Painted Floor Protection

Your painted floors get hard usage. Unless they are properly protected they become scratched, marred and unsightly. What they need is a special mar-proof varnish called Elastica Floor Finish—the finish that has taken 40 years to perfect.

What It Is

Elastica Floor Finish is a tough, elastic, waterproof coating. Tramp on it, roll heavy things on it, throw water on it—there is not a mark left on Elastica.

For Every Floor

Elastica Floor Finish isn't confined to painted floors. For natural wood floors, porch floors, linoleum and oil cloth, it is the ideal finish. There is nothing else like it.

PLATE GLASS WINDOW BROKEN

The plate glass window in Mrs. Verna Hummel's millinery show room was smashed in a peculiar manner about nine o'clock on Saturday evening, when the end of a plough crashed through it. Walter Hummel, with a plough in the rear of his wagon was attempting to turn his outfit in the narrow street opposite the millinery store and backing too close to the curb the projecting implement struck the glass with costly results.

DISTRIBUTING GLADIOLI BULBS

This week Principal Barlow of the High school, is distributing two hundred named gladioli corms to the pupils taking up the course in agriculture at Chesterville school. Last year a distribution was made by the Horticultural society from which many fine blooms were exhibited at the flower show last season. It is expected that a number of new varieties from Mr. Barlow's distribution will find their way to this year's show.

SUING THE C.P.R.

Past 60 years of age, hobbling about on one leg and a pair of crutches; Mrs. Eliza Murray, made her way slowly into the United States court at Syracuse, N. Y., on Saturday for the opening of the trial of her action for $25,000 damages against the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. She was one of a motoring party belonging to Moira, N. Y., whose car was struck by a C. P. R. train two miles west of Chesterville on September 6th, 1922. Her son, George and his sister, Mrs. Ellen Reynolds, were killed and Mrs. Murray lost one leg and suffered other serious injuries.

FETTERLY—VANALLEN

A very pretty event occurred at the home of Mr. Leslie VanAllen, on Wednesday April 23rd, at 5 p. m. Morrisburg, when their fourth daughter, Nina Lula Elizabeth, was united in holy matrimony with Stanley S. Fetterly of Chesterville, in the presence of immediate friends. The happy couple took the night train for Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls till Monday, when they returned to their new home at the farm near Chesterville, where a reception was held at 6 o'clock when the two families and a number of associates were present. Almost 100 presents were received to celebrate this event.

Every one seems pleased as Stanley has been slow moving in this way, being one who needed a wife very much.

A SHOWER FOR MISS MORAN

Miss Anna Foley entertained at a miscellaneous shower, given at her home on Wednesday April 23rd in honour of Miss Mae Moran whose marriage took place this week.

The gifts which were both numerous and valuable, showed the esteem in which the bride elect is held by her friends.

While the guests were assembled in the large drawing rooms, the gifts which were contained in an artistically decorated basket were wheeled to the bride-elect by the Misses Anna Foley and Cassie Moran. The bride-elect proceeded to open the parcels, assisted by Miss Helen Beehler who read the accompanying cards. Many a laugh was caused by the humorous verses and wishes written thereon.

Miss Moran who was very much surprised at the revelation that her evening call meant for her beautiful gifts and hearty wishes from her many friends, graciously thanked the guests for their kind wishes and gifts, and invited them to her new home in Limerick. Then all joined in singing "For She's A Jolly Good Fellow."

A very sumptuous and dainty lunch was served to the guests after which music, dancing and games were enjoyed by all until the wee small hours.

Although her name someone has changed, the girl, we know she won't but to her old true friends she will still be "Mae."

WHAT DO THEY SCRUB?

Guess my girl in college has changed her mind about basketball. She is evidently going in for something more useful."

"How so?"

"Now she writes that she has made the scrub team."

THE LATE ELIAS DROPPO

death claimed as its victim Elias death claimed as its victim Slias Droppo, at the age of 74 years, 1 month, and 5 days.

The deceased was the second eldest son of the late Francis Droppo, and was born in Finch Township where he lived all his life.

On Tuesday, previous to his death, he was found unconscious in which state he remained to his death. He had been in his usual health until this time.

Forty-four years ago Mr. Droppo and Miss Margaret McMillan were happily married. Eight children——five boys and three girls blessed this union—John and Earle of Moose Jaw, Sask.; Pearl, Stanley and Bert at home; Fay residing on the adjoining farm; Mrs. A. Outindyke, and Mrs. A. Heaslip of Campbellford.

He was a very upright man in all his business dealings having lived a consistent Christian life thirty-three, years and at the time of his death was a member of the Standard Church..

His fine property stands as a reward for his ambition and activity. He was always energetic in every undertaking. The deceased suffered much through ill health during past years but of late was quite active.

The funeral service was conducted in the home, by Rev. J. Carson, where a large number of friends and relatives gathered to pay their last respects to one they loved and honoured.

The pall-bearers were the three brothers, George, Ezra and William, and Mr. William Ouderkirk who filled the place of the other brother John, who was unable to attend owing to illness.

