Locks sustain minor damage

A 539 ft. long, Greek, ocean-going freighter named the Amilla collided with a safety barrier at the Iroquois Locks on Thursday morning. The craft, carrying bulk cargo was on an upbound voyage when it collided with the arrestor. The incident occurred at 6:39 a.m. and held up traffic in the Seaway for close to 12 hours. Inset, welders can be seen at work repairing the damaged arrestor.

Tennis anyone?

Area abounds in courts

With tennis courts springing up in Morrisburg, and new management taking over the Cardinal courts, Iroquois's Seaway Tennis Club President is not worried about losing members to either side.

Jeff Beaupre is confident that the club will remain one of the top ranking clubs in the area and maintain itself both in membership and finances.

"We are holding our own," said the Seaway President, "and this year is one of our best, both financially and membership wise."

Iroquois has maintained a lead over the years in tennis and is now moving with the popular swing to racquet sports that is taking place over North America.

Cardinal for many years suffered bad management with their courts located on John Street, but Cardinal Tennis Club President Cecil Dugan is hoping to change that image and promote the sport within the community. But, Mr. Dugan is looking not only at the present but the future also.

"Presently we have about 25-30 members, but there is room for more," he said, "and while we are looking for maintaining the courts to gather more interest, we must prepare for the future town plans."

The town plans that the club president refers to will someday have a definite effect on the courts because of the probable expansion of the Canada Starch Company plant which holds ownership of the land the courts are situated on. The village was given the courts by the plant.

"The company has already expressed their intention to someday build on the land, and if there is not enough interest shown in the sport now, then it will be difficult to convince council to build new courts later," Mr. Dugan added.

While Cardinal looks to gain the interest in the community, Morrisburg has started from scratch and build completely new courts. Situated at the Morrisburg park, the 3 courts are home to approximately 125 players who have joined the Morrisburg Tennis Club.

Lights are the remaining stumbling block to allow further playing time, but according to Sue Jones, a member of the executive of the club that problem will be soon solved.

"We hope to get the lights put up in a week or so," she said, "and then those who didn't play during the daytime because of the heat will turn out during the evening."

All three clubs have sought memberships from those wishing to play in their areas, partially because of the costs involved in the courts themselves. Lighting must be paid for and although upkeep is minimal, money is necessary to keep the clubs afloat.

But, the memberships dues are also an incentive says Cardinal President Dugan, "I always thought that if you paid for something you appreciated it more."

Visitors are encouraged at all three clubs, with some issuing courtesy passes and others day passes for those who are sporadic in their exercise and enthusiasm.

Who has the best place to play tennis?

If you were to ask any of the club presidents they would probably pledge allegiance to their own club. But if you are a fan of tennis and live for the sport, then Iroquois and the immediate area gives you more than one court to swing with.

Council meets

Matilda seeks development road status

Matilda Township is seeking development road status for the section of the township road that runs west of the Black Creek Bridge on the road that connects Brinston with Glen Stewart. At last Thursday evening's regular meeting of council, it was agreed to submit to the Ministry of Transportation and Communications, a proposal prepared by the McNeely Engineering firm asking for the change in status.

The stretch of that same road running west from Brinston to the new bridge was built as a development road two years ago and if the western portion is completed, it would make the road a major artery across the township, connecting the Williamsburg and Winchester Springs area with the Spencer-ville area.

The engineering firm's estimated cost for rebuilding the 1.8 mile section is $145,000. The brief points out that some sections of the road in question are impassable due to flooding conditions and potholes during the spring breakup. It adds that the extensive maintenance required on the road is taxing the township's overall roads maintenance budget and that if the westerly portion was rebuilt, it would complement the eastern section and the new bridge, already built largely at provincial expense. Without the western section of the road, the stretch, between concessions 5 and 6, would serve mainly as a collector for the local area, but once rebuilt, it would become a main artery.

In other business, council discussed a request from several other Ontario municipalities which have been flooded this year, looking for funds. It was agreed that Matilda had plenty of flooding of its own to be concerned with and couldn't afford to make donations outside the township.

Council will be taking a close look at the proposed new regional dog kennel to be built in the Cornwall area, if approved. Another meeting is scheduled this week for representatives of the counties and Matilda will be represented. If the project goes ahead, the cost would be around $1.25 per capita for the first two years for a kennel and animal control officers. Tags would be sold for each dog in the township and the animals would be more closely monitored.

