Potatoes

New Brunswick Irish Cobblers—the finest quality possible for this year, will be on track shortly.

We ask our prospective customers to accept our apologies for delaying the delivery of these potatoes; the reason therefore is, one car was turned down by Inspectors; another was refused by us due to a small percentage of Green Mountains mixed with the Irish Cobblers, which would not do for seed potatoes, neither would they be as nice for cooking.

EGGS

No change in the Canadian Egg Market. Montreal is busy cleaning up their "held Eggs. However, we are looking for higher prices shortly, particularly on fresh Extras.

Millfeed

There has been a slight reduction in prices of Millfeed in the last month, and while the market is steady, to firm at the present time, we feel that the prices will work lower as prices of feed and prices on hogs are not in line.

DUNDAS COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP

Two intensely interesting and keen competitions drew a large crowd of Public School enthusiasts and supporters to the Morrisburg Fair Gound on Saturday, October 15th. One was indulged in by the four largest villages—Chesterville, Iroquois, Morrisburg and Winchester, the prize being the Dundas Men-Teachers' Federation Shield, won last year, for the first time, and again this year, by Morrisburg Public School. The rural schools also competed in the same events, but separately from the urban schools, for a similar shield donated by Mr. J. L. Dixon, of Winchester. This was won by the South Mountain School. It is open to all rural schools of the county of Dundas.

The competition was very close, the result being in doubt to the very end.

MR. ARCHIE PATRICK

Mr. Archie Patrick, dearly beloved son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patrick of Williamsburg, after a lingering illness died at his home in Williamsburg on Tuesday, October 19th, 1927. Deceased was possessed of a bright and cheerful disposition and had a host of friends who learned with sincere regret of his demise.

He leaves to mourn, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Patrick, also one sister, Catharine, and four brothers; Donald, Lagouri, Vincent and Darcy.

The funeral service was conducted in St. Marys Church, Morrisburg, on Thursday, after which the remains were laid to rest in St. Marys cemetery, Rev. Father Byrne officiating.

MRS. J. R. ALLISON

The funeral took place Friday, October 14th of the late Mrs. J. R. Allison, former resident of Chesterville, who passed away at the home of her son, W. P. Allison, in Morrisburg, on Wednesday morning after a brief illness. Mrs. Charles Graham and her husband from Chesterville, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Allison, of Montreal, were at her bedside at the end. The late Mrs. Allison was a daughter of the late Isaac and Margaret Johnston, Oxford, Ont., where she was born 78 years ago. Her husband, the late J. R. Allison, passed away nineteen years ago. She also suffered great loss in the Titanic disaster when her son, Hudson, his wife and a little grand-daughter lost their lives. Mrs. Allison was a lifelong member of the Chesterville United Church, where she was loved and honored by all who knew her. Those who are left to mourn the loss of a loving mother are a daughter, Mrs. Charles Graham, of Chesterville, and two sons, George B., of Montreal and W. P. of Morrisburg. She also leaves four brothers, J. Wesley Johnston of Chesterville; George F. of Montreal J. R. of Toronto, and Creighton of Alhambra; also twelve grand-children.

The remains were taken to the home of Mrs. Graham, from which place they were brought to the church and services conducted by Rev. Elwood Lawson, pastor of the United Church at Morrisburg, assisted by Rev. R. E. Newman, of Chesterville, and Dr. A. E. Runnells of Montreal, a former pastor. Special music was rendered by the Chesterville choir, assisted by members of the Morrisburg choir; a solo by Dr. Davy of Morrisburg, and a duet by Rev. R. H. Stafford and Mrs. Stafford of Morewood.

Interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery. The grave was covered with wreaths and sprays, the floral offerings of many friends.

MRS. ENSTINE

An old and highly respected resident of Colquhoun in the person of Eliza Enstine, passed away Tuesday October 11th, at the home of her niece, Mrs. George Dennison, where she had made her home for the past year. Mrs. Enstine was Eliza Secord before her marriage to the late Mr. John Enstine who predeceased her by several years, and was the last of a large family. The deceased was over 80 years of age and had been in fairly good health. On Monday night, October 3rd, she returned to her home after a few days visit in Gallingertown. The following morning she was seized with a stroke and all that medical aid and the loving care of Mr. and Mrs. Dennison and friends could do, she passed away after only a week's illness. The funeral was held on Thursday at 10.30 o'clock, at Colquhoun United church.

GREAT MUSIC TREAT

Music Lovers in Morrisburg and surrounding country are looking forward to a real treat next Sunday evening Oct. 23rd, at the United Church when the choir of fifty voices of St. James Church, Ottawa, will have charge of the short regular service, and of the Service of Song to follow. This choir is one of the foremost in Ontario, having for two years carried off the shield for the best trained choir in the City of Ottawa, under the capable leadership of Mr. S. Bramwell Bailey.

Among the Anthems they will render will be "Forever Worthy", by Tchaikowsky, "Hail Gladening Night" by Willars; "The Heavens are Telling" by Hayden; "Hallelujah Chorus" from the Messiah etc. also solos and duets. The soloists will be Mrs. Frank Gilbert and Mrs T. S. Nash Sopranos; Mrs. Harold Woods Contralto; Mr. Russell T. Fervier Bass; Mr. S. Roy Maley (who is a gold medalist) Baritone. Mrs. W. B. Armstrong will be the pianist.

With such a program in view, everyone will want to hear this choir and Morrisburg United Church are glad of the opportunity to extend to one and all a hearty invitation to be present. A silver collection will be taken.

HIGHWAY SAFETY

A large number of urban centres in Ontario have already entered into enthusiastic co-operation with the Highway Safety Committee in the campaign to prevent accidents. Many reports have been made to W. G. Robertson of the Ontario Motor League and a member of the executive of the Safety Committee. Among others the work of the St. Catharines and Lincoln County Motor Club may be given as an example. This club announced that at certain service garages its members could have their headlights and brakes tested free of charge, and that a nominal charge would be made for adjustment. Within a few days more than 1,000 car owners took advantage of this offer. It was found that at least 90 per cent of the lights tested required adjustment, that is, 90 per cent. of the motor cars examined had glaring headlights. In a great many instances the lamps were found to be tilted correctly, but the bulbs were badly out of focus. It was pointed out to these motorists that tilting the lamps to the proper angle will not always prevent a glaring light. The bulbs also have to be attended to. Of the brakes tested the great majority were found to be in "pretty fair shape."

Some other clubs doing similar work are Ottawa, Essex County, London, Hamilton, Cobourg, Picton and Guelph. On Thursday of this week the secretaries of all the motor clubs in the Province are to meet Hon. Geo. S. Henry, Minister of Highways, to go into the accident prevention more thoroughly and link up more closely with the highway Safety Committee. It is pointed out that one of the fundamental principles of these clubs is to advocate a reasonable regard for the rights of others on the Highways, which is embodied in the word "courtesy" in the Highway Safety Committee's campaign.

Last week all the big oil and gasoline companies obtained thousands of stickers with the words, "I'm for care and courtesy. Are you?" and sent them to filling stations with instructions to paste these stickers on the lower right hand corner of windshields. Within a few hours after the first bundles of stickers went out cars bearing them appeared on all the city streets.

"We are going about this campaign deliberately," stated Mr. Bickell nothing is being rushed without care and planning beforehand. We want the public to get accident prevention consciousness and to retain it. Already reports have come to us telling of a great improvement in the matter of headlights. During September 122 drivers' licenses were suspended for varying periods for infractions of the Motor Vehicles Act, and of these 68 were for reckless driving.

CANADA WELL SERVED BY GOOD RADIO STATIONS

Our Dominion is Covered by Limited Number of Broadcasting Stations Which Insures Satisfactory Reception

OVERLAP NOT ALLOWED

Somewhere in the neighborhood of 75 radiocasting stations cover the Dominion of Canada from coast to coast. Every section of the vast expanse which makes up the nation is adequately covered with a network of entertainment and information-giving voices, whose audibility ranges from 50 to 10,000 miles.

To the radio fan come the voices of the Maritimes, wending their way from Halifax and Moncton; the English and French announcements from the studios of Montreal, Quebec and Ottawa, lend an air of romance and by-gone times to the everyday words of the newest of showmen—the radio announcer; from Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Brantford, London and a number of other cities in populous Ontario, are received some of the best programs radiocast on the continent; from Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Regina and Edmonton, the vastness of the prairies reverberates, while the magic touch of the Pacific seaboard is heard from Vancouver.

Government Strict.

The stations in the Dominion are licensed by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. Each is operated by a competent Government-examined official, and all are under constant supervision from the local radio inspectors. In fact a nightly checking up on each station is made by inspectors throughout the Dominion..

Radio and electrical concerns top the list with stations in operation, while the newspapers come a good second and the Canadian National Railways come third. Religious organizations and churches, private persons, radio societies and financial companies finish the list in this order. A very varied assortment to give entertainment as they think entertainment should be given.

It is interesting to note that the Canadian National Railways operate 11 stations, extending from Moncton to Vancouver. Not all of these are stations owned by the railway, some being rented for the night of radiocasting from some other station owner.

And this brings us to a point which few know about. . One often hears a great number of Canadian stations in one city and wonders if each of these has its own station. A number of concerns have what is known as a "phantom" license, that is a license under which they can operate from some other station. For instance, when station CHNC at Toronto puts on a concert it is through station CKNC. .