Interment was made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

BOYS' CAMP DATES SET

"Bob" Coleman, Hallville; Donald Ellis, Smiths Falls, and A. Shea, Chesterville, were in Brockville last week and with members of the Boys' Work Board attended a luncheon given in the First Presbyterian Church basement at which a round table conference regarding the Boys' Camp was held. The camp will be held this year again at Hudson's Point, about five miles west of the town, and the dates selected are July 5th to July 14th inclusive. The same committee will attend to the details as so energetically carried out the arrangements last season, with the exception of Rev. D. A. Cowan, who will act as director. It is expected that the Rotary Club will co-operate in providing entertainment for the camp and also arrangements for transportation and a side trip on the river. At the close of the luncheon a vote of thanks was tendered the social committee of the First Presbyterian church in providing the enjoyable luncheon.

FORTY YEARS IN COMMUNITY,. INTIMATE WITH NO ONE

On the floor beside his bed in a partly dressed condition the remains of A. J. Dyer, of Ingersoll, grocer, were found Monday in a small room above his store. For forty years Dyer had been in the grocery business there, yet when death came suddenly to him there was not a soul in Ingersoll from whom anything could be learned about him. No one knows where to return for relatives, although it is learned that he has a brother. No one knows what the ultimate fate of his estate will be. It is known that he was very successful in business and that he is worth a good deal. He had confidences for no one and, it appears, never became intimate with any one. He was a man of integrity and honour, but unknown, so to speak, in the community where he lived for forty years or so. His body was found when a clerk forced an entrance to the store at 8.30 after waiting a considerable time for Dyer to open the door. He was about 77 years of age and lived alone.

NESTLES FOOD COMPANY'S BUILDING SET ON FIRE

A case of attempted incendiarism is reported from Addison, Leeds county, where gasoline spread over the steps leading to the boiler room of the Nestles Food Company, formerly Palace cheese factory was ignited in an effort to burn down the building late at night. Had it not been for the presence in the stables of Verner Molton, an employee, who had just returned from attending a social function in a nearby village, and who discovered the fire shortly after its inception, the building would likely have been destroyed. The wall and door of the building were scorched before the fire could be put out.

VALUABLE FOX SKIN

There arrived in Renfrew on Monday evening, as part of Mr. D. W. Budd's baggage, the pelt of an Alaskan black fox which has a provincial reputation. It will be recalled that last December there was caught in a trap set by a Frontenac youth a splendid specimen of the black fox. Its capture was recorded in the press despatches to the daily papers. A little later the fact developed that Purdy Bros. of Mervale claimed the fox, holding that it was one which had escaped from their pens in which are several foxes of the same kind. The farmer's son in whose trap the fox was caught disputed Purdy Bros.' claim. A court case followed, and the Purdy freres got back the fox. From them Mr. Budd bought it, paying $400 for it. The pelt is over sixty inches from tip to tip and one of the very nicest which Mr. Budd has ever seen. Many citizens are viewing it with interest, particularly because of the publicity which it got in the press. The trap in which it was caught was located eight or ten miles from Purdy Bros.' premises. Mr. Budd thinks that Messrs. Purdy did something in a financial way for the youth who for a time felt that he had won "fame and fortune" through its capture.—Renfrew Mercury.

LATE MICHAEL RUDDY

The stern reaper of death has again visited the home of the Ruddy family 249 Lisgar St., Ottawa, and taken a devoted father in person of Mr. Michael Ruddy, aged 71 yrs. The deceased was born at Gananoque, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Martin Ruddy. In his early years he and his parents moved to Connaught, where he lived for a number of years and where he married Miss Katherine McGillies of St. Andrews, Ont., moving to Cascade Point, with their young family where they conducted a large hotel and boarding house for 8 years, after which he spent a number of years in Cornwall, successfully carrying on a business there. He came to Ottawa 15 years ago, settling on Lisgar st., where his children and himself conducted a select boarding and rooming house. Mrs. Ruddy died 10 years ago. The Ruddy home is decidedly marked for its kindness and hospitality. The late Mr. and Mrs. Ruddy were models of the true christian life, the sunny dispositions, the hearty greetings, the outstretched hands of fellowship, charity and sympathy were ever extended and those who had occasion to know them can truly say "They are gone but their good deeds will live on. "Many an act of charity to the several institutions at home and abroad were shown in their heavenly abode they are welcomed as good and faithful servants. He was a firm adherent and devoted member of St. Patrick's Parish, Ottawa; a member of K. of C. council, and a staunch Liberal in politics.

He leaves to mourn a devoted, attentive family, who faithfully attended him in his illness of three months and who are Misses Lillian Jean and Kathleen at home and two sons John of Buffalo and Thomas at home; two brothers James of Chicago and John of Berwick, two sisters Mrs. Martin Coyne of Crysler, and Mrs. Mannamon of Herkimer.

The funeral was held at St. Patricks church, Ottawa, where grand High Mass was offered by Rev. Father Brennan, with Rev. Father Smith as Deacon and Rev. Cody as Sub-Deacon. Interment was made in Notre Dame cemetery. The pall-bearers were chosen from Bayswater Council of K. of C. and the funeral was largely attended.

Work It Out

A young lady, who had tired of her lovers calls and fearing that he would never depart, gave him a little problem to solve. She handed him a pencil and paper and told him to make a row of elven ciphers, Then to make a perpendicular line downward at the right of the first, fifth and tenth ciphers, and upward at the right of the fourth, seventh and eighth cipher. After he had completed the task he surveyed it for a minute, and then without a word of explanation, suddenly departed. Work it out.

