Celebrates 85th Birthday 63rd Wedding Anniversary

Last evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Shaw, of Elma, was the scene of a most interesting and happy event when the 85th anniversary of Mr. Shaw's birth and the 63rd anniversary of his marriage with Maria Hyndman were celebrated in a very informal manner, when friends and relatives to the number of about 20 were present to congratulate the aged couple and extend best wishes and hopes that they be spared to each other for many more years. Both are in very good health and joined most heartily in the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaw are natives of Mountain township and it was in that township they were married and started their long life together on a little farm which for many years was their home. Mrs. Arthur McMillan, Elma, is their only daughter. and to have her near them, a number of years ago the parents moved into the same district. The infantile paralysis epidemic kept many relatives from being present yesterday as it was not thought wise to expose the children to possible contagion.

A wedding cake which graced the dining table was cut by Mrs. Shaw. In the absence of the family pastor in Montreal, Mrs. R. S. Smith was present accompanied by Mrs. Orrin Casselman, of Winchester Springs. Mrs. Bayard Black, of Hallville, was among the guests.

Large Turnout at Morewood For District I.O.O.F. Service

The strength and unity of the Independent Order of Oddfellows was well displayed on Sunday afternoon when over 200 members and officers of Kemptville District No. 53 held a special church service in Morewood United church. Roy Fetterly, D.D.G.M., organized and directed the service which was by an audience that filled the church to capacity. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers including a floral insignia of the order in the form of three links.

The Chesterville Citizens' Band led the procession from the lodgerooms to the church with Clarke Smith, D.D.G. Marshall, in charge. Delightful musical numbers were contributed by the Oddfellows' Choral Society and Quartette, Ottawa. under the direction of Bro. Thos. Millar. The service was conducted by Bro. Rev. John Macaskill, assisted by Bro. Rev. R. C. Tait, of Chesterville "Links of Love," was the theme of an inspiring address by Rev. Mr. Macaskill.

Many officers were present, including J. W. Summers. D.D.G.M., Ottawa, No. 55; W. H. Mowat, D.D.G.M., Harmony, No. 51. Over 30 past D.D.G. Masters were in the procession, including Bro. E. Cooper, Mountain Ont., who is over 80 years old.

After the service at the church, the Band gave a concert of sacred music on Memorial Square which was enjoyed by a large audience.

NAMES AND ADDRESSES OF CHESTERVILLE OLD-TIMERS WANTED BY COMMITTEE

THE Publicity Committee of the Old Home Week wishes to start preparation immediately on on a list of all former Chesterville boys and girls and is calling for the names and addresses of these former citizens. To every person knowing the name and address of any old-timers the request is made to send this information to the secretary, W. H. Casselman, as soon as possible.

Every former resident must be reached to give them information of the big time in store for them in Chesterville from July 30 to Aug. 3 next year, and announcements should go out shortly. So it is imperative that the mailing list be completed as soon as possible.

Don't rely on your friends to send in these names. If duplications are made, it will be easy enough to sort the names out as they are being listed. but if the names do not reach the committee those persons may possibly not learn of the re-union.

To repeat the request: Please send in the names and addresses of former residents at once.

MRS. JOHN ANNABLE DIED THIS MORNING AT GOLDFIELD

The death occurred this morning of Mrs. John Annable, formerly of Winchester, at the home of her brother, Archie D. Gillies, Goldfield. Mrs. Annable was in her 77th year. The funeral will be held from the home of Mr. Gillies Saturday afternoon at one o'clock with interment in Maple Ridge cemetery.

WINCHESTER YOUTHS HELD BY SUDBURY AUTHORITIES

Provincial police are holding three Winchester youths in district jail at Sudbury for authorities at Perth. The three, Lloyd Renick, Lloyd Bilow and James Bellams, were arrested near Espanola Tuesday night.

An automobile. reported stolen from a Winchester physician, was allegedly found in possession of the trio. A service station proprietor at Sudbury notified police a car containing three young men drove off without paying for gasoline. The arrests were made soon after.

Miss Dorothy Ida Healy Becomes Bride of Thomas McCloskey on Saturday.

OF much interest and quiet charm was the wedding which took place at two o'clock Saturday afternoon at the rectory of St. Theresa's church, Ottawa, of Dorothy Ida, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Healy, to Mr. Thomas McCloskey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCloskey, of Chesterville. Rev. George Larose officiated in the presence of the immediate relatives only.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Isobel Healy, as bridesmaid Mr. E. Vincent Gibbons, of Brantford. was best man.

The bride wore an attractive mode of silk transparent velvet in "Renaissance" blue with a crushed girdle adorned with a rhinestone buckle. It was softly draped with a high neckline, and tiny velvet covered buttons and loops were used in trimming. The sleeves were long and draped at the elbow and trimmed with buttons. The skirt was floor length. Her hat was an off-the-face model of velvet and she wore matching blue shoes and a shoulder knot of Rapture roses.

The bridesmaid was in "sherry wine" shade crêpe with a black hat and black accessories, and wore a shoulder knot of Johanna Hill roses.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt. Mrs. H. W. Lothrop. 331 James street. Mr. and Mrs. McCloskey left later for Montreal and Quebec City. On their return they will take up residence at 281 Laurier avenue, east. The bride travelled in a smart black Vionet two-piece suit with blouse of Pompadour pink sheer, a black hat and silver fox furs.

Miss Alice Singleton Dies In Winchester at Early Age

The community of Winchester was saddened Saturday morning when it was learned that Miss Alice Singleton had passed away in her 26th year. She apparently had a successful career before her in her chosen profession of music. She was organist of the United church and had played at the Sunday services less than six weeks before her death. She had been for four years leader of the Mission Band and always willingly gave of her time and talents to the church work.

She was the only surviving daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Singleton of Hotel Winchester, an older sister, Grace, having passed away nine years ago. Besides her parents, there are two brothers remaining, Harold and Mack.

A quiet service was held in the home on Monday at 10 a.m. conducted by her pastor Rev. W. S. Atchison. The remains were taken to Kingston for burial in the family plot.

Irvine Quart Drain Contract Awarded to Winchester Man

Tenders for the excavation of two drains in the townships of Winchester and Mountain were opened Saturday night at Winchester, with the members of the two council boards in attedance. Reeves Robert Bryan, Mountain, and William J. McConnell, of Winchester township presided, assisted by Ed. Bush and Jacob Steen.

The contract for the excavation of the Irvine Quart Drain was let to Clare Brown, of Winchester, at the following prices per cubic yard: Earth 22 cents; hardpan, $1: rock, $1.50.

Tenders for the Hamilton drain were not awarded, as Mountain township had not held its court of revision, and no tenders were received for the digging of the west branch of the Kittle Creek.

Simpson had been an abstainer for 20 years, but fell from the ways of grace.

Feeling the need of recuperation, he sent his boy for a bottle of whisky.

"But," said the hotel proprietor, "who's it for?"

"For father," said the boy.

"Nonsense! Your father's been a teetotaller for longer years than you have lived."

"Wel, at all events, he sent for it."

"What does he want it for?"

"To let you into a secret," said the boy, "he's going fishing, and he wants the cork for a float."

50 Years of Wedded Life Marked by Colquhoun Couple

On the evening of September 14th, Colquhoun United Church Hall was the scene of gay festivities, when upwards of 125 friends and relatives met to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanna. Mr. and Mrs. Hanna were both in good health and it was pleasing to the children to see their father and mother so happy and prosperous at their age.

Mrs. Hanna was formerly Agnes Cheley, daughter of James Cheley, of Colquhoun. and Mr. Hanna was a son of Alexander Hanna, also of Colquhoun. They were married September 14, 1887, at the Manse, Dunbar, by Rev. J. P. Grant. the witnesses being Mrs. Grant and Miss Jennie Robinson.

