the District W.M.S. has given $696 for the erection of the Margaret Craig Memorial School for girls in Japan.

Rev. W R. Johnston of Brinston was elected representative on the Stationing Committee.

It was moved by Mr. Joseph Loudon, seconded by Mr. W. S. L Merrill and carried, that we the lay delegates of the Matilda District in session at Chesterville, Ontario, request this district meeting to memoralise the Montreal Conference to request the Provincial Legislature of the Province of Ontario, to pass legislation at its next session, that will enable the Councils of rural municipalities to pass by-laws compelling all vendors of cigarettes to secure a license for such sale and that the minimum fee for such privilege be $50 per year; that all such vendors be required to register all sales as to name of purchaser, date of sale, and the amount of each purchase. Be it therefore resolved that the foregoing resolution be adopted.

This resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote of the members of the District.

TROPHY FOR BALL LEAGUE

The Eastern Ontario Amateur Baseball League is the recipient of a handsome silver trophy donated by the Robert Wright Co. of Brockville. E. A. Cook, president of the league, stated that the Robert Wright Co. in making the presentation to the league have taken into consideration the great work which the league has accomplished in promoting the best interests of amateur sport in Eastern Ontario and believe that by putting up a trophy for competition between the several clubs it will greatly assist in creating more interest and enthusiasm. The trophy will be seen in Brockville for one week after which it will be on display for the same length of time in Prescott, Morrisburg, Spencerville and Cardinal.

AMERICAN COMMITTEE WILL SURVEY RIVER

The American Advisory Committee on the St. Lawrence River project appointed by President Coolidge to be headed by Secretary Hoover, will visit the St. Lawrence River June 15th, after viewing the Hydro-Electric development at the Falls on June 13 They will remain there overnight. The following day the committee will view the Welland Canal construction, going to Toronto to spend the night. At 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, June 15th, they will leave by boat and will arrive in Prescott the following morning.

Changing at Prescott to the Rapids boat they will proceed to Cornwall, where they will view the Lachine Rapids and the rapids located between Lake St. Francis and Lake St. Louis Returning to Prescott the same evening, they will cross to Ogdensburg and will be the guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a banquet at the Century Club. Following the banquet they will return to Prescott, where, through A. T Harper C.N.R. Passenger Agent, a private car will be waiting to take the party to Montreal. The committee appointed by President Coolidge consists of Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, Chairman; William C. Breed former President of the New York Merchants' Association; James E. Davidson of Bay City, Mich.; James P Goodrich, former Governor of Indiana; James R. Howard of Chicago, James D. Noonan of the American Federation of Labor, Stephen B. Davis of Washington Council and Charles P Craig of Duluth.

IROQUOIS HOTEL GUTTED BY BLAZE

A fire broke out in the top story of the Grand Central Hotel at Iroquois, between 4 and 5 o'clock a.m. on Sunday last, the origin of which is not known.

The volunteer firemen responded promptly and confined the fire to the one building. The second and third floors are badly gutted, and the loss will be considerable. A short time ago this hotel changed hands, the former proprietor, Thomas Johnston, having owned the building for years. Robert Cooper now owns it, with Sheldon Knight as manager.

PROTECT THE BIRDS

The Morrisburg Fish and Game Club recently distributed among its members, twelve settings of Pheasants' eggs, for hatching purposes.

These eggs were forwarded from the Eugenia Crown reserve by the Department of Game and Fisheries. The birds will be liberated in the Fall and are protected by Game Laws from being hunted this season.

In the United States and in parts of Ontario, restocking the woods with pheasants as game birds has been successful, but in the initial stages, they must be protected.

COVENANT CHAPTER — OFFICIAL VISIT OF GRAND SUPERINTENDENT

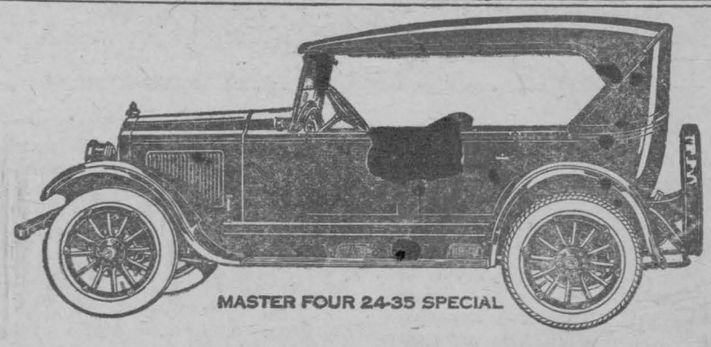

(Cornwall Standard)

There was a particularly large attendance of Companions at the regular Convocation of Covenant Chapter, No 113, Royal Arch Masons, in the Masonic Hall last evening, when Rt. Ex. Comp. Chas. W. Marsh, of Morrisburg, Grand Superintendent of St. Lawrence District No 12, made his official visit. He was warmly received and accorded the customary grand honors, and on assuming the sceptre made a suitable response, after which the first Prin. Z., Ex. Comp. Glenn A. Shaver of Lunenburg, resumed and the ceremony of exaltation in the Supreme Degree was exemplified in a highly efficient manner by the officers of Covenant Chapter, for which they were complimented by the Grand Superintendent and also by Rt. Ex. Comp Dr. J. Howard Munro, who conveyed the fraternal greetings of Glengarry Chapter of Maxville.

On adjourning to the Banquet Room, light refreshments were served. Ex. Comp. Glenn A. Shaver, the Prin. Z. presided. The toast to "The King" having been honored a number of addresses were given and among those who spoke were Rt. Ex. Comps. Chas. W. Marsh and Dr G. M Gorrell of Morrisburg, Dr. J. Howard Munro of Maxville; W W. Sheets, of Mille Roches; Very Ex. Comp. H. Williams and Comp. Rev. Hugh Munroe, of Cornwall; and Comp. Geo J. Rice, of Wales. The addresses were exceedingly interesting and instructive, stress being laid upon the high ideals and symbolism of Capitular Masonry and the satisfactory progress being made in all parts of the Grand Chapter jurisdiction. The gathering dispersed about midnight after singing the National Anthem.

FARMERS VICTIMIZED

About fifty farmers of Chesterville district are bemoaning the fact that they fell for the wiles of a glib-tongued stranger with whom they thought they were insuring the lives of their cattle at a valuation of seventy-five dollars for their milch cows and twenty dollars a head for their young heifers, regardless of suit for $5,000 damages brought ment for what was supposed to be the premium, at fifteen and thirty days from date. In reality the notes were given as payment for some so-called stock tonic or stock food shipments of which have arrived at the station, and in practically all cases have been refused by those to whom they are addressed In the meantime the due dates of the notes are arriving, but we understand that they are not being taken up and that it is the intention of those who signed them to stand a suit, pleading misrepresentation on the part of the salesman to whom the notes were given The salesman on his arrival at a farmer's place is said to have immediately made his way to where the cattle were stabled, complimenting the owner on his fine herd and making inquiry as to whether he carried an insurance on his stock in case of death from natural causes, which very few farmers do except on high class pure bred animals. The rate for the insurance was stated as a cent on the dollar of valuation, which the salesman proceeded to show was ample for carrying the risk as the government held a sufficient portion of that to cover all losses The receipts given in exchange for the notes does not state that insurance has been paid for but on the contrary clearly says that seventy-five pounds is the quantity purchased—Chesterville Record

THE POTATO CROP.

Much can be done before potatoes are planted to ensure a good crop. It is a mistake to cut the sets several days before they are needed, but if this is done they should be sprinkled with slaked lime. At the Rosthern Experimental Station in Saskatchewan, the crop from sets cut two weeks before planting gave a yield of 209 bushels to the acre, which was 170 bushels to the acre less than those planted on the day cut.

Even though seed may be sound and appearp erfect in every way, there is no assurance that it will produce a good crop. The source of the seed has great influence on the yield. The Maritime Provinces and New Ontario both appear to have favorable climatic condition for producing vigorous seed.

