Moderator of General Assembly At Presbytery Meeting Here

The Presbytery of Brockville and the Brockville Presbyterial Women's Missionary Society Executives, meeting in Knox Presbyterian Church, Iroquois, on Wednesday, March 10th, were favoured with the presence of the Moderator of the 96th General Assembly of the The Presbyterian Church in Canada, the Rev. Dr. Dillwyn T. Evans, on sabbatical leave from his parish in Thornhill, Ontario, visiting the Synods of the Church across Canada during his moderatorial year.

Speaking to a combined session of the Presbytery and Presbyterial during the mid-afternoon, Dr. Evans brought greetings from the Church-at-Large, and spoke encouragingly of the work of the Presbytery and the congregations throughout the bounds, particularly in relationship to the missional outreach of concern expressed in very tangible ways during the appeal of the churches concerning the Nigeria-Biafra conflict. The Moderator of Assembly gave an eye-witness account of his recent visit to Nigeria and to all sectors of that country, and of the heartfelt reception he received "as your emissary of Christian outreach to the good people of this nation". Mixing his comments with his welsh wit, the Moderator of Assembly conveyed, in the warmth of his personality, and in the knowledge he had at hand, the growth and missional development of the Church across the land, and spoke highly of that ecumencial spirit of 'unity in mission' which is prevailing among the churches of all communions today. Welcomed and thanked by the Moderator of the Presbytery, the Rev. Earle E. Eaton, Dr. Evans returned to Toronto to fulfill another commitment in his itinerary, and with the prayers of the people.

The Presbytery and Presbyterial were convened at 10 a. m. in their respective sessions through a combined worship service in the Knox sanctuary, conducted by the Moderator of Presbytery, and assisted by the Rev. T. H Boyd of Morrisburg, and two lay-readers and Elders of the Church, Messrs. Douglas Henry of Brockville and James Purcell of Spencerville. The Knox Senior Choir led in the ministry of music and the Rev John Hibbs offered the solo section, 'Were You There' by J. Washington.

Matters of concern brought before the Presbytery during its deliberations throughout

Cubs and Scouts Father-Son Banquet

On Saturday evening, March 13th, the Iroquois Civic Center was the scene of the annual Cubs and Scouts "Father and Son Banquet". It was gratifying to see such a large gathering. It appears as though the fathers are right behind their sons, supporting them in these excellent activities, if a head count of the many fathers present was any indication.

We were fortunate to have Rev. Allan Rogers as our guest speaker. He promised to be brief in his remarks, and one enthusiastic and grateful cub later reported on what a good, short speech it was! Mr. Rogers emphasized the place of the boys within their families, pointing out the many building blocks of personal character which come out of the home environment He was ably introduced by Scout David Tucker, and thanked by Scout Mike Styles.

Prior to the guest speaker, Cub Stephen Moffat thanked the ladies for the excellent dinner they had prepared. Cub Christopher Gilmour proposed a toast to the fathers, which was replied to by Mr. George Fowler. Scout Master Robert McGee proposed the toast to the Queen.

The Chairman of the Group Committee, Mr. Ralph Van Allen, welcomed the fathers and their sons· he also introduced the guests at the head table.

Mr. Frank Bates represented the St. Lawrence District Council of the Boy Scouts, and spoke briefly on Scouting in its wider work. Present also were Mr. Alex Banford, who brought greetings from the Iroquois Lions Club, and Mr. Ken Easter, who brought greetings from the Iroquois Branch of the Canadian Legion.

Happy Birthday Mrs. Clark.

Round The Bend

by Sheila Watt

Have you noticed how important it is these days for your child to be creative?

Nobody cares much about little Johnny's I. Q. any more-it's his creativity that counts.

Parents are reading the complete works of Gesell and Ilg, Spock and Freud, and Dad will trot off to National Education Association meetings without dinner rather than miss a word on the vital issue of developing the child's potential.

This is all wrong.

Misguided parents are being led astray.

As the mother of supposedly normal children, I say this madness has to stop. I need to know how to stifle a kid's creativity before I go out of my mind!

What is meant, the educators ask, by the well-developed creative personality?

I'll tell them.

It means the dear child is going to use your last teaspoon of baking powder for her chemistry experiments, and you're not going to discover this until you're halfway through mixing a batch of scones.

