Fire at Cannamore Destroys Home Of Ellis Thompson

The large brick house belonging to Ellis Thompson at Cannamore was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. It was a total loss but the contents were saved. A member of Chesterville Volunteer Fire Brigade was slightly injured by falling bricks. He was Walter Whittaker.

The fire brigade was called out Tuesday morning to a fire on the township line back at Cannamore. The solid brick house of Mr and Mrs Ellis Thompson was on fire, from a blaze that appeared to start in the attic. Mrs Thompson was alone at the time as her husband was back at the Cam Thompson farm working.

Neighbours flocked to help but even though contents of the structure were removed the fire was too great to control when the pumper from here arrived. It is estimated the loss will be over $15,000. The house was very well built and was constructed some 55 years ago by the late Will Campbell.

Army Recruitment Plans Outlined Here

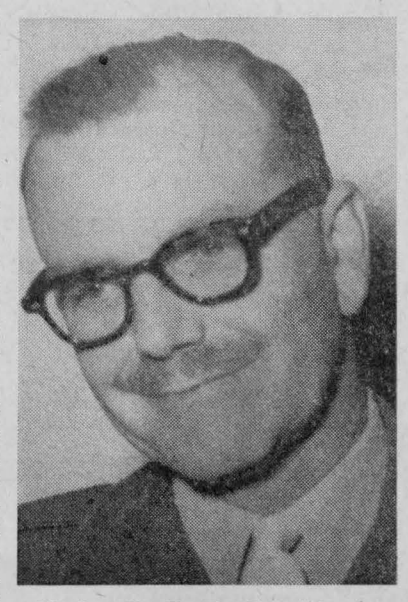

Chesterville Rotary club members listened to an Army spokesman Monday night. He was Major B. R. B. Carr-Harris, M.C., who outlined some of the present plans of recruitment for the Canadian army. He especially mentioned the soldier apprenticeship plan and the officer training plan. He was introduced by Bert Gillard.

Present as guests of the club were Dr Wilson H. Lloyd, Belleville, formerly a G.P. here, Lloyd Jones, of the high school staff, cadet captain Peter Bawden, Carl Merkley and Hubert McCloskey, of town. Sgt. Ken Pearson, son-in-law of Robert Ouderkirk, accompanied the major.

During the business of the meeting a suggestion was made that the club purchase a record player for the teen-agers to help along their new club. Authorization was given from a motion by Bawden and Casselman to make the purchase, with the understanding that ownership of the unit would always remain in the Rotary Club. Legion member Carl Merkley suggested that some use could be made of the Legion loudspeakers to amplify the player. He felt sure the Legion members would allow the system to be used.

New Kind of Soldier

Major Carr-Harris noted that the vast increase in technical devices in modern warfare was demanding a new kind of soldier. There was a great need for leadership in the ranks and the new training plans were aimed at helping provide that leadership.

Major B. R. B. Carr-Harris

The speaker outlined the apprenticeship plan, stating that students from 16-18 years old were eligible for the two-year training. The course was divided into three parts, academic, trade and military. Academic standards are about the same as those of high school and the trainee receives the equivalent of a Grade XII education along with a skill as a trade and his military training. After completion of the course he works at his trade in the army; at the end of a seven-year tour he is a full-fledged journeyman in the trade of his choice.

The trainees receive $54 per month until they are 17, then get $108. When they are halfway through the course, the pay has risen to $127.

The officer training plan takes in Senior matriculants and sends them through any college of their choice at the expense of the army. Students at the service colleges, R.M.C., Kingston, Royal Roads, B.C., College Royale Militaire, Quebec, must finish their degree year at a regular university. There they are full lieutenants and besides all tuition and other charges get $125 per month; they get $60 per month in the service colleges.

Officer trainees are in service for three years after graduation. At the conclusion of that period they can either resign or sign up again for a longer term.

United Evening Auxiliary Holds May Meeting Regretfully Accept Resignation of C.G.I.T. Leader

The resignation of Mrs F. M. Cass as leader of the C.G.I.T. was accepted at the regular May meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of Trinity United Church, Chesterville, on Tuesday.

