Morrisburg Industrial Plants All Have Expansion Programs

Challies Dental Products A Notable Local Industry

In 1917 an industry known as Dominion Toilet Brush Co., Limited was established in Morrisburg by local men, Hon. George H. Challies and his father, the late J. G. Challies, to pioneer the manufacturing of tooth brushes for the first time in Canada.

From this beginning in a small town there has developed an industry that has since played an important part in the daily hygienic and dental health habits of nearly every Canadian. In 1940 this business was purchased by George E. Beavers, a University of Toronto graduate, who has since become its managing director and a local citizen.

The advance of scientific research and improvements in technical and mechanical production facilities can readily be seen in the progress of this business during the past thirty years and with the result that greater values have been successively available to consumers. For many years the production of tooth brushes was large ly hand craftsmanship labour with a limited capacity output. Today this factory and its mechanized equipment is a revelation in fast and efficient operation. New machinery has continuously been installed during the past seven years and other equipment has been overhauled and modernized, speeding up productive capacity.

In the matter of materials for the tooth brushes, scientific research and development have evolved new uses for man-made products and which are in many places, replacing nature's goods. Chief among these has been the development of a synthetic substitute for natural bristle called Nylon. This has proved a satisfactory material for bristle. It is tough, long lasting and water repellant. Current advertising features the slogan "The Best Brushes Have Nylon Bristle". The part Nylon played in war years was an outstanding contribution to our domestic Canadian economy. Dur ing the past 15 years the chief source of supply for natural bristle has been China, which was cut off when the Japs entered the war, and all stocks of bristles were taken over by the Al lied Governments for war uses. Had it not been for the availability of Nylon, it is difficult to predict how it would have been possible to carry on the manufacturing of tooth and hundreds of other types of brushes used daily. People in Canada might have been deprived of their every-day brush, as they were in war-torn Europe, where this commodity became extremely scarce and in many cases was available chiefly through black market channels at highly inflated prices, whereas in Canada, prices of tooth brushes have dropped substantially, as the new brushes last much longer than those produced a few years ago.

Another material where scientific research has played its part in bringing greater values to the consumer is the development of thermo setting plastic materials for colourful and sturdy handles. Formerly cellulose nitrate was used, and it had as its basic component part, camphor. 95 percent of this latter material came from Formosa, a Japanese colony, prior to the war. Today, cellulose acetate which is much less in price, has replaced the former material. Another advantage of the new plastics material is that tooth brush handles, for example, can be turned out from powder in a mould on a plastics injector machine, thereby eliminating much of the previous hand operations of shaping to form from strips, sanding, buffing and polishing.

The introduction of much new equipment has been accompanied by a wide diversification of products at the local plant of Challies Dental Products. Today many hundreds of thousands of cleaning brushes which Canadian dentists use to clean patients' teeth in their offices are turned out by Challies Dental Products, who are the sole manufacturer of this type of brush in Canada. There are novelty and staple toilet brushes by the thousands in such well-known products as nail brushes, baby's hair brushes, combination hair brushes and combs turned out today in Morrisburg, and the present personnel is ever on the alert to turn out new and different specialty products in the brush field to satisfy the ever growing desires of Canadian and foreign customers and consumers.

Another new development in recen years has been the diversification in selling. Today the products of the Challies Dental Products from Morrisburg may be found on sale in 29 different foreign countries throughout the world and the present ownership is aggressively building up an extensive export business capable of keeping the greatly enlarged production facilities fully occupied. Mention was made in the Leader columns of last week, of a single order dispatched to a European country of 600,000 brushes which is an indication of the tremendous production facilities of the local plant today.

Combined with the operations of the Challies Dental Products, Geo. E. Beavers has also brought to Morrisburg the oldest family medicine business in Canada—G. C. Briggs & Sons, whose products have been sold in Canada for over 103 years. These well-known products are packaged and shipped from Morrisburg today.

During war years, Mr. Beavers also established for the first time in Canada facilities for manufacturing dental burs and the production of these was entirely taken by the Armed Forces. As a result of his trip to England and other Euruopean countries last fall plans are being evolved for the construction of a new factory on premises acquired from the town, and which have been vacant. If these plans are successful, it may well mean that the products of Morrisburg will again make a substantial contribution among Canadian and foreign markets.

The history of this local industry indicates the often expressed truth that many of the important industrial developments are started and pioneered in small towns. In the days ahead it is to be hoped that citizens can take pride in the accomplishments of local doings and encourage its citizens to envision and persevere with new developments. In this way small towns such as Morrisburg can attract and hold its citizens instead of having many of these industries locate in cities and larger centres of population as has happened so many times to many of our largest Canadian industries, which were pioneered in small towns only to lose them to cities at a later date in their expansion programs.

Canada Tack & Nail Co. One of Older Industries

The Canada Tack and Nail Co., located near the eastern extremity of the village is one of Morrisburg's oldest industries. For many years they have been manufacturing tacks of all kinds, nails and staples for the domestic and export trade.

Orders go out regularly to all points of the compass, including. Guatemala South America, India, Cuba, various European countries, and of course, to all parts of Canada and the United States.

This factory was founded in 1908, and operated by Messrs. Broder and Eager. Successive managers were Mr. Russell and Mr. Ogal Mallen. Later the factory was taken over by the firm of Smart and Robertson, and was managed by Mr. Townsend, later by Mr. Biggs, and still later by Mr. Howard Tindal.

The Smart & Robertson firm gave way to Mrs. Smart, who disposed of her property in August of 1940 to Mr. S. Lunenfeldt, of Galt. He is still in control of the factory.