Canadian stations are each assigned a wavelength. This wavelength is assigned to a city or locality, so that all stations in a certain territory shall be on the same wavelength. With this arrangement no two stations are allowed to put on a concert simultaneously in the same city. Thus there is not the overcrowding that is prevalent in the United States, and one is able to tune out a local program, with some assurance of getting one from some other centre.

Stations Outside Cities.

This system has worked out wonderfully, the station owners arranging their own time schedules by mutual agreement. Only in Montreal and Toronto has there been a deviation from this practice This is so arranged that any stations now built to operate from Toronto or Montreal must be erected at least 10 miles outside the city and then they are put on a different wavelength to that assigned to either Montreal or Toronto..

These stations situated at a distance from the city, usually in a desolate and barren spot so as to be efficient from a radio standpoint, do not have magnificent studios in which to receive noted artists. . They are equipped so that on a stormy night the operator can remain, so as not to have to go home in rain or snow. But the artists never see the interior of these stations. For them is provided a studio in a downtown hotel or art gallery, from whence their music is fed by telephone lines to the distant radiocasting equipment.

Coast to Coast.

The range of Canadian stations is continent wide, and some are heard in such distant points as the West Indies, Hawaii and Australia. They serve each bit of local territory as well as more distant points. In order to give an adequate idea of the regular reception of Canadian stations, the writer was furnished with a special analysis of reception reports from the Canadian National Railways. These charts show that every inch of the country is well covered.

For instance the station at Moncton, N.B., is heard regularly throughout the Maritimes, Newfoundland, and all the American states in the eastern standard time zone as far south as Georgia. Some difficulty in the reception of this station is had in St. John, N.B., Halifax, Fredericton, Campbellton and Cape Breton, where the station is heard irregularly. On the other hand CNRA is reported in the British Isles, Holland, Spain, the northwest territories and Central America..

Take the case of CNRW at Winnipeg, where station CKY is used for radiocasting. This station has a regular audience of nearly all Manitoba, part of Saskatchewan, Ontario as far east as Fort William, and eight states to the south and southeast.. Besides this it is heard with some regularity on both the east and west coasts, and has been reported from Liverpool, England, Hawaii and the Isle of Pines in the West Indies.

The Vancouver station of the chain covers perhaps more territory than any other Canadian station. East as far as Manitoba, north to Alaska and south to Mexico, on regular radiocasts, with the occasional report from Eastern Canada, Oceania, the Antipodes and Hawaii.

Interference Minimized.

Every station could be described in this manner, but some idea of the distances covered can be gleaned from the above. That the stations in the Dominion, although fewer in number than those in the United States, cover their territories to a good degree is one reason why there are not more stations in Canada.. It is felt that they are not necessary. A great many more stations would cause interference problems. Incidentally the license fee for a Canadian station is $50 per annum, and the initial cost for a good station is in the neighborhood of $25,000.

The Canadian Government has wisely regulated the disposal of stations and in doing so has kept in mind that a population of 10,000,000 stretching out over 3000 miles has a very good way of providing everyone with some Canadian entertainment..

Rotaries Now Making Plans For Convention

Much Continental Touring by Rotarians Follows the Recent Brussels Parley

Brussels. — Preparations for the next Rotary convention, to be held at Minneapolis, June 18-22, 1928, are being made well in advance. Information for British and Irish Rotarians wishing to partake in the meeting will soon be available. It is probable that a special steamer will be chartered and eastern Canada will be included in the itinerary, so that those who have friends or relatives in Canada or the United States will have opportunities of seeing them again. This reunion of friends and relatives was one of the features of the Ostend convention.

King Albert Only Royal Member.

It is generally conceded that the most successful figure of the meeting was that of King Albert of Belgium, the only Rotarian of his classification.

The official post convention continental tours are already over, but large numbers of Rotarians are still traveling over Europe. Two or three parties visited the Geneva club recently. Rotarians have also been entertained at the local clubs at The Hague, Utrecht, Haarlem and Amsterdam. Lunches were given them at Bergen, Trondhjem, Oslo and Stockholm, where they were well represented at the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce. They were also entertained at Copenhagen, at Aarhus, by the local clubs..

League Buildings Shown Rotarians.

At the headquarters of the Rotary International at Zurich many visitors have been received in the course of the summer. At Lucerne there were 250 Rotarians at the meetings, week after week. Three hundred visited Geneva, immediately after the Ostend meeting, and small contingents have reached the city throughout the summer. They have been taken around the League of Nations Building, to the Labor Bureau and to other places of interest, and the working of the institution has been explained to them.

Few details of these continental tours and their contribution to the promotion of understanding between the peoples are to hand as yet, but it appears that the post-convention tours have been productive of much good in this way. Now that everything is over, there is a disposition among Rotarians to be much gratified at the efficiency with which everything was done and at the splendid effort made by the Ostend club, with only 40 members.

Coast Province Egg Trade

New Westminister, B.C.—Speaking here during the recent provincial exhibition, Dr. Warnock, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for British Columbia, stated that the success achieved by the province at the recent World's Poultry Congress at Ottawa would result in this province becoming a leading exporter of well-bred poultry. He quoted figures to show that there had been an increase of 52 per cent. in the export of eggs from British Columbia last year as compared with the previous 12 months. During the first eight months of the present year no less than 144 carloads of eggs had been shipped out of the province.

Improves City Entrance

BAD HILL TO BE ELIMINATED

For the past six years plans for the alteration of the course of Yonge street, Toronto, so as to avoid the bad hills immediately north of the city limits at Hogg's Hollow, have been mooted. Announcement was made recently to the North York Township Council by the Ontario department of highways that tenders would be called for a new high level viaduct. When the work is completed this picturesque old piece of road will likely fall into desuetude.

Farm Notes

The Ploughing of Clay Soils.

Late summer or fall ploughing is the general practice that should be followed for clay soils. . Where weeds are not troublesome clay soils ploughed late in the fall and kept in the rough ploughed form permit the frost and weather to break down the clods. Results of many experiments show that no profitable increase in yield will be secured from ploughing deeper than 5 or 6 inches. All these tillage operations for clay soils must be carried out only when the soil has its most desirable content of moisture, according to a bulletin on Crop Rotations and Soil Management for Eastern Canada available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The bad effect of a single ploughing when the soil is too wet is believed to last for three or four years. Ploughing in the spring when too dry greately increases the work and may result in a cloddy seed-bed.

Fattening Turkeys.

The proper time to begin fattening turkeys is four weeks before they are wanted for table use.. They need not be confined in pens, because, when properly fed they take no more exercise than is necessary. Turkeys raised in the open during the summer cannot stand close confinement during the fattening period. In a bulletin on turkeys, available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, complete instructions for feeding the fattening birds are given. The young birds should be started feeding gradually. The feed should consist of mash and whole grain. The mash, which is fed for the morning and mid-day meals, is made up of equal parts of ground oats, barley meal, cornmeal and wheat bran. Ground buckwheat may be used instead of the ground barley. The ground grains should be mixed thoroughly before moistening with water or skim-milk, using only enough to make the meal stick together and not enough to make it sticky or sloppy. The moistening should be done about two hours before feeding. The mash is fed in a clean trough, giving only as much as the turkeys will eat readily. The evening meal should consist of whole grain, whole corn being about the best, and no more should be fed than the birds can clean up nicely. Fresh water and grit should be provided in abundance. The turkeys can be conditioned in this way in about three weeks, another week being used for killing, shipping and retailing.

Tulip Planting.

Tulip planting time is approaching and unless the bulbs are set out during the next few weeks another spring will pass without the gorgeous display of bloom for which the tulip is noted. According to the Superintendent of the Nappan, Nova Scotia, Experimental Farm, good bloom may be expected from bulbs set as late as the beginning of November. In his report for 1926 Mr. Baird, the Superintendent, states that the early varieties Vermillion Brilliant, Pottebakker Scarlet, Chrysolora, Joost Van Vondel, made a splendid showing from May 26th to June 12th. The Darwin tulips, Mr. Baird points out, come into bloom later, but are richer and have more delicate colors than the early sorts, filling in nicely between the early tulips and the summer annuals. The first bloom of the Darwins noted at Nappan in the year under review was June 5th. The flowering season lasted until the 24th of the month. . Among the most prominent sorts grown that year were Europe, Edmee, Farncombe Sanders, Bartigon, La Tulipe Noire and Prof.. Rauwenhof. This report, which is distributed by The Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, contains valuable information on dahlias, sweet peas, perennials, and other flowers besides field field crops, and garden crops and other questions related to general farming.

Harvesting Field Root Seed.

During recent years the federal and provincial experimental farms have taken up root seed raising with very favorable results. They have proved conclusively that field root seeds can be successfully raised in Canada and that the crops produced from such seed are equal, and in many cases superior, both in yield and quality, to crops of the same varieties grown from imported seed. A new bulletin on Field Roots in Canada, distributed by the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, along with a great deal of information on field root seed raising in general, gives instructions for harvesting these seeds. Mangels are ready to harvest when the majority of the seed starts to turn brown. . The top of the root just below the seed stalks is cut off with a sharp spade and the crop tied up in small sheaves. When the sheaves are tied they are butted, that is the tops of the roots are cut with a spade, and the sheaves then put up in small loose stooks until ready for threshing. In harvesting swede turnips the stalk is cut just above the crown, bound in sheaves and stooked until threshed. The cutting, binding, and stooking of mangels, sugar beets and turnips is best done when dew is on the plants as their seed is readily lost by handling. When possible large canvas or jute sheets should be used, the seed stalks when cut being thrown on them and the binding and butting being done there. The sheets can be pulled along as harvesting proceeds. Carrots, due to the fact that the individual seed clusters do not ripen at the same time, cannot be harvested in the same way as mangels and turnips. The seed clusters must be picked by hand when they become brown, and several pickings are necessary to get the crop in the best condition. As they are collected the seed stalks should be spread out to a depth of 4 to 6 inches where drying conditions are good and forked over several times to facilitate the thorough drying of the seed heads.