Seven children blessed this happy union, namely, Mrs. Joe Heagle; Thos. Hanna, of Three Hills, Alta.; Amelia and George and Martha, at home; Alexander Hanna (deceased), and Philip, killed overseas. The children were all present except Thomas, of Three Hills.

Mrs. Hanna had five sisters and one brother—Mrs. Ruther Marshall. Ogdensburg, was present; Mrs. Charlie, Nesbitt, of Avonmore, and Mrs. Geo. Short, of Cardinal, were unable to attend; Philip Cheley (deceased), Mrs. Cephrenus O'Shaughnessy, Ida (deceased); Mrs. George McNairn (Hattie), deceased.

Mr. Hanna had four brothers and three sisters, namely: Mrs. E. E. Pratt, of Peabody, Mass., who came to be present at this happy occasion; Mrs. G. S. Casselman, Finch; also Archie B. Casselman, a nephew, Lake Megantic, Que.; Edward Hanna, Finch Mrs William Fay, Aultsville; Thomas and William (deceased).

Rev. C. A. Adey, on behalf of the many friends, read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Hanna, in which the people of the church and community united in extending congratulations on such a happy occasion. Reference was made to the worthwhile contribution Mr. and Mrs. Hanna have made to both church and community through the 50 years of their married life, and the hope was expressed that they would be spared to each other and their family, with good health, for many years to come. "May God bless you both and give you many more years of happiness together," concluded the address.

Mrs. R. C. Colquhoun presented the bride with a beautiful basket of 50 golden gladioli.

The main presentation was made on behalf of all present by Mrs. R. C. Colquhoun and Mrs. Earl Droppo, and consisted of a 97-piece china set of dishes with a gold band and spray; a half dozen silver dessert spoons; silver tray; linen satin-damask tablecloth with napkins to match; a framed picture with a bride and groom with a suitable motto for the occasion, and a sum of money.

Rev. C. A. Adey made a suitable reply for Mr. and Mrs. Hanna, after which "Auld Lang Syne" and "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," were sung.

The programme consisted of community singing, duets, solos, quartettes and instrumental music, which was much enjoyed.

The wedding cake, which was presented to the bride and groom by Mrs. William Fay, of Aultsville, was of three tiers, beautifully decorated with "50th anniversary" and golden leaves. It was cut by the bride and passed around when lunch was served, which consisted of sandwiches, cake, oranges and coffee.

At a reasonable hour the guests, after extending best wishes to the happy couple, departed for their homes after a most enjoyable evening.

Faster Schedules Planned For Two C.P.R. Day Trains

Westbound Morning Train Arriving 11.39 Instead 9.40, Evening Eastbound at 4.46 Instead of 5.21. Time to Montreal Shorter.

Faster running times, and more convenient hours of arrival and departure will feature the changes being made by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the service supplied by day trains Nos. 35 and 36 operating between Montreal, Smiths Falls, Perth, Peterborough and Toronto, according to a statement made today by G. E. Carter, general passenger agent.

Train No. 35, which arrived in Chesterville at about 9.40 a.m. from Montreal, will now come in at 11.39, while No. 36, the "five-o'clock," which has been scheduled here at about 5.38 from Toronto and Smiths Falls, will on the new timetable pull up at the Chesterville platform at 4.46.

The improved service is made possible by steadily increasing business on this line and will go into effect wth the advent of the fall and winter timetable on September 26. It will afford improved facilities not only to the general travelling public and business houses along the route, but especially to passengers journeying to and from Smiths Falls, Perth, Tweed, Havelock, Peterborough and other points.

By reducing the length of some of [illegible] and speeding up the trains, the trip from Montreal to Toronto has been shortened an hour and 20 minutes, while the eastward trip between the two points has been reduced by an hour and 15 minutes. This improved service is enjoyed all the way along the line. Peterborough is brought an hour and 10 minutes closer to Montreal, Havelock about an hour closer, Tweed 50 minutes, Perth approximately half an hour.

Smiths Falls and Perth are half an hour nearer to Toronto on the eastward run and an hour nearer by the westbound train; Tweed is half an hour nearer the Queen City, and Havelock 15 minutes. Five minutes are trimmed from the time between Peterborough and Toronto.

The trains will also run on more convenient hours. Westbound from Montreal, No. 35 will leave at 9.15 a.m. instead of 7.00 a.m., and arrive in Toronto at 7.10 p.m. instead of 6.15 p.m. Eastbound from Toronto, No. 36 will leave at 9.30 a.m. instead of 9.00 a.m. arriving Windsor Station, Montreal, at 7.15 p.m. instead of 8.00 p.m.

Trains in the improved service will be equipped with buffet observation parlour cars for the increased comfort of passengers.

DR. McKENDRY'S CAR STOLEN IN WINCHESTER, MONDAY

It was reported to the provincial authorities Tuesday morning that a sand-coloured coach, license number D 2523, had been stolen from in front of the office of Dr. J. J. McKendry in Winchester between 7.30 and nine o'clock Monday evening. In the car were a quantity of blankets the family was bringing home from the summer cottage, and Mrs. McKendry's purse containing about $15.

CASS BRIDGE SCHOOL AGAIN DAMAGED BY VANDALS

For the third time within a month, vandals have broken into the Cass Bridge school house doing considerable damage to the property. Entry was made by smashing out the lower sash of a window and desks were ransacked. The contents with books of the library were scattered over the floor. Bliss Bowman, caretaker, notified William Servage, the teacher, and provincial poilce have been asked to investigate. Four weeks ago, a clock valued at $15 was stolen from the wall, and new brushes carried away while only shortly after commencement of the fall term, 18 panes of glass were broken.

A SCOUT GOOD TURN ADDS A CANADIAN CITIZEN.

A story of Canadian Boy Scouts in England helping a man who had fallen in the mud, instead of laughing at him, and the coming of the man to Canada as a result, was told in the "Boys' and Girls' Daily Mail" by Lord Baden-Powell. The incident occurred at the World Scout Jamboree in England in 1929, when the camp grounds were almost a sea of mud, in consequence of constant rain.

As told by the Chief Scout, when the man fell, the Canadian lads, instead of laughing, "as 99 out of 100 Scout's story, "he found he liked would have done," ran out, helped the man up, and had him in to tea, while they cleaned and dried his clothes. The victim of the accident was so impressed by the kindness of the young Canadians, that he later went to Canada, "to see what kind of a country produced such good fellows.

"In the end," continues the Chief Canada so well that he settled there. He started in business, and made a success of it. But, best of all, he joined up with the Scout movement, and is now a keen and successful Scouter."

Two-Year Courses in Agriculture and Home Economics Open October 11th — One-Year Homemaker's Course.

WHAT'S sauce for the gander is sauce for the goose. The city women have known it for a long time and have acted on their knowledge. Not for them to let "Friend Husband" get a new model for the old car while they drudged along without all the comforts of home. But the country woman was brought up in a harder school, where a good wife was supposed to pump water from the well and feed the kitchen range with wood while tractors did the ploughing and the barns got all the paint. It got so that often the house looked as if it should be the barn and vice versa.

But not today. Many of the Ontario farmers are on the city telephone, the hydro-electric, the rural free delivery and their greatest concern is to keep their children on the farm and their wives contented. The "women-folk" want attractive homes and now that higher prices are prevailing for farm products, they feel they are entitled to a share of the profits — and the men agree. They are putting better equipment into the housekeeping end of the partnership, and they are giving their daughters scientific education in homemaking as willingly as they send their sons to agricultural college. Hence the Home Economics Course at the Kemptville Agricultural School, which Eastern Ontario girls are taking in ever-increasing numbers.

