Mr. & Mrs. H. J. Hollister Celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Hollister celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on Monday when about 50 guests were entertained at a dinner at noon. An address was read by their granddaughter, Beverly Hollister, and a purse presented them by their only grandchild, little Carol Hollister.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hollister were guests of honour at a party held in the Osnabruck Centre Hall when over 100 friends, neighbours and relatives gathered to wish them health, happiness and many more anniversaries. A purse from North Valley church and the community was presented by Cecil Runions, a silver and gold tea service from the Women's Institute by Mrs. Stanton Eamon and a basket of 'mums from North Valley W.A., while Mrs. John Grandaw read an appropriate address.

An entertaining program followed with Rev. Mr. Harding, pastor of North Valley church as chairman with Mrs. Cecil Runions as pianist.

The table was decorated and centred with the wedding cake which later formed part of a dainty lunch served by the ladies.

Stormont Blue Devils Will Present Strong Hockey Line-Up

At a recent meeting this club filled it's slate of officers with the following: President, W. A. Fortin, Berwick, 1 year; Secretary-Treasurer, Melvin Ouderkirk, Berwick, 3rd year; Vice-President, C. Raymond, Finch, 1 year; Coach, Henry Payette, Cornwall, a man belonging to Cornwall Falcons last year who went down to Moncton, Nova Scotia, to the playdown. Henry has played in various teams down in the States and there is no doubt he will make a good coach. Board of Directors: Newington, L. Young, D. C. Gardine; Finch, M. J. Doyle, W. G. Brownlee; Avonmore, Dr. Stevenson, Fred Legault, O. Flanigan; Berwick, W. Ouderkirk, S. Ouderkirk.

As for the players the team will be much the same as last year, it was feared that their right winger, Dalt Ouderkirk would not be with them, but hearing of such a good coach he decided to return from Sudbury. Ouderkirk won the cup last year for scoring the largest number of goals than any other player. This year he was picked as one of the star players on the Sudbury line-up. On the Sudbury Press it shows his picture in uniform and scoring the winning goal. His first cousin also played on the same line-up.

Ellery McMonagle, a brilliant defenceman tried out with Inkerman Rockets, but decided to stay with his own town team.

Byron Pierce, a new comer to this team, hails from Monklands, played with Finch Juniors and Maxville (Glens) last year.

As for the other players they are much the same with the exception of Red McRae who is in Montreal.

IN MEMORIAM

SERVAGE—In memory of our dear mother, Mrs. W. A. Servage, who passed away December 22nd, 1946.

I cannot say, and I will not say
That she is dead, she is just away.
With a cheery smile, and a wave of the hand,
She has wandered into an unknown land,
And left us dreaming how very fair
Its needs must be, since she lingers there,
And you, oh you, who the wildest yearn
For the old-time steps and the glad return,
Think of her faring on, as dear
In the love of There as the love of Here
Think of her still as the same, I say:
She is not dead—she is just away.

—Daughters Mrs. C. L. Shannette and Mrs. Asa G. Shay.

Three New Members Elected To Village Council

Turning out to vote in good numbers on Monday of this week, the electors of the Village returned one of last year's councillors and elected three new members, with Chas. McMillan elected as reeve by acclamation.

Favoured by balmy, mild weather, the voters found the walking slushy, and those that wished had free transportation through the good graces of the candidates. Four hundred and sixteen ballots were cast out of a possible 700 odd, and of these four hundred and twelve were good, with four being spoiled. The total ballots cast by polls showed that poll No. 1 had the largest turnout of voters. Poll No. 1 is that section of the village lying west and south-westerly of Main Street North and Main Street South and the voting was done in the Community Theatre. Poll No. 2 was that section lying east and north-easterly of Main Street North and Main Street South and balloting was in the Clerk's Office.

Carl McMillan led the lists with 251 votes. John Turner and Harold J. Hamilton came next wth 214 and 213 votes respectively. Milton Phillips made the fourth member with 182 votes polled. Turner was the re-elected councillor. Unsuccessful candidates were Francis Moriarty, 175 votes, Wm. McCloskey, 165, and Thadleus McIntosh with 98.

By polls the voting showed the following picture:

	Poll 1	Poll 2
Carl McMillan	138	113
J. Turner	141	73
H. Hamilton	124	89
M. Phillips	96	86
F. Moriarty	96	80
Wm. McCloskey	108	57
T. McIntosh	64	34

If anyone is interested in a little more simple arithmetic, a further breakdown of the figures showed that the voters had definite ideas where they would put their "X's". If all the voters had voted for four candidates, the total ballots would have shown 1648 selections for the tally. As it was, and in spite of any live issue at the polls, voters made only 1298 choices and that left a possible 350 votes off the lists when the score was in. Headed by Reeve-Elect Chas. McMillan, the new council will take over their new duties on the first of the new year.

