Yes, HE, Was Here!

Here it is! Proof positive for any who may have had doubts. Smiley, even though he may be loafing, was sincere when he asked for guest columnists to fill in the breach while he was off to Expo 67. The Smiley To Expo contest as weekly newspaper readers right across the country well know, turned out to be something less than an easy way out.

Smiley of course, is the popular columnist, Bill Smiley, read weekly right across the country with his barbs, bouquets and experiences under the title of "Sugar N' Spice". A very versatile man of many talents he by choice is a former weekly newspaper man with a love of the business; a columnist of no mean effort; and head of the English Department of a large Western Canada secondary school. From this broad base of home to world wide he has a lot to say with sweetness and tang in his weekly presentation.

Enroute to Expo with the car loaded with people and other necessities of such a trip the vacationer dropped into the office of The Winchester Press Tuesday afternoon. Just a stop-over to say hello to friends Reg and Ron Workman, publishers. Brief it was because the smell of ink and the mechanics of presses and linotypes are revolting during one's holiday and no one was thoughtful enough to tell him to unload the car and stay a bit. Not really, though everyone was just so taken aback by the appearance of a celebrity that they were speechless.

To that account there is some office conversation of erecting a plaque over the hallowed portals where the dauntless Smiley entered and departed. With an an inscription that he was here. With Press editor W. R. Workman, Bill was naturally observant of the editorial page of The Winchester Press where his popular column appears each week.

Read it. This week's edition is by one of the winners of the Smiley to Expo contest. Bill figures he had enough entries that he could just have them typed up and sent off to Telegram News Services and take it easy on the typewriter for the next year or five. That of course isn't true — is it Bill?

District Section Of Freeway Ready

As predicted in last week's issue of The Press the Honourable George E. Gomme, Minister of Highways, has announced the westbound lanes of the MacDonald-Cartier Freeway from Iroquois to the Aultsville Side Road will be placed in service Friday, August 18 at 11:00 a.m. The section is 8½ miles.

With the opening of this sixteen miles of Highway 401 to the four lane standard, there is now a minimum of four lanes of freeway over 485 miles of the 510 route from Windsor to the Quebec boundary.

On the remaining 25 miles of two lane 401 between Gananoque and Brockville the department is constructing a new freeway on an alignment north of the two lane section now in use. Grading of the first 10 miles easterly from Gananaque to Highway 137 has been completed and paving is now underway. This 10 mile, four lane section, is scheduled for completion next month. Grading is well advanced on the remaining 15 miles and contracts for paving will be awarded to coincide with the completion of grading with a view to having all 25 miles in service in 1968.

Black Lodge Best On Parade At Derry Day

Winchester Royal Black Preceptory was awarded the outstanding honour of being named 'best Preceptory on parade" at the 1967 annual renewal of Derry Day. An excellent representation of the Winchester Preceptory travelled by bus to the event in Brighton under the auspices of the R.B.P. No. 617 of Castleton.

Derry Day is the annual reunion of Sir Knights of Eastern Ontario. The area comprising the district runs from Victoria County to the Quebec border and includes Shawville on the Quebec side. Activity began on the grounds of the Brighton arena with a meal served by the L.O.B.A. ladies.

A colour party and officers of the Grand Black Chapter of Eastern Ontario lead the mammoth 2:00 p.m. parade. An exceptional number of presceptories with their banners and many bands followed.

Members of the local contingent paid tribute to the march music of the Merivale Accordion Band. This same band will be in Brockville, Sunday, August 20th. On that date at 2:30 in First Presbyterian Church, St. Lawrence and Ottawa Valley Sir Knights will meet for annual divine service.

An excellent program concluded the Derry Day events in Brighton. R. W. B. Hollinger of Foxboro chaired the activity.

REEVE OPENS

Golden Triangle Airport Serves Russell Township

The "Golden Triangle Airport" was officially opened on Sunday afternoon by Reeve Ernie Burton who predicted a brilliant future for this new venture, and complimented owner Lucien Millaire and Mac Arbuthnot for their courage in creating renewed interest in flying for the people of Russell Township.

Following the opening, all members of the Russell Township Council were treated to a flight over their township and the clergy attending were also given an aerial view of the surrounding community.

Nearly 1000 people flocked to the airfield, located 1½ miles north of Embrun and were given an opportunity to examine the fifteen aircraft on the ground and then watch a display of precision flying by a J3 Pyper Cub and two Cessna 170's.