Production hit its peak during the war and the immediate post-war period. This firm pioneered the production of aluminum nails in Canada, starting with one machine, and then expanding to 20 machines. This particular branch of the business has since been moved to Galt, where it is established as the Independent Nail Co., operating 62 automatic nail machines.

Present manager of the plant is Mr. W. O. Beattie, who succeeded Mr. Harry Doyle. The factory employs 32 people and has an annual payroll of about $45,000. A couple of the employees have been on the job continuously since the inception of the company, and several of them have served for 10, 15, 20 and more years.

In charge of tack machines at present is Mr. Mac Colquhoun of Morrisburg.

Many years ago, before the building of railways at the north end of this county, Morrisburg was one of the outstanding town for business and industry in this part of Ontario.

But with the building of the C. P. R., manufacturing, as well as trade, fell off considerably here, and the village entered on a somnolescent period, which was destined to last for almost half a century.

During the past few years, however, there has been a marked increase in the industrial activity, as well as in the number of industries interested in locating in Morrisburg.

Many of these industries, both old and new, are working now at capacity, and expect to expand in the near future.

Other industrialists are looking towards Morrisburg as an ideal location for their plants, and one small factory in particular, which will employ about one hundred men and women is very interested at the present time.

Time alone will tell, of course, just to what degree this industrialization will occurr, but Morrisburg citizens can confidently look forward to the next ten years, as a period of steady growth in wealth and population.

The present Council members and the Board of Trade are to be commended for their efforts to secure for Morrisburg a diversified number of industries, which help to assure that there will be no tragic general shutdowns, such as often occurr in "one-industry" towns.

HEALTHY, LIVE, INDUSTRIAL TOWN EXERTS INFLUENCE ON DISTRICT

One of the good features of developing a healthy, live, industrial town is that such a town soon spreads its influence throughout the district it serves. More new skilled workmen are developed and sooner or later, everyone is bound to benefit from such a development.

In the case of Morrisburg, already two small industries have been established in its immediate district, which, although still in the embryonic stage, promise to develop into something much larger in the near future.

The first of these to establish here is known as the Ace Model Aircraft Supply Company, which is the brainchild of Morrisburg's youngest industrialist, Hubert Gordier. Mr. Gordier's plant has been in operation for about a year now and has shipped thousands of model aircraft and supplies to all parts of Canada. His ideas and his designs are his own, and he envisions the expansion of his facilities as soon as conidtions permit.

The other young industry is being conducted by Major George Perley, and manufactures step ladders for the domestic and export trade. Major Perley's products, which stress a high quality of construction, have already made a fine reputation, and he also looks for higher production in the immediate future.

Morrisburg Poultry Plant Supplies City Markets

Orlin J. Barkley, owner and proprietor of the Morrisburg Poultry plant, is one of the local boys, who have risen to some heights in the local industrial picture.

Mr. Barkley began his career in Morrisburg 23 years ago, when he op ened a butcher shop on Main Street. He remained in the butcher business for 20 years.

In September 1944, he opened the plant known as Morrisburg Poultry. Their business is the buying and processing of poultry for the retail mark ets in Montreal, Cornwall and Ottawa.

On November 5th, 1946 their plant was totally destroyed by fire, but within two weeks, Mr. Barkley had a new temporary plant erected, and was back at business.

At present the company has moved into a new fireproof building, at the same site. This building is 50 by 80 feet, and the proprietor plans 2 additions, each 25 by 50 feet, and one to be located at each end of the present building. He plans also to utilze the temporary building for additional production. The cooling room at the new factory is 20 by 30 feet in size; the freezing room (at 5 degrees below zero) is 20 by 25 feet. There is a fast freezer (20 degrees below zero) and an up-to-date killing room. All rooms are equipped with the latest and most modern machinery for killing and processing of all kinds of fowl and are lined with sheet aluminum. Within the next week or two, when the new plant can be fully utilized, Mr. Barkley expects to be employing 50 or more persons. His annual payroll is about $50,000.

In connection with his plant, he has recently purchased the farm known as the Broder Farm, of 100 acres, adjoining his plant. This will be used as a holding spot for poultry and live stock. He also operates a slaughter house for the slaughter and processing of beef, pork and veal, and in this connection Mr. Barkely envisions a further expansion to the time when he will be operating a modern meat packing plant in Morrisburg.

At present he has four trucks on the road, with his own buyers, operating within a forty-mile radius of Morrisburg, and buying poultry for processing at his plant. He also has resident buyers at more distant points for the same purpose.

MORRISBURG BLOCK AND TILE AIDS BUILDING HERE

A couple of Morrisburg-born brothers who returned to the old home town to set up their own business are the proprietors of the Morrisburg Block and Tile, an organization which is helping in no small way with the building of industrial enterprises here. The firm is a partnership of A. Wallace Guay, and Hubert G. Guay, both well known former resident of Morrisburg, who returned here last year.

Their plant is located at the corner of Beckstead and Morris Street, employs 6 hands at present, which next month will be raised to 10, and within a year to 20. The building is 38 by 46 feet in size, and their products include cement, cinder, granite and rock-faced blocks, and cement tile.

The present capacity is approximately 1600 blocks per day, and this output is largely taken up in the village and district.

The Guay brothers are also interested in the general construction business, and during the past year they constructed the new and modern Morrisburg Frozen Food and Locker Plant here.

New Morrisburg Industry Has No Labour Troubles

Morrisburg Hosiery, Ltd., one of the town's newer industries, is in the enviable position of having no employment worries. What is more, according to the vice president and general manager of the company, C. B. Cunningham, they have never had to advertise for help. "Our satisfied employees", says Mr. Cunningham, "are our best form of advertising". This company has a waiting list of applicants, which is approximately twice the size of their present roster.