It has been proved again and again by the Experimental Farms that immature seeds is better than that which is thoroughly ripened. Seed grown under conditions that are favorable for keeping the tops green well into the autumn appears to give best results. The value of immaturity in the seed is further proved by experiments in the use of seed from crops planted on different dates. May planting gave poor planting stock for the next year, compared with that put in toward the end of June.

Potato yields may also be increased by using sprouted seed, a practice sometimes followed by market gardeners. It does not do to depend on the long white sprouts that potatoes produce in the cellar. The sprouting should be done in the light so that the sprouts will be green, stocky, and not easily rubbed off. The cold frame is sometimes used for the purpose, but sprouting may be done in the attic of a dwelling house or in a well lighted room where frost can be kept out. The potatoes should be spread in a thin layer or placed in shallow boxes or trays with the seed end up. The boxes are then put in a bright airy place, where the temperature is too cool for the sprouting to begin. After a few days the potatoes will turn green and the skin become tough. They are then given a little more heat, and two or three strong sprouts will soon appear. The sprouts should be about two inches in length at planting time. If allowed to grow longer than this they are more difficult to handle without injury.

Recommended varieties are, for early crop, Irish Cobbler and Early Ohio; and for main crop, Green Mountain, Wee McGregor, and Empire State.

REGISTERED COCKERELS.

Canada is setting the pace for the whole world to follow in the system adopted to obtain registered cockerels.

The bred-to-lay cockerel that can transmit to his pullets the ability to produce a large number of eggs is what all keepers of utility poultry are after. It is recognized that the quickest way to increase the average egg yield of any flock is through the male, and this fact is commercialized by many breeders of so called bred-to-lay stock, who advertise high producing males that have not the breeding behind them, and are therefore unable to transmit this quality to their offspring.

Because of this fact dishonest breeders have foisted overrated stock upon the public, and one of the reasons why registered cockerels are wanted is to overcome this practice of selling inferior birds as good breeding stock.

At the present time it is possible for honest breeders to enter their pullets in the Laying Contests (of which there are 12 throughout the Dominion), and by having their birds qualify to produce cockerels that may be registered by the Canadian National Records.

The fact that a cockerel is registered is a guarantee to the public that he has a certified pedigree behind him, of at least two generations of 200 (or more) egg blood, and that he is himself a bird typical of the breed and without standard disqualifications. Such a bird grown in our Canadian climate means the very best procurable in breeding for high egg production.

How I Wash Comforts, Quilts, and Blankets

BY NELL B. NICHOLS.

Laundering the blankets and quilts, like the annual house-cleaning, is a task dreaded by most home-makers. I firmly believe, however, that this work need not be a bugbear if the right day and methods are used, and a pile-up of household duties is avoided.

The weather requires some consideration. I always choose a bright, breezy spring day. Then I make certain that most of the ordinary housework can be put aside so all of my attention and efforts can be given to the task. And, quite naturally, I try to tackle the job when I am in good spirits.

My washing machine is mustered into service; its tub is filled with tepid water, soft, if possible; but if not, I add two tablespoonfuls of borax dissolved in one quart of hot water. Then sufficient soap flakes or shavings of a mild soap which have been melted in a little water are stirred in until a rich suds is made. By operating the machine three minutes it is easy to determine whether the lather is rich enough.

I have a favorite soap jelly which I keep in fruit jars on my supply shelf for use in washing woolens, and I frequently make the suds for laundering blankets, quilts, and comforts from it. Since the results it produces are excellent, I am passing the directions for making the soapy solution on to you.

Use one large cake of soap or six cupfuls of soap chips, two tablespoonfuls of borax, and two quarts of water. Mix these ingredients together, and heat until the soap and borax are dissolved. If the mixture is stirred while cooking, the jelly is made quickly.

After the force of the machine and the soapy water have loosened the soil in the bedcovers, I wring them through the winger into a rinse water tepid in temperature. Only one blanket, quilt, or comfort is placed in the machine at a time. I give each cover two thorough rinsings. After sousing the bedding up and down in the first rinse water, I put it through the wringer and immerse it in another tepid rinse. After this last rinse is completed, the cover is ready to be hung on the line to dry. If I am washing a wool blanket, I always add one tablespoonful of pure glycerin to every two gallons of the last rinse water. This replaces the natural oil which is removed in the washing, and makes the blanket soft.

I have had varying degrees of success in laundering cotton and wool filled comforts and quilts. Those which are tied and quilted closely have a better appearance after they are tubbed because the batting is not so likely to collect in bunches. When I launder a pretty comfort, I usually put rows of running stitches with a coarse basting thread across it, just to hold the batting in place. I find it takes little time to pull these stitchings out afterward. This precaution assures evenness.

Many of the newer comforts contain cotton and wool pads which are quilted by machine. With these the uneven surface caused by masses of batting is not found after the laundering process.

There is likely to be a variety of materials in coverings on comforts and quilt blocks. Naturally, the better qualities are not so likely to fade in washing as the poorer ones are. I find the use of tepid wash and rinse waters and a mild soap or soap flakes and working as fast as I can help to keep the dyes from running.

When a machine is not available for this laundering work, it is more difficult to keep the batting in comforts, and in some quilts, smooth. It is better to avoid rubbing on the board or between the hands. It has a tendency to loosen the cotton and wool filling and to stretch the wool in blankets. I souse the covers up and down in a tub partly filled with soapy water, using a plunger or my hands, and if there is no wringer, the surplus water is squeezed out gently. Twisting or wringing by hand loosens the batting, and if a wool blanket is being washed it stretches the fibres, weakening them.

Contrary to popular opinion, down quilts may be washed with ease. I make a rich suds, immerse the quilt in this soapy water, and squeeze and knead it several minutes. If it is badly soiled, I put it through two soapy waters. Then I rinse it in two tepid clear waters. Occasionally I use a soft bristled brush to remove obstinate patches of soil. Down quilts are never put through a wringer; instead, the water is squeezed out.

Drying the washed bedding is of great importance. I like to hang quilts and comforts between two lines if possible, and to spread wool blankets over a clean sheet on the grass. If there is danger of the chickens tracking on the clean blankets, they may be dried on curtain stretchers. As a rule, it is more convenient to hang them on the line. In doing this, I take care to put one half over the line so that the edges will be straight. When blankets are hung single, the weight in the longer portion may be heavy enough to make the corners sag. I turn the blanket around when it is partly dry, in this way giving all parts an equal chance for drying.

When wool blankets are dry, I brush them gently or rub them with a soft flannel cloth to raise the nap, and I always shake a down quilt while it is drying, so that the feathers will be livened. Wool-filled comforts and blankets are hung in the shade, where the warm breezes will reach them, but where the direct rays of the sun do not penterate. Too much heat burns the wool, and freezing shrinks it. After a down quilt is dry, I press it between the stitchings with a warm, not hot, iron, and occasionally I give thin quilts a quick press.

Pillows need to be laundered every now and then. Although the feathers can be washed without being removed from the ticking, I get better results by emptying them. To do this I make a small hole in one corner of the pillow and sew this to a similar opening in a muslin bag, such as a clean flour sack, which is closed at the top with the exception of the little hole sewed to the ticking. I shake the feathers into the muslin bag, which is tied tightly so no feathers will escape before it is separated from the ticking.

The muslin bag of feathers is washed in warm soapsuds, rinsed thoroughly in two tepid rinse waters, and hung outdoors in a breezy but shady place to dry. I discovered by experience that it is best never to wash feathers unless it is a good drying day, because if they are left wet any length of time they sour.

I put the ticking in soapy water without shaking it, to keep the down from scattering. A stiff-bristled brush dipped in soapsuds helps wonderfully in removing the soil. By hanging the ticking evenly on the line, it seldom requires pressing.

Proud as one is of the results achieved on comfort, quilt, and blanket washing day, the work is just difficult enough, or perhaps I should say the homemaker is weary enough, when the day is over, to wonder if there is any way of avoiding this task. I have tried to answer this question for myself, and have come to the conclusion that fewer washings are required only when care is used in protecting the bedding from soil.

I now place plain muslin bags over all my pillows. These covers not only protect the ticking and feathers, but they also add charm to the pillow case by providing the right background.

