CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

There comes a time in the life of a lot of townsfolk when they wonder why they keep a pet. Just about the time the family is ready to leave for a trip to Aunt Sarah's, after the kids have been polished and warned to keep their noses and their hands clean, when the car is packed and panting gently on the driveway, and when it is time to load Mother and then the dog, there suddenly isn't any dog.

Always at the crucial moments in a family's career, the lovable short-haired slob known variously as Buster, Sport, Jeff or Rover tips the scale and makes good clean havoc of family plans. That is always the time that a stray cat minces out from behind the shed. Any self-respecting pup has only one thing to do and sure enough, that's when ours or yours takes off across the county. Things are usually hectic before the family jalopy finally heads for the maiden aunt's.

Chained as we are to our desk, we can't humanely keep a dog. Of course the real reason might be that we are owned by Annie. Now before word gets around that this family journal is supporting more than its quota of women, may we point out that Annie is a small, uncommonly ugly, lovable European short-hair feline, more commonly called "alley cat." Said cat allows us to live with her nearly all the time, and until we had the machine disconnected, she also presented a new selection of kittens at exceedingly regular intervals for our hesitant approval.

Pets are of some use and Annie the cat fits in quite well around the premises. She keeps the rodent population at a most alarming low ebb at all times, she provides an imperturbable target for divebombing swallows and she has a built-in hatred for red squirrels. She also chases rabbits.

Our "Everybody Eats" editor was gazing over her garden the other night and to her horror discovered a bunny gorging on the gardenstuff. The bunny was quickly shooed away amid lamentations. But it must have given the cat an idea. The next time we saw the rabbit, it was streaking across the lawn heading for the hedge; in close pursuit, afterburner flaring and well through the sound barrier was Annie. They both whipped through the hedge and shortly after Annie wandered back with a thoughtful look on her face. If we figure rightly what happened, the cat got too close to Br'er Rabbit and she got a face full of hind foot. We will lay you four to one in the future Annie will keep just below Mach 1 in any more rabbit runs.

Annie is a cat with a most generous nature; what she has she wants to share. As a result of her unselfishness, one needs to be careful stepping out the door. There is apt to be an assortment of game laid out for approval in a neat row on the back steps. An average line-up can consist of: Item, one very dead squirrel caught in fair chase; item, one field mouse still good for a couple more wrassles; item, one star-nosed mole, dead of fright and inedible anyway; item, one ——, of which less said for the good of the blood pressure of our bird watching friends. While she is awaiting the word from the family about her foodstuffs, she is usually rounding up a frog or two to supplement the larder in case of famine.

And the foolish beast also gets a quota of catfood to round out her diet.

Wanna buy a duck? A four-legged one, that is? Back at Morewood there is one running around, full of beans and grain. Walter Loughridge called the first of the week and suggested we come back and look over the small paddler. Walter Mattice had set a duck on 13 eggs and lo, she hatched out 13½ ducklings. Bobby Mattice is holding the little fellow in our picture. The extra pair of legs are just south of the regular, or standard equipment, and while they don't work too well, they are perfectly formed and movable. The fourth foot is just at the end of Bobby's little finger; the other three are quite evident.—Record Photo.

To Go Into Operation --

New telephone circuits Chesterville to Winchester

Chesterville telephone users are going to find it easier to get through to Winchester after this weekend.

George Thompson, Bell Telephone acting manager for this region, announced this week that three new telephone circuits are scheduled to go into operation between Winchester and Chesterville within the next few days.

Opening of the three new circuits will raise to ten the number of telephone circuits in operation between the two communities. In addition, the Bell Company is working to make another two circuits available at a later date, which will then bring the total to 12—almost double the seven now in operation.

To make the circuits available, new equipment was installed in the Bell office in Winchester, while the lines terminating at the Bell office in Chesterville had to be reorganized.

This work has been going on for over a month, Mr Thompson stated. He explained that the installation of the cable and wire for a job such as this was an intricate and complex task that taxed even the most experienced cable installers.

The manager said the installation of the new circuits was necessitated by the constantly-growing telephone traffic between Chesterville and Winchester.

"These new circuits should greatly improve telephone service between Chesterville and Winchester, and should be of particular value to businessmen who are constantly calling between the two communities," Mr Thompson stated.

GRANDSTAND STARTED UP BY FAIR DAY

Chesterville Fair will have a grandstand by fair day. That is the word of the successful bidders for the building contract and, barring unforeseen happenings, it is hoped to have the seats at least in position, even if the roof is not quite finished.