ONTARIO WILL NEED 10,000,000 BUSHELS OF SEED

Approximately 10,000,000 bushels of seed grain will be required in 1948 by Ontario farmers in order to produce the objective of 200,000,000 bushels of feed grain, says John D. MacLeod, Director, Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Owing to the present high cost of feed grains, mill feeds and concentrates, Mr. MacLeod adds, many farmers are dipping heavily into their supply of home grown grains, and it is feared that unless action is taken now by individual farmers to make provision for their seed requirements, many will find themselves in short supply and will be compelled to buy high priced, low quality seed of doubtful origin.

Mr. MacLeod suggests that action be taken along the following lines:

1. Clean seed required now when farm work is not so pressing and more seed is available on which to work.
2. Purchase seed requirements early while prices are reasonable.
3. Clean and grade surplus grain of high quality and offer it as seed.

The possibility of selling high quality grain as seed and purchasing feed grain should be investigated. The matter of seed supplies for 1948 is urgent at this time, says Mr. MacLeod, and should receive first consideration in plans for increased production of feed grains.

CANADIAN GARDENS HAVE OWN DESIGN

Citizens in most Canadian communities have now traded in the garden rake for a snow shovel. But up in Ottawa they're still thinking in terms of gardening and R. W. Oliver of the Central Experimental Farm has produced a book for garden lovers to mull over during the long winter evenings.

From generation to generation and from country to country there's a style to gardening as there is for architecture, furniture and decoration. According to Oliver, Canada is developing it's own style of gardens, and the prolonged Canadian winter is one of the factors influencing it.

Because Canadians must shovel snow, for example, planting is kept well back from walks and driveways. Then too, because of the tendency of Canadians to spend summers in the country, city gardens have not been designed for comfort so much as for play and an opportunity to satisfy horticultural hobbies.

There are other influences than climate however. The availability of limestone in Eastern areas makes it popular for steps, walks, or walls. The fact that Canadians are used to space is reflected in the wide lawns open arrangement as opposed to the crowded, finer detail of European gardens.

Next summer's gardens will be planned this winter. And when they bloom, according to Oliver, the setting will be strictly Canadian.

Trouble teaches us two things: Who our friends really are, and who have been waiting to catch us bent at the right angle.

In so far as learning alters and directs behaviour it is education.—Emerson.

A highbrow is a man educated beyond his intelligence.—Brander Matthews.

PLANNED CONSERVATION

By J. L. VanCAMP

The bush-lot in southern Ontario has long been the orphan child of agriculture. With a few exceptions, where woods-minded owners have practised good protection, the land remaining in timber has been reduced to a minimum, and the tree crop cut, burned, and grazed, to a poor shadow of its full capabilities.

With a return swing of the pendulum of public opinion in favour of better woods conservation, the woodlot owners of Ontario want suggestions for positive action. The trend toward both conservation, and toward group solution of land-use problems as evidenced by the formation of Conservation Authorities, leads the thoughtful forest owner to look for results of co-operative action elsewhere.

Farmers in the United States have long realized their problems in soil erosion, in over-grazing, and overcutting of timber, but have not had as much help in solving these problems as they would wish, until recently. Assistance from Services was used mostly by the better class of farmers while 50 to 60% of the farm owners might be left with very little assistance whatever.

About 10 years ago, the Soil Conservation Service was organized to assist farmers with detailed plans for farm improvement. This service was organized on a national basis, but had offices designed to work within individual Counties. At first the Soil Conservation Service made slow progress in gaining contact with farmers, or in obtaining their confidence.

Progress was only made when enabling legislation was passed, permitting each County to hold a referendum of the land owners, at which time it was decided whether or not they would have a Soil Conservation District. This open election required the approval of a majority of the land owners before the District could be formed.

The principle of local government, under a democratic process, was further carried on by having each Soil Conservation District run by five local farmers, duly elected in public meeting. They were not required to accept any outside help whatever, but, on the other hand, they could request any assistance they needed.

Typical County procedure from this point is as follows: The Board of Supervisors, working on soil erosion problems in the County, call a half-day meeting, at which one representative from each of the twelve Townships of the County is in attendance. They invite the Agricultural Representative to give technical advice at this preliminary meeting. Nothing is attempted except to list on the blackboard 4 or 5 major problems facing agriculture in that County. These problems normally are found to be (1) soil erosion (2) poor pasture management (3) bad crop rotation, and possibly (4) some drainage or flood problems.

About one month after this meeting, a similar group meets to make a "Plan of Work" for the next year. This is an estimation of how much might be accomplished in the County by the farmers themselves, in attempting to solve the major problems listed in the previous meeting.

At this meeting, the need for outside advice and assistance very soon becomes apparent. Soil Conservation is soon found to be different on different soil types On good agricultural land, the problem customarily met is how to control sheet erosion, by contour farming or by growing good cover crops. The erosion on pasture lands is found to require either woods protection or tree planting. Thus the services of engineers to lay contour lines, agronomists to advise on crop rotation, animal husbandry men to advise on good pasture management and foresters to give advise about forest type land, are found to be necessary.