Under the leadership of the president, Mrs Hilda Belsher, the meeting, which was held in the church dining room, opened with the hymn "For the Beauty of the Earth," with Mrs James Fyke at the piano. Mrs Jack Doering called the roll and read the minutes of the April meeting and of joint executive meeting with the Afternoon Auxiliary.

Reports were given by Mrs Doug Hitsman, treasurer; Mrs Leroy Smith, friendship secretary; Mrs Dalton Casselman for the birthday fund.

Mrs Eric Casselman announced that the Explorer and C.G.I.T. affiliation and graduation services would be held on May 22 at 7.30. All parents and W.M.S. mothers were invited to be present.

Members were asked to consider the matter of a replacement for Mrs Cass as C.G.I.T. leader. Mrs Cass stated it was necessary for her to give up the leadership of C.G.I.T. due to the pressure of other duties. It was with much regret that her resignation was accepted.

The committee for the June meeting will be Mrs Edwin Forward, convener, to be assisted by Mrs Dalton Docksteader, Mrs Hilton Reid, Mrs Alf Jarvis, Mrs Bill Fulton and Mrs Foster Bowman.

The theme of the worship service was "Understanding Each Other" and was presented by Mrs H. Keith Graham, assisted by Mrs Bert Gillard, Mrs Lloyd Smith, Mrs Leroy Smith, Mrs Foster Droppo and Mrs B. W. Lapp.

During the program period a film from "CARE" was shown, which depicted the type of work done by this organization. The need for help and the nature of the help given by "CARE" was illustrated by cases from India, Greece and Japan.

At the close of the film Mrs Graham thanked H. K. Graham for attending the meeting to operate the movie projector.

After the Mizpah benediction, lunch was served by Mrs Graham and her committee, Mrs Foster Droppo, Mrs B. W. Lapp, Mrs Leroy Smith, Mrs Lloyd Smith and Mrs Bert Gillard.

Council Considers Problems Of Poles, Parking & Streets At Monday's May Meeting

Members of Chesterville council, the reeve and clerk met for the May meeting Monday night in the clerk's office. Those present were reeve McMillan, clerk H. C. Hummel and councillors Erwin and Carl Merkley, Al Butcher and Harold Sharkey. Several members of the town waited on council for information.

Chesterville hydro affairs were in their normal good condition. Lights in the park have been finally repaired after considerable searching for a short made by pranksters with .22 rifles.

A letter was read from Ontario Hydro engineering office; it had to do with an inquiry regarding the poles along Main St. A traffic hazard exists with the street narrowed by the present position of the hydro and telephone poles. The answer received indicated some measure of relief could be gained if both hydro and telephone lines were carried on one set of poles. No decision was reached on the matter.

Council affairs were quickly disposed of. There was little new business on the agenda. After passing the minutes of the previous meeting and withholding approval on a couple of special ones, Geo. Chambers was asked to present his petition to council. Mr Chambers stated he would like to rent a bit of municipal land next to the hydro building on Queen St. It was his wish to have some land available for display of machinery, especially tractors, near the garage. He stated he was moving all the other machinery out to his house lot on South St.

Council discussed the Chambers matter at some length. It was decided to go ahead with original plans to clean up the lot and fence it, then see what land was available for the Chambers proposition.

Streets and sidewalks will come under survey this week in preparation for the annual estimates and overhaul. Members of council will make an inspection tour shortly.

The building and zoning by-law problem was further discussed. In the absence of the village solicitor during the week, council felt it necessary to set up an appointment to arrange to have the by-law drawn up at the earliest moment.

The motion to pay accounts saw the following bills paid:

Village Accounts

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Chesterville's Streets

Any time now members of council will sally forth and look over the village potholes with an eye to repair and improvement. Like the robins in the spring and the pike running in the crick, that annual exodus is to be looked for. Shortly thereafter patching is started and the worst of the canyons receive their annual increment of patching material.

It will not be too long before a full-fledged program of street rebuilding will be needed in the town. There are streets that get a lot of traffic that were built for the horse and they have not been changed much. There are hydro and telephone poles that stand as targets for car fenders that need to be shoved back or relocated. Council has started an investigation in that direction now, but much remains to be done.