I.—THE VALUE OF BIRDS TO MAN

Every year millions of insects, their eggs and larvae are eaten by such birds as the chickadee, robin, flycatcher, swallow, woodpecker, and warbler. Because of this these birds are known as "insectivorous," which means insect eating. Ask the children to cite instances observed.)

These insects which multiply so rapidly and in such immense numbers, would devour all the vegetation in fields and in our forests, were it not for these little birds. We might save our orchid trees for a time, at least, by constant spraying, but we could never keep our forests alive in this manner.

A king, on one occasion, was greatly annoyed because the birds were eating some of his cherries, so he ordered that every bird on the premises was to be shot. This command was carried out and within two years there was not a single cherry to be found in his orchard, for the very simple reason that insects, unchecked by the birds, devoured the foliage as soon as it appeared.

To understand the value of birds and why they are protected it is necessary that we learn how important they are to man.

First we must realize that farming is the chief industry of Canada. Everyone is not a farmer but we are all dependent on him for the food we eat, the wool that is made into our clothingand the hides that are manufactured into shoes. We do not use all the grain, hay, cattle, fruit and vegetables that are raised in Canada, there is a great surplus. This surplus is the chief wealth of Canada and enables us to trade in the world's market. In short, we can say that Canada's prosperity is largely based on agriculture.

Farming is considered the most peaceful of occupations and yet the farmer in raising his cattle, grain, fruit and vegetables is at war with a great number of enemies.

In clearing and breaking his land he has destroyed the wild plant life upon which millions of insects fed, therefore, these insects feed upon the tender plants which the farmer has supplied in such abundance.

With this plentiful food supply insects increase very rapidly. Besides those which are feeding on the wild plants that have been destroyed, the farmer has, unknown to himself, brought other insects to his land, perhaps hidden in some plant sent from another country. The common white cabbage butterfly and other insects were imported in this way. These foreign species increase even faster than the native ones, as in the new country nature has not provided any enemies to hold them in check as she had for the native species.

But the farmer finds that in his war with the insects he has a host of allies who are working from daylight until dark to help in his fight against these enemies.

Among the most important of these allies are the insect-eating birds and because naturalists and farmers found it would be impossible to raise the crops, upon which we live without their help, it became necessary to protect them and to encourage them to live on our farms.

During the nesting season, when insects are most plentiful and are doingthe most damage, the birds begin insect hunting before daylight and work busily until after dark, carrying this food to their hungry nestlings. Young birds in the nest in order to grow must eat more in proportion to their size than the old birds. For this reason the parent birds will build their nests where insect food is most plentiful, so that the young birds can be feed quickly and often. This is why these useful birds if they close to our garden and fields where are not disturbed will build their nest so many insects are destroying the growing plants. Thus a few pairs of Robins have been known to eat all the cut-worms in a tomato patch that otherwise would have cut down all the young plants.

One man watched thirty-two adult Purple Martins (which are large swallows) all one day, and counted the number of times they went to feed their young with insects. The total number of times for the day was three thousand two hundred and twenty-seven, so you may imagine what great quantities of insects those few swallows destroyed in one day. The more swallows you have about your home in spring and summer, the fewer flies and mosquitoes you will have.

When there is an outbreak of locusts or crickets as sometimes happens in Canada, great flocks of birds of many different kinds will come from all parts of the country to feed on these harmful insects and save the country thousands of dollars worth of hay and grain.

From early autumn until spring many kinds of birds live chiefly on weed-seeds. The seeds of many common and harmful weeds were brought from Europe, mixed with the seed of grain and vegetables. These weeds have spread over the whole of Canada and no matter how carefully the farmer cultivates his fields, they are waiting to spring up and kill out the useful plants.

Now the seeds of these harmful weeds are greatly liked by many kinds of birds. Flocks of small birds will gather during the fall and winter and remain in the weed patches until all the seeds have been eaten. Not only do they eat the seeds that remain on the plants, but they scratch away the snow to reach those that have fallen to the ground. In this way they are working for the farmer in his fight against another enemy.

Gulls, terns, petrels, and other waterbirds are useful to navigators, fishermen and pilots, for in thick foggy weather their clamorous cries sometimes give warning to the mariner that he is nearing the rocks on which they breed. Fishermen often discover schools of fish by watching the sea birds which noisily pursue them in quest of food. Gulls are also useful about harbours and inlets where they devour the garbage and other refuse matter which is thrown into the water, thus often preventing the unsanitary and disagreeable condition which would result along our beaches if it were not for their services.—This will be followed by other articles showing "How Birds Are Protected" and "How Children Can Assist."

ASTHMA NEVER CAME BACK

Since Taking The Fruit Treatment in "Fruit-a-tives"

Read this letter from Mrs. J. M. Pennington of New Rockland, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered during the winter. I began having choking spells and would just gasp for breath and could not speak. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and soon the choking spells became easier and I have not had one since May 7th, 1920. It is such a relief to be able to go to bed and have no thought of having to get up in the night for an hour or more as I did all that winter, but never have to now, all because I take a "Fruit-a-tives" tablet every night.

MILES—CASTLEMAN

An unusually attractive house wedding ceremony was that which took place at 7 p. m. on Easter Monday, at the home of the bride's parents, Farrans Point, when Miss Olive Lillian Castleman, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Castleman, was married to Mr. Harold Reginald Miles of Montreal, son of Mrs. Miles and the late George Miles of Toronto.