The next stage is to get the action proposed into effect on the individual farms. The Board of Supervisors soon has applications from farm owners for help. Thus it becomes necessary to make a priority list of applicants, to receive this advice. Work for the Extension Specialists is increased 4 or 5 times over the normal number of requests received before the formation of the District.

As an example of expanding results from planned action, it was found that many farms needed more water for livestock during the summer season. Small farm ponds, sometimes as many as 500 in a single County have been requested. This required the services of an operator with a bull-dozer or other earth-moving machinery. The farm ponds are found to be useful also for the production of fish, and as a centre of population for game birds and animals.

The biggest single benefit has been the improved co-operation of groups of farmers on a community basis. Pooling of orders for work by bull-dozers, or bulk ordering of commercial fertilizer has shown land owners the cash benefits and improved efficiency of well-planned group action. Consolidated tree shipments, group discussion and planning, all pay dividends. The land will respond to good treatment, and when many men plan carefully for the benefit of themselves and their neighbours, the community begins to show a change socially, physically and economically. The end result is a happy people on a pleasant land.

Hope To Provide Plans To Market Farm Surpluses

In his closing address at the Dominion-Provincial Agricultural Conference, held in Ottawa. December 1-3, Right Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agirculture, stated that perhaps the time had come when agricultural production should be considered at these conferences more as a whole, rather than by making any attempt to set up objectives for individual commodities as had been done at previous conferences. It was perhaps not fully realized that as the wartime demand had developed for livestock products, 10 million acres had been taken out of wheat, and had been put into feed and grass. Later, when the demand had swung back to wheat, this process had been reversed and 8 million acres had gone back into wheat; Canada was therefore already back on a grain producing basis. During the periods when we were going up and down, it was necessary for this conference to ask farmers to depart from their usual practice. It was the opinion of the Federal Department that the provinces and farmers within the provinces would be in the best position to propose changes in acreage based upon marketing possibilities as they develop. It is assumed from the fact that no changes have been suggested, that all are agreed that we in 1947 established a basic position which is acceptable.

Weather a Handicap

He stated that the unfortunate weather conditions this year had mitigated against farmers growing as much barley in 1947 as was anticipated, but hoped that acreages asked for in 1947 would be attempted again in 1948. He admitted this might be difficult in the west where farmers are convinced wheat stands up against drought better than barley. He cautioned against any reduction in summerfallow, which he declared would be a mistake.

Referring to the British food contracts for meat, dairy products and eggs, Mr. Gardiner stated that the present difficult financial situation between the two countries was hampering negotiations, but both he and Sir Andrew Jones, Head of the British Food Mission in Ottawa, who also addressed the conference, hoped the difficulties would be overcome to the extent that presently planned-for surplus production, could be provided for.

He cautioned against the difficulties which would arise if some Canadian agricultural products were permitted to go on the world markets. "It was a most difficult thing to try and live on two price levels" said Mr. Gardiner, "farmers cannot be asked to remain on a level lower than other producers, and the almost inevitable result would be that the consumer price level in Canada would go up to that of the higher priced market. Those at the conference seem to be agreed that the only alternative is contracts establishing stabilized long-time markets on which prices never reach the peak nor fall too low."

Commenting on achieving stability of farm prices, which was the aim of the Dominion and all provincial governments and organized agriculture as represented by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, Mr. Gardiner appealed for the confidence and co-operation of all, and, in addition, sufficient time to work out plans which would enable this to be accomplished.

What do we mean by a properly-fitted and designed shoe? Men, as a rule, wear low heels—no argument there. Men's bunions, corns and callouses come from shoes that don't fit—too wide or too narrow, too long or too short, or in other ways do not conform to the natural shape of the foot. Once you find a shoe clerk who knows how to fit your feet, it pays to put him in your address book along with your physician and dentist.

For summer wear, perforated leather is usually conceded to be the best material for a shoe, because leather affords the foot sufficient support and the perforation provides means for ventilation. Tennis shoes for all-day wear cause excessive perspiration and odors. Frequently, they cause blisters on the soles of the feet.

On the subject of women's shoes, the debate waxes warm, despite season. Some physicians say that the woman who lives in high heels doesn't know what foot comfort is. It is a common observation that most women who spend eight hours a day on their feet select shoes with low heels. Poor posture and fatigue are often attributed to ill-fitting shoes with high heels, though a low-heeled shoe with insufficient support may easily cause that "tired feeling."

"Athlete's Foot" is probably the most common of the foot diseases and, according to a study of industrial workers made by Dr. Louis Schwartz, USPHS, is more prevalent in the winter.

Returning from downtown and only a short distance from his home, it is believed Mr. Manley suffered a weak spell and entered the restaurant to rest.