Another example of how I protect bedding is the use I make of protectors on the tops of quilts and comforts. These are pretty and dainty as well as serviceable and easily laundered. I make them from a thin, white fabric, such as India linen, cheesecloth, dotted swiss, or any soft muslin, or from white linen. Material which is one yard in width is used, and the length is one inch longer than the width of the quilt. This material is folded lengthwise and the ends are stitched together in a tiny French seam. Then a two-inch hem is basted along the selvage edges and narrow lace edging, hemstitching, an embroidered design, or any initial may be used for decoration.

I work five buttonholes, one in the centre and two on either side, in both hems. Then I slip this protector over the end of the comfort and mark the position of the buttonholes. The buttons are sewed on the quilt, with care that the thread is not pulled tight enough to draw the buttons into the comfort. These protectors may be unbuttoned and washed every week or so, and they are easier to handle than a large bedcover.

Folding the sheet down over the blanket also serves as a protection.

A few slightly soiled places on bedding may be removed with a dry cleaner, and of course it is essential that the covers, when not in use, be kept in a clean place, away from dust. I use large muslin bags and wrappings of paper about the blankets, quilts, and comforts when they are not in service.

A Walnut Tree Pest.

The walnut tree is liable to severe injury by the walnut caterpillar, an insect that was more or less prevalent throughout Southern Ontario last summer. In some localities the trees were badly stripped of leaves the latter part of the season. Partial defoliation at any time interferes with the normal functioning of the tree, and complete stripping year after year will finally result in the death of the tree. Other trees subject to attack are the willow, beech, honey locust, thorn, oak, and apple.

Circular No. 21 of the Dept. of Agriculture at Ottawa gives a picture of the moth, the parent of the caterpillar. The wings have an expanse of about two inches, are buff color, much darker in the centre and are crossed with dark brown and whitish lines. The under or back wings are pale buff. The larva when first hatched is about one-fifth of an inch long. The body is of brick-red color. When full grown the caterpillar is blackish without markings other than an indistinct white lateral line and a conspicuous white central line along the under portion of the body. It is covered with fine greyish-white hairs and measures from 1½ to 2 inches in length.

Spraying the trees as early as caterpillars are observed is recommended. A good poison mixture consists of three pounds of lead arsenate in fifty gallons of water. Another system of control consists of destroying the masses of caterpillars during the moulting period when they are resting quietly on a trunk or branch. A stiff brush may be used to bring them down at this time.

Make a dress form for daughter before she goes away to school. Keep it at home, and she can have the home dressmaker make her frocks while she is miles away.

POULTRY.

Where chicks are being reared with hens and have access to tender grass or other green feed, a very good feed is raw or cooked Johnny cake made with an egg in it, so says Prof. W. R. Graham, O.A.C. Give milk to drink and have a quart or so of gravel near the coop to supply grit. Move the coop every few days. When the chicks are a few weeks old gradually change to ordinary feeds.

Raise the chicks on new ground. Keep off the old ground that has had chicks running upon it year after year. Keep the hen free of lice. Dust with sodium fluoride or use a small amount of blue ointment. A piece one-half the size of a kernel of corn, placed on the skin below the vent, will usually kill many of the lice.

The mash used at the Poultry Dept., O.A.C., in the hoppers, or feed moist, where the chicks are ranging consists of:

150 pounds of corn meal
100 pounds of crushed oats
100 pounds of shorts
100 pounds of bran
67 pounds of meat scrap
20 pounds of bone meal

The whole grain hopper feed usually consists of fifty per cent. each of wheat and cracked corn. If milk is given to drink, one-half, if not more, of the meat scraps may be taken from the mash.

The pullets stay on range until ready to lay, which period is when they are about six months of age. If they prefer roosting in trees to the house we allow them to do so; in fact, we rather prefer that they would roost in trees.

Shade, tender green feed, plenty of clean drink, and enough to eat, are essential.

Hog Grading Results.

Returns for the first three months of 1924, compared with the first quarter of last year, from the stockyards and packing plants, particularly of Alberta and Ontario, indicate the progress that is being made under the hog grading policy, and the campaign in favor of the bacon type carried on by Dominion and Provincial Departments of Agriculture. In the first named province, the returns show 4,516 selects compared with 2,840 and 166,341 thick smooths compared with 111,674. A noticeable feature of the Alberta returns is a decrease of shop hogs from 26,410 in 1923 to 338 this year. For Ontario the figures are 92,534 selects this year compared with 47,449 last year, an increase of no fewer than 45,085, and of thick smooths, 128,796 this year compared with 74,095, an increase of 54,701.

For Manitoba the returns show 6,531 selects compared with 8,082, and 96,842 thick smooths compared with 59,876. Quebec shows a decrease in selects of 3,797 and an increase of thick smooths of 9,728. In shop hogs Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec each show an increase. But selects get the premium, and they show a total increase in the four provinces combined of 42,013.

Alum added to a lime whitewash will prevent the whitewash from rubbing off.

Approximately 4 per cent. of the hogs on farms in the United States died of hog cholera last year, says the United States Dept. of Agriculture.

Ogden's CUT PLUG TOBACCO

A Drama of The Woods

By Gretchen Gibson

"Cigarette?" "Thanks!" The elder man selects a cigarette and lights it. "Great place this!" he remarks, "country's getting pretty well dried up, though." His companion nods lazily.

Both men lie on their backs, gazing contentedly at the slightly swaying branches of the fine forest about them.

"Well, we'd better be getting along," finally says the elder, flinging his cigarette butt into the nearby brush. "Must be some three miles to the car." And they gather up their fishing rods and are gone.

* * * * *

Over the spot they have left, peacefully, beautifully, evening falls. Feathered busybodies of the woods and other little gadabouts of the day chirrup and drone their more or less melodious vespers as they settle into their respective hiding-places for the brief summer night. Nocturnal creatures awake, eager to partake of the share of the joy and plunder of existence—and one and all of these creatures—creatures of feather and creatures of fur, creatures of marvellous skin and flimsy, gauzy loveliness—one and all of these creatures, sleeping and waking are possessed of a common powerful impulse—to survive—survive—survive. It extends even to the plant life of the Forest, this impulse to achieve complete fulfilment of such life as is their birthright.

It may be that in the tiny spark still glowing in the butt of a cigarette which lies among the dry midsummer underbrush, this same impulse exists. But surely the chances are more than ten to one against the spark's survival. However, the evening breeze grows stronger and a dried leaf falls here and there; in fact, one leaf falls directly over the spark.

Flames, orange, violet, reddish, yellow, graceful as a Spanish dancer, curving, sweeping, darting, crackling, roaring, licking.

Smoke-blinded, frantic creatures, creatures of feather, creatures of fur, creatures of marvellous sin and flimsy gauzy loveliness, all madly impelled by their great common impulse to survive—survive, survive, moan and cry and howl and shriek, and perish, while the agonized forest surrenders the wealth of its greenness to the crackling flame fiends.

And, oh! oh! a man, a little fire-smeared, frenzied man (not one of the fishermen) jumps spasmodically up and down; leaps from side to side; flings his arms wide, shouts, screeches. But the flames, graceful as a Spanish dancer; orange, violet, reddish, yellow—sweeping, circling, roaring, darting—these insatiable flames—spit their contempt upon the impotent little jumping-jack; wrap him about in iridescent garments and lick him impatiently from their path.

A few days later our two fishermen chance to meet. Remarks the younger: "See where a forest fire swept through the country we were fishing in the other day." Replies the elder: "Yes, too bad! Quite a bunch of valuable timber destroyed, I believe. Wonder how it ever got started!"

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS KEPT ON HAND

Mrs. David Gagne, St. Godfroy, Que., writes:—"I have used Baby's Own Tablets for my three little ones and have found them such an excellent medicine that I always keep them on hand and would strongly advise all other mothers to do the same thing." The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which quickly relieve constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers and promote that healthful refreshing sleep which makes the baby thrive. They are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

School Days In Japan.