Wintering Roots to Be Used for Seed Growing.

Field root seed is grown from either mature roots or stocklings, planted in the spring. Stockings are small immature roots and there are certain advantages in using them, but, conditions being equal, they do not produce so much seed as mature roots.

Roots for seed raising must be handled with care, particular pains being taken that no damage is done in harvesting and storing.. The proper methods of harvesting and storing are fully described in a new bulletin on Field Roots in Canada available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. In gathering the roots that are to be used for seed raising the leaves should not be twisted off but cut two or three inches from the top of the root. The roots should not be trimmed, and a critical examination of them should be made at harvest time and all damaged, misshapen, prongy and off-type ones discarded.

Many methods of holding over winter roots to be used for seed have been tried out, according to the bulletin, by far the best method under ordinary Canadian conditions is to store them in properly constructed cellars or pits. For satisfactory storage, temperatures should be maintained between 32 and 38 degrees Fahrenheit. Sudden and extreme temperature changes are the cause of greater loss than continued low temperatures. Mangels, sugar beets and carrots will even stand considerable freezing provided they are not handled while frozen and that the frost is allowed to come out gradually. Stored roots must not be allowed to dry out as drying is one of the principal causes of loss in cellar storage.

Care of Brushes

Brooms and brushes give much longer and more efficient service if they are taken care of.

Before being used for the first time, all household brushes and brooms should be soaked in cold water and allowed to dry thoroughly. This makes the wood around the bristles swell and thus strengthens the hold on them, it also prevents the bristles from breaking off short.

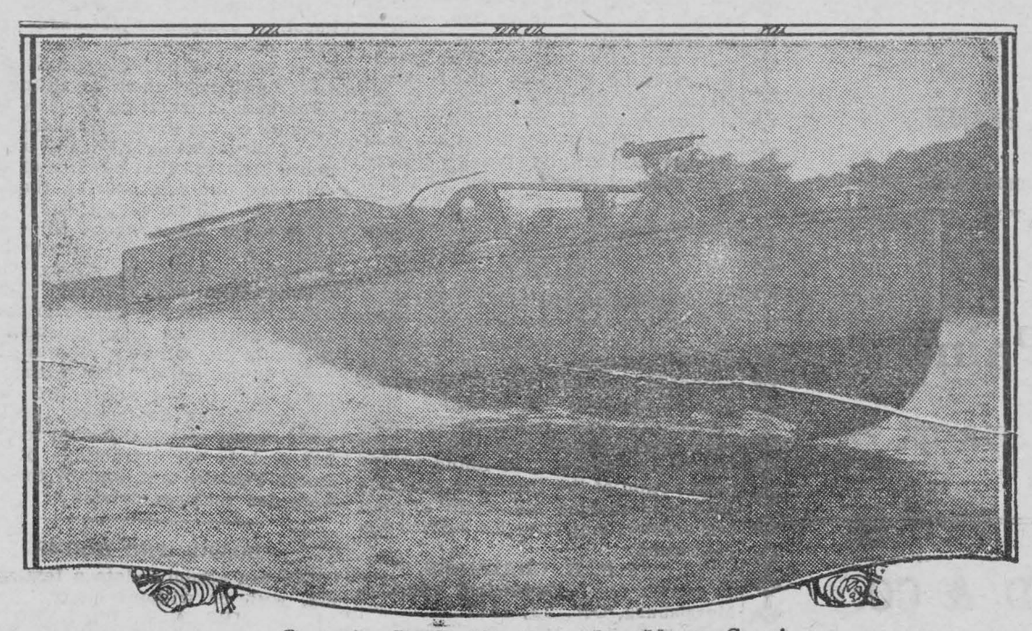

A broom should be kept free from all sweepings. Keep at hand an old piece of comb, and, when sweeping is over, gently remove all hairs, bits of fluff and odds and ends before putting the broom, brush-end upward, in the corner.

Periodically brooms should be treated to a bath of soft soap and water, to which a little borax, soda or ammonia has been added. Having been well rinsed in several cold waters the brooms should be thoroughly dried.

The bristles of hair brushes, brooms and scrubbing brushes may be stiffened if dipped in a strong solution of alum, or, in the case of tooth brushes, a solution of salt and water. Brooms and brushes, however thick the bristles, must never be allowed to rest upon the bristles when not in use.

A certain young barrister had been addressing a jury for about two hours, and when he had finished the opposing counsel arose and said, "Your lordship, I will follow the example of my friend who has just finished, and submit the case without argument!"

New Customs Crusiers are Speedy

Ontario Built Cruisers for Nova Scotia

Two 290-horse power, 38-miles-per-hour revenue cruisers were recently put into commission by F. W. Cowan, Chief of the Canadian Preventive Service, to take care of Nova Scotia's indented coast line. Hon. W. D. Euler ordered six speedsters of the Thornycroft sub-chaser type to patrol the little frequentel shallow coves of the Maritime Province. They are equipped with machine guns and search lights. The other four will soon follow. They were built by the Ditchburn Boats at Gravenhurst.

Bowls of Flaming Autumn Berries

Now that winter is not far away, one begins to realize the fact that six months must pass before we are again available the garden flowers which have made indoors as well as out doors beautiful during summer.

Why not gather some berries, which are plentiful and burn with fiery color in the woods and swamps?

The earliest of these is the bitter sweet, with its gorgeous red and yellow coloring. A bunch placed in water, say in a hanging basket on the wall, will serve as a gleaming bouquet until replaced by Christmas holly.

Of all our native berries, none is finer than the black alder. These are found quite late in the autumn in the swamps and the remote districts of the woods. The scarlet globes set richly along the black stems are the most vivid of all the autumn fruit.

One of the most luxuriant and artistic of the berry bushes is the barberry. Its fruit ripens slowly, and its warm golden leaves, set thickly with tiny thorns, are almost as hardly as the berries. Bunches of these may be kept in the house all winter, retaining their color and beauty.

Then there are partridge vines and tiny ferns, beautiful if set in a round berry bowl. Art is required in making this quaint object. In the bottom of the receptacle place a piece of moist moss, green side out so that its roots and the earth clinging to them may form a carpet for the little tendrils of the vine and ferns. Place these latter firmly, but not too closely together, and have about a fifth of the space in the bowl free at the top for growth and expansion. Turn all leaves and berries so that they may look out of the bowl; and the pretty thing is complete.

These dishes should be filled late in the season and should be opened at intervals during the winter. Placing them in the cold so that the bowl may frost over is the surest way of gaining the moisture desired.

The great heavy clusters of ash berries are beautiful for house decoration, but mean so much as food for the birds that one forebears to pick them.

The heavy blue fruit of the carrion flower; the berries of the Jack-in-the-pulpit and of many other plants are found in the woods and along the fences.

"Sing a song of seasons
Something bright in all,
Flowers in the spring time,
Fires in the fall."

Kitchen Hints

To Preserve Lemons

Rub the lemons thoroughly with a dry cloth until the skins are clean, then roll them in a white of an egg. Let them dry. They will keep for months. When required for use, rub the coating off and they will be like fresh lemons.

Apple Cream

Remove the pulp from two baked apples, rub it through a sieve, add ½ gill cream. Sweeten to taste. Flavor with a squeeze of a lemon. Mix well and serve in custard glasses. Serve with sponge fingers.

Blushing Bunny

1 can tomato soup, 1 cup finely cut cheese, 1 teaspoon butter, 2 eggs, salt and pepper. Melt butter in sauce pan, add soup and cheese. When cheese is melted add seasonings and beaten eggs. Stir until thick and serve on toast.

Red and Green Pepper Pickles

12 large red peppers, 12 barge green peppers, 15 onions, chopped fine; one int vinegar, 3 cups sugar, 3 tablespoons salt, 3 tablespoons mustard seed. Remove seeds from peppers and chop or grind, mix with the onions and pour boiling water over the mixture. Let stand five minutes, then drain. Make a weak solution of vinegar, taking one part vinegar and two parts water. Put pepper mixture in the vinegar, let come to a boil, let stand 10 minutes, then drain again. Add one pint vinegar, the salt, sugar and mustard seed, let come to a boil, boil two minutes, then bottle and seal.

Sauerkraut

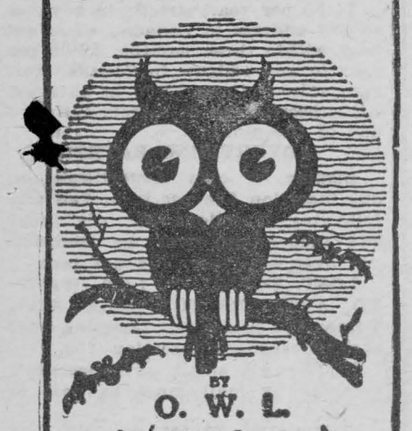

Cut the cabbage into shreds, do not chop. Put a layer of cabbage about three inches deep into tank or vessel having straight sides. Crockery ware or cypress or white pine casks are good for the purpose. Sprinkle over the first layer of shredded cabbage the first grade of dairy salt. The proper proportion is 2½ lbs. salt for each 100 lbs. cabbage. Repeat this until the cask is full and heaped up. Have a cover fitted to inside of cask. Put this over the cabbage and weight it down with rocks. In ordinary room temperature the kraut will cure in from 16 to 18 days.

