Water the big issue for South Dundas

WILLIAMSBURG–As we head into 2002, South Dundas Mayor Johnny Whitteker says council will have a full plate.

The biggest issue on the table is the mandatory upgrading of the water treatment systems for the villages of Morrisburg and Iroquois, a project that has a price tag in the $15 million range.

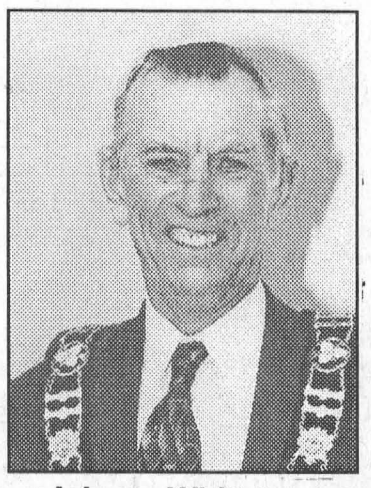

Although one third funding from both the federal and provincial governments has been indicated, approval for the South Dundas funding application has not yet been given.

With the new standards for water treatment set to go into effect December 31, 2002, and an estimated 18 month construction time it is obvious something will have to give.

"We've got to get approval and we've got to get it quick," says Whitteker. "We aren't going to meet the deadline now, and are going to have to ask for an extension."

"I would hope that come spring we'll be able to get the shovels in the ground. If we don't get the program in place, it's a disaster waiting to happen. All we are doing now is filtering out the fish and putting chemicals in to kill the bugs."

Mayor Whitteker also says, "As soon as we get the water through, we have to apply for the sewer."

Johnny Whitteker
South Dundas Mayor

An encouraging note for South Dundas taxpayers, is that the Mayor is hoping to be able to hold the line on taxes.

However, he points out, "I'm not in favour of cutting services to keep from increasing taxes. Some people aren't happy with services now."

Also high on the list of council priorities in 2002 is the development of the Morrisburg Industrial Park. Early last fall, council acquired land from the Meyer Estate, to replace industrial land lost when Dupont turned over their land to the Nature Conservancy of Canada.

Plans are to run a road east off Bank Street (Highway 31) to the Industrial Park. This will get the transport traffic out of Morrisburg and appease the Emergency Response Team which has suggested a second roadway into the park in case of fire or disaster.

The project will require the purchase of land from two property owners, which says the Mayor, will benefit them, as it will open up their land.

The Highway 31 roadway access into the park will be built, keeping future development in mind. It will be designed so services can be added later..."as we sell the property. The whole project, should increase our potential for industrial and commercial outlets by 100 percent."

Whitteker expects council will deal with a funding request from Winchester District Memorial Hospital. In December, the hospital requested $5 million from Counties Council to help with a projected $24 million renovation project.

"I'm sure the municipalities will be asked, and it's an issue we'll have to deal with," says Whitteker. "I think we, as a municipality, have to give."

"We are fortunate in South Dundas to have the Clinic in the south and Winchester Hospital in the north."

"If we don't keep it up (hospital), the government could say, 'let the the people go to Cornwall or Ottawa."

Whitteker says he is disappointed in the government's commitment to only 50 percent funding for rural hospitals.

"They have agreed to pay up to 70 percent for city hospitals, but in rural municipalities they agree to pay 50 percent. The cities are in a better situation to pay more than rural areas."

As well as the bigger issues, Whitteker looks forward to more murals, more signage, and continued work on roads and bridges in the municipality in 2002.