Morrisburg Hosiery, Ltd., is a newly organized company. At present it occupies a small premises on Riverside Drive, but they have bought the land, and now have plans, architects, contractors, and most of the material, for the erection of their new modern factory, which will be located near the C. N. R. Station, on High St. This new building will be 40 x 80 feet, and will employ 35 persons. Their manufactured goods include men's and children's socks, and the new construction is scheduled to start on June 1st. It will have a capacity of 1500 dozen pairs of hose each week, and will utilize a two-shift plan and a five day week. The new plant, in ordr to achieve this capacity, will use about 75 of the latest type automatic hosiery manufacturing machines. They will continue to emphasize in their labor relations, the best of working conditions and fair treatment for all employees.

"I am not a boss", says Mr. Cunningham. "I am just one of the people working here to make this project successful." And his relations with his employees, their high weekly production and their willingness to work for the success of the venture, bear out his assertion.

The present small "pilot plant" is utilizing 11 automatic and 7 semi-automatic machines and employees 15 persons. Several of these will be sent to larger plants in the near future, to be trained as instructors for the new, larger plant. Present capacity is 200 dozen pairs per week. At present too, the hose are manufactured here and are finished in Montreal, but with the opening of the new plant, every operation will be completed in Morrisburg.

Mr. C. B. Cunningham, the quiet, unassuming chap who holds the impressive handle of vice president and general manager of the company, came here from Montreal In August of 1946. Prior to his taking up residence here, Mr. Cunningham was a commercial traveller with the W. J. Westaway Co., manufacturers of hosiery machinery, and is well versed in every branch of the trade, and a competent man to have in charge of this new and growing industry in Morrisburg.

Pyramid Makes 8--10 Million Bags Monthly

Another of the newer industrial newcomers to the village is the Pyramid Paper Products, Ltd., located at the eastern end of Morrisburg. This concern is engaged in the manufacture of paper bags and light boxes. Present capacity of the plant is between 8 and 10 millions of bags each month.

Pyramid began operations here toward the close of the past year and is now gradually reaching its full production. This new factory, which is planned as the first unit of the company's operations here, is completely fireproof; it houses 6 automatic bag machines. Manager here is Mr. J. McAuley. The company also owns and operates three other plants, all in the province of Quebec, at East Angus, Port Neuf and Montreal. President is L. T. Hayes; general manager and secretary-treasurer, R. H. Bryan and supervisor, E. L. Brown.

Pyramid is constantly bringing in carloads of paper is sizes from 4 inch to 56 inch width rolls, and to protect this large and inflammable stock, the installation of a sprinkler system will be made in the near future.

In addition to manufacturing the bags, they are printed on the same machines, with the names of the consumer and advertising necessary for the particular product. In this connection, Pyramid has on its payroll one of the most clever machinists in the business, who has built in their own machine shop, complete printing presses to attach to, and synchronize with the bag making machines. His machine shop is equipped with modern lathes, planer, arc welder, drill presses and shaper.

Some of the products of this factory are hand-made bags, specialty, garment, shopping, wet-wash, millinery, potato, ice cream, wine and notion bags. These are manufactured of kraft, sulphite, glassine, cellucine, cellophane, both printed and plain. All these products, boxed and bundled in 40 lb. lots, find a ready market throughout Eastern Canada and Newfoundland.

Present number of employees is 40 and this will be upped to 60 shortly. Present payroll is $40,000—$50,000 per year.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

What women will do! Yesterday I was talking with a little old lady over 80 who said that her daughters often wished she would get a permanent wave. "But I don't think I could sit that long," she said.

"And why would you?" I asked. "Anyone with soft, wavy hair like yours doesn't need a permanent."

"Oh, but I put it up in curlers every night," she said, and laughed at my surprise. Imagine—eighty-odd—and all that patience! But then the little old lady told me a better one. She said a friend of hers still wears her hair in ringlets and puts it up herself every night, and makes it into curls every day. And that little old lady is 93!

The foregoing was written Saturday. This morning—Monday morning—I didn't spend much time thinking of little old ladies either with or without curls. But the thought did cross my mind that I could write a pretty good story on "What does a Farmwife do that a City wife doesn't have to"—if you get what I mean. Yes, and I really think today would supply a pretty good answer to that question.

First I should tell you that son Bob is away for the week-end. There didn't seem any reason why he shouldn't go—the weather being what it is made getting on the land impossible. And of course a farmer must always take his holidays in bad weather. No basking in the sun for him—sunny days are working days. So Partner and I and the chores were here to ourselves. Sunday was uneventful — and of course—wet.

Monday morning was even better, so we did not feel in any particular rush. Of course we knew that even if we only attended to our chores, they alone would provide us with enough work for most of the day. But on a farm you never can tell . . . five minutes after he had gone to the barn Partner was back again. "Call the vet.," he said to me. "that red heifer is having trouble. Put some water on to boil and then you had better come to the barn."

So I called the vet.—and I rather fancy I got him out of bed. However, as I went to the barn with the hot water he was coming up the lane. Naturally I thought my services could now be dispensed with. But no—the vet. took one look at the heifer and called to me —"Don't go away, Mrs. Clarke, it will take three of us for this job."

So that was that—and there was nothing for it but to forget my natural squeamishness at what might be required of me. At long last the heifer was delivered of a calf—but the calf was dead. It was too bad, but it couldn't be helped. It was just one of those things—an abnormal birth — which will happen occasionally in the best of well regulated barnyard families. But it threw the whole day off schedule. We were late with the milk, late with the chores, late with breakfast—and certainly slopping around in the mud didn't help things at all. But the other calves were not worrying. We have several that are being raised for veal. They are taken back to their mothers twice a day for a meal but the rest of the time they are kept tied up. Leading them back and forth is remarkably good exercise, I can assure you. The antics of those calves is something to marvel at. How anything so young can be so strong! This morning Partner was taking one back to its pen while I took another—or rather it took me. Presently I heard Partner say—"Darn you — can't you step anywhere but on my feet!"