Location is one and one-half miles north of St. Onge, three miles east of Russell. Sunday's opening was at 2 p.m. with Bill Teppler of the C.O.P.A. director from Ottawa on hand.

The balance of the afternoon and evening saw a steady line of people, both young and old, waiting their turn to go up for a 20-minute free ride, many enjoying their first flight.

It is expected in the near future it will be possible to take instructions from this base.

Milk Board States Bulk Cooler Policy

Dundas Milk Committee has gone on record with regard to the bonus or bulk tanks in the industrial milk market. The County Board meeting in the Agricultural Office, Winchester passed the following resolution with regard to the subject.

"Whereas there seems to be a tendency, particularly in Western and Central Ontario to eliminate Bulk Tank bonus on industrial milk, we feel that this trend across the province will result in a lower price for bulk milk to the producer. And whereas a number of plants are at present time paying a 20¢ bulk bonus and selling their products in direct competition with those plants paying lesser or no bonus, we are convinced that there is a definite saving to the processor in handling bulk milk.

Therefore be it resolved that the O.M.M.B. keep this in mind when decoding Industrial Milk pricing policy and that the basis on which this policy is set should include at least a 20¢ bonus for bulk milk."

Approved by the committee were grants in amounts of $200. to County Fair Boards, $100. to 4-H Organizations and $2000. to Junior Farmers.

Man Jumps Clear

Doug Woods of Metcalfe narrowly escaped death last Friday when the gravel truck he was driving was in collision with a train at Sudbury.

The truck owned by Bill Stackpole was completely demolished in the smash but Doug who apparently was tossed clear suffered a fractured hand and multiple cuts and bruises.

Doug is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Woods of Metcalfe.

McCutcheon Speaks As A Conservative

A distinct Conservative party polarized slightly left of centre. Then a government of the people to represent the people. not to run the people. A federal-provincial conference of some duration to sit down and with common sense probe the equality of all nations within the nation of Canada. Better distribution of government powers between the federal and provincial levels.

Points of view of Senator Wallace McCutcheon, candidate for the leadership of the Conservative party as he addressed delegates to the September convention he is contesting. The delegates were representative of the redistributed federal riding of Stormont - Dundas meeting with the Senator Tuesday night in Cornwall. The meeting with delegates followed an afternoon press conference.

Senator McCutcheon is the third of nine candidates to appear before local delegates in their own riding. Engaging with a fiery personality the Senator, now resident in Aurora north of Toronto, answered questions and stated opinions straight from the shoulder. The subject matter travelled from the party in particular across fields of American control of Canadian industry which concluded in a dismissal of the doctrine of Walter Gordon. It concluded with an insight into the provincial-federal relationship and McCutcheon's view that more power in taxation should be passed on to provinces and the calling for a look at the Constitution. The Senator detailed his wish for a "made in Canada constitution" that could be written in prose of the calibre to instill pride in every Canadian. It's interpretation into law would not be rigid but expansive to allow the nation to develop within itself.

Allison Fawcett Champion Showman At Twenty-Second Navan Fair

Twenty-second edition of the Navan Fair under excellent weather was opened by Grenville-Dundas M.P. Mrs. Jean Wadds. The fair sponsored by the Cumberland Township Agricultural Society had a two-day run of Friday and Saturday.

Immediately following the opening ceremonies Linda Nolan, 18-year-old dairy miss from Hammond, was chosen as 1968 Russell County Dairy Princess. Her predecessor Barbara Burton of Vars crowned her. Miss Burton will represent the county in the Ontario Dairy Princess competition.

A new baking queen was also crowned in the person of Mrs. Patrick Grimes of Navan.

In the cattle division, Allison Fawcett of Winchester was champion Holstein showman with Sam Rathwell of Navan second. The junior champion bull was exhibited by Mr. Rathwell, the reserve champion bull as well as the reserve champion female by Barry Carscadden. Mr. Fawcett exhibited the female champion. Revised Route To Song Service

