HENRY'S Shorthand School Ottawa, Ont.
No School in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa schools to come to it.
Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers, should specially say, "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

Chesterville Wo's. Inst. Entertained at Morrisburg

The regular monthly meeting of Chesterville Women's Institute on invitation from Mrs. W. P. Allison, Morrisburg, convened at her beautiful home on the banks of the St. Lawrence yesterday afternoon, with a large attendance. Motors had been provided by husbands of the members, with several of the ladies driving their own cars, providing luxurious transportation.

After the dispatch of routine business a short time was spent in community singing and the enjoyment of a solo by Mrs. W. N. Fulton; a reading by Miss Harrison; a violin solo by Miss Marion Casselman with piano accompaniment by Mrs. Bronskill followed by an encore; solo by Mrs. W. J. Cass, of Winchester, with response to hearty applause in a second number. Current Events were ably handled under the direction of Mrs. Hunt.

A vote of thanks was moved by Miss McGee and seconded by Mrs. W. H. Casselman and tendered Mrs. Allison for her lavish hospitality, after which the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

After all had partaken of an abundance of dainty refreshments an hour was spent about the grounds and in admiration of several outstanding dahlia blooms which had just reached perfection.

Lightning Strikes Same Tree Three Times

It is an accepted fact by many people that lightning never strikes twice in the same place, but this has been fairly disproved on the farm of Mr. Wellington Ball at Maple Ridge, where a tall elm tree, one of a row about a hundred yards from his house, on the west side has been struck three times within a few years, two of the times being recently. It was struck in the first instance during the particularly heavy storm a few years ago when St. Mary's church in this place was hit; the second time about a month ago when the barn on the Pitcher farm just north of town was fired and destroyed, the last time being no farther away than last Sunday afternoon. At all three times the bark and wood had been ripped out from top to bottom to a width of from one to two inches.

Chesterville Bowlers Have Interesting Contest

Tuesday evening saw lively times at the Bowling Greens when six rinks formed up in an inter-club tournament in which the prizes were four boxes of chocolates donated by the president and vice president.

George Elliot skipped the winning rink with a high score of 25 points, leading the field by one point.

To ensure a weekly event of a similar nature an entrance fee of ten cents per player was exacted to provide prizes for the week following, and to secure continuity for the season.

Each rink played three games of eight ends each, the scoring being on the point system with one point for each end won and a bonus of three points for winning each game, making a possible of eleven points in each game. The games were all keenly contested with the score as follows:

Doering, McMahon, Seymour, Elliot, skip—25 points.

Cadieux, Hamlen, Barwick, Dr. Hutt, skip—24 points.

Peake, Jarvis, Durant, Eric Casselman, skip—23 points.

Hubert Dixon, Pankratz, Brownlee, W. O .Dixon, skip—10 points.

Hess, Baker, Hunt, "Daddy" Reaburn, skip—10 points.

Arthur McElroy, McMillan, Tom Flynn, Geo. Cass, skip—7 points.

Wednesday evening next week has been set for a similar competition commencing at 7.30 when all players then on the greens will be framed up into new rinks by means of drawing names from a hat for skips, leads, seconds and vice-skips. The whole entrance fee collected this week will buy the prizes of next week with a similar entrance fee to provide for the week farther on. Chesterville greens at the present time have no superiors in Eastern Ontario and the competition in these events is just as keen as away from home.

In a "Button" game Monday night Hubert Dixon and Doc. Hutt wrested the coveted trophies from Tom Flynn and "Daddy" Reaburn.

The Iroquois club has announced a tournament for afternoon and evening next Monday and request two or three rinks from Chesterville. Any players desiring to be included in rinks should make their wish known by chalking up their names at the greens before Saturday night.

Car Plunges Into Longue Sault Rapids

Cornwall, July 31.—Police and volunteer searchers are scouring the banks of the St. Lawrence River this afternoon in an effort to locate the body of John St. Louis, 31, who is believed to have been drowned when his automobile plunged over a 100 foot embankment at Ault Park Sheik's Island, into the Longue Saulte rapids. St. Louis car was found submerged in the river shortly after nine o'clock last night.

Mystery surrounds the entire incident. St. Louis, a married man employed on Lock 19 of the Cornwall canal, was last seen at his home shortly after nine o'clock yesterday morning when he left his home a short distance west of here to come into the city to have repairs made to his automobile. At 15.30, he was seen driving west on the Provincial Highway by a friend.

When St. Louis failed to report for work at Lock 18 at six o'clock last night, when his shift was supposed to begin, lock authorities got in touch with Mrs. St. Louis to enquire regarding his whereabouts. Alarmed at the prolonged absence of her husband, Mrs. St. Louis made a search of the neighborhood but was unable to find any trace of the missing man.

Allan Campbell, Harold Miller and Henry Katz, three Cornwall youths were at Ault Park shorty after nine o'clock last evening and were informed by tourists that a car had plunged over the steep cliff into the rapids. The trio immediately ran to the bank and although the car could be easily seen in the water, about 12 feet from shore, they were unable to reach it owing to the swift current and deep water. As far as they could ascertain, no one was in the car at the time.

Provincial police were summoned and Constables Jack Berry and Wilfrid Bertrand rushed to the scene. With a rope about his waist to prevent him from being swept away by the swift current, Constable Bertrand wadded to the car and searched the interior but was unable to find an occupant.

TALL GRASS GIVES UP MANY BOTTLES OF BEER

It was rumored around town one evening this week that a search in the tall grass at the Driving Park the forepart of the week had yielded its reward in the shape of many bottles of beer, small boys securing a considerable quantity with enough to fill a case falling to the lot of an older searcher.

Baseball Affairs Reach Crisis

Baseball as she is manipulated in the Eastern Ontario Baseball league of which Chesterville has been a member seems to have reached a crisis. Just who make up the league now is hard to come at. Chesterville is said to be on the outside and will confine their further activities to exhibition games probably bringing in a few teams from Ottawa to fill out dates and give the fans a chance to enjoy their favorite sport to the season's end.

Complications developed when Chesterville played an unregistered player although he had been a resident of this place for some time, whither he had come unheralded and unsung seeking his daily bread and finding the necessary work to supply it. Two games which Chesterville won with this player in the batting order were protested and thrown out. The rulings of the president of the league were not satisfactory and an appeal was made to the head of the Ottawa and District Association for a hearing and an attempt to straighten out complications. Arrangements were made and a meeting called for seven o'clock Tuesday evening at Winchester Town Hall, to meet an official. At the hour named Chesterville's representative was on hand at the Town Hall waiting the arrival of the official, who, although said to have been in Winchester, failed to appear at the appointed hour. Just whose fault it is that Chesterville cannot get a satisfactory opportunity to place the matter before the Association officers cannot be said, but this will probably be the last year that Chesterville will remain affiliated with the parent Association.