The township's weed control officer Howare Guy was in attendance to seek permission from council to go ahead with cutting weeds on a 100 acre farm that has been allowed to lie unused, while the weeds infest neighbouring farms. The owner, an Ottawa man, is to be served with notice that the cost of removal of the weeds will be added to his tax bill.

Township roads superintendent, Doug Liezert told council that paving and mulch work had begun on several stretches in the municipality, including the Toyes Hill road. The rain last Thursday brought a short halt to the work, but things were back on schedule on Friday. Mr. Liezert reported that two prices had been received for the paving, one from Diblees for $16.50 a ton and one from Cornwall Gravel for $17.20 per ton. The Diblee price had been accepted.

Mr. Liezert told council that he was aware that some other roads in the township were in poor shape and needed to be graded and to have calcium applied. He added that as soon as the roads that were to be paved had been graded, he would be putting the graders on the other sections of road and would apply more calcium.

Council passed a by-law to authorize the construction of the Mitchell municipal drain. Deputy Reeve, Lorne Strader, the Matilda representative on the South Nation River Conservation Authority reported that he had attended previous meetings of that organization and that Cruickshank Construction had been given a two week extension on the contract for work in the Chesterville area. He added that the authority was in the process of attempting to hire a project engineer, an assistant engineer, a project supervisor and a works foreman to oversee the channelization as far west as Salter's Bridge.

Iroquois, Morrisburg receive funding

Ontario's Ministry of Housing has allocated funds to the village of Iroquois and Morrisburg to provide summer jobs on downtown improvement projects for 5 students.

Iroquois will receive funding for 3 students for its downtown beautification while Morrisburg will receive funding through the Chamber of Commerce for its downtown beautification and promotion.

Funds for the projects are provided as part of the Ontario government's "Experience '79" summer employment program.

Subdivision roads won't be accepted council states

Matilda Township Council isn't taking any chances when it comes to being saddled with more roads to maintain. A resolution was passed at Thursday night's meeting to the effect that the township would not be responsible for accepting or maintaining any roads that are being built in the Lakeview Bay subdivision unless they are built under the eye of the township roads superintendent, to the standards set by the Ministry of Transportation and Communications.

The subdivision, being prepared by Gabemi Developments of Morrisburg is located on the shores of Flegg Creek and will have around 15 homes on estate sized lots. Council is concerned that roads are being built now, despite the fact that the developer has never signed a formal subdivision agreement with the township. Any work that is being done now on the development is being done purely on speculation that an agreement will be signed.

As far as roads are concerned, it is the usual practice for the developer to build the roads and then turn them over to the municipality when the project is done. The municipality then maintains the road and removes the snow. Matilda Council is concerned that the roads will be poorly built and that the end result could be the township having to pay the cost of upgrading them. For that reason, a letter has gone to the developer warning of the problem.

In other news of the proposed subdivision, council had a preliminary report from the South Dundas Planning Board noting that the Ministry of the Environment was not prepared to approve a change in the zoning of the area to allow the subdivision to be built because of air quality problems.

According to the report, a complaint has been received by the Ministry about emissions from the HiCrete concrete plant immediately west of the site. The ministry is concerned that if the concrete plant expands to the east, there won't be a buffer area between the plant and the subdivision.

Matilda council is investigating the possibility of creating a buffer zone along the Flegg

Road so that the plant and subdivision will be properly separated. That buffer zone could take the form of several residences, occupied by owners of the concrete plant, built on the plant property. The matter is to be investigated more thoroughly with the county planning board.

Report recommends individual systems

While Highway 31 undergoes badly needed repairs, the main artery from the nation's capital has a gap in that path that provincial government officials hope will soon be filled in and thus finally completing the reconstruction of the road.

Williamsburg remains the single mile in which work has purposely been omitted because of the lack of a sewage system for the village that bridges both sides of the highway midway between Morrisburg and Winchester.

But, with the consultants report now in the hands of the Ministry of Environment officials, hopes are that work will begin sometime next spring on construction.

The problem that the consultants have been working on are that each residence in the village does not have adequate sewage disposal systems, and in many cases there are instances where sewage is running off without being treated.

Before the Ministry of Transport moved ahead with paving the highway, the sewage problem was deemed necessary to correct and it was then up to the Ministry of Environment to investigate the problem.

A consultants report released this week looks at giving the municipality a grant to help residents subsidize the installation of private systems as their various needs dictate.

Each resident would be responsible for paying only 25 percent of the total costs, and would be granted funds to cover the remaining 75 per cent. The municipality would be in charge of giving out the funds.