A local firm, Testerink and Wemerman, were the successful bidders for the 25x73-foot structure. Their bid was $4,600.

LACEY HOUSE SOLD

The Lacey property on the corner of Main and Queen has been sold. This week Ernest Bollegraaf, of L'Epiphanie, Que., closed the deal for the property through the real estate agent, Austin Carkner.

Mr Bollegraaf is a Dutch New Canadian with an abattoir business in L'Epiphanie in partnership with Francois Peetroons. Their business extends into this county where they operate the Williamsburg Farm Service with Herb Loucks as local agent.

The new owner will take possession next week.

FACTORY BURNED

As we go to press we learn of the complete loss by fire of Connaught cheese factory, Wednesday morning about 5.30 a.m. The owner, Hector Gregoire, and family escaped in their night attire and are now staying with Gerald Murphy and family next door.

Mrs Bernard Foley hostess St. Bernard's C.W.L. council

Members of Moose Creek Council attended the recent meeting of St. Bernard's Council of the Catholic Women's League held at the home of Mrs Bernard Foley, Finch. Words of welcome were extended to the visitors by the League president, Mrs George Richer.

Mrs Peter Manley, secretary, reported, as did Mrs Larry Swain, secretary. Convener reports dealt extensively with League participation at the annual social which indicated favourable results from both the social and financial point.

Mrs J. Manley and Mrs S. Beehler conducted a quiz contest and games. Mrs L. Swain, the League treasurer, presented Miss Noreen Foley with a gift.

The director, Rev E . Danis, thanked members for their splendid co-operation at the social, a deciding factor in making it a success. Mrs Boisvenue, president of Moose Creek Council, and Mrs W. Montcalm spoke briefly.

The meeting was moved adjourned by Mrs Wm. MacNaughton and lunch was served by the hostess.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs H. Courville.

W.R.C. waterworks approval for $282,000 on hand

Chesterville council and the hydro committee met last week for the regular August meeting. On hand were reeve Carl Merkley, councillors H. Sharkey, J. A. Butcher, Geo. Laflamme and H. K. Graham. The clerk, Lorne Marcellus, was present.

Hydro accounts were passed and ordered paid after the reading of the minutes. Business was light, and included a half-share purchase of the village calculator. The secretary-treasurer was ordered to call district manager Al Beardsall at Ontario Hydro, Winchester, and discuss the pole changing and light installation of the village.

Considerable discussion centred around a proposed change for billing of flat rate water heaters. It was suggested the heater billing be made on alternate months from the domestic billing.

Village affairs seemed to be humming along. Council members heard from clerk Marcellus regarding his conversation with Water Resources secretary Larmour in Toronto. They were informed the preliminary approval was on hand to spend $282,000 on a water system for Chesterville. The preliminary approval was necessary before engineers could make the necessary detailed surveys so tenders could be called. Test drilling is thought to be started in September.

The village parking by-laws came in for considerable discussion. Some revisions were ordered presented to the village solicitor for incorporation into the by-law. It was felt a caution light should be placed at the junction of Queen and Main, now that north Main is a stop street. The village foreman was ordered to line the street at that corner with a cross walk and paint a "stop" sign on the right of way.

The following accounts were passed for payment:

Tenders opened for Separate School

Tenders were opened last week for the building of the new St. Mary's Separate School here. Chairman Francis Moriarty presided.

Specifications call for a four-room building to be erected just east of the present building. It is hoped to have it completed before Christmas.

Four tenders were considered and the lowest tender was accepted. It was presented by Andre Wouters, of Metcalfe. His price came to $65,000 for the proposed structure. The architect is H. H. Roberts, of Westport.

Approval is now awaited from the Department of Education; upon receipt of that the board will sign the contract with the Wouters firm.

Bell phone subscribers are getting better service now on calls to Winchester exchange. New lines hafe been put on and it is rare now to get that old busy signal when a long distance call has to be made. Walter Johnson has worked all week and some overtime to get the circuits complete by this week. We slipped across to the Bell building and caught him doing a spot of burnishing on some vital part of the machinery.—Record Photo.

OPINIONS . . . OURS AND OTHERS

Surely not a curfew!

Police chief Leonard Shane has been having his hands full these warm summer nights. It would appear a few sets of parents in town don't care when the kids get to bed. And whooping and hollering on certain streets is all too common, long after the time youngsters should be at home.

