HONOR FELLOW TEACHER AND HIS BRIDE

Sponsored by the teachers of the Public school, Morrisburg, a most delightful entertainment was held at the home of Mrs. Thomas Campbell on Friday last in honor of Mr. J. Ray Coligan, a member of the staff, and his bride (nee Miss Miriam Robinson of Moose Jaw, Sask,) who have taken up residence in Morrisburg.

Refreshments were served; several songs, cards and other games were enjoyed, and Principal G.A. Foulds, on behalf of those present, presented Mr. and Mrs. Coligan with a beautiful piece of silverware with card inscribed by the teachers. He then read the following address.

Mr. and Mrs. Coligan:

It has long been the custom for groups of friends to seek to embarrass young married people by calling them from their own pleasant homes to listen to long, drawn-out addresses and to regale them with refreshments which they do not need. In accordance with this ancient tradition, you have, this evening, been invited to put yourselves on display as the ideal of marital happiness, and to meet a group who desire to express to both of you the friendship they have for years tried to show to the head of your house.

Suspecting that you really do not relish having everyone's attention turned in your direction, it is not our purpose to prolong the discomfort unduly. May we just call your attention to the fact that we greatly enjoy welcoming to our circle a new friend and reaffirming our appreciation of an old friend. We earnestly trust that your mutual delight in each other will be prolonged through many many years of happy companionship and on into a ripe old age.

To help you on your way and to leave with you some tangible expression of your esteem, we put into your hands this simple gift. It's humble value is only a slight token of our regard for you, and our hopes for your future.

MR. S. W. ROMBOUGH

Mr. Simon W. Rombough, for nine years an esteemed retired resident of Morrisburg, died at his home on Monday.

The late Mr. Rombough, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Amos Rombough, was born at Osnabruck Centre, where he spent his boyhood days, later going to Western Canada. In 1890 he was united in marriage to May Jane Erwin of Osnabruck Centre and for a number of years, prior to coming to Morrisburg, he was employed with the C.P.R. and the Electric Railway in Ottawa.

The funeral took place from his late home, Main Street, on Wednesday, Rev. Davies, Rector of St. James Anglican church, having charge of the service, after which the remains were conveyed to Woodland cemetery for burial.

The pall bearers were Messrs. E. P. Foster, Michael F. Reddick, M. A. Barkley, Morrisburg and Arthur Dafoe, Arthur Snyder and Preston Rombough of Aultsville.

WALTER (BULL) ADAMS FACES ARSON CHARGE

Friends and acquaintances of Walter (Bull) Adams, of Brockville, were shocked and sorry to learn of his arrest last Saturday on a charge of arson in connection with an abortive attempt on Thursday to set fire to St. Xavier Roman Catholic church

Walter Adams is known throughout the St. Lawrence district as a hockey player of ability and skill. Coming up from Brockville Juniors, he made a place for himself on Atlantic City Seagulls' squad for two years, but more latterly has been playing with Cardinal in the St. Lawrence senior loop. He played one season with Prescott Panthers.

The charge against Adams was laid by Inspector Edward Desjardins, of the Ontario Fire Marshall's office, following investigation of the fire, which appeared to be of incendiary origin, and appearing before Judge Wright last Friday, Adams refused to make any statement, while his counsel, C.G. MacOdrum moved for trial by higher court and his release on bail. Bail was granted at $3,000 and his trial will be at the fall assizes in Brockville, beginning Nov. 8th.

It was Adams, who lives with his parents on church street opposite the church concerned, who turned in the alarm at 3 a.m. Thursday, when, as he told the police, "I saw flames coming from the vestry door and a cellar window." Inspector Desjardins claims he found evidence of clothes saturated with turpentine and piles of leaves stacked about cellar windows in three different places. The inspector also stated that there is no connection between this fire and the ones which destroyed the arena, opera house and several private dwellings a year ago. He said he believed the "fireling" responsible for those fires was now confined in the Ontario Hospital at Brockville.

Walter for the past three seasons has been regarded as one of the most effctive rearguards in the St. Lawrence loop, and although at times erractic, was usually counted as a strong guard. While securing the name of "bad man" for some of his body checks, this was much of a misnomer as many of Adams' penalties were unearned, and no doubt quite a bit of his rough work was of the exhibition variety to "rile" the visitors or please the home town crowd as the case might be.

DARING ROBBER MAKES GETAWAY IN PRESCOTT

An unidentified, stuttering, and trembling man made good an audacious holdup robbery of Purity Milk Bar on Prescott's main street early Monday evening last, escaping with a little over $15.00 in cash and the police close on his heels.

Entering the new restaurant about 7.00 p.m., when movement along King Street was light, the unmasked man approached Manager Austin Primeau, of Cornwall, and asked for change for a ten dollar bill.

Mr. Primeau replied that he could not change the bill, but with this remark the robber moved behind the counter and ordered the surprised manager: "Well get to the back of the store and I'll get the change myself", or words to the same effect, for according to Mr. Primeau, the robber stammered his command in broken English that was hardly understandable.

He had a peaked cap drawn closely down over his eyes, wore a pair of very thick-lensed glasses without rim and a dark blue sweater from which protruded what appeared to be the business end of a revolver. The thief had his right hand underneath his sweater holding the gun, or whatever the object was, and with his left hand proceeded to rifle the till.

Mr. Primeau informed the police later that the man was shaking so badly he started to raise his hands when the robber comanded: "Keep your hands down and go to the back there and read your newspaper." Mr. Primeau obeyed this injunction fearing that the thief in his excitement might accidentally pull the trigger.

The unknown robber scooped up the day's receipts, most of which was in silver, jammed it into his pocket and turned and hurriedly left the store without another word. Mr. Primeau ran out to the street about a minute later and from a near-by store telephoned police, and Constable Jack Hall was on the scene about three minutes later. He quickly summoned Provincial Constable Alex McLeod, who telephoned provincial officers in Brockville, Morrisburg, Kemptville and Ottawa and a dragnet was opened against all traffic out of Prescot.

Traffic Officer Carl Johns and Constable John Mills were also called and the four officials began a systematic search of all nearby country roads, the railway yards, ferry docks and other possible hiding places in Prescott, but the combined efforts failed to reveal a leading clue. Mr. Primeau could not say whether the robber had any assistants waiting for him outside, or whether he escaped on foot or by car, which made the hunt that much more difficult.

The robber was described as between 30 and 40 years of age, with very fair hair and apparently of Swedish extraction from his speech. He was about 5 feet, 6 inches in height, and wore dark trousers and the blue sweater and heavy glasses mentioned above. Police believe the glasses may have been worn as a disguise. The futile search continued throughout Monday night and Tuesday but no lead has been uncovered to the robber's whereabouts.

CAR STOLEN ON MAIN STREET

On Wednesday evening, October 19th, at approximately 8.10 p.m., Mr. N.F. Clare, of 338 Hamilton Street, Preston, Ontario, left his car parked on Main Street at the corner of Locke Street, near Dr. K. Blancher's office. When he returned to the spot a few minutes later, the car was gone. Clare immediately notified Provincial Constable Frank Rose who phoned to Prescott and Cornwall and Winchester Police to watch for the car, but at the time of going to press, it has not been located. The car is a 1938 model Ford V 8 coupe black in color, and bears Ontario license number 48 W 77. It is the property of Industrial Building Products, Co., ltd., 201 Weston Road, South, Toronto, Ont. Police suspect that two transients who disappeared about the same time as the automobile are responsible for the theft.

SESSION OF PARLIAMENT MAY BE CALLED EARLY

The possibility that the next session of Parliament will begin early —before Christmas— was indicated by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting prime minister, on Tuesday evening. He said there would be no "fall" session but "it is possible the session may start some time before Christmas."

Premier to Decide

The matter will be decided after the return of the Prime Minister. If the session is started early, the particular purpose would be to have the deliberations concluded in advance of the coming of the King and Queen for which very extensive preparations will need to be made.

Trade Agreements

Although, ordinarily, the session would not be called for ratification of the projected trade agreements, no doubt they would be one of the first items of business taken up after the customary formal debates at the opening of the session.

By the "possibility of meeting before Christmas" it is presumed the acting premier had in view the assembly of Parliament early in December—perhaps on Thursday, the first of the month.

MARGARET (PUDDIN') ESSON

Margaret (Puddin') Esson, golfing sensation of the Canadian women's open championship who hails from Rosetown, Sask., and who celebrated her 17th birthday in May, never had a golf lesson in her life. Asked how she came to take up the game she told the Ottawa Journal:

"Oh, I just started fooling around with a club when I was 12. I only had one club then, an old number two iron, and one day I told my brother Bill, who's a good golfer, that I had gone around our nine-hole course at home in 53.