Later in the morning the trucker arrived to take one of the little acrobats off to market. I watched it go and regretted that anything so full of life must be sacrificed before veal steak can be fed to hungry people or money handed over to provide us with the wherewith-all to purchase the necessities of life.

Of course in between trips to the barn I was attending to my chicks. They should be running out but the weather forbids. Since they cannot get to the grass the best I can do is cut grass and take it to them. And do they love it. Which reminds me—I have yet to make a trip to town to get more feed for my biddies. Three-ninety for a bag of feed and it lasts five days. Pretty soon it will take two bags a week to feed them. There isn't much change from the weekly egg cheque when one has chicken feed to buy.

By the way—and in connection with the weather—the Globe and Mail must be developing a sense of humour. This morning, up in the corner where it gives the weather probs. it said—"Wash Day —wet and cold."

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

I hurried into the newspaper office and knocked gently on the editor's door. Ye editor looked up as I entered and a scowl took the place of the smile usually seen on his very pleasant face.

"Well, where have you been?" he demanded, "press time and you as late as usual."

"Here's my column," I replied, "just finished it a few minutes ago."

The editor reached for it. "What have you got this week? Let's see now. It says here": Well, the middle of May is here, and the warm weather is welcome. Teeners are getting committees drawn up for the graduation dances, and everyone is in there pitching. Final exams are being crowded for time and the young uns are going around these days with a somewhat perplexed and worried look, as if they wonder what some of the stuff in those books is all about. We have noticed one young fellow, several mornings of late, sitting beside the bus stop, with a book on his knees trying to catch up at the last minute.

While we are near the subject of graduation dances, we might mention that several of the high schools now have their own live bands and have no further worries about who is to supply the music. One of those towns that boasts its own band is Brockville. Bruce Ker and his seven solid senders are making a name for themselves, not only in Brockville, but in many of the towns in the eastern section. Another eastern outfit made up of teen-agers is Murray Harris and company who are constantly in demand wherever teeners are dancing. Up north at Owen Sound a group of young fellows, with a girl bass fiddle and girl pianist under the direction of Lewis MacDonald, are getting around plenty. This band is strictly on the side of "sweet music" and the leader says that sweet music is much in demand up there. Not to be outdone by the smaller centres throughout the province, Toronto has an up-and-coming band under the leadership of a young fellow named Don Hackett of Western Tech Don organized this band last July and since that time they have been very busy filling engagements in and around the city.

"Well, that's interesting news for young people," said the editor. "Now what's this stuff here?"

Many of the gals who have taken a fancy to the jewel-specked sun glasses will be unhappy to know that sun glasses should not be worn at all, unless an eye specialist has specially advised them. Indiscriminate use of sun glasses tends to lower the tolerance of the eyes for light. The trouble is—and we quote this from the Department of National Health, Ottawa—"Sunglasses should not change the hues of natural colours." Too bad, and sometimes we think we are going Hollywood with those fancy cheaters.

Changing the subject again, we have been told that the new picture the "Egg and I" is chuck full of laughs. Well, it must be very different from the book. It was chuck full of smut. We saw the picture "The Sea of Grass" last week and once again we felt that Spencer Tracy is the greatest actor in Hollywood. We'll never forget him as Father Flannagan in "Boys Town." After the show the other night, we said to Susie: "There is a man I would never want to meet personnally, for fear that he was not the same in real life as on the screen."

"Now this column isn't bad, so far", piped ye editor. "Take that first page to the composing room, while I finish reading this."

"H-mmm," he purred. Murkar suggests that young people get out on bike hikes this summer. It's good living and good living means good health. Sunshine is vitally important to everyone. Ontario Holiday, the weekly radio program, will give you free details concerning youth hostels, if a gang of you decide to tour the province or part of it on your holidays. This is a grand way to vacation. There is plenty of fun in it and you can do it cheaply if a group go together on the idea. The program, Ontario Holiday, is heard over CFRB and is under the direction of Barry Wood—a man who really knows the vacation spots of Ontario.

"Well this column is alright," the editor told us as we came back from the composing room. "But, that column two weeks ago, where you started giving advice about kissing, wasn't so not. Leave that stuff to somebody that knows what they are talking about."

"Okay, okay," we shot back. "I'll be in early with my copy next week."

"You had better be, or you'll be out of a job," warned ye editor

And with that we left him to finish his pipefull, and "Teen-Town Topics."

Rhubarb Time

Five canning coupons will become valid in May, some of which will take care of the first fruit, rhubarb. Although rhubarb is often canned without sugar, the home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that a little sugar gives better results, in colour and flavour, than none.

They recommend using a medium syrup, that is a syrup made with 1 cup sugar to 1 cup water. The rhubarb should be thoroughly washed, then cut in 1-inch pieces. The cold pack method s preferred for rhubarb. Pack the jars, cover with boiling syrup leaving a headspace of half an inch. Process in the boiling water bath pint sealers 10 minutes, quart sealers 15 minutes. If an oven with automatic heat control is used, pints are processed 20 minutes and quarts 25 minutes.

After numerous experiments the Consumer Section has found that the use of tin cans for rhubarb is not as satisfactory as sealers, and that only enamel tins should be used.

Rhubarb Conserve

14 cups rhubarb (4 lbs.) cut in ½" pieces
3 cups raisins
7 cups sugar
Juice of 2 oranges
Rind of 2 oranges, thinly sliced
1 cup walnuts.