A salesman for office supplies for the past 25 years, he had been employed by T. J. Parsons Ltd. since 1935. Mr. Manley was born near Crysler, only child of the late Margaret Rady and Patrick Manley. He attended Public School in Crysler. His parents moved to Chesterville where he attended High School. From there he went to Model School in Kingston. He graduated from Ottawa Normal School. YULETIDE FASHION NOTE FROM LONDON

With comparatively little hope of new and luxurious clothes for Christmas, women in Britain, being feminine and therefore ingenious, are doing the next best thing. They are concentrating on novel and surprising hair-do's which, while attracting the maximum of attention within and without the family circle, take the minimum of time to attend to. In other words, at parties, in restaurants, and at theatres this Christmas there are likely to be worn headdresses which will be 20th century rivals to the kind of adornment about which Fanny Burney wrote in the 18th century. One woman gave a hint of the new fashions recently when she turned up at a wedding with her hair brushed up to the top of her head into a topknot of curls which were then tied round with a scarf, the ends of which hung down her back. One or two of the leading hairdressers who specialise in inventing surprising hair styles are using plaits of different coloured nylon which are intertwined into the natural hair. and are introducing hair ornaments of the type which suggests 18th century fashions. One young man is goir further; he will invent a new hair style for his client and build her a hat on the spot (and on her head) to wear with it. All these innovations suggest that women have lost neither their sense of novelty nor their sense of humour, and that Christmas will prove both.

CARD OF THANKS

Dundas Holstein Breeders Hold Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Dundas Holstein Breeders Club recently held at Winchester Springs was quite a successful event. There was a large crowd of breeders in attendance when Mr. Harold McMenomy, the president, called the meeting to order.

When all reports were received the organization's business was found to be in a very healthy condition. New members to the number of 132 signed up with still some membership canvassers to report. Activities during the year were varied. The club sponsored a picnic and field day in June. A Black and White Show at Chesterville and gave unstinted support by way of prizes to County Calf Club activities. Some other functions that were arranged had to be called off due to seasonal backwardness.

The guest speaker was Mr. George Muir, Dominion Animal Husbandman, of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Mr. Muir complimented the club on the successful year both financially and on its large membership. He extended greetings from the Carleton and Russell Clubs and also from the staff of the Experimental Farm. The speaker covered many topics such as grading; the maintenance of our livestock to a high state of efficiency; sterility and suggested means of its control.

Other speakers included Mr. W. J. Fawcett, Eastern Director of the Canadian Holstein Friesian Association of Canada. Mr. Cyphus Smyth, Director of the Eastern Ontario Cattle Breeders' Association; Mr. Frank Casselman and Mr. W. H. Graham, Agricultural Representative.

During the course of the meeting a lucky number draw was made for the door prize which was donated by Mr. W. J. Fawcett. Mr. Casselman made the draw and the lucky winner was Mr. Douglas Hanson, Dixons Corners.

The following Directors were chosen:-

Williamsburg Township:
George Brooks, Chesterville.
Harry Holmes, Winchester Springs.
John Reddick, Morrisburg.
Charles Marsilis, Chesterville.

Winchester Township:
Angus Smith, Chesterville.
Allison Graham, Chesterville.

THE CHRISTMAS CRACKER

As in Canada, no Christmas party in Britain is complete without a box of "crackers". Christmas crackers were first made in Britain about 70 years ago. It was a confectioner and maker of ornaments for wedding cakes with the typical English name of Tom Smith who brought back from a holiday on the Continent the idea which evolved into the cracker. He saw that French confectioner made his sweetmeats more attractive by wrapping them in tissue paper. A few weeks before Christmas he set his assistants wrapping sugared almonds in this way. The cracker came a little nearer when he thought of making the package more entertaining by placing a love message inside.

Freak Accidents

Without even trying, a few unsung individuals performed fancy feats this year that might have stumped Hollywood's most hardened stunt men.

The National Safety Council, in its annual roundup of freak accidents, listed these headliners for 1947:

Mrs. Anne McGinnis fell from a fourth-floor fire escape, struck a clothesline at the third-floor level, was flipped through a window and landed in the second floor bathroom of a startled neighbor.

Charles Arter, pitboy in a South Yorkshire, England, mine, fell down a 1,554-foot shaft and suffered only a broken leg. Halfway down, he overtook an elevator cage descending almost as fast as he was. He landed on its roof, and rode the rest of the way down.

In Lille, France, Yvon Dherire, a tile setter, fell six stories from a room toward a baby buggy below. The mother frantically snatched the infant to safety. Dherire hit the buggy squarely and was unhurt. As the baby gurgled its appreciation, the mother fainted and broke an ankle.

After her automobile turned over five times, Mrs. Lee Marksbury crawled uninjured from the wreckage in Centralia, Mo. She took a look at the debris, fainted and suffered a cut over her eye.

Leroy Thurman struggled trying to open a case of compressed bedsprings in Oklahoma City. The case flew open, the springs catapulting him against the ceiling. He was placed in a bed with springs—in a hospital.