Only Seventeen

"He didn't believe at first I had done the nine holes in 53 with a two-iron, but I made him believe me, all right. Father's not such a good golfer but he understands my game and if I've had a teacher he's the only one. I've never taken a lesson in my life."

"Puddin'" reached the quarter finals of the tourney before bowing to Mrs. A. B. Walker, a member of the British Curtis Cup team. Her long drives and putting were sensational, but she seemed unnerved on the first nine holes of her match with Mrs. Walker and went down to a four and two defeat.

Hunting Deer Requires Skill

There hardly is a more popular big game animal with hunters than the whitetailed deer. Where there is adequate forage of the right kind, these animals are to be found in good numbers, and over a wide-spread area. They are keen witted, crafty, and call for real skill on the part of the hunter in pursuing them successfully.

In a region where they are hunted extensively, the deer exercise uncanny intelligence in eluding their enemies. While they are able to see at some distance, particularly strange movements, they depend mostly upon their sense of smell and hearing to warn them of approaching danger.

The hunter must proceed against the wind to get within firing range, if still-hunting, and he must learn how to walk through the woods as noiselessly as possible, and without making quick motions, if he is to bag a prize buck. He must not cough, talk to his companions, or smoke while stalking the wary whitetails.

The most favorable conditions, of course, are when the leaves are off the trees, the ground is wet or covered with a good tracking snow, and there is no wind blowing. But we can't always pick the best times for our hunts, so must rely upon skill and a knowledge of the habits of the deer to secure our trophies.

Brightening Up Garden Corners

Partition Off Neglected Bits And Make Each One a Thing Of Beauty

One of the changes most frequently wanted is to enlarge the garden. Such a move, however, is best not made without careful consideration. It is not wise to add a "new room" until the existing one is so well furnished and arranged that maintenance time saved will be sufficient to build and furnish the additional one.

Where enlarging is out of the question or deemed inadvisable, the existing garden often may be made more interesting by "partitioning off" certain nooks, or enclosing a neglected corner, just as we make the attic into a room. Such nooks or compartments, divided by small hedges, and used as special places for special things, will increase the element of wonder and surprise, which even familiarity will not wholly destroy. An artist said of a certain house: "I like it because the outside appearance does not betray what is inside," and the same thought expresses a garden quality. Simplicity in design need not be obviousness.

Over-Eating Is Dangerous

One of Chief Causes of High Blood Pressure—Leads to The Grave

Almost everybody eats too much, and the path of over-eating "leads but to the grave." Over-eating is one of the chief causes of high blood pressure. As one grows older the blood vessels lose their resiliency and become less elastic and more brittle. If one then runs for a train, gets violently angry or does anything else to make the heart beat faster, the extra strain on the blood vessels is likely to break them and one has a "stroke," or apoplexy.

To live long and keep healthy, one should take exercise in moderation, avoid rich foods and too much food, and keep the blood stream healthy, by living largely on a diet of milk, eggs, cheese, and whole grains, also fruits and vegetables.

Left Hand, Right Hand

Over in Dover, New Jersey, the town's poplation of 11,000 "will cease all activity on Friday in a one-minute prayer for world peace." The bulk of the town's industry is centred in "huge munitions plants." Contradictions like that are the things that keep the public mind in a constant state of bewilderment in these times. People making munitions of war — and praying for peace! And beyond any doubt, their prayers are sincere. It is all so bizarre, so fantastic, so utterly incomprehensible. The unreality of it is "real" only to megalomaniacs and would-be "Napoleons" who rule by fear and force.

Dairy Farming Costs Figured

Survey of 780 Ontario Dairy Farms Has Been Made — Crop Season Found Important Factor

An enlightening summary relative to the organization and financial success of dairy farming in Ontario has been prepared by the Economics division, Marketing Service, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The report presents findings gleaned from supervised farm accounting on 780 dairy farms which was conducted during the year July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937. The project covers all dairying sections of Ontario extending as far north as Sault Ste. Marie, from Essex county in the southwest to the Quebec border in the east.

Compare Returns For Labor

The report indicates that the crop season is an important factor in successful dairying and that those milk producers residing in areas which suffered from the drought for the crop year in question secured on the average discouraging net incomes. The operators' labor earnings which represent the farm operator's return for his labor and management plus the value of the family living secured from the farm for the several areas were as follows: Toronto $333, Windsor-Chatham $881, London-Brantford $660, Hamilton-Niagara $378, Owen Sound-Peterborough-Oshawa $355. St. Lawrence Towns $560, Ottawa $1,295, Sudbury-North Bay $768, Western Condensery $329, Eastern Condensery $691, Western Cheese $696, St. Lawrence Cheese $265, Ottawa Valley Cheese $472, and the Cream Shippers $572. The value of the family living ranged from $309 per farm in the Eastern Condensery zone to $430 in the London-Brantford zone.

Milk Cost

The feed cost is the largest single item of milk cost amounting from 48 to 58 per cent. of the gross cost. Labor also is important accounting for 20.6 per cent. of the gross cost in the Windsor-Chatham area to 30.8 per cent. in the Sudbury-North Bay zone.

We're the World's Best Fed People

British Nutrition Expert Says So —Plenty of Milk Consumed Here

Belief Canadians "are the best-fed people in the world," was expressed at Langstaff, Ontario, last week by Sir Edward Mellanby, the secretary-general of England's medical research council. "If you are not, you are at least very near it," he said.

Chief reason for bad teeth in England is probably because not enough milk is drunk, he said. Milk is pasteurized in London and except for there the milk supply is not very good in England. "Poverty" is another reason for the low consumption of milk he said.

Sir Edward stayed at the farm home of Dr. F. F. Tisdall near Langstaff, about 10 miles north of Toronto.

Sure Norsemen First Settlers

Editor of Sault Daily Star Finds New Support for his Belief That They were Earliest Whites to Set Foot on North America

New and important evidence that Norse adventurers were the first white men to set foot on North America will be made public soon, J. W. Curran, publisher of the Sault Daily Star, said in an article in the Star.

He and two other investigators are prepared to report that three Norse relics were actually found in 1931 near Beardmore, in northwestern Ontario. They were produced in 1935 by James E. Dodd of Port Arthur, who sold them to the Royal Ontario Museum.

Prove Weapons Found Here

Mr. Curran said he investigated with little hope at first that the weapons could be proven to have been found in Ontario. He was assisted by Judge Alexander McComber, senior judge of the Thunder Bay District, and Dr. George E. Eakins, of Port Arthur.

The relics sold by Dodd, a railway conductor and amateur prospector, were proven of the 11th Century but their discovery in Ontario was disputed. Dodd said he dug them up while prospecting for gold.

400 Years Before Columbus

The Sault publisher said:

"I accept Mr. Dodd as a truthful man, and so accept his story as true and exact. There is no question in my mind but that he found the Norse relics where he says he did."

Mr. Curran asserted the newly-gathered evidence might possibly prove that Norse sailors came to Ontario by James Bay before the year 1100, or 400 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic and reached Lake Nipigon by way of the Albany and Kenogami rivers.

Revenue Rise In Dominion

Customs, Excise, Income Taxes Yield More Than Last Year

Revenue collected from customs, excise and income tax for the six-month period, April 1 to September 30, 1938, was $263,132,899, Revenue Minister Ilsley announced at Ottawa last week. This was an increase of $7,798,100 over the corresponding period last year when revenue totalled $255,334,799.

Receipts from income tax amounted to $117,441,212, a gain of $21,978,891; customs duties $40,573,436, decrease of $6,922,409; excise taxes $77,667,145, decrease of $6,804,816; excise duties $27,089,491, decrease of $424,127.

During September revenue amounted to $30,657,432 as against $32,695,437 collected in September, 1937, a net decrease of $2,038,005. Collections in detail were: Income tax $5,890,328, increase $1,131,774; customs duties $6,896,432, decrease $1,339,129; excise taxes $13,291,482, decrease $1,657,156; excise duties $4,521,025, decrease $168,615; sundry collections $58,165, decrease $4,879.

THE FIGHTING SPIRIT—If more people were like her, Adolf Hitler's aggressions in Central Europe would have been stopped long ago.

A septuagenarian lady of dauntless spirit who lives in an Ontario town and is respected by all its inhabitants listened to Hitler's Berlin speech (as we all did). She had not hearkened long to the hysterical mouthings of the dictator before a furious anger against him rose up in her. She kicked the radio, and kicked it hard.