Every year or so the same situation arises. More and more youngsters are seen and heard on village streets cutting up and fussing about until it reaches the point where the law has to step in. And it seems a pity that policing has to do the work that normal parental duty should outline. This town and other small towns should not have to resort to curfews and other means that advertise parental weakness in controlling the village children.

Chesterville does have a small problem at the moment. There are too many juveniles on the streets after the proper hour of nine; unaccompanied by adults, that is. There is no excuse or reason for it and if nuisance reports continue to reach the constable, then something will have to be done. Council members feel very strongly about it, and action has been ordered with the final ordering of a curfew delayed until it is felt absolutely necessary.

A word to the wise is always sufficient; the unwise might just pay a little attention too, for their children's sakes.

Waterworks approval

Chesterville must have a friend in court in Toronto. Village council signed the necessary by-laws to institute a village water system in the third week of July. It was sent to Toronto to the Water Resources Commission along with an explanatory letter outlining reasons for need of exploratory work this Fall. A time schedule drawn up pointed out that unless test drilling could be done within a month, it was apt to set the program back until 1961. The water crossings that must be made by water pipes have to be made before the dam is placed in the river in the first week of June.

Village council received preliminary approval the following week from the Commission. It was also arranged that a meeting of the Commission members and council would be held here in September, when test drilling will probably get under way.

The next thing now is to pray the drill rig can find good water for a village system. It probably will if the operators stay above the sulphur layer; the local plant can tell a sad story of ventures beyond that depth.

Pen and ink

What makes a pen write? The flow of ink from pen to paper is not dependent on sheer gravity as we might think. When the tip of a pen is drawn across a paper surface, the capillary cells in the paper actually draw the ink from the slit in the nib. In a fountain pen the ink is held in the reservoir by a balance of outside and inside pressure which overcomes the force of gravity. In writing, capillary action breaks this balance and causes a flow of ink from the reservoir to the slit in the nib.

The stylus, a painted piece of ivory, metal or bone, was likely the earliest writing instrument. It was used to cut figures on tablets covered with wax. Later it was discovered that to write efficiently with ink or similar liquids the instrument had to be able to store enough fluid to permit capillary action. The earliest pens, made of the hollow stalks of the calamus reed, were frayed at the ends; later the Greeks and Romans slit them like modern pens. One of the earliest "fountain" pens was an Egyptian reed with a hollow stem that was filled with ink and squeezed when more writing fluid was necessary.

Early in the Middle Ages, quill pens were introduced. They were made from swan, crow, eagle, owl, hawk, peacock and turkey feathers, the finest being from feathers of geese. Quills were popular for more than 1,200 years, being generally replaced by steel pens in the 1800's.

Quills are still used today by the Supreme Court of the United States, which buys 1,88 quill pens a year from one supplier in New Haven, Conn. Lawyers making their first appearance before the High Court are given a quill as a memento. Mr Glazer, the supplier, turns out some 75,000 handmade quill pens per year. His primary customers are national shrines and museums where the quills are sold as souvenirs.

Although metallic pens were known back in the days of Pompeii, they were used very little until the 19th Century, when steel pens came into popularity. Steel pens are made from sheets of fine steel that is heated, cooled and rolled. Then the pens are stamped out, the hole is punched and the pen is heated and tempered again. In final operations, the pen is slit and rounded into shape. The annual production of steel pens in the United States has been as high as 400,000,000.

The first American pen patent was granted in 1809 to Peregrine Williamson, a Baltimore shoemaker and shot manufacturer. The first pen patent was awarded in 1830 to Dr Hyde, of Reading, Pa. First to achieve a practical fountain pen with a smooth flow of ink was L. E. Waterman in 1883. The first fountain pens were entirely handmade and had to be filled with an eye dropper. The lever-action fountain pen was the invention of W. A. Sheaffer, an Iowa jeweller, in 1908.

Today's fountain pens have anywhere from five to 35 separate parts, including a nib, a barrel, a feed regulator, a holder connecting the feed and the nib, and a cap. Even the simplest pens require more than 200 manufacturing processes, while it takes up to six weeks and 318 separate operations to make a fine pen.

Ball-point pens are not particularly new. Patents on them were issued in several countries in the last century. The requirements of the Quartermaster of the U.S. Army in 1944 for pens with a leak-proof, long-lasting, quick-drying ink supply revived the idea. Ball points were at first thought to be a fad, but improved inks, better quality, and lower costs of manufacture have brought ball points to the number one spot in volume. American pen manufacturers now turn out an estimated 122 million ball point pens annually as against 42 million fountain pens.