Apples in Canada

Apples are Canada's leading commercial product in fruit. Since 1888 when seed was imported from Riga, on the Baltic Sea, continuous efforts have been made to originate new and better varieties of apples for Canada. In a recent report of the Horticultural Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms descriptions of eighteen new varieties named during 1925 are supplied.

Most indecent books are so stupid that in order to get them read it is necessary to denounce them.—Thomas Masson.

OWL-LAFFS

'See," said the temperance lecturer as he exhibited a glass of water and a glass of whiskey in front of them. "There is life in the one, there is death in the other. These worms—see? I immerse them in the water and they writhe happily. I immerse them in the liquor, and they sink to the bottom, stone dead. Life for the worms in one, death for them in the other."

A man arose from the hall and asked, in a brogue:

"Mister wud yez mind tellin' me where yez got that licker"

"Why do you want to know?" asked the lecturer..

"Well, I've been bothered wid thim things meself a good dale."

The Horse Reflects.

I am amused to hear them say
That forty or fifty of me are hid
Beneath the hood of that benzine dray—
I am far too old for them to kid.

Mary—"What's the matter with Frank"

Betty—"Eye strain. He fell in love with a chorus girl and couldn't afford anything better than a gallery seat."

Be honest. Did you ever successfully get away with anything? Why not quit trying?

A man, being congratulated upon the economy practiced by his wife, replied: "She certainly is a wonder. She sold 60 cents worth of beans out of the garden yesterday, took $1.25 worth of milk bottles to the grocery, dropped in at a furniture store and bought a walnut bedroom suite for $175.00."

A woman likes almost as well to be asked how old she is as a man does to be asked how much salary he gets.

Only one modern girl in 20 knows how to sew properly, declares an expert. But then what's the use of knowing how to sew now. There doesn't seem to be much need of it.

A FAMILY MEDICINE

A Welland Lady Tells of the Value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in Her Home.

"I have many reasons for praising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. George L. Swick, R.R. No. 2, Welland, Ont. "My first experience with this medicine was in my girlhood, when, following an attack of scarlet fever, I was left in a badly run down condition, and the pills restored me to good health. Later in my married life I had a severe attack of rheumatism. The pain in my right arm and shoulder was so bad that I could not dress myself without help. Again I resorted to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and again they proved a blessing to me, as soon the rheumatic pains and stiffness disappeared and there has been no return of the trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have also been of great benefit to my children. One of my boys was threatened with St. Vitus dance. His limbs and face would twitch and jerk. I gave him the pills, and again they did not fail, as under the treatment the trouble ceased. I have also given the pills to my little girl, who was anaemic, and in this case also with the greatest benefit. Naturally when I hear anyone complaining of not feeling well I recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as I know of no other medicine to equal them in building up the blood and restoring health."

Take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for anaemia, rheumatism, indigestion, neuralgia and other nervous troubles. Take them as a tonic if you are not in the best physical condition, and cultivate a resistance that will keep you well and strong. You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Collegiate Abstainers Attract Youth

London.—That Colonel Lindbergh and William T. Tilden 2d are both total abstainers is brought to the attention of the readers of the Young Abstainer, the monthly publication of the Young Abstainers' Union section of the Temperance Collegiate Association of London. Among other well-known sportsmen who have made their mark in the athletic world and who are abstainers, are E. H. Temme, who swam the Channel this summer; Joe Wright, the noted Canadian sculler, and Dr. C.. H. Vernon, who won the King's prize for shooting at Bisley..

The Temperance Collegiate Association has just jublished its annual report and general prospectus for 1926-27. Throughout its campaign in the cause of temperance the association is fully alive to the necessity of proving its case as to the falseness of the claims of alcohol. . It conducts a well organized system of education in all matters relating to the temperance question, training students to speak and write on the subject. For this purpose a three years' course in chemistry, social economics and other subjjects is provided, and certificates granted to those successful in the searching examinations held in connection therewith.

DOCTOR BECOMES INDIAN CHIEF

Another prominent Englishman has gone home to England bearing the highest title of one of the picturesque tribes of Indians that dwell on the plains of Western Canada. The title of Chief Bear Head was conferred on Dr. Edward Brown, of the Poultry World, London, England, recently, during te visit of the World's Poultry Delegates.

The ceremony took place on the Burns Ranch, near Calgary, shortly after the delegates arrived. A number of Sarcee Indian Chiefs, gay in their traditional buckskin garb with beautiful eagle-feathered headpieces, gathered to do honor to the second prominent Englishman within the past few weeks, the other being Premier Baldwin of Great Britain.

Chief Running Antelope, a venerable old-timer of the tribe, placed the feathered headpiece on Dr. Brown and welcomed the paleface as a member of the tribe. The photograph above was taken immediately after the ceremony and shows the new Chief Bare Head and Chief Running Antelope shaking hands.

Bananas Travel in Great Style

Only after it reaches the push-cart or horse-drawn cart at a shop-worn price does the banana become democratic. As a traveler, it is a fruit of privilege. Banana ports receive the fruit at wharves especially designed for the purpose. Private cars are set apart for their transport. At some destinations warehouses exclusively for bananas await them, swept and garnished and kept at even temperature.

The regular banana pier has towers to do the unloading, four of them working at a time on the larger vessels; they are equipped with conveyors consisting of an endless chain of canvas cradles. The chain is lowered into the hold of the ship, where the bunches, to avoid crushing, are packed two deep in from four to six stages, separated by false floors. The bunches are dropped gently into the cradles on top of a straw mat.

By hand or by belt-conveyors the fruit is brought to cars equipped with floor racks, necessary for the free circulation of air, and they must be thoroughly cleaned in advance, as dirt has a bad effect on the cargo. Bananas must be kept at a temperature of about 60 degrees; and so that cars, having been made airtight, are iced in hot weather and supplied with straw in cold.

South Africa

Col. P. A. Silburn in the Fortnightly Review: The Native question and that of a South Africa Flag are interdependent, and, that being so, the solutions can only be found by the setting up of a joint commission, consisting of British, South African and Native members to consider the future form of government for the Native population of South Africa, including the three Protectorates, all pending legislation affecting the Natives, including the South Africa Flag Mill, to be suspended until the commission has reported. Should the Native legislation and the South Africa Flag Bill, now before the Nnion Parliament, be enacted and the Royal assent be granted, then a peaceful and satisfactory solution of the Native problem appears to be impossible.

NEW LAW FIRM

It will interest many of our readers to know that after a successful career as a student at the University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall Law School, Martin MacMurray Kelso, son of Mr. J. J. Kelso, has opened an office in the Confederation Life Bldg. as a Barrister and Solicitor. Having grown up in an atmosphere of Social Service, he will naturally devote a good deal of attention to the legal aspect of social and child welfare problems, and should be of considerable assistance to clients confronted with troubles arising from the home and family relationship. He will also have the advantage of experienced counsel.

Waiting for Sanity

London Observer (Ind. Cons.): If If there is any realism left in Moscow, it will not be long before the oligarchical Empire accepts the ordinary conditions of international intercourse.. The Soviet will not be overset by any foreign agency.. War scares may serve to pump artificial hysteria into the flagging fortunes of the world-revolution. But the pretense that any European Government is mad enough to think itself capable of launching, much less of maintaining, a "capitalist" crusade is too ludicrous to sustain. Equally, European Governments, and the British Government especially, delay the return to sanity whenever they give color to that pretense.

Most men, when they think they are thinking, are merely rearranging their prejudices.—Knut Rochne.

NO BETTER MEDICINE FOR LITTLE ONES

Is What Thousands of Mothers Say of Baby's Own Tablets

A medicine for the baby or growing child—one that the mother can feel assured is absolutely safe as well as efficient—is found in Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are praised by thousands of mothers throughout the country. These mothers have found by actual experience that there is no other medicine for little ones to equal them. Once a mother has used them for her children she will use nothing else. Concerning them Mrs. Charles Hutt, Tancock Island, N.S. writes: "I have ten children, the baby being just six months old. I have used Baby's Own Tablets for them for the past 20 years and can truthfully say that I know of no better medicine for little ones. I always keep a box of the Tablets in the house and would advise all other mothers to do so."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or will be mailed upon receipt of price, 25 cents per box, by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Battle of the Flags

Manchester Guardian (Lib.): Doubtless to Germans the battle—still raging hotly—for supremacy between the official colors of the Republic—black, red, and gold—and the old black, white, and red of Imperial days is one of principle, but to the rest of Europe it is becoming slightly ridiculous. There is no doubt which in law are the national colors, but the present Government, being composed of Republicans, lukewarm Republicans, and Monarchists, cannot agree to enforce the law, and the tame compromise that the black, red and gold flag must be flown along with any other flag displayed is all that it dare suggest..

Inge Glooms Again

Childless-Servantless Homes in 1950 Forecast by Dean Inge

London—Home in 1950 will be childless and servantless, predicts Very Rev. William R. Inge "Gloomy Dean," of St. Paul's.