Rev. A. W. Stewart of Aultsville Methodist Church, officiated, the wedding march being played by Mrs. A. W. Stewart, A. D. C. M. The rooms in the residence were effectively adorned with hydrangea and other potted plants, before which the bridal party stood. The bride who was given away by her father, wore a handsome gown of mauve embroidered chinchilla, and carried a shower bouquet of pink roses, sweet peas and maiden hair fern.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the rite of baptism was administered to Mary Maxine, the small sister of the bride, who was dressed in pale blue crepe-de-chene.

After congratulations had been tendered, the guests, numbering about twenty-five, repaired to the dining room, where a very dainty luncheon was served, the colour scheme being carried out in mauve and white.

The presents were numerous and costly and included cheques to the bride and groom from the firms in Montreal with which they were connected.

The groom's gift to the bride was a neckpiece of cocoa fox, and to the organist, an amethyst bar pin.

The happy couple motored to Aultsville and took the 10 o'clock train for Toronto where a reception will be tendered them at the home of the groom's mother.

The bride travelled in a navy suit with beaded overblouse and smart hat to match, and wore the groom's gift. Mr. and Mrs. Miles will take up residence in Montreal.

Mrs. Cucumber—Warningly to her daughters, the Misses Pickles) "Girls, watch out for those Potato boys, they are all eyes for you. Remember, they are from the underworld."

Young Carrot—"Dad, lend me a hundred seeds. I just bet on that Horse Radish and lost."

Old Carrot—"No you Prune! The only Thyme you Turnip is when you are raising Cane. Beet it and Lettuce have Peas!"

How Do Insurance Rates Indicate Relative Excellence of Various Cars ?

Ths Underwriters' Laboratories, a scientific institution in Chicago, tests all ignition systems and all locking devices on American automobiles. Upon their reports, the companies base their rates. It is significant that Dodge Brothers cars cost less to insure than any other car of reasonably large production.

Might Lose a Meal

An "eating competion" was organized in a mining town in the North of England. One competitor, a giant collier six feet in height, and broad in proportion, succeeded in disposing of a leg of mutton, a plentiful supply of vegetables and a plum-pudding, washed down with copious draughts of ale. He was unanimously declared the winner, and was being triumphantly escorted home, when he turned to his admirers and said: "Eh, lads, say don't hee say nowt of this to my old woman, or she won't gie me no dinner!"

Bill's Luck.

"I'm glad Billy had the sense to marry a settled old maid," said Grandma Winkum at the wedding.

"Why, grandma?" asked the son.

"Well, gals is hity-tidy, and widders is kind o' overrulin' and upsettin', but old maids is thankful and alyays willin' to please."

COWARDLY AND PERSISTENT MALICIOUS ATTACKS ON PREACHER

As a result of a cowardly, and persistent malicious persecution of Rev. J. H. Miers, D.D., B.A., of Knox Presbyterian Church, Perth, Mr. Miers announced during the course of his sermon in the church on Sunday morning that prompt and vigorous police action would follow the discovery of the culprits, who by means of anonymous letters and telephone messages have for a period of almost a year, by spreading false and malicious rumors, menaced the peace and health of his family by this cruel form of persecution. Mr. Miers stated that owing to the underhanded method adopted by the guilty party that he was left no means of unearthing the culprits, but later in the day was able to modify this statement somewhat by the announcement that the names of two of the persecutors had been discovered, and that they would be suitably dealth with.

MILK, NATURE'S PATENT

The dairy farmer should take pride in the fact that he produces such a splendid food as milk. He should consider this an unusual duty and take pride in doing that duty well.

When a big life insurance company, like the Metropolitan, devotes nearly a full page in one of the leading magazines to set forth the food value and necessity of milk, there can be no other conclusion but that it is the most important food for human beings. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in its advertisement says in part:

"There are times, now and then, when we all feel a little below par. If instead of rushing off for a bottle of Dr. Bunkum's Tonique to brace us up, we would go to nature herself for the greatest of all food tonics—milk—we would be a different lot of men and women.

"Milk is Nature's patent, the only food she ever made solely for food. It cannot be reproduced artificially. Only Nature herself can so blend all the elements of a well balanced diet as she has in milk.

"Milk sounds like a patent medicine when all its virtues are catalogued. It is the oldest prescription in the world—Nature's prescription for the building of strong, healthy bodies, Nature's revitalizer, Nature's maker of rich, red blood, Nature's nerve quieter, Nature's antidote for that "tired feeling'.

If milk were put up in bottles of a different shape and size, if it were given a fanciful name and announced for what it really is as 'the greatest body builder and health restorative in the world' people would flock to buy it at fancy prices."

"Drink more milk and save money."

If the dairymen of this country had as much enthusiasm for their product as the writer of this advertisement, we would need more cows to produce an adequate supply of dairy products.

WHO OWNS THE ROADSIDE?

Youth's Companion—The increasing use of the automobile has given new importance to the scenery along the Public highways. The enjoyment of a motor trip depends on the character of the landscape that unfolds itself as well as on that of the raodbed, so that preserving and improving the scenery becomes a matter of general interest. Less than half a generation ago few people travelled except by train or trolley more than a few miles from their homes. Now a family that owns an automobile has what the navy calls a "cruising radius" of hundreds of miles. The motor car has given wings to the average person. At the New England summer resorts and along the coasts of Flordia and southern California in winter there are automobiles from nearly every state in the union

The worst disfigurment of the roadside scenery has been bill board advertising. Resentment against it has become widespread, but, since it is usually on private property, it has resisted attempts to remove it by legislation. But what lawmakers have not been able to do is now likely to be accomplished by the pressure of public opinion. The advertisers themselves, seeking public favor, have begun to realize that publicity in a form that is objectionable to the public taste does not pay, and already fifteen large firms, all so-called national advertisers, have announced that as soon as present contracts expire they will voluntarily desist from defacing the rural landscape. In time others will probably find it to their advantage to follow the same course.