It means empty bird nests under the beds, and dissected worms shrivelling obscenely in your best saucers.

It means screens on the bedroom windows laced with 50 feet of aerial wire, and ground wires snaked dangerously along the hall to the bathroom pipes in your son's efforts to get a homemade radio operating.

It means you could have saved the money spent on that scented air freshener, because the whole house reeks of sprouting turnip, which your six-year-old has been cultivating in your only fruit bowl for the past five weeks.

It means half-cut-out costumes awaiting rescue on the bedroom floor, it means a huge and messy plaster-of-paris map of Newfoundland drying in the cupboard above the stove, and the plates and glasses that are usually kept above the stove are all on top of the freezer in the garage, and if you want a loaf of bread from the freezer in the garage you have to move all the plates and glasses.

Virginia B. Warren of the National Education Association is an expert convinced that "parents can play a dramatic role in developing their child's creativity."

I play a dramatic role, all right.

When I discovered that our 11-year-old had skewered a nut, screw and bolt through her shorts rather than sew on the waist button. I contributed much to the drama of the scene.

When I wondered aloud what had happened to the basket in which I usually fry chips, and was informed that our six-year-old had borrowed it to go ice fishing in the ditch I have to tell you, Virginia, that Stratford would have hired me on the spot.

As for the suggestion that we challenge their statements with questions such as, "How do you know that's true?", or, "Where did you get those statistics?", the situation is reversed at our place.

I have only to mutter quietly as I attempt to sharpen two dozen pencil crayons that "these crayons are made with the cheapest, most useless wood in the world", and I am challenged. Boy, am I challenged.

Do I know where all the cheap wood comes from? How come I know that this pencil factory buys the cheapest wood in the world? Is the cheapest wood the most useless, eh Mum, is it? Maybe it's the knife / maybe I've got the cheapest, most useless, BLUNTEST knife in all the world. Haha.

Do you think for a moment that I would encourage this madness by trying to retaliate?

Where are the sweet seven-year-olds content to sit serenely sewing samplers?

Are there any preschoolers left who play happily with dolls and feel their day is complete with just one bedtime story?

It is time, high time, that we abandoned this creative kick.

Let's have dull minds in foggy brains, and a little peace and quiet with my coffee.

Newsy Notes

by MARY B.

A new chore has been added to spring cleaning, now we have to remove the studs from studded tires but to my way of thinking this should go under the heading of cleaning the garage and in our house that's a job for the better half.

A new mineral found on the moon has been named Armalcol for the Apollo Astronauts Armstrong, Aldrin and Collins. My but it's a good thing they weren't named Zwiskitcys Yopghnintiz and Caetineuvicz.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics says Canadians are $9 billion in debt. Some individuals I have heard about seem to feel it is all theirs

Now that we have women's lib. can you imagine a sinking ship and the Captain saying, "Women the life boats, men and children first"

The driving instructor was explaining to a dumb blond. "This is the hand brake, you use it in an emergency and pull it on quickly." She thought about that for a minute and said, " Oh yes, I see, sorta like a bathrobe."

Banks are looking for loan customers and those who have borrowed are looking for ways to pay it back.

It's funny how bathroom scales always tell us something we never want to believe

I would consider an optimist at this time of year a person looking for bargains in lawn furniture.

I think that some how gremlins are getting into my column and changing words around, for example, in last weeks "Newsy Notes" it seems the word pasta turned into pastor Now I don't know how the word pastor would get into an Italian menu but low and behold there it was Oh well we all have bad days it seems.

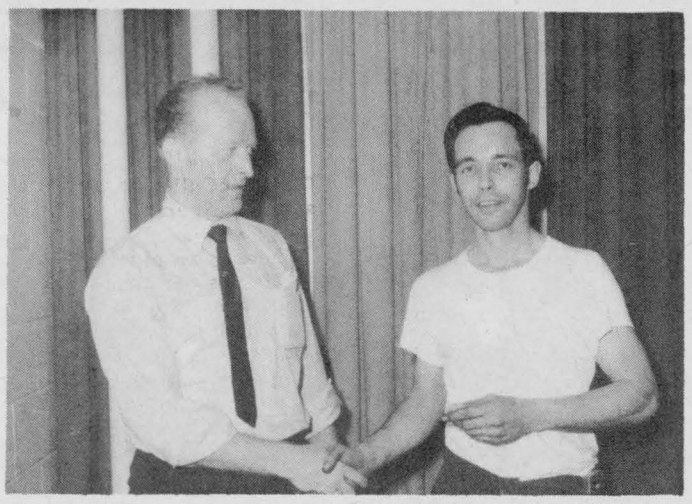
It must be nice to be a demolitian expert. If they arrive for work in a foul mood they can knock things around and nobody ever worries.