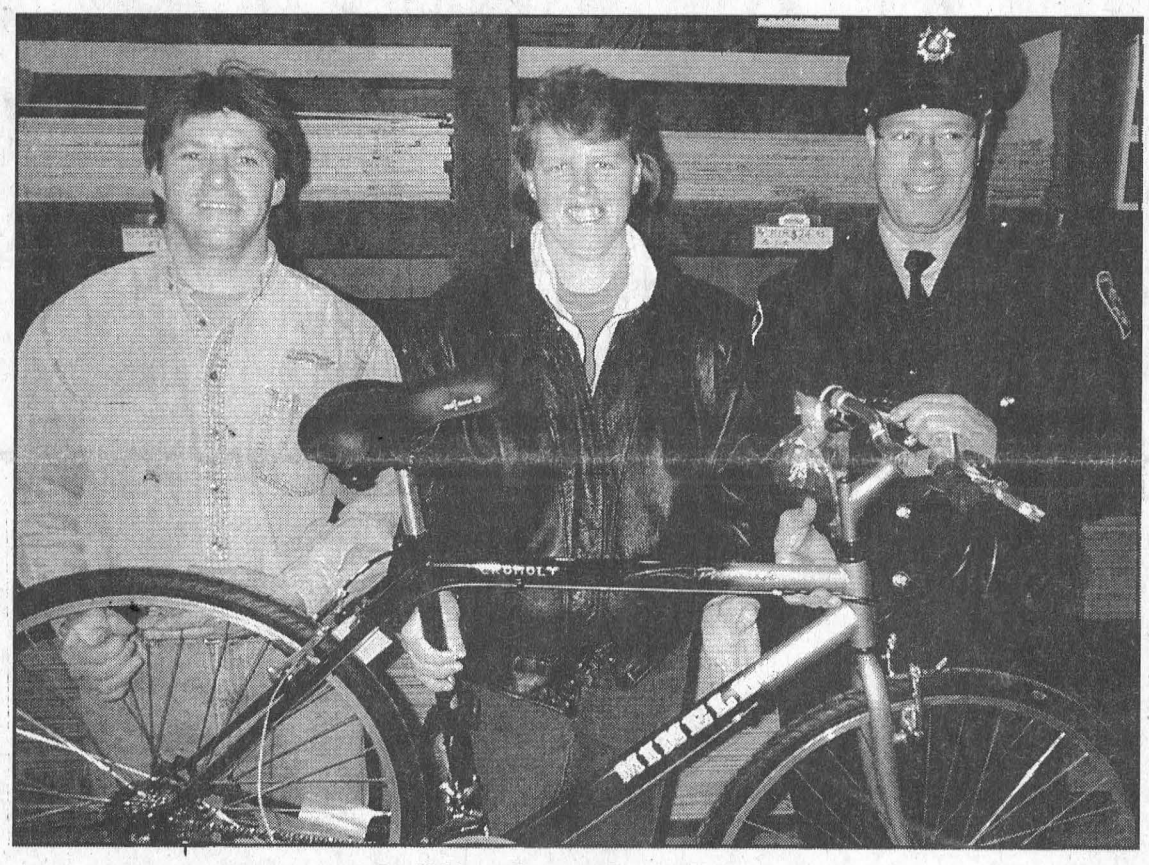

He says he does not expect council will deal with the issue of whether to retain the ward system in 2002. What form our local government should take, is something upon which he remains personally undecided. "I think we will have to get the feeling of the people. I know there are pros and cons either way. We'll try to do what the people want."

Whitteker expects the decision on the municipality's form of local government will be made in the current council's final year in office.

It is also in that final year that Whitteker will decide if he will retire from the political ring.

"Let's say there's a good chance I won't be running, but a politician always keeps his toe in the door."

Whitteker has held posts on municipal council since 1954, and would come up just short of the 50 year mark if he decides not to run in the next municipal election.

Building Centre Draw Winner

As part of last month's Door-to-Door Battery Campaign during which the Morrisburg Fire Department distributed nearly 2,000 batteries to area households, the Morrisburg Building Centre, which donated the batteries, held a draw for a Minelli Mountain Bike. From an unexpectedly large number of entries, Barbara Rabideau, of Riverside Heights, was picked to ride away with the bike, which she proudly hoists with the help of Rick Johnson, of Morrisburg Building Centre (left), which also donated the bicycle, and Scott Robinson of the Morrisburg Fire Department.

2001 St. Lawrence Seaway navigation season closes, capping a difficult year

CORNWALL – The St. Lawrence Seaway officially closed for the season on December 24, with the passage of the downbound vessel, Pétrolia Desgagnés, through the St. Lambert Lock near Montreal, Quebec. The Seaway opened its 43rd shipping season March 23, and remained open for 277 days.

"This season's results fell below expectations, in terms of cargo volumes and toll revenues," said Guy Véronneau, president of The St. Lawrence Seaway Management Corporation. "We have lived through difficult economic times and have had to contend with a number of adverse conditions over the course of the season, including a pronounced slump in the steel industry.

Coupled with drought plaguing the grain harvest in the Prairies, and low water levels in many sectors of the Great Lakes, cargo volumes declined markedly when compared to the last five years."