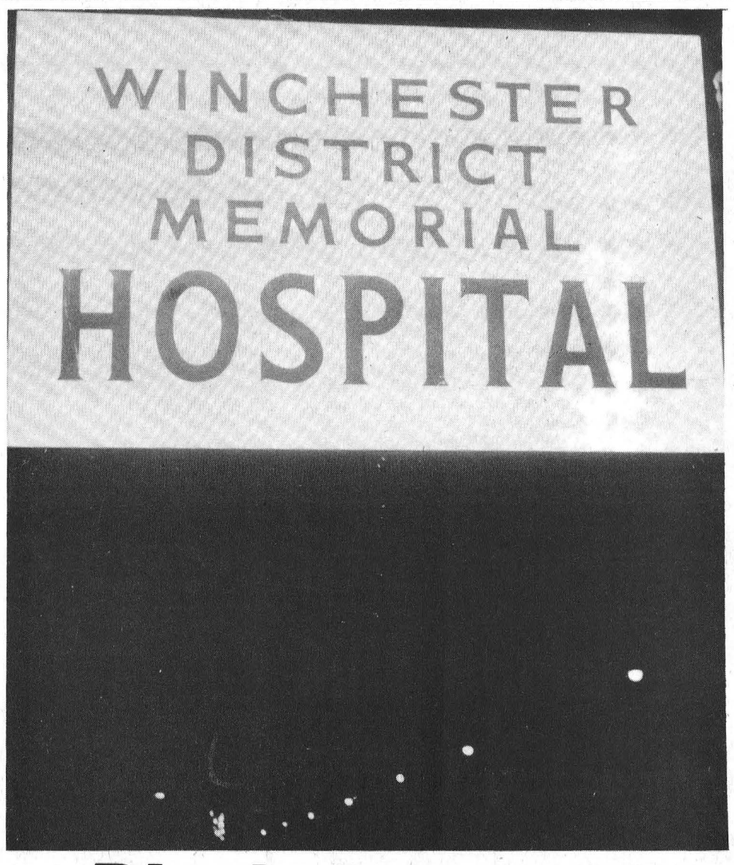
A Service of Song, consisting of instrumental items, and special numbers by various vocalists, is to take place Sunday, August 20th at the South Gower Baptist Church at 7:45 p.m.

The pastor, Rev. G. A. Cawfield is to be joined in the pulpit by a United Church minister, Rev. Norman Johnston of the Oxford Mills, Bishops Mills, and Burritt's Rapids circuit. Mr. Johnston will deliver the closing devotional message. All are cordially invited to attend.

Motorists who normally approach the church from Highway 43 are reminded of the repairs taking place at the CPR railroad bridge, near the South Gower Cemetery. A detour there diverts traffic in the direction of the town line. The Mountain road is recommended as a preferable and more direct route to the church at the present time.



Black And White Night And Day

Night or day there is no longer the need for direction to the Winchester District Memorial Hospital. Tastefully designed and extremely attractive any of the twenty-four hours of the day and most of all easily visible and readable District Memorial Hospital has a new sign.

Purchased at a cost of well over $1,000. by the Hospital Auxiliary the sign is an asset to village and hospital and another project marked paid through the efforts of the Hospital Auxiliary.

Located on the foot of the Public School north campus adjacent to Highway 31 it will direct hospital traffic up Memorial Drive via York Street to the modern hospital. A black and white motif is carried throughout. The illumination at night is of the white background with black wording standing out. A similar effect is accomplished without electricity in the daylight hours.

Currently the hospital is undergoing a million dollar plus expansion project. An up-to-date progress report of the expansion project to date is anticipated for publishing in The Press in middle or late September.

Trying for the lives of ourselves, or more succintly our children, we still find it hard to understand some of the weird shapes that are being adapted to bicycles and even tricycles these days. In question are the "tall", for the lack of a better adjective, handlebars. Not being too closely acquainted with the motorcycle crowd, we just assume that the bike handlebars are just a natural progression down from the motorized two wheelers.

From this end of the typewriter we would be inclined to say loud and clear that the extended height, and weird shaped handlebars are an added hazard to the safety of the bicycle rider. How anyone of the age group that populates the two-wheel set can pilot their rolling stock with arms outstretched, in many cases at above shoulder level, is just beyond question or wondering. From the ground level it appears that control of the wheel is seriously hampered, as is vision, by the unusual handlebars.

It was a boy of the ten year bracket that really impressed the situation. He was toiling around when he came to a corner and what followed caused the thought on the subject. Reaching out and up to his control points, the youngster came to a corner. Here an oncoming pedestrian forced him to, perhaps, make a little sharper turn than planned, but he did have lots of room. You are correct in saying that he should not have been on the sidewalk. He should not have been. However, on the other hand, how many responsible parents rest easy when a youngster is aboard a bike wending through main corner traffic.