Our children should not growl about what they must do in school. Consider the Japanese student who must learn forty-seven letters in the Japanese alphabet. He also takes off his shoes before entering the school-house and when the teacher comes in must bow his head nearly to the ground and draw in his breath. He sits on the floor and uses his knees as a writing-desk. His lead-pencil or pen is a brush and he makes his letters and figures with this, writing from the top to the bottom of the page instead of across the paper as we do. In India many of the children have a twelve-hour school-day.

He has the greatest blind side who thinks he has none.

Pride does not like to owe, and self love does not like to pay.

They Come Back Singing.

They come back singing, and we know them all,
The bluebird and the robin and the wren;
Up from the marsh the redwing flutes a call;
We hear the hermit thrushes in the glen;
The goldfinch has not donned his summer dress,
And yet we tell him as he lilts along
Each note attuned to spring and joyousness;
They come back singing, and we know their song.

You do not have to see his feathered throat
To name a robin singing in the rain,
Or need to cast a glance at cap and coat
To know the bobolinks are back again;
The tiniest of the warblers passing by,
Among the tasseled trees may flit along
And hide his colors from the seeking eye,
Yet prove his presence with a thread of song.

For more than this what need of mortal care—
That men may know us by the songs we sing,
Naming us never by the garb we wear,
The dun of winter or the gold of spring?
I pray I shall not mock another's lay,
But keep my own distinct and true and strong,
That as I fare along some one will say:
"She passed me singing, and I knew her song."

—Florence Boyce Davis, in Youth's Companion.

Gave Wife as Royal Token.

In the early days of Virginia the head of all the allied tribes of Indians was Powhatan, father of Pocahontas. In Powhatan was centred all governmental powers. He had a royal retinue as bodyguard, composed of 60 or 70 of the most stalwart and fearless Indian warriors. His subjects planted all his corn and gathered it for him when it was ripe. He had a large treasure house of many valuable possessions, such as skins, copper, paint and beads and arms of all kinds, and he had to himself the responsibility of many wives.

Most of the wives he left at home when he made excursions, but always carried with him two or more wherever he went. He is said to have had 20 sons and 12 daughters. When for any reason he became tired of a wife he gave her away to some of his friends as a token of his royal favor.

Powhatan had little relish for the coronation ceremonies that were inflicted upon him, and it is said that he accepted the gifts sent by the king of England with some apprehension, believing that in some way or other he would be obliged to give an account of them.

An Unknown Ivory Mine.

Why are ivory billiard balls so expensive? The answer is that the supply of ivory, a natural growth depending mainly upon the tusks of elephants, is exceedingly limited. Nevertheless, if some wanderer through the illimitable forests of Central Africa, probably in the vicinity of that inland sea of fresh water called Lake Victoria Nyanza, could stumble upon a certain "pit" and communicate his discovery to the world, the value of this commodity would drop to the merest fraction of its present worth.

Seeing that in Africa there are tens of thousands of wild elephants, one would imagine that travellers like Stanley and Cameron would have recorded coming upon the carcass of a dead beast. Yet they never did, nor has any other African explorer come upon an elephant which has died in its tracks from natural causes.

What becomes of all the elephants that die? It is said that somewhere in the million square miles that constitute the African continent is a mighty pit, with precipitous sides, which contains the bones, and therefore the tusks, of countless thousands of elephants.

How did they come there? It is said, further, that wherever an African elephant may be, when it feels the approach of death it leaves the herd and "treks" unerringly for the death-pit. It may travel for days and even weeks, and when it arrives at the edge of the pit it leaps to its death. How much ivory lies there? Who will discover it?

Do not be like the bell that answers every pull and has but one note.

Wembley's Naval Battles.

The Navy is represented at the British Empire Exhibition. A special water stage, seventy feet wide, has been erected, and on this indoor ocean ships take part in representations of famous battles.

Two of the most important British victories—the Armada and Trafalgar—are depicted with remarkable detail. It is impossible to portray the battle of Jutland in the same way owing to the immense area of sea over which it was fought. It has been decided, however, to illustrate the Navy's part in modern warfare by typical episodes of a naval action of to-day, and the storming of Zeebrugge is presented in full detail.

Spectators survey the whole history of the evolution of the ship of war and of the merchant ship, shown in a procession of vessels each of which is modelled upon its famous original, from the Mora, A.D. 1066, to H.M.S. Hood, A.D. 1920; and from the high-pooped, square-rigged merchantmen of the Normans to the steam-driven steel cargo boats of to-day.

THE DELICATE GIRL

What Mothers Should Do as Their Daughters Approach Womanhood.

If growing girls are to become well-developed, healthy women, their health must be carefully guarded. Mothers should not ignore their unsettled moods or the various troubles that tell of approaching womanhood. It is an important time of life. Where pallor, headache, backache or other signs of anaemia are evident you must provide the sufferer with the surest means of making new blood.

Remember, pale bloodless girls need plenty of nourishment, plenty of sleep, and regular open-air exercise. But to save the bloodless sufferer she must have new, blood—and nothing meets the case so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These Pills increase the supply of new, red blood; they stimulate the appetite and relieve the weary back and limbs; thus they restore health and charm, and bring to anaemic girls the rosy cheeks and bright eyes of strong, happy girlhood.

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The New House.

Nothing dark or sorrowful
Haunts the new house,
And not a shiny cricket
Or a quick-eyed mouse.

They are long sunny windows
A wide fireplace,
And sweet-smelling woodwork,
Yellow like lace.

We will bring the little house
Talk beside the fire,
Laughter on the stairway—
All its heart's desire.

Something eager calls to us
In every room,
And it's all like a garden,
We are living into bloom.

—Rose Henderson.

The Master's Message.

A general who had returned home from India visited a well-known public school, where he called on the house-master of a young Indian prince, the son of a Rajah.

The General stated that before leaving India he had promised the Rajah to deliver a message to the boy's tutor. It was that the Rajah desired that his son should receive no exceptional treatment in the school on account of his exalted birth.

The house-master hastened to reassure the General.

"Pray tell the Rajah," he said, "that there is no need to be alarmed. In this school his son answers to the name of 'Nigger,' and among his intimates he is commonly called 'Coal-Scuttle!' "

Better give the grass a good start before turning out to pasture. Early grass has little strength, and early pasturing kills it.

MRS. CRANKER GIVES TANLAC FULL CREDIT

"As a Stomach Medicine and Tonic—Tanlac is Certainly Wonderful," Says Brockville Lady.

Adding her voice to the thousands who are praising Tanlac for the recovery of their health and strength, Mrs. Margaret Cranker, 84 Louis St., Brockville, Ont., says:

"Tanlac is such a grand, good medicine and has done so much for me that I will praise it. Following a spell of typhoid fever, two years ago, I was just a shadow of myself and remained so weak I couldn't walk across the floor. Stomach pains and backache tortured me and I was almost frantic from nervousness.

"My husband, who had used Tanlac with fine results, persuaded me to try it, too, and it proved to be just what I needed. Six bottles helped me back to health and strength and I also gained 12 pounds. That was two years ago and I have felt fine ever since. As a stomach medicine and tonic Tanlac is certainly wonderful."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills, for constipation, made and recommended by the manufacturers of TANLAC.

Wharf.

Long and lank and lean and gray
Winds the river on its way.
Lean and long and lank and brown
All along it lies the town.
All along it lie the houses,
Shantyboats where faint carouses
Echo up the cinder banks
Where the dead walk, rank on ranks,
Where the tattered living tread
More desolate than all the dead.
Their hands are warm, their cheeks are red,
Their breasts are gaunt beneath their blouses.
This is what the living say,
Perched on wharf piles day by day,
"Neither live nor dead are we,
There are not two states, but three;
Living, dead, and neither way."
I sometimes think the Jordan rolls,
Not in Palestine, but here,
And all the damned and wistful souls
Sit along the First Street pier.

—Grace Hutchinson Ruthenburg.

A Woman's Postscript.

Do all wives open their husband's letters? Was Harry's mother only taking precautions that any woman should take, or was her daughter-in-law a special offender and as such especially sensitive on the subject? We leave that to our readers to settle. This is the story as the Argonaut reports it:

"Harry, dear!" exclaimed little Mrs. Simpson to her husband. "I have b-been d-dreadfully insulted!"