I am told the only thing worth a nickel these days are the contents of 10-cent candy bars. How true.

Speaking of my better half, as I was before, I think him and the rest of the boys who work for the town of Iroquois deserve a vote of thanks from the people of the town. These guys have put in many long hours trying to cope with all this snow and have really done a tremendous job. My hat is off to them and not just because my husband is part of the team, but because we depend on these men for so much that keeps our town a going concern.

I think three very loud cheers are in order too, to the owners of snowmobiles, who have donated their time and efforts in the line of rescue work during these storms we have had. It would be nice to see a number of these machines on call in the winter, to areas where people are really snowed in, or really need help. Maybe someone could form some kind of a club with a name like "Rescue Squad" or something similar. There could be a small fee for services or maybe a walk-a-thon in the nice weather to help support such a service, it might be worth some thought, not only for our town but for others too.

I was a little disappointed over the recent acting awards. I thought Mr. Benson should have got the award for best actor, he's always telling us how things are getting better.



10 Years' Service

Our congratulations and appreciation to Alvin for his service to Caldwells.

I see where medical costs are up 38% in the past three years which only proves one thing, Doctor's are getting better at taking the swelling out of our wallets.

A friend of mine sent me this one along with some other papers and a book, for which I thank him.
A girl showed up at a party in an ultra-short skirt which caused one frumpy forty to hiss: "If I looked like that, I'd never leave the house, Sighed her husband: "If you looked like that, neither would I."

A lot of people have been home sick with the flu or some other illness. I hope the people who have been off work because of sickness will soon be feeling better and be back at work.

Estate Planning For Farm People

by
J. W. McCullough, Farm Management Specialist.

There is an old saying that nothing is certain except death and taxes. Sometimes we wonder which is the worse of the two evils. While we live we pay income tax, property tax, sales tax, licenses, tolls and others. If we are smart enough to save something, the tax man is waiting to take his share after we die.

Many of us struggle hard to get out of debts, to pay off the mortgage and to build up the business. This is a worthy occupation, and while it is going on we just long for the day when we will have something to leave to the next generation. Sometimes we get so busy doing this, that we forget to make plans for passing it on to the next generation until it is too late. Sometimes we forget it is pretty important to plan early just in case we aren't around as long as we thought we would be, and sometimes we suddenly realize the farm and our other assets are worth quite a bit. There is a limit to what you can give away or leave to someone without getting caught up in gift tax estate tax and succession duties.

It is dishonest to evade paying taxes that are due and the penalties are fairly heavy. But it is common sense to arrange your affairs so that your heirs will get as much as possible within the law.

This article and others that will follow over the next few weeks will try to point out some of the things you can and should do. It is not a simple thing and there are no sure answers. There are seldom two families who have the same problems. The hope is that somewhere along the line you will pick up an idea that will help.

But it won't be worthwhile if it stops there. After you have sorted through things, you are the one who must decide if action is needed And if it is, the time to get at it is now. Next week could be too late.

You may say, well I'm only 35 years of age, estate planning doesn't apply to me While the plans you make today can always be changed what you put off till tomorrow may never happen. Estate planning covers a long period of years. It is not a one-shot deal, but it is something that often requires planning and changes from year to year. While you may not always be right it is important to get things down in writing. As an example, should you die without a will the law provides for your assets to be distributed in a certain way. It may not be anyway near what you had thought about doing.

Probably each of us wants to think of our own retirement and providing for enough money to be comfortable. We will also be concerned about what kind of life and education our children will have in the event we should die while they are still too young to take over and operate the farm. And we should be thinking of a plan whereby the farm can readily pass from one generation to the next on the day when it has to happen whether due to our retirement or death. And we will be thinking, too, about how to save as much of it as possible for our survivors.

So in any event, the first thing to do is to take inventory. Make up a list of all your assets and place a reasonable value on them. Make up a list of everything you owe as well. By subtracting one from the other you should arrive at a figure known as your net worth. Our next article will tell you some of the things you need to include in arriving at the current value of your estate. The object is to know where you are at now, before you start planning.