Among the pens now on manufacturers drawing boards is an "atomic" pen that "writes" by burning impressions on paper and a "pointless" pen that uses neither a ball nor a conventional nib. It has a cone-like tip of porous metal. Thick ink filters through the tiny holes and capillary action draws the ink from the tip of the paper.

In its earliest forms, ink was made of soot and charcoal mixed with gum, vegetable stains and berry juices. One of the oldest books known, the maxims of the Egyptian ruler Ptah-hotep, dating from before 2,500 B.C., shows the use of red and black inks. In Africa there is a river which turns to ink as it passes under iron deposits in the earth.

In pre-Christian times, different colours of inks represented certain values. Purple ink was used by royalty, crimson and red ink represented blood and human life, and green indicated vigour and prosperity. After the Christian area, violet ink indicated sorrow; black, death and destruction; red, fire and love.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

A colporteur has been described as "a man with a bag in his hand." This bag or sometimes a pack is filled with Bibles, Testaments and Gospels in the language or languages of the territory in which he serves.

"The work of colportage," writes Monsieur J. Blumenthal, General Secretary of the French Bible Committee, "remains the most effective means of contact with the general public, . . . the increasing use of Bible stands at trade fairs is also a method used in a growing number of localities for the strengthening of the witness of the Church. Some of our colporteurs have attended inspirational gatherings at Boulogne-Sur-Seine, the Franco-Belgian Colporteur's Conference at Amougies, and fine young people from France went to the youth camp in Austria."

Suggested Bible Readings:

Sunday, August 16: Lamentations 3: 1-33.

Monday, August 17: Ezekiel 1; 1-14.

Tuesday, August 18: Ezekiel 10: 1-22.

Wednesday, August 19: Ezekiel 14: 12-23.

Thursday, August 20: Ezekiel 33: 1-20.

Friday, August 21: Daniel 2: 12-30.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

by Lillian Allison

Now if you really want to drive along the new Gatineau Parkway just follow these directions. Cross one of the bridges from Ottawa to Hull then gaze around until you see the signs pointing to Highway 11. Follow it past the hotels, gas stations and hot-dog stands until you're out in the country. You will get a few glimpses of the Gatineau River on your right and some hills on both sides. You will be aware that you are headed for higher hills—mountains to those of us who come from level Dundas.

You will pass through one or two little hamlets. In fact, you'll be through them before your car slows down to the legal speed. And in a very few minutes you will arrive at Chelsea. The sign on the corner will tell you to turn left for Kingsmere, Meach Lake, Old Chelsea and another half dozen places.

Old Chelsea is just over the first hill. There is a big church, a hall and a sportsman's store, plus a few other buildings. A little farther on is a Y in the road. The sign says to turn left to Kingsmere or right to Meach Lake and the Gatineau Parkway.

We saw this good highway on our left when we went up the dusty, white road to Meach Lake. When we came back we slowed for a better look. "Let's go up that road," Harry suggested. We had no idea where it would take us. Signs would be very difficult to paint because that road just doesn't go anyplace.

We decided to explore it anyway.

Feeling the exhilaration of adventure we turned onto it. It was indeed a surprise. There in the wilds of the Gatineau Hills was a beautiful, modern highway complete with white lines and wide shoulders. Obviously it was very new.

For a while it seemed we were the only people who knew about it. There were no other cars in sight. On and on we went. Isn't it queer how a new road can seem so long, I was beginning to feel we had gone half way to Rouyn when we began to meet traffic.

The car was climbing up and up. I didn't realize it until my ears began to fill up as they do in a small plane. I swallowed hard to clear them and we went on.

There wasn't a building of any sort along that new road but the scenery was superb. Great native trees of every description guarded the hills on either side. Bush, so dense we couldn't look into it, replaced the usual road fences. Hills, valleys and the odd tiny lake added to the natural beauty of the drive.

At one point something seemed amiss. Water lay around the base of dead trees—several acres of it. We were trying to decide how it had got there when a sign said "Flood land created by beavers." And, sure enough, there were the stumps of the trees they had cut down.

Farther on a sign pointed to a lookout. The road, designed so that we could stop there without interfering with traffic, led us to a parking lot. As we got out of the car we realized we were standing on the edge of the mountain with a sturdy, stone wall to keep us from tumbling down to the level below.

Now if you'd like to know what the view from a plane is like without having to fly you can find out from that lookout.