"Insulted! By whom?"

"B-by your mother," answered the young wife, bursting into tears.

"My mother, Flora? Nonsense! She's miles away!"

Flora dried her tears. "I'll tell you all about it," she said. "A letter came for you this morning addressed in your mother's writing, so I—I opened it."

"Of course," said Harry.

"It—it was written to you all through. Do you understand?"

"I understand. But where is the insult?"

"In the p-p-postscript," cried the wife, bursting in to fresh floods of tears. "It s-said, 'D-dear Flora, d-don't fail to give this l-letter to Harry. I want him to have it.'"

MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee Street, Winnipeg, Man.

FURNACE—ROBERTSON

A pretty wedding took place at Massena, when Frieda Robertson became the bride of Thirl Furnace. The bride wore a suit of blue tricotine trimmed with silk braid, with blouse and hat to match, and carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair fern. Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Mitchell acted as witnesses, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Holland. The bride and groom left for Plattsburg and Montreal on their honeymoon, afterwards coming to Morrisburg to spend a few days before returning to Massena where they will reside.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. James Styles and family wish to thank their many friends for their kindness and deep sympathy in their recent bereavement.

A jury before Mr. Justice Rose in the Civil Assize Court at Toronto Monday afternoon dismissed the suit for $5,000 daamges brought against Henry Sibley by Fred Bakewell, for injuries sustained by the latter's son, Norman, aged 12, who was injured by the motor car of the defendant. The plaintiff claimed that when his son was crossing the intersection of Glenholme and O'Leary Avenues, on November 3 last, with a hand express wagon, he was run down by the motor car of the defendant and seriously injured. The defendant, on the other hand, held that the accident had been due to the boy with the toy express failing to take proper care, such as looking out for approaching traffic, and also held that it was contrary to law for him to have been on the roadway

Repaying Mrs. Mullaney

BY ELIZABETH GUILFOILE.

PART I.

"Joe, it doesn't come out even."

Joe Hayden laid down his book and looked up into the puzzled eyes of his pretty young wife. Ruth's remark brought him not to a realization of her problem but to a realization of herself.

The lamplight gave an added sheen to the carefully brushed hair. She looked very pale and small and young, in the big wicker divan, piled high with cushions.

One day, when he came in from the harvest field at noon, Joe had found her lying still upon the floor.

"Heat prostration!" the doctor said.

Three weeks of tender care had brought her to her feet again. But certain lines between her brows had deepened. These lines caused Joe a vague distress. He noticed them now particularly and came around to her side, displacing some of the cushions on the divan. He was strong and brown and weathered-looking with an air of freshness and cleanness that farm work in the open had given him. He laid the tips of his strong, gentle fingers on her white brow over the lines.

"Ruth we have a big job on our hands. Lifting a mortgage while founding a home isn't easy. But we have a good start. I can't see why it is making scars in your forehead."

Ruth drew the brown fingers down with her own small white ones.

"Thinking bothers one more when one is not working," she explained. "I'm going to start in to-morrow and do the work myself. Dr. Kellar said I might," she added quickly as she saw the protest in his face. "You needn't worry. I am not going to be foolish and overtax my strength again. But there is so much to do that when I just sit here and think it worries me. I had just got things going right when I got sick. It's all in planning and management, Joe. What we country people lack is system, you know."

She said it with a pretty little air of including herself. But Joe knew she meant, "you country people." He had married a city girl. In her three months on the farm she had mentioned many things which her late employers, Baker and Co., would have considered bad management.

"I have been trying to figure out what we owe Mrs. Mullaney."

"Well, we owe her a great deal more than we shall ever be able to pay," declared Joe warmly. "Little Ned is crazy for a pony, and I think I'll give him that Shetland, Job. Job is old and rather moth eaten but he'll do Ned Mullaney more good than a six-cylinder automobile. And Mullaney knows if he is ever shorthanded in his crop all he has to do is whistle for me."

Ruth's small hand suddenly came down on the wicker table with a force that made the lamp shade dance.

"When you contract a debt do you start paying it on the installment plan for the rest of your life?"

"Why, Ruth," the man's voice was troubled and his eyes were full of pain, "do you think you could pay Mrs. Mullaney with money?"

"That is exactly what I think we should do. A debt is a debt. The best way to pay it is fully and promptly to stop the interest. The earlier we country people get to using money as common currency," she greatly stressed the word money, "the better it will be for all concerned. The Mullaneys need money, goodness knows, if all that you and Al Grimes say is true. And Mrs. Mullaney certainly earned it here. You write a cheque and I'll mail it to her with a nice little note. I'll promise you she will take it without protest. We must not start out in life with a lot of obligations. We had better pay as we go. I don't like the idea of Mr. Mullaney feeling free to call on you just because his wife has been of service to us. He is notoriously lazy and depends on his nieighbors too much, anyway. I don't like to think of you plowing his fields with their knotty old roots, and sawing wood with his rusty saws. He would impose on you if he got a chance. It is Mrs. Mullaney we really owe. I don't think that pony is worth what we owe her. I have figured it out."

"How do you figure it?"

"Well, Mrs. Mullaney did more for me than an ordinary nurse would. On the other hand she was here only a few hours a day after the worst was over. A nurse would have cost us five dollars a day. We owe Mrs. Mullaney that much at least for the first week. In these last two weeks she has put in as much as one week's work. Then she did the work around the place. We might have had a girl at three dollars a week. Three weeks would have been nine dollars. That makes seventy-nine dollars. Then the doctor might have to make two or three more trips if we had had a less dependable nurse. It comes to eighty-five or ninety dollars, I think. How much is that pony worth?"

Joe's head was turned away from the light. He was looking out into the starlit night.

"Not more than seventy-five," he answered quietly.

"That wouldn't be enough. I think we ought to give her a cheque. With Dr. Kellar's bill it will make my illness cost pretty high. I'm sorry it had to happen," she added softly, "when you have to work so hard to make ends meet."

"My God, Ruth! Do you think I count the money that it takes to take care of you?"

She stood up quickly and went to him. Instantly he put his arms about the slight figure. "Don't you know you were mighty sick, Ruth?"

"I certainly do and I know it is owing to Mrs. Mullaney that I pulled through. She left all her work to take care of me and she didn't even know me very well. She said she hadn't much time for visiting and I had never been to see her. It had not occurred to me that I might need her so soon. That's the reason, Joe, I think we should do the right thing by her without any delay. It's an awful feeling to be in debt. I never owed a hundred dollars in my life and I hate to think of our owing it now. Look, Joe, I've got it all down here. Do you think I've left out anything?

Her husband picked up the silver pencil and drew a line threw the items.

"Yes," he said slowly, "I think you've left out a lot."

Into that moment that was made, perhaps, for understanding, there came an interruption. The gate creaked—someone was coming. Joe laid the pad and pencil on the mantel beside the clock.

"Howdy, folks?" Al Grimes loomed in the doorway. "How are you, Missus?"

Ruth gave him a pleasnt word in reply. She liked Al. He was her husband's "right-hand man" and had been in the employ of the Haydens in the time of Joe's father.

"I'd like to get my fishing-tackle. Forgot it when I moved out. I think there is a good mess of bass in Duvall's pond. Got a lantern handy, Joe?"

"Take a lamp," said Ruth. "You will find things about as you left them, Al. I haven't been able to clean your room and I don't think Mrs. Mullaney got in there."

Joe reached for another lamp but it had no oil.

"I'll fill this, Al, if you'll wait a minute. I'm not keeping the housekeeping checked up very well since Mrs. Mullaney left. Ruth says she is going to take the helm to-morrow and I don't much blame her."

The hired man dropped easily into a chair.

"How do you like things now?" asked Ruth.

"Bully!" declared Al with a little more emphasis than was needed to carry conviction.

"Aren't you glad that I persuaded Joe that the eight-hour day was the best arrangement? Now you are getting fifteen dollars more on the month and you have your spare time to yourself."