Golf is a game in which the ball lies every way and the players always.

EYESTRAIN
Eye Strain is a well known cause for headache, dizziness and biliousness. If it is Eye Strain we can tell you so and also relieve the strain by prescribing the proper glasses—by using a suitable frame the glasses will not detract from your appearance and in some cases they can be made to improve one's looks. For example, Eye Strain often causes the brow to wrinkle and the expression to be cross or irritable.
Straining to see will some times cause the eyes to cross.

Auto and Train Crash One Killed at Tweed

One man was killed, another seriously hurt, a motor car demolished and 12 freight cars derailed when a freight train extra, running between Havelock and Smith's Falls, struck an automobile on the Canadian Pacific Railway level crossing at Tweed on Monday night.

The train had a clear track through the local station and was proceeding east when the automobile came in sight. John Burns, Buffalo, driver of the car, was apparently unable to stop his machine and travelled directly into the path of the oncoming freight which crashed into the car and carried it 30 feet to a switch pole.

Ross Brown, 35, Bona Law, front brakeman on the train, was killed while riding on the engine pilot at the time of the crash. When he saw the motor car was being carried into the switch pole he jumped but was too late as the first car behind the engine toppled over on him and pinned him down. Two of his legs were cut off and it was found necessary to amputate an arm before his body could be extricated.

Burns suffered internal injuries and severe scalp wounds, but is expected to recover. The car was reduced to a tangled mass of wreckage.

Aged Chesterville Lady Takes Ride in Massena Plane

While relatives and friends much younger were thinking up good excuses to remain on the ground, Mrs. Nancy Sorrell, who will be 78 years old October 13, blithely stepped into the big biplane Wednesday evening and went for a flight over Massena says the Observer. And in doing she realized a fond dream that she cherished ever since she saw her first airplane about 15 years ago which flew over her home at Chesterville, Ont.

"Was I afraid? No. I was no more nervous than I am right now sitting in this rocking chair. I would lots rather ride in an airplane than in some automobiles, and when the next one comes to town I'll probably take another ride," she said enthusiastically.

For the past fifteen years she has cherished the ambition to take a ride in an airplane. Planes have always fascinated her. She has spent hours in watching them fly through the air, and always has she wished that she might be sitting in the cockpit, looking over the side of the bird-like machine seeing the panorama spreading before her. Her children—and she has been the mother of eight, five of whom are still living—have smiled when she has told them that some day she would take an airplane ride. None of them ever shared their mother's ambitions at least, they never said very much in favor of the proposed ride.

Mrs. Sorrell was born in Dunbar, Ont., where her father was engaged in the hotel business. She married and lived in Chesterville, Ont., until about 12 or 13 years ago when they moved to Massena and since her husband died she has been making her home with her children. She has five children, Mrs. James Green. Mrs. D. P. Amo., and Alfred Sorrell. of this village. and Mrs. Angus Merkley and John Sorrell, of Chesterville.

Mutt and Jeff Tomorrow Night

In point of durable excellence, style and originality, the latest Mutt and Jeff offering, "Mutt and Jeff's Honeymoon", which will be the next attraction at the Opera House, Chesterville, for one evenng performance only, Friday August 2nd, is said to be the best of the series in which these two world-renowned famous stars of the cartoon have appeared since their oft-repeated excursions on the stage. The story is vastly apart from any of their previous efforts of adventure, comprising some of the most ludicrous situations, complications and screams gathered in one entertainment devised in recent years. This time little Jeff emerges from his role of underdog and shows, or rather tries to lead his fellow conspirator from the meshes of domestic infelicity to the summit of marital happiness. However, like Bobby Burns once said. the best laid plans of mice and men often "gang aglee". In this case they do with Mutt getting the worst of it. Nevertheless, it is all satisfactorily straightened out at the finish, with the twain making up again and vowing to reform their errant ways for the time being, at least.

Self-Righteousness

Rev. O. R. Miller, the Albany reformer, was talking about modern youth.

"Modern youth may be vicious—I know nothing about that," he said, "but I do know that it's terribly self-righteous.

"A young idler called on a millionaire and told him nonchalantly that he wanted to marry his daughter.

"The millionaire got ready to read the young fellow a lecture on idleness and began:

"'Young man, do you know how I made my money?'

"'Yes, oh yes,' said the young man, 'but I can't allow that to stand in the way of Lottie's happiness.'"

A Hint to Coucillors

A recent decision handed out by Judge McKinnon at Arthur, may be helpful to some of our Courts of Revision in fixing the assessment of property. A West Luther resident bought a farm for $1,200, and the Assessor and Court of Revision placed the assessment at $2,000. In giving judgment in favor of the plaintiff the bench ruled that the selling price establishes the real value and that the Court of Revision overstepped itself when it boosted the assessment. Valuation of a property apparently is based on what it is intended for. For fire insurance purposes the valuation is based on the amount it will cost to replace a similar building; the assessment is computed from the actual amount of money it will bring in the open market.

He—It's to be a battle of wits.
She—How brave of you, Gerald, to go unarmed.

Indian Village Will Be Located in Capital

Arrangements Made by Dominion Government Department of Indian Affairs and C. C. E. Directors.

This is not a midway show but is arranged to give the young people in particular an opportunity of seeing real Indians in a community at close quarters. The village will sion fee of any kind will be charged. sision fee of any kind will be charged.

Other Big Attractions

Creatore and his band in daily concerts, the Sensations of 1929, a big musical and dance revue, with a large cast, mostly girls; aerobatics by Capt. L. E. Maynard, motor boat races, horse races, fireworks, vaudeville of the highest order combining sensational and comedy, automobile show, dog show, pure food show, hobby show, baby show, poultry and pets, live stocks and scores of other interesting attractions will combine to make the week memorable. In the special sports program will be featured Phil Edwards, dusky British Guianan, of the Hamilton Olympic Club and the New York University. He is a stellar attraction in the athletic world today and is one of the most graceful and fastest runners ever seen in action.

Interest in the exhibition is shown by a large sale of coupon tickets which are available in stores and business places, from various branches of the Bank of Nova Scotia in the Ottawa district, or at the exhibition office in the city hall. These coupon tickets give five admissions for one dollar, a saving of seventy-five cents, but they will not be on sale after the opening day of the exhibition week.