A street program will not be done for peanuts. It will absorb considerable of the taxpayer's money; but as long as a very limited program is followed with strict adherence to spending only sums that will receive grants, then we will make very little headway against the wear and tear of present-day traffic.

The unpalatable fact is becoming more evident each year that a full-fledged program of street rebuilding must be organized by the city fathers. Street repair and rebuilding to a grant limit is not enough. The capital value of the town must be maintained; the new assessing manual assumes good housekeeping in the street department that services the houses and businesses that produce the taxes.

Another Rail Strike

Not too long ago, it seemed impossible Canada would ever have to endure a strike on any of her railroads. Now it is rather to be expected when things don't go just right for some of the operating unions.

There seems to be little doubt the trains on CPR will stop on May 11. The firemen have heeded the call from below the border; the word is to get out and stay out until the rights and privileges of owning a goldplated feather bed are tested. Canadian communities caught without transportation, in the meantime, must take their lumps and like it.

It is difficult to understand the union attitude that is making the strike a thing on our near horizon. The railroad has stated before the Kellock Commission its intention to keep the changeover under control so as to cause as little hardship as possible. Doing away with the classification of fireman in freights and yards will not lessen the number of men in an engine cab; it will do away with the fireman rating at higher pay and allow for apprentice enginemen to work the front ends until they reach enginemen status. The usual three men will be there.

The public has become just a little tired of some of the outrageous demands hurled at employers in the sacred name of labour gains. Especially in these days of questionable prosperity, it is becoming more and more evident that further increases in salaries and shorter hours must be balanced by higher productivity on the part of labour or a reshuffling of old and obsolete job classifications.

The railroads have a nasty problem in their laps; the firemen are being goaded by the blue-tailed fly from Cleveland to demonstrate for their many American brethren. They are glad to let the little northern neighbour take the lumps for their profit.

Trucks and buses will be busy after the deadline on May 11. How long Mr Diefenbaker's government will allow the strike to last is a debatable point.

Bits and Pieces

Council received the word from Toronto. It would appear that movie operations are not classed as allowable business for village councils and they reluctantly had to turn down the original proposals for reopening Community Theatre.

Mud pouts have been biting with considerable vigour this past week. The little fellows have been supplying some first class meals. In our case we have a new motto: "Have worms—no time to fish!"

The Record office staff has a brand new fond parent these days. He has had considerable difficulty of late thinking up original By's lines for the front page upper right ear; small daughters are remarkable devices to keep a man's mind occupied.

Not for the Nervous

A six-month tour in Kenya, Tanganyika and Uganda, where he travelled 15,000 miles by car to introduce a new British drug to doctors, provided sales executive Miles Fletcher with some interesting but at the time unnerving experiences.

Recounting some of them on the BBC program "The Eyewitness," he mentioned an incident near the Murchison Falls in Northern Uganda, when he topped a small rise and saw in the dip in front of him a herd of about 70 elephants.

"I had been told on no account to stop my engine," he said, "but to keep it running so that if the elephants started to walk my way I would at least have time to reverse. I had been sitting there for about half an hour when the water in the radiator boiled, and at this moment the herd started walking in my direction."

Knowing that the herd could reduce the car to a mass of scrap iron, Mr Fletcher could only hope for the best as the elephants came nearer and nearer and eventually completely encircled the car. And there he had to sit, not daring to twitch a muscle, until an hour later they moved on.

Sometimes Mr Fletcher spent an hour or more chopping down trees so that he could rebuild bridges across dried up streambeds, and one day he was congratulating himself on finding a nice smooth log ready to hand, when the log moved and revealed itself as a 20-foot python.

He was interested in the habits of gorillas described to him by Mr Baumgartel, the Austrian proprietor of a small hotel near the bamboo-covered slopes of three volcanoes. The "mock attack" made by the male gorilla to deflect attention from his mate and the young, sounded particularly interesting. The gorilla, Mr Baumgartel said, stood to his full height, beat his chest and came lumbering towards the intruder. At this point it was vital to stand dead still, because when the gorilla realized that the man was not going to turn and run, he gave up his attack and rejoined his family. However, on learning that it might be necessary to let a gorilla get within two yards of him, Mr Fletcher declined his host's invitation to accompany him into the forest in search of this instructive sight.

