FIRE DESTROYS CHEESE FACTORY

QUANTITY OF MILK AND FACTORY EQUIPMENT ALSO LOST

Fire, alleged to have started in the boiler rooms located in the south end of the building, gutted the cheese factory operated by Mr. A. W. Churchill, Main St., East, on Monday afternoon last. Neighbours first noticed the blaze as it worked its way along the eaves at the south end of the structure about 1.30 p.m. and immediately turned in the alarm. In a very few minutes both chemical and water engines were on the scene, under the chief, T. O. Keyes, and were in operation.

By the time the firemen arrived, the entire south end of the factory was a mass of flames. Work was immediately started by volunteers to clear out the cheese and equipment stored in the curing room, and the north end of the building was cleared out completely. Approximately fifty cheese were saved, besides miscellaneous equipment.

Meanwhile the brigade had three streams of water on the blaze and systematically worked their way towards the heart of the fire. Within an hour, the flames were brought under control, but the building, which was built of clap-board, was badly gutted. The roof collapsed but did not fall in.

The damage, alleged to be approximately $1000, was partly covered by insurance.

Thieves Apprehended

With the arrest Sunday night of two young Williamsburg township men, provincial police are convinced that they have cleared up a series of robberies which have been perpetrated in Stormont and Dundas counties during the past month. The men in custody, Lloyd Henry 24, and Harold Pomeroy, 19, of the second concession of Williamsburg, have admitted their connection with several burglaries which have been puzzling police. They are being held in jail in Cornwall on remand for sentence, and will appear before Magistrate J. C. Milligan on Monday morning.

Early Saturday morning, provincial police at Cornwall were notified that thieves had forced an entrance to W. A. Edwards' Creamery at Aultsville. Provincial Constable W. H. Kennedy and Chauffeur James Lindop hastened to Aultsville, where Constable Kennedy learned that the thieves had gained entrance to the factory through a rear door. They had entered through an unlocked outside door and then forced an inner door to get into the factory.

A check-up revealed that the burglars had carried off seven boxes, each containing 56 pounds of butter, and two cartons containing 95 pounds, the total haul being 487 pounds. When police arrived, all marks in the snow outside the factory had been obliterated by the wheel tracks of rigs used in delivering cream to the plant.

Constable Kennedy acted at once and notified police at Montreal, Ottawa, St. Anne and Morrisburg to be on the lookout for the stolen butter. Continuing his investigation, he received information regarding the suspicious movements of two Williamsburg township men. Search warrants were taken out and Constable Kennedy visited Henry's home. In searching a garage on Henry's farm, the constable noticed a disused stove and curiosity prompted him to look into the oven. He found that it contained a pail of cup grease, which he readily identified as having been stolen from Isaac Raymond's garage some time ago, at the Longue Sault. He also found two eight-gallon milk cans in the garage, both of which had recently contained gasoline. Automobile polish, tire patches, spark plugs and other small articles were discovered.

Questioning the men, police obtained their admission that they had robbed the Edwards' Creamery, Mahlon Helmer's service station at Newington and Isaac Raymond's garage, at the Longue Sault. They also admitted having taken three empty milk cans, belonging to William Murphy, from the C. N. R. Station at Wales. The cans were taken on the night of November 14 and were used as containers for gasoline stolen at Helmer's service station. Pomeroy also admitted having stolen from Salmon's refreshments booth, three miles east of Morrisburg, some time ago. They were remanded one week for sentence.

INTERESTING NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

JUST A FEW EVERY-DAY HAPPENINGS

(By the Editor)

The British Parliiament was opened by King George on Tuesday. and the chief incident worth noting was that a Labor member, J. McGouvern, interrupted the King, but no one paid an attention to him, and the incident passed.

It is now rumoured in "the know" political circles that the U. F. O. of Ontario will sever all connection with the political movement of the C. C. F. You can generally trust the farmers to do the sensible thing in the end.

Sir James O'Dononue died in Toronto on Monday in abject poverty and was buried by charity. He had once been a personal friend of the late King Edward, and was once Mayor of the city of Galway, Ireland. What a story could be told of the days between the time he received his title from the late King and the day of his death. We leave you to imagine it.

Two scientific men took their lives in their hands and went up into space 59,000 feet above the earth at Bridgeton, N. Y., on Monday. They came down again and landed in a field, and wrapping themselves in blankets, slept till morning when they were discovered. They will have much to tell, and no doubt much of interest. And who knows what just such explorations by scientists may mean to the future generation. How interesting it would be if we could see into the future.

The Island of Newfoundland has gone bankrupt, and has again become a colony of Great Britain, and its affairs will be administered by a Governor. There is some talk of it being annexed to Canada, but just at present Canada has enough territory to look after, and if England wants to mother Newfoundland, let her do so.

Premier Bennett sent a message over the radio on Monday night, and to listen to it made you feel good whether you wanted to or not. Among other important things he said that the question of establishing a Central Bank in Canada would be dealt with at the forthcoming session of Parliament. The Premier also intimated that considerable in the way of Public Works would be begun early in the spring to relieve the unemployment situation.

Sheldon A. Clark, a wealthy man, with a somewhat quick-tempered wife, was enjoying a game of billiards at their beautiful home in Paulsboro, N. J., and it may be that they had liquid refreshments on the side. Anyway, Sheldon hit his wife with a billiard cue, and she picked up a revolver that was lying handy and shot Sheldon killing him instantly. The woman had to be taken to an hospital and have her head dressed.

The citizens of Gananoque did a very nice thing a few days ago when, headed by the Mayor, they visited the grave of the late Joel Stone, on the 100th anniversary of his death. He was the founder of the town of Gananoque, and evidently a very fine type of the early pioneer.

There may be various views expressed as to her sanity, but it must be admitted that Mrs. Louise Stanton was an unusually brave woman, and left nothing to chance. She was 30 years old. and two weeks ago lost her husband in an automobile accident. It seemed that she could not overcome her grief, so she deliberately planned her death. She hired an airplane with enough gas for a four hours' flight. She then wrote notes to different parties, and advised them not to look for her as she would be beyond their reach. It is supposed she flew from Jacksonville, Florida, out over the ocean, and then deliberately took a nose dive into the deep waters. She held a license for flying. No trace of her or the plane has been heard of since Tuesday.

You can never tell what kind of a heart beats under an old tattered coat. At Winnipeg, on Tuesday moning, a poor transient, wandering about the streets, saw a house on fire. He quickly aroused the family, and was largely instrumental in saving 12 inmates, including a number of children he carried to safety. When the fire was out he was found dead, suffocated and badly burned, in a bed-room. No one can identify this unknown hero. We wonder why he was a poor transient. A man with the courage and heart of that man deserved a better fate.

Russia built a large aeroplane, one that could carry 128 persons, and was supposed to be a modern miracle of the air that would have wonderful possibilities. It was started on its first trip on Tuesday at Kharkov, and it had been in the air only a short time when it crashed, and fourteen of the experts who were on it were killed.

There is a big strike of lumbermen and laborers in Northern Ontario, and they have not only ceased to work, but are marching on the towns. They demand more wages, and other things that the contractors say they cannot afford to pay them. So far they have been kept in order by the local police force, but it is likely a company of mounted police will be sent out to keep order.

WINCHESTER MAKES PLANS FOR HOCKEY

CHESTER TIMMINS ELECTED PRESIDENT FOR 1933-34.

The annual reorganization meeting of the Winchester Town Hockey League was held in the town hall on Monday evening with a large number of sport fans present. W. F. Workman, the retiring president, occupied the chair during the first part of the meeting and presided during the election of officers.

Following the reading of the minutes of last year's meetings by the Secretary, Randall Wylie, a report on the financial standing of the Club was presented. This showed that the league ended last year with a slight deficit ,but owing to a substantial balance on hand from 1931, the Club was able to present a clear sheet.

The election of officers then took place and resulted as follows: Honorary President, Mr. D. Melvin; president, Chester Timmins; vice presidents, Harold Singleton and W. F. Workman; secretary-treasurer Gordon Johnston. The new president and took charge of the meeting.

The teams that comprise the league were represented as follows: Rangers, Gerald Helmer; Chevrolets, Howard Fetterly; High School, Arnold Barkley; Shamrocks, Charlie Cross. It will be noticed that the "Speedboys" are not mentioned. This team has changed its name to the "Shamrocks"

Arnold Barkley, speaking for the H. S. team, asked permission to procure a good goal-tender for the coming season, as that appeared to be the "weak spot" on the team. His request was granted unanimously.

Charlie Cross, one of last year's property managers, reported that some of the goal tenders' equipment was missing from the locker at the rink. It was decided to replace the needed equipment, as well as purchase some new sweaters. Nelson Dixon was appointed to act as property manager, for which service he will receive $5.00 for the season.

Several matters were discussed and left to the executive to settle. A motion, moved by Hy. Bessin, seconded by Carl Rice, to the effect that each member on the winning team be given a crest, or photo of the team, at the close of the season, as a slight recognition of their services, carried, and $12.00 was voted to be spent in this way.

W. F. Workman suggested that a code of rules be drawn up, governing the playing of tie games, changing of players, length of periods, nature of finals, etc. This was left in the hands of the executive, and when completed, each manager will be given a copy. At present there is no definite set of rules, which is generally responsible for many arguments and some misunderstanding on the part of team managers and players.

As the rink is now in good condition, it was decided to get the schedule started as soon as possible, and a committee was appointed to interview the rink officials, as to practice periods, dates of games, percentage of gate receipts, etc.

The managers were asked to have a list of their players in the hands of the secretary in time for the meeting of the executive, when a schedule will be drawn up and other necessary work dispensed with.

This year, it was decided to play all double headers, as well as a double schedule. The first game will start at 7.30 sharp, and the referees will be given strict orders to start at that time, whether all players are ready or not.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the call of the chair.

Old Home Association Doing Good Work

The meeting of the executive committee of the Old Home Reunion Committee held in the Council Chambers on Monday night last was a most encouraging one, and an evidence that interest in the great event for August next is not lagging, and that Winchester will give her returning sons and daughters a welcome that will make their hearts glad. The Secretary, Mr. W. Moffat, reported that already over six hundred names and addresses of former residents, had been handed in, and they were coming in every day. The several committees have their work well in hand and are planning many surprises. It was suggested that prizes be offered for the best decorated home and the best decorated place of business during that week, and this idea will no doubt be carried out. The street decorating will be under the supervision of Mr. VanBridger, of the Hydro System here, and it could not be in better hands. Nearly a thousand invitations will be sent out the first week in January, 1934.

THE EDITOR REMEMBERED

Once again, the Press is indebted to Mr. Harold Keyes for a fine cut of venison, for on Tuesday the editor and his family enjoyed a delicious steak that was, as the saying goes, "fit for a king."

Mr. Keyes is an ardent hunter and a shot of wide repute, the result is that he bags plenty of wild game. In spite of his wide circle of friends, Harold never forgets the editor when he has something croice and delectable to offer in that line.

L. O. L. 862 HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

OFFICERS WERE ELECTED AND INSTALLED LAST NIGHT

The annual meeting of L. O. L. No. 862 was held in the Orange Hall, on Wednesday night. There was a large turn-out of the members, including members from Toyes Hill and Inkerman, also the County Master, Wor. Bro. Dalton Coons, of Toyes Hill.

The retiring Master. Wor. Bro. W. J. L. Boyd, gave a comprehensive report of the activities of the Lodge during the past year, including the improvements to the Hall and surroundings, and thanked the officers and members for their co-operation during the year.

The Treasurer's report showed that finances were in splendid condition, with all accounts paid and a substantial balance on hand.

The Master called on Wor. Bro. D. Coons to conduct the election of officers which resulted as follows:—

W. M.—W. J. L. Boyd.
D. M.—Geo. Wilson.
Chap.—Rev. T. F. Townsend.
Rec. Sec.—W. McConkey.
Fin. Sec.—Nelson Dixon.
Treas.—E. M .Shaver.
Marsh.—T. J. Ralph.
1st Lect.—Jas. Crawford.
2nd Lect.—Geo. A. Robinson.
Committee—Colin Hay, Wm. Hutt, T. A. Bailey, H. G. Graham. George. S Dixon.
Auditors—A. E. Goodfellow, H. G. Graham.
Tyler—Frank Hunter.
Sentinel—Jas .McLaughlin.

The officers were installed by the County Master assisted by Wor. Bro. B. Smith, acting as Marshal.

After the installation ceremony, each of the newly elected officers gave short addresses, also Wor. Bro. Dalton Coons, who spoke on conditions throughout the County. Among others who addressed the members were Bro. Norman Hunter of Toyes Hill. Bro. Wm. Quart and Bro. Bert Smith.

The annual banquet of the Lodge will be held Wednesday evening, Dec. 6th, in the dining hall of St. Paul's Church. when Wor. Bro. W. L. Kingston, of Cardinal, will be the guest speaker.

ON MOTOR TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Hart Melvin and children left yesterday on a motor trip which will include Toronto, Buffalo, Cleveland, and many other points where they have friends and relatives. It is an uncertain time for motoring, but with Hart at the wheel, it would take some storm to keep him from reaching his destination.