Despite these challenges, the Seaway met the objectives set out in the Corporation's five-year business plan. Achievements included progress in implementing new technology to improve productivity, the review and revision of numerous safety and security procedures, and a successful emergency planning exercise on the Welland Canal.

In addition, the Seaway reached a new collective agreement with its unionized workforce, building upon its record of 33 years of strike free service to the marine industry.

Mr. Véronneau also noted that the Seaway will begin negotiating its second five-year business plan with the Federal Government.

"We're under no illusions. We know the next five years will be very challenging, in light of the profound economic hardships affecting customers worldwide. Nevertheless, we are confident that our efforts to build a more cohesive marine transportation industry will bear dividends, and enhance the Seaway's role in international trade."

Estimated combined cargo passing through the Welland Canal and the Montreal-Lake Ontario sections of the system was approximately 40.76 metric million tons, 11.4% lower than in 2000. This drop in volume is attributed to declines in steel industry related cargoes (-43 percent for steel and -19 percent for iron ore), as mills cope with a glut of steel and a manufacturing sector in recession.

The total number of ship transits on the Seaway in 2001 was 3,580, 12.5 percent less than in 2000.

Estimated cargo traffic was 32.07 million tons on the Welland Canal alone (12.3 percent or 4.51 million tons less than last year), while traffic on the Montreal-Lake Ontario section was 30.55 million tons (a decrease of 13.7 percent or 4.84 million tons).

The St. Lawrence Seaway system closes during the winter to allow for a substantial maintenance program on its 15 locks and connecting channels, making way for an opening scheduled for March 26th, 2002.

The Port of Montreal remains open.

Large fires during 2001 kept area fire departments busy

WILLIAMSBURG–For the three fire departments in South Dundas, 2001 goes into the record books as a busy year and one that saw several very large fires.

The reports from the three departments, Morrisburg, Iroquois and Williamsburg, run from November 1 to October 31.

Although all fires are major to those involved, the area did see a number of very large fires over the past year, which accounted for a very large number of manhours and higher costs to the fire budgets.

The first major fire in this time frame was the Pierre Montroy house fire on November 22, 2000 which accounted for 77.5 manhours for the Morrisburg department.

On January 23, 2001 the Morrisburg department was called to an apartment building fire in Riverside Heights which accounted for 145 hours.

The next big fire was June 18, at the Williamsburg Wood and Garden Centre. This fire cost the Williamsburg department $17,408 and required 602.75 hours from their department. In addition, Morrisburg, which was just one of 16 departments to provide assistance, logged another 309 hours.

On October 7, the Williamsburg department added substantial hours fighting the Ed Merkley house fire in Williamsburg. That same day, the Morrisburg Department ended up at a barn fire as it was heading to Williamsburg to provide assistance. They logged 75 hours at the Whittaker Road fire.

The final big fire of the reporting period was on October 22, when the Parker Profession Painting plant in Morrisburg was destroyed. That fire added up to 383.5 hours for the Morrisburg department.

In all of these fires, more than one department was on the scene accounting for additional hours not accounted for in the individual reports.

In total, for the 12 month period, the Morrisburg Department answered 83 calls. These calls, combined with regular meetings, training, and attendance at local events, accounted for 2,472 hours at a cost of $37,080.

The Williamsburg department answered 46 calls accounting for 1,825 hours, and the Iroquois department handled 69 calls. (Their report does not show the manhours.)

Each of the departments works with a yearly budget that is adversely affected when large fires occur.

The Williamsburg Department had an approved budget of $76,075, but due to the nummber and size of the fires, actual costs ended up at $93,000.

In his report, fire chief Gary Barkley explained he was "over by approximately $17,000, due to an unpredictable number of man hours and replacing damaged equipment."

The Wood and Garden fire in June easily accounted for that $17,000. In that fire, the Williamsburg department used $4,056 worth of foam, the 602.75 manhours cost $9,041, $801 went to fuel for vehicles and small engines, $805 to repairs and oil changes for vehicles, $2,123 to replace damaged hose, $240 for ambulance transportation, $295 for food and water, and $46 for advertising.

All of the South Dundas departments handle a variety of calls. The Iroquois breakdown shows 10 calls for vehicle fires, eight for structure fires, 18 for grass and brush fires, five for auto extrication, two for ambulance assistance, 13 false alarms, five for smell of smoke or gases, one for medical and seven to assist another fire department.