Most interesting to the visitor is the "Demonstration Home" where the pupils put into practice what they have learned in the classes. And it really is practical. Groups of four girls "live in" for two weeks or more and are responsible for every detail of home management. Here, under the watchful and kindly eyes of Miss B. Lucile Bridges, Director of Home Economics, and Miss Lorraine Leggett, Assistant Director, the "committee of four' 'do all the work, alternating on each particular job for several days. One acts as housekeeper, cleaning, dusting and arranging the bedrooms; they are waitresses, looking after the silver as well as washing the small pieces of linen; then they cook, preparing meals for six people; then they finish as hostess. In this capacity the girl does all the actual buying of the food from the shops and oversees all the details of the running of the home. On the last day she invites some guests for dinner or an evening party and presides over it. It is all wonderful experience under actual home conditions.

The fame of the Kemptville Demonstration Home has spread throughout all Eastern Ontario. Since it was first opened a year ago 114 groups of men and women have visited the home, including many entire branches of Women's Institutes of 30 or 40 members, who have brought a picnic lunch and stayed for the afternoon. All have left with new practical and economical ideas on homemaking. The twelve rooms are furnished in simple but artistic style. To the left of the entrance hall is the long living room and to the right, the dining-room. A few pieces of old furniture were picked up to give the girls an appreciation for good, old furniture and to show them what could be done by refinishing it, an old English dressing table being transformed into a sideboard for the diningroom. Curtains for all the rooms have been made by the girls, who shopped around for bargains.

Blue velour drapes have been used to cover the chairs and studio couch in the den.

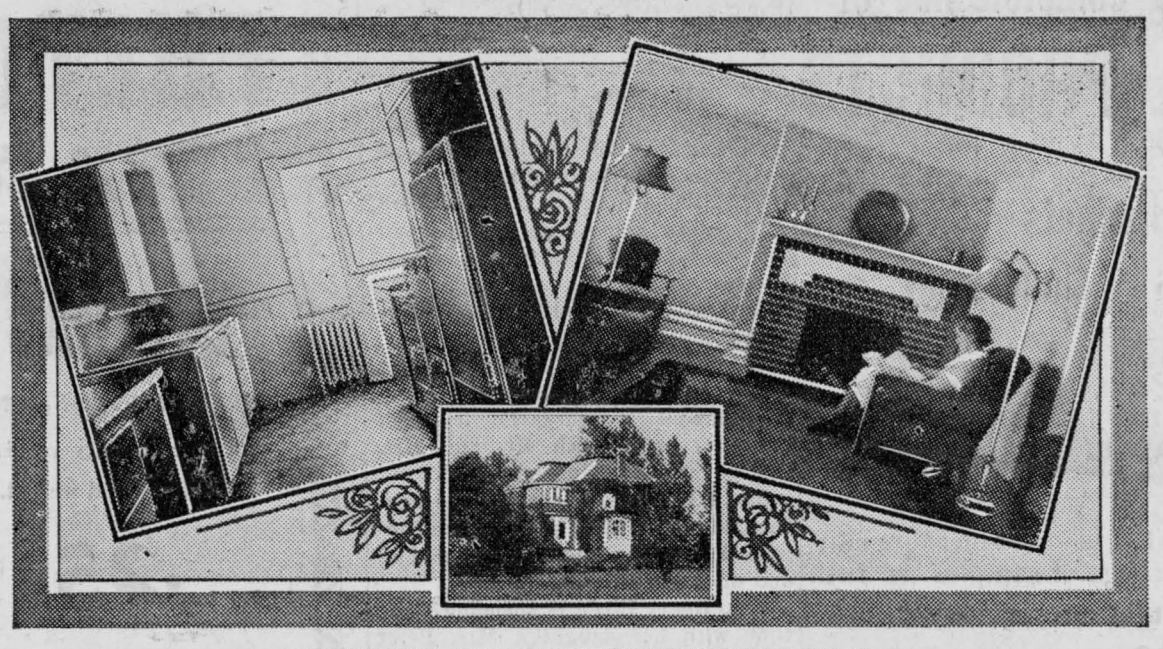

The kitchen catches the eye of the average visitor, even though it is a most awkward size, 9 by 20 feet. It too is furnished for those who have to work on a low budget. There is a serviceable, but not expensive sink, and the cupboard space is a joy. There is a place for everything, even to a compartment for the broom and the cleaning utensils.

Upstairs there are five bedrooms, with quaint dimity and calico patterned papers; more cupboards and clothes closets, large and tidy; a bathroom in by the school carpenter. These are muslin curtains in the bedrooms and tufted spreads of factory cotton, which the girls learn to make under Miss Leggett's supervision. Then there are the home made beds, built by the school carpenter. There are being painted one by one by the girls and are they making a good job of it! The money went into the springs and mattresses rather than in the bedstead—and they will be made gay and smart with the spreads.

An attractive chair in one of the bedrooms is made out of two cheese boxes and covered with novelty upholstering. It is one of the smartest pieces of furniture in the house. There are quite a few of these chairs now to be seen in Eastern Canada farm homes, as a result of a visit to Kemptville.

If you haven't visited this practical "wonder house" at Kemptville, you have a real treat in store for you, Mrs. Farm Lady. Try to make the trip this fall and bring your daughters with you. Your husband will enjoy looking over the farm and buildings. He will be more than interested in the stock, particularly the two mares purchased recently by the Honourable Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, specialy for the Kemptville school. It is at once good business and a genuine pleasure to visit Kemptville. So just combine business with pleasure. It always pays.

The two-year course in agriculture for boys opens October 11th. Write Principal James C. Shearer, Kemptville, for calendar. Mr. Shearer will also be glad to forward particulars regarding the two-year Home Economics course and the one-year Homemaker Course for girls.

DEMONSTRATION HOME AT KEMPTVILLE AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

Here are three pictures of the "Demonstration Home" at Kemptville Agricultural School. The fame of this home has spread throughout Eastern Ontario and has been visited by hundreds of women who have been more than interested in what the girls of the Home Economics classes at Kemptville are being taught in this home, under ordinary home conditions. From left to right are the kitchen and the living room, while centre below is a view of the home from the outside. Visitors are welcome at all times.

Observing Silver Jubilee This Week Of Co-operation of Montreal Colleges

(By Rev. R. S. Smith, of Elma.)

At Montreal this week, the Silver Jubilee of the Co-operation of the Theological College will be held. Twenty-five years ago the Wesleyan Theological College, the Diocesan College, the Presbyterian College and the Congregational College, through their governing boards, decided to co-operate in as much of the college work as was common to all the denominations.

This meant a very much closer friendship upon the part of many of the students, and much larger classes resulting in great benefit to the students and professors.

The amalgamation of the Presbyterian church, the Congregational church and the Methodist church resulted in the formation of the United Church of Canada, and in the three faculties of these three colleges coming together as one faculty with the Rev. James Smyth, B.A., D.D., L.L.D. as principal, Rev. D. L. Ritchie, D.D., as dean, and Rev. Prof. Walsh, M.A., D.D., as director of Graduate Studies.

The continuing Presbyterians secured possession of the college building and appointed new professors and carried on separately until this year, while the United church went forward with the new administration of the three colleges joined together as one and received its new charter as The United Theological College of Montreal.

For some years the United Theological College and the Diocesan College worked together as the Co-operating Colleges, during which time a beautiful building was erected on University street known as Divinity Hall. Here many of the classes are held wthout any distinction of denomination known among professors or students.

It is understood that with the opening of the 1937-38 session the Presbyterians will re-enter the group so that the co-operation will again be complete.

This week the silver jubilee of this movement is being celebrated and eminent gentlemen are expected to lecture. The expected guests are Rev. Leslie Weatherhead, M.A., a minister of the Methodist church in England, who is now the minister of City Temple, London, the most central of all Congregational churches in England. Mr. Weatherhead is one of the outstanding preachers of the British Isles and an author of great ability and distinction. His work in the field of psychology has been outstanding.