Ministry of Environment officials are hoping to meet with Williamsburg council within the next few weeks to discuss the plans and if they are accepted, work may begin next spring with completion sometime later in the same year. Part of the reconstruction would involve the repaving and installation of sidewalks in the village.

Sewers and the lack of a system for the village of Williamsburg have delayed the completion of construction of Highway 31, but provincial government officials from the Ministry of Environment and MTC are looking at beginning sometime in early spring of next year at completing the project.

Turbo train returns to service after fire

VIA Rail's damaged turbo train that was gutted as a result of a fire east of Iroquois on May 29 will not be returned to service, but the two other trains are again operating.

Drain tender awarded

Matilda Township Council has awarded the tender for construction of the Gerry Byvelds municipal drain in the township. At Thursday evening's meeting of council, the only tender received for the job was opened.

Frank Ault Equipment of Brinston was awarded the job, after quoting a price of $5,141.50, a figure that was actually lower than the estimate that had been prepared by the engineering firm that drew up the specifications for the drain.

The company returned the two trains to service on the Montreal-Toronto run last week. After the engines were modified. The trains had been mothballed for two months until officials from the Canadian Transport Commission were satisfied that no other fires would break out on the engines.

The fire began as the train was passing through Morrisburg, taking almost 4 miles to stop, gutted 3 units causing over a million dollars damages. No injuries were sustained in the incident other than a few sprained ankles caused by passengers walking on the railbed. Firefighters from both Iroquois and Morrisburg fought the blaze.

Investigators found that a stainless steel pipe - eventually corroded by the sulphur content of the fuel - broke, spraying fuel over the hot engine and igniting the culprit.

A new type of fuel line has been fitted into the two engines and changes have been made to the automatic alarm and extinguishing systems.

Twenty-one entries, ranging from an ant to a horse took part in the 3rd Annual Summer Recreation Pet Show, Thursday.

From ants to horses, they came to be judged

The third Annual Summer Recreation Pet Show was held last Thursday at the Central Park, with 21 entries ranging from an ant to a horse vying for a number of worthwhile prizes. Categories in the show took in everything from the Most Unique Animal, Glenn Serviss' salamander, to the Funniest Animal, Ellen Seeley's pet hamster.

The Best Dressed Animal award was presented to a cat belonging to Becky Fawcett. Chris Fetterly's ant won the prize for the Smallest Animal. In the Most Original Name contest, Buzz Bunny, Amy Reddick's rabbit, took first place from a number of other entries. The Largest Animal award went to Robin Robertson and her horse. The Smallest Dog and Cat prizes were handed out to Jackie Latulipe and Lynn Serviss respectively. Randy Picotte won the Largest Cat prize, while the Largest Dog award went to Richard Tailer.

Brinston Ball Tournament

Sixteen teams will be taking part this weekend in the annual Brinston Fastball tournament. The action begins on Friday evening with a couple of games and then steps up on Saturday with games on both diamonds at Brinston.

A dance on Friday night at the Matilda Township Hall gets things going for the weekend with music to be provided by Kenny Wise and the group.

The weekend tournament, sponsored by the Brinston Diggers intermediate team offers prize money of $350, for first place in the A round and $200, for first place in the B round. Second place in the A is $250, and each semi final team gets $60. In the B, the second place money is $100, and again, each semi final team will receive $60. A chicken dinner will be available, under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. and a festival garden will operate at the ball park on both Saturday and Sunday.

The teams that will be taking part in the tournament at Brinston include the Morrisburg Intermediates, Heckston, Johnstown, Kemptonville, Roys Boys from Williamsburg, the Williamsburg Dodgers, Ingleside, Berwick, Chesterville, Riverside, Brown's Foundry, Ottawa Valley Roofing, Williamsburg South, Morrisburg Sliders, South Mountain and the host team, the Brinston Diggers.

Camping trip planned

The Iroquois Parks and Recreation Department has planned its 3rd Annual camping trip for this summer.

Children 11 years and older will be camping from August 9 to 11, while those 10 years of age and under will be going on the 17th and 18th. The outing is to be held at Farran Park near Ingleside, with the main emphasis of the trip being enjoyment and appreciation of the out-of-doors.

The trips will be supervised by male and female staff members of the Recreation Department, all of whom have a wide range of camping experience.

The first group will leave the central park at 10:00 a.m. on August 9. Any transportation or camping equipment would be greatly appreciated by the organizers of the two trips. For information on how you can be of assistance, contact Lori De Bellefeuille 652-2123.

Donkey baseball huge success

At least 600 people turned out on Friday evening for one of the zaniest events of the summer. Members of the Iroquois-Matilda Lions Club took on the Brinston Midget girls ball team in a game of donkey baseball and the crowd enjoyed every minute of it.