"The whole face of the country," he writes in The Evening Standard, "will be spotted with bungaloid growths, within which childless couples will sleep, after racing about the roads in their little motor cars. As in America, the typical house will be servantless. Meals will be brought in from a delicatessen shop and heated by a gas or electric cooker. The art of supplying standardized needs by pressing buttons will be carried to great perfection.

"The population will, I think, begin to decrease slowly about 1950. The increase at present is entirely due to the preponderance of young lives in the population, which keeps the crude death rate (about 12 per 1,000) very much below the real death rate (about 18 per 1,000). A decline in numbers would relieve the terrible burden of unemployment, which, in part at least, is clearly due to over-population and a little more elbow-room would be very desirable."

Is the Earth Cracking?

Morning Post (Cons.): The typhoons and tidal waves which the world has been experiencing are to be regarded as secondary effects of the seismic disturbances, and some observers have been bold enough to predict that before the end of the year there will occur a very severe earthquake on the line of cracking already so well marked. . It is a very interesting theory, which may well be sound; and yet, such is the force of habit, men will go about their lawful occasions in contempt of the fact that the surface of the earth is cracking. If a roadway subsides, or a building collapses, there is an immediate alarm and an anxious inquiry. But the news that the great globe itself is giving way produces no more than a lifting of the eyebrows.

Mr. Henpeck (after seeing a drama)—"She has a very difficult part in that play!" Mrs. Henpeck—"Difficult? Why, she doesn't say a word!" Mr. Henpeck—"Well, isn't that difficult for a woman?"

African Stone Age Finds Go To England

Standerton—L. Leaky and B. Newsham, members of the East African Archaeological Expedition have returned to England with 110 cases of specimens connected with the Stone Age in Kenya. The finds include parts of over 40 skeltons, and represent a year's work. Numberous deposits containing bones and implements were discovered, some probably dating back at least to the early Pleistocene era.

Mr. Leaky believes the finds will be of the greatest importance for natural science, possibly revealing the origin of European Stone Age culture, more particularly that of Capsian man, who left his traces over a large part of Northern Africa.

Two Women Owe Health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Adolphe, Manitoba.—"I was very weak and had great pains during my periods so that I could not sweep the floor. The pains were in the right side and extended to the left and then downwards. It seemed as if the body was heavy and upside down. It is for these troubles I took the Vegetable Compound. I saw about it in a paper and one woman prevailed on me to take it. It has helped me in every way, the pains are less, and I have more appetite. It is a pleasure to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to other women."—Mrs. J. L. League of Nations Turns to Telephone

Emergency sessions of the League of Nations will soon be held by telephone, predicts Secretary-General, Sir Eric Drummond. Special telephone equipment is being constructed for installation in the League headquarters (shown above) permitting Geneva to link up with Paris, London, Brussels, Berlin and Rome, and via transatlantic service with Washington and Ottawa. In the event of extraordinary developments, when a speedy decision is vital, much precious time can be saved by telephone discussion.

The information is of especial interest to Canada, whose representatives Senator Raoul Dandurand (No. 1 above) and Senator N. A. Belcourt (No. 3) have taken such prominent part in recent League discussions. (No. 2) Sir Herbert Ames, formerly M. P. for the St. Antoine Division, Montreal, was for some years Financial Adviser of the League.

The men and women of this company are trying to turn out something more than just a good general telephone service.

No two users have exactly the same needs. When you ask us to install or move a telephone we want to handle your order in such a way that your personal requirements are exactly met.

When you ask for information about a contract, or a bill, or report trouble with your instrument, or make even the most casual telephone call, we want to give each matter the sort of attention that spells personal service, not just average service.

This is not easy. But it's what we are aiming at—a personal service.

All Canada Agrees
"It's Better because it's Canadian"

"IT'S Better because It's Canadian" . . . a year ago General Motors of Canada gave first utterance to this phrase.

"It's Better because It's Canadian" . . . newspapers and magazines all over Canada took up the theme, impressing on Canadian citizens the pride they should justly feel in the products of their country.

"It's Better because It's Canadian" . . . the phrase has struck home, has become a challenge to the Canadian manufacturer and to the Canadian buyer.

"It's Better because It's Canadian" . . . it is a fact. And because it is a fact . . . because General Motors was inspired to put it into words . . . because Canadian editors added to its impetus . . . because Canadians accepted it . . . and because the standard of Canadian quality proved it true. . . .

. . . all Canada has enjoyed a greater measure of prosperity; and General Motors of Canada, with many other Canadian manufacturing organizations, has just completed the most successful year in its history.

Night Time Terror of the Highways

How to Test your Headlights

Lights on motor cars may glare either through bulbs being out of focus or the lamps themselves not having the proper tilt.

To test the lights on your car place the car on a level space 25 feet from a wall or screen. Mark a horizontal line on the wall the same height from the ground as the centre of the lamps on your car. Under no circumstances should this line, which is called the Lamp Level Line, be more than 42 inches from the ground.

With lamps having a screw adjustment turn the screw one way or another until the horizontal beam on the wall from each lamp is as narrow as possible. (Lens need not be removed.)

To focus bulbs in lamps without outside adjusting screw, remove the lens and move the bulb backward or forward until the circle of light on the wall is as small as possible. Then replace lens.

Then test each lamp separately with lens installed. The top of the beam of light should be 4 inches to 7 inches below the Lamp Level Line to take care of the loading of the car. Light touring cars require a full 7 inches below the line. Lamps on Fords without batteries require 10 inches below the line. If in doubt tilt the lamps till the top of the beam is still lower.

The law requires an approved headlight device and 21 candle power bulbs.

The Department of Highways will supply more detailed instructions. Or you can have your lights tested and adjusted at most garages. See to them.

The motor car with glaring headlights is a danger to its own driver and a terror to others on the highway. Drivers moving in the opposite direction are deprived of sight to guide their cars.

A good garage mechanic can focus headlights so that they do not glare. Drivers can do it themselves by following printed instructions. The Department of Highways will mail you without charge complete instructions. Test your headlights often to be assured they do not glare. You are responsible. Lamps are designed for the roadway and not the other driver's eyes or the tree tops. Night driving must be made safe. Never drive with only one headlamp lighted or tail light out.

Brakes and steering gear should be kept in perfect condition at all times. Your car must obey if you wish it to be safe for you and not a menace to others.

The concentrated effort in behalf of safety on the highways is meeting with a widespread and active support. Co-operation from every motorist is asked so that the example set during this period may take a permanent hold of the consciousness of all who use the highways. It is the duty of everybody to learn how accidents may be prevented.

To show that you support this movement put the sticker on your car, "I'm for Care and Courtesy. Are You?" You can get one at any garage or filling station.

All at Sea

by Carolyn Wells

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Death strikes Garrett Folsom while bathing at Ocean Town, N.J. After being perfunctarily examined by a doctor, the body is brought to the Hotel Majusaca, where an inquiry is starter.

Folsom's bathing companions had been Roger Neville, Mrs. Helen Barnaby and Carmelita Valdon. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to Ned Barron, known as the copper king.

Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had been stabbed to death in the water. Ross, his valet, is questioned, as are Barron and his wife, but no light is shed on the mystery.

Anastasia Folsom, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, arrives and takes command. At the inquest it is established that the death weapon was a pichaq, an Oriental knife, and that it and its scabbard had been purchased on the boardwalk.

It is also established that Croydon Sears is a fancier of curious knives. Anastasia engages Titus Riggs to work on the case. He asks permission to go through the dead man's effects.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXII.

"Yes, of course," Anastasia said. "Lord knows I don't want them. But where did you hear about the people being so interested?"

"Heard it on the train coming down here," Dan Pelton answered. "On the stage contraption that brought me from the station. In the lobby as I came through. At the desk as I waited to hear from you. The tongues are wagging all around."

"Did you—did they suggest any names—"

"There seem to be names in the air—the Tracys, who are they?"

"Nonsense, they're people who stood by. They only knew Garry slightly, if at all. But gossip means nothing. I have a detective engaged—that is, he's not a detective, but I propose to make him over into one."

"Fine plan!" said the nephew with sarcasm.

"Yes, it is," said Miss Folsom, quite unconcerned at his sneer. "I want you to know him—Riggs is his name. Now, Dan, first of all, if you're going to take these rooms of Garry's—and I think it's a good idea—help me find another suite, for me and Paxton, and you get hold of Ross to help us move."

"Good, auntie. How do I get hold of Ross?"

The dead man's former valet was summoned, and seemed willing enough to take service for the present with the nephew of his late master.

"We've met before, Mr. Pelton," Ross said, "though not often. And I'm glad to stay here, hoping I may be of some use in helping Miss Folsom find the villain who used that dagger."

"Yes, we're all going to do all we can in that line," Dan agreed, and then they set themselves to the matter of getting more rooms.

"What sort of comments do they make on my uncle, Ross?" Pelton asked, casually, as they were at last by themselves and Ross was unpacking his new master's belongings.

"Well, Mr. Pelton, that's a hard question, because I dislike to say hard things of Mr. Folsom, even if they're only the speech of others. But he was not highly spoken of by many, sir."

"Yet few down here knew him."

"More than you'd think, sir. Many a man knew him or knew of him who has only said so since he's gone."

"You liked him, Ross?"

"He was a good master, sir. Strict, indeed, and insistent on his orders being carried out to the letter. But just and fair, and liberal enough."