"Yes'm, that's so," said Al thoughtfully.

"Farmers will simply have to come to it. System and management pay in every other line of business. This business of 'boarding the hands' on a farm is poor arrangement. What city employer would expect his clerks to stay in his home? Pay the men enough, I say, and let them lead their own lives, away from the farm they work on."

"I reckon it's some cheaper for you too, ain't it?" suggested Al mildly.

"No," answered Ruth thoughtfully, "as I've figured it, it is about the same. Of course we are paying you more salary now, for less work. It balances up about even. But then, you see," she added ingeniously, "when you're paid, you're paid. You don't owe us anything and we don't owe you anything."

"That's so," said Al slowly, "that's so."

Joe returned with the light and the two men went into the bedroom that had been Al's before he moved to his sister's under the new arrangement. When the fishing-tackle was located the hired man set off. "The boys will be waiting for me over at the pond," he explained.

"Aren't you coming, Joe?" Ruth called as he lingered in the room down the hall.

"In a moment, dear." He locked the door and carried in the key on the palm of his hand.

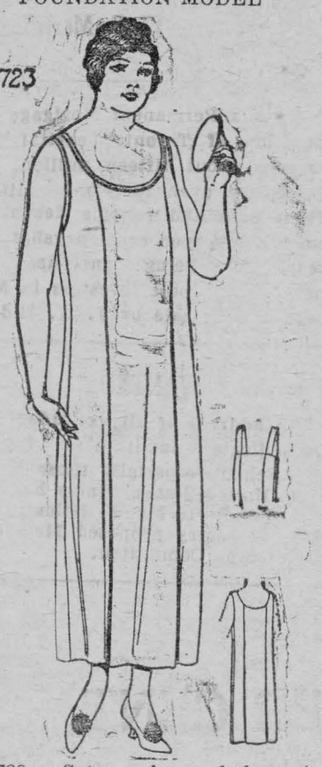

"That room is empty—and there are six people in John Olsen's cabin," he said slowly.

"Al likes this way best, doesn't he?" his wife asked sharply, feeling a division of thought she could not analyze. "It means more money to him."

"Yes, he says he does," answered Jos absently and he laid the key on the mantel beside the notepad. Ruth turned away and then they talked of other things.

WOMEN! DYE FADED THINGS NEW AGAIN

Dye or Tint Any Worn, Shabby Garment or Drapery.

Diamond Dyes

Each 15-cent package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint any old, worn, faded thing new, even if she has never dyed before. Choose any color at drug store.

A DECORATIVE TOUCH.

To hide an unsightly flowerpot, cut a piece of cardboard or buckram to fit round the pot neatly with an inch lap at the back. Cover with cretonne to match the hangings in the room, with wall paper, or with heavy ecru lace. A binding of gimp or ribbon can be glued on to finish the edges. For convenience in removing the cover, place two large snap fasteners to hold it together at the back.

Minard's Liniment for Dandruff.

A Simple Explanation.

Why does soda-water rise in a straw on which one sucks? This is due to the fact that when one sucks on a straw or tube a vacuum is produced and the air pressure (about fifteen pounds to the square inch) on the surface of the soda-water forces it up immediately into the straw.

With Rinso—
snowy-white clothes just by soaking

SIMPLY soaking in Rinso suds loosens dirt, so that it rinses right out.

The old wearing method of rubbing soap on the clothes and then rubbing the clothes is done away with. There is no need of it with Rinso.

Only the dirtiest places—where dirt was actually ground in—will need just a light rubbing. Where this is necessary, use a little dry Rinso.

Rinso is made by the makers of LUX—the largest soap makers in the world. It does the family wash as wonderfully as Lux does fine things.

Rinso does the whole job—

The Woman of To-Day

MOTHER'S SHARE.

There's a runt pig in the side lot
That is coming safely through;
There's a calf that's lost its mother
Which our ma is tendin' to;
There's a sick colt in the pasture
That she's also carin' fer,
'Cause each spring the sick and neeay
Animals belong to her.

With her motherin' and lovin'
It's a most surprisin' thing
How them colts and calves and piggies
Fatten up and thrive, by jing!
Till when autumn comes they're ready
To be marketed, and then
Comes an incident in farm life
That is some surprise again.

For them colts and calves and piggies
That was ma's stock yesterday
Change to pa's stock on the market,
And it's him that takes the pay;
Takes the pay while mother wonders
Till the springtime rolls around,
When she stills her heart by tendin'
To some sickly pig she's found.

—Jay B. Iden.

OUR FIRST MAHOGANY.

With the optimism of youth we were married when our only assets toward a home were faith and a roll of rag carpet.

Later we scraped up money to furnish the guest room, and selected things from catalogues and advertisements. But the furniture that looks so pretty in the pictures showed up cheap and shiny in the store.

One of the display rooms was furnished with a mahogany suite that was exactly what we wanted—simple carving, good lines and beautiful wood. But the price for three pieces—bed, bureau and dressing table—was precisely what we had for the entire room, and we had already put fifty dollars of it into a rug! But I bought the three pieces.

In the evening when I told my husband what I had done he siad, "I'm glad you bought it. Don't worry; some of our bills can wait." But I determined to get the fifty.

Fortunately I had not yet put up four pairs of curtains bought at the same store, so I returned them and that gave me credit for twenty dollars. Then I collected all the old furniture, rugs and newspapers I could possibly spare—eleven-fifty more. Instead of buying the wedding present I had selected for a friend, I gave her my cherished centrepiece that had just been finished, and that saved me ten dollars, to which I added five that had been given me on my birthday anniversary. Knitting a shawl brought one more. By this time the game had become interesting, and I refused to take the remaining shortage out of the general fund. But that last drop kept me thinking for a while. Then the county fair came along. One dollar and fifty cents in premiums, and two dollars for plants sold to a city woman!

That night we spent the extra dollar on a concert.—Katharine Henry.

HOME-GROWN BEADS.

Aside from cutting paper dolls there is probably no occupation that keeps the children quiet and contented longer than stringing beads. There are large wooden and porcelain ones on the market for this purpose, but home-grown ones are very satisfactory. Bear this in mind when the fruit and vegetable season comes along and dry a quantity of the seeds suitable for this purpose.

Many watermelon seeds are black; these may be strung alternately with white pumpkin seeds or yellow corn. The seeds of ripe citrons are bright red, and these are used effectively with the other colored seeds. White and yellow grains of corn may be used alternately on the string. Just give the children a box of the different-colored seeds mixed, with plenty of needles and strong cotton, and they will do the rest.

EASY BLEACHING.

For everyday sheets, pillowcases meant for steady wear and many other uses, I find a good grade of unbleached cotton or sheeting preferable to the bleached fabric; it wears almost twice as long, is much easier washed, and needs no ironing. To bleach these quickly, boil in a good suds to which enough bluing has been added to make a good blue. Lift from the suds and hang up without wringing. When dry dip in suds and hang up again. They will soon be beautifully bleached.

LARGE WAVE MOVES ABOUT EARTH AND AFFECTS SURFACE, SAYS BRITISH SCIENTIST

A despatch from Glasgow says:—Old Mother Earth has a permanent wave. She has had it all along, but it was noticed only recently by a mere mortal, Ludovic MacLellan Mann.

Mr. Mann, who is a member of the Royal Anthropological Institute, the Pre-historic Society of East Anglia, and other scientific societies, told about his discovery in an address made on Thursday night before the members of learned societies in Glasgow.

There is a large wave, in slow motion, within the body of the earth, said Mr. Mann. It moves around the planet once every 8,800 years, causing a slight motion in the position of the axis and the poles and giving rise to changes in climate. The discovery was made by him in comparing many ancient with modern astronomical observations.

The wave causes the terrestrial crust to pulsate, which accounts for raised and sunken land surfaces. The velocity, direction and amplitude of the wave has been ascertained. Thus the ages in years of all ancient land surfaces and of prehistoric periods can be determined.