POOLE—CLARKE

A pretty wedding took place at the United Church parsonage, Picton. on Saturday, November 18th, at six o'clock when Miss Gena Clarke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clarke, of Elmbrook, was married to Donald Poole, of Picton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Poole, of Winchester. Rev. David Wren officiated. The bride looked very pretty in a blue crepe and net gown, cut on Princess lines, with small grey hat and accessories. Miss Ruth Smith was bridesmaid, wearing a frock of rosewood crepe with white oranganza trimmings, turban in matching shade and grey shoes. Mr. David Cole was groomsman.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clarke, Elmbrook. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Denike, Bloomfield, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Deloss Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Price. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Poole left by motor for Toronto, the bride wearing a blue coat with trimmings of grey fox for travelling. On their return they will reside in Picton.

Reception Held

The bridal pair were given a very hearty reception at the home of the groom's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Peter Poole, on Wednesday, when many friends were present to offer congratulations and best wishes. Refreshments were served, and there was a bride's cake. And everyone was happy.

A new device, that is regarded as one of the most practicable yet designed for the protection of level crossings, has been invented by R. N. Murphy, Hull. The Board of Railway Commissioners regards it as about the best suggestion so far submitted to provide safety at level crossings, and has asked M. Murphy to set up a working model in the Union Station.

The device wll have warning lights a bell and a barrier. It will be cheaper to install even than the wig-wag system, it is claimed. All methods of warning will be operated automatically by electricity.

WHEN I HAVE TIME

When I have time, so many things I'll do
To make life happier and more fair
For those whose lives are crowded now with care;
I'll help to lift them up from low despair,
When I have time.

When I have time, the friend I love so well
Shall no more know these weary, toiling days;
I'll lead her feet in pleasant paths alaways,
And cheer her heart with words of sweetest praise,
When I have time.

When you have time! The friend you hold so dear
May be beyond the reach of sweet intent;
May never know that you so kindly meant,
When you have time.

Now is the time! Ah, friend! no longer wait
To scatter loving smiles and words of cheer
To those around whose lives are now so dear,
They may not meet you in the coming year—
Now is the time.

He died at the home of his poorest son, but the other children helped to pay the funeral expenses.

BROCKVILLE HAS POPULATION NEAR THE 10,000 MARK

Among the many interesting features contained in the reports, presented to the town council of Brockville was that of the population figures given out by the assessor, George Turner.

Brockville's population for 1933 is placed at 9,818, this being an increase of 164 over the figures of 1932.

No longer does her little lamb

It's Mary and her roadster now,
That's breaking every rule.

When a salute of guns is fired in honour of some visiting personage, the gunners are but carrying on a custom which, like so many other of our commonest customs, is derived from fear—or rather, in this case, from the absence of it.

The idea was that having fired your guns—in those days the guns took a long time to load—you showed the person that you were saluting that he found you with your guns unloaded, and therefore he must be a trusted friend.

BURGLAR STEALS OUTFIT RENEW HIS MOTOR CAR

"Have pride in your car" is the slogan of a manufacturer of automobile cleaners and polishers. A burglar with "pride in his car" broke into Mahlon Helmer's service station at Morrisburg early Wednesday morning last and carried off plenty of supplies to maintain his pride. Among the stolen goods were cans of polish, cleaner. tar, remover, etc.; 50 gallons gasoline, a storage battery, sets of wrenches, two dozen spark plugs, tobacco, cigarettes, chocolate bars, chewing gum and about $8 in cash.

COURTESY

If we are ever discourteous to our associates or fellow workers, or people with whom we come in contact, it is possible that we may not "lose" anything by it—perhaps nothing unusual may happen as a result—

But let us remember that courtesy is not altogether a matter of what we can "lose" or what we can "gain."

Courtesy is a spirit of goodfellowship and helpfulness which says that not everything that we do in this old world is to "gain" something— but that we sometimes do things just for the pleasure of being friendly and helpful.

Certain people actually find a real pleasure in being discourteous—they think it makes them important!

But the far greater pleasure always will lie just in being as courteous as possible to everyone.

HILL NIGHT

Along the hills the steps of night are swift;
The whip-poor-will sends out his lonely call
While twilight glories on the high clouds drift,
Then, sudden silence where dark draperies fall.

In thought I visit cities in the night
When streets like flowers blaze out in gold and red,
Obliterating moonbeams' footsteps white
And pallid stars that glimmer overhead.

The city nights are marred with voices shrill,
A thousand raucous noises blaring out;
But here, on this remote and rocky hill,
The silence rises. lustry as a shout!

ONCE more Jean read through the letter which had arrived to find her in a mood of despondency most unusual. Like a gleam of sunshine, it had brightened the gloomy prospect of a Christmas away from home. To be sure, living with one's step-aunt didn't make much of a home, but even that was better than the deserted campus.

And then had arrived this charming note from one of the university's most attractive graduates:

"My Dear Miss Gray:

"It will afford us the greatest possible pleasure to have you spend the holidays with us. We are entertaining most informally and will expect you Christmas eve.

"Cordially yours,
"MARJORIE HOLDEN."

"Most informally!" Jean's brow clouded. Instinct told her that those two words had been inserted to intimate that her hostess did not expect her to come equipped with evening gowns and opera capes. Only—Jean had so much less than that!

"I—can't—go!" Jean winked back unaccustomed tears and stared hard at a picture on the wall in front of her. As her vision cleared she became aware that she was gazing at the group photograph taken after the last Dramatic society play. What fun she had had! For one brief evening she had been a "star" and worn truly becoming clothes.

If only—Jean sat suddenly upright with eyes that sparkled. "I'll go to Mrs. Holden's and wear those clothes!" she cried ecstatically. Jean's inspiration was born of the fact that the Dramatic society had issued a recent edict. Clothes worn in the annual plays were to be purchased and become the property of the organization and so be always available for future performances. Jean was property mistress and held the key to the wardrobe that contained them.

"If Mrs. Holden had not been abroad when we gave 'Nancy's English Cousin,' this little stunt might have been impossible," mused Jean as, the following day, she folded and packed the smart little serge she had worn in the third act. Three changes there had been, noted respectively in the stage directions as "a one-piece serge," "a simple party frock" and "a striking outdoor costume." Jean took all three.

But the following morning at the gay, holly-decked breakfast table Mrs. Holden unsuspectingly turned Jean's happiness to ashes. "My brother, Jean, who came after you had gone up stairs last night. Why, you know each other!"

"Of course, we know each other!" smiled a singularly attractive young man. "I coached the play in which Miss Gray played a demure little English girl—and well do I remember her in the part!"

Yes, it seemed that Cary Endicott, who had made "Nancy's English Cousin" the success it had been, was Mrs. Holden's brother.

On one of the very last days of vacation the crowd set out on snow shoes across the hills. Cary had managed matters so that he and Jean lagged far behind the others. Suddenly, in a snowy but sheltered hollow, as the rest topped a distant summit and disappeared, Cary turned right about face and held out his arms. "Jean, darling, will you be my wife?"

Jean flushed furiously. "I—oh—why, how can you—after—after these clothes?"

Assistant Professor Endicott's face expressed nothing beyond utter mystification. Then he shook his head. "I'm afraid—maybe I'm dense, but—".

And Jean had to explain her slim hands clenching themselves within the odd little English muff which was part of her "striking outdoor costume."

When she had finished Cary just stood for a moment regarding her ever so gently, ever so tenderly. Then. "Didn't you know, you funny girl, that men can live with clothes year in and year out and never notice them? It's the people that wear them that count."

And happy Jean, snuggling close in his arms, knew that he had spoken the truth.

FARM AND GARDEN INFORMATION

ONTARIO FRUIT STORAGE

The cold storage warehouse recently erected at Woodstock. Ont. with its 10,000 barrel capacity is, another unit in a chain of cold storage warehouses that gives Ontario facilities to handle 200,000 barrels of apples. The warehouse has facilities to handle the storage of fruits and vegetables.

UNFINISHED HOGS

All unfinished hogs offered at the stockyards and packing plants, such as do not conform to the requirements of the grading regulations are graded as feeders, and it is in the interests of the producers to make every effort to hold back hogs of select bacon, and bacon weights, until they are properly finished. Unfinished pigs make soft bacon and poor cuts and roasts.

MILK COOLING DURING THE WINTER

Do not attempt to cool milk by setting the cans out-of-doors, even in freezing weather. It takes far too long for the milk to cool to 50 degrees F., for air is a good insulator but a poor cooling medium. Use a cooling tank with water as cold as possible, and keep the level up to the necks of the cans.

BEAUTY PARLORS FOR DAIRY COWS

An important step in clean milk production is to clip the udders, hips and flanks of the cows, thus making the daily brushing much easier and more effective. Clipping of the tail, head, neck and shoulders add to the appearance of the cows, and aids in getting rid of lice, which will multiply quickly at this time of year if not promptly eradicated. A good wet or powder shampoo repeated in ten days time will do the trick.

TAKING MORE PROMINENT PART IN EXPORT TO GREAT BRITAIN

Since September, Canada has commenced to take a place among the more important suppliers of eggs to the British markets. Some 128,000 dozen of eggs were exported during that month. Prices to Canadian producers have recently improved steadily. Fresh receipts of eggs are somewhat scarce and continued firmness in price is probable. Those producers who wisely hatched or purchased early chicks, are in a position to at least make some profit as a result of adopting firm business methods. Canadian eggs continue to be exported in fair volume. The Toronto and Montreal markets continue very firm.

JUNIORS CREATE INTEREST AT OTTAWA WINTER FAIR

The Junior Department at the Ottawa Winter Fair again brought out a large number of competitors and keen competition resulted. The various competitions also created a good deal of interest on the ringside. The two-day program included classes open to Calf Club members, showmanship competition and Inter County Competitions in the judging of live stock and seeds.

In the Calf Club competitions, 54 club members exhibited their calves. In the Holstein section, the group from Prince Edward County won the high honours against strong competition. In the section open to Ayrshires, the group from the Williamstown Ayrshire Club, Glengarry County, again repeated their win which they made at the Central Canada Exhibition. In the beef section, the group from Renfrew also repeated a win made at the August show.

The Showmanship classes brought out 68 competitors and the officials, H. W. Graham, of Kemptville, and A. D. Runions of Peterborough, found it difficult to make the awards, so proficient have the young men become in exhibiting their animals.

The Inter-County Judging Competitions also maintained their usual interest. The Inter-County Livestock Judging Championship for Eastern Ontario was won by Lanark County team.

In the Seed Judging, Renfrew County was victorious.

Other features which attracted a good deal of interest in the livestock department, were the county herds and inter county pens of sheep and hogs. In the former, Lanark County was awarded the premium honors in the Holsteins and in sheep,, Carleton County pen was victorious, while in hogs, the honours again went to Lanark County.

HONEY EXPORTS INCREASING DOMESTIC PRICE IS RISING

Indications are for a shortage of honey in Ontario next spring, reported the Ontario Marketing Board recently. Total white honey exports of all grades from the Province are now in excess of 300 tons, which taken together with the crop variously reported from 40 to 50 per cent. less than last year, and with the substantial exports from the Province of Quebec, leaves the entire domestic market cleaned up of all surplus supplies. Prices are rising to producers and few bee keepers are selling bulk lots for less than 8 cents per pound f.o.b. shipping point for top grades. This is an increase of approximately 2 to 3 cents per pound as compared with 1931.

The British market is reporting a lively interest in Canadian honey this year due, somewhat, to the fact that a world shortage of this crop is reported, except for domestic production in England. In addition, the benefit of the Imperial Preference Agreements, which give Empire honey a protection of several shillings per long swt., are being realized to the maximum for the first time this year since their adoption.

In dry-dock at the boat works up on the Harlem River that separates Manhattan from the Bronx, are some simple looking boats that might be grown up models of the first boat you whittled out of a stick of wood. They have no cabins on their flat, long decks, and the only thing that looks like the beginning of a bridge is a wind-break and a rudimentary roof over the wheel and binnacle. They're painted a battleship grey and their decks are but a few inches above the waterline. They're ocean-going boats and their speed is attested by their three propellors. The men around the yards used to call them "fishing boats".

But the real reason they're in dry-dock is because there's too little use for expensive rum-runners now.

Sanctuary

Up in Muskoka, in the land of sparkling lakes and pure, fresh air, stands the Muskoka Hospital. On the banks of the Humber River, also an ideal location, are the Toronto and Queen Mary Hospitals —sanctuaries for those who have been stricken with consumption.

What pilgrimages they have seen of men and women and little children who, on the verge of despair, have turned to them as a last resort. And still they come.

They have fought against an unseen foe until strength and means have been exhausted. They must have help. Not for riches nor for pleasure do they seek—a chance to get well is all they ask.

For means to carry on this great life-saving work, these hospitals are largely dependent upon the gifts of warm hearted friends. The good they can do is limited only by the money in hand.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

JUST PLAIN TALK

I have just been listening to a radio program—and, am impressed with the ballyhoo of medical quacks who resort to that method of swindling the sick and afflicted. The average listener perhaps is led to believe that the charlatan is a very eminent scientist who is working daily miracles—almost. He seeks to give that impression most certainly.

Dear reader, do you ever stop to think that the quack can reach millions of folks almost face to face over the radio? The humbug I listened to last night owns his broadcasting station. He can say or do anything he desires—over his own property! It is too bad that our license system actually abets those who are engaged in swindling the sick.

This man with a voice as piously intoned as a clergyman, actually pretends to diagnose most serious diseases from symptoms written on a postcard, for people whom he has never seen! He wants them to roll right in, pay in advance, and submit to operation at his unholy hands! Cures guaranteed! No matter how old, decrepit and feeble the invalid may be! Could anything be more preposterous?

During this threatened epidemic of "sleeping-sickness," two physicians of St. Louis, Mo., offered their bodies as subjects of experiment to learn, if possible, the cause of the terrible malady. I can't think of a nobler, more unselfish, heroic act! Where is the medical quack or faddist with the courage to do the same?