A slight collision in Tanganyika with a leopard that bared it's teeth and sprang right over the car, and an oil-leak that forced Mr Fletcher to spend a night in the car a hundred miles from the nearest town, in an area full of game, were other incident that certainly prevented his journey from any threat of monotony.

Letter to the Editor

PLANTING POTATO EYES FOUND PRACTICAL

For the gardener wishing to grow a few rows of potatoes for home use, or the commercial grower who desires to secure a start at moderate cost in new varieties such as the recently licensed scab or blight resistant types, the use of "potato eyes" is a practical method, reports the Field Crops Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. A change of seed may also be introduced by saving the resultant harvest, and the grower also has the advantage of economically comparing yield and quality of several varieties side by side, if desired.

In Western Canada distribution of seed potatoes by the use of "potato eyes" has been used for many years, and is very popular especially for mailing and for shipment to Northern areas where transportation charges are often to be considered when securing new seed. Although this system has only recently been introduced to Eastern Canada, mainly through mail order, it is being accepted with approval by many satisfied users. "Potato eyes" are usually packaged in cardboard boxes containing sufficient to plant thirty to fifty individual hills of each variety. Annual output amounts to several billion "potato eyes" which are used each season for seed.

"Potato eyes" are supplied only by approved seed firms whose chief business is selling seed, either wholesale or retail, or a firm which maintains a separate seed division and is in a position to provide entirely separate storage, handling and sales of seed potatoes. In each case, the shipper certifies that the average weight of the "potato eyes" (when freshly cut) in the container to which the official label of the Department of Agriculture is attached, was not less than one-half ounce, and that not more than five per cent were less than three-quarters of an inch in depth. Further, that the "potato eyes" were cut from Foundation or Certified Seed Potatoes.

Planting usually varies over a two-month period from early April until late May, depending upon the season and location.

DO-IT-YOURSELF

A downtown London, Ont., merchant locked up his store the other night and went home, leaving a repair man stranded on the roof.

An hour later the merchant received a phone call from the roofing company.

"Call the fire department," recommended the merchant.

The roofer felt this was a little extreme.

Moments later the occupants of an adjacent fourth storey office were startled to see a man climb through their window and walk stoically down the stairs to freedom.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

"You know there are some wonderful people in the world," I remarked when I came home the other night.

"What makes you think that?" Harry asked as if he needed proof.

I showed him a little can wrapped in tinfoil and tied with ribbon and in it a slip of philedendron. The lady of the house where I'd been had read about my bad luck with philedendron last winter and had set out one for me. It had died, she said, so she started another one for me. Then she gave me an extra slip in case the second one died. Now she did all that for me—and I'm practically a stranger.

It's my own fault if I don't have philedendron now, for last winter another good lady set out some slips for me in my brown teapot and nursed them along until she was satisfied they had taken root. There are such wonderful people in the world.

Last week there was a bereavement in our family and an estimated thousand people came to call at that house of mourning to extend their sympathy. Some of them travelled over sixty miles to be there for five or ten minutes and offer to do anything they could. Only people who are basically good could take time in this busy, old world to render such a kind, thoughtful act.

Many of them brought food, There were countless pies, cakes, etc., given to the family who had more important things to think of. Then one morning a huge turkey stuffed and roasted arrived in time for dinner. It didn't come from a relative or from someone who was obliged to send it. It came from a kind-hearted friend who wanted to do what she could.

I shall always remember the story told me by a Winchester lady. She was sick in bed at Christmas holiday time. By the end of the week her husband and family had eaten almost everything in the house. New Year's morning it seemed there was nothing left for their dinner except eggs. Everyone was feeling more than a little blue. Then at ten to twelve the neighbour from next door arrived with a complete New Year's dinner. There was everything from turkey and cranberries to mince pie.

But all the kind deeds done by the good people in this world do not involve plants and food. There are the people who are willing to canvass the community when fire or disaster strikes one of the neighbours. There are folks who are willing to take care of the children when the mother is ill or when a holiday can be arranged for her. There was the good man who used to loan his car to a young friend when he needed it to go to see his best girl. There were two good ladies who nursed a German immigrant woman and took care of her children during her long illness.