A few hundred feet below lay beautiful farm country. The level fields with their patchwork patterns stretched on and on separated by straight, narrow roads and dotted with shiny aluminum roofs sparkling in the sun. We could see bales of hay on the fields and tiny, toy cars gliding down the nearest road. Farther on lay the misty blue of the Ottawa River with its irregular shoreline. More barn roofs gleamed on its opposite shore. It was indeed a picture to see.

"Where are we?" I asked a lady nearby.

"That's Constance Bay over

Hall–McCooeye

White chrysanthemums and pastel toned gladioli formed the setting at Knox Presbyterian Church, Morrisburg, for the marriage of Miss Thelma McCooeye, daughter of Mr and Mrs Emerson McCooeye, to Dwain Hall, son of Mr and Mrs Percy Hall, Chesterville.

Rev Dr J. Hardwick performed the ceremony. Mrs G. M. Gorrell supplied the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of nylon net over taffeta, fashioned with bateau neckline and lily-point sleeves. Her finger-tip veil of tulle illusion fell from a headdress of sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of sweetheart roses and stephanotis.

Miss Joan McCooeye, sister of the bride, was her only attendant. Her streetlength powder-blue chiffon gown was fashioned with a scoop neckline, puffed sleeves and bouffant skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and cornflowers. Her accessories matched her gown.

Following a reception at the home of the bride's parents, the couple left on a wedding trip to Western Ontario.

Mr and Mrs Hall will reside in Chesterville.

Dundas County--

Soil and Crop Improvement Assoc. meet demonstration pastures prove interesting

The twilight meeting of the Dundas Soil and Crop Improvement Association was held recently at the farm of Mrs L. J. Renwick, Winchester. The meeting was under the direction of Harry Williams, president, and E. K. Pearson, secretary of the Association.

Of particular interest to the gathering were the demonstration pastures and cereal grain trials on the Renwick farm.

J. W. MacRae, fieldman, Crops, Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, outlined the seed mixture, fertilizer application and management of pasture. The seed mixture used on the Renwick farm was one recommended for land with fair drainage.

Soil tests indicated that the land was low in phosphorous so a liberal application of a high phosphate fertilizer was applied before seeding. A program of rotational grazing, clipping and harrowing is now followed by the Renwicks on the demonstration pasture. The lush growth of Ladino clover and grasses, along with the record of pasture days received from this five-acre field show the value of good pasture management.

Of equal interest to the group was the demonstration of Viking and Empire Birdsfoot Trefoil. Birdsfoot Trefoil is a relatively new legume crop particularly recommended for land where alfalfa will live only one or two years. The Viking variety is best for a hay crop while Empire is recommended for pastures. D. L. Parks, Kemptville Agricultural School, cautioned people not to be discouraged with the appearance of Trefoil in its seedling year. While it is somewhat slower to establish than other legumes, Birdsfoot Trefoil will thrive on land where other legumes fail to grow successfully. It should not, however, be considered a poor land crop since it will respond to fertility as do other legumes and grasses.

The oat and barley variety plots were discussed by Neil Stoskoph, also of Kemptville Agricultural School. Garry and Rodney oats, said Mr Stoskoph, are still the leaders in spite of the fact that both, and particularly Garry, are now showing some susceptibility to rust. The Shield variety is considered the best early oat and is especially recommended for use as a nurse crop when seeding down. The shorter, stiffer straw of Shield and its early maturity give a better chance to underseeded clover and grass.

Following the field tour, the group gathered on the Renwick lawn where D. L. Parks, E. K. Pearson, ag. rep. for Dundas, and Geo. Suffel, district director of the Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association, spoke briefly.

The meeting adjourned with refreshments served by the Association.

Emergency landing made by plane on Highway 43

Traffic on Highway 43, two miles east of Avonmore, was tide up for an hour Sunday evening when a single engine aircraft made an emergency landing, forcing all traffic to a standstill. The plane, a Beach Craft Bonanza, was piloted by C. D. Shannon, 36, Montreal.

His only passenger was his brother-in-law, Joe Schessler.

Mr Shannon described his landing as being "perfect." Two cars were slightly damaged. The owner of one of the cars, Don Lancaster, Scarboro, realizing that the aircraft was in distress, pulled his car off the road pavement and proceeded to halt westbound traffic. In landing the tip of the aircraft's wing creased the top of his Volkswagen car.

Another car, driven by Allan Heuston, 18, of Chilliwack, B.C., was forced off the road over an embankment into the north ditch. The car was not damaged to any extent. Mr Heuston was on a visit with his grandmother, Mrs C. H. Heuston, who lives just east of the site of the forced landing.