Another guest, much better known to students in Montreal, is Prof. E. F. Scott, M.A., D.D., of Union, New York. Prof. Scott is one of the greatest living teachers of the New Testament, and has written many books well known and well read throughout the continent. The third lecturer will be Prof. G. S. Brett, M.A., of Toronto University. Prof. Brett will delve into the teachings of philosophy and his knowledge of this field assures the group who listen some deep problems and studies.

It is expected that a very large number of ministers and past students of these four colleges will meet Tuesday to celebrate the silver jubilee of the movement of co-operation which has meant so much to the Protestant churches of this part of Canada.

"WE WHO ARE ABOUT TO DIE...SAULTE YOU!"

THAT was the greeting the gladiators of old gave to the Roman emperor before they perished in the arena.

But we are not gladiators and we are not going into battle. We have no hate for anyone. We are not sick of life. We do not wish to die. But we will, by the hundreds.

We are the people who are going to die in fatal motor accidents during the years 1937 and 1938.

Most of us have not even a premonition of the fate which awaits us. We do not realize that Death lurks around the corner. We have not seen his shadow nor heard his footsteps. But Death awaits.

Waits around the bend in the next car's faltering brakes, in the trail of some chance driver who loves to "jockey" in a line of traffic or swish past another car on a curve or hill. In the street, on the open highway, what matter where? Death waits and does not announce his coming.

We are marked down to die. The great god called Statistics has written down our names in his big book and by actuarial laws we are doomed.

We do not know it, but Death is coming.

Some of us are little children. Our deaths will be more horrible, more tragic, than others. But die we will. Parents, teachers and professional life-savers with all their earnest warnings will avail us not. We are marked down.

We are careless now. We do not take thought. Have you never been a child? Do you not know what it is to be a stranger to responsibility, to depend on others for care, for shelter, for protection?

Yes, protection. That is one of the things the child is taught to expect from his elders; something in a cruel and reckless age he does not receive.

Our deaths will be more tragic because more cruel than all the others. You can see the headlines: "FIVE CHILDREN KILLED IN SAFETY ZONE," "TOTS RUN OVER ON WAY FROM SCHOOL."

You will read these headlines many times over in the next year. BUT WILL YOU HEED THEM? WE WHO ARE ABOUT TO DIE . . . SALUTE YOU!

"If I'd known what sort of person was at the other side of the door I wouldn't have answered the bell!"

"If I'd known, lady, I wouldn't 'ave rung it."

Maudie: "What's wrong with the car? It squeaks dreadfully."

Jimmie: "Can't be helped—there is pig iron in the axles."

The children were having a nature lesson. Presently the teacher placed a bowl of goldfish on the table.

"Now, children," she said, "can any one tell me what a goldfish is?"

"Yes, teacher," cried Teddy. "It's a sardine that has got rich."

U. S. LIVESTOCK MARKET.

Live stock market and feed situation conditions in the United States indicate that feeding commercial livestock, unfavourable to producers during the past grain marketing year, is now definitely favourable. Since the harvesting of the 1937 grain crop, the feed grain prices have declined and live stock prices have shown vast improvement. Advances in the prices of beef cattle and hogs during June, July and August have brought the hog-corn and the beef-corn price ratios to a level which is above that for the early part of the year.

Large supplies of feed grain are in prospect and, with prices of live stock products higher than in some recent years, it is highly probable that feeding ratios will be quite favourable during 1938. This being the case, a material expansion in most lines of live stock production may be anticipated. The outlook for the consumption of all classes of live stock products is quite favourable, and a continuation of relatively high prices is to be expected during the next few months. There may possibly be some consumer reaction to present levels, but live stock numbers are moderate and the impact of consumer reaction will thus be lightened.

Increases in the volume of feed available and a more moderate volume of total live stock holdings indicate that animal units will be fed to heavier weights, particularly in the case of cattle and hogs.

Authorities at Washington indicate that despite some decline in the number of cattle on farms since the beginning of the year, the volume placed on feed during the present autumn will probably be much larger than the volume of a year ago. The high price of beef cattle during the summer months has resulted in favourable returns to most of the producers selling at that time, and this has stimulated inquiry.

REUNITED AFTER 20 YEARS; EACH THOUGHT OTHER KILLED

The interesting story of a re-union of father and son after more than 20 years during which time they believed each other to be dead, was unfolded in Cornwall when Zotique Bibeau, 21 Brookdale avenue west, Cornwall, received a visit from his son, Joseph Bibeau, 36, of South Bridge, Mass.

The father thought his son had been killed in the Great War and had given him up for dead years ago. Joseph has just returned to his home after a three-week visit with his father whom he thought had been killed in a lumbering accident in Maine 20 years ago.

A strange tale is told of the adventures of these two men, father and son, since young Joseph joined the United States army in 1917. He has been around the world since then, through a series of hair-raising and weird adventures.

TYPEWRITERS.

Interesting Facts About Our Dominion of Canada.

THE first recorded plan of a typewriter was set forth in an English patent granted to Henry Mill in 1714. His machine, he said, "would impress letters, one after another, as in writing." However, there is no record showing that he completed his machine. The list of type writing pioneers includes Progin of France, Wheatstone of England, and several Americans, but the most successful of all was Christopher Sholes, a printer and newspaper man who built his first model in 1867, when he was 48 years of age.

Sholes continued improvements to his model, assisted financially by James Densmore, a Pennsylvania businessman, who became his partner. In 1873 Sholes sold his patent rights for $12,000 to the Remington Company, which manufactured firearms, sewing machines and farm tools. Densmore also turned over his rights but on a royalty basis and in the course of years obtained royalties of more than a million dollars. Sholes died in 1890 when he was 71; he had lived to see his important invention come into general use.

The typewriter has been a great boon to business generally as well as to writers of all kinds and is an essential part of the equipment of all well appointed offices. It has provided employment for a large army of women who seem to possess in great degree the qualities that make good stenographers and typists. There are in Canada 62,000 female stenographers and typists, according to the last census.

The production of typewriters in Canada in 1935 was close to 16,000 machines. There were over 3,000 exported and nearly 5,000 imported. Among the imports were special typewriters for the use of the blind in this country.

Rowe Offers Year's Trial Of Ontario Liquor Act

A one-year-trial period for the provisions of the Liquor Control Act of Ontario will be given by his party, if elected to power, Hon. W. Earl Rowe, Provincial Conservative Leader, pledged at Owen Sound Tuesday night.

Unless "public confidence was restored" in the beverage room system at that time, he said, his party would close them.

"We propose to give this act its first fair trial, for a period of twelve months," he said. "During this time we will request the co-operation of the license-holders to restore public confidence in this act, which I believe is possible. The beverage rooms of this province must be cleaned up or closed up."

A new system of control was also proposed by Mr. Rowe. Local "non-political boards" would be established to maintain "decentralized supervision." These boards would co-operate with a "strong non-political centralized" Liquor Board, he said.

"It will," said Mr. Rowe, "be the duty of these district supervisory boards to make recommendations to the Provincial Commission as to:

"1. The character and ability of the licensee;

"2. Location of premises;

"3. The standard of the premises, and

"4. The hours of sale."

INDUCTED AS A JUDGE AND A BOY SCOUT.

A novel dual ceremony was that by which Charles W. Frossel of New York was made a Justice of the City Court and at the same time a formally qualified member of the Boy Scouts of America. At the close of the induction of Judge Frossel into his office on the bench, an Eagle Scout (equivalent of a Canadian King's Scout) came forward and administered the oath of the American Scouts. The added ceremony was carried out at the request of Judge Frossel, who had been for 16 years associated with Scouting in New York City, although not officially invested as a Scout.

Will Eat Hot Dogs and Stands If Rowe Charges Proven

Branding as ridiculous Conservative Leader Rowe's statement that beer licenses had been granted to hot-dog stands, Premier Mitchell Hepburn declared in Alexandria yesterday: "If Mr. Rowe can show me a single hot-dog stand in Ontario that has a beer license, "I'll not only eat all the hot dogs, but I'll eat the stand as well."