There are folks who would lend you the shirts off their backs, who would work for their neighbours with no thought of reward. There are the many kind people who are always ready to help the stranger they meet—to tow his car, give him a lift or welcome him into the community.

It is too bad that our newspaper headlines and our radio and TV newscasts so often have to point up the other kind of people. They tell us about the thief who robbed the bank, the guy who beat up the old lady and took all her money, the kidnapper who snatched the baby from her carriage, the crook, the gangster, the murderer and so on. It is a pity that sometimes we cannot read of the wonderful people in the world who do the unspectacular deeds of love and kindness, who oil the wheels

HARD TO REMEMBER

Bystanders on a street in Port Arthur, Ont., laughed when taxi driver Mrs Frances Chatterbook spotted two women in an accident during a bad storm and asked a policeman: "Why do women want to go out on a day like this, If I were a woman I'd stay home."

Mrs Chatterbook is the mother of a boy, 12, and a girl, 13. But she says she forgot she was a woman "because I do so much driving and people usually think of driving a cab as a man's job."

Women customers cause her more trouble than men, she says. The men will apolobize for bad language, but women never do. The only customers she ever had who refused to pay were women, she said.

Mrs Catterbook drives her cab only in daytime. Her husband, a student in an electronics course, handles night-time jobs.

A native of Saskatchewan, Mrs Chatterbook moved to Port Arthur with her family six years ago from British Columbia's Okanagan Valley. She started as a taxi dispatcher, but prefers driving.

CHECK ON CHEQUES

A "chain" telephone-calling system is being used in Springfield, Ohio, to thwart bad-cheque passers.

Chamber of Commerce officials said merchants try to detain any persons suspected of attempting to cash a phony cheque.

But if the suspect leaves before police arrive, the merchant calls the Chamber whose employees then contact 10 other local businessmen.

Each is asked to call five other merchants who in turn telephone five others and so on.

The system is put into effect as soon as a fraudulent cheque is discovered, even though it may be several days later.

A coot is an aquatic bird found principally in South America.

ROCK 'N ROLL?

Stamford, Conn., Mayor Webster C. Givens considered the other day a plan to install a tape recorder and two amplifiers in the attic of city hall to serenade birds with music they don't like.

Starlings roosted on the city hall clock each night last Winter causing it to stop until the recorder and amplifiers were installed. They have returned again and the mayor is considering getting the equipment back to get rid of the birds.

Many spots on floors and furniture that won't come off with water will disappear if wiped with a liquid wax.

At various times in history counterfeiting has been punishable by death.

ENTER FIELD OF CRIME DETECTION

The federal agriculture department has entered the field of crime detection.

Department laboratories in Hull, Que., proluce serums by which investigators can tell, almost on the spot, whether blood on the clothing of a suspected slayer is that of a human.

The serums, drawn from the blood of humans and various animals, react only to the blood of the human or animal from which the serum was taken.

One use has been to detect horsemeat in what is sold as hamburg.

The RCMP, who keep a supply of serum, use it to check blood on a trapper's equipment to determine whether he has been taking certain animals illegally. Serum applied to scrapings from a trap will decide the species trapped.

If serum to detect wolf blood is wanted, a sample of the animal's blood is injected into a rabbit, which immediately begins to build up antibodies to the foreign blood. Blood from the rabbit, after chemical processing, produces serum for detecting wolf blood.

This serum will react to wolf blood only. If a trapper says he was trapping wolves but police suspect he was taking some other species, they need only apply the wolf serum to his equipment to learn whether he is telling the truth.

Problems arise, however, in attempts to differentiate between similar species, such as wolves and dogs.

That human blood is similar to that of an ape presents more of a problem to African police than to Canadian authorities.

STUDY JELLYFISH FOR SCIENCE

Dr G. O. Mackie, young Alberta zoologist, says the jellyfish may hold a secret sought by scientists for centuries.

"It would be worth while to show that growth factors exist in jellyfish," he said after three months of study in the Stanley Park Aquarium.