"In money ways, you man?"

"That. yes, sir, and also in the matter of time off and vacations and amusements. Whenever he was to be out himself he'd bid me go out for a bit of an outing."

"I see. And you were in bathing the morning he was killed?"

"Yes, sir. I went in soon after he did, and I took care to be out and dressed in time to be here when he came in. Shall you bathe to-day, sir?"

"No, I think not. I'd like a dip, but I think my aunt would object. You know, Ross, the funeral will be to-morrow."

"Yes, sir, but not exactly a funeral, is it, sir?"

"Not what it would be if we were in Chicago. But I daresay it'll be all the services my poor uncle will have any available man, and exclaimed, admiringly:

"I declare, the more I see of the Folsom family the better I like them! Poor dear Mr. Folsom was such a darling, and Miss Folsom is truly magnificent. And now, you, Mr. Pelton! You're the son of another sister?"

"Yes, my parents died years ago, ago, and my aunt and uncle have looked after me."

"Fortunate boy! Except, of course, this terrible tragedy. But we won't talk of it, shall we? For you must have some relaxation from the nerve strain and sorrow of the occasion."

"That's just it, Mrs. Barnaby."

"Oh, call me Duchess, they all do."

"Glad to. Suits you, too. How well Mrs. Valdon is looking."

"Carmelita. Yes, she's in great form this summer. You're staying?"

"As long as you will be kind to me."

"Why, you little rascal! I do believe you're a flirt!"

Pelton was a flirt; so much so, that he said frivolous things without thinking, and always without meaning. It was second nature to him to compliment women, and young or old, he used the same jargon.

But he suddenly became aware that a sort of council was about to convene. Anastasia, intent on her one pursuit, had found Tite Riggs in his usual corner of the deck, and she pounced upon him, dragging the rest of her flock with her.

"Now, we must talk," she decreed. "We are secluded here, and I have gathered the ones I want about me. Who is this young man, may I ask?"

Anastasia had a way with her that often robbed of rudeness remarks that would have been insufferable in another. She looked benignly, as she spoke, on Robin Sears, who had only a moment before paused to speak to Riggs, whom he knew.

"This is Mr. Sears," she was told, and as Robin was about to pass on, Miss Folsom laid a detaining hand on his shoulder.

"Please stay," she said, a little peremptorily. "You are the son of the Mr. Sears who bought daggers at the auction last Thursday night?"

"Yes, Miss Folsom; does that interest you?" Robin responded.

One of Anastasia Folsom's characteristics, and perhaps one of her besetting sins, was a quickness to take offense.

read over him. For my aunt plans to stay here on the job. What do you think about it, Ross? Any idea who did for my uncle?"

"No, Mr. Pelton, I've no idea. Mr. Folsom did have some—well, what I suppose might be called enemies, sir, but they were not down here. I mean men in Chicago, business men and such."

"Yes, that's just the way I look at it. Yet he was killed down here. But pshaw, any or all of those Chicago business men might have been down here and no one suspect his presence in the crowds on the beach and in the ocean."

Dan Pelton joined his aunt for luncheon, and they sat in the public dining room, quite indifferent to the curious eyes that watched them and the busy tongues that wagged in gossip about them.

They had reached the stage of coffee and cigarets when Roger Neville came into the room, accompanied by Mrs. Valdon.

The pair at once came over to the table where Miss Folsom sat and renewed their acquaintance with Pelton.

Dan was glad to talk to Neville, and proposed that they all go up on the veranda, or deck, for a chat.

The others, who had lunched already, assentedfi and they went, joined later by Mrs. Barnaby, who had not before met Pelton.

She annexed him at once, as she did She did so in this instance, and retorted sharply:

"Very much. Will you be good enough to grant me a short interview?"

"Of course he will," Tite Riggs answered for him, and a little bewildered, Robin sat down.

With a gesture that seemed to fling the rest of her crowd into nearby seats, Miss Folsom, sitting directly in front of Robin, began a fire of questions.

A Personal Querie

How Do You Treat Your Family?

Success Magazine for September had an anonymous article that hits a protruding family nail right on the head. It is well worth serious consideration especially in families where there are more than just husband and wife.

It runs as follows:—

It was somewhat of a shock to have my wife tell me one evening that I was the most discourteous man she had ever known. Among my friends and business associates I have a slight reputation for courtesy. I am considered old fashioned in my ideas of courtesy to strangers. Her accusation made me mad. The injustice of it rankled until my wife pointed out that I kept my politeness for outsiders and used none in my own home. I don't like to think of it even now, but it was true: I was not giving my wife even the courtesy I gave my office assistants. In one of those sudden flashes that come to us, was revealed why our life, which had begun with such high hopes, and braved advessity after adversity, was being beaten to pieces on rocks, which seemed too trivial to notice.

Few men and women have had a more romantic courtship than my wife and I. Almost every obstacle existed for us: no money; family and friends in opposition to the match. These adversities but fanned our love to a higher flame and, when we married, we were in such an ecstasy of bliss that lack of money, clothes, and everything usually deemed necessary did not in the least disturb us. We had each other.

It is a long descent from those heights to the place where almost every other word is in argument. The transition was not rapid. It was no sudden cleavage that killed our romance. It was merely the endless repetition of daily discourtesies, the constant casual impoliteness which people living intimately together extend to each other.

Discourtesy is a very insidious thing. It creeps upon one without warning and is hard to dislodge. In the beginning, one's lapses are so trivial as to seem negligible. Multiply them by, say, seven a day and you have 2555 opportunities in one year for hurting or annoying another person! It required hard thinking for me to accept all this. Even now, knowing what I do, I have to fight continually against the old habit of carelessness and casualness.

I am an inveterate reader. If anyone speaks to me while I am deep in a book I will reply at random, not really having heard, I can spend almost all of my evenings reading and never find it monotonous. My wife one evening remonstrated with me because I answered her remarks so unsatisfactorily. I suggested that it was very discourteous to interrupt me when I was reading. I had quite failed to see that it was impolite and thoughtless of me to spend every evening so engrossed with a book that I did not wish to talk. Also, I had forgotten that, while my wife likes to read, she is not averse to the theatre, playing cards, or calling on friends. Foolish, isn't it? A trifle! Easily adjusted by any two people with common sense. But it wasn't adjusted, and equally little things aren't adjusted in families—wherein lies much of the tragedy of family life.

Another small discourtesy which became a source of serious dissension was that of interrupted remarks. Each came firmly to believe that neither was allowed to finish a remark. At first we had prefaced our interruptions with an "I beg your pardon." Later we would take the conversational bit between our teeth without any apology. We would even speak in unison—causing our friends no end of amusement and us no end of irritation. Naturally the matter of interrupting is bound up with egoism. So is all discourtesy. We think so much of ourselves that we have no room in our minds for the thuoghts of others.

This was brought home forcibly to me one night when, hearing a radio program which bored me, I turned on another station.

"You might have at least inquired if I were enjoying the program before turning it off," said my wife. As a matter of fact I had never thought of it. I wouldn't dream of switching off a stranger's radio set, nor that of a friend, without some apology or request for permission. But I wouldn't grant my wife even the courtesy of a casual inquiry as to her enjoyment of the program. It was not that I wished to be rude, but simply because I didn't think. You cannot be polite without thinking.

Often when I am writing my wife drives me to distraction by making extraneous remarks—not to annoy, but because she doesn't stop to think.

Fortunately my wife and I awoke before it was too late. We were stumbling along, groping through a morass of dissension which had so bogged our happiness that it seemed to spell separation. But one night we "got together" and we talked and talked. Not dramatically nor hysterically, but just as two adult human beings in the full possession of their reasoning faculties. We finally decided to treat each other as if we were stranger—to extend the same courtesy we would show to an outsider. Our system was to be given a fair trial for six months no matter how odd or stilted our behavior might seem. Funny? Of course, at first. The very humor of it helped. It made us laugh and you can't be very touchy when you laugh. Looking back it doesn't seem so funny. One doesn't get much of a laugh from the odd look of the plank that saved one from drowning in mid-ocean. Our scheme added zest to life and put each of us on our mettle. You have no idea how rude you have been until you try to be polite. At least I had none. I had given up seating my wife at meals; waiting for her to eat before beginning; arising when she entered a room; assisting her with her coat—and a hundred other things considered unnecessary in family life. But they are the most necessary things in the world. They turned our lives from a most unhappy state into one of peace, contentment and affection.

Concentrated effort on each other's welfare gave us what we call the "mutual outlook"—the essential viewpoint for family life. By seeking to find things mutually pleasant our resultant compromises usually pleased us both. Far from becoming artificial and unnatural, our life together became natural and pleasant. It is a myth that family life must be dissentient. It is so only because of a lack of ordinary courtesy among its members.

People sometimes blame the age for discourtesy. I have used that alibi myself. It is pure, unadulterated buncombe. Politeness is a personal matter and has nothing to do with the time in which one lives. Courtesy is no more and no less than consideration for others; thoughtfulness. It does not mean what is vaguely referred to as polish or fine manners. These are often nothing but a showing off. That was the sort of courtesy which I had had—a mere exterior furbishing, put on to impress others. I dropped it when I entered my home as there seemed no need to impress my wife. That was where I was wrong. It was far more necessary for me to make a good impression on my wife than to have casual acquaintances think of me as polite.