As fireman Horace Leboeuf was carrying Catherine Markowski down a ladder of a burning building in Detroit, flames shot out of a first-floor window. He lost his balance, dropped Mrs. Markowski and landed on top of her. She was bruised; he was unhurt but apologetic.

Stanley Morrison ran into his father unexpectedly one day. When Stanley's truck nosed into the side of a passenger train at a crossing the engineer stopped the train and hurried back to see the damage. He was Stanley's dad.

When a car was stolen in Holywood, the owner borrowed a neighbor's car and started for the police station to report the loss. Another car smacked his borrowed car from behind as he was returning home. He got out to examine the damage, recognized the car which hit him as his own, and held the driver for the police.

The season came and departed without fishermen Katsumi Nishitawa and Woodrow Wakatsuki realizing their dream of a record mackerel catch. They tried hard—but that was the trouble. They hauled in so many fish the weight sank their boat.

You Don't Starve, You Just Don't Get Enough To Eat

One of the last Canadian Red Cross Corps girls to return from overseas, Miss Ruth Hamilton visited national headquarters of the Society in Toronto bringing first-hand word of present conditions in Britain and the distribution of Canadian Red Cross relief supplies there.

"Imagine, for example, that you come to the table here in Canada, very hungry, and half-way through the meal pretend that someone whisks your plate away, then you can understand, to some extent, what it is to live in Britain today," Miss Hamilton explained. "You don't starve. You just never get enough to eat."

"You don't get enough to wear, either," she added, displaying runs in her own stockings. "Although I've been back in Canada almost three weeks, I keep forgetting that all I have to do is go into a shop and buy what I want. In England a pair of full-fashioned stockings would cost three precious coupons. With only 20 coupons to cover you from the skin out, it makes you stop and think."

The daughter of Mrs. R. L. Hamilton, Ottawa, Miss Hamilton is at present living in Montreal.

Since September of this year she has been working with Col. R. W. Frost, Overseas Commissioner of the Society, in charge of clothing distribution to hospitals, homes, institutions for the aged, Canadian immigrants, merchant seamen, flood victims and associations for servicemen and women and their families, in London.

"We tried to keep in close personal contact with the recipients of Red Cross relief," Miss Hamilton said. "I wish I could tell you adequately how much Canadian gifts are appreciated.

"I used to visit the matrons of small hospitals and children's homes whenever I could to ask what supplies would be most welcome. Some of them simply sat down and cried when they heard we were actally offering help. Their stores had not been replenished for as long as seven to nine years."

Women in Canada who worked hard in war years to make articles of clothing for soldiers, sailors and airmen, will be glad to know that not one of their stitches was ever in vain.

Surplus stock of items such as minesweepers' mitts have been turned over to coastal lifeguards and seamen; wool from wristlets was unravelled, washed, skeined and re-knitted into children's garments; amputation covers were used for operation stockings and converted into baby sweaters. Even the felt aviation belts, originally designed as abdominal supports, were re-made into bedroom slippers for hospital use.

"But of all the articles fashioned by Canadian women, nothing has ever proved more popular in Great Britain than the Canadian patchwork quilt!" Miss Hamilton laughed. "Canadian quilts spread a pattern the length and breadth of England and many European countries, too. We can never have too many of them. They're wonderful!"

She chose layettes as rating second in popularity because of the delight each baby garment brings to the austere existence of new mothers overseas, and shawls as third because of the comfort they afford elderly people who feel the fuel shortage particularly. Nightwear for all ages is among other most welcome gifts.

Miss Hamilton went overseas in 1945. One of her tasks was as Red Cross Escort Officer, accompanying Belgian war brides on the first leg of their journey to Canada. She made the trip from Brussels to London on an average of once a week for six months.

SAVE ELECTRICITY

Facts to date show that consumption of electricity has been somewhat reduced by modified rationing and voluntary savings. The Commission appreciates the effort of all consumers in this connection. But results are still short of being enough.

Electricity costs so little in this province that people have long been accustomed to using it lavishly. For example, your porch light left burning when not needed is wasting electricity. Ask yourself honestly: are you doing all you can to help relieve this situation?

Electricity is precious!
Don't waste it! Save it!

DO YOUR PART TO KEEP PAY ENVELOPES FULL

Continuing deficiency still forces some industries to get along on substantially less power than is required for peak production and full employment.

CANADIAN BOOKS FOR XMAS

Dear Reader:- Anyone seeking to buy a book for a friend this Christmas, will have a greater number of books written by Canadians, to choose from ,than is usual.

"Face Powder and Gun Powder", is written by Jean Ellis of whom it is said that she is of great personality and has the face that goes with it.

It is a witty informal account of the Red Cross girls in Europe. (I have often wondered why the technicians who travelled with the Blood Donor Clinics have not written up their experiences. Some of them who came to Chesterville were very entertaining when telling of some of the happenings in their line of duty.)