THE FORD CAR STEEL SPOKE WHEELS

Close up view showing how Ford Specified Tire fits into drop centre rim.

Greater Strength and Durability

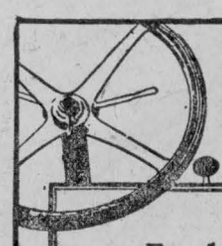

THE Ford Steel Spoke (Drop Centre) wheel is an advanced step in engineering and the result of exhaustive experimental tests. It is smart in appearance, extra strong, having a lasting finish, easy to clean and provides a simple method for mounting and demounting the tire without tools and in a fraction of the time previously required.

The steel rods or spokes, ¼" in diameter, are electrically welded to rim and hub shell. The finish is enamel baked on steel. Possessing great resiliency and being one solid piece, these wheels have a sturdiness not approached by any other type.

The Ford wheel eliminates loose, squeaking spokes and rims, pinched tubes, chipped or peeling finish, necessity of tire flap, misalignment of tires lue to carelessly mounted rims, and a host of other vheel and tire ills formerly encountered. It permits of easy steering and no drumming sound is created by the wind.

There is an enormous amount of careful work necessary to build strength and service into the Ford Steel Spoke wheel, and the results justify the engineering study and skill devoted to this feature of the Ford car.

'Plane Stays in Air 420 Hours, 21 1-2 Minutes

St. Louis, Mo., July 30.—The "St. Louis Robin" glided to earth in a faultless landing under its own power at 7.38.30 o'clock tonight (9.30.30 p.m., E.S.T.), after 420 hours 21 minutes and 30 seconds in the air. Dale Jackson and Forest O'Brien had exceeded by 173 hours 37 minutes and 58 seconds the previous world's record for endurance flight set July 12 at Culver City, Cal., by Roland Reinhart and Loren Mondell, in the Angeleno.

A crowd of about 13,000 stormed over the ropes as the "Robin" after circling the field twice, landed. A cheering throng surrounded the fliers. Police formed a cordon as guards lifted the pilots from the plane and pushed them through the crowd to the Curtis-Robertson Company's hangar, where their wives awaited them.

The crowd trampled over the ropes, ran out into the field and milled about the plane. Fears were felt that the craft would be damaged by souvenir hunters, as was the case when the "City of Cleveland" landed after its record flight on July 6, but the "Robin" was protected by police and was soon wheeled into the hangar, little changed in appearance by the flight.

Movie men and photographers snapped their cameras in the glare of artificial flares as the plane landed, making a weird scene. The fliers posed.

The landing was in compliance with a request made at 8.45 o'clock in the morning by Major Wm. B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Company, sponsors of the flight, which began on July 13.

Both in Good Shape.

Jackson and O'Brine were in excellent physical condition. They walked on steady legs despite their long confinement in cramped quarters. Each had a slight growth of beard.

Dr. A. C. Leggat, field surgeon, said they were a little pale and undernourished, but otherwise in good condition. O'Brine gained a pound and a half in his eighteen days in the air while Jackson neither gained nor lost. These facts were considered a remarkable commentary on the stamina of the two men. Most fliers lose weight in sustained air performances.

Both also had normal hearing, despite the long continued roar of their motors. Their legs were steady and their heart action normal. Only their pulses had speeded up a bit. Both had a pulse of 84 on landing. Jackson's pulse at the take-off was 74 and O'Brine's 76.

In the performance of exceeding by more than seven days the time of any other men in sustained flight, Jackson and O'Brine stayed aloft to the end of the gasoline with which the plane was supplied at the last refueling contact earlier in the day.

Fliers Earn $15,672 Each.

Dale "Red" Jackson and Forest O'Brine earned $31,255 jointly or $15,672.50 for each man in the record breaking flight of the St. Louis Robin.

The Feeding of Poultry On Range

Experimental Farms Note.

In order to produce good poultry stock, it is necessary to induce a continuous growth throughout the growing season. To accomplish this, keep the flock comfortable, well supplied with good feed and abundance of water.

At the Central Experimental Farm Ottawa, the growing stock is cared for as follows: The pullets and cockerels are put on separate fields of clover or alfalfa which have been free of poultry for at least three seasons, during which time a series of crop rotations have been practised. When possible this range of succulent greed food is generally located beside a field of corn, or sunflowers, or an orchard, where the chicks can get extra green food, and grubs, and have lots of shade during hot days. The movable range house, one that keeps the birds cool and comfortable during the warm and sultry evenings, is so constructed as to make fresh air the limiting factor. The water utensils are placed in the shade near the self-feeding hoppers. Five foot double hoppers, partitioned for mash, grain, shell and grit are conveniently located. The growing mash is composed of: bran, middlings, finely ground yellow corn and oat flour, equal parts; 1 per cent. fine table salt, 1 per cent. cod liver oil and (on good range) 5 per cent. animal mixture of ground meat scrap, bone meal, fish meal, milk powder and cod liver meal. The animal feed is varied according to the season or the rate of sexual development required. The grain mixture consists of cracked corn, and wheat, equal parts, and one half part of plump oats. This method of feeding avoids waste and minimizes labor. However, if sparrows are quite numerous it is good economy to close the whole grain section of the hopper and practice hand feeding. The water vessels and hoppers are moved to fresh grounds occasionally.

A copy of Bulletin No. 1, "Poultry Feeds and Feeding" should be in every poultry keeper's possession. It may be obtained, free, from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Over a Century in Railroading

Sixty-one active years in railroading is the unique record of W. J. Grant, district freight agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Hamilton and this length of service is claimed never to have been reached by any other railwayman in the Dominion. Mr. Grant has just retired and 46 of his 61 years of service have been with the C.P.R. At the same time Mr. J. P. Clancy, assistant foreign freight agent of the C.P.R. at Toronto, has also retired after 45 years of service with the Allan Steamships Line and the Canadian Pacific. Between them they have completed 106 years in railway service. Photographs show, left, Mr. Grant; right, Mr. Clancy; below, J. W. Maguire, who succeeds Mr. Grant as district freight agent at Hamilton.

Imagination

Imagination? Yes, you have it. But do you use it?

Imagination is the gift of man that places him over all other creatures.

It is the gift that has made the progress of the world. It permits man to peer into the future and to vision and work out scientific and mechanical improvements and happier social relations. It is essential to power and to progress.

And you have it? Sure, you have.

You can sit in your chair and imagine yourself a king, or wealthy, or powerful, or in whatever situation you please. You can imagine yourself in whatever adventure you would enjoy.