The loudspeaker was damaged to the extent of $3.75. Something went wrong with the power lines outside of her house and the town will be presenting her with the bill, as a result.

Nevertheless the lady insists the kick was worth it.

WHITHER FRANCE? — It looks now as if France, once the strongest democracy on the Continent of Europe, is to be relegated to the role of a second-rate power. How else could you interpret her present position?

Just four years ago France counted her European allies and friends on both hands: Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Soviet Russia, Greece, Turkey. British friendship was assured. Germany was well encircled. Today French statesmen admit privately that their country is dependent solely on Britain's goodwill for her future.

This autumn of 1938, France instead of Germany is encircled. At her back door she has insurgent Spain with its hostile airdromes only a few miles from the border. In the Mediterranean she faces the threat of the Italian fleet cutting her off from her reserves in North Africa. In the east her "impregnable" Maginot line of defense against Germany is built on the same engineering principles as the Czech fortifications whose secrets the Germans now possess.

Nothing seems to be left for France to do, but to revolve as Britain's satellite.

LAST IN EUROPE—In Adolf Hitler's speech to the world September 26, he declared that the Sudeten areas were the last territorial demand he would make in Europe. "In Europe," mind.

That says nothing about the British African colonies which he wants.

ME, TOO—As soon as Germany had been granted the settlement of the Sudeten minority problem in Czechoslovakia, Poland got her ultimatum in at Prague, demanding the cession of the areas where the Polish minority lives. Now Hungary has set up a howl on behalf of the Magyars in Czechoslovakia.

At home the British Government is confronted by the Welsh Nationalists who want their minority problem taken up; by Prime Minister de Valera of Eire who wants a plebiscite in certain areas of Northern Ireland. If such were held, Mr. de Valera believes, four of the six counties of Ulster—Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Tyrone, Antrim, Londonderry—would wish to join Eire (formerly the Irish Free State).

Mr. de Valera must have had his tongue in his cheek when he said that "Ireland cannot be left out of any general settlement of the minority problem in Europe."

THE WEEK'S QUESTION — How does the price paid this fall for Ontario wheat compare with a year ago? Answer—The same wheat which last year brought in $1.02 to $1.04 is now selling at 56 to 58 cents.

Sees Closer Union With the States

Premier Hepburn Predicts That In Era to Come Canada and the U. S. Will be Drawn Closer Together

A closer union between Canada and the United States arising from the struggle of European countries to become self-sustaining was envisioned by Premier Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn told the American Transit Association that Japan, Italy and Germany revealed in the recent world crisis they had serious designs upon the rest of the world, seeking to make themselves self-sustaining at the expense of other countries.

Becoming Self-Contained

Canada and the United States never had feared invasion, but they should give serious thought to becoming self-contained. Both "wonderful countries", they were peopled by the same people who had provided the necessary material to maintain free democracies.

Economic consequences, thus, of the European situation, coupled with the geographical position of Canada and the United States would bring the two countries closer together in a new era that must come if the whole economic structure were not to tumble.

Swing Not New Says Sir Ernest

Derived From Colored Rhythm Canadian Symphony Conductor Avers

VANCOUVER.—Sir Ernest McMillan, of Toronto, Canadian composer and symphony conductor, claims "jitterbugs," "jam sessions" and swing music are nothing new.

Sir Ernest was guest conductor for the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra concert here.

All popular present day music is derived from coloured rhythm, said Sir Ernest last week. He did not believe "swing music" would be permanent. "'Jittery' music is probably the result of the 'jittery' nervous life people lead today," he said.

SHE WAS A VICTIM OF HEADACHES

Kruschen Got at the Cause

This woman's headaches were of the gripping kind that reduce the sufferer to somethng like helplessness. She tried tablets. She tried pills. All without avail. Only Kruschen could help her.

"I used to get very bad headaches," she writes. "No tablets or pills of any kind could relieve them. One morning, casually, I tried Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water. I continued taking it, but I have not had one of those awful headaches since. Kruschen suits me better than anything else. I find it very good." — (Mrs.) L.A.W.

Headaches can nearly always be traced to sluggishness of the kidneys, liver and intestines, and to the unsuspected retention in the system of stagnating waste material which poisons the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschen stimulate the internal organs to healthy, regular action so that no clogging waste is allowed to collect. Your inside is kept clean and serene. And that is just how Kruschen Salts brings quick and lasting relief from headaches.

Caught a Doe In His Arms

There's a new game in Algoma district—home of the famous Algoma wolf — catching deer by hand. Robert Agnew, cottaging at Harmony Bay on the Batchawana road, near Sault Ste. Marie, saw a two-year-old doe in a bay 75 feet off shore.

About that time the department of highways road grader came along with Ed. Labelle and Max Wannamaker. Labelle took off his shoes and socks, rolled up his pants and waded into the water. When he went to touch the doe, the animal ran to shore and into Wannamaker's arms.

By Margaret Hulsey

It's on the "Best Seller" list, and everybody's reading this book that bites the hand across the sea (if we may be allowed to mix our metaphors). A great many things that we knew vaguely to be wrong or funny about the English have been caught and bottled by the author so they can't get away. And there we have them!

Margaret Halsey is the wife of a young Ph.D. who went to England on an exchange professorship. And while her husband taught, the author saw life as it was being lived in a small English village. A nice, sweet little book of essays about the English countryside should therefore have been the result. Instead this demure lady, possessed of a superlative sense of humor and leaking acid at every pore, carefully worked at an etching of England that will cause a war between the two English-speaking nations if it gets into the right hands.

"With Malice Toward Some." By Margaret Halsey. Illustrated by Peggy Bason, 278 pp. Toronto: Mission Book Co. $2.25.

Record Puffballs

One of the largest puff balls on record in the Caledonia (Ont.) district, was found by John Williamson in a field on the outskirts of the town. It measured 43 inches in circumference and weighed eight pounds. That puff ball is just an infant compared with the one found by Lorne Harett, south of Summer's Corner on the Fourth Concession of Malahide. It was found in his orchard and weighed fifteen pounds.

Plenty of Trouble In the Holy Land

The long-smoldering Arab revolt against the British control under League mandate of Palestine has broken out and fighting has reached a scale unprecedented since British and Turks fought there during the Great War. Four additional battalions of British troops have been despatched to the Holy Land. Machine guns set up in city streets, ABOVE, are now common, as the British move to put down the uprisings, while Arab agitators, INSET, exhort their countrymen to rise against British rule.

HAVE YOU HEARD

NOT ALL ROSY MEMORIES

A bunch of lovely roses graced the table in my hall,
And oh, the memories they brought to those who came to call.
An older woman sighed as she, recalled the days of yore;
When in her own small garden, she grew roses by the score.
A maiden saw a lover, who has sent her flowers bright —
An old man viewed the grave of his adored one, passed from his sight.
Each mind saw something different, smiles, tears and sighs, yes, all
Were found in those same roses, on the table in my hall!

Teacher — Now, Jimmy, what happened when the cow jumped over the moon?"

Jimmy — "Somebody got an idea for vanishing cream."

Tony — "She said I could kiss her on the cheek."

Jack — "Did you do it?"

Tony — "Not exactly. I did not know which cheek she meant, and so I kissed her in between the two."

Today — Don't believe this thing of life beginning at 40 — or at 20, or 30, or 50. Life begins each morning. The dawn of the new day is the open door to a new world, one that challenges us to make the best of it. So forget yesterday; live only in and for to-day.

Collector — "I've called to collect some back payments on what antique furniture you have."

Head of the House — "You are crazy. I never bought any antique furniture on the instalment plan."

Collector — "Well, maybe it was not antique when you bought it."

Young Mac — "Father, I have to have an atlas for school."

Old Mac — "Ah, weel, ye'd better wait till the wor'rld's mair settled."

Anybody can break a good habit, but it takes a he-man to break a bad one.

READ IT OR NOT!

United States is the home of very neaerly twice as many people calling themselves Irish as there are in the Emerald Isle itself.

A storekeeper kept a blackboard in his store and as different people passed he asked them to write what they did.

A lawyer came along and he wrote, "I plead for all!" Next came a preacher who piously wrote, "I pray for all!" A doctor passed next and wrote, "I prescribe for all!"

Then came along a red-neck farmer, who scribbled, "I pay for all!"

There are some things that should be always remembered, for instance: At a dinner party the absent-minded professor was seated next to a charming woman.