"Father on the Farm," is as you surmise from the title, about Father, and much like life on the farm anywhere in Ontario. It is humorous and will cause you to chuckle at intervals. The book is illustrated with caricatures of Father in his various predicaments.

"The Pictorial History of Canada's Army Overseas" is still in great demand and would make a good gift for a serviceman, or one who is now an ex.

"Hunter's Holidays," by Jack Hamleton is suitable for the outdoor man, who will find a lot of practical advice.

Possibly the most beautiful publication of the season is "The Owl Pen" by Kenneth Wells. The illustrations, woodcuts, by his sculptor and wood engraver wife Lucille, are so exquisite the book should be well appreciated on their account alone.. Although Mr. and Mrs. Wells were living in the city they craved the better life in the rural area. So they bought a few acres and the tumbled down house cost fifteen dollars. They kept chickens, ducks, geese, bees and goats. A great horned owl which stayed near, apparently gives the name to the book.

You will find wholesome laughter here and it is also a very attractive example of Canadian home making.

"The Tin Flute" by Gabrielle Roy is still in the best seller list. The heroine works in a five and ten cent store and the realism of the story is so stark you can smell the hot-dogs and hamburgers.

"The Sealed Verdict" by Lionel Shapiro, a Canadian War Correspondent is a novel of conflict with an American prosecution at a Nazi war crimes trial as protagonist.

"Who Has Seen The Wind?", this study of a boy who grows up on the Saskatchewan prairie with its continual winds, has been compared with "The Yearling". It is the story of Brian O'Connell and will appeal to anyone who likes to sense the closeness of eternal things.

In the field of the historical noval you will find "Judgment Glen" by Will R. Bird. This story of Yorkshire settlers in Nova Scotia, gained the author a share of the Ryerson Fiction Award.

Maida Parlow French has a second novel concerning the Loyalist Settlers in Matilda Co., Ontario.

"Fortress North" by E. Walker, tells the history of the City of Edmonton.

You will find novels written by Grace Campbell, Dorothy Dumbrille and Roderick Kennedy.

"The Dairy of Samuel Marshbanks" is written by Robertson Davies, the clever son of the publisher of the Kingston Whig-Standard. It is humorous of outlook and good for the soul.

Doctor Desmond Pacey has a notable collection of "Short Stories," where you will find excellent examples of the work of many famous Canadians.

"Faces of Destiny" by Karsh, is rather expensive, but if cost were a minor factor, this would be a grand book to enjoy and hand on to the next generation.

There are also many more books recently off the press, written by our fellow countrymen and women. It is a cause for gratitude. This is so, and we hope they will stay with us and not migrate to another country.

Having chatted with you on a few books, I am as always,

Your Friend—The Bookworm.

Letters to The Editor

Editor, Record: I hope your readers will encourage "The Bookworm" to keep up the good work.

When Mrs. Harry Allison discontinued her interesting "Garden Chats" I wondered if she would try her hand or mind at "Book Chats." I believe she has, and I am glad. "Love me, love my books", is a good motto. Men and women are known by the books they read, as well as by those they write.

Books are the windows of our mansions, big or little, through which we contact enthrilling, and indefinable beauty, soul-stirring romance and adventure, and the knowledge and wisdom of the ages. They are the rare and fragrant flowers of the literary garden, the refreshing and life-giving oasis in the deserts of the world. Babies and books are among our dearest treasurers; the babies develop into adults and disappear, but our books remain with us forever. Good luck, fellow bookworm!

TENOR BELL'S 1947 CHRISTMAS STROKES

A quaint English Christmas is the tolling of the "Devil's Knell" at the Parish Church of the Yorkshire town of Dewsbury. Every Christmas Eve for 700 years this ceremony has been performed—only broken by World War II when, for security reasons, the church belis of Britain were silent. The tenor bell of Dewsbury is tolled once for each year since the birth of Christ, and this year the 1947 strokes will take about an hour —the final stroke being timed exactly to fall at the midnight hour. A legend connected with the custom tells how a local baron named Thomas de Soothill, back in the 13th century, killed one of his servants and to expiate his crime presented the tenor bell to the church with the request that it should be tolled annually. It is said the inhabitants of Dewsbury of those days believed that the tolling of the bell would keep the devil away from the parish for another year.

World-Wide Good Will Christmas Broadcast

With world-wide goodwill as its theme, the BBC's annual round-the-world program for Christmas Day this year will be carried over a special CBC network from 9.00 to 10.00 a.m. EST, Thursday, December 25.

The program will bring greetings from continental Europe, the British Isles and many parts of the Commonwealth, with word-pictures of how people there are spending Christmas Day. Following this, Sir John Boyd Orr, as a spokesman of the United Nations, will point out how international co-operation can help feed a hungry world.