The Morrisburg department answered five calls on the river, four involving boats and one providing assisted in a missing person search. There were seven responses to calls from the 401.

South Dundas clerk Brenda Brunt explains the municipality does not recoup fire costs from private (land or building owner's) insurance. There is payment from the province for 401 responses.

The best statistic not found in any of the three reports, presented to South Dundas council at their December meeting, was that of a loss of life or injuries.

The three departments all provide a number of hours each year to the public for fire prevention practises aimed at keeping these statistics out of their reports.

2001 NEWS REFLECTIONS 2001

Water on the Docket in July

A public forum was held to discuss various options concerning the upgrade and renovation of South Dundas' water treatment facility. Residents learned that each of the possibilities was likely to require an increase in service fees.

South Dundas Council passed a resolution opposing the restructuring of the Ontario Property Assessment Corporation, which would see the organization downsized, and moved to Toronto. It was feared that this would cost municipalities jobs, and threaten the effectiveness of the assessment process.

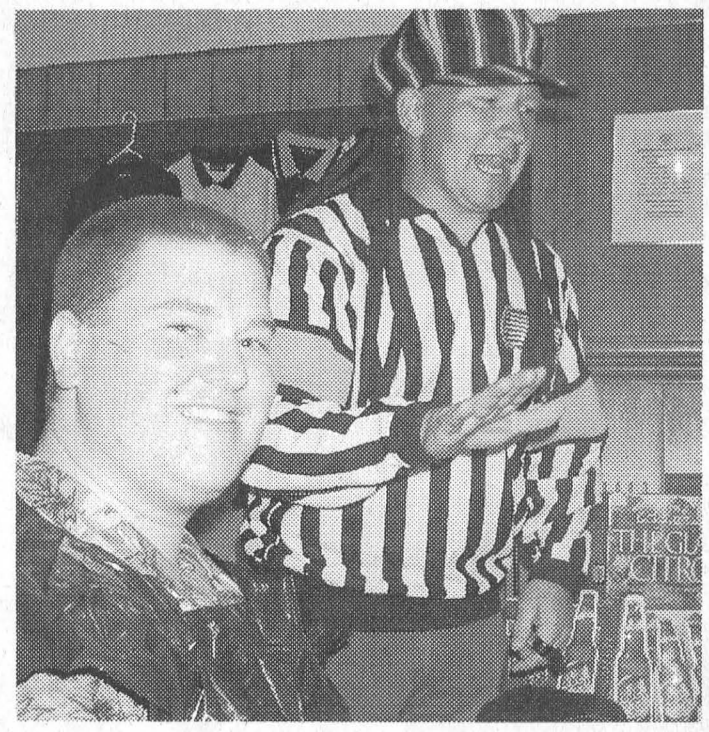

South Dundas mayor Johnny Whitteker requested greater funding from the Ontario Small Town and Rural Infrastructure program to cover costs associated with the township's water project.

According to a public survey in SD&G, libraries were ranked second only to fire departments as the most vital municipal service, by nearly 90 percent of respondents who considered libraries and essential service.

The Communities of Eastern Ontario Network received $25,000 to fund education programs in support of the township's new high-speed communication system.

South Dundas Council was asked by representatives of Morrisburg Minor Hockey for help with securing funds for further renovation of the township's recreation facilities

In response to a precedent-setting court case in Thunder Bay wherein a municipal council was successfully sued for awarding a contract to a local company instead of an outsider with a lower bid, South Dundas Council resolved to be more conscientious in future.

The Murals Began in August

A $40,000 grant from the Ontario Trillium Foundation allowed the Morrisburg Curling Club to begin work on replacing the roof of the local curling rink.

Results of a survey measuring the level of awareness and usage of the new high-speed communications network indicated that more education was needed to promote the facility.

Along with their annual list of improvements, the Morrisburg BIA submitted a request to Council for increased by-law enforcement in the Village Plaza.

Ten employees of Upper Canada Village won nearly $100,000 in the Lotto 6/49 draw and went to Toronto by limousine to collect their cheque.

Three businesses in the Morrisburg Village Plaza were burglarized, renewing concerns over the incidence of such break-ins.

Cathy Cooper-Scrivener began the first of the township's historical murals on the west wall of the Morrisburg Valumart.