"Time and again people have had to turn to lower animals to investigate problems of this sort. In a jellyfish tissues are simple and uncomplicated, but they are built from the same sort of components as occur all the way up the scale to man."

Known to science as medusae, jellyfish cannot think, but can repair or grow new tissues and muscles, even new cells when old ones are damaged or removed.

They are generally transparent with tentacles up to a foot long. Along these tentacles are hundreds of tiny hairs, each containing minute lethal needles holding a poison that can paralyze its victim in a few seconds.

Dr Mackie said the so-called tentacles are actually scores of individuals working together in co-operation with a host organism. He said that "sails" growing on top of medusae were nature's way of preserving the species.

The sails, of membraneous tissue, are set in different ways so that some are blown to shallow water and perish and others out to the open sea and safety.

Dr Mackie wounded, anaesthetized and allowed to recover many of the creatures. He said badly injured muscle fibres degenerate and are absorbed into the body; less badly injured elements grow out again into new fibres.

SEASICK FISH SOMETIMES A PROBLEM

Seasick fish are a big problem at the Miami Seaquarium.

Craig Phillips curator of the Seaquarium said the sickness develops when fish are caught at sea and put into the shallow water of the collecting barge.

"The slosh of the water in the pool of the barge as it rolls makes the poor fish every bit as sick as some poor landlubber going to sea for the first time," Phillips explained.

"That rolling motion affects them just as it does human beings. They get green around the gills for a few minutes, refuse to eat and look as if they're not long for this world."

Phillips said he's even considered using pills on the unfortunate fish to make them feel better.

"If we had seasickness pills aboard on a few of the bad days we might have tried them," he said. "I've never heard of their being used on fish, but it might work since fish have the same symptoms as human beings."

The veteran marine-life curator said seasickness hits the mammals the hardest—the porpoises and sea cows.

The Seaquarium's fish-hunting trips are conducted only on calm days when there is little wind to rock the barge.

Once in the crystal clear waters of the big Seaquarium. it takes queasy fish only about 10 minutes to get back to normal.

CREAM PIE SPECIALS

IN THE SUMMER there are so many fresh fruits available for fruit pies that we are apt to forget about cream pies. This is a good time of year to make cream pies when fresh fruits are scarce and expensive.

Angel Lemon Pie

4 eggs
¾ cup sugar
¼ cup fresh lemon juice
1 tbsp. butter

Cream egg yolks and sugar together thoroughly. Add lemon juice and cook in double boiler until thickened, stirring often. Add butter. Remove from heat and fold in two stiffly beaten egg whites. Top with meringue.

Meringue: Beat two egg whites until frothy. Add 4 tbsps. sugar gradually and continue beating until egg holds its shape in peaks. Fold in one tsp. lemon juice. Brown meringue in 250 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Maple Cream Pie

½ cup maple syrup
2 egg yolks
1 cup milk
1 tbsp. cornstarch
Few grains salt

Moisten cornstarch with a little cold milk; add syrup and beaten egg yolks. Add to hot milk in double boiler. When thick pour on a baked shell. Top with meringue made with two egg whites. Brown in slow oven 20 minutes.

Washington Pie

This is not really a pie but a cake-type dessert.

Use your favourite cottage pudding recipe or a white cake mix. When your cake is baked and cooled spread with the following mixture:

1 cup brown sugar
2-3 tsp. cocoa
2 cups milk
3 tbsps. cornstarch
¼ tsp. vanilla

Mix cornstarch with brown sugar and cocoa. Add to hot milk in top of double boiler. Stir and cook until thick. Cover and continue cooking until there is no taste of raw starch. Add vanilla. Spread on cooled cake. Just before serving top with sweetened whipped cream.

Butterscotch Pie

1 cup brown sugar
4 tbsps. flour
2 tbsps. butter
2 eggs
1 cup milk
¼ tsp. vanilla

Mix flour and brown sugar; add to hot milk in top of double boiler. Stir and cook till thick. Add eggs well beaten and butter. Add vanilla. Pour on baked pie shell. Just before serving top with whipped cream.

If you are busy use a prepared pie filling but it won't have the same flavour.