They do not exist—they'd rather do the radio swindle.

"No, I don't see the youngsters for months on end now they're settled in the city, but I'll let you in on a secret, Joe. I visit with them every week by telephone. There's nothing like it to take the edge off a separation."

CHRISTMAS festivities, as the modern world observes them, owe much of their warmth and charm to the survival of pagan customs, Prof. William Warren Sweet of the Divinity school, told a University of Chicago group. Speaking at a noon-time service in Bond chapel on the campus, Doctor Sweet, who is professor of the History of American Christianity, analyzed the history of the Yuletide celebration, and asked that the small Christian element in it be kept uppermost.

Exchanging gifts at Christmas time is a practice taken over from the Romans, and the Christmas dinner, the holly wreaths, and even the Christmas tree customs can be traced back to the barbarians of northern Europe, Doctor Sweet said. America's contribution to the occasion has been chiefly its commercialization.

"It was not until about the middle of the Fourth century after Christ that a day was formally set aside by the church at Rome for the observance of his physical birth," Doctor Sweet pointed out. "As it was first observed by the church, Christmas was purely a spiritual festival. There was no gayety; no bells announced the coming of the glad morn; there were no garlands; no tables heaped with good cheer.

"But it was not to remain long in the upper air of pure devotion. There were too many pagan influences about it, one of the most important of which was the feast of Saturn, which began on the 17th of December and lasted until the 24th. Saturn was the oldest and most benign deity of ancient Italy and his fabled reign on earth was supposed to have brought peace and happiness to mankind, and so the feast dedicated to him was full of joy and feasting. The schools were closed, public places were decked with flowers, and presents were exchanged.

"Another festival which influenced the celebration of Christmas was the feast of the Kalends of January, which marked the beginning of the Roman civil year, and three days of merriment followed it. Mummers clad in women's clothes and animal skins paraded the streets. Presents were given to dear ones 'Honeyed things, that in the year the recipient might be full of sweetness, lamps that might be full of light; copper, silver and gold that wealth might flow in.'"

Among the early colonists in America Christmas was observed as a festival only by the Church of England adherents and the Roman Catholics, Professor Sweet said. The Puritans, objecting to it because of its pagan origins, banned any observance of the day. On May 11, 1659, the General Court of the Colony of Massachusetts passed the following law: "Whosoever shall be found observing any such day as Christmas or the like, either by forbearing of labor, feasting, or any other way, as a festival, shall be fined five shillings."

This statute was repealed twenty years later, but for more than one hundred years the great "evangelical" religious groups, the Baptists, Congregationalists and Presbyterians officially refused to recognize Christmas. Professor Sweet reported that he has been unable to find any reference to the festival of the nativity in the literature of these churches up to the Civil war. Shortly after the war a religious organ objected to the observance of the day on the grounds that there was no evidence to establish exactly the date of Christ's birth and that there was nothing in the New Testament to indicate that the birthday should be celebrated. "Ten years later, or about 1880, Christmas issues of church papers show a decided change in their attitude," Doctor Sweet said. "Christmas advertisements make their appearance, Christmas poems, and editorials. From this time onward the religious significance of Christmas has been growing in all evangelical churches.

"The Christmas with which we are familiar today is a strange combination of imported pagan and Christian traditions. Though I dislike to say it, it seems that about all America has added to Christmas is its commercialization. Certainly all of us have very humanitarian and Christian incentive to make Christmas less pagan, less commercialized, more Christian."

WHOOPING COUGH

Ever since this disease was first described three hundred and fifty years ago, it has been "whooping it up." It starts like an ordinary cold; the eyes water, there is a dry, hard cough and the patient may develop fever in the course of the next week. This stage of the disease, called the Catarrhal Stage, lasts from seven to fourteen days, when the cough changes in character and occurs in paroxysms. The second or spasmodic stage lasts from two to three and in some instances six weeks and even longer. The whoop is characteristic of this stage. The cough is often so frequent and persistent in this stage as to be extremely exhausting. The stage of decline, in which the paroxysms gradually become less and less frequent, may persist for only a week, or may continue for as long as four or five weeks.

A typical attack, even without complications, is a long drawn out, irritating, exhausting disease for both the child and its mother. When the whoop begins many mothers and most grandmothers feel that they are completely competent to cope with the situation. In view of the uncertain results following the use of drugs and vaccines in both the treatment and prevention of the disease, this view may be justified as far as the older children are concerned, but not for those under five.

About ninety-five per cent. of the deaths from whooping cough in 1925 in forty states occurred in the age group under five. In 1925 the total deaths from whooping cough in forty states exceeded the deaths from scarlet fever, measles and infantile paralysis combined. It is estimated that the disease is twenty times as fatal for children under five as for those beyond that age.

What can be done? Physicians and health authorities must inform the public of its fatality, especially among little children. In the presence of an epidemic parents should keep children at the pre-school age from all unnecessary neighbourhood contacts. They must be taught how dangerous the disease is. If unable to provide adequate medical and nursing care it should be provided by the community.

HOME CARE OF SCARLET FEVER

When Pandora lifted the lid of that mysterious box in the long ago she tried to shoo all the wicked ailments and diseases back into it again. She could not undo what she had done, but there was one thing that little Pandora never thought about doing—that was to tell the people how to avoid catching the diseases and what to do if they really became ill with any one.

So it is left with the modern Pandoras to broadcast the Do's and Don'ts. Just as about all the diseases so common to children, there are many Do's and Don't about the prevention of scarlet fever.

Isolation is one of the first rules to observe in the care of a scarlet fever patient. Place the sick person in a room by himself. Do not allow him to communicate with other members of the family while there are any discharges from the mouth, throat, ears or other parts of the body. The person nursing the patient should not mingle with others in the family. The doctor will prescribe a light diet. Serve the patient on individual dishes used only by him. Scald the dishes each time before using again. Give him his own spoon, knife, fork and glassware.

Pieces of linen or cotton gauze should be provided to collect saliva and discharges from the patient's mouth, nose, throat and ears. These pieces of cloth should be burned. Do not mix the garments worn by the patient with the laundry of other members of the family. Wash his clothes separately. Ask the doctor to teach you how to disinfect the patient's clothing.

Your doctor, too, will wear a gown which completely covers him when he enters the sick room. He will ask for fresh water into which he will put a disinfectant for washing his hands after visiting the patient.

If there is any sign of ear trouble, call the doctor immediately. The hearing of the patient may be saved if the drum membrane is opened as soon as trouble is discovered.

Remember that in case of scarlet fever:

Careful nursing should be continued after the skin has peeled and the patient is apparently well.

Children having scarlet fever must not return to school until released by the health authorities.

Although scarlet fever is not often fatal, it is frequently the cause of chronic diseases of the heart, ears and kidneys which in later years may prove fatal. Scarlet fever is more likely to be fatal to children under six years of age.

THE birthday of the Prince of Good-will was at hand. On the frosted windows I hung my holly-wreaths, looking out upon a world glittering in the first snow mantle of the year. Ice-coated trees gleamed with prismatic colors as the breeze stirred the branches; it was zero weather.

Dan had dropped in with the season's greeting, and we sat together before the open fire. Dan was a bachelor, and if he didn't speak soon they'd be calling me an old maid! I was rich and he was poor. If I'd been sure that that was the reason for his silence, I'd have spoken myself. But I wasn't and our friendship was too beautiful a thing to spoil, if his love was not mine.

Annette came in and arranged the tea table at my side. "Certain people," he had mused, before Annette entered, "diffuse a charm as real and as hard to define as the perfume of a rose." This was poetical conversation for the practical Dan; there was something on his mind. I hurried Annette into the kitchen for more cake before his mood should vanish, but—

The door-bell rang. It was too cold to keep anyone waiting; I answered it myself. A prim and tiny old lady stood there.

"I'm making a little extra for Christmas," she announced, cheerily. "Would you like to look at aprons?"

"Just what I'm in need of," I said 'Come in."

Taking her bag, I led her to the sitting room, and Dan placed a chair for her before the fire.

"Good-day and thank you," she greeted Dan. "How pleasant here by the fire!"

Annette came in with the cake. "Another teacup," I whispered. Her face registered, "You certainly are eccentric," but I ignored this. In warranted self-respect my little visitor had come to the front door and I saw no reason why she should not have tea. With bird-like movements, glancing now at me, now at Dan, she untied the satin strings of her neat but prehistoric bonnet.

"Oh, Haviland," she exclaimed appreciatively, handling her cup daintily. Now I was sure that she had seen better days.

"You have courage to be out today, little mother," said Dan.

"That's what my daughter thinks,' twinkled the old dear. "She says at eighty-two one should be through wanting to run around. It's not so much the money," she fibbed proudly "but I like to get out and see life and people. One is always running into such lovely experiences like you—and tea. One can just see that you two are made for each other."

"Alas!" confessed Dan, frankly, smiling, "I have not the honor to be the lady's husband."

"Let us look at aprons," I suggested, and the naughty romancer spread them out.

Dan fingered the change in his pocket. "I'll take two of those white ones for my wife," he announced.

The words were simple, but they fell upon my ear like a death sentence "You never told me," I gasped reproachfully, as our guest turned to fold her supplies and arrange her bag

"Well, I must go now," she said. "I'm staying too long. I've got to empty this bag before nightfall."

The door closed behind the unquenchable optimist.

"Isn't she a wonder!" we exclaimed simultaneously, at which we locked little fingers and pressed thumbs laughingly, while we wished.

I drew my hand away, as soon as was decent. No more familiarities now. "Think," said I, "from Haviland to peddling, and still the world is wonderful. It makes one ashamed to have been discontented."

"Exactly," agreed Dan. "I guess we are all given our daily portion of joy, if our hearts are tuned to receive it. A case of adjusting the wave length to our capacity."

"And now, about your wife?" I challenged bravely. He should never know my pain.

"I must see if her aprons fit," he said, putting one about me and drawing up the strings till we stood under the mistletoe.

"You darling, darling idiot," I sobbed when I got my breath.

"Some Christmas," exulted Dan "and blessed be aprons."

THE BOOK

the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures . . . . . .

by BRUCE BARTON

THE DIVISION

THE first line reads, "The Holy Bible." Since the word biblia in Latin is plural and means library, we know at once that we have here not a single book but a collection of several books.

Bruce Barton

The second line, "Containing the Old and New Testaments," means obviously that there are two main divisions and that the distinguishing feature is a difference in age, one group of books being more recent than the other.

The third line says, "Translated out of the original tongues," indicating that the Bible was originally published not in English but in more than one other language.

"And with the former translations diligently compared and revised," shows that this translation, which was made under the authority of King James I in 1611, is the successor to several earlier translations.

Turning over the pages we discover that the text is divided into numbered chapters and verses, which seems rather an unusual way to present a book until we learn that these divisions were not made by the original writers but were inserted in 1551 by Mr. Robert Stephens, a pious printer, who believed that more people would read the Bible if he made it easier to read. Several earlier attempts had been made to divide the books into chapters and verses, all of them unsatisfactory.

A single glance is enough to indicate that the Old Testament is much larger than the New—and here is an easy way to remember how many books are in each. The key number is three, which multiplied by itself gives nine. The Old Testament has thirty-nine books. Again multiply three by nine and you have twenty-seven, the number of the books in the New Testament.

Cæsar, you remember, divided all Gaul into three parts. Similarly scholars divide the Old Testament into three divisions—the historic books, beginning with Genesis and ending with Esther; the poetic books, beginning with Job and ending with the Song of Songs; and the remainder, which consists of sermons, or, as they are more commonly called, books of prophecy.

Of the historic books the first five have a certain unity which has long caused them to be regarded as one. They are called the Pentateuch, meaning the five-in-one book, and there is a tradition that Moses wrote them all. Whether he did or not we can leave to the scholars to dispute. These are the five:

Genesis—the book of beginnings.
Exodus—the book of going out.
Leviticus—the book for the priests.
Numbers—a sort of amplified census report.
Deuteronomy—a Greek name meaning "second law," or review and digest of the laws.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Much is being said about the "failures" of the League of Nations, and the seeming inability of the League to preserve peace and good will. Nevertheless, the League of Nations is a very important factor, not only in preserving peace among nations, but in many other ways not generally recognized. While its primary object may be, and no doubt is, to prevent the nations of the world, through the jealousies, greed or ambitions of their politicians, engaging in useless, senseless and destructive war, their task is not an easy one, particularly when there is that national hatred between such nations as Germany and France. Europe is divided into so many nationalities that it is practically a hot bed of war germs, the wonder is that they are not more frequently fighting each other. There is no doubt that the League of Nations has done much toward preventing war and strife among the smaller nations of Europe during the past ten years, and while at the present time Germany and even Italy may withdraw from the League, that does not hold that the leaders of the big nations of the world will not come to some agreement rather than bring on another war. Many of the activities of the League of Nations are but indifferently understood, and it is with pleasure the Press is able to give the following extract from the November issue of the Canadian School Journal on the subject of "Some Activities of the League of Nations." The Journal says:

Apart from the political aspect of the League of Nations, there are a number of International Committees of the League which deal with the great problems of international co-operation. The Economic Committee is concerned with the regulation of international trade, with the adjustment and stabilization of currency, with the difficulties resulting from world-wide investments, with the institution of a great international bank. The International Labor Office is contiually investigating world conditions of labor, gathering and disseminating information about wages, hours of labor, unemployment, social conditions of the workers, and so on. Then there are committees dealing with Transit and Communications, with the Suppression of Traffic in Drugs, in Slaves and in Women and Children. The International Committee on Health is carrying on investigations on disease, especially epidemics. With the improvement in the speed and facilities for transportation, disease can now spread over the world with great rapidity. This was shown in the most tragic way during the influenza epidemic of 1916. It started in Spain, it swept through France, it almost paralyzed two great armies. It beat us all by its speed of travel and its deadliness of attack. It raged across America, it devastated India, South Africa and the lonely islands of the Pacific. When death finished his work that year, he had killed ten million people—more than twice the total number of deaths incurred in the four years of the Great War. So intelligence men of the International Health Commission are out working, writing, experimenting and planning. In time we shall beat our enemy there as we have beaten him in the case of typhoid, of typhus, of smallpox, as we are beating him in tuberculosis and beginning to hold him in leprosy.