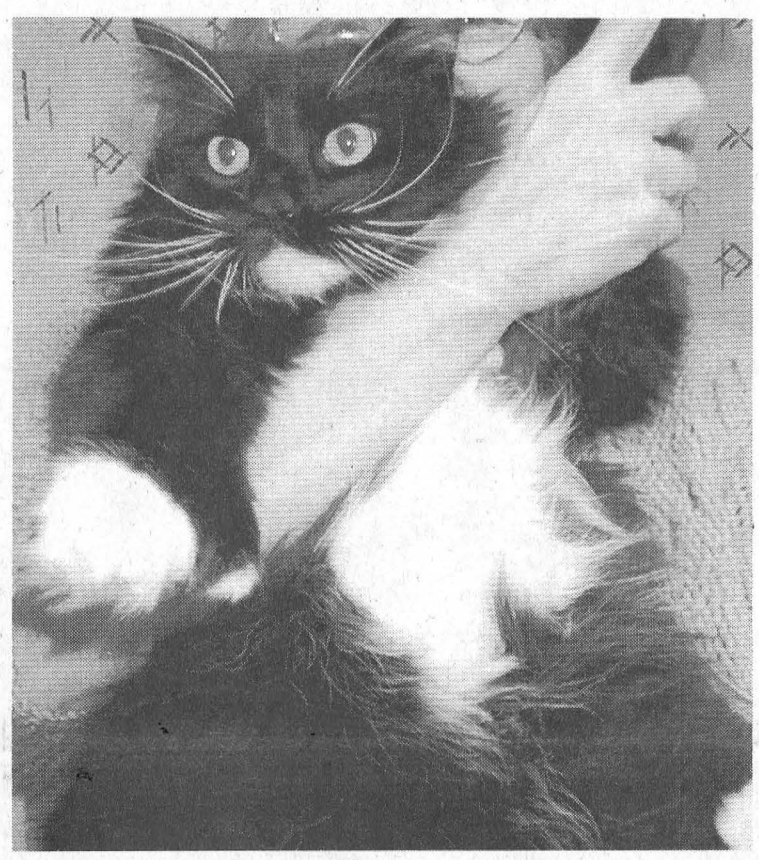

With over 80 teams and 5,000 visitors, the annual Volley for Cancer turned in one of its biggest and most successful installments ever.

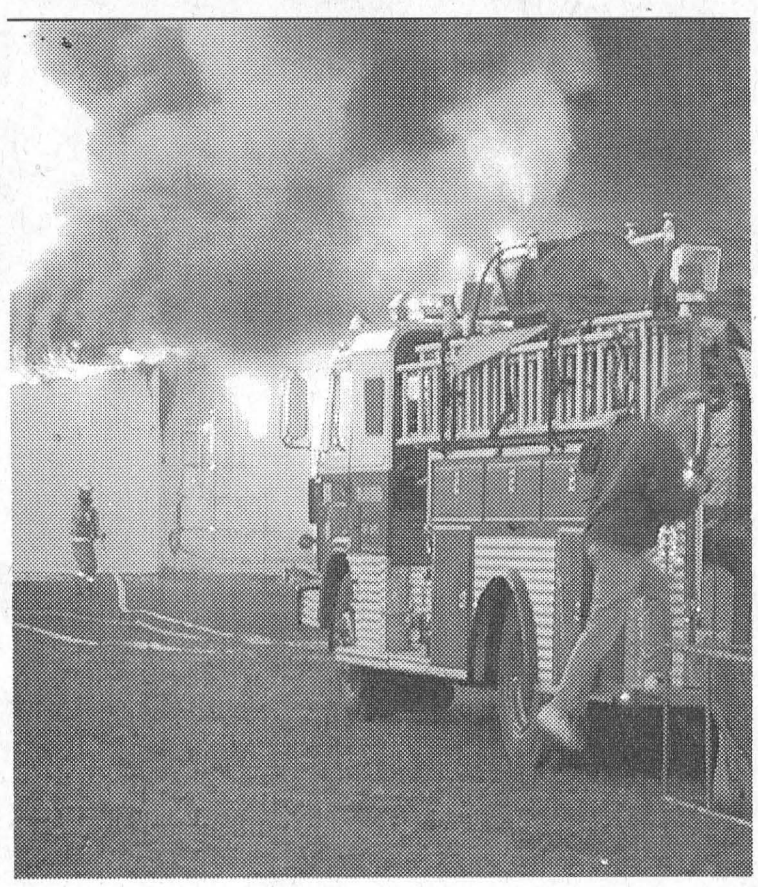

Dave and Sandasha Bough began the second of the South Dundas murals on the old school house in Dundela.