And you are as you imagine—while you sit still and dream.

A lot of us do it. And it's fun.

You can imagine yourself the hero or heroine of the story you read. You can see the sights of the travel story. You can travel with Byrd in the Antarctic, or with Lindbergh in the air. You can live the movie. You can enjoy the voices from all over the world on the radio.

All this imagination offers you. And you accept.

What would life be without imagination? It eases the stern realities.

But why not use this gift of imagination, in addition, to even greater purposes—to practical purposes?

Cast yourself with your imagination into your job. Think how you would like each operation to be performed, what improvements are possible, how you might go about each accomplishment.

If you produce, imagine the ways it might be done better—less waste, greater production.

If you record, imagine how the work might be done quicker, more intelligently, more significantly.

If you sell, imagine your customer being rendered the best possible service, how your goods suit his best needs. Imagine you're talking to him, what arguments he is going to use, and how you are going to convince him.

You've often heard this remark, "Ha! Just imagine:" Well, do it. Have a vision and make a program. Then carry out the program. That's what imagination is for.

THE SCARLET HUNTER

Let me have a scarlet maple
For the grave-tree at my head,
With the quiet sun behind it,
In the years when I am dead.

Let me have it for a signal,
Where the long winds stream and stream
Clear across the dim blue distance,
Like a horn blown in a dream.

Scarlet when the April vanguard
Bugles up the laggard Spring;
Scarlet when the bannered Autumn
Marches by unwavering.

It will comfort me with honey
When the shining rifts and showers
Sweep across the purple valley
And bring back the forest flowers.

It will be my leafy cabin,
Large enough when June returns,
And I hear the golden thrushes
Flute and hesitate by turns.

—Bliss Carman.

Bathing Suits as Displayed At Sunnyside, Toronto

A bathing suit, according to Mr. Webster, is a set of things having individual use, together constituting an outfit.

But Br. Webster may not have seen a modern bathing suit.

For a modern bathing suit isn't a set of anything. It singly and solely sonstitutes itself, as little self as possible.

Gone are the days of long cotton stockings, of voluminous bloomers and bulky blouses, of middy collars and pleated skirts, gone down the trail of hobble skirts and hat-pins.

Yesterday afternoon a slim young thing stood on the diving board of the pool at Sunnyside. She wore a bright red suit. At least it's called a suit. It scarcely covered the front of her body and only part of her back. It didn't cover her legs at all. A shoelace stretched across her shoulders above the deep sun-tan back.

And she was just one of over 4,000 similarily scanty-clad people on the beach and in the tank.

Along came a man also wearing a red suit. In fact, red is a popular color at Sunnyside. But his suit did not have a sun-tan back. His little daughter walked beside him. She, too, wore red. Both suits covered their wearers to the same extent. They both dived into the clear white water.

Six persons attired in little black suits paraded up and down arm in arm. None wore caps.

"Which are girls?" someone asked, "if any?"

"Those with the shortest suits," one of the officials answered. "It's the only way we can tell."

A great many others not satisfied with sun-tan backs had huge pieces removed from under the arms, just a strap holding back and front together. "Speed suits," a small youngster announced.

Figures paraded the beach, wearing jerseys, sweaters, over their bathing suits. From beneath the jerseys the suits didn't show. They looked curiously undressed.

A middle-aged woman sat on a bench. She looked long and curiously at the girl with the shoestring across her back. She smiled, then spoke to her modern young daughter. "We even wore corsets in swimming," she said.

Yeh, Girls, How About It?

How is this for a lecture from a practical man to a junior class in a woman's college? "What are you worth to society?" Of course you know all about Greek verbs—but what can you do with your hands? To be sure, you have trigonometry and other occult things known as mathematics at your fingertips, but can those same fingertips do anything with a needle and thread? Do you sew up the hole in your husband's pocket after he has lost his penknife or before? What about his frayed shirt cuffs? There is a great gulf fixed between study at school and work done at home. Can you step across that chasm?

With some autoists the turnover is costlier than the up-keep.

Presbyterian W.M.S.

A special meeting of the Presbyterian W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. I. Garrow when the members of Dunbar and Morewood auxiliaries were the guests of the Chesterville society There were about fifty present and the afternoon was most thoroughly enjoyed by all. The president, Miss Jamieson, presided and the meeting was opened by the singing of hymn 93 followed by a prayer by Miss Jamieson. The scripture reading was from Matt. 27 and hymn 735 was then sung. Minutes were read and approved. The chapter for the month from the Royal Road was taken by Mrs. L. Doering. After the roll call a paper by Mrs. Raney, of Morewood, was much enjoyed. Hymn 535 was followed by Bible Study from James I by Mrs. Thom, of Dunbar. The presidents of Morewood and Dunbar thanked the ladies for their invitation and the meeting brought to a close by the singing of "Faith of our Fathers" and prayer by Mr. Nimmo.

The serving of refreshments brought to a close a most profitable afternoon.

Murphy's Majority 1800

Dr. W. S. Murphy, of Smiths Falls, who set himself the task of "busting the county political machine" because he considered the Conservative party nominating convention had not accorded him "British fair play," is the new member of Parliament for Lanark. Running as an Independent Conservative he was swept into office Monday on the crest of a large majority piled up over T. A. Thompson, the official Conservative nominee.

Final figures will not be ready for a day or two. Owing to the decisive nature of the victory by Dr. W. S. Murphy, the candidates are making no special effort to secure the figures for missing poles. It is predicted the final majority for Dr. Murphy wll be about 1,800 over his opponent.

When the result of the polling became apparent, the townspeople of Smiths Falls flocked into the business section and staged a demonstration for the favorite son of the hour.

Later addressing the throng from the window of his committee room, Dr. Murphy, with much feeling, thanked his supporters for their loyal work in his behalf. The results of the balloting clearly showed that right had triumphed, he said.

Sun Heat and Health

Spokane Spokesman-Review.

It was about the middle of last winter that the campaign for tanned cuticles reached its peak. Along in the middle of January, the idea of basking in the sun, with its healing rays gently caressing the skin, had what is known as a strong customer appeal. Those who could afford it went south, others read the scientific articles in the Sunday papers and waited for summer, when they would become happy, tanned paragons of health.

Now, in the middle of the summer, things have happened to some of us that have dulled the fine edge of our enthusiasm for the health-giving rays of the sun. Pushing a lawn mower on a July afternoon has a tendency to make one wonder if the marvels of heliopathy have not been overrated. Rowing a boat across the sunblessed surface of a glassy lake has the same effect.