Combine rhubarb, raisins, sugar, orange rind and juice. Let stand ½ hour. Bring to boil and boil, uncovered, 40 minutes, stirring frequently. Add walnuts, coarsely chopped, and boil to jam stage—about 5 minutes. Pour into hot, sterilized jars. Cool and seal. Yield: about 12 cups.

Rhubarb Cream

4 cups diced raw rhubarb
3 tablespoons flour
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
2 egg yoks
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar

Mix diced rhubarb, flour, salt and ½ cup sugar. Let stand one hour then cook over hot water for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Beat egg yolk until light. Pour rhubarb sauce over egg yolk, stirring meanwhile, then return to double boiler. Cook 3 minutes. Fold in meringue made with stiffly beaten egg whites and 2 tablespoons sugar. Pour into sherbet glasses. Chill. Six servings

Dandelion Greens Good, Cheap Food

With pussy willows popping, it is almost time for that table delicacy, the dandelion green. Or don't people eat dandelion greens any more? asks The New York Sun. Perhaps the cultivated palate yearns for more substantial fare these days. Probably our modern hostelries do not include the dandelion on the bill of fare. But the world is the worse for it, for a lot of people are losing out on some good, cheap eating pleasure.

To get the dandelion at its best, it is necessary to take to the fields long before the blossoms appear. The blossoms may bring joy to the poet, but they add nothing to the eating qualities of the weed. Loosen the earth around the root of the dandelion with a dull kitchen knife. Scrape a little of the earth off the white root and toss the dandelion in a tin pail. Preparation of dandelions for the table requires no special qualifications. Dandelions are at their best boiled with pork rind and served with vinegar. The result is a dish that has a good tangy flavor with just a taste of tartness that the commercial greens cannot produce. And in an early "mess of dandelions" even the epicure might well satsify a jaded palate.

Light from the sun reaches the earth in a little more than eight minutes.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER XVI: Victoria Bigelow calls on McCale at his office in the middle of the night. She asks him to obtain some letters from Vallaincourt's apartment.

Chapter XVII

She seemed suddenly drained of vitality. There was a thwarted look on her face. "So that's that."

"Just that, I'm afraid. However, I think you'll hear from your letters."

He followed her to the door, watching her down the stairs. At the turn, she looked back at him. She stopped, waiting a moment until he became aware that she intended to explode a farewell bombshell.

"If they don't turn up, Sherlock, I'll go to Shari Lynn for them, what?" She laughed insolently as she continued down.

McCale shook his head in utter weariness as he went back in. He was sure the interview had been a fiasco. At least his share of it. Things were piling up too quickly, too fast, one conclusion contradicting another.

The telephone was ringing insistently. McCale rolled over, opened one eye, swore, and finally grabbed the extra pillow, bundling it under his head. He fumbled with the light, snapped it on, lifted the telephone off its cradle.

"McCale speaking," he growled.

"Rocky, boss."

"Where are you?"

"Corner of Aspinwall, opposite the Vallaincourt den. Didn't you tell me to keep a lookout?"

"Oh, yeah. All quiet?"

"All quiet now. Listen, boss, 'long about five this morning—"

"All right. What happened at five o'clock?"

Sleep still hugged him tightly and there was an unreasonable barb in his voice.

"Okay, okay. Around five, a girl showed up with a key to the Vallaincourt ron-day-voo."

"What did she look like?"

"Just my type, boss. Sort of dark and well-rounded, you know. Big eyes. A gorgeous damsel. she was trailing Persian lambs in the gutter. Very snazzy."

"Come in a cab?"

"Yeah. She left at the corner."

"Did you get the cabby?"

"Nah. I followed the girl."

McCale stifled a chuckle. "Well?"

"I cornered her in the apartment. She turned tough, but I only got a scratch here and there.

"Who was it?"

"Hold on to your hat, now. It was Victoria Bigelow."

"Victoria Bigelow?" Surprise jerked him wide awake.

"Uh uh. She was after some letters of hers, she said."

"Well, well." Victoria had certainly had a busy night, he thought.

"The place was clean, like you said. No secret panels, either. I —that is—I finally helped her hunt for them."

"Go home and grab yourself some grub and shuteye," said McCale. "Get here about one o'clock. I'm going to be busy this morning."

The line went dead. McCale sat there, forgetting the telephone in his hand. His eyes were bright and exasperating as his mind labored in a disturbing whirl of the unexpected.

At eight forty-five he called Ann Marriott on the telephone.

To her cool "hello", he said, "Good morning. This is your boss."

"Oh, good morning, dar—boss. Anything important? I'm on my way in about five minutes."

"No hurry. In fact, this is just to say you might shop for an hour if you want to and then do an errand for me. At eleven you might be around Broadmore."

"Broadmore?"

"Yes. The Baysreuth, to be exact. I want you to drop in on Shari Lynn. Suite 802."

"... And pray what shall I use as an excuse for dropping in, as you say? Don't tell me you're sending me along to smooth the way for you—a more subtle approach, so to speak?"

"No—and that's comedy enough for now, my girl." He grew serious. "I saw her myself late last night, for that matter. "I'd like a line on how she is this morning. You know—sad, gay, expectant? Ask her for her autograph. Anything to get in. Talk about Vallaincourt if you can without being thrown out."

"That all?"

"Yes. Just a check-up to satisfy a point that's been nagging me. She's fairly transparent. It ought to be easy."

"Oh, yes, indeed. It sounds, too, too easy. All right. I'll do my best. See you when?"

"About noon. Here. 'Bye, sweet."

He knew that to solve this problem, he had first to break down the buttress of tradition that surrounded the Bigelows. He knew he was up against something that even the overestimataed awe, or if you will, majesty, of the law could not upend.