ABUNDANT LIFE

by ORAL ROBERTS

LOYD W. WAS AN ALCOHOLIC

Man's most severe struggle for faith is within himself. This is because his own sins condemn him. They stand before him when he gropes for contact with the Infinite. As long as this is true, faith cannot be very effective. But St. John said that "if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence (faith) toward God" (1 John 3:21).

Now I imagine this question presents itself: "Does a person have faith whether he is right with God or not?" The answer is, "Yes, he does." For God gives a measure of faith to every man. But there must be a total commitment to God for faith to accomplish all that it could.

I am reminded of Loyd W. who for 15 years was an alcoholic. At various times through those years the measure of faith or God-consciousness within him would try to guide him aright. But the demon of alcohol would take control. Loyd's story is too long to relate here but I want to give a portion to illustrate how even a measure of faith will work in a human life.

"All through those harrowing years, deep within me, there was a God-consciousness. One time when I was in Red River Parish, Louisiana, I stopped in a town and rented a hotel room. I bought some liquor and went to my room to drink. I had taken only a few drinks when I fell asleep. Sometime during the night I had a vision of the Lord. He had a crown of thorns upon his head and the blood was slowly oozing down his face. His eyes had a look of love mingled with pity.

"I felt so naked and ashamed and sinful. He never spoke a word to me; he just stood there in pity and sadly shook his head. The look was so penetrating that I wanted to cry out to him for forgiveness.

"Often before, I had felt a desperate need to serve God and be free from the deadly clutch of drink. Somehow, that night, I felt that God in his infinite mercy would forgive me. But I needed something in addition to forgiveness. I needed complete deliverance from alcoholism. But I didn't know how, nor was I yet ready, to accept the deliverance I so desperately needed."

You see, Loyd found out what everyone else will find—faith cannot do its best work as long as there is sin in the person's life.

Sin is a dominating thing, and it produces a division in the soul. The body and mind are keenly responsive to the soul. It feels the impact of the soul's fears and weaknesses. This produces an easy prey for mental and physical ills. But when you turn from your sins and open your life completely to God, your faith will make you WHOLE.

Loyd, I am happy to say, did yield his all to God. He was delivered in mind, soul and body. Today he is a sober, healthy and happy young man. Complete faith brought complete wholeness.

Still in our hearts he is living yet
For we loved him too dearly to ever forget.

PETER MANLEY CAUCUS CHAIRMAN

The Liberal Party in Ontario has reappointed Peter Manley, Stormont M.P.P., as caucus chairman of the Liberal Opposition in the Ontario Legislature.

The announcement was made following the first party caucus held since the election of John Wintermeyer as provincial Liberal leader.

Problems of liason between the 11 provincial Liberal members and the Ontario Liberal Association were discussed. Plans were gone over which would assign each of the sitting members to specific fields of interest in the legislative field.

Church Societies Hold Meeting At Osnabruck Centre

A joint meeting of the Women's Federation and W.M.S. of Trinity Church, Osnabruck Centre, met recently in the church hall.

The president, Mrs Wm. Fritz, presided, with the assistance of the secretary, Mrs Frank Dafoe. The meeting opened with prayer by the president, followed by the theme song in unison with Mrs Profitt acting as pianist.

A large number of members answered roll call and four new members joined.

For next meeting, the roll call will be answered by repeating a Mother's Day verse containing the word "Love."

Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs Dafoe, and Mrs Merton Collins gave the treasurer's report. After all business was discussed, Mrs Delbert Slintoff and Mrs Wm. Primeau gave a very interesting missionary study on Japan. Mrs Primeau read the Scripture lesson and Mrs Flintoff the worship service.

The meeting closed with a hymn, after which Mrs Primeau conducted a contest, which was won by Mrs Heagle.

Lunch was served by the ladies and a social hour spent.

Delay Opening Seaway Lock

Opening of the $7,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway lock at Iroquois, scheduled for Thursday, has been postponed two to four weeks because of an explosion on a drill rig several weeks ago.

The explosion killed one man and seriously injured two others. St. Lawrence Seaway Authority officials have disclosed that because it has been difficult to replace the drill, the lock cannot be opened for two to four weeks.