WINCHESTER PRESS MUCH QUOTED

Years ago, when the editor of the Winchester Press was much younger, when he saw one of his editorials quoted in a daily paper of some standing, he used to think himself "some pumpkin" as the high school girl of to-day would express it. But when there comes to our desk monthly, or every other month, a big envelope of clippings gathered from all parts of theDominion by the "Dominion Press Clipping Agency," of Toronto, all quoting the Winchester Press, we wonder if it is because we write what is worth reading, or because other editors are too lazy to exert themselves, and just use the scissors to save their thinking powers. Clippings from newspapers from Nova Scotia to Vancouver, all from the "Winchester Press," from dailies, weeklies and monthlies. Say, but it really puts a good taste in one's mouth and makes oneself believe that, after all, the majority of people are numskulls. Sometimes however, we come across a complimentary notice that we do appreciate, and we know the editor of the Brockville Recorder-Times is not given to overdoing it, even if Senator Graham is its leading star, and generally means what he says. The Recorder-Times on Monday in quoting in full an editorial from the Press, does it in this way:

Uulike the editors of some other weekly publications, the venerable generalissimo of the Winchester Press is never afraid to express an opinion or to come to grips with public problems which are of current importance, and it is largely because of this independent outlook that the publication which he directs has gained such widespread influence and has become one of the most quoted weekly newspapers in the province.

One of the latest issues of the Press contains a characteristic protest from the pen of the editor relating to the high salaries that continue to be paid to government officials, especially those chosen to occupy newly-created posts, and the article deals with a subject of such universal comment that we offer no apology for reproducing it in full.

We are pleased to reproduce this quotation because it helps us when we want to convince some hide-bound Grit that we are not all Tory, and some died-in-wool Tory that we have not plunged into the Liberal political pot. In olden days they used to call men of independent opinions "mugwumps" and if they wanted to be offensive they would put their thumb to their nose and call out "Straddle-the-fence." But, like many other relics of "those good old days," the man of independent views is to-day regarded with greater respect and, in fact, becoming the balance of political power in many constituencies. More power to the independent thinker.

MUNICIPAL MATTERS

The Municipality of the town of Winchester and its official representatives are to be congratulated on the Financial Statement of its affairs as issued and distributed this week, and it is hoped that every citizen will carefully peruse it, and learn from it just where and how their taxes are applied. After fixed expenditures are taken care of, there is very little left for the Council to handle in the way of expending money, and keep the rate down to its present level. That they have been able to administer the affairs of the town, and show assets over liabilities of several thousands, is clear evidence that there has been no reckless or needless expenditure. Notwithstanding, a good deal of work has been done and no interest of the town has been neglected. The town hall was re-painted and improved and was never in better shape than it is to-day. Our municipal well has proved a blessing that is hardly appreciated, and during the past dry season, many citizens have been able to secure a supply of water for domestic purposes, that under other circumstances, would have put them to much inconvenience. It has been difficult to get material to repair certain streets except at unreasonable cost, and for that reason the council was somewhat "canny" in expenditure. On the whole, the statement shows a careful handling and administration of the affairs of this municipality, and the Council of 1933 can face the electors at the nomination meeting to-morrow night and give a good account of themselves.

WHAT BETTER COMPLIMENT

"My wife and I do enjoy your editorials even though at times we may agree to differ from them."

Thus wrote a Press subscriber who is a resident in Western Ontario. It is not the first letter of the kind we have received, but he puts it in such a friendly, broad-minded way that we take the liberty of making a few comments.

Editors are only human beings. They reach a place of recognition only after years of experience and study of their fellow human beings. They have the means of following more closely than most the thought of not only their own, but other countries, because they read the views on public matters. But the views expressed by an editor are his convictions after careful study of a subject, and while they are not always accepted by his readers, as in the present case, some may agree to differ from them. We read recently of the sterling character and outspoken convictions of the founder of the Brockville Recorder, when that paper was first established over one hundred years ago. That that editor left his impress on the community is beyond doubt. And who will say that when George Brown was editor and publisher of the Toronto Globe, his strong convictions on matters both moral and political did not shape or guide the views and the lives of many men who have, long after his tragic death, come into prominence. The editor of the Winchester Press has not the conceit to think that he is always right in his publicly expressed views, but he usually convinces himself that he is so near right that his views are worth considering. It is rather a pleasure at times to know that some people do not agree with your views.

Winchester Boys Who Have Made Good

In the series of articles, or sketches, of the successful careers of a few of the boys who have gone out from Winchester and made good, it is the pleasing satisfaction of the Press to know that the articles have been read with the greatest pleasure and keenest interest and satisfaction by many of our readers.

To the older citizens of Winchester to read those articles, has been like the satisfaction of a mother or father looking at the photograph of a son who has long been absent, and has grown to manhood. But the photo is that of the boy the mother and father know and remember best, and the one they love to look at most.

While Winchester has not as yet been able to number among her sons a Prime Minister, we have, nevertheless, been able to send some of her sons to our Parliaments, and the present Provincial Secretary is a shining light of one who is still proud to own Winchester as his birthplace.

This week, however, we deal with one of the younger generation, one who but recently, as time is estimated, left our High School, and who to-day occupies a responsible position in the beautiful city of the Georgian Bay, Owen Sound. It is the achievement of such young men that should inspire the boys who, to-day, are attending our public and high schools.

J. Earl Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Johnston, of Winchester, was born at his parents' home on their farm near Cass Bridge, and only a few miles from Winchester. He had no better, and in fact not as many, advantages as the boys of the farm have to-day in the way of securing an education.

Mr. Johnston finished his high school course in Winchester at the age of 19, and graduated from McMaster University in 1924, and the College of Education in 1925. He soon after secured a position on the staff of the Owen Sound High School, a position he held with credit to himself and the school ever since. He is at present the head of the Physical Training Department, and, of course, with academic subjects. At the request of the Press, Mr. Johnston has given us the following few particulars of his boyhood days. He writes:

"I follow with a great deal of interest the various sports and games of the Winchester High School boys and often wish that the old school could boast of a gymnasium and a Rugby team. I don't believe the school life of a boy is complete nowadays without these. Would it not be possible to erect an addition behind the school and joined to it suitable for a "gym?" Gymnastics, basketball, volley ball, should be included in the life of every High School student, according to my way of thinking.

"I recall in particular the days spent at High School when it was necessary to drive three miles to school each day, and sometimes I wondered whether it might be worth the effort. I would be glad, however, to know that I might have been an inspiration to others who find themselves in a similar situation at the present time, to dig in a bit harder and persevere to the end. Of all those who attended S. S. No. 2 when I did I don't believe there is another engaged in the teaching profession at the present time nor did any one of them ever attend a University except Ulrique Lanoue. I have often wondered if this could really be true, but I believe it is.

"I often think of the splendid work done by the Sunday School teachers of S. S. No. 2, and of the many public and high school teachers under whom I was privileged to sit. I may say I began high school the first year the present building was opened, 1914."

Collegiate Grid Head

EARL JOHNSON

Head Coach of the Owen Sound Collegiate and Vocational Institute, caught while watching his squad go through their paces at Victoria Park the other day. That smile is one of satisfaction over the fine material he has to work with. This is Johnson's fourth year as coach of the senior club.

Note—The above picture and reference to Mr. Johnston appeared in a recent issue of the Owen Sound paper.

L.O.L. EUCHER AND DANCE

The members of North Mountain district L. O. L. held a eucher and and dance in the community hall, Hallville, and although the weather was very unfavorable, as a heavy snow storm raged all day, a large gathering participated in the evening's entertainment.

Eucher was played from eight to ten o'clock, Mr. Wm. Brooks being in charge of the card game. The lady and gentlemen scoring the highest number of games were: Miss Muriel Bush, who won the lady's prize, a lovely scarf, and the gentleman's was tied between Messrs. Charles Hyndman and Melville Adams, Mr. Hyndman cutting highest and winning the prize.

Lunch was served after the card game by the ladies of the lodge members, after which dancing was enjoyed to music provided by a good orchestra. The evening's program closed by singing "God Save the King."

INDUCTION AT ELMA

A large number were present at the Elma United Church when the induction into the charge of the congregation of Rev. Mr. Woodward, formerly of St. Rose, Que., was made.

In the absence of Rev. R. E. Newman, of Chesterville, Rev. Mr. Sisco of Cardinal officiated as moderator. The address to the congregation was made by Rev. Mr. McKay, of Winchester, while Rev. C. A. Adey, of Williamsburg, addressed the minister. Rev. Mr. Wilson, of Brinstons, also made an address.

ANXIETY WAS FELT OVER IROQUOIS YOUTH

Considerable anxiety was felt by residents of Iroquois over the week-end when Percy Roberts, who left home on Saturday noon, failed to appear again. He was supposed to have returned to his work on Sunday night. Several searchers made an extensive hunt in neighboring towns and his father left for Cornwall and Montreal in an effort to locate the young lad. A note was afterwards found in his home which showed that the 18-year-old lad had left for Montreal.

MISS EMMA McINTOSH CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

An item of interest to the residents of Williamsburg and district, is that Miss Emma McIntosh, a life-long resident of Matilda Township, quietly celebrated her 90th birthday anniversary at the home of her nephew and niece, Mr. and Mrs. Irwin McIntosh, at Watertown, N. Y., where she had spent a month visiting. Although not receiving formally, the nonagenarian accepted felicitations from numerous relatives and friends.

Born in Matilda, of United Empire Loyalist stock, Miss McIntosh is one of a family of nine daughters of the late Mr. and Mrs. Conrad McIntosh. The grandfather of Miss McIntosh crossed the St. Lawrence river from New York, and settled about a mile and a half north of Williamsburg village. Despite her advanced age, Miss McIntosh is active and enjoys unimpaired mental and physical health and goes about visiting her relatives and friends.

PROHIBITIONISTS MEET

Representatives from all parts of Dundas County were present at the annual meeting of the Dundas Prohibition Union, held in the Town Hall last Thursday evening. The chairman for the occasion was R. J. Ellis, of Iroquois, president of the organization. Addresses were given by Rev. John Coburn, of Toronto, secretary of the social service department of the United Church of Canada. and Rev. R. A. Whattam, also of Toronto. Both speakers pointed out the evils of the liquor traffic and urged those present not to support any movement towards the sale of beer and wine, as proposed by the Moderation League. Both addresses were heartily endorsed by th local union, and the secretary was instructed to forward a copy of the following resolution to Premier Geo. S. Henry and the Hon. Geo. H. Challies, provincial secretary and local member. "While opposed to the liquor traffic in all its forms, we desire to enter our most emphatic protest against any extension of the facilities for the freer sale of beer and wine."

It was decided that the Dundas Prohibition Union would conduct a post card campaign in the near future. These cards will contain information against the sale of beer and wine and will be sent to every elector in the Dundas-Grenville riding. They are to be signed and sent to the provincial secretary.

An "Essay Contest" will also be conducted by the union for school children. A cup and other prizes will be awarded to the winners. This was decided with a view to educate the younger people in the cause of temprance. During the evening several musical numbers were rendered by the Mountain Glee Club, composed by Claire VanAllen, Thomas Fergus, Arthur Moorehouse, Allan VanAllen, Harry Moorehouse, John McCargar, Merrill Foster, and William Clarke. The accompanist was Miss Gladys Barrigar.

At the conclusion of the meeting, a vote of thanks, moved by W. J. Cass, of Winchester, and seconded by Chas McInnis, of Iroquois, was extended to all those who had taken part in the evening's proceedings.

The new slate of officers are as follows: Honorary president, Dr. G. C. Ferrier, South Mountain; president, R. J. Ellis, Iroquois; vice-president, Allan McInnis, Iroquois; secretary-treasurer, N. W. Beach, Winchester; township representatives: Matilda, W. Waddell, Brinstons; Williamsburg, William T. McMartin, Chesterville; Mountain, Charles Patton, South Mountain; Winchester, H. S. Carkner, Maple Ridge; Villages: Iroquois, J. C. Gilder; Morrisburg, W. P. Allison; Chesterville, W. N. Fulton; Winchester Dr. J. J. McKendry.

OBITUARY

ROBERT P. AIKEN

The funeral of the late Robert P. Aitken, 29-year-old resident of Osgoode township, who was instantly killed on Thursday afternoon last, when his team of horses bolted when he was waiting for the northbound freight train to pass at the crossing in Osgoode Station, was held from the home of Samuel Patterson to Osgoode United Church where the service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Shorten. Interment took place in Reid's Mills cemetery.

The cortege which followed the body to the church and the large number of beautiful floral pieces bore evidence of the high esteem in which Mr. Aitken was held.