The movement began last year in England, when one big concern after another announced that it had given up billboard advertising as being against public sentiment. Their gain in good will was immediate. Restrictions on the size and position of roadside billboards have been adopted recently in Massachusetts and in other states.

But there are other unsightly structures by the raodside that the owners ought to remove for the common good—ramshackle barns, abandoned shanties, broken down fences covered with tinplate signs, rickety lunch stands, unbept stores, public dumps, untidy yards and littered porches. Such eyesores give an unfavorable impression of a town or a state. Spring is a good time to clean up, out of doors as well as indoors.

Automobilists too have certain obligations. Among them are the duties of respecting the roadside scenery by refraining from building campfires in dangerous places, leaving picnic sites untidy and destroying flowers and shrubbery along the roadway. The trailing arbutus, the mountain laurel willow hedges, the black alder and the holly have all suffered so severely from the vandalism of those who ride in automobiles that public opinion has been roused to vigorous protest and in some places has resulted in restrictive legislation.

FOLK'S I WANT TO BE AT HOME!

When the grilling day is over and the sun is going down; when the shades of night are falling on the country and the town; when the whippoor-will is calling and the wolf begins to roam; when the Mocking Bird is dozing; then I want to be at home.

When the storm cloud's in the offing and the mighty thunder rolls, when the lightning cleaves the heavens and the squirrel hunts his hole; when a sickening, inky blackness hides the azure dome; when the storm breaks in its fury. then I want to be at home.

When pink rosebuds are swinging so gently in the breeze, and the glorious sun is shining on the warblers in the trees; when the air is perfume-laden and the summer days have come; when all nature seems a-blooming, then I want to be at home.

When the winter snows are drifting in the icy, cutting gale; when the whiny wind is moaning a lonesome forlorn wail; with icicles on the barn roof like teeth in a mammoth comb, when the sparrows beg their breakfast, then I want to be at home.

When the pesky college closes and our girl is home again, cracking jokes and stealing pickles, and a-teasing her "old man," in spite of all obstacles I must be there when she comes; when her laughter's in the hallway, then I want to be at home.

When life is nearly over, when I face the great divide, listening to the voices calling to me from the other side; when the last great call is sounded and my final day has come, there's one prayer that I would offer, then I want to be at home.

THE SOUND OF THE ARCHERS

By Mrs. D. C. MacGregor
(Marian Keith)

The Drawers Of Water

The enemy had camped near the gate of the little walled town. Bands of marauders passed up and down the valley that led to it, or hid in the mountains on either hand, and swooped down with spear and sword upon any of the unwary inhabitants who dared venture beyond their own fortifications. By night the anxious townsfolk kept watch on their walls, lest a raid from the wooded heights above bring the armed hosts down upon them.

The greatest menace to their safety lay in the fact that their chief water supply lay outside the walls, and the steep rocky path that led down to the wells was often exposed to the hidden fire of the enemy archers. Ramah could not bear a long siege, and only by manning their walls and clearing the path for a time could even a meagre supply of water be brought to the inhabitants.

In the happy days of peace before the Canaanites had invaded the land the morning and evening drawing of water from the wells by the gate was a pretty ceremony. In the dim cool mornings when the red rays of the sun had not yet come up over the wooded hills, there would arise along the narrow streets of the little town gay voices and laughter, and the sound of light sandalled feet, as forth from the gate tripped the daughters of the people. A lovely procession they were in their brilliant girdles and flashing jewels: slim, dark maidens, erect and graceful, each bearing on her head a tall water-jar. With light tripping feet, the rising beams of the sun sparkling on anklets and braclets as they sparkled on the dewy hillside, with eyes dancing from beneath their veils, the laughing procession came forth. In the evening they sauntered down the path at leisure, and leaned their water-jars on the stone curb of the well to chat together over the simple doings of their tranquil lives.

The Sounds Of War

This was the sight that morning and evening greeted the admiring eyes of the elder folk in times of peace. Youth and joy danced forth hand in hand and the little walled hamlet seemed to blossom forth from its grim gate when the daughters of the city went down to draw water from the well. But all this was in the happy days before the enemy invadedthe land. Now this morning and evening rite was sadly changed. Trembling hurried feet sped down the rocky path, and the bright eyes beneath the veils darted here and there in a trrified search for a lurking foe in the groves above. And often the whizzing of an arrow lent desperate haste to the flying feet. There were tragic days, too, when the cruel archer found his mark, the wild shrieks arose from the panic stricken maidens as they jostled each other in the gate, leaving one of their comrades lying bleeding in the pathway. And in many a nome in Ramah there are wailing and smiting of the breast.