On impulse he dialed police headquarters and asked for Donlevy. After a slight delay, the curt, incisive vaice of the lieutenant came through.

"Donlevy here."

"McCale, lieutenant."

"Oh—sure. Not out yet hunting the foul criminal?"

"On the way. I'd like to know what the Bigelow women were wearing when they they came in yesterday — outside the green thingmajig Veronica sported."

"Of course. Didn't I mention that?"

"No."

"Well, here it is. Victoria, an oiled-silk affair, yellow; Karen, a black velvet suit, black cape; Sybil, a light brown raincoat. That help?"

"Uh uh. It was Sybil, then, who walked away into the fog."

"You think so? She claims to have been at the drugstore."

"Not for my money."

"I kind of think not. That family! It's almost impossible to get them to admit anything. They're all protecting one another. What? I've had a devil of a time and got nothing so far."

"You"ll get less, very likely, now they've had a chance to compare notes."

There was a pause. Then Donlevy said, almost cheerfully, "I guess Veronica's our girl."

"You really think so?"

"The Lynn woman's evidence will put the finish on it."

"Oh." McCale pondered over that for a moment, then decided to add, "I'd keep a sharp watch on the Lynn woman."

"Why?" Donlevy's interest was immediate.

"I would. That's all."

"Now, Duke, you must have a reason. Why be mysterious?"

"I'll drop in to see you later in the day. Okay?"

"By all means."

The body had been removed to the morgue and laboratory for fuller examination. Lieutenant Donlevy and his squad had finished with the preliminaries. The hungry press had been thrown a bone to nibble on. Men had been sent to Vallaincourt's apartment to look over papers and belongings for a possible clue.

Then, at nine this morning, a plainclothes man had interrupted breakfast with an urgent request for Veronica. He was politely insistent that she must come at once to the office of Lieutenant Donlevy for further questioning. She was not to be alarmed. It was a matter of routine. But—

Your Family Counselor

You Must Decide Your Own Future

DEAR ANNE HIRST: Shall I re-
* marry my first husband, or an * older man who loves me now? At 17 I ran away and got married to a boy the same age, and both our parents demanded it be annulled. He went off to school, I had a child and stayed home to care for her. Now I * am 28, and engaged to this man a dozen years older. I admire him,
* and he can give me and my little * girl everything. She loves him as
* though he were her own father.
* But recently I met my first husband. Not knowing I was engaged,
* he came the next day, and he * wants us to marry again! I know
* now that is what I want, too. My * little girl, however cried when I * told her and said she would never
* stay with him. (She doesn't know
* he is her real father). My fiance
* is away so I haven't talked with * him. Do you think my child will * learn to love her father? (He * can't provide for us as well). Or * shall I go ahead and marry my
* fiance? —Kitty.

● WAIT

You are indeed in a dilemma. Until you saw your first husband again, you felt you could be a good wife to this other man even though you did not love him. But now you realize where your heart really belongs —and you know that marrying him would not be fair. I'm afraid you would find it impossible to be a loyal wife, with your nature calling out to this first love you knew. And you wouldn't want to marry any man merely to give your child a home.

I'm sorry you sprung the idea of marrying your first husband so suddenly on this child of yours. He is a stranger to her. She had already accepted the older man as her stepfather, and naturally she resents anyone else Had she met her real father merely as a friend of yours, she might have grown fond of him. That can happen, even yet. ... ...

If you have made up your mind you can marry no one but your first husband, tell your fiance. He knows life well enough to understand, I expect. Then bring your child and her father together naturally, dispel the idea of an immediate marriage from her mind, and let him win her friendship and her trust. Once the older man is out of the picture, she may transfer her affections. Children do, you know.

Only you can decide your own future. No one else has the right to influence you. Take your time—and all my good wishes.

Sunday School Lesson

Struggle For Social Justice

Amos 5:6-15, 21-24.

Golden Text.—Seek good, and not evil, that ye may live.—Amos 5:14.

Nowhere, perhaps, in all the history of nations are there to be found more indealistic regulations for the prevention of social injustice than among the Jews in their ancient homeland.

One recalls the Cities of Refuge, the land laws, the provisions for the protection of debtors, the Year of Jubilee and other regulations all designed to safeguard human rights and welfare.

Yet, in spite of all this, injustice and oppression were prevalent. Then, as now, there were grafters and exploiters.

Imagine some thoughtful, intelligent, hard-working farmer who understands the conditions upon which our life and welfare depend coming into one of our modern cities. He would observe the ease and luxury of those making no real contribution to society, not to mention the evil and corruption that are so flagrant. Then you can understand something of what the Prophet Amos was to his times in ancient Israel.

Amos was a herdsman, accustomed to clean living. He was roused to indignation by what he saw . . . "the dust of the earth on the head of the poor . . . the righteous sold for a pair of shoes."

He saw the gross immorality of fathers and sons, the turning of judgment to wormwood, and the abandonment of righteousness. He saw the very acts and rites of religion perverted.

Amos represents God as saying, "I hate, I despise your feast days, and I will not smell in your solemn assemblies." But he calls for repentance: "Let judgment run down as waters, and righteousness as a mighty stream."

Don't we need that call today? The association of righteousness with peace is not accidental. It reminds us of the only true foundation upon which peace can be built, whether it be domestic peace, industrial peace or international peace.

Cheer Up!

The doctor was visiting a patient.

"You're getting along nicely, Mrs. Brown," he said, cheerily "You'll soon be up and queueing."

Best Kitchen Plan Takes $100 Prize

They say a woman spends more time in her kitchen than in any other room in the house. If that's the case, then a well planned kitchen can solve many a homemaker's difficulty.