The landing was made at approximately 7.50 Sunday evening. The plane was taxied to a service station on the southern outskirts of Avonmore. Here the plane was refuelled, preparatory to take-off Monday.

The plane took off from Montreal at 5.10 Sunday afternoon. It was explained by Mr Shannon that he was taking his brother-in-law on a sight-seeing flight over the Laurentians in the Ste. Agathe and St. Jovite district. Shortly after take-off a severe storm broke. In an effort to avoid the thunder-heads, Shannon was forced to shift course. Visibility became increasingly bad and realizing his difficulty decided to head for Ottawa.

But the fuel problem became acute and Shannon decided that an emergency landing was necessary. He came down and spotted the highway and after a few passes above the highway to warn motorists the landing was made.

From 75 to 100 cars were tied up on the highway. In spite of heavy showers a large crowd had gathered by the time the aircraft reached the village.

EFFICIENT FEEDING AND LIVESTOCK MANAGEMENT

By Dr. Gustav Bohstedt
Emeritus Professor of Animal Husbandry
University of Wisconsin

A Pecking Order in Every Flock or Herd

There are social stratifications not merely in the human but also in the animal world. Poultry men recognize a pecking order in a flock of hens, similar to what one calls a chain of command in the military services. There is a boss hen that can peck any other hen in the flock, another one that can peck any but the boss hen, and so on.

Dr. Bohstedt

This principle also applies to a self-assumed right to help themselves at will to feed or water ahead of the rest. Haven't we all seen a boss cow butting other cows out of the way in getting what she wants, with others in the herd more or less in rotation following her example?

Some of our more perceptive herdsmen have made fascinating observations in this respect showing that there are leaders and followers in most every herd, and that each group settles the right of precedence among its own members. A newcomer will have to find her own place, sometimes at the expense of plenty of bruises.

I recall a swine-herdsman who for lack of sufficient paddock space was obliged to put two boars in the same enclosure. There resulted the inevitable fight, foaming mouths, and vicious jabbing. One of the pair seemed to be getting the upper hand. Did the herdsman take the part of the underdog? He did not! He simply helped the bully by whacking the prospective loser over the rump. This quickly decided the contest and brought peace. The "pecking order" had been established.

But at the feed trough, bullies among a bunch of pigs are likely to "hog" the feed, and for that reason plenty of trough space must be provided to encourage unhurried and more uniform consumption. Where pigs are slop fed and the trough space grows shorter as they grow larger, feeding-time competition has caused pigs to voraciously consume excessive amounts of harmful ingredients in the feed that they would not have consumed at leisure. This competition sometimes accounts for dead pigs. Similar situations occur with sheep and other livestock.

Question: We have a chance to buy some three-year-old hay. It has good color and seems all right, but please indicate what if any nutrient value has been lost during this length of storage?

Answer: Even though this old hay has a good green color, the carotene or provitamin-A is all but gone. Usually about half of the carotene is lost during the first six months of storage. There are other but minor losses. The palatability is affected because the stems of this hay are likely to be so brittle as to injure the gums of the livestock if this hay is eaten in any quantity.

Hess–Tupper

A quiet wedding was solemnized by Rev D. Ramsay at the home of the bride's parents, under an arbor decorated with pink roses, when Anna Margaret Idella Tupper became the bride of Sidney Lyle Hess. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Howard Tupper, Williamsburg, and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Harold Hess, Winchester Springs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length gown of French lace over white taffeta with tapered bodice and portrait neckline and cap sleeves, the bouffant skirt accented with a white taffeta bow in the back. The fingertip veil was of pillbox design with sequins, rhinestones and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and baby 'mums.

Her only attendant was her sister, Mrs Hubert Wells, who wore a pale green Swiss organza with full skirt and embroidered bodice with matching headdress. Her veil of tulle illusion was gathered to a pillbox hat of lace frosted with sequins, rhinestones and pearls. She carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

The best man was Hubert Hess, brother of the groom.

The bride's mother wore a figured sheath dress with pink accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

The groom's mother wore a dusty blue lace over taffeta dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

After the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to the Laurentians. The bride travelled in yellow with white accessories.

They will reside in Toronto.

GOOD THINGS WITH CORN

FRESH, FROZEN OR CANNED, there are so many ways to serve corn. But the best of them all is fresh picked corn on the cob dripping with melted butter.