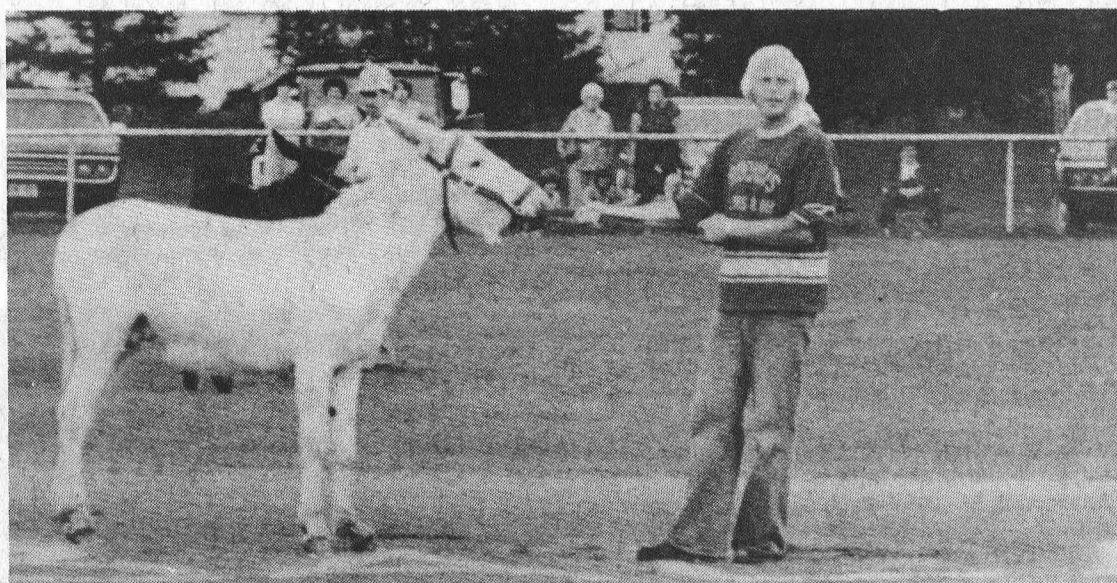

The Lions won the game 3 to 2, but the girls team won a donkey race held prior to the game. The donkeys lived up to their reputations as stubborn beasts throughout the game, doing just the opposite of what their riders intended.

The donkey game was preceded by an exhibition game between the Lions Club and a team made up of members of the Morrisburg-Iroquois council of the Knights of Columbus and some helpers. The Lions also won that contest.

Donkey baseball last made an appearance in Iroquois during the early 1970's and was a big hit at that time as well. Members of the organizing committee of the Lions Club were pleased with the turnout for the game and noted that the proceeds will be helping to defray the debt incurred from building the beach building.

Wes Stevens demonstrates his trick-skiing ability while practicing in their home water ski course.

Steven's family Skiing a way of life

Eric, Mark and Wes Stevens recently brought more recognition to themselves and the Iroquois area when they competed in a water-skiing tournament in Pushlinch Lake near Guelph.

In the meet, all three of the boys qualified for the upcoming Eastern Canadians Tournament on August 18, in at least two events. Mark, also qualified for the Nationals in the slalom event by completing a pre-set number of bouys at a pre-set rope length.

Two of the three, Eric and Mark have been skiing since their early teens, while Wes started his career in the sport at 7 or 8 years of age.

Wes is presently ranked in the boys division of competition, while Mark and Eric compete in the men's class.

All three are extremely devoted to this exciting summer time activity, rising at six in the morning most days, skiing for a while and then heading off to school in the spring and fall or work in the summer. Upon returning home at night, the boys eat supper and then head out for a few more hours of skiing.

The family has set out a slalom course, which runs adjacent to their newly built home and this course has served them well over their many years of competitive skiing. The course is sheltered for most of the summer from the rough waters of the St. Lawrence and because it is in an inlet, the water temperature increases more rapidly in the spring and stays warmer longer in the fall, allowing the Stevens to ski for a greater portion of the year than they would have in the St. Lawrence.

According to Mark, the three must begin very early in the year if they want to attain a high ranking in this extremely competitive sport. The boys, therefore wear wet suits for most of their spring and fall skiing in an effort to fight off the cold at these times of the year.

The Stevens' American Skier boat with its Ford 351 inboard engine provides the power and speed needed by the boys to get through the slalom and trick skiing courses. Eric, Mark and Wes have skied behind a number of other boats in their careers but the American Skier, as is, denoted by its name, is specifically built for the type of skiing they do.