The challenge was made at a rally of Liberals of the counties of Glengarry, Stormont and Prescott, held in the Alexandria Armouries before an overflow gathering of 3,500 persons. D. A. MacDonald, president of the Eastern Ontario Liberal Association, occupied the chair and introduced the speakers.

Premier Hepburn's visit to Alexandria coincided with the opening of a completed stretch of Highway 34, "the Hepburn Highway" from Lancaster to Hawkesbury. The completed section is from Alexandria to McCrimmon.

PAPER WASTE FOR ROADS.

Nashville Banner.

ENGINEERS have discovered a by-product of major interest to highway builders, and consequently to the paper manufacturers.

The Canadian Chemical Association in session at Vancouver was recently told that the sulphite pulp industry in Canada and the United States was now wasting annually 2,000,000 tons of sulphite waste liquor for which uses were now being found. One of these uses, and a most important one, was as a dirt road binder, and it was preferable to oil.

Dr. H. K. Benson, of the University of Washington, made the report to the Vancouver convention. More than 2,000 miles of highway and streets in eastern Washington, Dr. Benson said, had been treated with unadulterated waste liquor from the pulp mills of the State, and the liquor has been found superior to oil for binding purposes.

SCOUTING FOR BRAZIL SCHOOLS

A law was recently enacted in Brazil under which the Scout Movement has been introduced into the elementary and secondary schools of the Republic. The new law, passed by the Legislature, and sanctioned by the President, provides that theoretical and practical training in Scouting shall form part of the programmes of the elementary, secondary, vocational and teachers' training schools. It is also provided that the Ministry of Education and Public Health shall draw up regulations which shall "lay down the trend and scope of the different programmes with a view to enabling the Scout Movement to achieve the lofty aim assigned to it—namely, the physical and moral development of future generations in Brazil."

WHO OWNS THE BORDEN COMPANY?

No one person or small group owns The Borden Company. Borden stock is owned by the public, 40,000 individual stockholders — many of them your neighbors — men and women living in towns, in cities and on farms located in every province of Canada and in every state of the United States.

This widespread public ownership of Borden is important to dairy farmers. It is one measure of the people's confidence in the name Borden. On such confidence Borden builds its everlasting advertising and selling efforts to create larger markets for milk and milk products, and a more stable income for dairy farmers.

A THEFT IS A THEFT.

AT ONE TIME we thought that the three years' imprisonment, a mandatory sentence, was too severe for the crime of stealing money from a letter, for often only a dollar or two would be taken. We changed our opinion when it was pointed out to us how tragic might be the consequences of the letter not being received. It might, for instance, have been written to answer a runaway son's appeal for money to go home. Not hearing he would conclude that he had been cut adrift, and that his father and mother never wanted to see him again. So, too, it has always seemed to us that the most menial offence was the theft of apples from a farmer's orchard or a raid upon a melon patch. Comic strips batten on such stuff, and tend to create the conclusion that it is everywhere condoned if not indeed admired.

But it seems to us that there are circumstances in which it is one of the meanest of petty crimes. Consider a tree giving fruit for the first time, a half gallon of plums, a dozen apples. Naturally one would desire to preserve them for an invalid mother or perhaps for a child on her return fom her holidays. Yet one comes down some morning and finds the little crop stripped, and perhaps considerable damage done by tramping about in the dark to the vines and flowers. Here it is not a case of stealing a peck of apples where hundreds of bushels are growing on scores of trees.

It is a case of despoiling the only little tree bearing fruit. Of course the thieves are not supposed to know that there is any special reason why the little crop should be precious, and why one would rather buy them a bushel of plums than lose the few dozen that actually were taken. So it strikes us that a theft is a theft, whether it is of a dozen strawberries or the looting of a bank, and that such practices tend to develop an insensitiveness, a callousness, to the rights of others which in the future might lead to serious consequences. We suggest that the robbing of a neighbour's orchard should cease to be a subject for humourous comment.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

THERE exists a general misunderstanding regarding the activities of mental hospitals. The idea persists that such institutions are maintained to provide for the shutting-up therein of those who are suffering from mental disease. The mental disease is thought of as a place where restraint is commonly practised and where freedom is almost unknown.

That such was the case in the past merely means that, in those days, mental diseases were not understood. They were viewed as the result of heredity, were considered as inevitable and incurable, and in addition, were looked upon in the light of a disgrace as they supposedly indicated some defect, of an undesirable nature, in the family.

We know now that mental disease is chiefly the result of faulty environment. The child's surroundings, his early training, the development of his emotional life, are the determining factors as to whether or not he secures mental health and avoids mental disease. Mental hygiene is now considered a part of preventive medicine and is based upon the understanding that mental health can be attained just as can physical health by proper care during the early development years.

If mental disease does develop, and the patient comes under the care of a mental hospital, he receives treatment. There are curative methods for mental disease just as there are for physical diseases. Modern medicine does not neglect the mental health at the expense of the physical. Modern medicine treats mental disease, and the mental hospital is an institution where curative methods are applied, with the result that a return to normal mental health is secured in a large number of cases.

As in other fields of medicine, it is preferable to prevent mental disease than to await its appearance and then attempt to cure it. The future of mental hygiene is full of promise, and its development will go far towards making life happier. There is no reason for misconceptions concerning mental disease and the work of mental hospitals. A better public understanding will help to secure even better facilities for those suffering from mental disease.

Hepburn Uses Private Car In Election Campaign

Former T. & N. O. "Whitney" Used by Premier in Tour of Northern Ontario.

IN a recent issue of the North Bay Nugget appeared a news item to the effect that Hon. Mitchell Hepburn had arrived in North Bay en route to Sudbury after a tour of northern points on private car No. 210 of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway. The same car was attached to the C.P.R. train which later took Mr. Hepburn to Sudbury.

There is no great harm in a prominent public man with many responsibilities adopting this means of conveyance, especially when it costs him nothing. But can this be the same Mitchell Hepburn who in 1934 railed against the very existence of private cars, and denounced cabinet ministers who used them as men who battened on the poor dirt farmers of the back concessions—his own pet phrases. Anyone who heard him talk on the subject three years ago would have assumed that rather than ride on a private car at public expense he would have his tongue cleave to the roof of his mouth (a sore trial in his case) and his hand lose its cunning.

Since June 19, 1934, however, Premier Hepburn has repudiated his promises respecting the T. & N. O. private cars and has been not only guilty of using the T. & N. O. car himself but using the T. & N. O. private car for electioneering in the present campaign.

In addition to using the T. & N. O.'s private car, Premier Hepburn broke a solemn pledge he made in the Ontario Legislature. That is, as long as he was Premier the private cars of the T. & N. O. would never leave the road's rails.

In the present campaign, Premier Hepburn travelled in state on the T. & N. O. private car, not only over T. & N. O but on those of the Canadian Pacific Railways from North Bay to Sudbury.

The hypocrisy of which the Ontario Premier may be capable can be appreciated when his vile abuse of former ministers of the Crown, who used the T. & N. O. private car on Government business, is recalled.

Not even Premier Hepburn accused former ministers of using the car for electioneering trips far from the T. & N. O. line as he himself has done.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, is another Minister of the Crown who has used the T. & N. O. private car for trips as far west as Kenora on election campaign trips.

The Hepburn Government is the first administration which makes its election trips on T. & N. O. private cars at public expense. Since 1934, Col. Macolm Lang, Chairman of the T. & N. O. has been accused of attending Liberal picnics in the private car provided for his use, while A. H. Cavanagh, Vice-Chairman, admits visiting Alberta on the luxurious public-owned car.