The late Mr. Aitken leaves his mother and one sister, of Edinburgh, Scotland.

DEATH OF HIGHLY RESPECTED AVONMORE LADY

There passed away to the Great Beyond on Friday morning, Nov. 17, one of Avonmore's highly respected citizens in the person of Mrs. David Steele, who just passed her 60th year. Mrs. Steele has been a great sufferer, nine years ago undergoing a serious operation and since that time has suffered, but more especially the last year. She bore all her suffering with Christian patience and her dying testimonial was scarcely audible as she told her minister that the Cross of Christ was her Strength. Mrs. Steele was a devout Presbyterian, taking an active part in all church work especially the Ladies Aid where she will be greatly missed by young and old. She was also, before ill health, an active worker in the Institute.

Born in Moose Creek in 1873, she was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McNeil. She was married to David J. Steele, of Finch. in 1897 and to this union was born one child who died in infancy. She leaves to mourn her loss, a kind and loving husband, one brother, namely. John McNeil, Moose Creek, Ont.; three sisters, Mrs. William Steele, Winchester Springs, Mrs. Jack Spenning. Winnipeg, and Mrs. Jas. Cromb, Regina.

The funeral, which took place from her late home to the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Avonmore, was held at 2 o'clock on Sunday. The church was filled with sorrowing friends and neighbours bearing testimony to the life she lived.

The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Rev. Mr. MacKenzie, who took for his text 1st Cor., 15th chapter, 21st verse: "For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. Paying a high tribute to the deceased, the pastor spoke of her life in the community, in the church, in the home, and more especially on her dying testimonial in the Cross. "Sometime We'll Understand," was sung by Mr. William J. Grant, Moose Creek, a life-long friend of the deceased.

Pall bearers were six nephews, the Messrs. William and Earl McNeil, Howard, Alvie, Vincent and Byron Steele. Floral tributes were many and beautiful including a spray from the Ladies' Aid. Interment took place at the Presbyterian Church.—Contributed.

INTERESTING DEBATE ON THE HALLVILLE PROGRAM

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Young People's Society of St. Andrew's United Church was held in the church hall Monday evening. The members entertained a large number of visitors.

The president, Miss Golda Cummings, was in the chair. Rev. D. Morrison conducted the devotional service, assisted by Messrs. Bert Hyndman, Rae Allen, and Charles Christie, with Miss Gladys Richardson presiding at the piano. A lovely duet was sung by Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Hyndman.

Resolved that a Poor Man with Genius can do more for the Happiness of Mankind than a Rich Man without Genius," was the subject of a debate, the special feature of the evening's program. Messrs. Wm. Ellis and Charles Christie were the affirmative debators. while Misses Marjorie Young and Louise Currie upheld the negative side of the question.

The judges were: Mrs. Clarke Hpndman, Mrs. Thos. Coleman and Dr. S. Brown. The negative speakers were declared winners by a small margin.

FARMER FOUND DEAD

The body of John Taggart, well known resident of Spencerville district, was found in his barn late Monday afternoon by two Roebuck residents, Joseph Goodwin and Jack Gill, who were out hunting in that district. The deceased was eighty years of age, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Taggart, early pioneers of this district. His farm is in a rather isolated place with no neighbours near and situated about four miles north of Roebuck.

It is believed that he had been dead for almost a week as he was last seen November 12 and there were no tracks to the barn from his house in the snow,

The barn was only a short distance from the house. In the barn were eight cows and one horse making considerable noise due to starvation. Mr. Taggart was very active all his days and in his earlier days took a keen interest in politics, being a staunch Conservative. He was a member of the Loyal Orange Lodge. Coroner MacPherson. of Prescott. examined the body and reported the death due to natural causes. His wife Emma Ragsdale, predeceased him several years ago. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. A. Peterson, of Spencerville, Mrs. Morrison of Syracuse; two sons, Sterlong of Spencerville and Everett, of Vermont.

ERECT SNOW FENCES

The Chicken Supper held in the United Church Hall on Tuesday, Nov. 14th, was well attended despite the cold weather. The ladies served a bountiful supper and a splendid concert followed in the auditorium. Mr. Powell, High School Principal, acted as chairman. Mr. O. King, Chesterville, accompanied by Mr. Hewitt, delighted the audience with several numbers. Mrs. Miles Merkley. also of Chesterville, recited several numbers in a pleasing manner. This is the second time within a few weeks Mrs. Merkley has entertained us and her numbers were very much enjoyed. Rev. R. W. Armstrong and Mrs. Armstrong of Merrickville were given a very cordial welcome by their many friends here and Mr. Armstrong gave a very stirring and inspiring message which will not be forgotten. Rev. J. McKay, of Winchester, was present and gave a short but interesting address. The church was decorated with flags for the occasion. The ladies of the Women's Association are very grateful to all who helped in any way to make a successful evening's entertainment.

Casselman—Wagner

A quiet wedding took place on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 15th, at 3 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Wagner when their youngest daughter, Doris Pearl, was united in marriage to Mr. Harry Frank Casselman, of Morrisburg. The rooms were prettily decorated withpink and white streamers and white bells. Rev. Mr. A. Nimmo officiated. Mrs. (Rev.) G. H. Smith played the wedding march. The attendants were Miss Nora Scott, of Cornwall, as bridesmaid, and Mr. Ralph Wagner as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a becoming attired gown of blue chiffon velvet, carrying a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaid wore a green crepe gown. Gifts of the bridegroom to the bride was a wrist watch, to the bridesmaid a necklace, to the best man a pair of cuff links. The mother of the bridegroom wore a black satin gown while the bride's mother wore a brown satin gown. After the ceremony tea was served to about 35 guests. Those pouring tea were Mrs. A. Byers, Mrs. F. Burd, Mrs. A. Burd. and Mrs. P. Wagner. Mr. and Mrs. Casselman left on a short honeymoon trip. On their return they will reside at Morrisburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Glover, of Haddo, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer English.

MORRISBURG HAS ITS TROUBLES

Notice was given yesterday to Morrisburg water users to boil the water, before using it, until further notice. Because of extremely low water in the St. Lawrence river, the intake pipe at the pumping station will be lengthened and while the work is being done, the water supply will be pumped from the canal, hence the warning. The citizens of the town were warned by telephone and messengers and by the time the actual pumping from the canal begins this morning, it is expected all residences will be sterilizing the water they use from the taps by boiling it. Water users will be notified when it is again safe to use the water directly from the water-pipes and pumping is being done from the river once more. While citizens of Winchester are having trouble in obtaining drinking water due to the failure of wells, it has not been found necessary to resort to boiling the water as yet.

Miss Helen Taylor, who is attending K. H. S., spent the week-end at her home here.

Miss Dorothy Christie took tea with Mr. and Mrs. D. Kingston on Sunday.

Master Donald and Clifford Gilmour spent last week with their cousin, Carl Riddell.

Miss Dorothy Wallace, of Shanly, is staying for a few days with Mrs. Frank McKee.

Mr. and Mrs. John Dobbie were Saturday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Riddell.

Mr. Guy Gillespie left on Sunday for Toronto where he will enter the judging contest at the Royat Winter Fair.

The ladies of Knox Presbyterian W. M. S. held their November meeting on Wednesday p. m. at the home of Mrs. Wallace Davidson. Fourteen members were present. The president. Mrs. E. Armstrong, conducted the devotions. Psalm 96 was read alternately. Mrs. J. Gray read the minutes of the last meeting and called the roll which was answered by naming a missionary and where working. Mrs. Wallace Davidson, Mrs. Frank Dobbie and Mrs. John Dobbie were nominated to meet and appoint the officers for the year 1934 before the December meeting. A quartette, Mrs. J. Dobbie, Mrs. J. Gray, Mrs. D. Gray and Mrs. A. Gray rendered "I Will Be True To Thee." Mrs. Coulthart, of Morewood, who was unable to be present owing to illness, sent her typewritten address on "Stewardship," which was given by Mrs. D. Gray and was greatly enjoyed by all. Prayer was then offered by several members, and a chorus "Toiling for the Master," was sung by six ladies. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Coulthart for her valuable paper by Mrs. A. Gray and seconded by Mrs. F. Dobbie. The meeting was brought to a close by singing a hymn and all repeating the Mizpah Benediction. A dainty lunch was served and a social hour was spent. The December meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Ed. Armstrong. Mrs. J. Kennedy and Mrs. J. Gray are on the program committee.

The November meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Friday evening last at the home of Mrs. Andrew Gray. The president, Mrs. C. Ferguson, opened the meeting with the Institute Ode, which was followed by the Lord's Prayer. The roll call was answered by naming historical places in Grenville and Dundas and tell why famous. The secretary, Miss Grace Burnie, then read the minutes of the last meeting and also an acknowledgment of condolence which the Institute had written to Mrs. Ida Earl in the loss of her husband. A report of the Stockholm Conference was read by Mrs. J. Gray. Miss Dorothy Christie gave a demonstration on setting a table for a formal dinner and serving. Little Beatrice Kennedy recited "Great Grandmother's Stitches." Mrs. Ralph Riddell gave a paper on economics. We were then favored with a guitar selection by Miss Freda Davidson. Mrs. Andrew Gray gave a report of the Institute meeting held at Algonquin where the officers and District Directors were invited. A hearty vote of thanks was then extended to Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gray for opening their spacious home for the occasion. After the National Anthem was sung, a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses for theevening.

MELVINS

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Christie and baby, of Grantley had tea at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Christie, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Lavictoire of St. Theresa, spent Sunday at the home of the latter's brother, Mr. Pete Cousineau.

Mr .and Mrs. Sherman Christie and sons, Orval and Glenn, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McDonald.

Miss Patricia Cousineau is spending some time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Miller, near Iroquois.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Christie and daughter, Esther, attended the Winter Fair in Ottawa on Thursday.

Too late for last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Christie and sons spent Sunday at the home of the former's son, Mr. Donald Christie, of Grantley.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brown, of Morrisburg, is spending a few days at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Pruner.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Sheldrick had dinner at the home of the former's brother, Mr. Irvine Sheldrick.

Mr. Jay Sheldrick spent Tuesday in Ottawa while Mrs. Sheldrick spent the day with her parents. Mr. and Mrs. George Thom, of Mountain.

PERILS OF THE HOME

It has just been revealed that nearly 8,000 people die every year as the result of accidents in the home or in everyday pursuits. No fewer than 1,700 women were killed by falls alone in one recent year in England, 419 of them falling downstairs. Then there are about 4,000 fatal accidents to children every year. Fully one-half of these occur in the home. But for every person killed by an accident there are many more who are injured, sometimes maimed or made invalids for life. The total number of non-fatal accidents in the British home has been estimated at over 1,000,000 every year.

LIKING PEOPLE

A liking for people is one of the feelings difficult to counterfeit convincingly. Even a child knows the difference between real affection and the make-believe variety. While it responds eagerly to the first, the second renders it awkward and self-conscious. One of the secrets of popularity is learning to like people. Stop thinking about yourself and what others will be able to do for you, and think how you can serve them. Forget the idea of making an impression and study others to find traits you can love and admire. You will never be loved until you learn to give love. Your popularity depends more on what you see in others than on what they see in you.

MATILDA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Matilda Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Robt. Bell on Thursday evening. The unusual preseason weather prevented some of the members from attending, but there was a good attendance, and an interesting meeting resulted. Mrs. A. Peterson, the president, presided, with Mrs. Chas. Strader, secretary. The meeting opened with the Institute creed. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The roll call was answered by " an historic place in Dundas." An extremely interesting display of antiques was brought by the members and curios several hundred years old were viewed with interest by those present. Mrs. W. G. A. Wilson gave a detailed, interesting and instructive report of the recent Institute Convention held in the Chateau Laurier, Ottawa. Mrs. Wilson also gave a very interesting paper on historical research. Mesdames Chas Strader and Ed. Collison pleased the meeting with a duet. A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Wilson for her excellent report and paper and to Mrs. Bell for opening her spacious home for the occasion. After the National Anthem, a dainty lunch was served by the hostesses for the evening.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Paul in Corinth.
Lesson for November 26th. Acts 18:1-17.
Golden Text: 1 Corinthians 2:2.

Corinth stood on a narrow isthmus fifty miles west of Athens. Though inferior to Athens in intellectual attainment, it was its equal in art, and its superior in commerce and wealth. But its superb architecture formed a screen behind which vice and corruption flourished. The worship of Venus, for example, was carried on with gross immorality.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Into this pleasure-seeking community Paul came after his discouraging reception in Athens. Here he made his home with Aquilo and Priscilla, tent-makers like himself, and taught in the synagogue every Sabbath. In his letters to the church at Corinth we find interesting reminders of his impressions of the city. For instance, he doubtless visited the stadium. There he witnessed a running race, watched the placing of a garland upon the brow of the winner, and enjoyed a boxing match. (1 Cor. 9:24-27). Furthermore, he noticed the long hair of effeminate fops. (1 Cor. 11:14.)

But more important than these indications of varied contacts in this crowded city is the kind of gospel Paul preached. At Athens he had catered to his audience by an excursion into the philosophy of religion, and a quotation from the Greek poets. But in Corinth he resolved to preach in a direct, positive, heart-to-heart fashion. "I determined," he says, in the sentence chosen for our Golden Text, "not to know any thing among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." It was no easy task, for not only was the city full of wickedness, but party strife had broken out in the little church, as many as four parties competing for precedence. (1 Cor. 1:12.) No wonder depression of spirit gripped him (1 Cor. 2:3), but the Lord, in a reassuring vision, bade him persevere in his testimony. (Acts 18:9, 10.)