SNOWMOBILES

The great Mr. Justice Holmes once said that "laws are made for bad men". Many of our laws are made to prohibit the acts of irresponsible and inmature people, those who abuse privileges which ordinary citizens exercise without danger or disturbance to others.

All winter the newspapers in this constituency have reported problems about snowmobiles Their use has been banned by the National Capital Commission in the Greenbelt Various municipalities have either passed or considered by-laws to limit their use People in general are concerned about traffic hazards, accidents, which regrettably have taken some lives, noise, and damage to property and to the ecology. Snowmobilers have suddenly found their sport unpopular and subject to a growing number of prohibitions and restrictions.

WHY THE RESTRICTIONS

A few years ago when snowmobiles first appeared on the scene they were owned by only a few people. Farmers found them very useful in winter: city dwellers were careful in their use and generally operated through well-organized clubs. For several years, the National Capital Commission, particularly in the Gatineau Park Area, responded positively to the new sport. Trails were laid out and snowmobilers cooperated with the Commission in ensuring that the sport did not endanger people or property.

However as the sport developed in popularity several things happened Snowmobile manufacturers concentrated on noise and additional horsepower the increasing number of snowmobilers were not organized into self-regulating clubs and a small irresponsible minority were heedless of the rights of others As complaints multiplied about the hazards and damage resulting from these vehicles, our various governments reacted with more restrictive rules about their use on roadways and public property.

But snowmobiles are here. Proper ways will have to be found to permit their legitimate use in the future. Not everyone is a snowmobiler, but the same could be said about other sports and hobbies we all have - not everybody golfs, skis, curls, or watches birds. Somehow, in our complicated society, we have to make sensible rules which will permit all of us to enjoy our respective sports and hobbies without interfering with other people.

CHANGE NECESSARY

The responsible snowmobilers with whom I have talked recognize that major changes will have to be made. Manufacturers will have to cut down the noise level and more safety features will have to be built into these machines. We do not permit children to drive automobiles, and snowmobiles are not toys. The present licensing of snowmobilers will certainly have to be tightened up. In addition, space will have to be found where snowmobiles can operate to the delight of snowmobilers without disturbance to other people or property.

This year in the National Capital area snowmobiles have been prohibited from operating on National Capital Commission property. But the door has not been closed for all time. With less noisy vehicles, better regulated and controlled by Provincial licensing, it seems reasonable that some of the vacant land now owned by the Federal Government could be made available for snowmobile rights-of-way.

THE POSITIVE SIDE

While great emphasis this winter has been placed on the negative aspect of snowmobiles, we have all seen rather dramatically in the last few weeks how useful and essential they can be. Snowmobilers have rescued stranded motorists during our big snow storms; they have provided essential transportation when no other was available. Last week my own son and some of his friends were extricated from a mammoth traffic pile-up on Highway 401 by a group of snowmobilers who in the best tradition of good citizenship had banded themselves together for this rescue operation.

In a free ociety such as ours, we are going to have ever increasing difficulty in balancing the rights and responsibilities of various people. The case of snowmobilers has indicated how difficult this is. It is, nevertheless, encouraging to see how snowmobilers have responded positively to the challenge of conducting their sport in a way which will provide the minimum of inconvenience and disturbance to their fellow citizens. I hope they will have a happier winter next year.

O.P.P. Report

One thing no driver should ever do is park his vehicle on the street and leave the keys in the car where someone could hop in and drive off. To leave a car with the keys in the ignition is strong temptation to "spur-of-the-moment" Joy riders. Occasionally you read about such joy rides which end in a tragic accident. Don't make it easy for your car to be taken illegally. Lock your car and take the keys with you whenever you leave it.

Motorists should be a little more cautious next week while driving in built-up areas as all schools will be closed for the Easter break. Be especially alert for the youngsters running out on the road.

Ontario Provincial Police in Dundas County patrolled 11, 230 miles while working 1,124 hours. During this period officers from Morrisburg and Winchester Detachments laid 16 charges and issued 30 warnings under the Highway Traffic Act of Ontario.

Officers from Morrisburg and Winchester Detachments investigated 3 disturbances and 25 miscellaneous complaints. Five persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act of Ontario while 2 other persons were charged with impaired driving.