Number 210 happens to be the same private car which one of the early Boards of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway named the "Whitney" in honour of one of the best loved of Ontario's sons, who happened to be Premier when the railroad came into operation. Mr. Hepburn was so intent on purging the Province of all taint of what he called Toryism that one of his first achievements in statesmanship was to order the name of "Whitney" to be erased from the sides and doors of the old car and a number substituted. At the time this spiteful attitude toward the memory of a predecessor, dead for 20 years, shocked many old Liberals who had known Sir James Whitney well. It showed that, could Mr. Henburn have his way, the statue of Sir James would be removed from Queens Park.

Mr. Hepburn perhaps found riding in "210" more comfortable than another conveyance he used during his recent tour of Western Ontario. This was one of the motor cars registered in the name of General Victor Williams, Chief of Ontario Police.

"What time do you get up in the morning now?"

"As soon as the first rays of the sun enter my window."

"Well, that's very early, isn't it?"

"Oh, no. You see, my window faces the west."

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

MISS HELEN LACEY, B.H.Sc.

JELLIED SALADS.

THE FRESH FRUIT SEASON is almost over, so vary your salad menus by making jellied salads. These salads are just a little easier to make and serve in cool weather than in the middle of the summer as when it is cool weather the gelatine sets more quicky and retains its shape better when unmolded.

GOLDEN GLOW SALAD.

1 pkg. lemon jelly powder
1 cup boiling water
1 cup canned pineapple juice
1 tablespoon vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup pineapple diced & drained
1 cup grated raw carrot
½ cup nuts

Pour boiling water on jelly powder, when powder has dissolved, add pineapple juice, vinegar and salt. Pour into individual moistened molds and when jelly is partly set add diced pineapple, carrots and nuts, mixed. When firm and ready to serve, turn out on lettuce leaves. Garnish with parsley or a piece of maraschino cherry.

JELLIED PINEAPPLE AND CUCUMBER SALAD

¼ cup boiling water
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup dilute vinegar
Few grains salt
1½ tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2-3 cup canned pineapple juice
½ cup chopped pineapple

Mix boiling water, sugar, vinegar and salt; heat to boiling. Soften gelatine in cold water, dissolve in hot liquid, stirring constantly. Add lemon juice and pineapple juice. Strain, cool, stirring occasionally. When the mixture begins to thicken, add diced pineapple and cucumber. Pour into moistened molds; chill.

LEMON FRUIT JELLY.

1 pkg. lemon jelly powder
2 cups boiling water
1 tablespoon vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup finely diced celery
½ cup diced apple
2 oranges, diced
¼ cup chopped red or green cherries

Pour boiling water on jelly powder, add vinegar and salt and when partly set add diced celery, apples, oranges, and cherries. If red cherries are used place a green cherry in bottom of each mold before pouring in the jelly, and if green cherries are used place a red one in the bottom. When set, unmold on lettuce leaves.

MOLDED CHICKEN SALAD.

2 tablespoons gelatine
¼ cup cold water
2 cups cold diced chicken
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup diced celery
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped pimento

Soak gelatine in cold water five minutes and dissolve over boiling water. Add chicken, celery, green pepper, pimento and salt. Mix thoroughly with salad dressing. Put into a moistened mold. Chill thoroughly. Unmold on a bed of lettuce.

This salad may either be made in individual or large molds.

GINGER ALE SALAD.

2½ tablespoons gelatine
3 tablespoons cold water
1-3 cup boiling water
¼ cup lemon juice
2 tablespoons sugar
1 cup gingerale
½ cup malaga grapes
1 small banana
2 oranges
¼ cup chopped nuts

Soak gelatine in cold water for five minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Add lemon juice, sugar and ginger ale. Cut grapes in quarters and remove the seeds. Separate oranges in sections and discard membrane. Slice banana. When ginger ale mixture begins to thicken, fold in the fruit and nuts. Turn into moistened molds and chill.

Always cook custard mixtures over hot water or surrounded by hot water to prevent curdling.

* * * *

In cooking starch-rich foods such as breakfast foods, use enough water to soften all the starch present. This will help to prevent lumpiness.

* * * *

A double boiler is the best utensil to use in cooking cereals, mushes and starchy sauces as it eliminates danger of sticking and burning. The water in the lower part should be boiling.

* * * *

When measuring liquids, fill the measure with all it will hold.

* * * *

There are 16 tablespoons in a standard measuring cup.

* * * *

One tablespoon equals three teaspoons.

* * * *

Too much sugar will make a cake with a hard crust or a sticky cake.

* * * *

Too much liquid will make a cake that falls easily.

Wife: "George, dear, would you mind helping me with a little bit of arithmetic?"

Hubby: "Not at all."

Wife: "Well, if we pay the cook all the wages she wants, do you think we'll have enough money left to buy anything for her to cook?"

The traveller put up for the night at a little country town, put his shoes outside the door to be shined but found them unshined the next morning. "I left my shoes outside and they weren't taken away..."

"You might have left your watch there, too," interrupted the landlady, "we're honest people here."

HYDRO IS YOURS....USE IT!

Guardians OF YOUR SAFETY

Whether you are at home, or on the street, on trains, street cars or motor, in church or theatre—Hydro plays an essential part in your safety and the protection of your property.

Police and Fire Department signal systems render immediate service in emergency. Traffic lights permit control and safety on our streets. Wig-wag systems flash and signal the danger of approaching trains. Better lighted streets make crime difficult.

In addition to these many guardians of your safety, Hydro goes still farther. Every electrical appliance or device must be approved by the H. E. P. C. Testing and Inspection Department before it goes into your home—every piece of electrical equipment is made as free of hazard as scientific knowledge and highly-trained technicians can make them.

In addition to being an important factor in your safety, and the protection of your property, Hydro is making every effort to extend the benefits of low cost power throughout the Province of Ontario. These efforts are made in your best interests, and their success will affect your prosperity. You should, therefore, be vitally interested in Hydro and what it is doing for you.

JUDY SHOWS HER PUNCH

THIS is a horse story. It's about a horse of my Uncle George's called Judy, who was some horse, and no mistake. No, I'm not trying to sell you this horse of Uncle George's. You couldn't buy old Judy if you had all Henry Ford's money multiplied by twenty-three skidoo, and then about four thousand and forty-four dollars besides. Judy is dead.

Thirty years ago when my brother Leonard and I were living in Easton with our Uncle George Chapman we entered into a sheep-raising venture that might have ended in complete disaster if it had not been for an unforeseen intervention. Few industries have more difficulties than rearing sheep, but we soon learned that in our neighbourhood the greatest trouble of all could be summed up in one word—dogs.

A flock of one hundred sheep owned by Amos Snyder, whose farm was situated south of Easton Centre, was attacked by dogs three times in succession almost immediately after he had turned them out to graze one spring. His pasture, a rocky hillside, with thick woods above and to the west of it, was in so remote a spot that the dogs had twice raided the flock before he discovered what was happening. After the third attack he drove the sheep into their pen beside the barn and offered them for sale.

Leonard and I had some money on deposit in the Easton National Bank, and when we heard that the remaining eighty head could be bought for three hundred dollars, cash, if taken at once, we laid the matter before Uncle George.

Now, every young man, from no matter what part of the country, wants to raise something; for pleasure, for profit, or simply to spend money: rabbits, sheep, or the dickens. We just happened to want sheep. We ended up by having a dickens of a time. But you must hear it for yourself. Remember, I am not trying to sell you my horse, Judy!

Uncle George listened to what we had to say, but shook his head doubtfully.

"The dogs would get after them," he said. "And you would have to wait a year for any income, and there is the winter feed to consider. Where were you planning to pasture them?"

"Over in the back slashing," I said; "they'd do a lot of good there, eating off the new growth. Cattle won't keep it down, and if sheep aren't used it will be necessary to take an axe to it again in a year or two."

This seemed to be an effective argument, for Uncle George removed his cap and scratched his head. "That old fence is in bad shape," he said; by which we could see he was on the point of yielding.

"There are lots of poles," Leonard assured him; "we can fix up the fence in a day."