To reveal how the spirit of Christmas still lives in Europe, despite the ravages of war and its aftermath the broadcast will take listeners to a battle-scarred area of France, a ruined city of eastern Europe, the home of a Dutch family who helped our airborne troops at Arnhem, and to a displaced persons' camp.

Next, messages from people in the British Isles, indicating how austerity regulations affect their celebrations, will be broadcast, following which listeners will be brought the voices of new settlers in the Dominions, telling what Christmas 1947 means to them.

A Canadian contribution to the BBC program this year will originate in Winnipeg. It will bring as speaker Rita Bladt, an Esthonian girl who came to Canada from a displaced person's camp in Germany. A Ukrainian male choir, on a Christ-Christmas visit to a local hospital, will also be heard.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Enough time to prepare for the holiday table is the quandry of many homemakers today. Every year there seems to be more functions to attend, especially at this season, not only the women's organizations, but the children's concerts, father's office parties and numerous Christmas endeavours.

It therefore behooves us to prepare something simple yet festive for our home gatherings. We believe that our basic recipes with variations may be the answer to your number one problem this week.

BUTTERMILK COOKIES

1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup shortening, 1 egg, well beaten, ½ cup buttermilk or sour milk, 2⅛ cups sifted cake flour, ¼ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. soda, ½ tsp. cinnamon.

Cream brown sugar and shortening, add beaten egg. Sift dry ingredients and add alternately with buttermilk to creamed mixture. Drop from teaspoon on greased cookie sheet. Bake in electric oven of 375 degrees about 12 minutes.

Cocoanut Cookies: Add ¾ cup shredded cocoanut and 1 tsp. grated orange rind and 1 tsp. lemon rind.

Decorated Cookies: Use basic recipe and after cookies are in pan, decorate in one of the following ways: Flatten with spatula and place on centre of each, blanched almond, raisin, pieces of peel or sesame seeds.

BASIC BAKING POWDER BISCUITS

2 cups (all-purpose) flour, 1 tsp. salt, ⅞ cup milk, 4 tsps. baking powder, 2 tbsps. shortening.

Sift dry ingredients twice. Cut in the shortening with pastry blender. Sprinkle in the milk and toss into a dough mixture with wooden spoon. (Use more milk if necessary).

Place the dough on floured board, pat or roll lightly to about 1 inch thickness. Cut it with a biscuit cutter, dipping the cutter into flour to keep it from sticking. Bake on a lightly floured pan in a hot electric oven at 450 degrees for 12 mins.

Cheese Biscuits: Cut ¾ cup grated cheese into dough.

Cranberry Biscuits: Add 2 tbsps. sugar to dry ingredients. Cut ½ cup chopped raw cranberries into the dough.

Raisin Biscuits: Add ½ cup chopped nuts to mixture after shortening is cut in.

BASIC PASTRY RECIPE

1½ cups flour (pastry), ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup shortening, 4 tbsps. cold water.

Sift the flour with salt and work the shortening into it with pastry mixer. (When shortening is mixed evenly, the mix looks like coarse oatmeal.) Sprinkle in the cold water, tossing flour into dough. Pat lightly into a ball, wrap in wax paper and chill in refrigerator for ½ hour. Roll out lightly on a floured board to 1⅛ inch thickness in a circular fashion. Fold in half and lift to pie plate. Press gently onto pie plate. Cut down around the edge. This makes one nine-inch double crust.

Orange Pastry: Use orange juice in place of water, adding a little grated orange rind..

Nut Pastry: Add ¼ cup finely chopped nuts to flour mixture.

Cheese Pastry: Add 1⅓ cup finely grated cheese to flour mixture.

* * * *

TAKE A TIP

1. If you use gumdrops for variation in cookies, cut and mix in the dough because these gelatin candies will harden in a moderate temperature oven.

2. If your cookie sheet has become black, place the pan of cookies on top of the jelly roll pan to deflect the heat and prevent the cookies burning on the bottom.

3. If you use pastry flour for baking powder biscuits, you may require 1 cup of milk to make a soft dough.

4. The basic pastry dough recipe may be used for making tart shells.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. T. asks: Is it advisable to chill cookie dough in the refrigerator before rolling it out? How long will it keep in a cold place?

Answer: The flavour and texture is much better if you chill cookie dough. You can store cookie dough in a covered container in the refrigerator for two or three weeks if necessary.

Mrs. S. W. asks: How to keep icebox cookies crisp and hermits soft.

Answer: Keep crisp cookies in a tin box or crock with a lid—do not store anything else in the container but the cookies after they have been allowed to cool.

Hermits and other soft mixtures may be stored in a covered glass jar with a piece of apple. Replace the apple every few days.

Mrs. J. T. asks: Recipe for Short Bread.

Answer:

Short Bread

1 cup butter, 1⅓ cup fruit sugar, 2 cups flour (or more).