Area highways were quite busy with officers investigating 20 property damage accidents and one personal injury accident in which one person received minor injuries.

World Day of Prayer

On Friday March 12, the World Day of Prayer Service was held at St. Cecilia's Iroquois with many ladies representing the village churches.

Sister Helena Pickett gave a most inspiring address entitled "A NEW PEOPLE FOR A NEW AGE".

$36.25 was collected for International Allocations sponsored by Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada.

Card of Thanks

I wish to express my sincere thanks to all my friends and neighbors for the lovely cards, flowers, gifts and visits, while I was a patient in Brockville General Hospital.

Special thanks to Dr. Marcellus, Dr. Dugan, Dr. McDougall and all the nurses on the second floor. Also Rev. Stewart for his kind words and prayers.

All this kindness will long be remembered.

Don't Miss Week 4 "Mission '71"

The last in a series of four evenings of dialogue about "Christians in Community" will be held at Seaway District High School next Tuesday evening March 23rd.

The subject under discussion will be Faith. You may want to bring questions of your own to add to the list, and expect to take part in these: "Is Faith believing or doing? What is faith anyway? Is faith in ourselves an obstacle to faith in God? To what is God calling us by faith?"

Miss Dacie McKenzie, Director of the Lay School of Theology will be assisted by Ed Casentree Wayne Murphy, Bertha Smit, and Charles McInnis.

South Mountain Delayed

One of the many snow storms of the winter cancelled out Monday, March 8th at South Mountain, and Mission '71 is to continue there until March 29th. Monday evening March 22nd will be devoted to the matter of Prayer, and the leaders will include Phyllis Grant, Beatrice Shaver, Albert Koekkoek, and George Suffel. On March 29th The Director, Robert Weagant will introduce a dialogue on Faith, and he will be assisted by Beryl Blom, Lou Hunter, John Blom and Carl Moore.

Appreciations

The communities of Iroquois and South Mountain have responded remarkably well to the Ecumenical School of Theology. The fourty people who prepared the series will meet to come up with an evaluation and follow-up. Our thanks is extended to Mr. Bray and the Board of Education, to Miss Judy Price for the attractive silk screen posters, The Odd Fellows at South Mountain. and the news media at Winchester and Iroquois.

Second, it features 40 watts of solid-state stereo power, with AM/FM stereo radio and BSR mini-changer.

Third, it's engineered by Electrohome, which tells you a lot about quality performance.

Fourth, although it's space-age styled, it's old-tyme priced.

From Snow To Water

Now that the first effects of Spring have hit us and brought a mild spell and shrinking snow piles, we'll be taking a good look at what the excessive water will do in our community.Or, in your community!

Snow has piled deep up against houses and in a few days' time all of us could have a major water problem. Take every precaution you can, while you can...that is about all we can offer in the way of advice.

We would suggest a warning to parents, however, regarding this time of year. Ice in the creeks and rivers is melting fast and youngsters would be well advised to stay off any ice at this time of year.

More motorists might take a hint during the melting periods and have a little compassion for the pedestrian. It is next to impossible to jump out of the way of a speeding car and darned miserable to get sprayed with muddy water!

A little care, caution and courtesy will be much appreciated.

A LONG WINTER

There will be few people who will miss the passing of the Winter of 1970-71, except for those who enjoyed snowmobiling. And even they have had to shovel their way into and out of their driveways.

Letter to the Editor

Iroquois Post,
Iroquois, Ontario.

Dear Sir:

Heart Month in Canada is now over, and on behalf of the Canadian Heart Fund, Ontario Division, please accept our sincerest appreciation for your co-operation and assistance during our financial campaign in February.

Our objective this year was $1,050,000, and although all returns are not in, we are quite hopeful that our objective will be attained - even surpassed.

Without your willing co-operation in communicating our needs to the public, the Canadian Heart Fund would not be able to express such an outlook.

Heart disease is everyone's problem - and again our thanks for helping us bring to the attention of the public that - research should be everyone's responsibility.

With best wishes.

Yours very truly,
CANADIAN HEART FUND

TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:-

Our village council, like any group in the public eye, must from time to time, come in for criticism a lot of it of the adverse sort. And most of it undeserved.

I have a criticism to make too but it's not of the down grading type. It's in connection with the removal of the super - abundance of that white stuff we've had this winter.