"Well," said Uncle George, "go on and gain experience, boys. I don't see how you can lose your principal, buying as cheaply as you do; but remember that I warned you not to expect any profit."

Despite this cold comfort, we bought the flock and drove the animals home the next day. We immediately turned them into the slashing and set about repairing the fence.

The task of making the barrier sheep-tight was much hader than we had anticipated. While we were at work the flock escaped twice and got into Lem Grover's meadow on the north; but the grass was short, little or no harm was done, and no protest was made. After we had raised the fence eight poles high, however, the sheep continued to escape—not into Mr. Grover's field now but over on the Packard farm to the southeast.

Joe Packard was a hot-tempered man, and the flock did do some harm to his wheat. He tried to drive them back with his dog after their second inroad, but merely succeeded in running them round and round the outskirts of the field. When we saw what was happening and hurried to the scene, we found him in a towering rage.

"I'll sue you just as soon as I can get the papers sworn out!" was his greeting.

That was unpleasant news, especially as the suit would necessarily be directed against Uncle George, since Leonard and I were minors. We strove to soothe the angry farmer and hastened to let down a length of the fence to admit the flock. Some of them had torn ears and scarred noses where his dog had bitten them, but we said nothing about that; and seemingly our forbearance and politeness bore fruit, for, despite his threats, he started no suit.

After the sheep had been returned to the slashing we searched the entire round of the fence, but could find no break. We strengthened every panel that seemed in any way weak, and finally went home, still in doubt, but hoping for the best.

"Your troubles are only beginning," Uncle George told us; "I guess you had better give up school and take turns in herding your flock." He spoke more than half in jest, as we knew; but when, at five o'clock in the morning we found the sheep again in the Packard wheat field, we began to fear that his warning might have a serious import.

Fortunately, we arrived so early we drove them back to the slashing before our neighbour discovered the trespass; but it was plain that if we left them alone they would promptly break out again. Once more we made a round of the enclosure and this time we came to the conclusion that the flock had been escaping at a point where the fence crossed the creek. Here we had suspended a log between two posts over the water, and numerous tracks that we discovered at both ends of the log convinced us that the sheep had been getting out by jumping upon it and using it as a bridge to cross the stream.

Leonard and I immediately cut poles and built a barricade at either end of the log. That afternoon we strung wires both under and over the log, across the creek, to make sure of stopping the sheep, and thereafter they remained in the slashing; but, as we soon discovered, our troubles with them were by no means at an end.

I think we stopped the exit by way of the creek on a Wednesday; and late on the following Friday afternoon Leonard took a half peck of salt to the slashing to give the flock a treat. He came back in a hurry, and the instant I saw his face I exclaimed:

"O dear, they're out again!"

"Worse than that," he replied; "at least four of them are dead, and one is all torn to pieces!"

"Dogs?"

"Of course! What else could it be?"

I went back with him, and Uncle George accompanied us. We counted seventy-five sheep, grazing quietly near the north side of the irregular field. One of them had blood on its fleece, but we could not get near enough to the animal to discover whether it was wounded. The dead sheep were farther to the south, two crowded against the fence and two others some distance away in a little thicket. After searching for some time we found the fifth, still alive, but so badly injured that Uncle George put it out of its misery.

"It's Joel Packard's Don," said Leonard with angry conviction. "He set the dog on the sheep; I saw him!"

"Tut, tut," Uncle George interposed. "You're just talking now; you don't know!" But that evening I overheard him telling Aunt Lucy when he thought we were out of earshot that a man who would set a dog on sheep out to be prosecuted; and the next day, happening to meet Mr. Packard in the road, he asked him whether he kept his dog confined at night. Our neighbour retorted tartly that he did not and didn't intend to; but at that time I do not think he had learned of the attack on our flock.

We notified the township supervisor of our loss, and appraisers were sent to inspect the carcasses. Later we received a township order for $3.75 apiece for all our dead sheep. Evidently the price we had paid for the flock had fixed the rate of recompense.

Six days passed, and then early on Thursday morning we heard the flock bleating plaintively and, dressing with all possible haste, hurried to the pasture. They were crowded in a corner of the field, and each animal was struggling to get in the centre of the mass. Counting them proved impossible, for they moved about rapidly and constantly, but two were wounded and a brief search revealed three dead animals, scattered across the slasing. They had been killed only a short time before, for their bodies were still limp and warm.

We drove the survivors of the flock down the land and left them in the barnyard. At breakfast we asked Uncle George whether he thought it safe to put them back in the slashing.

"No, of course not!" he said; "I don't even know that they're safe where they are, and there certainly isn't anything except straw for them to eat."

"Will you let us turn them into Judy's pasture till we can sell them?" Leonard asked.

"Why,"—Uncle George hesitated,—"I don't know what Judy might do to them."

"She came up where they were when we drove them over here and didn't do anything but sniff them over," said Leonard; "I don't believe she'd touch them."

"Well, you might try it—but you'd better watch her for a while."

Judy had been "Grandpa" Bunce's old carriage horse, and was then more than twenty years old. "Grandpa" Bunce had raised her from a colt and in his will had made provision for her care until she died a natural death. She was pastured summers and kept in a box stall winters on the farm. She had been housed alone and humoured all her life until she was the crossest creature with other animals that I ever saw. On the farm it had been found impossible to let her run with the other horses or even with the cows, and so she had a two-acre pasture to the northeast of the barn and in plain sight from the house. At one time, however, she had been given the run of the old orchard with a number of pigs and had not molested them, and so we had an idea that perhaps she would not attack creatures smaller than herself.

We turned the sheep into her enclosure after anointing with pine tar the wounds of the two that had been bitten and then stood by to watch events. Judy came galloping up, with her ears laid back, but after a momentary inspection of the foremost sheep she turned indifferently away and resumed grazing. Apparently she regarded the intruders as beneath her notice, and we soon decided that they were in no danger from her.

After school we sought buyers for our flock both at the Centre and the farmers in the neighbourhood; but no one seemed to want sheep at any price. One of the village butchers said he might take two a week, if they were fat enough; but that was altogether too slow and uncertain a market for our purpose. Uncle George looked glum when we told him the result of our quest. "They can't stay in that two acres more than a day longer," he said; "and they'll spoil the pasture for Judy by that time, I'm afraid."

We said nothing, for we were at our wits' end. Late that evening after we had gone to our room we sat by the window discussing ways and means when we were aroused by a sudden uproar somewhere beyond the barn. The frantic bleating of sheep rang out loudest, accompanied by what sounded like snarls, and then by an ear-piercing squeal.

"The dogs have come again!" Leonard shouted; and, half dressed as we were, we tore down the stairs and ran toward Judy's pasture, determined, if possible, to identify the assailants, even if we could do nothing else. As we crossed the barnyard, the squeal was repeated, followed by the sound of thumping and crashing against the heavy rail fence next to the lane.

"It's Judy," Leonard panted; "she's killing the sheep!"

That seemed quite possible, though it did not account for the snarls we thought we had heard. In the darkness we could see her dimly as she wheeled, leaped, kicked and struck with her forefeet. The bulk of the sheep showed as a white patch at the opposite side of the little pasture, but two grayish fleeces could be seen on the ground near where the horse gyrated.

"Back, Judy; back!" Leonard shouted, adding: "I wish I had a whip!"

Just then something black leaped almost over the fence toward us, and I caught a glimpse of gleaming eyes and teeth as it hung for a moment over the topmost rail before dropping back.

"Let her alone," I called; "let her alone; she isn't fighting the sheep!"

"What was that thing?"

"A dog, I suppose; we haven't any black sheep."

The baffled creature snarled and turned to flee across the pasture, but Judy was after him the instant he left the partial shelter of the fence. We saw him go down under her hoofs, with a single terrified yelp, and lie motioness except as the body was pitched about by her trampling.