Of course, the doctors tell us, exposure to the sun is beneficial only in moderation. We must keep that in mind at all times. We must learn to avoid excess in the matter of ultraviolet rays. The blistered neck and the peeling shoulder do not demolish any scientific theories. They only prove that the human skin is not cowhide, and that it should be treated with gentle discrimination.

To which we reply: "Oh, very well," and look for a shady place to sit in.

To Stiffen Auto Tests

More rigorous examinations for automobile drivers were intimated yesterday by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, in an effort to eliminate carless, reckless and incompetent drivers.

Besides higher standards of examination, Mr. Henry plans to check up on the examiners appointed by the department with a view to finding out their special fitness as examiners. In some instances this checking has revealed the fact that men unsuitable for the post have been given positions.

Very Welcome Showers

After a day of almost scorching heat most welcome showers came Sunday afternoon to revive wilted vegetation as well as to make living conditions more bearable for humanity. Although a strong wind blew almost all day it failed to temper the heat of the sun until late afternoon when storm clouds gathered to the west. In Chesterville before the rain arrived the wind had lost its force and the rain fairly teemed down for some time. While the showers were no dobut more or less local, it can safely be said that the whole of Dundas county, at least, had their benefit, the worth of which can hardly be estimated. Since Sunday the weather has been more temperate and every one is more optimistic for crops.

Big Dirigible Leaves Starts Over Atlantic

Dr. Hugo Eckener at midnight announced that the Graf Zeppelin would leave for the United States at 3.30 a.m., today, (9.30 p.m., Wednesday, Eastern standard time). The big ship got away one minute ahead of her schedule.

She described one circle over Friedrichshafen, then rapidly disappeared in the west, her new motors, taking the place of those which failed on the previous attempt to reach the United States, making a steady hum.

The ground crew started to drag the huge airship from her hangar shortly after 2.30 a.m. At that hour the flight crew and passengers were ready to go aboard, and they entered their quarters as soon as the bow was clear.

It was 3.25 a.m. before the dirigible was entirely clear of the hangar.

As the ship was dragged from the hangar, a stowaway was seen to jump from a beam to the top of the Zeppelin, and to disappear through a ventilator into the interior of the airship. A shout was raised, and the crew quickly found him, but the Zepppelin was not halted to eject him, and it sailed with the interloper aboard.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, before entering the gondola, said that the first part of the journey promised to be difficult because of weather conditions. Early Wednesday evening he was informed of a low pressure area over Ireland and shortly before midnight that it had moved to the English Channel.

"Our latest advices," he said, "are that there are clouds and rain over northwestern France, all the way as far as Strasburg. So we shall have a hard time flying low under those clouds; later, however, we expect to meet better weather."

Gas was pumped into the balloons of the Zeppelin untl the last few minutes before the get-away.

Suspenders and Belts

In the year 1900 or thereabouts, several million Canadian and American boys informed an equal number of fathers that suspenders were out of date and the only safe and sane trouser protector was the belt.

Those fathers of 1900 protested, but youth had its way—and the belt dominated the world.

In 1929 or thereabouts, several million Canadian and American boys informed an equal number of fathers (the fathers were the boys of 1900) that belts were out of date and the only safe and sane trouser protector was the suspender.

These fathers of 1929 are protesting, but youth is having its way—and the glaring suspender now helps to demonstrate the fact that after all the young man of today is merely his grandad over again.

As for woman—well, it begins to look like fig leaves again, for without them many an under-developed girl will be over-exposed.

Temperance in Thrift

In the course of conversation with a friend the other day, he said: "Finkelbaum, there's a vacant lot next door that I thought of buying. What's your idea about it?"

We replied that the wisdom of the purchase depended on two things: how cheap the property was, and how much he wanted it. He said that it was no great bargain, and that so far as he was concerned it was no Naboth's vineyard. But he had the idea that later on it would be worth more. We pointed out that if he bought it, he would require two years to pay for it, and that while he was acquiring it he would have to stint himself of many things. On the whole we advised against the investment.

Experience has taught us the unwisdom of mortgaging earnings too far in advance. The purchase of a home is an exception. The average man who becomes a home owner, does so after several years of self-denial and saving. Whether at the end of the period the house is worth more or less than he paid for it is unimportant. The important thing is that he should own it. If the lot of which we have spoken had appeared to our friend as an integral part of his home we should have taken a different view of it. But he regarded it more of an appanage. It is not worth a man's while to have all his spare money earmarked years in advance for a mere appanage.

There is a golden mean to be observed in the matter of thrift. A certain amount of it is profitable, morally and materially. Too much of it can break a man's heart, and render him unfit to enjoy what he has acquired at the cost of half a lifetime's self-denial and drudgery. For a man to work out a program that is to reach its fruition in a year or a couple of years is ordinary prudence. For a man to comfort himself to an undertaking the wisdom of which cannot be manifested for a generation, is something else again.—Ex.

On "Getting Even"

Spiteful minds devise many ways of "getting even" with those against whom a grievance is nursed, but a Newark, N.J., man has discovered something original in this respect. Progress was to blame for it all. For two decades this man had led a peaceful life on his small dairy farm near the city; but the city grew, fashionable dwellings sprang up in the suburbs, and a dairy farm was not popular any more. The climax came when civic authorities notified the milkman, now retired, that they intended to run streets through his cow pasture. He fought this decision in the courts, and when actual work was begun on the new streets the owner of the land grasped that bright symbol of liberty known as "Old Glory" and planted himself in front of the oncoming steam roller. But all to no avail. The city had its way in the courts, and the steam roller proceeded with its vandalism.

And now to get even. The owner of the land had built some apartments in the neighborhood which had gradually become surrounded by homes of fashionable people. So—happy thought!—the man who had been dispossessed of his dairy farm and large signs plastered all over his tenaments announcing that they would be let to colored tenants only. And the colored tenants are there in the midst of Newark's four hundred. The four hundred cannot do anything about it, though Washington just now might lend a sympathetic ear. The upshot of it all is that spite fences, spreading of injurious gossip, rumors of houses being haunted, and so on, are all in the discard, and there has been evolved a larger, more spectacular, and certainly more effective method of "getting even."

Banff Athletic Centre of Canada

Typical Highland dancers and piper grouped on platform outside the Banff Springs Hotel. Finish of 100 yds. race showing track and grandstand where the Dominion championships meet will be held Labor Day next.

All eyes will be turned to Banff next Labor Day for on that date the 40th annual Dominion track and field championships meet will be held at the beautiful resort in the Rockies. A fast 20-foot quarter mile race track, built up and surfaced like a tennis court will be ready for the meet, the infield is being specially prepared and resown and the grandstand enlarged.