The foundation of a happy family life is respect. But one cannot respect a person who is always selfish, exhibits no control, and shows plainly that his mind is centered wholly on himself. I have seen many marriages, among people of many kinds, and I have been married some years myself. I have yet to find a condtion ore vitally affecting the relations of people living intimately together than courtesy. A few trees are riven by lightning bolts. Thousands are destroyed by tiny, slimy worms and slugs. A few marriages are smashed by some big thing. Thousands of marriages are wrecked, or seriously crippled, by the daily repetition of little thoughtless discourtesies.

PRINCES CAUGHT SHORT OF MONEY

Amusing Incident Related Following Return from Canada

London.—Prince George came back from Canada with the Prince of Wales with a pocket full of Canadian dollar bills. The second night here he went with friends to an after-theatre supper and when he went to pay his bill he could not find any English money in his purse.

The King's youngest son then appealed to his eldest brother, also a member of the party, but the heir to the throne was also without any currency.

The two brothers looked at one another for a moment, and, desiring to keep the facts a secret, whispered a few words to one of their friends, and the friend paid, and no one in the cafe realized the financial embarrassment of the Royal pair—not even the waiters.

Britain's Limit

Nation and Athenaeum—We have guaranteed the Franco-German frontier, and that is as far as we shall go. If disarmament is impracticable unless we guarantee the frontiers of Poland also, then disarmament is impracticable. In that case, it will not be fair to lay the blame at our door; indeed, in view of the obligations which we have assumed, it will be monstrously unfair. But we turn our attention to our own disarmament policy. The causes of the failure of the Three-Power Conference need, as Lord Cecil says, to be "explored." Whatever they may be, they have assuredly nothing to do with the security or insecurity of Eastern Europe.

Dullness

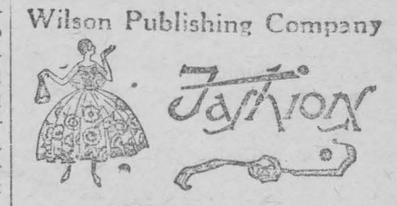

"Dull boys, whose dullness is not from all work and no play, are only wasting their time and the time of college professors, to say nothing of money, when they insist on clogging up the campuses."

But there is no child too dull—nor too bright—to receive benefit from kindergarten training. Don't allow the children of your community to be deprived of this valuable experience. The college is for the few; the kindergarten for all.

A CHIC FROCK FOR THE JUNIOR MISS

This dainty frock is shown here fashioned of plain or printed material and having the skirt and bodice gathered to a belt, a round neck, short sleeves and long collar. In View A frills of lace or material are added and the frock is trimmed with ribbon or velvet. No. 1614 is in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 requires 2⅛ yards 39-inch, or 1⅝ yards 54-inch material. View A requires 2 yards wide and 12 yards narrow ribbon; 15 yards 1½-inch lace, or ¾ yard 36-inch material (cut crosswise) for frills 1½ inches wide when finished. Price 20 cents the pattern.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

HOW TO ORDER PATTERNS.

Write your name and address plainly, giving number and size of such patterns as you want. Enclose 20c in stamps or coin (coin preferred; wrap it carefully) for each number and address your order to Pattern Dept., Wilson Publishing Co., 73 West Adelaide St., Toronto. Patterns sent by return mail.

Seven others were nominated, but declined to stand, as follows:

Sir George Perley, Hon. H. H. Stevens, Col. John Currie, Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, and Hon. E. N. Rhodes.

TWO BALLOTS WERE HELD

FIRST BALLOT

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Alberta	594
Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Ontario	345
C. H. Cahan, K.C., Quebec	310
Hon. R. J. Manion, Ontario	170
Hon. Rob. Rogers, Manitoba	114
Sir H. Drayton, Ontario	31

To win the first ballot it was necessary for a candidate to secure at least 783 votes, or 188 more than was secured by Bennett.

SECOND BALLOT

Hon. R. B. Bennett, Alberta	780
Hon. H. Guthrie, Ontario	320
C. H. Cahan, K.C., Quebec	266
Hon. R. J. Manion, Ontario	148
Hon. Rob. Rogers, Manitoba	37
Sir H. Drayton, Ontario	3
Total vote polled	1,554

Bennett secured 2 more votes than was necessary to elect.

On the second ballot Mr. Bennett received an additional 196 votes. He drew from the forces of each of the other candidates as follows: Mr. Guthrie, 25 votes; Mr. Cahan, 44 votes; Dr. Manion, 22 votes; Mr. Rogers 77 votes; Sir Henry Drayton, 28 votes. It will be noticed that the greatest deflection was from Mr. Rogers.

THE NEW LEADER

Mr. Bennett is tall and strongly built, and dignified in appearance and ma[redacted]. In utterance he is among the [redacted]st fluent of men in public life in Canada.

Since early manhood Mr. Bennett has been active in political life. In his early twenties he participated in the municipal politics of Chatham, New Brunswick, where he commenced the practice of law after being admitted to the Bar of the province in 1893. It was in 1870, at Hopewell, New Brunswick, that Mr. Bennett was born. His father was of United Empire Loyalist descent.t He taught school, read law and later attended Dalhousie University.

In 1897 Mr. Bennett went to Calgary and in the following year at the age of twenty-eight, he was elected to the Legislature of the Northwest Territories for the district of West

Million By Ford in Brazil Rubber

New Company is Announced —Holds 4,000,000 Acres

Para, Brazil.—A 1,000,000 Ford industrial company of Brazil is to be incorporated here Thursday. Articles of incorporation indicated that the company intends to plant, refine, manufacture and trade in rubber. It holds concessions of nearly 4,000,000 acres on the Tapajo River.