Leonard scrambled upon the fence, whereupon Judy made a rush for him and he was glad to leap back. She was in such a mood that at the moment it was unsafe for anyone to enter the field.

While we were thinking what to do, Uncle George joined us. He succeeded in quieting the enraged mare, after which she permitted us to climb over the fence. Close against the bottom rail we found a yellow and black dog, a mongrel collie, that we had no difficulty in recognizing as Mr. Packard's Don, although the body had been beaten and trampled into shapelessness. The other dog, lying a few yards away, was black and short haired; we had never seen him before. Two sheep that they had killed were stretched out with torn throats near the body of the second dog.

Judy had several wounds on her legs and sides, but they were not serious. She was still in a very truculent humour, and before she would permit us to dress her injuries we had to lead her into a narrow stall and tie her head so she could not turn it.

But all unwittingly she had solved our problem. The next day we turned her into the slashing with the flock, and all ran there undisturbed until late in the fall. Then we found a purchaser at $4 a head for the seventy that remained. As the township had paid us for the ones killed and Uncle George had charged nothing for pasturage, we apparently were $17.50 up on our venture, not counting interest; but, of course, we realized that that was not legitimate profit. In fact, we almost certainly would have lost money had we carried the flock through the winter, for hay was expensive that fall. Thanks to Judy, we had saved our principal and were well content to drop the speculation on those terms.

Mrs. M. F. Hepburn.

(Article written by L. H. Birdsall, The Times-Journal, St. Thomas, Ont.)

SUCCESSFUL homemaker, devoted wife and mother, and a business woman of proven ability, Premier M. F. Hepburn has in Mrs. Hepburn an assistant and co-worker whose worth cannot be underestimated. The First Lady of the Province is a quiet, home-loving woman, a gracious hostess to the many who visit the Hepburn farm residence, four miles south-east of the city of St. Thomas. Both she and the Premier are the very soul of hospitality. Their home is always open to their friends and acquaintances—and be it said to their credit that their warmest friends are still the people who have known them for years. Like her popular husband, the Premier, Mrs. Hepburn has not permitted political success to turn her head. She is the same unaffected person she was 12 years ago when "Mitch" Hepburn was just a hustling young Elgin township farmer.

Only a comparatively few people know and appreciate Mrs. Hepburn's business ability. Filling the position of Prime Minister of Ontario, treasurer of the province, president of the cabinet council, as well as looking after two or three other portfolios within the last few months hasn't given Premier Hepburn much time to devote to his farming operations—not nearly as much as he would like to devote tothem. And Premier Hepburn isn't a small farmer. He has nearly 1,000 acres of land under cultivation or under pasturage in South Yarmouth, while his farming activities are diversified, to say the least. Somebody had to manage that big farm during the Premier's absence on official duty and the responsibility fell on Mrs. Hepburn. She has looked after the farm management exceptionally well, attending to the various details as capably as any experienced man could.

The Premier places implicit faith in her sound judgment. Born and raised on a farm, daughter of one of the most progressive and practical farmers in Southwold township, Mrs. Hepburn has a practical knowledge of farming and farm life that has stood her in good stead.

Pride In Home

Remaining at the helm while the Premier was attending to the affairs of state at Queen's Park, Toronto, has not lessened Mrs. Hepburn's pride in home, nor in the things that bear the stamp of the gentlewoman. Her home and home surroundings both claim her attention. She is an ardent horticulturist. To her the finest recreation is to get out in her spacious gardens, with her two happy children, six-year-old Peter, and three-year-old Patricia, working among her flowers, or supervising some new landscaping scheme or decorative unit. A great job entered the Hepburn household with the arrival of the Premier's and Mrs. Hepburn's adopted son and daughter. Denied children of their own, both have opened their hearts to the two children. Peter was the first to arrive, a sturdy little boy, always asking questions pertaining to the hundred and one wonders of his new life and every inch a young farmer. Then came Patricia, sunny-tempered little Patricia with more than a glint of red gold in her curled tresses. No mother could be more devoted to the welfare of her children. Every Sunday morning, when they are at home, Peter and Patsy accompany their mother to the little village of Union to attend Sunday School in the little United church that stands not far distant from the little country school where Premier Hepburn acquired his first knowledge of the alphabet and words of one syllable. Mrs. Hepburn was brought up in the Presbyterian faith—good Scottish Presbyterianism, but following church union she affiliated with the United church, attending the little church in Union where Peter and Patsy now attend Sunday School. Incidentally, it was the same church that the Premier attended in his boyhood.

The First Lady of Ontario is a busy woman—a busy farm woman. She has no time for snobbery but always time to welcome and entertain old friends. She is the same Eva Burton Hepburn who was born on the old Port Stanley Highway in Southwold township, near the historic village of Fingal, a little better than 37 years ago. She is the same girl whom the future Premier of Ontario courted about 18 years ago and took to rural dances, church socials and garden parties in the old family flivver.—Advt.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEE DISCUSSES OLD HOME PLANS

The publicity committee of Chesterville's Old Home Week met Monday evening in A. E. Bolster's store to discuss means of spreading information on the re-union to be held here July 30 to August 3 next, and Jack Morris was authorized to procure an electro of a design submitted for use on stationery of any person or firm who may wish it. An appeal through The Record was decided on for names and addresses of all old-time residents so that the mailing list may be completed as soon as possible. Mr. O. D. Casselman gave a report on the work he has completed on the history of Chesterville to be included in the booklet planned by the committee.

CORNWALL INDIANS TOPPLE ORILLIA TERRIERS 11-10

Cornwall Indians, senior lacrosse champions of Eastern Ontario, defeated Orillia Terriers 11-10 in Orillia last night in the first of a best-of-three series for the Ontario championship.

A packed house of 3,000 fans saw the Indians trounce the Mann Cup holders in a game packed with action. The return game will be played in Cornwall Friday, and the third, if necessary, at Toronto, Monday.

Orillia opened the scoring when Connell counted after five minutes of effortless lacrosse. At the end of the first quarter Orillia led 3-2 but by half-time Cornwall had gained a 6-3 lead which was reduced to 9-8 at the end of the third session.

MORRISBURG SAILORS WIN EASTERN ONTARIO LAURELS

Superb team work on the part of every member of the Morrisburg Sailors won for them the Eastern Ontario Junior Baseball championship at Kirkland Lake yesterday. The Ottawa City League champions crushed a struggling Kirkland Lake team 10-4 in the fourth game of the series.

Yesterday's game was played to break a tie which held the teams at the end of a double-header Monday. Kirkland Lake had won the first game Monday, Morrisburg took the afternoon game Tuesday, and the twilight affair had to be called at the end of the eighth innings because of darkness.

MOUNTAIN TOWNSHIP MAN BADLY INJURED IN FALL

Falling 27 feet from a scaffold while repairing a silo on the farm of Harry Holmes at Winchester Springs, Merrill Kennedy, 25-year-old youth of Mountain township, suffered a fractured left hip on Saturday afternoon.

In the fall, Kennedy struck two scaffolds beneath the swinging scaffold on which he was working. He crashed through the boards of the first, and knocked another worker off the second. The worker was not injured. The accident occurred when the ropes on the suspended scaffold gave way, it was believed. The injured man was taken to the Ottawa Civic hospital.

PAY FINES IN WINCHESTER.

Curtis Marcellus, of Williamsburg, appeared before Magistrate John McCormick in Dundas County Court at Winchester on Monday afternoon, charged with the theft of shoes from the Wedge Shoe Company, Williamsburg, valued at $11.25. He was released on suspended sentence of one year after furnishing $100 bond in two sureties for one year. He was also to pay the costs of $11.25 or serve 30 days in county jail at Cornwall. For failing to stop at a "stop" sign, Fred. Mulloy, of Mountain township, paid $5 and costs, and J. Jennings, also Mountain township, paid a similar amount for parking on the highway without lights.