To continue, the high protruding bar caught the side of the immovable building as the boy cut his corner. The boy lurched forward and the handlebar forced from his hand by the impact hit him on the side of the head. He fell with hands grasping his head. The falling bike hit the hard sidewalk first and the same protruding handlebar was driven solidly into the young stomach.

The pedestrian in view stopped to aid the fallen rider. In but a brief minute he was brushed aside as pride and breath were regained, and tears brushed aside as well. It seems hard to blame the entire incident on the handlebars, but in an eyewitness account of the incident the great majority of it fell right there.

Bicycles come equipped with handlebars. They do not need additional length or curvature to improve them. The items we see on the streets now are a hazard to the safe riding of our children. The bicycle in to-day's traffic is enough responsibility for the child without adding someone's profit-making idea for handlebars. Certainly it would be more difficult to drive a car if the steering wheel were located atop the windshield.

THE GREAT SOCIETY.

Prove It To Yourself

If you are a student reading this, you may be facing the one big decision of your life. Of your entire life to date the decision you make to continue or drop out of school must rate as the most important.

Why drop out of school? Because you are bored? Because you are just sick of it? You failed last year? The work is too hard? You want to grow up, throw off the chains, make money, buy a car, get married — work for a living? Reasons past, present and future could fill more than just the pages of this newspaper. Not all decisions to drop out were bad, some were necessity. But, the greatest majority must fall in the category of needless or "if I had only known".

There is one basic thing that all must realize upon making the decision to quit. The world you step into is one of survival or starvation. And that world is run with responsibility a key to making a living. No one doubts that they will have to work but, do they realize how much better another year or two in school would have made them to face it and advance in it?

Assuming you do have a choice and can continue to school if the will to quit can be overcome; look at these facts. A majority of employers, when asked why they prefer to hire graduates of universities, colleges, collegiates, vocational, trade or commercial schools, stressed the following points: PERSEVERANCE, AMBITION, ABILITY TO LEARN, SELF DISCIPLINE, DEPENDABILITY, JUDGEMENT, POTENTAL and INITIATIVE.

Name one of those vital points that is not accomplished by and attributed to the graduate. When you graduate you illustrate each.

Better jobs are offered to graduates, not just because of the education and training that will be of immediate benefit but because the better-educated is more easily trained, developed and promoted. In personnel selection the most accurate indication of future performance is past performance. And a school drop-out stands a better than average chance of being an industry drop-out.

Too, there is the law of supply and demand. The greater availability of educated job applicants and the decreasing number of non-specialized jobs, means employers can be more selective in their hiring.

Despite your age, your grade, your marks, much could be accomplished with a new attitude. Prove to yourself that you have what it takes. Stay in school.

First Canadian Pageant Presented In 1906

The first play in Canada was a pageant presented in 1606 on the waters of Annapolis Basin at Port Royal in the Bay of Fundy, entitled "Theatre of Neptune." It was written by Marc Lescarbot, a brilliant young Parisian lawyer who proved to be the life of the party at the frame habitation in the new colony of Port Royal. Built by the Sieur de Monts in 1605 from plans drawn by Samuel de Champlain, this was the first permanent white settlement on the continent north of the Gulf of Mexico. The original building was destroyed by an English colonial force from Virginia in 1613, marking the beginning of the long struggle between England and France for supremacy in the new world. It has since been reconstructed on the original site. Champlain was a member of the pioneering party, and so was Louis Hebert, both moving later to Quebec. Lescarbot founded an "Order of Good Cheer" which provided fortnightly banquets during the winter. In November of 1603 the play was performed to welcome back Poutrincourt, the governor, from a voyage of exploration. Lescarbot later wrote and illustrated an entertaining history of the colony. After a poor start, the colonists were able to survive the winters without scurvy, thanks to the fresh fruit and vegetables planted by Hebert.

MY DAY — DARN IT

An old friend who spent the year in Europe just returned. We'd been out of touch, but I didn't realize how much until I came upon this paragraph in a letter from him.

"I met your friend, Bob, last night and he tells me you have retired. And to a farm! I simply can't believe it; but if it's true, I envy you. Now you'll have time to think, read, and be the scholarly type you always wished to be. I can just see you, pipe in mouth, strollnig through your meadows, or reading and relaxing while the rest of us continue the rat race. Hurrah for your side!"