In conversation with those who have done much travelling in and around rural villages. all agree that our town cleans up more efficiently and more expeditiously than any other.

Orchids to you!

THE BILL SMILEY COLUMN

ONLY HALF THE LIST OF SMILEY'S TROUBLES

By Bill Smiley

March is a time for madness in this country. I have lain on the grass with a girl in March, studying for exams. And I have waded through snow up to the belly-button, in the same month. This is enough to make Canadians a bit more psychotic than other nations.

March is as unpredictable as a pregnant female, as precocious as an eccentric old man. "Mad as a March hare" is no flight of the imagination. You don't have to be a hare to be mad in March.

All you have to do is look at the body of your car, at what the salt and sand have done to it, and you get mad.

All you have to be is a mother with soaking, muddy small children tromping in and out, and you get mad.

All you have to do is total your fuel bill, and you know you are out of your mind to live in such a clime.

All it takes is a note from a friend in the south, who asks how high the snowbanks still are, and says he expects to come home about the first of May.

All you need to do is think of next month, and realize that the average Canadian gives up a third of his income in taxes, and you can go right around the bend.

Our nerves are stretched to the snapping point by the rigours of the last four months, and it doesn't take much to break us. Even a little thing like forgetting to get your car license plates before the deadline, or forgetting to pay your hydro bill in time for the discount, can make the most stable of us crack and go roaring after the nearest person with the nearest blunt instrument.

I haven't quite blown a gasket yet, but I can feel the pressure building up. My wife has been off her oats since Christmas. Having two kids in University is like walking around with two large leeches clinging to you. Half a dozen people want me to speak to a similar number of completely dissimilar groups all over the geography.

I have a hundred letters to write. My boss is bugging me for a detailed plan for a new workroom for my department, and I couldn't design the interior of an outhouse. I'm in charge of two public speaking contests and two essay contests, both with looming deadlines.

The cat did it again on the floor last night and is going to the glue factory if it happens once more. The C.N.R. has phoned five times to tell me I owe them $1.09, which was their mistake in the first place. The guy who shovels my drive with his plow has put his rates up fifty per cent.

I have sixty essays, seventy-five tests, and one hundred and thirty exam papers to mark. I have stubbed the second-littlest toe on my right foot and the nail is dangling by a painful bit of gristle or something.

I missed two crucial shots and lost out on the big prize in the last curling bonspiel. The lock on the bathroom door has been gone since Christmas and people keep getting locked in, instead of locked out.

So, all in all, if you hear a small "POP" one of these days, it won't be the wax in your ears cracking. It'll be little, insignificant me.

There. I know there's nothing more boring that other people's troubles. But I've got about half of them off my chest. And you must feel better to know that someone in the world has as many troubles as you.

And of course there are some things on the black ink side of the ledger, too. There's the "winter break" as they now call what used to be the Easter holidays. A whole week in which to do nothing but mark exam papers.

There's the prospect, in about six weeks, of getting the leeches off my back (and into the unemployment lines).

And there's the sheer pleasure of not getting up in the dark every workday. The sun shines, waterily and occasionally. There's a glimmer of hope that that peculiarly Canadian monster – winter –, having vented his orgy of rage, is beginning to die of sheer emotional exhaustion.

Unless the old brute throws one more senile but devastating blow at us.

The Argyle Syndicate

When Tom retired, it seemed as if his dreams had come true. For years he and Grace had been planning. There would be that little pink house in Florida and time to do all the things they wanted. They could keep in touch with their friends back home, and there would be occasional visits back and forth.

What they hadn't realized was how much they would miss their church. It had been such a part of their life! Now it seemed that no other church could fill the gap. In fact, they didn't go to another church their first few weeks in Florida.

But finally one Sunday they went to the little church they had been passing each day on the way to the golf course. True, it wasn't like the church back home—outwardly. But, when you got down to essentials, it was the same.

If you have moved to another community, find a new church home. Regardless of its appearance, remember that it is God's House and in it you will be welcome.

In life we loved you dearly
In death we do the same
Oft, we think of you dear Ronald
And our hearts are sad with pain
Oh this would be a heaven
If we could hear your voice again
You are gone but not forgotten
Never shall your memory fade
Sweetest thought's shall even linger
Around the grave where you are laid.

Sadly missed and always remembered by Mother and sisters