A Mother In Isreal

But the day of deliverance came to the little town. And it came through the devotion and courage of a woman who led the warriors of the land out to do battle to the foe. A short distance up the long hot valley from the city of Ramah, there dwelt a remarkable woman. Deborah, the great prophetess who was Judge over Isreal, and who dispensed justice in an open court room under the shade of a spreading palm tree. It was this Deborah who roused the warriors of Isreal to unite under the great leader, Barak, and drive out the marauding Canaanites from their land. And Ramah, and many another harassed little hamlet had rest from strife.

And under her spreading palm, returned from the battle whither she had gone to lead the forces of the Lord, Deborah sat and sang a song of victory and thanksgiving. This deathless hymn of praise has come down to us through the ages as one of the greatest songs of all literature. And its most triumphant and glorious note is a thrilling outburst of thanksgiving for those over whom had hung the terrible peril of the morning and evening visits to the wells beyond the gate:—

"They that are delivered," sang the inspired prophetess, "They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the place of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts of the Lord. . . Then shall the people of the Lord go down to the gates."

Who Follow In Her Train

Such an old tale it is, shrouded in the mists of antiquity, and yet how modern is this Deborah who judged Israel so many years ago. She seems more warrior than woman, this ancient Boadicea, who led her people in battle, but under all her barbaric fervor there was the true woman. She was really a "Mother in Isreal" and her mother-heart bled for the slaughter of the youth and beauty of the land. It was her mother-heart that made her rise and say to Barak and his fighting men that this slaughter must cease. And it has been this mother-heart all down through the ages that has sent woman out into the din and strife of the battle to rescue the helpless young from the archers who would cut off their bright young lives.

Deborah is the first in a long noble line of women all down the ages whose hearts have always gone out "To the help of the Lord against the mighty." These are the Mothers in Israel to the human race, the guardian angels who have been given charge over the heedless feet of youth to "Keep them in all their ways." A great protecting host, they are, set about the young and the helpless, lest they fall a pray to the spoiler who always lies in ambush about them.

Not To The Strong Is The Battle

Let us be thankful for their presence in our land today. And their task is no light one. For the enemy is at the gate and the pathways out to the wells of life are menaced by archers. Every true mother in Canada must realize that the road for her children's feet as they pass out through the gates of Home, is beset by fierce enemies. And there is one arch-enemy whom she will be called upon to meet very soon. His arrows have brought desolution to countless homes. Our best and brightest have fallen under his poisoned weapons, and the sound of mourning in blighted homes is never silenced. But the day of battle is approaching, and on that day he can be driven from the land. The mothers of Canada can go out to battle shoulder to shoulder with their Baraks, armed with the sword of their vote. It surely could not be possible that we in this age of enlightment will allow a greater enemy than the fierce Canaanite to blight our land and make our pathways unsafe for youth. The Liquor Traffic has been proven beyond all gainsaying to be an inveterate enemy of the human race. We must be rid of it, if we are to make the world safe for civilization. The day of reckoning with this foe is at hand. They who hear the sound of archers await anxiously the issue of the conflict. Our country waits. Yes, even the heavenly hosts "Bend in anxious silence" to hear the outcome of this mighty struggle.

"Awake, awake, Deborah! Arise, Barak, and lead thy captivity captive!"

The illustration shows an interesting test you should try in your own kitchen. It proves the superiority of good enameled ware for cooking purposes. Take an SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan, and a sauce pan of equal size made of aluminum, tin or other metal. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Set both sauce pans over the fire. The water in the SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan will be boiling merrily in about five minutes, while the water in the all-metal sauce pan will come to the boil in about eight minutes—three minutes longer. Save fuel in cooking. Use

WHAT OF OUR TOWN ?

(Con. by Wos. Institute.)

Our town holds a unique position in being the only municipality in Dundas Co. having a paved street. In this departure we are pioneers for better roads in all towns and villages of our county. Only one town in the county possesses a condensed milk factory and that is our home town of Chesterville. We are also well favored in having the nucleus of a good fire protection service in having a water main with its accompanying by hydrants. And latest but not the least of our many advantages is we have a real live association called the Chesterville Bowling Club.

We see that as regards roads, work, fire protection and play we are fairly well up to date for a municipality of our size, but what of education?

Our Public School building is a credit to our town, and we think from Principal Boyd to Miss Weegar—teacher of the little tots, it is well manned and womaned. Our Separate school under the tutelage of Sisters Pauline and Isadore is also doing good work: our High school the institute of secondary education—is also we think well staffed and is running for the last two years—with less friction than in some previous years and judging by the graduates therefrom in attendance at Normal Schools is also doing work. Thus far our schools are doing good work with the staff they have but are they going far enough. In conversation with Principal Barlow we find that a great number of our boys and girls desire higher education than our local institution takes up. Many of our girls at the tender age of 16 and 17 years are forced to leave our town to satisfy this desire for higher education. Where are these students? Instead of being in home at Chesterville they are in the towns of Kemptville, Morrisburg, Iroquois and Ottawa. Is it time for our town to increase the efficiency of our High school and thus keep our girls and boys with us for two more years of their lives especially at such an impressive age as 16 to 18? A little press discussion along this line might determine whether we shall stand still or go forward.