Oh, boy, if he only knew! If I am retired, the rat race was a picnic. This would be an average day for me:

Rise at 6.30 a.m. and make a dint in the doggone chores. Grab a bite of breakfast, and then write one of the ten broadcasts I do each week. Dash to Vancouver to see one of the few public relations accounts I continued to handle — and do the writing chores involved in that. I am likely to get back to the farm about midnight, and thank the Good Lord that it is dark so I cannot see how much the grass or weeds have grown in the meantime.

Strolling in my meadows, he can see me, yet! Yeah, but up until a few weeks ago I carried a scythe with me, or a grass whip. No scholarly pauses by the brook to meditate (I did that when we first came to the farm) or the chores will go undone. And besides, I have a list as long as your arm of things that need doing urgently. I will be teaching creative writing this Fall, and must get my notes in order. This task will be squeezd in between efforts to get the outline of a book prepared.

So that's my day, darn it! Of course, I like it — or I would have ordered my life differently. Most of us wind up working because in spite of our being, that's what keeps us happy and fulfilled. If the scientific geezers finally make work obsolete, a whole new set of things that need doing will spring up to confront us. There will always be a market for the products of energy and effort.

But I didn't tell my old friend all this. I wrote back, promptly, "Yes, I realize you envy me, and I feel badly about it. So I am now officially inviting you to spend a month here in the quiet surroundings of the farm. We'll stroll through the meadows, and if you're a good boy I'll let you operate my tractor, and you'll go back to the rat race rested and refreshed."

I hope he falls for it - If he does, he'll go back to the rat race with some callus on his hands, and a completely new idea of how busy the placid rural life can be!

A beach soliloquy

With summer on the wane — and boy, how it waned around here — I've made a discovery. With the minimum of encouragement, I could spend the rest of my life as a beach bum.

Never was much of a hound for the beach life before. As a boy, I swam in rivers and lakes, but not at beaches. Anyway, kids are too busy swimming and diving and horsing around to be bothered lying on a beach.

As I grew older, beaches still had little attraction. I just didn't like sitting in the sun. I don't tan. I just sort of turn a burnt orange. Beaches were for women, little kids and old people. I preferred golf or fishing.

Well, I'm not a woman or a little kid, so I must be turning into an old people. Someone will think unkindly, no doubt, that it's the advent of the bikini that has prematurely aged me. This is merely a half-truth. I'm not particularly addicted to the sight of navels, though some of the other stuff displayed is mildly interesting.

No, it's the other sights and sounds that fascinate me. Now, I don't like the huge, crowded, commercialized beach. It inspires in me, with its noise and clutter and bawling transistors and screaming humanity, nothing but nausea.

But the beach we go to, almost every day the sun shines, is not like that. It is clean sand and cool, blue water and friendly, relaxed people. There are no loud-speakers bellowing the latest beat. There isn't a hot-dog stand or a motorcycle or a beer can in sight.

That doesn't mean it's as quiet as a church. The gulls wail, the mamas holler at their children, the kids scream and fight and cry. But when you stretch out on the sand after a dip, and the sun bores into you, taking away the aches and the tensions, it's as though you were hearing it all through cotton wool.

For some reason, "our" beach has become a mecca for newcomers to Canada. Foreigners, as we used to call them in the old, unenlightened days. You can lie there all day and scarcely hear a word of English. And what a pleasant change that is. You could be at Odessa, on the Black Sea. My Hungarian and Polish and German have improved tremendously.

But they're great people. They love the sun, mind their own business, and pick up their junk when they leave, which is more than can be said of a good many tenth-generation Canadians.

It's fun to watch and listen. Over here are a couple of Italian grandmothers, in black dresses, both built about five by five, yattering away eighty miles an hour. Just over there is a majestic young woman with Slavic features, a baby, a bikini so sparse you couldn't blow your nose in it, and a bust that would knock your eye out. Maybe both of them.

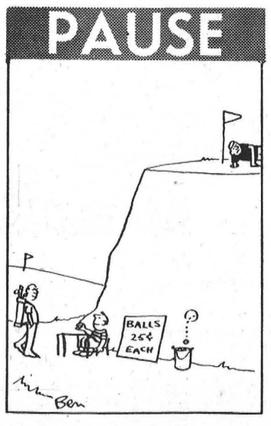
Back up on the sand a bit is the teenage crowd. They too have discovered our beach this summer. About sixteen of them sprawled in a loose circle, heads together, indulging in harmless sex-play, laughing, punching, smoking and making their intricate plans for the evening. But they're decent youngsters, who apologize when they hit you on the head with their football. No hippies, thank the powers.