Did you ever stop to figure out how you could save steps in your kitchen, how you could accomplish more with less effort by moving the kitchen furniture, by altering the fixtures? Put down the plan of your present kitchen and then draft one containing your own ideas for improvements. The Canadian National Exhibition is offering $100 in prize money for the best remodelled kitchen plans sent in.

Kate Aitken, Director of Women's Activities, makes it clear that every contestant must be a bona fide homemaker. Architects drawings or professional layouts will not be considered by the judges.

Two plans must be sent—one of the old kitchen, showing its size, openings and working difficulties. The second plan would show the kitchen as it could be re-modelled, done to scale, with a list of the changes and their approximate cost.

Kitchen plans must be received by July 25, according to Mrs. Aitken. They will be judged by competent judges and the prize winning kitchen will be set up in the Coliseum. Entry forms are now available by writing direct to: Women's Section, Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, Toronto.

THE FARM IMPROVEMENT LOANS ACT

Report of Operations for 1946

During 1946, 13,030 farmers obtained loans totalling nearly $10,000-000 under the Farm Improvement Loans Act. A report covering the first full year's operation of this Act was tabled in Parliament recently by the Minister of Finance, Honourable Douglas Abbott.

Loans are made through the 3,100 branches of the chartered banks for the improvement and development of farms and for the improvement of living conditions on farms. The interest rate is 5 per cent simple interest per annum, and loans may be made for periods up to ten years. The legislation aims at assisting particularly the average farmer who in the past has not always been able to obtain bank credit for farm improvement purposes.

Farm implements and farm trucks account for $7,488,347 of loans made during 1946. These loans represent an actual sales volume of approximately $12,500,000. From information available it is reasonable to assume that practically all farm implement sales in Canada requiring financing are now being financed either thru loans obtainable under The Farm Improvement Loans Act or through the regular bank loans. The result should be a substantial saving to the farmer, not only in the purchase price of his farm implements but also in finance charges and interest rates previously prevailing for this type of financing.

Included in the total are loans to 1,008 farmers to clear and break an estimated 50,000 acres of new land, mostly in the pioneer sections of western Canada. Loans for foundation and breeding stock accounted for 303 loans totalling $190,937.

One of the most important classes of loans is that for the construction, alteration and repair of farm buildings including farm dwellings and separate houses for farm help. As the supply of material and labour becomes more adequate, it is expected that loans for these purposes will be greatly expanded.

After his appointment as Inspector of Public Schools for Dundas County he moved to Winchester, where he resided for 20 years. There he was for several terms a municipal councillor, and also as a member of the Official Board of the United Church. HANDS AT WORK...

LEARNING TO PRINT

ONTARIO'S future prosperity depends directly on a sufficient volume of production to satisfy domestic needs and assure for Canada a pre-eminent place in the markets of the world. Every individual product of Ontario's manufacturing plants requires the services of printing at some or many stages of its development . . . order forms . . . production forms . . . invoices . . . shipping bills . . . advertising . . . publishing. The whole printing industry is faced with unprecedented demands . . . and to meet those demands skilled hands are needed. For them great opportunities lie ahead. Higher wages, job security, better working conditions are within easier reach of those who have mastered a skilled occupation.

Today, through the plan sponsored by the Department of Veterans' Affairs and other agencies, thousands of young workers are being trained to meet the printing and other industrial needs of this Province. Graduates of these rehabilitation courses are now ready to take their places in Ontario's industry. Available to you are veterans, well started on the road to skilled printing trades such as hand composition, linotype and monotype operation, bookbinding, lithography and presswork. Seek them out with confidence. They are your future craftsmen.

Today we Live in a Greater Canada

From the Laboratory

NEW PRODUCTS NEW PROCESSES BETTER LIVING

TODAY ALL CANADA is benefitting from the tremendous impetus given Canadian scientific research during the war years.

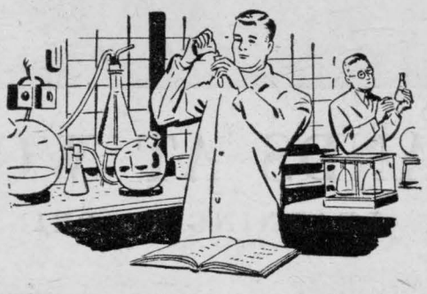

In university, research foundation and industrial laboratories, increasing numbers of Canadian-trained scientists are working on projects which will make for better Canadian living. Staffs of the National Research Council laboratories have increased four-fold since 1939. Their activities are being maintained at the same high level as during the war—but now devoted to the needs of peace.

Research workers today are constantly opening up new fields of Canadian endeavour, giving wider scope for Canadian skills.

Organization of graduate schools by Canadian universities in the early years of this century marked the first important advance of research in Canada. The National Research Council was established in 1916 for the encouragement of scientific endeavour on a national basis.

Science in Canada before the war had already to its credit several achievements of world significance—among them, Rutherford's original work on radio-activity, Saunders' development of Marquis wheat, Banting's discovery of insulin.

In 1939 began a cooperation in research never before attained in Canada. The contributions of Canadian scientists in such fields as atomic energy, radar, aircraft design and the development of super-explosives, won world recognition.

"OPPORTUNITIES TODAY...GREATER THAN EVER"

ALEX FORST with his brother Edward took over their father's modest little hardware shop in Vancouver 17 years ago. The early years were difficult, but, profiting from their errors, maintaining sound policies and always hard-working, they slowly expanded the business. New lines were regularly added until today they operate the biggest retail independent house furnishings organization in Western Canada.

MR. FORST says: "Our early faith in Canada as the country in which to build a business has been confirmed and strengthened. Just as Canada is a much greater country than when we started out, so too Canadian opportunities today are much greater than ever for those now commencing their careers."

Eddie started his job today!