Knowledge of the 8,800-year mutation, Mr. Mann said, had enabled him to read astronomical registers found in most parts of Europe and America, sculptored on rock surfaces. The same key had been successfully applied to solve the mysteries of the Stonehenge, the celebrated prehistoric monument in Salisbury Plain, England, which is shown to be a calendric monument which registered astronomical events occurring in a period of twelve saros, which is the cycle of time in which the sun and moon nodes recur in the same relative positions.

Soviet Army Placed on Efficient Basis

A despatch from Paris says:—A report has reached Paris that representatives of the Russian Red Cross have placed large orders in Berlin for supplies and material for field hospitals and first aid applications.

This report, which comes from a well-informed source, says that on April 1 representatives of the Soviet Red Cross—MM. Nemirovsky, Brodsky and Krotoff—visited the Chancellery of the German Red Cross in Berlin and asked that an estimate be submitted, for delivery on May 15, of material for the establishment of 60 field hospitals and 2,000,000 packets of first aid supplies.

The German Red Cross submitted its estimates to the Russian representatives, and it is understood an agreement has been made for delivery at Stettin on May 15.

This report, in conjunction with news incidents and the alleged gathering of troops on the Bessarabian frontier for inspection by Trotsky and Kamineff, has given rise to grave suspicion of Russia's intentions with regard to Bessarabia.

No, they're not sounding "cook-house." The occasion for the big noise was the official opening of the British Empire Exposition by King George at Wembley on April 23. A fanfare of trumpets followed the King's speech.

PREMIERS OF ALLIES TO HOLD CONFERENCE

Poincare Agrees to Meet With MacDonald After French Elections.

A despatch from Paris says:—It is learned on usually reliable authority that Premier Poincare has agreed to go to England on May 20 to discuss the political situation of France and Great Britain in relation to recent events with Prime Minister MacDonald. The interview was arranged at a meeting between the British Ambassador, Lord Crewe, and the Director of Political Affairs, Peretti de la Rocca, who is acting in Poincare's place at the Quai d'Orsay during the Premier' absence in his home constituency.

The Premier was consulted by telephone.

The meeting between the two Premiers has been arranged to take place at Chequers, because, due to the meeting of Parliament, MacDonald is unable to leave England.

The French Premier will not take with him anybody but Camerlynck, the interpreter of Supreme Council meetings. The meeting will be secret and unofficial, and it is felt that under these conditions the two heads of Government will be able to do much to prepare the way for smoothing out the differences between the two countries.

Irish Saint Gets Credit for Discovering America

According to legend, it was not Columbus who first discovered America, but the Irish saint, Brendan the Navigator.

The exploit of the saint is commemorated in a beautiful stained glass window, which is on view at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. It is the work of two Irish women artists and will be the only example of stained glass work by women to be exhibited.

The saint holds in his right hand an oar and in his left a chalice. Around his head is a nimbus, while about his feet flow green waves.

A beetle, thousands of years old, was found perfectly preserved among the wrappings of an Egyptian mummy.

Scots Call Duke of York Their Unofficial Prince

Not to be outdone by Wales, which can boast of its own royal prince, an influential group of Scotchmen has chosen Albert, Duke of York, to be the unofficial Prince of Scotland.

Since the time when Queen Elizabeth robbed Scotland of its royal line Scotchmen have had only two or three royal princes allotted them by the grace of their English sovereign. Now the Scotchmen would like to exercise a certain amount of freedom in selecting a royal prince of their own.

Scotchmen attending the 141st anniversary dinner of the Highland Society, at which the Duke of York was present, took the initiative in adopting him as their favorite son. The Scotchmen pointed out that the Duke of York also held a Scottish title, "The Earl of Inverness," and that furthermore he had married a Scottish duchess, and they did not neglect to note that he is also Scottish by lineage.

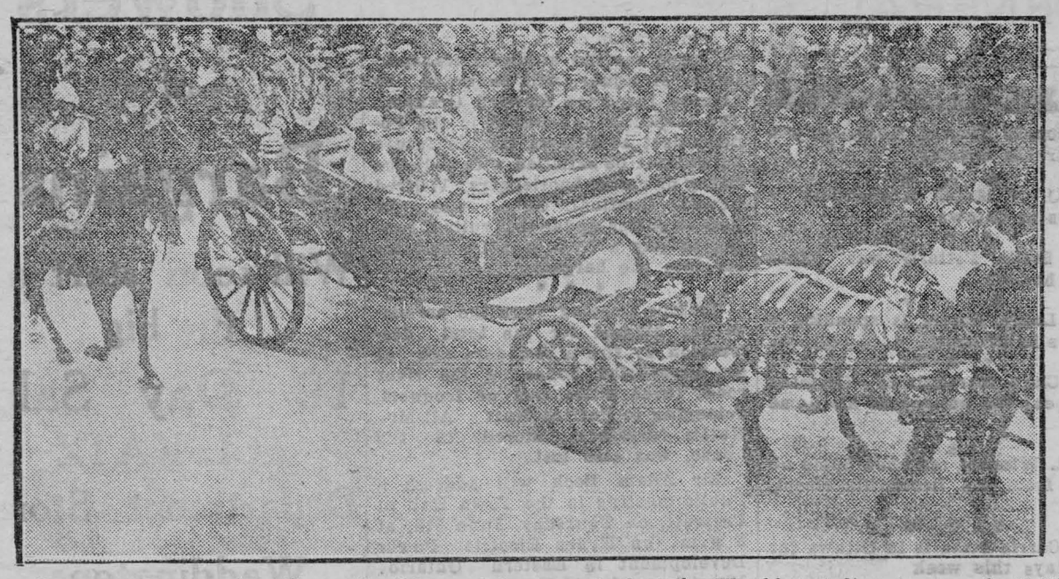

In the course of his speech the Duke of York acknowledged the compliment.

The selection has precedent in the action of George III., who accommodated the expressed desire of the Scotch and made one of his sons the Duke of Clarence. Victoria hastened to treat all her subjects equally, making her second son the Duke of Edinburgh, the third son the Duke of Connaught for Ireland and the fourth son was created Duke of Albany as England's own.

George V. is in a position to emulate his grandmother, for he has two sons who are yet attached to ducal titles.

General Elections in South Africa to be Held June 11

A despatch from Johannesburg says:—The nominations for the general election will, it is understood, take place on May 26, with voting on June 17. A significant statement has been made by Colonel Cresswell, Labor leader, who said he hoped to see a Government in power which would say: "If you close down those mines without good reason, very well. We shall take measures to see that those mines are worked." He also said that if he had his way he would stop the importation of natives from outside the Union.

Huge crowds cheered lustily as the King and Queen arrived at the Wembley stadium to open the British Empire Exposition. Their majesties appeared in full state, drawn in the royal coach and four.

ANCIENT ELM HELD HISTORIC DOCUMENT

Gardeners Discover in Cavity Account of Service at Which Champlain Was Present.

A despatch from Montreal says:—While pruning an elm tree in the grounds of the Sisters of Mercy at Sault-aux-Recollets recently, two gardeners discovered in a cavity of the tree an earthen jar in which was a document covered with indecipherable writing. It was handed to a chemist, who treated the paper and brought out the writing, which was found to be an account of the first Mass celebrated on the Island of Montreal, in the year 1615.

The words were as follows: "In the presence of Father Jamay and of Champlain, a Mass of actions of grace at which were present seven Frenchmen, twelve Cri children, six Algonquins, chanted and spoken by Father Le Caron, Recollet Father Charles Lavoisier (or Lavoidin), Bodjaroka, Jean Lebeuf."

Here follow four other lines which are indecipherable, and which probably contained names of witnesses. It also appears that Jean Lebeuf was the writer of the manuscript.

In Abbe Laverdiere's "History of Canada" the following account is given of this Mass: "Champlain was forced to come down the river from Quebec to arrange details to be carried out during his absence. He again met at Riviere des Prairies Father Le Caron, who chanted a solemn Mass on the 23rd or 24th June, 1615, in the presence of a large number of savages."

The elm in which the discovery was made is computed to be 349 years old. Its diameter a few feet from the ground is about five feet, and its height, about 125 feet.