The Banff Highland Gathering and Scottish Music Festival will precede and coincide with the championships and it is expected that many of the athletes will be present during the gathering in order to accustom themselves to the new surroundings in which they will compete. Highland pipers and dancers from all parts of Canada will be present at this assembly giving a Scottish flavor to the national championships this year.

Must Bid as a Creditor

Whether a creditor, attending a public auction sale, at which the debtor has advertised his farm and implements to be sold according to certain terms, set out in the advertisement, and who has instructed the auctioneer how to deal with the purchase money, can defeat the debtor's intention by buying in the goods at the sale, and then claiming the right to set off his debt against the amount of his purchase, was the question which His Honor Judge Sutherland was called upon to decide in a case tried at Hanover last month.

The facts were that one Stade, had instructed auctioneer R. H. Fortune, of Ayton, to sell his farm stock and implements in the Township of Normanby, and out of the proceeds to pay the rent and taxes, etc., and hand over the surplus to him. At the sale Steinhagen, an uncle of Stade, to whom Stade owed $200, bought goods to the extent of $171, and removed the goods and refused to pay for them, upon the ground that Stade owed him over $200. The pialntiff, the auctioneer, sued Steinhagen for $171, the value of the goods sold, and recovered judgment for the amount, with costs, the Judge finding that as Steinhagen had not communicated to the auctioneer that he was bidding as a creditor, he could not defeat the arrangement already made. In a written judgment His Honor cites an English case, in which the law was stated by the trial judge as follows:

"If an arrangement between the owner of goods and a purchaser of the goods at an auction, either that the purchaser shall have them without payment, or shall be entitled to set off a previous debt, is not sufficient if not communicated to the auctioneer's claim for his charges, I fail to see any principle upon which an arrangement can defeat a previous arrangement between the owner of the goods and the auctioneer as to the disposition of the proceeds of the sale, on the faith of which agreement the auctioneer acted."

Divorce Petitions Are Mounting Up

House of Commons last session has not had a detrimental effect on new business for the senate divorce committee next session. There were 10 petitions held over to be dealt with next session and already 24 new petitions have been received. At this rate when parliament convenes in 1930, there will be the usual 200 petitions to be heard.

The "Don'ts" of Canning

It is often a good thing to point to what a person should not do, and in canning this seems particularly true. The reason is that a great many housewives know something about a subject, but do not, perhaps, realize the necessity for thoroughness, and extreme care.

Don't fail to test jars with new rubbers before sterilizing.

Don't try, at first, to can vegetables in any jars larger than a quart. The smaller the jar the easier to sterilize.

Don't use old rubbers. It is cheaper to buy new rubbers than to lose your vegetables.

Don't try to use a wide rubber on a screw-top jar. The wide rubbers fit the spring-top jar and the narrow rubbers the screw top.

Don't shorten the time of sterilization.

Don't fail to seal jars tight. See that the spring is adjusted to give good pressure on spring-top jars and that the screw-top does not slip on the gem jars.

Don't let the heat down so that the water fails to boil.. Keep it jumping.

Don't use a doubtful sealing jar for vegetables. Put some easy keeping product such as pickles, jams or jellies in chipped or uneven jars.

Don't use a dirty dishcloth to wipe off the top of the jar. It may undo all your work.

The Federal Department of Agriculture can supply literature on the subject of canning. It will be mailed on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The Baby Austin

Henry Ford has been manufacturing automobiles in England for some years. Now Sir Herbert Austin proposes to return the compliment. Sir Herbert announces that plans have been made for the establishment at Butler, Pa., of a plant where his Austin Seven—horsepower, not cylinders—will be built for the American market. It will sell at something under $500 and thus will give Mr. Ford active competition in the low-price field.

Many Canadians who have toured the British Isles have learned to appreciate the sprightly little baby Austins and there excellent service on the perfect English roads. The American model will be the same as the parent car except for the steering gear and certain minor adjustments to American practice. The Austin weighs only 950 pounds, is 9 feet 2 inches long and has a width of three feet 10 inches. It is capable of high speed, and gets prodigious mileage out of gasoline, according to its manufacturer.

A Traffic Problem

A town out west is strong for safety first, having a bylaw which proves as follows: "When two cars come to a crossing both shall stop and neither shall start until the other is gone." If this is carefully observed, there will be few collisions, but some slight traffic congestion may result.

AFTER SCHOOL

When all my lessons have been learned,
And the last year at school is done,
I shall put up my books and games:
"Good-bye, my fellows, every one!"

The dusty road will not seem long,
Nor twilight lonely, nor forlorn
The everlasting whippoorwills,
That lead me back where I was born.

And there beside the open door,
In a large country dim and cool,
Her waiting smile shall hear at last.
"Mother, I am come from school."

—Bliss Carman.

When Car Stalls on Railroad

It is safer to leave the car in high gear and step on the starter button rather than attempt to start the motor when the engine stalls on a railroad crossing. This should be done when time is at a premium. The battery will probably move the car off the rails, where, under the stress of excitement, one is liable to flood the carburetor in attempting to start the motor.

Lighting Hens in Winter

By J. E. Dougherty, Associate Professor of Poultry Husbandry, University of California.

Does it pay to use artificial lighting in the laying house in Winter? Mathews in his book on the use of electricity in agriculture in England says, "The use of electric light to increase egg producton during the winter months has proved to be one of the most important commercial innovations during recent years. It has now long passed the experimental stage and is taking its place as one of the necessary installations on the modern poultry farm. Unfortuantely there are a number of poultry farmers who, after placing lights indiscriminately in the laying pens, and further, using them irregularly fail to obtain the desired results, and then raise their voices against the practice. Investigation of cases similar to these showed that the cause of thei trouble was due to too little attention being paid to the types of reflectors used, the incorrect arrangement of the lights and erratic time-keeping. The intensity of the light on the floor is a determining factor in the amount of activity shown by the birds during the lighted periods, and there is a certain density of light below which the activity of the birds decreases.

Fairbanks states that the use of artificial light to supplement daylight and make a longer working day for the layers, thereby stimu- production during the winter months, has been proved conclusively to be practical and profitable. He states further that under normal daylight conditions the intensity of the light up to a certain point determines the speed with which birds can pick up grain or eat mash. Therefore it is reasonable to assume that when artificial light falls below a certain intensity there is a decrease in the activity of the birds and in the amount of food eaten. In his investigations, Fairbanks found that there must be not only an effective illumination of the food and feed hoppers but also some direct light on the perches to obtain maximum activity of the birds, increased feed consumption and more eggs. The New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station placed two pens of 100 hens each under exactly similar conditions except that one pen was lighted each morning from Nov. 1 to April 1. In this period the lighted pen produced 6,992 eggs and the unlighted pen 5,595 eggs.