THE MANAGER of the furniture factory in Eddie's town landed a big order. It meant he had to buy a lot of extra lumber, increase his payroll.

He lost no time in putting the whole thing up to the manager of his local bank. Together they worked out how much money he would need to take care of wages and other costs until he delivered the goods. Then, with the backing of his bank, he got to work on the order.

... And that's where Eddie came in. He was put on the payroll—given his first chance to learn a trade. Right now he's on his way home to tell Mom and Dad how much he likes his new job.

SPOTS OF SPORTS

By FRANK MANN HARRIS
("A Sixbit Critic")

With sports of all varieties booming throughout the land as never before, it is rather sad having to inject a sour note into the general harmony. However, we learn on good authority that one minor branch of sporting activities is sufferig from something of a slump. A young friend of ours who, for some years past, has bolstered his pocket-money allowance by searching for lost golf balls and then reselling same, reports that things in his line are by no means as they should be.

"It's getting fierce," he says. "Balls that even last summer I could have got half-a-rock apiece for, nowadays I have to let go for thirty-five cents or even two bits. The golf ball makers are turning out far too many balls these days, and somebody ought to stop them before they put business on the bum for keeps."

* * *

This 14-year-old added, however, that far more people are taking up the game for the first time than ever before in his experience; and this, from his point of view, is all to the good. "That is what I like to see out on a golf course," he said. "Plenty of these new beginners that swing with their eyes shut and spray balls over the rough, and then are ashamed to spend a lot of time looking for them. Gee, after a bunch of them have been around a guy can find balls without even trying, so I guess that even if prices are all shot, it all evens up."

We told the young gentleman that smaller individual profits and increased volume of sales was sound business procedure, and asked him if he'd ever tried to enlist the aid of his dog in the search for lost balls. "I did try a few times but it wasn't any use," he sadly replied. "The dumb pooch always thinks it's skunks instead of golf balls I want him to hunt, and he's too darned good at it so I have to leave him at home now." The kid thought deeply for a moment and then added, "Oh, brother, if they'd only find some way to perfume their golf balls with skunk oil, what a cleanup me and the dog could make." We pass the suggestion along to Messrs. Dunlop, Spalding and all the other manufacturers without comment.

We have ever been chary of trying to hand out advice to any politicians; but if some of the solons at Ottawa, Washington and London were to start a movement aimed at calling off the coming Olympic Games, in our opinion they would be doing more for the cause of international friendship than all their talk about the United Nations, atomic bomb control, and all the rest of it. Of course by so doing they would earn the eternal enmity of "the badgers" — those amateur authorities who are looking forward so longingly toward that free trip to London; but the public generally would approve.

Just let your mind travel back over past Olympics — those that took place when the world was comparatively calm ad settled — and recall all the unpleasant incidents, all the squabbling and name-slinging, all the international disputes and near-riots, and we think you'll agree that holding these Games under present conditions is just about as sensible as fooling with a gun that may be loaded. So, while there is still time, let's call the whole thing off. Why not write a letter to your Member at Ottawa? It won't do a bit of good, of course, but it will make the poor fellow think he's getting popular, receiving so much fan-mail.

U.K. Fishermen Fear Poor Season

Hundreds of small fishermen, who normally make a reasonable living from fishing in the Firth of Forth, have this year been hard hit by one of the poorest seasons on record, says The Edinburgh Scotsman. Herring has almost gone from these waters. No one knows why.

At present any boat which can make enough money to pay its crew £5 per week is doing extremely well.

Generally catches are so poor that fishermen, many of them ex-servicemen, are making only £2 to £3 for a week's work—a week in which each working day lasts for 16 hours and more.

The roll call brought out many interesting events of the life of the Royal Family. A number of new members were received making a total of 70 members present.

We were reminded of the annual convention at Williamsburg on May

The Mother's Day Tea was an outstanding event with a good attendance which netted a tidy sum of money. The appointment of standing committees resulted as follows:

Home Economics: Marion Coligan and Mrs. E. Leavens.

Social welfare, Mrs. Hubert Casselman and Mrs. M. Laurin.

After singing of O Canada, Mrs. Burns favoured the gathering with a very beautiful solo.

The president called upon Mr. C. Coughler who introduced Miss Gerlock from the Consumers' Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. She explained the care and steps to be taken in preparing fruits and vegetables for freezing and also demonstrated with pictures the containers with ways of using different types for storing in the locker plant, which Mr. Coughler operates in the town.

Mrs. Hubert Casselman voiced the thanks of the Branch to Miss Gerlock for the splendid explanation given, also Miss Coligan for securing permission from the School Board to use the auditorium for the meeting. Mrs. Foster, in closing the meeting, thanked Mr. Coughler for his co-operation in bringing the guest speaker to the meeting. Refreshments were served by the executive and enjoyed by all.

YOU CAN BORROW TO PAY YOUR TAXES

Low-Cost Financing Simplifies Repayment

"Many people who lack the ready cash to pay off the balance of last year's taxes have welcomed the convenience of a B of M Personal Loan" Charles Wood, local manager of the Bank of Montreal said, in discussing the bank's Personal Loan Plan.

"Lending money, after all is our business," Mr. Wood pointed out, "and we are glad to lend for any reasonable purpose if a person is in a position to repay.

"The cost is very low. For instance, you can borrow $100, repayable in twelve monthly instalments, for only 27c a month. For loans extending over longer or shorter periods, for more or less than $100, the cost is proportionately the same, equal to 6 per cent per annum, and there are no extra charges."

If you need money to pay taxes, or for any personal requirement, pay a visit to Mr. Wood, or to Mr. Whyte, accountant of the Bank of Montreal, who will be glad to discuss your plans and requirements with you. You will find that if your proposition is sound, there's money for you at the B of M.