For many months the apostle labored in Corinth. Unbelieving Jews stirred up a furious mob against him, but the proconsul Gallio was sensible enough to dismiss the case. When Paul left Corinth, a comparatively strong church had been established.

SYNOPSIS: Ruth Warren, who lived in the East, is willed three-fourth interest in the "Dead Lantern" ranch in Arizona by her only brother who is reported to have met his death while on business in Mexico. Arriving in Arizona with her husband who has ailing lungs and their small child, they learn that the ranch is located 85 miles from the nearest railroad. Old Charley Thane, rancher and rural mail carrier agrees to take them to the "Dead Lantern" gate, 5 miles from the ranch house. As they trudge wearily through a gulch approaching the ranch house, a voice whispers "Go back! . . . Go back!" At the ranch house they are greeted suspiciously by the gaunt rancher partner, Snavely, and Indian Ann, a herculean woman of mixed negro and indian blood. Snavely is difficult to understand but regardless, Ruth takes up the task of trying to adjust their three lives to the ranch and its development. Kenneth, Ruth's husband, caught in chilling rain contracts pneumonia and passes away before a doctor arrives. Ruth tries to carry on. She is not encouraged by Snavely in plans to try and stock the ranch or improve it. She writes to her father in the East asking a loan with which to buy cattle. She receives no reply. Will Thane comes home to visit his father . . . and Ruth meets him. A rancher nearby decides to retire and offers to sell Ruth and Snavely his livestock on credit. Snavely tries to balk the deal but Ruth buys to the limit of her three-quarter interest in Dead Lantern ranch.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Old Charley himself had remarked to Ruth that the rains began about the end of June; Snavely had admitted that it might rain around the twenty-fourth of June—before the real drouth set in; but Ann, Don Francisco, Alfredo, and Magda had stated calmly that the rain would come in abundance beginning with the Day of San Juan.

It was now the twentieth of July and since the single storm of more than two months before, there had not been a cloud in the sky the size of a pigeon. The grass which had sprung up so brave and green after the storm was now wilted and the color of broom-straw. The lacy leaves of the mesquite curled on drooping branches, dust laden; the broad, flat leaves of the prickly pear were shrunken and yellowish; small bushes were as brittle as glass, and the twigs and weed stems underfoot rustled like dry paper. The birds, rabbits, coyotes and lions had left the country—all was desolation. Rattlesnakes abounded.

Each morning the sun rose naked above the eastern mountains and as it rose a wave of stifling heat swept over the desert as though a mighty oven door had slowly swung open.

Ruth had rather expected rain on the Day of San Juan and, when that passed cloudless, felt that in a day or so she would see the clouds billowing over the mountains and smell the indescribable perfume of desert rain. As day succeeded day, each hotter, dryer, more hopeless than the preceding day, her anxiety increased—she seemed trapped in a corner while disaster crept relentlessly nearer. The increasing awareness of her responsibility drove her to assume more and more the control of the ranch. Before she well realized it she was giving the orders for the day's riding. Snavely left everything to her. He rode out each morning but he rode alone and he returned alone.

Occasionally as she rode about the ranch, Ruth came across him. Sometimes he was riding casually up some cañon as though he cared not where he went, as long as he had no company; again, she had seen him sitting in the shade of a scrubby live oak high upon a ridge top. Whenever she saw him these days Ruth had an odd, uncomfortable feeling that Snavely was waiting for something.

One day she met Old Charley and Will as she was riding the southern boundary of the ranch. The two men came up to the fence and talked with her. That evening she told Snavely that he ought to go to town for a wagonload of cottonseed meal which could be given to such cows as needed it badly. She also suggested that he get a certain brand of dried milk—much advertised in the cattle raisers' magazine—which, mixed with water, could be given to the underfed calves and the orphans.

Snavely thought for a long time, then said he would go. It seemed to Ruth that there was an undercurrent of eagerness in his voice in spite of his objections to the trip. He started the next morning with team and wagon, returning a week later with the load. He appeared oddly satisfied.

Now, whenever the riders found a weak cow with a starving calf or some calf without a mother, these animals were brought to the home ranch, turned into the small horse pasture, and fed. Some sixty cows were receiving their daily ration of meal, and about the ranch house and corrals wandered a band of nine or ten orphaned calves whom Ruth was bringing up on the bottle.

The gulch had been fenced by the Mexicans under Ruth's direction; also all the ponds were now deep—and all but the one in the south pasture was bone dry. Half of the herd watered at this pond, the other half at the corral troughs on the home ranch. The corral troughs could only water this number. Very little wind came to turn the windmill which fed the tank by the corrals. Even after Alfredo had constructed a primitive hand pump, it usually meant three hours of back-breaking labor to raise the required amount of water.

And no signs of rain..

Each day, as she returned from the south pasture, sometimes driving a weak cow, or even carrying a day-old calf across her saddle, the swelling fear in her heart increased. A hundred times a day she looked for clouds; if her riding took her near a hill she went to the top, eagerly scanning the new-made horizon.

As day succeeded day, each hotter, more hopeless than the preceding day, her anxiety increased.

She knew that the Mexicans were praying for rain—she had given them all the candles in the house for the sacred picture they had hung in the barn. And once she had entered the gulch after a calf, which had gone through the fence, and upon the rock had found a grotesque little mud image holding a tiny pot of cornmeal. Ann did not reply when Ruth asked her about it; but the girl had come to know the footprints of the giantess.

There came a day when the water in the south pasture had shrunk to a thin sheet of wet mud. Then Ruth knew that the end had come; with the full herd trying to water at the home ranch where there was barely enough for half, there could be only one result. If no rain came within a week the cattle would begin dying by dozens.

For the last few days as she watched the water so relentlessly disappear, Ruth thought less about meeting her note and more about the cattle themselves. The tears often started in her eyes these days. When the girl came upon a gaunt cow lying in the stifling shade at the bottom of some gully, with a shriveled, panting calf at her side, she wanted desperately to explain to these poor creatures that she could not help, that she was not to blame.

When the last of the water was gone in the south pasture, Ruth felt that she would gladly give every animal on the place to any one who could take them to green fields and running water. Feeling as she did, the blow which fell on the following mail day was robbed a little of its power to hurt.

She had written a letter to Parker explaining the situation and thanking him for his previous offer to extend payment. And although Old Charley would be bringing the mail and would not be going into town again until next week, the girl rode to the box.

But the mail had already arrived when she reached the box. There were two letters addressed to her. The one with the earliest postmark was from Parker who explained that for business reasons he had been obliged to take a loan on the note. It was now in the hands of J. H. Witherspoon, Inc., a broker. The second letter was from the broker. After reading it the girl stared at the cloudless skyline, then rode home. Her lips were set and her face shone yellow under the tan. . . . "Consequently, the cattle situation being what it is owing to the present drouth, we feel it necessary to call payment on the note when due; namely, November first, next."

"Well," said Will, "there's one thing certain—when the rains hold off as long as this they make up for it when they do begin."

Again, Ruth shook her head.

Old Charley studied for a moment, then slowly climbed out of the car. Will followed. "I've seen some pretty bad times mended," remarked the old man. "Things most always seem worse than what they are. But pshaw—we're bound to get rain before long and when we do, it'll likely be a good one, same as Will says."

"The last pond went dry a week ago," said Ruth dully.

Old Charley tried not to show his surprise. "So? Well, they'll get a little thin waterin' at the well, but it won't hurt them.

"Oh!" Ruth suddenly turned away. After a moment she said slowly, "I gave my note to Parker for the cattle—my interest in the ranch will be gone by November—there's no water—the cattle will be dying in another week."

"Another week!" Both men stared at the girl. "You must be wrong," said Old Charley.

"No, the well's going dry—it gives out sooner each day."

"But, Mrs. Warren"—Will looked from Ruth to his father—"I don't understand. There was surface water there late last June, worlds of water. Why, there must be two or three thousand acres which drain into that well!"

"It's going dry," said Ruth.

"New wells sometimes give out quick," replied Old Charley slowly, "but it sure seems funny. You see, Will, here, helped your brother locate that well. You ought to be able to take care of a good half of your herd—let part of 'em water at the corrals."

"At—the—corrals? But I don't understand—do you mean—what do you mean?"

Old Charley looked at his son and then at Ruth "Why, just what I said; use the well at the corrals, the one with the windmill—the old well."

"But that's what we have been using," cried Ruth; "that's the one that's going dry!"

"What!" ejaculated Will. "Aren't you using the upper well at all?"

"Upper well—what upper well?" asked Ruth in a dazed voice.

"Well, I'll be—" Old Charley looked at his son.

"He never went on with it," said Will, softly.

Old Charley nodded and turned to Ruth. "The prospect Harry and Will found last summer was in the upper end of the north pasture—I guess Harry didn't get around to developing it before—he left. But didn't anybody tell you about it?"

"No—" Ruth's heart was beating wildly. "I never heard about any other water."

"Harry bought the pipe," said Will. "Remember, Dad? We passed a load of it on the way to town last fall."

"There's a big pile of pipe behind the barn," said Ruth. "Tell me quick! Is there water we can use in the north pasture?"

"It'll have to be developed," said Old Charley slowly.

"Shouldn't take more than a day or two," responded Will. He thought a moment, then pulled an envelope from his pocket and wrote on it with a pencil. "Here, Dad, you run on into town and send this telegram—I'll be staying over a few days." He turned to Ruth. "Suppose I ride back with you and show you that side place. Seems to me you ought to develop plenty of water with a day's work or so."

Snavely slowly arose as the riders came straight up to him. Ruth spoke: "Mr. Thane has told me of a place in the north pasture where there is indication of water—he and my brother found it last summer." She paused. "Why didn't you tell me about it?"

"I had reasons," said Snavely, his eyes on Will. "I didn't want to go gettin' your hopes up—there ain't no use diggin' in that gully bottom jest because of a little rain seepage."

"But, Mr. Snavely," said Ruth, "now that we have need of the water don't you think it would be wise to try to get it?"

If no rain came within a week the cattle would begin dying by dozens.

"If you can—you won't find nothin', though. Maybe a little rock basin full of rain water under the sand."

"There had been no rains for several months when we located the prospect last summer," said Will; "the sand was wet and we dug far enough to see that water was running into it from that big dike. That dike is a natural underground dam—"

"All right, all right—go ahead and dig all you're a mind to if you've got such an all-fired interest in the Dead Lantern, Mr. Thane."

Will made no reply and Ruth thanked him with her eyes. To Snavely she said, as she started her horse, "Please have the two men follow us with picks and shovels."

It was not long before Will guided her into a small arroyo, one of the hundreds which led down from the mountains.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO

A schoolhouse built of stone in 1833 at Algonquin, Grenville County, is still in use and in admirable condition. On September 1st last a centenary celebration was held on adjacent propertp attended by scores of former pupils, teachers and interested ratepayers as well as other personages in school activities. There was an old time parade, a delightful dinner and a diversified programme of speeches and musical numbers that lasted far into the afternoon. Inspectors Gordon Young, Grenville; W. C. Dowsley, Leeds; and F. P. Smith, Kingston, made pleasing addresses, Mr. Smith, a Grenville boy, recalling school history and the fact that the country is redolent with memories of the United Empire Loyalists, suggesting turning the ancient building into a U. E. L. Museum and making it a place of interest in Eastern Ontario. The plan met with an emphatic ovation and the School Board will consider the proposal. The County has a rich store of olden goods that would fill the building and keep alive memories of pioneering days. A unique number of the programme was a duet by Mrs. Annie Clark, aged 85, and Alonzo Earle. aged 80, both former pupils.

Christmas Essentially the Day of the Child

DECEMBER the 25th is the Day of the Child.

It is upon this day of days that countless men and women and little ones barely able to speak their language utter the great rejoicing: For unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given!

Even those who hold creeds in which there is no Christmas feel the splendor of that cry, and those who have no formal creed at all, still know there is one of the 365 portions of the year which is essentially the Day of the Child

It is the day when even the most unsentimental adult, long since congealed and hardened by the years, can hear in his heart the footsteps of the little ones. Today they are running about so eagerly all over the world pattering to see what good gifts may have been received, ardent with a hope that only young hearts can feel.

On this day the austere scientist who has almost quit believing in the very laws of astronomy which recently seemed so sure and stable, but which now seem dissolving in a mist of relativity—this careful profession al skeptic becomes as a child himself, and considers it hard indeed if he cannot believe in Santa Claus, beard ed fairy godfather of the children.

On this day even those who have been the most careless feel like say ing over reverently that beautiful prayer for wisdom in the rearing of children:

"Almighty God, heavenly Father, who hast blessed us with the joy and care of children; Give us, light and strength so to train them, that they may love whatsoever things are true and pure and lovely and of good re oort."

For on this Day of the Child we all remember that the most precious gift we can bestow upon our children is a capacity for feeling just such tender and generous and helpful emotions as today stir in the breasts of all good men and women.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

Wreaths, Garlands Gay Shout "Merry Christmas!"

WHAT a joy it is to come into a home scented with spicy pine and hemlock, so suggestive of Yule tide that each room fairly shouts "Merry Christmas!" And what a real pleasure, too, to gather the greens and dispose them so that they express all the kindliness of the blessed season, intensifying the delights of the "friendliest" period of the year!

As garlands, the various types of greens may decorate windows and doors, or they may be massed on mantels or tables.