At the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station pullets given morning light from Nov. 1 to April 1 laid 17.1 eggs more per bird in this period than similar pens of pullets receiving no artificial light.

The California Agricultural Experimental Station says, "It has been assumed that (a) a laying hen does not need any more sleep and rest in winter than in summer to keep in good health; (b) the only reason for her spending a longer time on the roosts in winter is because there are more hours of darkness. Experiments and practical experience seem to prove quite conclusively the soundness of these assumptions. Lighting simply exerts a stimulus on production by lengthening the working day so that the hen can eat and exercise more. It does not over-stimulate or force in the sense that a drug does. It is, therefore, not injurious to either pullets or hens and there should be no ill effects."

The capacity of a hen's crop being limited, she cannot, during the short days of winter, fill her crop before going to roost with much more than enough food to nourish her body during the long hours of darkness. Very little is left to be manufactured into eggs. The result is less eggs in winter than at other seasons of the year.

Hens begin to respond to artificial lighting in a week or ten days and the maximum response is obtained in about three weeks. Production then continues at high level well into March when a slump usually occurs which lasts for some weeks and is accompanied by a partial molt. It is evident, therefore, that increased production in winter is usually obtained at the expense of spring production and the annual lay is not increased. The value of artificial lighting depends on obtaining more eggs in winter when prices are high at the expense of less eggs in spring when prices are low. If it does this it pays by increasing the average price per dozen for the year.

The operating cost for electric lighting is negligible. The author found by foot-candle-meter test that one 100-watt inside frosted lamp with an efficient reflector would amply light an area (including roosts) 20 ft. square. This area provides enough space for 200 leghorns. With an average period of two hours of electric light per day for the winter season, such lighting would cost 12 cents a month per 100-watt lamp at 2 cents per kw-hr., or 6 cents per 100 hens per month. Broken lamps plus interest and depreciation on the installation for the entire might double this expense. But even at 12 cents per 100 hens per month for a four-month lighted period, or 48 cents per 100 hens per year, an increase of only 24 eggs per 100 hens for the winter season would be needed to pay all costs, assuming increased winter production balances decreased spring production and winter eggs bring 2 cents each more than spring eggs.

An average increase in winter lay of only 10 per cent. would amount to ten eggs per 100 hens per day, or 300 per month, or 1200 for four months. So 1,200 less 48, or 1,152 would represent increased returns in terms of eggs, and 1,152 multiplied by 2 cents, or $23.04, would be the increased returns per 100 hens greater money value of these eggs over spring eggs. The increase in lay obtained will depend on how effectively the house is lighted and how much more feed the hens eat due to the lights. Unless the lights bring about the consumption of more pounds of a correctly formulated ration, an increase in production cannot be expected.

Worth Remembering

The engine of the car should be kept clean, and among the important reasons why owners and operators should take this step are:

Accumulated grease is a definite fire hazard.

A dirty car is a handicap in selling or trading.

A dirty engine frequently becomes a generally neglected one.

King's Prize for Canada
Lt.-Col. R. M. Blair Winner

With Lieut.-Colonel R. M. Blair of Vancouver winning the King's Prize in an all-Canadian shoot-off, the Canadians finished the great Empire meeting of the National Rifle Association Saturday in a blaze of glory. Blair and Lieut. Desmond Burke of Ottawa,,former winner, shot off for the Empire's premier marksmanship honor after Burke had displayed wonderful markmanship at the last stage to tie the Vancouver man.

A dramatic contest was necessarily the next step. With a crowd around them more excited than they were themselves, Blair and Burke laid down in the centre of the famous Stickledown range, facing targets 1,000 yards away. Blair fired first. In turn each Canadian registered a bull's eye, and with each shot the intensity grew. When Burke hit the inner instead of the bull's eye, scoring four in place of five on his sixth shot, some moments elapsed before the marksmen and the crowd themselves realized the King's Prize of $1,250 and the N. R. A.'s gold medal and badge had been given to Blair by the shot.

Sunday Visitors

By Alma in Canadian Countryman.

How many farm women, I wonder, really enjoy Sunday company in the summer time? Frankly I believe most of us do not. And that is not as inhospitable as it sounds. I do enjoy having my friends come to see me if only they will come on any of the other six days in the week, so in case there may be some who have thoughtlessly acquired this Sunday visiting habit, let us see why this should be true.

Like a great many other farm women I do all the work for a family, which includes small children, board a hired man through the week, help with the milking the year round, and in the summer time have garden and chickens to take up time and energy. So as the week passes and Sunday comes, it is thankfully welcomed as a day of rest.

In our local church the service is held at 2.30 p.m. This leaves us ample time after the necessary work of the morning is done for rest, reading, music, a walk through the fields, or whatever form of recreation we fancy. Often it is the best opportunity in the week to have a heart to heart visit with one's own family. It is the one part of the week which we feel is really our own to spend as fancy dictates. Needless to say then, I do not spend all Sunday morning preparing a big dinner. A kettle of soup on a cool day or sandwiches, cookies and some kind of cold drink on a hot one, served out under the trees, is often the solution of our Sunday dinner. It is the best day in the week and how we enjoy it!

As has sometimes happened, however, our happy day en famille is interrupted. A car load, or perhaps two, whirls up the driveway. No doubt they are people we know and like, and under other circumsatnces would be glad to see. At the same time, can the housewife's welcome be joyous and sincere when at once there rushes through her mind thoughts of the sandwiche luncheon which will now have to be pushed aside and a hot dinner hurriedly prepared in its place, and the badly needed rest given up for at least another week?

No good housekeeper ever allows the cupboard to become entirely bare so in the end, of course, a very good dinner is set before the guests, but it is not the kind of a meal one can serve with pride as is the case when one has had time to plan and prepare properly. Besides the hostess is rushed, hot, and tired and has no time to visit with her friends until the late dinner is over and the dishes washed. This usually means that all thought of going to church must be given up for the day. Before one realizes it, the early supper-time is here again, and the cows are waiting to be milked; Sunday is over once more and instead of a refreshed body and spirit with which to meet the tasks of the week, one is more fatigued than ever, with very likely a headache as well.

All this can be avoided by a little thoughtfulness on the part of the visitor by merely a 'phone call or a post card to find out when the visit will be most convenient. If the visitor is not so considerate then it is the place of the hostess herself to put things right.