Burning bans, crop losses and water-usage restrictions were commonplace during one of the worst droughts experienced in South Dundas in years.

To commemorate the 150th anniversary of the naming of the village of Morrisburg, a plaque was erected in the Village Plaza at the former site of the original town bell tower.

DIAMONDS, a local land conservation group, was given $16,500 by the Trillium Foundation to continue their work protecting and preserving the South Dundas river front.

McIntosh Celebrated in September

A large crowd assembled to witness Mayor Johnny Whitteker, and a host of dignitaries that included MP Bob Kilger, cut the ribbon, and officially open the Morrisburg Branch of the Dundas County Food Bank.

The president of Morrisburg and District Minor Hockey announced that the organization will begin the season operating with a deficit budget due to a shortfall in municipal funding.

Organizers of the Woodlands Country Music Festival presented a cheque worth $5,400 to the Winchester District Memorial Hospital to go towards their dialysis fund.

The Upper Canada District School Board announced it would continue to provide bottled drinking water throughout its schools while the board set up its new water treatment systems.

Rideau St. Lawrence Utilities was hard at work correcting a computer glitch that saw customers of the hydro provider inundated with bills during the month of August.

As a result of terrorist activity in the United States, the Iroquois Locks closed down, and brought shipping to a standstill on Tuesday, September 11.

Artist Mike Kelly, began his mural on the exterior wall of the Upper Canada Playhouse.

In response to the growing population of White tailed deer, the Ministry of Natural Resources announced it would expand the hunt by making 900 extra game seals available for bow hunting.

Local radio station CISD, suffering from low ratings, the departure of its general manager, and minimal advertising, went off the air.

As part of a plan to extend advanced life support capabilities throughout the United Counties, four area paramedics went to Toronto for an Advanced Care Paramedic Program at the Michener Institute.

When final figures were released from Volley for Cancer, organizers were thrilled with the $35,000 the annual summer event raised for the Canadian Cancer Society.

A ceremony in Dundela brought a crowd of dignitaries and spectators to witness the designation of the hamlet as the birthplace of the McIntosh apple and as a place of national historic importance.

The Week In Curling

League play resumes next week, but the Morrisburg Club has been busy over the holidays with rentals and bonspiels. The Turkey Bonspiel drew a full slate of curlers. With turkeys for every member of the winning team in each draw, bottles for the 2nd place teams, and turkeys to be won for the draw closest to the button for the 8 curlers on each sheet, it was a night of winners. Tops in the early matches were Allan Harriman, Kathy Miller, Dave Black and Glenn Cougler. Doug Tupper, Betty Locke, Greta McGann and Bob Fortin finished 2nd, and Arnold Barkley, Sam Casselman and Dave Salsman won the turkey draws. In the late games, Don O'Brien, Al Gowanlock, Eric Johnson and Donna Stephens will have their names inscribed on the trophy, while Jack Dikland, Tony Toonders, Ron Brown and Sandra Beckstead took home the wine. Winners of the turkey draws were Donna Jeacle, Ron Brown and Don O'Brien. Margaret Reynolds was the big winner on the night, taking home the House of Gold proceeds, over $300 worth. Many thanks to Jack Dikland for organizing the Christmas bonspiel, and to his wife and friends who prepared the food.

In afternoon women's curling, the winners of the Annie Kincaid Shield were Cheryl Thompson, Sandra Beckstead, Kathy Norg and Donna Stephens. The presentation was a touching ceremony, with Cheryl's and Sandra's father, Mr. Smith, of apple orchard fame, there to see his daughters' triumph. We almost got him out onto the ice to throw a few rocks. Maybe next time.

The evening ladies had a wind-up bonspiel and party and announced their winning team for the first half of the season. Anita Cooper, Betty Locke, Shelley Broad and Sharon Annable will have their names on the trophy.

The Monday night men's league final will be played next week, the Thursday night competitive league con-tinues all year, and the winner of the Friday Night mixed competition was the team of Bob Bergland, Brad LeClair, Kathy Miller and Mike Felker. The daytime mixed champs were Don O'Brien, Betty Locke, Bobby Jack Hart and Eleanor Allison.