She (smiling) — "Don't you remember me, professor? Why, some years ago you asked me to marry you."

Professor — "Ah, yes, and did you?"

Collector Seeks Old Typewriters

Is Up In Canada Looking For Rare Specimens—Has Smallest Typewriter in World

WINNIPEG. — "Any ol' typewriters?"

Carl P. Dietz of Milwaukee, Wis., collector of ancient and strange typewriters, was in Winnipeg recently to see what the town had to offer.

It took him just two hours to locate two early-type machines. He will add these to the 315 different models he already had given the Milwaukee museum.

"The typewriter was invented in Milwaukee," Dietz said. "There, Sholes and Glidden made a machine using piano keys, 65 years ago. When I decided in 1934 to collect machines I thought 15 or 20 would be a good collection. I have since found there are more than 300 kinds manufactured under 647 different names."

Would Go In Your Pocket

Detz, a Milwaukee alderman, claims his collection is the only one in America and believes it is three times as large as either of two collections in Europe.

The collector carried with him probably the smallest typewriter in the world. It would fit an overcoat pocket easily. He has three of these in his collection.

With 12,500 officers at present, the British Army wants only 600 new ones in the next year to keep it up to strength.

UNIVERSE MAY BE STATIONARY

Dr. Edwin Hubble, noted astronomer who has been reaching staggering distances into space with the world's largest telescope, trying to learn the secret of the universe, reports:

"The results, at the moment, do seem to favour the concept of a stationary universe, but they do not definitely rule out the possibilities of an expanding universe. The judgment is probably reserved until further information becomes available."

TO CURE PNEUMONIA

Pneumonia, "king of diseases," may be conquered through a new laboratory product developed by experiments with sulphanilamide, Sir Edward Mellanby, secretary of the Medical Research Council of Great Britain said at Ottawa, last week.

The new product is called M and B 693. "All work on it has indicated a specific curative effect in the case of pneumonia," he said. "It will not cure all cases because the most patients come to the doctor only when near death." Experiments showed that in 100 cases studied 27 untreated patients died. Only eight treated ones died, and of these six died in the first week before the drug could demonstrate its curative power.

FROZEN FISH REVIVED

Fish and frogs, both cold blooded animals, can be frozen solid and revived repeatedly without apparent ill effects if electrical currents are used in the reviving process, Dr. L. C. Barail, of New York, reported at the recent annual meeting of the American Society for Biophysics and Cosmobiology. One of the fish had been frozen more than one hundred times, in some of the experiments staying in the liquid air for three hours.

The requisites for keeping fish alive in repeated tests are quick freezing and thawing out under the influence of a high frequency electric current.

SAYS FEVER HELPS

In speaking of fever in Urology and Cutaneous Review, Dr. F. H. Redewell says:

"Fever is a process which aids in the removal or destruction of injurious substances which get into the body. It results in an increase in leucocytes (the white corpuscles or disease fighters in the body), an increase in the rate at which all the body processes work, and a great increase in clasmatoctes (the large blood cells) the increase resistance to infection, in the blood, in the lymph (the other portion of the circulation) and all tissues of the body.

To-day, instead of reducing the temperature, it is not unusual for physicians to use methods — electricity or others — to increase the temperature of the body thus actually increasing its fighting or disease resisting forces.

Air Services Are Stressed

Windsor M.P. Tells League of Nations of the Progress Made In Canada—Important International Link

With establishment of the Trans-Canada Airways and preparations for the regular trans-Atlantic air services, Canada is rapidly becoming an important link in international and inter-continental air communications, Paul Martin, M.P., of Canada, informed the League of Nations committee on communications and transit.

Canada's View

A member of the committee, Mr. Martin said that as a widespread system of communications and transport has been of such decisive importance in the formation and development of his country, it is only natural that his government should appreciate the significance of the organization for communications and transit, and should wish the greatest possible effect to be given to its activity.

It has, however, been felt that, although of importance to Europe, where questions of transit and communication are complicated by the great number of national frontiers in a comparatively small area, the work does not so greatly concern Canada, whose only land boundary is the United States, said Mr. Martin.

Spendthrift

October is a spendthrift
All agree.
The birch tree scatters coppers
Recklessly;
The maple wears a crimson gown,
And they are saying up and down
That bittersweet bought out the town
Fabulously!

Will Mark Grave Of 'Beautiful Joe'

Meaford Women's Institute Plan to Immortalize Dog Made Famous Through Writings of Marshall Saunders

Monuments and plaques have been erected around the world to great statesmen, famous cows and important historical events. Now the Meaford Women's Institute plans to mark the grave of "Beautiful Joe," a dog.

To Erect A Fountain

Many years ago a mongrel dog lived his span and died in Meaford. During puppyhood his ears were clipped. He was "just plain dog." Finally he found love and care so abundant that to cover up his misfortune and the tragedy of his appearance his mistress named him "Beautiful Joe."

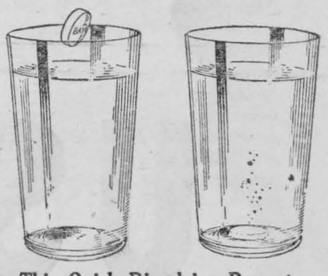

Miss Saunders wrote about him in the book "Beautiful Joe," and now the Women's Institute will immortalize him further. A stone will mark the resting place and a fountain will be erected where all the dusty, weary dogs will be sure of a refreshing drink.

Canned oysters are proving valuable to Mrs. I. R. Daly of Munson, Alta. In the space of a week she found two pearls in cans of oysters, the second being about the size of a green pea.

WORK OF WOMEN'S INSTITUTE NOT PRIMARILY COMMUNITY

Work of the Women's Institute is not primarily to take part in community activities, but rather to impart knowledge and skill to the women of the country, Miss Bess McDermid, superintendant of Ontario Institutes told the Eastern Ontario Women's Institute convention, at the closing meeting in the Chateau Laurier on Friday.

Miss McDermid emphasized programme planning should have an objective, and that local leadership should be fostered to a greater extent, developing talents and abilities of members.

Mrs. A.D. McDougall, of Maxville presided, and a report was given on community activities and relief by Mrs. J. Matheson, of MacDonalds Corners. The report on historical research was by Mrs. Thomas Flood, of Vankleek Hill, and that on Agriculture and industries by Mrs. E. Cheney, of Mountain.

C. A. BEACH HONORED .. IN DEDICATION OF HALL

Erected at a cost of $30,000, the Sunday school and recreation hall addition to St. Paul's United church at Cornwall was formally opened and dedicated this week. A large number of members of the congregation and several visiting clergymen were present at the dedicatory service, which was presided over by Rev. T. A. Halpenny, D.D., pastor. During the ceremony, there were numerous addresses and brief remarks from several members of the congregation who were responsible in some measure, for construction of the imposing building. In addition there were congratulatory messages from former ministers of the church, who were unable to attend.

A highlight of the ceremony was the unveiling of a tablet in the hall in honor of C.A. Beach, one of the greatest benefactors of the church and after whom the hall is named. Inscribed on the tablet is the following: "Through the generosity of Charles A. Beach, this hall was made possible, 1938."

Last year, when the campaign to erect the hall got under way, Mr. Beach promised to contribute an equal amount to that raised by the congregation, and in all, his contribution was $15000. Generosity of Mr. Beach was loudly praised by all speakers, who agreed that the name "Beach Hall" for the new addition expressed in only a small way the appreciation of the congregation.

CHIEF OF CORNWALL TWP. POLICE UNDER SUSPENSION

Pending the completion of a thorough investigation into alleged maladministration of Cornwall township police department, Wilfrid Bertrand, former member of the Ontario Provincial police force, who has been chief of township police since the force was inaugurated 18 months ago was indefinitely suspended by township council late Monday afternoon. While the investigation was first brought up in council eleven days ago when it was decided that conditions in the department warranted a thorough inquiry Chief Bertrand was not suspended until Monday. Suspension was based on alleged "misconduct while on duty," but council would not divulge the nature of the misconduct.

Through Crown Attorney, John G. Harkness, K.C., township council [illegible] application to General V. S. Williams, commissioner of the Ontario Provincial police, for a thorough investigation of the affairs of the township police department. Reeve J.L. McDonald stated that the inquiry would be requested immediately.

Until the inquiry has been completed and a definite decision reached in the matter, Sergeant Cory Moore of Cornwall city police, will direct the township force. Sergeant Moore has for many years been a member of the Cornwall force and is being loaned to the township temporarily to direct their department.