NOW'S THE TIME

Tell us not in mournful numbers that this town's on the bum; rouse up from your peaceful slumbers; get out and make things hum. If we go to work in earnest; we can make things hit on high; "dust thou are, to dust returnest," is a song of by and by. All the past is done forever—you can't call one moment back—and the future may come never, this is true, so help me Mack. Now's the time to do your boosting, do not wait tomorrow's dawn, in the grave you may be roosting, all your boosting chances gone. Lay aside your little hammer with a joyful blast or two. This old town is sure a pippin', and we ought to boost itbig, when we hear some growler yippin', we should smite him on the wig. Mighty oaks that grow and flourish come from acorns plain and small; with your boosting you may nourish something that may help us all; something that may prove a blessing to the toiling sons of men— that's the point that I am stressing—boost and boost, then boost again. People love the smiling booster, and for him they loudly cheer, but they hate the knocking rooster, long to pelt him in the ear. Boost your country and your business, boost the people in your town, they will dub you wise and witty and you'll gain a wide renown.

THE REAL TRUTH ABOUT BOBBED HAIR

By G. C.

The comic cartoonists who as a rule see the truth ahead of preachers, editors and statesmen have made a serious slip with regard to bobbed hair.

The theme of all the comics is the objection and rebellion of man over this new fad of woman.

But the fact is, man is not in rebellion. He is tickled to death. For bobbed hair eliminates one of the major grievances of married life.

To see a beautiful girl stand in front of a mirror and with the aid of little bits of rag, twists of paper or with little contraptions of wire and elastic slowly and deliberately go about the job of rendering herself hideous is one f the terrible experiences awaiting all husbands.

one of the terrible experiences awaiting all husbands.

A beautiful sleepy girl in the early morning is not such a picture of misery as is generally supposed. But a beautiful sleepy young lady with her hair all screwed up in pigtails with bits of paper or rubber has little if anything on one of those Fiji Island belles you sometimes see in the rotogravure section of the paper.

It is no exaggeration to say that more romances have been wrecked by curl papers than by villians. A great motion picture drama is yet to be written on the subject of curl papers. The trouble is, to get Gloria Swanson to appear on the screen in the abominations. Any healthy young man can stand burnt bacon, half browned toast, bitter coffee: but no young man can stand curl papers.

Bobbed hair is the greatest advancement in the feminist cause of the twentieth century. The vote is nothing compared with it. America is worried sick over the divorce problem. I venture to predict that divorce will be diminished fifty per cent.—by bobbed hair.

It is the dawn of a new era. Another age of chivalry has been born.

No matter how towsly bobbed hair may become, it still retains its charm. A sleepy young lady with bobbed hair is just so much more charming than a small boy with towsled hair. There is an air of carelessness and happy-go-luck about it. Hair done up in curl papers has the air of something so devilishly careful. Man was disillusioned, that such horrible methods had to be employed to obtain the beauty he desired.

One of the remarkable features of the bobbed hair problem has been the apparent objection of many men. This has been responsible for the misapprehension of the comic artists. But psychology explains that all away.

Since few men are completely and wholly faithful in thought and deed to their wives, since few men will not flirt mildly. few men really demand a perfect wife. If a man has a perfect wife, he feels a scoundrel. To avoid that uncomfortable feeling, men unconsciously welcome slight imperfections in their wives.

The commonest imperfection in wives has for perhaps five hundred years been that they do their hair up in curl rags. When this imperfection passes, what has man left by way of self-excuse for his little philanderings?

That is why you will find men, who possess perfect wives with the single exception that they do their hair up in curlers, obstructing their wives' desire to have their hair bobbed. The more perfect the wife, the more determined will be the husband's objection to bobbed hair. If she bobs her hair she will be perfect. If she is perfect, he will either have to be perfect too or feel a scoundrel. And that is a hard proposition, both ways.

But one of the mysteries of the twentieth century is the way women are seeing through the little obsessions, the small psychological formulae of men.

And bobbed hair is one of the challenges of feminism that is chasing men into the strenuous but beautiful mountains of perfection.

FOR BETTER GARDENS

Ottawa Journal—In striving to promote better gardens in Ottawa the Horticultural Society is doing a work of the finest civis value. For the man or woman who makes a flower grow where there has been little but ugliness is doing a work for the community the value of which cannot be measured in mere dollars and cents. He or she is helping to make life a little less drab, to make living a little more beautiful, to promote happiness and contentment and a more joyful existence in the homes which these flowers surround.

"God Almighty first planted a garden," said Bacon; and we know that there is a real relation between beauty and religion, between love of flwers, which are among nature's most bounteous gifts, and veneration for what is best and most spiritual in existence.

Come On Down

Hank Stebbins kept a sporting goods shop just below the place where he lived, and among other commodities sold fishing rods. In the line of advertising, he had a rod displayed outside, with a papier mache fish dangling at the end of it.

In the small hours one morning a barage of pebbles was thrown at his window, and when he had climbed out of bed, he discovered on the sidewalk below a man swaying a trifle unsteadily and beckoning to him.

"What's the matter?" demanded Stebbins.

"Sh-h-h!" cautioned the stranger. "Don't make any noise, but get dressed right away and come down. This is important.'

Considerably worried, the storekeeper scrambled into his clothes and descended.

"I just wanted to tell you," announced the other in a loud whisper, "to pull in your line quick. You've got a bite."

Recipes

Tested and approved

(The Record during coming weeks will publish recipes in this space, that have been approved by members of the Women's Institute)

PLAIN OMELET

Beat the whites of four eggs to a stiff froth, and the yolks to a thick batter. Add to the yolks 4 tablespoons milk. pepper and salt to taste, and stir in the whites. Pour on a well buttered frying pan as the eggs cook, draw up lightly from side of pan and let raw part run out on pan till all is cooked. Turn one half over the other and serve hot.