Cream butter well, add sugar gradually and cream well together. Add flour slowly. When dough is stiff, turn out on floured board, knead in flour until dough begins to crack. Roll out ¼" thick, cut with cookie cutter. Place on baking sheet and bake until lightly browned at 300 degrees.

FOR YOUNG READERS THIS CHRISTMAS

Here in a Toronto department store autographing copies of two popular books for children, many of which will no doubt turn up under the Christmas tree next week, are radio actress Beryl Braithwaite (left) and Mary Grannan, well-known children's story-teller of the CBC. The books are "Maggie Muggins" and "Just Mary," both by Miss Grannan. Beryl Braithwaite is the juvenile star on weekly CBC drama series based on the "Maggie Muggins" stories. On December 25, Miss Grannan is to broadcast her own version of the Christmas story, at 3.15 p.m. EST, over a special CBC network.

THE KING TO SPEAK

A Christmas message by His Majesty, the King, to his people throughout the Commonwealth and Empire is to be brought to Canadian listeners on all CBC networks during the morning of the 25th. His Majesty's message may be heard at 10.00 a.m. EST, and again at 10.15 p.m. EST, on Christmas Night, when it is to be re-broadcast.

RADIO CHRISTMAS PARTY COAST TO COAST

A Christmas party for all Canadians within reach of a radio will be given by the CBC on Thursday, December 25, at 8.00 p.m. EST, over a special network. Designed to interest listeners coast to coast, the broadcast party will offer a variety of entertainment—light music and serious, songs of the old land and the new, gay humor and a reminder of the holiday's true significance, all "gift-wrapped" specially for Canadian Christmas, 1947. The festivities will originate in the CBC's Toronto studios.

A 33-piece orchestra under Geoffrey Waddington will provide a melodious setting for the program. A Toronto vocal group—the Leslie Bell Singers—will do a fantasy of Christmas carols; Cuban Troubador Chicho Valle will sing a Latin-American number; the orchestra is to play a musical Christmas card prepared by Howard Cable from themes of well-known radio programs; Tony Stecheson will present a Ukrainian carol; Gisele la Fleche is to sing "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers" in both English and French; and concert baritone Edmund Hockridge will offer the A. A. Milne favorite ,"The King's Breakfast."

Other highlights of the program will be a story of how it became a custom to place the figure of an angel at the top of Christmas trees, written and narrated by Mary Grannan: a tale of whate happens to an actor at Christmas, related by J. Frank Willis; and a monologue on the theme that Christmas is for optimists, to be given by Dick Nelson, mimic.

WINCHESTER GIRL TO SING OVER AIR

Miss June Rowat 16-year-old daughter of Mr .and Mrs. W. A. Rowat, of Winchester had been selected as one of the successful candidates to appear on "Singing Stars of Tomorrow."

June went to Toronto a few weeks ago for an audition and the sponsors of the program were so impressed with her fine soprano voice that she will sing on Sunday, December 28, and will be heard over CBO at 5 p.m.

During her stay in Toronto Miss Rowat will be the guest of the sponsors of the program, at the Royal York Hotel.

CHRISTMAS HOSPITALITY FOR OVERSEAS STUDENTS

For 25 years Britain's East and West Friendship Council has been working hard to ensure that students from Africa, China, India and the West Indies (as well as many other places) shall have an opportunity of seeing how Christmas Day is spent by private families in the United Kingdom. Although it has a hospitality scheme which is in force all the year round, the Council introduces as many students as possible to those private residents who will entertain them at Christmas-time. This year offers of hospitality have been received from many parts of Britain.

RATS DESTROY FOOD AND MENACE HEALTH

Perhaps the most formidable of the rodents which are destroyers of food and property and a serious menace to public health, is the common brown or Norway rat.

It is a prolific breeder, the female being capable to bearing four or five times a year, from four to ten rats, which in turn are able to breed at the age of about six months.

The extermination of rats is complicated by the fact that most of the suitable poison baits used in their destruction are also injurious to other animals and to humans. If reasonable precautions are observed, however, poison baits can be used to good effect.

One of the best methods of defence is to make buildings ratproof, and the best material to use is concrete. This should be used for foundations of storehouses, granaries, poultry houses, and special care should be taken to see that any space around, drains and other pipes is concreted over. Doors to such buildings should be bound at their base with sheet-metal, and ventilators and basement windows protected. Heavy galvanized wire netting of half-inch mesh is effective in excluding rats from such things as corn cribs.

If there are not many rats, they can often be eliminated by using traps. This method is particularly suited to the house, where the use of poison bait is often undesirable. Traps of the spring or guillotine type, or the wire cage type, are both equally good with satisfactory bait. Indeed, the spring type is often effective without bait if placed in runways formed by leaving boards against the walls and covering the traps with a piece of cheese-cloth, sawdust or other light material to obscure them.

Information on the best method of exterminating and controlling rats and mice may be obtained by writing to the Dominion Department of Agriculture and asking for Special Pamphlet No. 33, "Control of Rats and Mice."