In addition to Chief Bertrand, Constable William Malyon is also under suspension. He was suspended by Chief Bertrand on October 3 for alleged misconduct. Both have been suspended without pay unless the grounds for suspension are unfounded.

BEST APPLES ON TOP BRINGS FINE IN COURT

Falsely representing the contents of an apple container by placing the best apples on top, resulted in a fine of $10 and $2.00 costs for Harry Viner, 261 Rochester street, Ottawa, who pleaded guilty before magistrate Strike.

The charge was laid by Emerson Paige, of the Department of Agriculture, who said Viner had apples for sale on the Ottawa market and that the apples on the top layer were fifty per cent better than the other apples contrary to the Farm Products Grades and Sales Act.

A similar charge was laid against Morris Ginsberg, 566 St. Patrick street, but the case was postponed for one week.

News And Information For The Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Current Crop Report

Silo filling and harvesting of mangels have been under way in may districts. Huro County reports pastures excellent for this time of year. Fall plowing is the order of the day in most parts of the province. Harvesting of the seed crop in Haldimand is continuing with all possible speed. Sugar beets and celery harvests have been under way in Lambton. Lincoln County reports that every farmer has mare tha enough ensilage to fill his silo, the first time in many years that this has been the case. Potato-harvesting is general in Middlesex, with yields varying from 100 to 300 bushels per acre and quality good. Hastings reports that livestick are in good shape there and milk flow is holding up well for the time of year. Northumberland makes a similar report. Victoria states that the yield of grain on most farms is the best in a few years. Red clover is of high quality in Grenville, while in Lennox and Addington poultry are going to market earlier than usual, with prices slightly higher than last year.

Guelph Winter Fair

Increased prize money for classes of early oats and seed corn has been approved by the Directors of the Guelph Winter Fair. This is in keeping with their desie to give greater recognition to the products of the field as well as to live stock, announces E.K. Hampson, Vice-President of the Fair and Chairman of the Seed Department. It is also in recognition of the loyalty and interest of the large number of seed producers who support the Show from year to year Mr. Hampson said.

The Guelph Winter Fair is known throughout Ontario as the "Farmer's Show." Here gather scores of the best farmers of the Province to meet their neighbors and get the newest information from the Ontario Agricultural College officials, who are always in attendance.

This year the O.A.C. will have a large display showing the results of pasture and feeding experiments, as well as a description of the approved varieties of potatoes, grains, and other farm crops.

In co-operation with the Corn Growers' Association, the Federal Government through W.J.W. Lennox, will place some "corn facts" before the grower and feeder of Ontario Corn.

Generally speaking, Ontario crops have been above the average and the prospects are good for the largest seed show in the history of Guelph show.

Dates for this year's fair are November 29, 30, and December 1st.

..Preparing Winter Quarters For.. POULTRY

In common practice on the average Canadian farm, late September or the month of October is the time the new crop of pullets is housed in preparation for their first year's production.

Before the birds are taken off the range however, it is necessary, in the interest of the comfort and general health of the birds, as well as the convenience of the operator, to give the poultry premises a thorough and systematic overhauling.

A start should be made with the elimination of all older stock that is not to be carried over the winter. If the farmer depends on the purchase of day-old chicks for flock renewal, this may possibly mean the disposal of all stock in the plant. If breeders are to be hetained, they should be separated from the laying stock if sufficient space is available.

Having removed the surplus stock attention should be centered on the premises. If portable panel fencing is used, the hurdles may be removed and stored for the winter. Runways may be limed and ploughed. If convenient, remove all loose fittings such as nests, roosts, drop boards, from the house and expose them to the bright sun for several days. They should first, of course, be cleaned of all dust and litter. Scrape and sweep walls and ceilings. After cleaning is completed, apply a good lime wash to every part of the interior of the house. Disinfectants may be added to the wash if considered advisable.

Incidentally, a spray pump is the most satisfactory method of whitewashing as it is then possible to drive the material into all cracks and seams. Apply a thorough coat of whitewash to the fittings, nests, roosts, etc. before they are returned to place.

Stop any drafts such as [illegible] knot holes, etc. and replace [illegible] window glass and any torn cotton in the vetilating sashes.

Put in a good supply of fresh, clean, litter, and your house is ready for the birds whenever they are brought in from range.

High or Low Grade Honey

Honey, to the chemist, is essentially a highly concentrated sugar solution. To the consumer honey is delicious food direct from nature. It contains, besides the highly nutritive sugars, many other elements essential to the human body.

Since most honey is marketed in the extracted form, unchanged in composition, it is of many different shades of colour and has a great variety of flavours. Honey also varies in moisture content depending, to a certain extent, on the weather conditions during the nectar gathering period. The length of time the honey is allowed to remain on the hive before extracting has also a bearing on the density, therefore, the supers should not be removed for extracting until the combs are at least three-quarters capped. During extraction, care should be taken to avoid the honey becoming spoiled in any way.

This may happen by the absorption of moisture from the air, so that the drier the honey house the better. Steam should not be allowed to escape into the air of the extracting room and the windows should be kept closed during damp damp or rainy weather. Even capped or comb honey stored in a damp place will absorb moisture from the air.

Honey should be heated only sufficiently to facilitate straining, if, indeed, heating is necessary. The volatile oils which are peesent in infinitely small quantities aee driven off by heat. It is these oils which give honey its fine aroma and flavor, therefore, excessive heat should be avoited.

The texture of granulated honey depends largely on its treatment while in the liquid state. Granulation is retarded by heating and the quicker the granulation the more uniformly smooth the final product. Therefore, after extracting honey should be stored in a cool, dry place.

Cleanliness in handling honey cannot be emphasized too much. Honey rapidly deteriorates under careless handling, and while the grading regulations attempt to ensore the consumer that he is getting a quality product, only the carefulness of the producer can give him honey at its best.

CHAPTER III

Whatever they talked about, McDonald was not pleased. He kept hunching his coat collar, scowling, answering in short, sharp syllables. The pug's bushy brows wriggled until they met across his bent and twisted nose. The other newcomer talked on suavely but Dan knew he was laying down the law.

Unable to linger at the cashier's desk any longer, Colwell stepped out of the Waverly Club bar. As he emerged on the sunlit street well filled with business people hurrying to or from lunch, the three he watched made for the curb. McDonald signalled a taxi. They climbed in, McDonald in the middle, and the hack rolled away.

Dan gestured another cab. "I'm going where that green hack goes. But leave a little space between. He gave the driver a keen look.

"No sir, mister, I need the money but ——"

The driver left off and accepted the bill Colwell poked at him. "Oh, okay," he grinned. "Hop in!"

The ride was down Reed Street to the corner of Prospect Boulevard one of the principal shopping districts of the city. There the taxicab in front turned north, Colwell's driver following. Dan guessed his quarry headed for the Lawyers and Doctor's Building where Arthur McDonald maintained his law office. He could see the man's head and shoulders through the rear window of his cab and catch occasional glimpses of his companions, one on either side. Colwell settled back and smoked a cigarette.

At the intersection with Broadway half the pavement was torn away for repairs and the resultant bottle neck caused a sweet traffic tieup. Colwell"s cab halted immediately behind that of McDonald. On Dan's left was the gaping hole of the street foundation with picks and shovels lying about and the tar cooker boiling over a wood fire. The workmen squatted on the distant curb munching sandwiches.

On Dan's right was a big double-deck bus. He smoked, peacefully oblivious to the honking as impatient drivers began to prod the traffic cop who already must be perspiring through his uniform. The tieup grew worse and the honking grew louder, more insistent. Somebody's big limousine up there had lost a wheel, that was the trouble now.

Colwell bestirred himself when he saw two men pile out of McDonald's cab. He could not help his pulse picking up speed. It was the striped suit gent and his smoother partner who got out. Dan blinked thoughtfully — then shrugged.

McDonald still was visible as to head and shoulders through the rear window of the taxi. There was nothing Colwell needed to telephone Mac's beautiful wife yet. His thoughts swung to her, and he grinned. McDonald was lucky, if he only knew it.

The meter ticked busily. Colwell saw the two men who alighted from the taxi ahead separate and start carelessly for the sidewalk. He squinted after them, then at McDonald. Dan muttered a curse, climbed to the street, and thrust a half dollar at his driver.

"I can walk faster'n this," he growled.

He was not the only disgusted citizens in the traffic knot at Broadway and Prospect. Eight or nine others, indignant and abusive, had forsaken cars in which they had been riding, or the big yellow double-deck bus. Dan waited until no one afoot was near; then he sauntered alongside McDonald's cab and shot a straight, quick look in.