I have found the best way to do this is to say to our country friends, when giving an invitation: "Come some rainy day when the men cannot work in the fields and we will have time for a good visit"; or to our town friends: "Come out some holiday"—the 24th of May, the 3rd of June, Dominion Day, Civic holiday, Labor day, etc., or the usual weekly half holiday.

If they invite us to their home for Sunday we tell them that we usually rest and attend church on Sunday, and would rather go some other day if it would be as convenient. It can be done tactfully, in such a way as to leave no wounded feelings. A kind person never hurts a friend needlessly.

If unexpected company comes through the week it never bothers me in the least. I am a firm believer in the "six days shalt thou labor" part of the commandments, as well as the latter part, so there is always a good nourishing dinner ready whether we are expecting visitors or not.

Let us then consider the feelings of our friends in this matter and not impose ourselves on their one work-free day. The thoughtfulness will be appreciated. It is often just such things as these that strengthen or undermine friendships.

Salads and Summer Deserts

By Etta Bitta Pye.

Canadian housewives are becoming more and more enthused over French cooking, and dishes once enjoyed only at hotels and clubs in which some famous Parisian chef reigned supreme are now appearing on the tables of our thrifty but novelty appreciating Canadian women.

Oh, we shall always have our ice cream, our waffles, or Chicken a la Maryland, our griddle cakes and maple syrup and dozens of other typical Canadian delicacies that cannot be surpassed—but we are now beginning to add other dishes equally as tasteful, and often more easily prepared and more economical than some of our old favorites. a

The French housewife is thrifty; she seldom uses out-of-season delicacies; she makes use of left-overs; and she has learned the secret of flavour. She has learned that salads should be served when the ingredients are fresh and crisp; that cold, tasteful desserts fit into summertime as snuggly as a French habit fits a Parisian model; and that a little sugar, in the dressing or added to the vegetable ingredients of a salad while cooking, accentuates the flavors.

Try one or all of these French dishes. You will find them among the most popular dishes on your table this summer:

Frozen Tomato Salad

Peel and cut into fairly small pieces two cups of ripe tomatoes. Add two cloves, two peppercorns, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon celery salt, one sliced onion, a few grains of parsley, and two tablespoons vinegar. Boil for ten minutes, then press through a sieve. Freeze to a mush. Beat a half cup of cream until stiff and add to the mush. Then complete freezing. Serve on crisp, thoroughly dried lettuce leaves with mayonnaise dressing.

Vegetable Salad Melange

Cook one cup of shredded string beans until tender in boiling, salted water, with one-half teaspoon of sugar. Do the same with one cup of shelled peas. Mix the peas and beans with one cup of shredded cucumber and one-half cup of thinly sliced radishes. Add French dressing and let stand a half hour. Meanwhile, hardboil six eggs, halve them, and cut off the ends so they will stand upright. Arrange the halves of the eggs on salad plates. Arrange crisp lettuce leaves around each egg half, and place some of the vegetable mixture on the leaves. Serve cold with mayonnaise.

French Caramel Custard

Four eggs, six tablespoons sugar, one cup milk and a little water, make this cold, tasteful summer dessert. Separate the egg-whites and yolks, and beat the whites until they are firm. Add four tablespoons of sugar to the yolks. Combine the whites and yolks and add the milk, stirring the mixture slowly. Make a caramel, using two tablespoons sugar and one-half cup water. Pour this into a tin mold and then add the custard. Place the mold in a pan of water and bake in a slow oven for twenty-five minutes, or until the knife blade will come out clean. When the custard is cold, turn it out on a platter and serve it with or without sauce.

Onion Delicacies

By Etta Bitta Pye.

Onions are in season, onions are inexpensive, and onions are very healthful. When eaten raw they are rich in one of our important vitamines—and unlike many vegetables, they retain much of their vitamine content when cooked. Use them frequently. A small amount of sugar added while cooking will help to bring out their delicate flavor.

BAKED APPLES AND ONIONS

Slice three medium-sized apples and six medium-sized onions into a greased casserole in alternate layers. Season each layer with salt, pepper, sugar and butter, using a quarter cup of sugar and two tablespoons of butter for the dish. Add a half cup of water and bake in a moderate oven about three-quarters of an hour.

ONIONS BAKED IN TOMATO SAUCE

Strain a quart can of tomatoes and cook for fifteen minutes with two tablespoons of flour, and one-quarter teaspoon pepper. Then add two tablespoons of butter. Cut six or eight onions into halves and put them in a baking dish. Pour the tomato sauce over the onions and bake about one hour in a moderate oven.

GLAZED ONIONS

Peel medium-size, silver-skin onions and prick them through the centres to prevent breaking while cooking. Place in boiling salted water to which a teaspoon of sugar to a quart of water has been added. Simmer until tender and drain. For a quart of onions, melt two tablespoons of butter in a pan, add one tablespoon of granulated sugar, and cook to the bubbling stage. Then add the onions and stir until they are well glazed.

Taking the Crop Without The Bees' Knowledge

Experimental Farms Note.

The method of taking off the crop, now developed by the beekeepers, disorganizes a hive as little as possible, this obviates robbing and will not interrupt the bees in their work; furthermore, it makes the work of removing the crop a great deal more pleasant because if carefully done, the bees need not be greatly disturbed. This method is by using bee escape boards. These boards consist of wooden frames that just fit on top of a super or hive body. At two opposite corners on this framework are inserted bee escapes. These bee escapes allow the bees to pass through, but, owing to the construction of the escape, they cannot return. The remainder of the escape board should be wire screening. Some beekeepers use a honey board with a single bee ecape in the centre, in fact there are various types of escape boards, though they all work on the principle of the one described.

The escape boards are placed on the hives below the lowest super that it is desired to move. Care must be taken that there be no brood in the supers placed above an escape. The bees will not leave brood. Care must also be taken that there are no chinks or holes in the supers above an escape for, as the bees leave through the escapes, the supers are unprotected and robbing may start. An empty super or half super is generally given when the escape is put on as the hive will become too crowded.

Only ripe honey should be put above an escape. Unfinished combs should be left below to be finished by the bees.

If the weather is bright and the bees are active it should be possible to take off the supers within twenty-four or forty-eight hours after putting on the escapes, and find no bees in them.

A busy city man entered a telephone kiosk and asked for "Double-two, double-two."

"Two, two, two, two!" replied the operator, reproachfully.

"All right," sighed the city man, "but get me the number first, and we'll play trains afterwards."