To make a flexible rope of greenery, supply a foundation of heavy twine and to this attach the short sprays of pine, hemlock or spruce, interspersed regularly with clusters of laurel; or for a more decorative effect use the artificial berries with the greens. Fine flexible wire is best for fastening the sprays in place.

Another use for greens is in the formation of window wreaths. Arrange the small sprays on a heavy wire foundation, taking care to keep the wreath symmetrical. Small groups of red berries, regularly placed, give character to such a decoration.

"A Merry Christmas," as Other Nations Say It

THIS is how the nations of the world express the wish "A Merry Christmas": France, Bon Noel; China, Tin Hao Nian; Portugal, Boas Festas; Japan, Kinga Shinnen; Turkey, Ichok Yilara; Hungary, Boldog Karacsonyi Unnipeket; Greece, Chrystovjena; Croatia, Sretan Bozic; Holland, Een Vroolijk Kerstmis; Spain Felices Pascuas; Germany Froeh liche Weihnachtan; Sweden, Glad Julen; Italy, Felice Natale; Rumania Cracium Felicitatiune; Bohemia, Vesele Vanoce; Poland, Wesolych Swiat; Denmark, Glaedelig Jul.

THREE CELEBRATIONS

THREE Christmases are celebrated every year in the Church of Nativity at Bethlehem The first occurs in the Roman Catholic section on December 25; 13 days later the Greek Orthodox church hold their celebrations to be followed by those of the Armenian church in another 13 days

Selecting Christmas Cards

We unconsciously betray our true selves when we select Christmas cards People who live in city apartments are apt to send drawings of farmhouses that nestle cozily among tall trees; a lawyer's holiday card is likely to be sugary with sentiment. — Collier's Weekly.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Members on Pilgrimage

If the view of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace that future farmers should have more leisure is accepted there will be no lack of good ways to use it where 4-H club folks have anything to do with it. In almost every county in the country where 4-H clubs are active fine recreational features already are an important part of the annual program.

Among the many ways club folks are balancing their serious projects with worth while fun are tours to points of agricultural interest within easy motoring distances. Lake county, California, club members and leaders took a tour to the beautiful campus and experimental grounds of the State University this fall. It was first done last year and only club members were taken who had completed four years of projects and were over 15 years of age. The two tours have been so successful the idea appears to be well rooted in the program of the county.

The tour in this county serves a dual purpose. It is a fine outing for club members and leaders, and by restricting it to the class of members they designate as "senior" it gives an incentive to the younger members to stick by their projects and continue in club work year after year. The requirements placed on club members in California or any state are not easy for a boy or girl to meet, even when they have smooth sailing. And when they run against the many obstacles which they can and do it takes pluck to keep on with their projects, as club training is not compulsory like school work.

It is not hard to understand how club members could have a fine time on such a tour as that taken by the Lake Countians. Under the leadership of County agent L. C. Barnard there were 58 of the 73 senior club members in the country rounded up. At the university they met state club leaders whom they had met in their home 4-H gatherings. They were shown the fine buildings, gyms, laboratories and museums, and were given a ride to the top of the campanile for a view of the ocean bay. A football game and a banquet wound up the day.

DON'T PUT THINGS OFF

Because you put things off till the last moment may be the reason why you find so many things more difficult than you expected.

The easiest job if delayed in starting till beyond the time they can safely start for a complete finish, becomes appallingly hard.

Lack of preparation presents obstacles, which if plans were well laid, the desired result need never have been blocked.

CROWN IS NOT OLD

At every opening of the British parliament the king's crown is brought from the tower of London to the throne room in St. James' palace for the occasion, says the Montreal Family Herald. For this journey it has an escort of yeomen of the guard. and when it is next conveyed to the robing room at Westminster, it is escorted by the household cavalry. It is generally supposed that the imperial state crown of England is one which has been handed down a long line of kings. In fact it was made in 1838, principally of jewels taken from old crowns. It contains a large ruby and a large sapphire, 16 smaller sapphires and four smaller rubies, 11 emeralds, more than 1.000 brilliant and rose diamonds, 147 table diamonds, four drop-shaped pearls and 273 pearls.

WITCH-HAZEL NOT ALONE USEFUL AS DIVINING ROD

The witch-hazel derives its name from the magic powers attributed to the slender branches of this small tree or shrub. Many believe that a small branch of the witch-hazel if held lightly while being carried along over the ground will turn toward the earth at a spot where water or gold may be found by digging. It is this divining rod characteristic which has brought it fame.

The witch-hazel. however, has some real value to mankind, for from its bark comes a medicant used in liniments for external application. The bark and leaves, which are similar to the leaves of the ordinary hazel, are a source of tannen. which is used in preparation of leather.

The tree is usually found in damp forests where its scrubby growth is stimulated. It is a two-year tree so far as bringing its flowers into bearing, for the clusters of yellow flowers which appear in the fall do not develop into seed until the following spring.

THEN AND NOW

"$10, and under, cash; over that amount twelve months' credit on approved joint notes." For fifty years these lines appeared at the bottom of advertisements of sales of farm stock, implements, etc. They are not seen any more. In their place are the two words "Terms cash." Rarely now is credit asked for at sales. More rarely is it given to persons buying stock or implements at auctions. In other days a year's credit induced persons to buy more than they could hope to pay for in the time given. Notes came due, farmers needed the money, and pressed for payment. The maker and the endorser were required to secure an extension of time at the bank or elsewhere. Additional costs were incurred, and too often men became involved to an extent that they had not contemplated, and carrying a load under which they had eventually to give up. Credit wisely used is often a blessing to the industrious and thrifty; employed thoughtlessly has placed many a man on the roadside. If out of the present conditions men and women learn to refrain from buying that which they cannot pay for at the time, good will follow evil in every department of life. "Terms cash" are words which should appear at the bottoms of sales of all kinds of merchandise, as well as at those of farm stock and implements. What a happy place Canada would be today had we all learned to "pay as we go" when times were good.

Aided by a photographic eye, which enables him to remember sheet music as it is written in addition to the usual memory for tunes which musicians develop, Mr. Marks now has at his command 5000 different piano selections, any one of which he can play from memory. Mr. Marks has played the piano for 30 years, beginning at the age of 10.

His memory includes thousands of past and present popular songs, college tunes, etc. Although he knows all of them, Mr. Marks is most particular about what national anthems he plays and where—because such a mistake might easily lead to a misunderstanding, even trouble.

The 10-barrel "slaughter gun" illustrated above, was taken by Federal game wardens as an illegal weapon used in duck-hunting. The device is a make-shift affair, but it was deadly to game, and agents estimate that 150 ducks could be killed with it at one shot.

It consists essentially of 10 ordinarp shotgun barrels mounted rigidly on crosspieces to hold them in a slightly fanwise position. The firing pins operate from a single control making all 10 loads go off at the same time. The usual scattering of shot makes this a veritable solid wall of pellets. It can practically annihilate a flock of birds.

The gun has an immense recoil and must, for that reason, be fired from a substantial support.

"DON'TS" IN MARRIAGE RESULT IN HAPPINESS

For the bride who wishes to get along with her mother-in-law and be happy, science has come forth with a few suggestions. Here they are:—

Don't criticize her "old-fashioned ways.

Don't try to reform her methods of household management.

Don't (out loud) resent dealings she has with her son.

Don't begrudge waiting on her.

Don't belittle her real or fancied ailments.

Don't criticize her personal habits.

Don't forget to practice tolerance always .

If the bride will just do these things, all will be well with her relations with her mother-in-law, said Dr. E. W. Burgess, professor of sociology at the University of Chicago. He arrived at this solution by sifting and studying the answers of 6,000 questionnaires sent to married couples to find out how persons can be happy and married.

THE EDITOR'S "SNAP"

Every once in a while some cheerful individual remarks to us "Well, now that the paper is out, I suppose you can take it easy for three or four days"

Yes, how delightful it is that a country editor has nothing to do between press days. Business runs along automatically. When paper bills come due, money drops off the trees with which to pay them. Subscribers vie with each other to see who can pay the farthest in advance. Advertisers just beg for additional space, and the way news hunts up the editor is also pleasant to contemplate.

There is something strange about the way news items act. When the paper is out, the editor simply goes to his desk and leans back in his chair, looking wise and waiting for next week's press day. The day before press days, people line up before the office door, and then file in past the desk and tell him all the news of the week. He writes it up in 15 or 20 minutes, takes it back and hangs it on the hook. The compositor takes the copy and shakes it over the type cases, says a few mystic words, the type flies into place, and after a few passes by the foreman, the forms are ready for the press again. And the editor goes down and deposits some more money in the bank.

It is the greatest snap in the catalogue.

THE HUMAN PARADOX

Nature is fond of paradoxes, but her masterpiece of inconsistency is probably Man.

He invents rich and spicy foods and employs expensive cooks to tempt his palate—and then pays expensive doctors to cure him of dyspepsia.

He invents every possible labor-saving device to make his life easier—and then has to invent reducing machines, golf, dumb-bells, and Indian clubs to take off his weight and give him some exercise.

He appointed a day of rest—and spends it walking around in the hot sun hitting a little golf ball or straining his back over a radish patch. He sets legal holidays for rejoicing and merry-making, and spends them in sleeping off the hangover from the night before.

He invents airplanes so that he may travel among the clouds and submarines so that he may travel under the sea. Yet, when his wife takes the car and he has to walk on the face of the earth, where the Lord intended him to travel, he bitterly resents it.

Yet, Nature certainly turned out some highly finished work, when she made the male of the human species. —Exchange.

CELLOPHANE

Cellophane looks like isinglass, or like celluloid, and is known as glass paper, and as transparent cellulose sheeting. It is transparent, thin, tough, and moisture and greaseproof, and while airtight, permits the customer to see exactly what he is buying. It is not a new product, but developments in the chemical industry have made production possible in quantities and at a price which permits general use. Wood or cotton provides the base. The ash, coloring matter and other impurities are removed, leaving only the pure vegetable fibre, or cellulose, which is treated with caustic soda and bisulphide of carbon. This results in viscose, the liquid, which is glass paper after being forced through a very narrow slit and cooled. It is no more inflammable than ordinary paper. It is manufactured in various forms and sold under various trade names.

Electricity!

No tale of wonders and enchantments has ever been written that excelled the actual reality which is today at mankind's fingertips in the wonders and magic of electricity. Step by step the intelligence of man leads him on through the ages of civilization until to-day our most common utility is in fact far beyond the mere comprehension of even the dreams of our forefathers. The Hydro System brings all of this to the citizens of Winchester. There is no new development or equipment in the fields that is not available to the life and business of local citizens. The drudgery can be taken out of housework if you let electric energy be the slave.

Possibly your home needs re-wiring or the present wiring a little overhauling. If so let us know about it. We are here to see that you get the best possible results from Hydro Light and Power.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Mrs. Bertha E. Johnston, Provincial Public Health Nurse, who has been doing such excellent work in this district, has been transferred to Stormont County, with headquarters at Finch. The Townships of Winchester and Williamsburg will be under the care of Mrs. Edith Bagshaw.

No arrests have been made as yet in connection with the hold-up of Thos. Burke, member of the Chesterville branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia staff, which took place last week near Morewood. Provincial police are busy on the case and several promising leads are being followed.

The Press is given to understand that the Clinic, operated by Dr. W. M. Locke at Williamsburg, will be closed from Dec. 24th to January 22nd, as Dr. Locke is taking an extended holiday. This being the case, Williamsburg will become for that period a living example of "The Deserted Village," with humble apologies to our friend, Oliver Goldsmith.

NOMINATION MEETING

The meeting to nominate candidates for the positions of Reeve and Councillors and Public School Trustees will be held in the town hall to-morrow night from 7 to 8 o'clock. After the close of necessary nominations, there will be the usual summing up of the year's business, and if any have a grievance against the municipality they should be present and make it known.

CHEST CLINIC HELD HERE

Winchester was the centre for a Chest Clinic held under the Provincial Department of Health, a few weeks ago.

Some 225 people were referred in by their family physicians. These received a chest examination and an X-ray where indicated. Children were given a skin test, and where a reaction occurred, an X-ray was taken.

Dr. G. C .Brink and his two assistants, Drs. Harris and Shorey, were kept busy for five days with this work. Reports are being received by the different physicians regarding the conditions found, and everything will be done to assist in helping anyone who may need further attention.

This is part of the work which is being carried on under Dr. Robb, Minister of Health, by the Ontario Department of Health, in the County of Dundas.

CORRESPONDENCE

Winchester, Nov21st,

Editor Ross:

Dear Sir:—

In last week's issue of the Press I noticed an article on the attractive window of Mr. T. O. Keyes store.

Looking over the list of names of those who served in the Great War, I noticed that two of our boys were not mentioned. Two boys that spent the greater part of their lives in this vicinity and when the call came they did not hesitate to answer. They enlisted in the 38th Battalion at Ottawa and were killed in action when that Batalion was almost wiped out.

I would like very much to have the names of Pte. Arthur Poynter and Pte. Harold Poynter embroidered in gold on the service flag along with the rest of the fallen heroes.

Albert Turner.