Corn on the Cob

What is the best method of cooking corn on the cob? There are a number of ways and it seems to me as if no two cooks agree. Some like to start it in cold water; some in boiling water; sometimes the salt is added first; sometimes last. You can cook it in enough water to cover or in a small amount of water. I think the whole secret is to be sure your corn is fresh picked. It begins to lose flavour the moment it is picked, so rush it from the garden to the pot for best results.

My method is to cook the husked corn in salted boiling water to cover, until tender. I consider it cooked when it smells so good your mouth waters. Not a very scientific way to judge for doneness, but it seems to work.

Corn Pudding

- 3 eggs
- 2 cups cooked, drained corn
- 2 cups milk
- 3 tbsps. chopped onion
- 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper
- 1 tbsp. melted butter
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. sugar
- 2 tsps. Worcestershire sauce
- Dash garlic salt
- Dash pepper

Beat eggs slightly; add remaining ingredients. Pour into greased casserole. Oven poach in moderate 350 degree oven 40 to 50 minutes or until knife inserted in centre comes out clean.

Corn Fritters

- 2 cups corn, drained
- 1 cup milk
- 1 tbsp. chopped green pepper
- 1 tbsp. chopped onion
- 1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
- 1½ cup flour
- 2 tsps. baking powder
- ¾ tsp. salt
- 1 egg

Add green pepper and onion to corn. Combine egg, milk, corn mixture and Worcestershire sauce; add to dry ingredients. Mix till flour is moistened. Drop batter by tablespoon into deep, hot fat at 375 degrees. Fry till golden brown, about three minutes. Drain on paper.

Serve with green salad and cold meat for an easy supper. Or you could serve them like pancakes with maple syrup.

Corn Chowder

Use canned or left-over corn cut from cobs.

- 2 cups corn
- 3 cups potatoes in thick slices
- 3 strips bacon, diced
- 1 small onion
- 4 cups milk
- ¼ cup fine cracker crumbs
- 3 tbsps. butter
- 1 tsp. salt
- Dash pepper
- 1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce

Fry bacon in heavy sauce pan. Add chopped onion; cook till golden brown. Add sliced potatoes. Cover with boiling water. Cook till potatoes are soft, about 15 minutes. Add corn, milk, butter and seasonings. Heat to boiling. Add cracker crumbs just before serving.

A good supper dish for the first cool fall days.

there and Shirley's Bay there," she said pointing to the far side of the Ottawa. "But you get a better view from the next lookout," she added.

The next lookout was at the end of the road. The view was excellent but a little hazier. Having admired the scenery for a few minutes we turned to retrace our steps. It was downhill all the way. And you know that road that seemed so long going up was only three or four miles coming back.

I'll bet it cost a mint of money to build it. And if they ever have enough cash to build more I hope they let us know. I'd love to drive through miles and miles of lovely scenery like that along the Gatineau Parkway.

Miss Helen Jamieson

Note: We regret this newspaper has not had the opportunity to print the obituary of the late Helen Jamieson before this. We were under the impression the copy had reached us, but we were mistaken. Through the generosity of Mrs Enos Munro, therefore, we pay our belated respects to one of our fathful correspondents.—Editor.

The citizens of Nation Valley community and surrounding district were deeply grieved by the death of June 21 of Helen (Nell) Jamieson in Winchester and District Memorial Hospital following a lengthy and painful illness.

She was born at the Jamieson homestead at Nation Valley May 18, 1885. She was the last surviving member of the family of the late John Jamieson and his wife, Sarah Ellen Rae. Two sisters and six brothers predeceased her, Mrs John Shaver, Miss Agnes Jamieson, Reg. N., Messrs John, George, James, Charles, David and Ernest Jamieson.

Helen Jamieson had a warm and gracious personality which endeared her to a host of friends who now mourn her passing.

Her interests and activities were wide and varied. She was a devout member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville. She gave freely of her talent to the various branches of church activities, serving for 14 years as vice-president on the executive board of Brockville Presbyterial where she also was secretary for a three-term period. She was president of Section No. 4, Brockville Presbyterial, for five years, president of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society for twenty consecutive years and was honorary president of the Society at the time of her death.

She was keenly interested in the work of Nation Valley unit of the Red Cross during two world wars and was a member of a committee which was responsible for several Remembrance Day services at the community cenotaph. The committee also gathered and arranged material for a "Book of Remembrance," recording the military service of the local men during the first and second World War. But, perhaps, her greatest contribution to the life of the community lies in the fact that she was Nation Valley news correspondent for the Chesterville Record for more than 50 years and 30 years for the Winchester Press, chronicling the many interesting incidents occuring down through all those years.