Here comes an elderly German gentleman who must have drunk half the beer west of the Berlin Wall to produce that magnificent pot. There's a young Jewish father, spoiling his kids rotten. There's a Hungarian couple, tanned the colour of tar, with two beautiful blonde urchins.

And speaking of urchins, this is the real fun of the beach. They are through, over and around the prone bodies. They build castles and dams and forts. They hurl themselves into the water, shrieking with delight. And they're all so brown and firm and smooth you could eat them.

Why do all those darling, chubby five-year-old girls have to turn into bored, neurotic, harassed women? Why do all those careless, sturdy, happy little devils of boys have to turn into hard, suspicious, ulcerated men?

A good question. But I still haven't told you why I like the beach so much. I've discovered that it's the only place in the world where my wife will shut her mouth for two or three hours at a stretch.



The Seventh Column

It could have been a typographical error. If not, there's something rotten in the state of Denmark. Here's the story: Last week a young fellow from the district with a heavy foot on the gas pedal was picked up for driving at speeds close to 100 miles per hour on Highway 401. Hauled into court he was convicted and fined a total of $38.50. The $38.50 we question. Hold on ! Here's the rest of the story: At the same time he was nearly breaking the 100 mark he was proceeding in an easterly direction in the "westbound" lanes of 401. Near collisions with other innocent motorists were numerous and after a chase of about two miles in the "wrong" lane he finally crossed into the median, skidded about 500 feet and stopped. All for $38.50. So what price justice ! A week or so ago we heard of another chap, this one a long respected, accident free driver who was hauled down by radar. His cost was $38.00. Is there a parallel here ? If so we should like the law makers to explain it to us. And while they are explaining some of the stupid little bits that plague our traffic habits perhaps they would explain the reason for the difference in Highway 31 speed limits in Vernon and Winchester Springs. In Vernon, more populated than the 'Springs along the highway the rate of speed is 45 miles per hour. In Winchester Springs where highway population is next to nil compared to Vernon the speed limit is 40 miles per hour. It just doesn't make any sense.

There was a dandy water show at Crysler Park Marina on Sunday aftenoon. Members of the Collins Bay club put on the show before a good crowd of water sports fans. A lot more people would have attended if they had known the excellent show was going to be presented. The Parks has slipped up on more than one occasion this summer in publicizing events of this kind. Sure, the business is exceptional this year but there are other years. And every opportunity that is afforded the Parks to create good public relations should be taken. People, particularly area people, appreciate the extra curricular events at the Parks each summer. But it is a bit frustrating to find out the day after that some event had been held which you may have attended. Events like the water show on Sunday are crowd pleasers, the sort of thing which keep tourists coming back, indeed which keep them over night. With the right kind of promotion Sunday's show could have drawn, without too much effort, five times as many "satisfied" customers . . . all of them full of compliments for the Collins Bay club and more important for the Parks Commission which made the day possible.

Well, the Children's Aid Society came in for a panning over the week-end by "all" the news media. And it has apparently paid off for the two little sisters in Preston, Ontario who will stay together. Realizing of course the important work of the Children's Aid Society we find it difficult to understand the reasoning of some of the people working in this department. Just why religion for a youngster too young to have any religion plays such an important role is a question bothering more than a few people. Most parents anxious to adopt children are responsible people and they will assure proper and adequate religious training — Catholic, Protestant, Jewish, what have you. But the happiness and the opportunity for a youngster to live a normal life should not be hampered by religious background. And certainly in the case of two little sisters, or brothers, every effort must be made to have both of these youngsters adopted into the same home. Farming these kids out is a little different than the tactics we use for family pets. Yet, in some areas one starts to wonder what the thinking is of the individuals supposedly responsible for their welfare. The incident in Preston suggests that we look more closely at the methods of adoption used by the Society.

No nation can afford to take the operation of its political processes for granted. As long as there is change, as long as there is decay, as long as there is progress — there will always be a need in Canada and in the western democracies for major periods of political regeneration and reorganization based on fresh commitments to ideals and principles. — Hon. Centennial Military Tattoo At Ex.

The story of the French in Canada really begins with Samuel de Champlain's construction of a small post at Quebec in 1628. It was from here that the lines of exploration reached out into the interior of the country and later into the Mississippi Valley.