His Adam's apple jerked. But for the raucous, impatient honking on all sides the ejaculation that burst from his lips would have attracted instant notice. Experienced as he was, this thing jarred him, made his chest feel clammy. His blue-grey eyes riveted with horror on the slight, dandyish form of Arthur McDonald in that taxi.

His stare attracted the driver's attention. It all happened in two or three seconds, five at most. Automatically the taxi man glanced into his rear view mirror.

He squirmed around. His gaunt countenance lost what little colour too many cigarettes had left, and went blank. He bathed McDonald with a terrified look, wrenched his eyes to Dan, and returned them to his passenger as if drawn by a magnet.

The eyes of the shyster lawyer almost popped from their sockets. They were glazed. A long knife was buried to the hilt in his chest, stabbed through his expensive brown silk tie. His right hand actually hung on the haft of the weapon, as though in his agony he had tried to draw the thing out. Stiff in death, McDonald sat in the shabby green taxicab waiting for the traffic to move!

There is an arresting horror in the sight of a murdered man. It gripped the hack driver, held him taut until comprehension seeped to his brain of the awful meaning of it. Colwell was in the clutch of amazement, but years of experience at meeting such sights made him recover first. His movement to leave the spot prompted the taxi man's yell.

"Police! Murder!" He howled it above the din of horns, and the throb of impatient motors. "A guy is dead! There goes the fella! Help, police!"

Dan saw a strip of white paper on the running board of the car which evidently had fallen unseen when those two men had stepped out. He leaned and snatched it up, then plunged for the back of the cab. His impulse was to race for the sidewalk after the killer pair but his anxious eyes failed to find them. And the red barricade set up at the gap of torn pavement changed his mind. He turned around the rear of the bus just as a gaseous cloud poured from its exhaust. In the nick of time as it was picking up speed he flipped on the back platform where the conductor stood.

Murder in the Green Cab

They stared at each other. If the fellow had made a move to seize him Dan would have broken his jaw. But the conductor merely seemed startled to pick up a passenger at this spot. He offered his pistol-grip fare box. Colwell fumbled in his vest and produced a dime which he stuffed in the slot to the tinkle of a little bell. He shouldered past the conductor up the winding stairway, slinking into a rear seat where he twisted to look back at the same time reaching for a handkerchief to wipe his perspiration-beaded countenance.

Set to shadow McDonald, he had allowed those two men to murder him!

He cursed himself roundly. Colwell's square jaw set. This must have been planned with considerable suddenness, or the slaying may have been impulsive. McDonald may have grown fractious right there in the green cab. The killers had silenced him and then hastily turned his pockets inside out, evidently knowing well what they wanted.

In the wake of his bus Dan saw the harrassed traffic cop run for the hack which impeded a long line of cars. People swarmed from all directions toward the gesticulating taxi driver, even some of the street repair men running across the raw wound in the pavement. The chauffeur, in the street now, yelled the louder, howled some more oaths, and wrenched the handle of the tonneau door. He stepped back with another howl. Meanwhile, the other traffic rolled coldly away with the same alacrity it had knotted.

The lumbering double-decker progressed half a block. Dan relaxed somewhat with a sense of tremendous relief. The cab driver had not seen him board the bus.

Hair Affords No Key to Ability

Many Notables Had Red Locks, Many Did Not

Hair doesn't seem to afford any index to genius or character. It is true that among important personages history has turned up, there have been a good many red-heads, but the number does not appear to be greater, proportionately, than the number of red-haired persons among the less important, writes a correspondent to The Cleveland Plain Dealer.

John Bunyan had red hair, for one. And Peter the Great's was red and Swinburne's was red. Savanarola had reddish eyelashes, according to accounts of him, while Thomas Hobbes had reddish whiskers.

To show that red-haired persons have no monopoly of talent, here are the names of a few outstanding figures whose hair was black: Matthew Arnold, Samuel Taylor Coleridge, Stephen A. Douglas, William Hazlitt, Charles Lamb, John Marshall, Daniel Webster, John Greenleaf Whittier, John Paul Jones, Sir Arthur Sullivan.

Among those whose hair was classified as "dark" were Browning, Alexandre Dumas, Robert Louis Stevenson, Rossetti, and Mendelssohn. William Cullen Bryant's, Defoe's, Cromwell's, Longfellow's and Farragut's heads were brown. And the downright blondes have included (among many others) Keats and Trackeray.

LETTING DINNER GET ITSELF

Have you ever played truant from your home for an afternoon and had a grand time only to have it all spoiled by realizing along about five o'clock that you haven't anything ready for dinner? Then you dash into a store on the way home and buy canned goods and chops or steak, knowing that this is the most extravagant way to pay for your little holiday. All because you didn't plan ahead.

There is a way to have your cake and eat it too. Here is a menu which can be prepared before you go out and be on the table a few minutes after you get back home. The main dish is Casserole of Lamb. While this is baking for the first time, you can make Cardinal Salad, then the Orange Dessert Cake, then straighten up the kitchen and you're finished. When you finally arrive home after an afternoon free from care, all you have to do is turn on the oven to heat the casserole, toast some rolls, slice the cake, unmold the salad and dinner is ready.

LAMB EN CASSEROLE

1 pound breast of lamb, cut in small pieces
½ cup onions, sliced
1 tablespoon butter
1 cup boiling water
1 cup carrots, diced
1 cup potatoes, diced
2 cups canned tomatoes
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca

Brown lamb and onion in butter; add water. Bake, covered, in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) about 1 hour. Add other ingredients; bake ½ hour; stir often. Serves 6. This re-heats without any loss of flavour or body.

CARDINAL SALAD

1 package lemon jelly powder
1 cup warm water
¾ cup beet juice
3 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons scraped onion
1 tablespoon prepared horse-radish
¾ cup celery, diced
1 cup cooked beets, diced

Dissolve jelly powder in warm water. Add beet juice, vinegar, salt, onion, and horse-radish. Chill. When slightly thickened, fold in celery and beets. Turn into mold. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce. Garnish with mayonnaise. Serves 8.

ORANGE CAKE

2½ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Grated rind of 1 orange
2/3 cup butter or other shortening
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs, unbeaten
2 tablespoons lemon juice
5 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons water

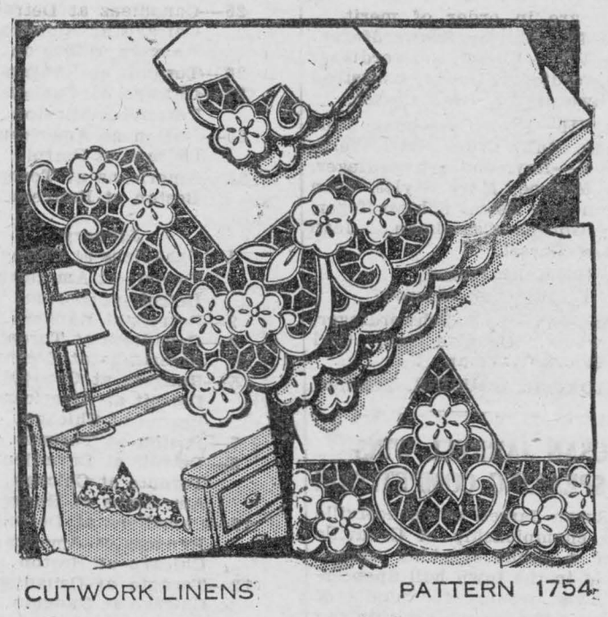

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Add lemon and orange rind to butter, and cream thoroughly; add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition. Add flour, alternately with combined fruit juice and water, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 20 minutes. Spread Orange Butter Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake.

ORANGE BUTTER FROSTING

Grated rind of 1 orange
Grated rind of ½ lemon
¼ cup orange juice
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 egg yolk
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons butter
3 cups sifted confectioners' sugar

Add orange and lemon rind to orange juice and allow to stand 10 minutes. strain. Combine lemon juice, egg yolk, salt, butter, and confectioners' sugar. Add orange juice until of right consistency to spread. Beat until smooth and spread on cake. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

Color In Lipstick Comes From Bug

Cochineal Industry Centered In Canary Islands Supplies It

The cochineal industry which supplies the colouring in rouges and lipsticks is centred mainly in the Canary Islands. The colouring is obtained from the cochineal bug; "Coccus cacti" to zoologists. It has a reddish tinted, fat, wrinkly body, tortoise shaped and about half the size of a grape. Cochineal insects are all of one sex—mothers. In spite of the fact that they are all identically alike, they reproduce with great rapidity, fresh generations arising within a few hours.