Canadian Auto Exports Continue to Show Gain

Automobile exports from Canada continue to show a steady increase, the total of freight automobiles exported in February being valued at $271,369, as against $152,587 in the same month last year, while for the twelve mnoths ended February the exports totaled $5,100,805, as against $1,224,786 in the previous twelve months. Passenger automobiles exported in February this year were valued at $1,663,612, as against $2,964,345 in the same month last year, while for the year ended February the exports amounted to $27,392,879, as against $24,109,321 in the previous twelve months.

Epidemic of Cholera Spreading in India

A despatch from Allahabad says:—There have already been 10,000 deaths from cholera in Bihar this year and the epidemic is spreading. In Champaran, the most affected district, there were 1,000 deaths last week. Darbhango, Mizaffarpur and Shahabad and Saran are also greatly affected, and the disease has recently become epidemic in Patna and Gaya.

Tiny Principality to Join Swiss When Ruler Dies

So much of the romance of royalty has been squeezed from the principality of Liechtenstein by the World War that the little state, perched up in the Alps between Austria and Switzerland, has decided to become a part of the Swiss Republic. The change will come with the death of the present ruler, Prince Johann II., eighty-four years old, who now is reported to be fatally ill.

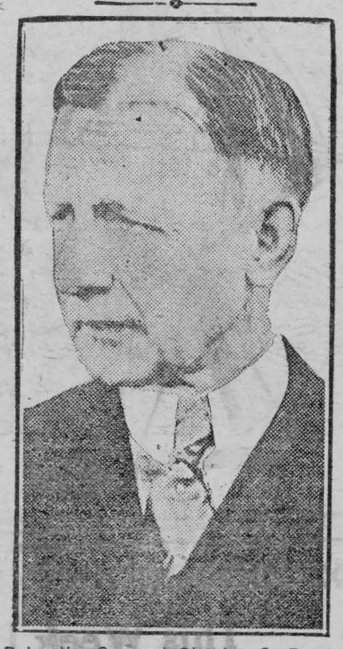

Liechtenstein is ruled by the Austrian House of Liechtenstein, which traces its origin back to the twelfth century. It is one of the smallest principalities in Europe, being fifteen miles long and five miles wide, with 11,000 inhabitants. Only Monaco and San Marino are smaller.

Liechtenstein is one of the most prosperous districts on the Continent and is virtually unhampered by taxation. Most of the expenses of public improvement are borne by the Prince, who has an enormous income from his vast holdings in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia.

London Ambitious to be Largest Entry Port

The increase of shipping in the port of London since the war has led the Port Authority to consider the possibility of widening the channel in the Thames to allow the passage of large boats as far as London Bridge at any tide.

The project would cost about £5,000,000 and take from five to seven years to complete, but it would make London the largest port of entry in the world, about doubling its present tonnage capacity, which is somewhere in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 tons annually. The engineers' plan would eliminate many bends in the river and open the present channel from Tilbury to the mouth of the Thames to enable freighters to turn in the river and allow a 85,000-ton liner to dock against the Tower of London.

Harp Played 2,000 B.C. Found Near Euphrates

Jewelry fifty centuries old and a harp that was played on nearly 2,000 years before the birth of Christ, are among the archaeological treasures discovered recently by Frenchmen in Syria, along the Euphrates River.

Priceless antiques, which have been added to the Louvre collection have been collected from that district.

Most of them were dug up at Doura. They include exquisite statuettes, well enough preserved to show the beauty of their lines. Rare ivory images and ceramics complete the lot.

SHIPS MENACED BY ICE IN LAKE SUPERIOR

Twenty Freighters Are Still Blocked in Floes With Northwest Gale.

A despatch from Duluth says:—Eight freighters and two passenger ships had made port here through the upper Lake Superior ice jam on Friday, but there was no material lessening in the blockade.

With a northwest gale raging unabated, vessel agents hold no immediate hope for a break-up in the blockade, which now directly affects 53 lake freighters.

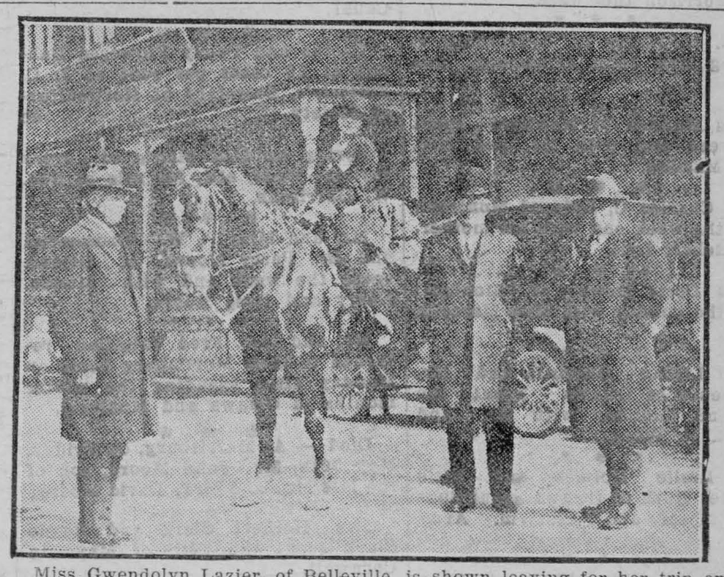

Abatement of the northwest gale released the pressure on the ice jam, and three tugs were trying on Friday to assist the approximately twenty freighters scattered along the six-mile front of the blockade.

The Huronic suffered no damage, nor was she ever in any immediate danger from the heavy pressure imposed by the thick floes, said her skipper, Captain A. M. Wright.

With the exception of the men passengers and members of the crew, who were short of tobacco, no one was seriously inconvenienced.

There is nothing that more effectively calms the mind than reaching a decision.

Nothing in heaven is so good that we might not have it here. The earth is the home of God as truly as it is the home of man. Heaven means a higher condition of mankind. There is no heaven until we rise out of folly, selfishness, and sensuality; no heaven so long as money stands for more than man, so long as any are willing to be rich by keeping others poor.—Charles G. Ames.

Miss Gwendolyn Lazier, of Belleville, is shown leaving for her trip on horseback to Washington to invite the president of the U.S.A. to attend the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada.

Sixty thousand Canadians are now in process of invading Europe. Some ten years ago, another Canadian invasion of the old country began—a larger one than this. This one is an invasion of tourists. It is the greatest movement of tourists in the history of the country. Twenty-six first class steamers will take this number over and return in some three months. Of course large numbers will have to go via New York, but the majority are travelling by Canadian-owned boats. The drawing card is the Wembley Exhibition. The average cost for a couple will amount to around $1,500; therefore, sixty-thousand Canadians will take out of the country this summer some $48,000,000

Confiscation of all motor cars being used for the unlawful transportation of liquor, will be urged by License Inspector Howard Graham. The inspector announced in the Police Court at Ottawa that in future he will not be satisfied with only the fining of motor bootleggers. Wilfred Levere, Cardinal, Ont., was the first to suffer under this ruling, having to pay a fine of $500 and his car into the bargain.

Tramps sleeping upon the premises are blamed for the total destruction by fire a few days ago of an unoccupied house on the river road, three miles east of Iroquois, belonging to Patrick Hutt All Mr. Hutt's furniture, stored in the house, was also lost.

Sir Adam Beck will address a Public meeting in the Town Hall at Prescott, on Thursday, June 5th, at 8 p.m. on Hydro Electric Power Development in Eastern Ontario. Morrisburg should be represented by a large crowd—two hundred or more if possible. Will those who have cars, and will volunteer the use of them at a nominal charge, kindly hand their names to the Village Clerk.

LUBRICANTS

Almost every motorist knows the benefit of draining off the worn out oil and refilling crankcase with fresh lubricant at regular periods, but this process of "changing the oil", as it is called, is usually more or less of a mussy job and therefore it is apt to be put off from day to day until the working surfaces of the motor are actually suffering for want of proper lubrication.

With the idea of giving better service to the motoring public and at the same time boosting our oil sales, we offer to change the oil in your motor, free of labor charge when we supply the necessary oil at regular prices.