The following letter was received by Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Bean, and is but another evidence of the help that is needed in that part of Saskatchewan:

Onward, Sask.,
November 15, 1933

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let you know we received the car of mixed vegetables and must say everything came through great ,there was nothing spoilt. My husband is councillor of this division and the car was divided between four districts so the share for this district was brought here and everything was opened here and divided up. Everybody got the same amount and I must say they were all very thankful for what they received. And I must thank you for sending the Box

We have been very unlucky these last couple of years. My husband farms three-quarters of a section of land and three years ago we were hailed out. Last year the crop was very poor and this year my husband put in four hundred acres of wheat and oats all alone as we could not pay a man, and he only threshed one hundred bushels of wheat and it took over half to pay the threshing of it and the rest went to feed the threshers and a few hens and pigs we had, so you see there was not much in it. Some did not take a binder out at all. They just cut it for feed. The last couple of years we have been having dreadful wind storms and it drys out the land awful, but I am hoping we will have a crop next year. Do you know I have not bought clothes for myself or family for three years. I have been making over things I had around the place. I could have bought clothes only we used all our money to pay the taxes, and always keep thinking we could manage for another year until the crop comes on. But this year we could not pay our taxes, but we don.t owe anybody a cent, only this year's taxes. We try to get along without owing. There are only four of us in the family. I have a little girl 10 years of age and a boy four. There were some clothes in the car that came through but they were left with the ladies in town to give out, but Mr. May would not ask for any as we have never been on relief and he hated to ask.

Well, I am sending you a feeble token of my thanks for what you sent us people out here. If the yoke is not big enough you can use it for a doylie. I do quite a lot of tatting and I intend to make a few more and send one to each of the ladies whose addresses I have. I have also the Minister's address. I would like to know if he is married, as I would like to send a piece of tatting along to his wife. If you have a spare moment I would like you to let me know. I think this is all for now. I remain yours truly, Mrs. May.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL NEWS

Mrs. C. R. Mill was suddenly called to Toronto on Wednesday morning owing to the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. M. Leslie. who is to undergo an operation on Thursday morning. Mrs. Mill will likely be away for some days.

Mr. W. H. Smith, formerly of the Winchester staff of the Royal Bank of Canada, and for the past three years a member of the staff at Glebe Branch, Ottawa, has been transferred to Toronto where he has been instructed to report at the Supervisor's Department.

Mrs. Hubbard Ellis, F.R.G.S., celebrated explorer, was attending the Locke Clinic at Williamsburg during the past week. Mrs. Ellis is renowned for her explorations in Labrador and her production of the book entitled "A Woman's Way Through Unknown Labrador."

The village of Kemptville is undertaking the construction of a concrete retaining wall on the northeast side of the bridge on Prescott street in that place, for the purpose of constructing a suitable place to put the fire engine when it is needed to pump water for fires in that district. The work will be done mainly by the unemployed men of the town and will require about three weeks to complete.

Enroute to Ogdensburg with a cargo of coal, the steamer Lucius W. Robinson, of the Hall fleet, was forced to drop anchor in the St. Lawrence for several hours on Monday of last week, as a result of a dust storm which swept across the river from the American side. Visibility was reduced to nil, and the dust cloud was so thick that the entire ship was covered with a thin coating of mud as the dust mixed with the rain and snow afterwards encountered. The Robinson, which was commissioned late in the season, now enters winter quarters at Ogdensburg.

FARMHOUSE RAZED

Fire, caused by a spark from the chimney, completely destroyed the farmhouse owned by Herman Casselman, and located about two miles north of Morrisburg on Monday morning last. When discovered, the flames had made considerable headway and nothing could be done to save the building. Neighbours immediately rallied to the scene and most of the furniture in the residence was removed. Two sheds that adjoined the home were also destroyed by the fire. The loss is estimated at approximately $4000 which is partly covered by insurance.

CELEBRATES 93rd BIRTHDAY

One of the oldest residents of this district, Mr. Dawson Beattie, quietly celebrated his 93rd birthday last Sunday, Nov. 19th. He is enjoying good health and spends his time reading, writing, visiting and doing some work. The past week he cut up a pile of wood with his bucksaw, which he says he can use as well as any one yet.

He attended church on Sunday and enjoyed his dinner at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Earle, where four generations were present—his little great grandson, Gordon Barkley, being 90 years and 2 1-3 months younger than he is.

Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Barkley, Miss Nellie Barkley, and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Barkley, all of Morrisburg.

Mr. Beattie received many messages of congratulations from absent members of his family and friends.

CORRESPONDENCE

Kerrobert, Sask.,
November 16, 1933.

The Winchester Press,
Winchester, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

It would indeed be more interesting for the people of Winchester and Chesterville, who so generously contributed to the car of vegetables, fruit, clothing, etc., to receive letters from some of the 200 or 300 families who will share in their generosity. However, I have been asked by the chairman of our local relief committee, Sheriff J. E. Rodney, also a former Winchester boy, to write a letter of appreciation. It must necessarily be in general terms but we want you to feel it is genuine. It has been a great joy for the committee to give out to families in town and country, who are finding it very difficult this year to get a bare subsistence, some of the good things you have shared with us.

We have been on the semi-arid area for some years but this year we are in the very centre of a drouth area. It is difficult for even a westerner to realize what drouth conditions can bring about in a couple of years. The fields were bare, the cattle got a bare subsistence during August and September and there was no feed in this area for winter. October rains brought on the grass and some late oat crops. But many farmers drove their herds a hundred miles or more north where they are staying for the winter or perhaps for good. There was no crop and therefore with many farmers no money to buy anything more than the absolute necessities and many of course were left destitute. Your generous donations have been indeed a god-send to them.

The municipalities, of course, have to administer relief in the form of coal and necessities and more recently are arranging for free transportation of fodder where farmers can still buy it.

On the whole our people are happy and hopeful and we trust with your generous gifts there will not be undue suffering his winter.

The car was pretty warm when it arrived and the cabbage and vegetables all had to be sorted over. Unfortunately many of the letters got destroyed.

Yours very sincerely,
Benson S. Summers.

SOCIAL EVENING

A most enjoyable evening was spent by the Young People's Society of the United Church on Monday evening last, when the Society was entertained at the parsonage by Rev. John and Mrs. McKay. About fifty members of the group were present.

The evening was spent in games after which a delightful lunch was served by the hostess. Mrs. Howard Fetterly, at the piano, led in a sing song after which the evening closed by singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

OLD BOYS AND GIRLS ASSN.

Opening a fall and winter season of activity, the Dundas Old Boys' and Old Girls' Association, formed in Toronto by former residents of the county of Dundas, are planning a social evening, to be held at the King Edward Hotel in Toronto, on Tuesday evening, December 5th. It is expected that several hundred former Dundas residents will be present.

The decision to hold the social evening was made at a committee meeting of the Association on Thursday evening last. Irwin Hilliard, K. C. former Morrisburg citizen and now Master of the Supreme Court of Ontario, was in the chair. K. A. Christie, secretary, presented a report of the progress made by the Association since its organization. Among those present at the meeting was Hon. Geo. H. Challies.

RINK MEETING

The Executive of the local rink company held a meeting last week to make plans for the coming season's activities. Those present were D. H. Weir, president; T. O. Keyes, vice-president; N. W. Beach, secretary; H. L. Flora, treasurer; Thomas Annable, Dr. J. J. McKendry, J. L. Dixon, J. G. Latimer and Herman Summers, directors.

The treasurer reported a small balance on hand to start the season with. Membership and admission fees will be the same as last year, and tenders have been called for the operating of the refreshment booth and for the job of caretaker.

It was decided to start at once to make ice and with ideal weather conditions this work progressed favorably and the rink opened on Friday night last with free skating. On Saturday evening the official opening took place when a large crowd gathered to enjoy skating to the music, furnished by the Citizens' Band.

Another meeting of the Rink Executive was held last night, when tenders for a caretaker and restaurant operator were considered. The tender for caretaker was awarded to Mr. Allen Summers, while Mr. H. L. Flora obtained refreshment privileges. A deputation from the Town League Hockey Club waited on the committee to make arrangements for the coming hockey season. A request of a 60-40 split of the gate receipts instead of a 75-25 was submitted to the Rink Directors. After careful consideration, they decided to divide the gate receipts 65-35.

ARGUMENT LEADS TO COURT CASE

Lawrence Menard, of Embrun, aged 17, was taken into custody last night by Constable Henry Shepherd on a charge of assault with intent to do grievous bodily harm upon the person of his brother, Lionel Menard, also of Embrun.

Unable to understand English, Reeve Adrien L'Eriger acted as court interpreter for the accused and for the various witnesses who were called. The quarrel developed over the proper way of preparing the lowly bean.

Six witnesses were called and their evidence showed that the accused had wilfully injured his brother in a quarrel that developed into a rough house and resulted in the mother calling in help from one of the neighbours to quell the disturbance. Another witness claimed that the two brothers had quarrelled before and that upon this particular occasion the father of the accused had been absent from the home and upon the father's return home, the accused had met the father at the door, refused him admittance and threatened him with a club.

Accused was unable to offer a satisfactory explanation as to his unwarranted action and asked for Mr. Brisson of Embrun to plead for him. Mr. Brisson spoke for the accused but Magistrate Boucher found the youth to be of an irresponsible nature and fined him $20.

HOLDING HIS OWN

Mr. William N. Lannin, who about ten days ago underwent a serious operation at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, for gall stones, has been making a brave fight, and yesterday was reported as cheerful and as well as his surgeons expected him. Mr. Lannin has also heart trouble, and it was feared the operation would be too much for him. His wonderful optimism and good cheer seems to be standing by him in this critical time, and his many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. C. B. Jamieson received word from Toronto this morning that his brother, James Jamieson, who is very ill of pleuro-pneumonia, is not making the recovery that his doctors would like to see.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

A large attendance of members and friends on Tuesday night rewarded the efforts of the President, Mrs. J. E. Singleton, and the Committee in charge, in their preparation of a good program.

Mrs. E. Gilroy, convenor of the committee, presided for the program, calling upon Magistrate McCormick to introduce the guest speaker, Judge McKinley, of Ottawa. In a pleasing manner, Mr. McCormick spoke of the important work done by the Institute and of the honor conferred upon him by asking him to introduce the Judge who presides over the Juvenile Court and the Court of Domestic Relations in the five eastern counties of Ontario, and is also chairman of the Parole Board of Ontario.

The Judge's address was very interesting as he told of the redemptive work done by these courts and recited many amusing occurrences. He is in love with his work of reformation of criminals and it was a great pleasure to listen to him.

Messrs. C. B. Timmins, W. M. Rowat. Bill Agnew and J. D. Stewart favored the meeting with two enjoyable old-time selections. They sang without accompaniment. Mrs. J .W. Ault's report of the Eastern Ontario Convention held in Ottawa last month was well worth hearing. She brought to us some good constructive criticism, and said that the meetings there were conducted strictly on Parliamentary procedure.

In answer to roll call some ideas for inexpensive Christmas gifts were given.

The report from the Oratorical Contest showed that it had been a success. Mrs. Neil Hutt reported sewing had been done for the Good Cheer work. She asked for rubbers and shoes, size 4 1-2 or five for a girl.

Plans were discussed to raise money to carry on the relief work, and a committee was appointed who have decided to hold a social evening on Tuesday, Dec. 5th, in the town hall. The singing of God Save The King closed the meeting after which refreshments were served by the committee.

Before the meeting dispersed, a hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. F. F. Davidson, seconded by Mrsr John Moffat to Judge McKinley, and all those concerned in making the evening entertainment the success it was.

OSGOODE STATION

The whole community was shocked on Thursday afternoon last when the sad news passed along of the tragic and highly respected young farmer, death of Robert Aiken, a prosperous aged 28 years. who was hit by a fast freight train while driving over the railway crossing. One of his horses was instantly killed while the other escaped injury. The wagon was completely destroyed.

It is thought that he did not hear or see the train coming until too late to clear the tracks, and was thrown 50 feet, suffering a fracured skull and having both legs broken. He was dead when the train crew and other citizens reached him.

He was a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and is survived by his mother and sister who reside in Scotland. A sad feature of his death was the fact that he was within one week of being married to an Osgoode lady to whom the sympathy of the whole community is extended.

The funeral took place on Saturday from the residence of Mr. Samuel Patterson with whom the deceased had lived for the past 12 years, to St. James United Church, of which he was an honored member, and was conducted by Rev. A. F. Shorten. pastor of the church. Interment was made in Reid's Mills Cemetery. The many floral offerings and large funeral cortege marked the esteem in which the deceased was held.

An inquest was held on Monday evening in the L. O. L. Hall by Dr. J. E. Craig, coroner of Ottawa, and a verdict of accidental death was the result

Mr. A. P. Wilson received the sad news on Sunday of the death of his brother-in-law, the late Mr. Robert Capston, of Ottawa. The funeral took place on Sunday and was attended by a number of friends from Osgoode.

Mrs. James Hunt entertained at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harbison who were recently married. A number of useful articles were given the young bride with the heartiest of good wishes for their future success.

Mrs. C. Wlison, of Kars, spent the week-end at the home of her brother, Mr. A. P. Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Cowan and children of Metcalfe, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Boyd on Monday.

The Women's Association of St. James' United Church held their regular monthly meeting in the church on Tuesday with an attendance of 17. The vice-pesident, Mrs. Thos. Robinson, presided. The theme of the meeting was temperance, the hymns and devotions carrying out that theme Mrs. C. A. Moses gave a very interesting talk urging the members to stand strong in their fight against the proposed inroads of the liquor traffic.

Mr. T. G. Clark, Mr. T. H. Wilson and Mr. Wm. Magee, of Ottawa, were guests of Mr. A. P. Wilson on Tuesday afternoon.

FOURTEEN HOURS PUMPING

It took fourteen hours of continuous pumping to fill the water tank at Beach's after the fire on Monday. It was a long stream, but the old town well kept up its supply of water, and after the fourteen hours seemed to be as resourceful as ever.