The Safest Dye

The dye obtained from these insects brought great prosperity to the islands until chemists discovered aniline dyes and brought the Islands to the verge of bankruptcy. Within recent years, however, they have renewed their prosperity, for no dye known to science is so safe when used on the human skin as cochineal.

The rationing of gasoline in Japan has forced all taxi companies in Kobe to merge.

Colour Adds Life To Autumn Styles

Violet and Violine Tones Most Popular In New Mode

NEW YORK.—Every woman in assembling her clothes should consider these fashion facts from the world's greatest designers.

Color is used to add new life to black and sober shades or in intriguing combinations of hues. The violet and violine tones—purple, plum, cyclamen and fuchsia—rank first. Then comes a range of red, including American beauty and wine; and a variety of rusts, titians, greens and blues. Grays and browns complete the day picture and pastels are important for evenings.

Lavish Use Of Furs

Day skirts are generally short, but the silhouette shows variation. Wider flared skirts and slender fitted bodices are the newest notes, but there are a number of straight skirts, soft draped bodices and wide-armhole "angel" sleeves.

Furs are used lavishly. They make hats, muffs, jackets and a number of straight box coats (longer than last year). They likewise trim cloth coats and band costume suits.

Providing An Adequate Diet

Family Should Get Necessary Vitamins Each and Every Day

An adequate, nourishing, and daily diet for family needs should include these items:

1 pint of milk (a child needs 1½ pints.)
6 full slices of bread.
1 egg.
1 potato.
2 tablespoons of an unrefined cereal.
4 tablespoons butter.
1 tablespoonful brown sugar.

These essentials give you calcium, phosphorus and iron with vitamins A, B, D and G.

In addition you need, unless on special diet, three ounces of meat or fish to provide protein and Vitamin E, four ounces of green vegetables, for mineral salts and bulk, and three ounces of fresh fruit to give you Vitamin C.

Water Is Essential

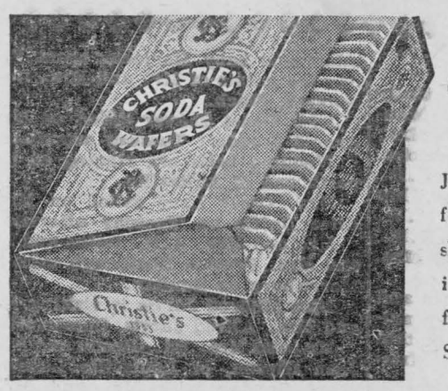

If your medical man has prescribed more of any one of these vitamins or mineral salts, increase the quantity of that food or beverage and cut down on bulk.

For additional iron, especially in anaemia, increase the daily quantities of liver, kidney, oysters and dried peas, spinach, prunes and dried apricots.

A sluggish action of the thyroid gland is due often to lack of iodine in the system. Fish and shellfish are excellent sources of iodine.

Water is, of course, one of those regulation items essential to proper digestion and body temperature. The more bodily energy used up, the more sugar, starches and fats are necessary.

LESSON IV

OUR DAY OF REST

Exodus 20:8-11; Isaiah 58:13,14; Luke 13:10-17; Galatians 4:8-11; Colossions 2:16; Revelations 1:10

Printed Text, Ex. 20:8-11; Luke 13:10-17.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

Time.—The later prophecies of Isaiah were uttered somewhere near 698 B.C. The incident recorded in Luke's Gospel occurred in December, A.D. 29. The epistle to the Galatians was written A.D. 60; the epistle to the Colossians A.D. 64; and the book of Revelation A.D. 90 [illegible] A.D. 95.

Place.—The incident recorded in Luke's Gospel occurred in Peraea on the eastern side of the Jordan River. Galatia was a large province in Asia Minor at the time Paul wrote. The city of Colossae was located in the southern part of Asia Minor; the island of Patmos is located in the Aegean Sea opposite the south-western coast of Asia Minor.

8. Remember the sabbath day, to keep it holy. The Fourth Commandment is distinct from others in a number of ways. In the preceding three commandments, man, as it were, is spoken to individually as regards his relationships to God. In the last six comandments he is spoken to as a member of society, regarding his relationships to other people. In the Fourth Commandment both of these ideas are found together.

The word "Sabbath" is from a root meaning to break off, or to desist, and, therefore, originally, simply meant a time of cessation from work.

9. Six days shalt thou labor, and do all thy work. It is generally forgotten in reciting or speaking about the seventh day that there is as distinct a command here to work as there is to cease from work.

10. But the seventh day is a sabbath unto Jehovah thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates. Rest and dedication to God are the properties here assigned to the Sabbath.

11. For in six days Jehovah made heaven and earth, the sea, and all that in them is, and rested the seventh day: wherefore Jehovah blessed the sabbath day, and hallowed it. The reference here is to Gen. 2:1-3.

To work and to rest alternately, with a certain average proportion of time devoted to each, is prescribed to man by the conditions of his physical well-being. To attain the ends of his existence upon earth and maintain his powers in healthful exercise, a large amount of labor, with certain intervals for rest intercalated in the time devoted to labor, is universally indispensable.

But, if we are agreed that the Sunday is to be a day of rest, it is still more essential for us to understand that it must be a holy not an ignoble rest.

Luke 13:10-17. 10. And he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath day. No man is ever so good or so wise that he can afford to remain away from church. We here discover that the Lord was acknowledged to be one worthy of expounding the Scriptures in the synagogue.

11. And hebold, a woman that had a spirit of infirmity eighteen years; and she was bowed together, and could in no wise lift herself up. 12. And when Jesus saw her, he called her, and said to her, Woman, thou art loosed from thine infirmtiy. 13. And he laid his hands upon her: and immediately she was made straight, and glorified God. From him (through the laying on of hands) there streamed into her the currents of a new life, so that the bands, spiritual and bodily, by which she was held, were loosened.

14. And the ruler of the synagogue, being moved with indignation because Jesus had healed on the sabbath, answered and said to the multitude, There are six days in which men ought to work: in them therefore come and be healed, and not on the day of the sabbath. He was one of those Pharisees who was a stickler for the strict legalistic interpretation of the law according to the traditions of the fathers.

15. But the Lord answered him, and said, Ye hypocrites, doth not each one of you on the sabbath loose his ox or his ass from the stall, and lead him away to watering? 16. And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan had bound, lo, these eighteen years, to have been loosed from this bond on the day of the sabbath? Jesus asks two questions, the answers to which are beyond question. The argument is cumulative: the woman, a human being, over against the ox and the ass, mere beasts.

17. And as he said these things, all his adversaries were put to shame: and all the multitude rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

Goodbye "Invisible" Plates

Margaret Gillies shows the difference between this year's "invisible" Ontario license plates and the new 1939 reflecting markers. The new plates are made with a white on black color scheme. Experimentally, thousands of tiny glass crystals have been blown into the paint to reflect light and make them visible at a great distance and at night. Doctors' cars only will use the experimental plates till they have been proved efficacious. Then we may all have them on our cars.

Housing Loans Show Increase

The Department of Finance has announced loans under the National Housing Act in September totalled $1,240,695, providing housing accommodation for 338 families, compared with $552,450 for 134 families in September last year.

Contrary to the seasonal trend in 1936 and 1937, when operations for September showed a marked drop compared with August, total loans for September this year exceeded August by $209,291, an increase of 20 per cent. Loans up to September 30 totalled $23,426,259, providing housing accommodation for 5,911 families in 215 communities throughout the Dominion.

None In Alberta

Total loans by provinces up to September 30 and number of units in brackets follow: Prince Edward Island $59,634 (11); Nova Scotia $1,698,563 (395); New Brunswick $465,627 (109); Quebec $5,993,281 (1,308); Ontario $11,073,676 (2,844); Manitoba $745,583 (173); Saskatchewan $18,100 (5); Alberta, nil; British Columbia $3,371,795 (1,066).

CBS VARIETY PROGRAM

Jack Haley, jovial singing comedian inaugurated his own variety program over the Columbia network on Friday, October 14, (WABC-CBS, 7.30 to 8.00 p.m., EST). He was supported by Lucille Ball, young screen commedienne who starred opposite the Marx Brothers in their current film success; Virginia Verrill, bewitching blues singer, and Ted Fiorito's Orchestra.

Jack Haley

Haley is a Bostonian, born and bred. Broadway success blazed a trail to Hollywood for him, and his brilliant portrayal of the ambitious but mike-struck singer in the Winchell-Bernie vehicle "Wake Up and Live", led to radio stardom.