You can see it at the Armed Forces Centennial Tattoo now playing at the Central Canada Exhibition, August 16 to 26.

This Tattoo scene attempts to recapture a little of the way of life of some of the first settlers in the 1665 period. It is late afternoon; the Habitant are completing their work before the evening meal, and the trading post will soon close for the night. Enter the garrison troops Le Regiment de Carignan Salieres — the first French Regulars to be stationed in Canada. The soldiers prove their muskets and perform their final drills for the day, all with the timing and movements of the period.

Reference material covering Le Regiment de Carignan-Salieres was scarce, but whatever information could be found in France and Canada had to be studied carefully before the uniforms could be authenically reproduced. Authoritative sources affirm that this regiment was one of the first to use the flint lock musket. The flag used is one of many associated with King Louis XIV of France and the standard carried by the ensign is accepted as the colour of the regiment. The first musical selection "Prelude from Corousels pour Mon Seigneur" was written by Jean-Baptiste Lully court musician to Louis.

your telephone manager

You could call this little yarn "Handwriting on the wall." It seems that a subscriber's voice was becoming very familiar to the Information Operator. The same woman kept calling, fairly often, asking for a different number each time. Sensing that she was being recognized, the lady apologized and explained to the Operator. "I'm sorry to keep calling you so often, but they just papered my room and covered up all my numbers!" The lady had the right idea, to save time and avoid number errors, it's a good idea to jot down frequent called numbers. But we think a Personal Directory for such numbers is much handier . . . and much less likely to be wall-papered! If you would like a Personal Directory for your frequently called numbers, just give us a call at the business office and we'll be happy to send you one free of charge.

It's easier for your friends and associates to contact you when your printed business cards and letterheads or personal stationery give your complete name and address. That includes your complete telephone "address" - - not just your telephone number, but your area code as well. More and more busy men and women are finding it valuable to have their area codes printed on letterheads and business cards. It makes it so much easier for business associates to reach them quickly by telephone when necessary. Even if all your correspondence is personal and you don't use printed stationery, it's still a good idea to let your friends know your area code along with your phone number. And to know the complete telephone "address" of your distant friends. Of course, using the area code is a must if you are able to dial your own long distance calls and you are phoning to a place outside your own area. Where one of our Operators must place the call for you, giving her the area code helps her to speed your call along it's way.

Now here's a unique experience in telephoning - - calling porpoise-to-porpoise! I heard recently of a porpoise-to-porpoise long distance telephone call which combined communications technology with marine biology. Participants in the conversation with "Speedy," a trained porpoise at Marineland of the Pacific and "Splash," his counterpart at Marineland of Florida. The two porpoises squeaked, chirped and whistled to one another over the 2,500 miles of telephone lines that separated them. Each appeared to listen intently to the other with only occasional interruptions. Fortunately a porpoise is a mammal so no one should accuse me of telling a fish story.

Carleton County Agriculturalists Well Pleased

Although the weather did not co-operate Carleton County Agricultural personnel were well pleased with the first Farm Management Day held in the County. A few of the day's designated times were cancelled because of the rain but all major program parts were completed.

Dundas dairy farmer Hugh Blaine masterly outlined the future requirements of dairy farm management. Don Baker of Spencerville wasted no effort in presentation of the steak barbecue. Hosts Jim and Joy Bradley were exceptional.

Close to three hundred were interested and appreciative of the day's activity and were easily managed despite the poor weather. Agricultural personnel anticipate more Management Days and hope to make it an annual success.

Carleton County Competions Held

The West Carleton and East Carleton County 4-H Judging Nights were held recently at the Carp and Metcalfe Fair Grounds. There was a 91% attendance for the county. The 4-H members judged eight classes which included dairy cows, beef cows, hog carcasses, barley, hay, sheep, potatoes and grain corn. A difficult weed and forage identification made up the remainder of the contest. All 4-H members gave reasons on the placings in three classes.

The winners for the nine areas are as follows:

Antrim, Stewart Evans; Carp, Larry Hodgins; Gloucester, Francis Kenny; Kinburn, Robert Tripp; Metcalfe, Elwood Quinn; Richmond, Debbie Ralph; Rideau Valley, David Saunders; Stittsville, Brian Cathcart; Vernon, Bonnie Mitchell.

The highest scoring members in the county were Brian Cathcart and Elwood Quinn.