The drill was being used to clear shoals and rockbeds in the easterly entrance to the lock.

Delay in opening the lock, however, will not cause much difficulty. Shipping does not switch over until July 3 or 4 when flooding of the 35-mile long power lake is done.

In the meantime shipping can still use the old Iroquois lock which will be flooded out of existence during creation of the lake.

The new lock was officially opened last fall by Transport Minister Hees and members of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. He flew by helicopter from Ottawa to be present for the occasion.

However, at the time it was pointed out by the then seaway authority president Charles Gavsie that it was not really necessary for shipping to use the lock until after July and that if it were ready earlier it would be more of a convenience rather than anything else.

DON MESSER, the perennial Maritime favourite of Western music fans, frequently grinds out Irish jigs on his fiddle. Two of his Islanders, Charlie Chamberlain and Marg Osborne, get right into the spirit of the "Irish Washerwoman." Jigs and other country music are the features of "Don Messer and His Islanders" on the CBC Trans-Canada Network Saturdays.

Bank Robbery Trial Set for June 10

Three Toronto men ordered to trial following a preliminary hearing in Winchester in connection with the January 20 robbery of a South Mountain bank will appear before Judge G. E. Brennan in county court on June 9.

The men, charged with robbery, are William Burton Glover, 25; Thomas Blake, 34, and Ralph William Parks, 31.

The robbery involved theft of some $42,930 in non-negotiable bonds from the South Mountain Branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Manager Ivan Keays, his wife, 70-year-old mother-in-law Mrs Bertha Merkley and seven-year-old son, Harry, were held at gunpoint while the robbery was committed.

The trial was originally set for May 7.

BOTTLE COLLECTOR

Unlike stamp collectors (philatelists- and coin collectors (numismatists), Mrs Alice Lee, wife of a retired upholsterer in Oshawa, Ont., has a hobby without a name. She collects bottles.

Mrs Lee said she began her 500-bottle collection two years ago in rivalry with a friend in Michigan, to see who could collect the widest variety of bottles. Mrs Lee says she won.

Bottles of every conceivable weight, size, shape and age are arrayed on shelves in the Lee basement.

They range from bottles two feet tall with a capacity of more than a gallon to a bottle less than an inch tall with a capacity of a few drops.

On a bottom shelf rests an old earthen crock that Mrs Lee believes once held "ol' stupefier" or some other illegally-manufactured mountain dew.

LONG FENCE

A fence 3,500 miles long was built by the Queensland Government to keep the dingoes at bay.

These wild dogs kill hundreds of thousands of sheep every year; indeed, so great is their menace that many sheep breeders are switching to beef production.

In the last 20 years nearly 250,000 dingoes have been trapped or shot. Yet their numbers continue to increase enormously, and today they are hunting in packs over thousands of square miles of sheep country, killing at will.

The new fences, six feet high, cost £443,000.

HAS TO BE OLD TO BE ANTIQUE

Get the notion into your head that some of Grandma's treasures must be buried somewhere in the house and that they've now attained antique status, and your attic is apt to get a good cleaning out.

But that's about the only profit likely to accrue from the search. Mr Sigmund Rothschild, antique expert and appraiser, warns that finding anything of great value is only a remote possibility.

He says most people feel that anything they remember as Grandma's must be antique. But in many cases 98-year-old Grandma bought the things when she was 97. Anyway, Grandma, even at that age, was not really an antique. Neither were her possessions unless they predated her day.

Furniture doesn't acquire antique vintage until it is three generations old. When brand new, it enjoys a period of popularity, then suffers depreciation for a generation, while it's just plain old fashioned. Then, for the next generation, it's obsolete. After that it starts to gain value as a venerable antique.

Letters, he says, are likely to be the most valuable antiques you possess. "The fellow who wrote to your grandfather 100 years ago may be a great man in your day." That gives value to his letters.

Old jewellery and ecclesiastic items are also good bets and easily identified.

Antiques of historical sentiment have value only if they mean something," he says.

"For instance," he says, "a Napoleonic button is just another old button, but if it was the Napoleonic button that held up Napoleon's pants, it is an antique of historical sentiment."