Rev Douglas Fry, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville, conducted the funeral service and delivered a most impressive discourse on the subject of earthly saints. Rev Wm. Sutherland, of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Winchester, participated in the thoughtful and beautiful service at the Vice and Craig Funeral Home.

Preceding the funeral service Rev Mr Fry, by request of the executive of St. Andrew's Missionary Society, read their tribute to the life and work of Helen Jamieson:

"Miss Jamieson has been a life-long member of this Church. She has served the Church generously and faithfully in many capacities. Never when her services were needed was she unable to find the time to work cheerfully and lead with fidelity. To know her has been to love her; to work with her has always been encouraging and inspiring. The witness of her faithfulness will ever be a challenge and a blessing. We believe that each Church member shares with us saying of her 'To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die'."

Banks of flowers and symbolic emblems gave evidence of the affection and respect in which Miss Jamieson was held.

She is survived by four sisters-in-law, Mrs George Jamieson, of Toronto; Mrs James Jamieson, Ottawa; Mrs David Jamieson, of Montreal; Mrs Ernest Jamieson (nee Edna Jacques, Canadian poetess), Toronto, also seven nieces and two nephews.

Committal service was said at the family plot in Maple Ridge Cemetery. Pall bearers were four cousins of the deceased, Wilfred and Willis McKercher, Murray and Bruce Rae.

"Well done thou good and faithful servant;
Enter thou into the house of the Lord."

Recent visitors with Mr and Mrs A. E. Jarvis were Mr and Mrs Harry Morgan, Belleville, Miss Cora Droppo, Carleton Place, Mr and Mrs Frank Jarvis and Sheila, Ingleside, Mr and Mrs M. F. Jarvis and Joan, of Brockville, Mr and Mrs Steven Brabazon and Cathy, Ottawa.

Guests and callers at the home of Mr and Mrs Garnet McLean during the past week were Mr and Mrs Elgin Biccum, Cornwall, Mr and Mrs John Kirkwood and family, Prescott, Mr and Mrs Lorne James and girls, Mr and Mrs Harry Freeland, Mr Russell Mason, Ottawa, Mr Matthew Becksted, Mr and Mrs D. Biccum, Miss Mona Biccum and Miss Bailey, Winchester, Mrs Albert Workman, Mrs Hubert Richardson, Mountain, Mr and Mrs Norman Bickerstaff, Morrisburg.

Mr and Mrs James Storr and Mrs Carrie Wood called on Mr and Mrs Chas. Collingridge before leaving for England.

Saturday dinner guests of Mr and Mrs Albert Bowman were Mrs Percy Waddell, Donald and Carolyn, Metcalfe, Mr and Mrs Garfield Darling, Rennselaer Falls, N.Y., and Mr and Mrs F. Darling, Elma. They attended the funeral of the late Broder Barkley in Winchester United Church.

Mrs John Bogart and Miss Abbie Bogart spent a couple of weeks with Mr and Mrs Walter Bogart and son, Madrid, N.Y. They also visited Mr and Mrs K. Rutherford and family, of Lisbon.

MacGregor family holds reunion

A very successful MacGregor family reunion was held Sunday, August 2, on the North Winchester School grounds, near Morewood. Approximately 175 persons descended directly from or connected by marirage with Donald and Janet MacGregor, of Perthshire, Scotland, gathered to meet and visit with one another.

The fine weather and tree-shaded grounds provided an ideal setting for the day's events. Registration of guests revealed that visitors were from Erie, Rochester, New York, Central America, Montreal, Jasper and many points nearer home.

After a bountiful noon meal the chairman, Malcolm MacGregor, extended a warm welcome to all present and read a short history of the MacGregor clan.

Alec Allen, Costa Rica, Dr Arnot MacGregor, New York, and Rev D. L. Gordon, Morewood, spoke briefly. A Scottish touch was provided by bagpipe selection played by Ronald McFarland, Gananoque.

At the close of the program it was decided to hold another family picnic in three years' time and, to arrange for this, Alec MacGregor, Ormond, was appointed president and Ian MacGregor, Russell, secretary. Honorary presidents are Archibald MacGregor, Jasper, only living grandson, and Mrs Pearl Fielding, Ottawa, who prepared the family tree, tracing seven generations.

Appreciation was expressed to Mrs Fielding and Mrs Ralph Jervis, Ottawa, for the extensive preparation and writing involved in making the gathering possible, and to each and everyone who contributed to the happiness and success of the first MacGregor family reunion.