Weekly Newspapers Boost Canada's Centennial

Weekly newspapers and ethnic papers have done a great job promoting Canada's Centennial, according to John Fisher, Centennial Commissioner.

"The people in the small communities across the land represent the backbone of Canadian opinion and in the case of the Centennial celebrations I'm convinced that the wave of enthusiasm first built up in areas beyond the big cities.

"Weekly papers have helped to promote the Confederation Train and Confederation Caravan tours and many other national, provincial and local programs and celebrations. So have the ethnic papers and we're grateful for the co-operative spirit of editors and publishers. Most important of all, they stimulated local interest with their reportage to the extent that Centennial enthusiasm was carried to its heights mainly by non-government involvement," Mr. Fisher said.

Early last year Mr. Fisher and Jack Struthers, Chief of Information Services at the Centennial Commission (and former weekly newspaper editor) worked out a theme for a newspaper column, "Centennial Report," by Mr. Fisher, which went exclusively to Canadian weekly papers and ethnic papers.

Commenting on the success of the column, Mr. Fisher says, "Weeklies ordinarily don't want handout material for their news columns but because the subject was Centennial they went all out. By last fall 500 weeklies used at least one of our reports a month. Canadian Scene News Service, a non-profit organization in Toronto which serves ethnic publications, adapted the material into 14 other languages and sent it to ethnic editors. Well over 50 Canadian papers publishing in languages other than English carried the columns. In fact there was even one in Philadelphia using it.

"The kind of spirit which will keep Canada going at a Centennial tempo in the future will get much of its energy from the small towns and rural areas across this country," he added.

CAPTION

Several Changes Seen In Farm Improvement Grants

There have been several changes in the regulations which provide for grants on improvements to Ontario farms One of these allows to owner who rents his farm to obtain grants on improvements providing the tenant has a gross income of $3,000 or more the year previous to application.

Another regulation has been altered to include as an eligible expense the clearing of stumps, stones, or stone piles providing a fence row was permanently removed to make one field out of two. The only stipulation required is that these fields must have been under cultivation to qualify for grant for the clearing work. The clearing of land not now under cultivation is not an eligible improvement.

Necessary under all grant plans are the forwarding to the Department of Agriculture and Food the original copy of the account properly marked "paid in full" and signed by the contractor or supplier. Each account should describe the material used and the work done. Personal copies should be obtained of such documents before originals are sent to Toronto with application. Cancelled cheques will not be accepted as receipts.

Russell vs Metcalfe Osgoode vs Manotick Munster vs Stittsville

South Carleton Softball League Play-offs

The South Carleton Softball League Play-offs are underway with first place Russell playing 6th place Metcalfe in a best of seven series. At the same time 2nd place Munster is playing 5th place Stittsville and 3rd place Osgoode meeting 4th place Manotick.

In the Russell-Metcalfe series it's all tied up at one game each. In the first game, played at Russell, the home team won by a 7 to 0 score. In the second game, played at Metcalfe, again the home team won with Metcalfe picking up a 10 to 6 victory.

Home runs featured the Metcalfe game with Ed Rowan banging out a four-bagger with two on base, and three Russell players, Bruce Cooper, Doug. Russell and Andy Cousineau each getting a homer with the bases empty.

For the winners, Larry Corlyn went the distance on the mound while Russell started with Barry McVey, who was replaced by Keith Russel in the fourth. However, veteran Keith pulled a muscle in his leg while rounding third and had to be replaced by son Doug

The teams go at it again on Thursday night in Russell and back in Metcalfe on Friday night.

In the Osgoode-Manotick series, Manotick leads two games to none. No report on the Stittsville-Munster round.

Perth Girls Drop Final Game 5-4

If you like sports, and who doesn't? Then visit Russell. Three weeks ago it was a two-day fastball tournament; last week it was fair week and opening of the new swimming pool; and Saturday it was tournament time again.

This time a girl's tournament with no less than eleven top teams, some from as far away as Verdun, Quebec, competing. The first game got underway at 9:30 on Saturday morning and it was midnight before the last "out" was declared.

A large crowd was on hand throughout the day, and the final game saw the Perth girls, undefeated in 19 starts this year, meeting the Verdun team. Errors were costly for Perth and they dropped their first game by 5 to 4. In the consolation event Morrisburg downed Metcalfe 10 to 5.

Eldon Paul presented the awards and expressed the hope that all teams would be back next year.