RADIO CONVENIENCES

Rogers new 1939 "Super-Value" Radios contribute many new features for convenience, including easier, quicker and more accurate tuning—but most important is their exclusive six individual spread-band dials. Only one dial is visible at a time on this new Canadian radio so that there can be no question as to what band is being tunde. This is an innovation in radio sets—just as Rogers was the first successful batteryless radio in the world!

"SILVER THEATRE"

Margaret Sullavan, one of the leading emotional actresses of both stage and screen, brought her remarkable talents to the radio when she took the starring role in the "Silver Theatre" production heard over the Columbia network, Sunday, October 9th. (WABC-CBS, 6.00 to 6.30 p.m., EST.)

Margaret Sullavan

Miss Sullavan was supported by a large cast of well known Hollywood actors and actresses. Miss Sullavan's leading success on the stage in recent years was as the star of "Stage Door." Her best known movies have included "Three Comrades," "Shopworn Angel", So Red the Rose", and "Little Man What Now."

BOWES TROPHY

A miniature death mask of Napoleon, taken from an original which was made in 1834, is the latest addition to the unique collection of miniatures which form part of the Major Bowes exhibit in the Chrysler Building in New York. Smallest items in the collection are four animals, a panda, a leopard, an elephant and a bear, each carved out of a peach pit. Musical instruments exhibited include a Dutch silver violin scarcely three inches long and a wooden violin, with case, five inches in length.

Flint Knapping Since Stone Age

Prehistoric Industry of Chipping and Fashioning Pieces Continues in Britain after 10,000 Years.

It may seem strange that there should still be carried on in the heart of rural England that prehistoric industry of flint knapping. The chipping and fashioning of flints into implements and weapons is an art which is said to date back to the Stone Age, to have had its origin possibly 10,000 years ago.

The center of the British industry is now, as apparently it always has been, at Brandon in Suffolk, writes a correspondent of "The Christian Science Monitor."

One wonders if it is a freak industry and kept going only for sentimental reasons. However, flint knapping is still a commercial undertaking and is a means of livelihood. There is no competition and, indeed, the knappers lament that they cannot keep pace with the orders.

There are many parts of the world where flints are still required, and each year more than 100,000 specially worked gun flints are exported to the tropics. They go mostly to the traders at Lagos, on the west coast of Africa, or else to China or Malaya, and the traders in turn barter them to the natives.

The natives use these flints either to cause the spark and ignite the powder in an old flintlock gun or else to give the spark in an old [illegible] lighting.

Andirons Once Were Essential

To Cooking On This Continent When Wood-Burning Fireplaces Were In General Use

For two centuries American homes were dependent for both cooking and heating on wood-burning fireplaces, writes Thomas Hamilton Ormsbee in "American Collector." Andirons were essential and must have been part of the necessary equipment brought over by the first settlers, although no specific mention is made of them. We do find in the inventory of Governor Winthrop's estate, dated February 17, 1649, "2 pairs andirons—one pound, ten shillings." Four years later a list of the household furnishings of Captain Tyng, of Boston, includes "a great paire of Brass andirons."

Just when andirons were first made in the American colonies is hard to say, but those of wrought iron were probably produced for local needs almost as soon as the first blacksmiths set up their forges.

Bigger Prison Population With Stiffer Penalties

Prison Terms in Ontario Are Being Given More Often Now for Offences Formerly Not Thought So Serious

TORONTO.—The new policy of seeking imposition of heavier sentences and prison terms for offences formerly not regarded so seriously is converting the big provincial industrial farm at Burwash into the "Alcatraz" of Ontario.

Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon said last week the prison farm near the Northern Ontario mining centre of Sudbury gradually was becoming an "Alcatraz" because of the recent plan of sending the more serious "repeaters" there. The farm population now is at an all-time high of 670.

Nixon said the increased prison population should occasion no alarm since it arose from imposition of more severe terms.

"For instance," he said, "the other day near Hamilton a man was given quite a heavy sentence for 'cutting in' on the road. Formerly he would have got off. Sentences also have been stiffened against vagrants and stiffer sentences also are being given for offences under the Highway Traffic Act and under the Criminal Code for drunken drivers."

Arctic Outpost Of Greenland

Thule Is 350 Miles North of the Arctic Circle—Population 311, Ruled By Denmark

Thule, Greenland, one of the world's northernmost permanent settlements, about 350 miles north of the Arctic Circle, now is for the first time under the direct control of the Danish government, which holds sovereign rights over all of Greenland, and has actively governed much of the coast.

Thule is a village of about 311 inhabitants, nearly all Eskimos, situated on the southern shore of Wolstenholme Fjord off Baffin Bay, says the National Geographic Society.

Discovered By Rasmussen

Since its discovery by the Danish explorer, Knud Rasmussen, on the first Thule expedition in 1912-'13, it has been under an autonomous government by native hunters. The explorer set up this local government, a system that until the recent action of the Danish government was successfully operated in the remote Arctic outpost.

While Thule's population growth has not been impressive, the village has become important as a trading and missionary station for a vast region of northwestern Greenland and the headquarters and starting point for several important Arctic expeditions.

Police of Western Ontario are diligently searching for two bandits who held up the Mount Brydges branch of the Royal Bank on Thursday last and escaped with $4000. J.W. Flett, the branch manager, who for some years was the manager of the Royal Bank in Winchester, fired several shots after the men but was uncertain whether he hit them. Mr. Flett and the teller R.A. Norman, were forced into the vault by the two masked men, who carried long barreled revolvers. "They ordered us into the vault," the manager said' "They made us keep our backs to them. They seemed afraid that we would get a good look at them. When they got us inside the vault they tried to close the door on us and lock it, However, we always keep the vault doors fixed so they can't be locked witbout knowing the combination."

ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER AT BROCKVILLE ASSIZES

Hugh J. Willard, Prescott ferry boat captain, was committed to a higher court for trial last Fri., when he appeared in court before Magistrate Wright for his preliminary hearing on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of George A. Long, of Merrickville, who died Sept. 13th.

Capt. Willard engaged in a scuffle with Long on the night of Sept. 12, and striking him with his open hand, the man fell against the wall of the ferry terminal, striking his head in that fall and sustaining a fatal fracture of the skull, followed by hemorrhage, from which he died

Most of the evidence drawn forth from the half dozen witnesses by Crown Attorney Atkins was the same as produced at the coroner's inquest

The witnesses examined were Dr. R.P. Walker, who attended the deceasd; Patrick L. Quinn, mate of the ferry steamer Joseph Dubrule; Patrick Quinn, purser of the boat; Arthur Johnston and Chas. M. Tobin, customs officers at Prescott. Alexander Boyd Corbbett of Merrickville, who accompanied the deceased from Merrickkville to Prescott and then to Ogdensburg and returned to the Fort Town on the ferry the night of September 12th, when the alleged offence occurred, and Provincial Constable A. MacLeod of Prescott.

According to the evidence of Provincial Constable Alex McLeod of Prescott, the accused made a voluntary statement to him after his arrest on a charge of manslaughter. In the statement, the accused admitted "striking the deceased with his open hand" after he had yelled some abusive language at a few friends.

Long, the accused alleges in the statement, tripped on the edge of the sidewalk and fell against the wall of the Customs House building, suffering a severe fracture of the skull.

Other evidence produced by the Crown showed Long to have been in a very intoxicated and "boisterous" condition on the trip made across on the ferry boat. He was very talkative and "in a fighting mood."

Following the hearing, the Magistrate ordered the captain placed on trial at the supreme court assizes opening in Brockville November 8th, and set bail at $5,000. Accused was represented by Lieut. Col. A.C. Casselman, M.P., K.C., of Prescott.

At the regular service next Sunday morning Mr. W.S.L. Merrill will give his impressions of the General Council, of the United church of Canada recently held in Toronto. Mr. Merrill was the only lay Commissioner elected to represent the Dundas Grenville Presbytery at that gathering. Rev. R.D. Smith at both the morning and evening services will deal with the Crusade for the deepening of religious life which is being launched throughout the whole of the United church. This is a call to Enlistment in a Fellowship of Worship, Prayer and Giving. It is hoped that across Canada a quarter of a million people will be enlisted and hence the name "The Quarter Million Fellowship Crusade."

In the local church this crusade will be presented also in a series of meetings throughout the community on Wednesday evening at 7.30 p.m. These will be held as follows:
Home of—Mr. and Mrs. W.S.L. Merrill, Gravel Road.