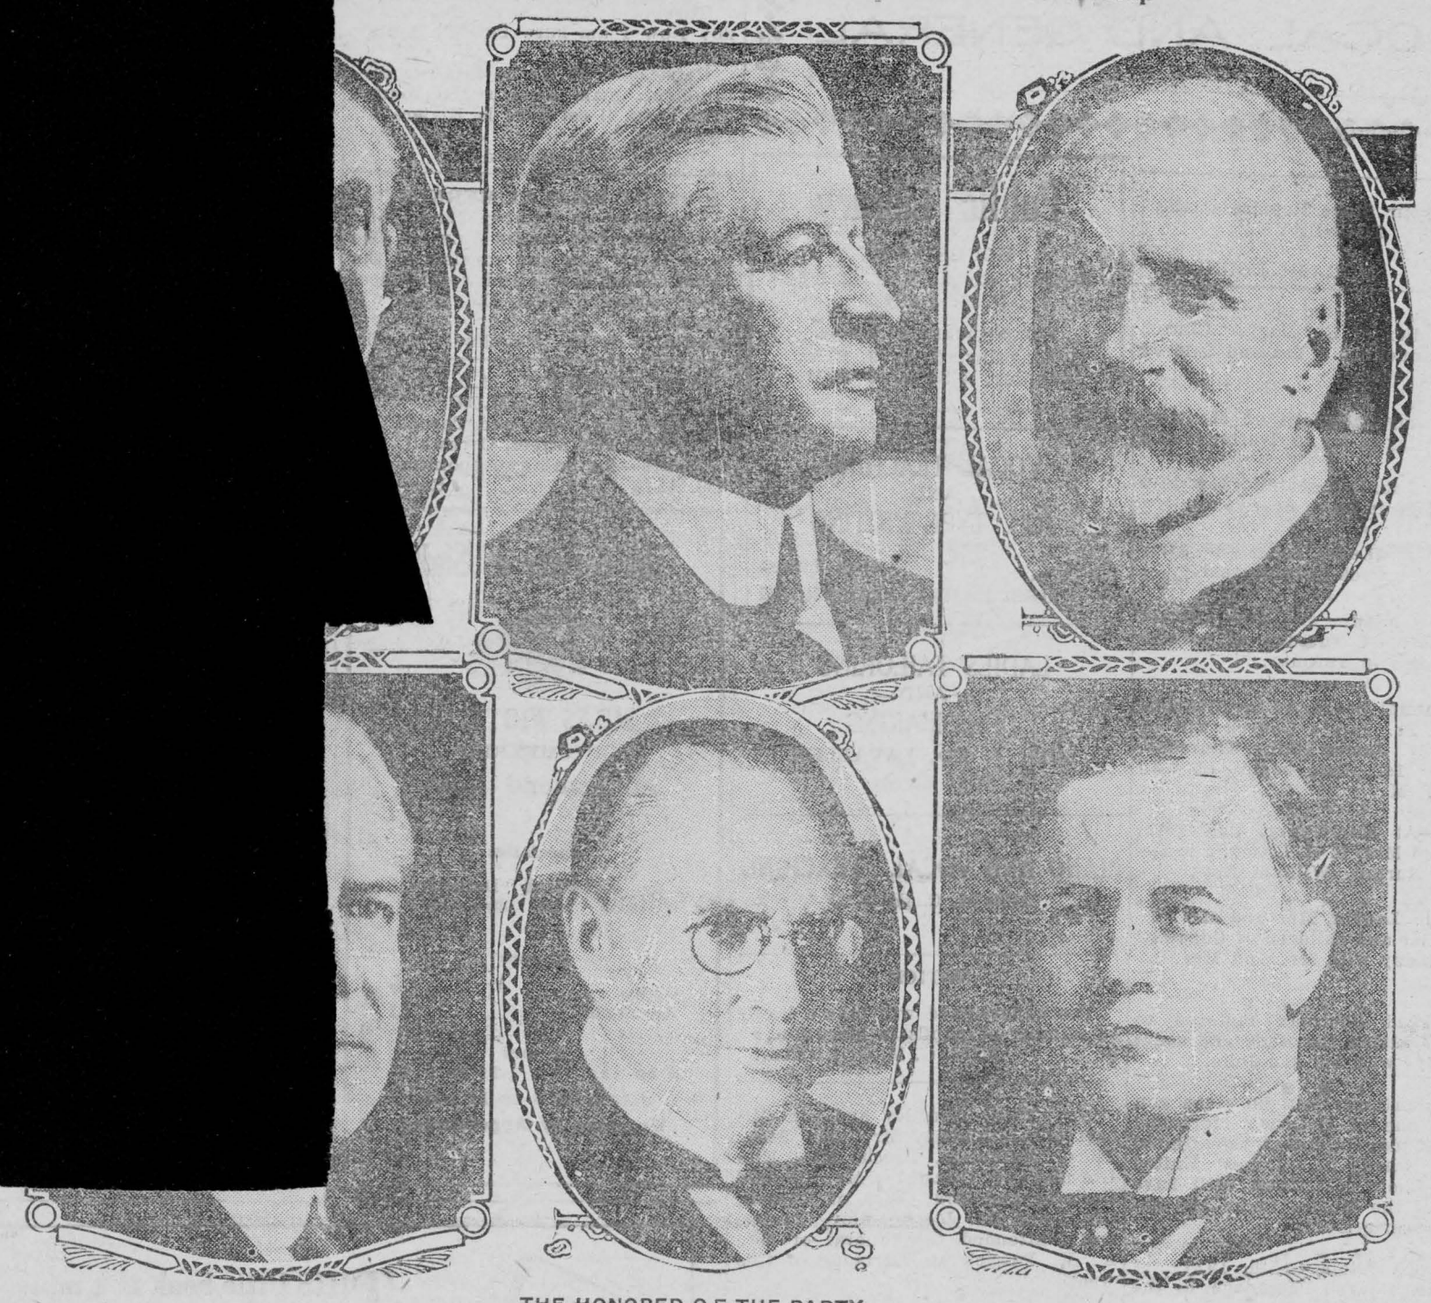

The new Ford company was formed this week. Attorney O. Z. Ide, of Detroit, representing Henry Ford and others, signed the articles of incorporation jointly with W. L. Reeve Blakely, of Highland Park, and the statutory Brazilian stockholders.

Blakely and Ide were to leave for New York. Blakely planned to return here to take charge of the work.

Part of the company's concession was purchased from Jorge Dumont Villares, of Sao Paulo, who was associated with Blakely for two years in investigating conditions for the organizers.

Canada's Leading Conservatives Who Completed For Leadership

THE HONORED OF THE PARTY

Above are photographs of the six Conservatives who accepted nomination to lead the Federal Party and were voted on at Winnipeg. Top right to left: Hon. Robert Rogers, Manitoba, stood fifth; Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Ontario, came second; C. H. Cahan, K.C., ran third. Lower row, right to left: Sir Henry Drayton, Ontario, ran last; Hon. R. B. Bennett is the new leader and Hon. R. J. Manion who polled fourth highest.

Courage!

The above photograph of General Alfredo Quizano, one of the leaders of the abortive Mexican revolt, was taken just a few seconds before he fell, his body riddled by the bullets of a firing squad. He is seen waving good-bye to a group of newspaper correspondents, after asking his executioners to come nearer so they would not miss. The wall behind him bears grim evidence of previous death dramas. General Quizano refused to be blindfolded and met death erect and unflinching.

Willingdons Will Visit United States

Ottawa.—The Governor-General of Canada and Lady Willingdon will pay an official visit to the United States early in December. They will arrive in Washington on Dec. 6, and will be the guests of the Hon. and Mrs. Vincent Massey at the Canadian Legation during their stay in the United States capital.

The visit of Their Excellencies to Washington is unique. While other Governors-General of Canada have visited the United States, Canada was not then officially represented in the capital of that country by her own minister. This is the first occasion on which the representative of the King in Canada has been able to visit the representative of the Dominion in Washington. It is anticipated that Their Excellencies will remain in Washington for some days.

PREMIER WIRES FELICITATION

Premier Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King was one of the first to wire Hon. Mr. Bennett as follows: "I have just heard of your selection as leader of the Conservative Party of Canada and desire to tender to you very hearty congratulations upon the confidence in you by the members of your party and upon the distinguished honor they have conferred upon you.

THE ANSWER

Replying to the message from Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King congratulating him upon his election to the leadership of the Conservative party, Hon. R. B. Bennett replied as follows:

"W. L. Mackenzie King,
Prime Minister,
Ottawa:

"Your message is highly appreciated. The generous acceptance of my election as leader of the Conservative party by political opponents brings deep gratification and I know it will be our common endeavor to serve the interests of our country and maintain the high traditions of British parliamentary institutions.

THE "AMERICAN GIRL" SAFE

Miss Ruth Elder Venturesome Aviatrix and Her Pilot Picked Up Near England After Travelling About 3000 Miles

HAD ENGINE TROUBLE

"Landed by Steamship Barendrecht with broken oil line. Both Haldeman and myself O.K.," signed Ruth Elder, was the message which caused joy to all who wondered as to her fate.

Growing anxiety was causing a conviction that the American Girl had gone to join other missing transoceanic planes which carried their brave occupants to unmarked graves in the Atlantic.

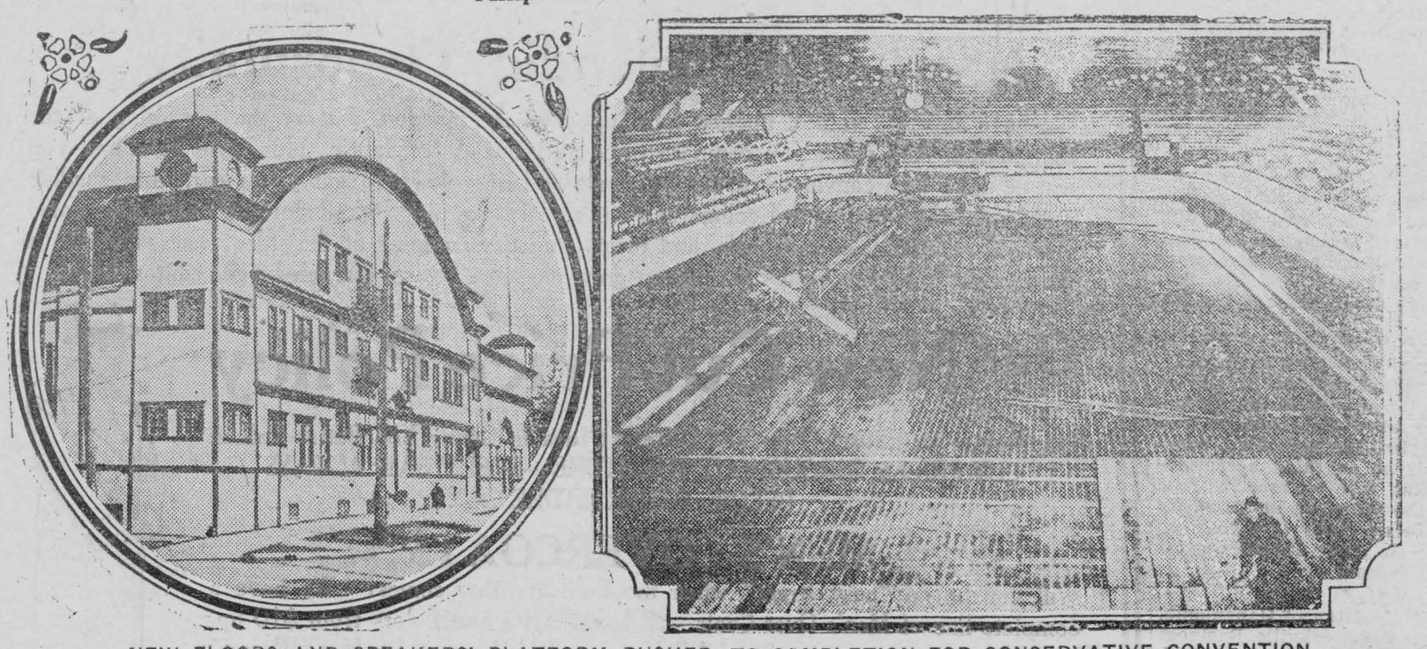

When word came that the craft had made a successful landing at sea, 800 miles from France, its maximum time limit in the air was almost up and the plane was several hours overdue at Paris, according to Captain Haldeman's estimate.

No word had been received from the American girl since Tuesday night when a steamship saw her winging her way overhead, barely started on the long trail leading from New York to Paris.

Amphitheatre Where Conserv atives Met

NEW FLOORS AND SPEAKERS' PLATFORM PUSHED TO COMPLETION FOR CONSERVATIVE CONVENTION

The photographs above show the exterior and interior of the Winnipeg amphitheatre rink where the Conservative National convention was held. The building seated 10,000 and new floors were laid. The speakers' platform was built on the left side of the picture with press stands immediately in front of and behind it. The centre floor contained chairs and the 1,578 delegates were seated there. The elevated seats and boxes around the sides were for specially invited guests and the general public. This picture shows approximately half the rink interior.