POTATOES A LA CREAM

Heat a cup of milk. Stir in a tablespoon flour made smooth in a heaping tablespoon butter. Stir until smooth and thick. Add a little pepper and salt and two cups cold boiled potatoes sliced. Cook until potatoes are heated all through. Fnely chopped parsley may be added if liked.

Cut this out and paste it in a suitable book with those to follow and eventually you will have a valuable cook-book.

WHY DO GIRLS LEAVE HOME?

(By Kate E. Carr.)

Police records show that no less than 60,000 girls are reported missing in the United States annually. In New York alone 4,000 disappear. As not all such cases are reported, it may well be assumed that the real number far exceeds these figures.

Fortunately, the Travelers' Aid Society at railroad stations reaches out a protecting hand to a number of these girls before much harm has come to them. But the wide search for many others is very often futile, and convinces us that the dangers entailed are rarely exaggerated.

Why do these girls leave home? Who is to blame?

Maximilian Groszmann, who has made a deep study of child problems, mental and moral, says that there are three outstanding reasons for this leave taking from the parental roof, but that the fundamental cause is found in the home itself.

The element of venturesomeness plays a part in the runaway girl's life. In the adolescent period, strange longings evolve in the minds of our young, and as a result strange impulsive actions may follow, unless great care is taken in the school and the home to provide a less dangerous outlet for this natural motive.

The lure of the great cities is a second reason given by Mr. Groszmann for this home exodus. The stories which reach the quiet towns and isolated communities concerning the hustle and pleasure ways of our cities make a strong appeal to the inexperienced girl.

Love affairs, fancied and otherwise, is the other cause given which may draw girls from the protection of home life.

But, be it venturesomeness, be it the lure of the city, be it a love affair, in any case there is an indication that something was lacking in the atmosphere of the home—or the girl would have been more reticent in her leave taking.

A girl whose individuality and natural emotions are recognized at home, whose home life is made interesting and cherry, whose mother can enter into all her little and big interests, joys and sorrows, and who strives to keep her daughter's confidence; whose father is the best male friend she has—will never run away from home.

WHEN TO PRUNE FLOWERING SHRUBS

(Ontario Horticultural Association.)

The main reason for pruning shrubs are (1) To encourage the plant to produce more or better bloom or fruit; (2) to keep the plant healthy, vigorous and shapely.

Pruning at Time of Planting

Newly planted shrubs or trees should be pruned to restore the balance between the roots and the top. The strain in transplanting is severe, as the plant has lost fromone-half to two- thirds of its feeding roots. To restore the balance between the leaf area and the root system the former is correspondingly reduced. In this way, also, the shape of any bush may be determined to some extent at time of planting, and this is particularly true in the case of large shrubs and ornamental trees.

When to Prune Flowering Shrubs

Flowering shrubs may be classified as to time of pruning under two heads (1) Those that blossom in May or June, and (2) Those that blossom later than June.

Class 1—Shrubs in this class should be pruned immediately after they have flowered, as they form during the summer months the buds for next season's bloom. If pruning is deferred until later, next season's blossom will be removed. The most familiar shrubs in this class are lilacs and spireas, the flowering or sweet-scented currant, Golden Bell (Forsythia, Siberian pea tree (Caragana) and Snowball (Viburnum Opuls.

Class 2—Bushes that bloom later than June should not as a class be pruned until the leaf buds show in the Spring. The best examples of shrubs in this class are the Hydrangea (Arborescens and paniculata) and the bush roses. On shrubs of this class the flower bud is produced in the year of flowering and not carried over from the year previous. The more severely such shrubs are pruned in the spring, the larger the flowers will be, but, speaking generally, it is well not to prune too severely as a moderate number of medium sized flowers is better than a few large ones.

While the rough grouping of all shrubs into two classes for the purpose of pruning answers all practical purposes, there are some shrubs that may be placed in either class to suit convenience or local conditions. The shrubs known as Mock Orange (Philadelphus) may be pruned in summer just after flowering, or the pruning may be deferred until early Spring, at which time the canes should be shortened slightly and the old wood thinned out. The Japanese rose (Rosa Rugosa) another highly attractive summer flowering shrub, might theoretically be pruned after it has finished flowering, but in practice is seldom pruned until early spring, one reason being that its fruit is an attractive feature in autumn. Evergreens should not be pruned but should be allowed to take their natural form, except when sheared as hedges.

HAS LEG BROKEN PLAYING FOOTBALL

A serious accident happened Monday at the Glen Tay school house when 13-year-old Boyd Brady had a leg broken. The lad was rushed in to Perth to Dr. Cameron and had an X-ray taken of the break and was then taken back to his home. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Brady near Glen Tay. The victim of the accident was playing football with a number of the other scholars of the school in which there are two forms. It seems Boyd was kicking at the ball when one of the otherpupils stumbled and fell across Boyd's leg, thus causing the fracture. The football had just been presented to the school Monday it being a prize given to them for coming first of all the school section No. 3 f Bathurst in physical training.

He Sure Will

"Doctor, can't you help my husband?"

"What's the matter with him, madam?"

"Oh, he worries so."

"About what?"

"About his money. Can't you please do something for him, doctor?"

"I think I can. Send him to me. I'll relieve him of some of his trouble."