In Junior curling news, Waffen Scneckenburger, J.J Hollister, Jeremy Schnurr and Tim Boushel finished 3rd recently in a Prescott bonspiel.

To finish off reporting on the Zone 1 men's playdowns, Ken Sullivan of Russell won the 'B' title, and plays shortly in the Regionals.

And finally, for the curler from Denmark who read this column on the internet, a "snake river" is an unkind honorific for a team that loses every end in a match. There must have been an unfortunate curling club by that name. See you on the ice!

Three points for Lions

Lions win one, tie one over the weekend

MORRISBURG–The Morrisburg Junior B Lions kicked off a strong weekend here Friday night when they downed the second place Alexandria Glens 6-3.

That was followed by a 4-4 tie against the Kemptville 73s in Kemptville Sunday, and wrapped up a three-point Lions weekend.

The Lions remain in fifth place in the St. Lawrence Division standings, five points behind Kemptville who have been ousted from third place by the Winchester Hawks.

Friday night in Morrisburg, the Lions and Glens played to a 2-2 first period draw. It was in the second that the Lions turned it on to take a 5-3 lead, and they hit for a single unanswered counter in the third for the 6-3 win.

Veteran Lion, Carson Runions, who has recently returned to the team led the attack with two goals and singles came from Matt Bergeron, Matt Collins, Matt Bailey and Alex Gray. Shawn Pollard saw action between the Lions' pipes.

Answering for the Glens were Louis Brisson, Simon Langevin, and Pat Decoste.

The teams shared equally in the penalty department, both drawing nine minors, a five minute fighting major and a game misconduct.

Sunday, the Lions were in Kemptville where they collected a 4-4 tie.

They led 2-0 after the first period, but allowed the 73s to come back in the second and tie it. They went one up late in the frame, but again the 73s put one home to keep it even.

At 12:26 of the third Lions captain Wayne Garlough hit for his second of the game to give the Lions the 4-3 lead but again, they couldn't hold on.

At 15:02, the 73s Mario Bisonnette struck for his second to even it at four, and the tie held.

The Lions drew six minor penalties, a double minor and a game misconduct, and the 73s had four minors, a five minute major and game misconduct.

Lions goaltender Jamie Lalonde played solid, facing 43 shots, while Kemptville's Adam Levi handled only 32.

In pre-Christmas action, the Lions had a big game in Williamstown on Saturday, December 22 when they held the first place Char-lan Rebels to a 4-4 tie.

In fact they were all over the Rebels in the first period hitting for three successive goals, before the Rebels got on board to end the frame 3-1 in the Lions favour.

The Glens got one back in the second, but the Lions maintained their two goal advantage when Matt Bergeron struck unassisted just nine seconds into the third.

At 2:42 the Rebels again cut the Lions advantage to one goal and at 15:02 they evened it while on the powerplay.

Scoring for the Lions were Matt Bailey, Ghyslain Hotte, Alex Gray and Matt Bergeron.

Lions goalie Jamie Lalonde handled 44 shots including five in the overtime. The Lions had nine first period shots on Rebels goaltender Maxim Marion, and 16 against Tim McCuaig which included only two in the overtime.

On home ice on Sunday, December 23 the Lions were unable to keep pace with the high flying Winchester Hawks who are getting strong offense from Chris Nielson and Shawn Smail. The two hold first and third spots in the division scoring race.

On this day, Neilson scored one goal and set up three others, while Smail struck twice.

Captain Wayne Garlough, who had returned to the lineup from an injury which had him sidelined for a couple of weeks , made his presence known with two goals, and singles came from Matt Bergeron and Chris Cadieux.

Coming up this Friday night, January 4, the Lions host South Grenville at 8:15 p.m.

CARD OF THANKS

LEVERE–I want to thank my family for the 80th birthday celebration they gave me. For all the nice cards and their messages I received. For the gifts, phone calls and beautiful flowers. Thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who prepared and catered the delicious food. And thank you all for just being there.
–Verl Levere 1p

THANK YOU–To everyone who helped make the Community Christmas Dinner such a great success. Your donations of time, food, and money make this venture possible and enable us to do even more outreach into the community. Special thanks to the Morrisburg Legion for the use of their facilities and to the Seaway Pharmacy, Morrisburg Leader and Iroquois Chieftain for all their help. We hope to see you all again next year.
–The Apple Tree Ministry and friends