The cost involved in buying the best skis, transporting everything, except the boat, to the competitions and buying gas for practice, is extremely high and because of this the boys get a certain amount of their transportation paid for through Wintario.

Three weeks ago, Wes remained behind at Pushlinch Lake following their competition in order to train for the Ontario Championships and Eastern Canadians both held later this summer in Welland, Ontario.

Wes and Eric have yet to qualify for the Nationals which will be held this year in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia. All three will be competing in the Eastern Canadian Championships.

The Post would like to take this opportunity to wish the Stevens boys the best of luck in their upcoming competitions. Good Luck!

by
E. G. AVERY

It was a very quiet day along the trail. The only voices were the delicate twitters of Goldfinches, and the occasional burst of melody from the Song Sparrows. However, there were things to see if one really looked for them. In the top branches of a dead tree, a small flock of Cedar Waxwings took turns at darting out after the many flying insects; Barn Swallows skimmed over the water in the same pursuit.

After the rains, there were many fine puddles, provided by Mother Nature for the benefit of her creatures, and they were certainly enjoying themselves. We watched a Yellow Warbler and a Goldfinch as they shared a tiny pool, while further on, a larger one was the scene of a bathing party which looked like a family gathering of Robins.

There was a brief glimpse of a Groundhog, as he scamped for cover, protesting with his familiar whistle. Grasshoppers large and small flying in all directions, some of them hitching a free ride as they landed on a passing shirt sleeve. Butterflies are plentiful this year, with Monarchs beginning to gather for their long migration.

When the possibilities along the trail were exhausted, the return home took us along the boat-house road, and the delightful little park there. A Common Tern flew along the river, surely one of the most graceful birds on this earth; there were Gulls too, of course, and a few Killdeer piping. As we crossed the field in front of Carman House, we could see many Meadowlarks feeding in the grass, along with a few Redwings.

Around home, the Robins are busy giving their last brood of young their "final exams" preparatory to the long trip ahead of them. We can hear them scolding cats, and generally taking such care to teach the babies all they need to know. Only in the evening do they find time to sing a few songs.

Speaking of babies, this seems to be a good opportunity to offer congratulations to our Editor and his wife on the arrival of their new nestling!

Resident given conditional discharge

An Iroquois woman, who took a Cardinal minor without her parents consent, was given a conditional discharge in provincial court in Prescott, Tuesday.

Georgina Haldane, 22 had pleaded guilty to taking Kimberly Moore away from home without her parents consent. The two were picked up by the R.C.M.P. on May 18, in Estevan, Saskatchewan, after Moore's parents lodged a complaint with the Cardinal police.

A pre-sentence report revealed that Moore was a willing participant in the trip and had withdrawn a substantial amount of money from her account at the Toronto Dominion Bank in the village, with the intention of heading to western Canada or the United States.

Haldane immediately returned to Iroquois to face the charge when she realized she had broken the law. During her conditional discharge, Haldane must not associate with Moore.

Annual Crop and Soil Tour August 20th

The Dundas County Soil and Crop Improvement Association will be holding its annual car tour of projects underway in the county on Monday August 20th. The event runs from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and tour guide will be David Scott, field crop specialist with the Carleton County office of the OMAF.

The tour will begin at the Stan Vanden Bosch farm at the south-east limits of Chesterville.

Displays there will include a herbicide roller that acts like a giant paint roller that wipes weeds taller than the crop with Roundup.

A four wheel drive sprayer with a ground-driven pump will be on display and there will be a discussion of atrazine resistant weeds. A field of early soybeans will also be looked at.

At 11:30 a.m. the tour moves to the Martin Schneckenburger farm east of Glen Becker on County Road 28. There visitors will see a corn population study with 17,700, 22,000 and 27,700 plants per acre all planted on May 18.

Following lunch, which members are asked to bring themselves, the tour will go to Bud Pollock's farm on County Road 5 west of Winchester Springs. Tour members will see direct seeded legume plots including several varieties of Alfalfa, and Trefoil.

The tour will conclude at the Kemptville College crop demonstration area east of Inkerman where displays will include soybean weed control plots with eleven different herbicides, a soybean row width test and nitrogen trials on corn, spring or fall.

The tour gets started on August 20th at.

Iroquois midway point of canoe marathon this Saturday

The Second Annual Iroquois-Matilda Lions 60 Mile Canoe Marathon is scheduled to make place Saturday and Sunday.

The event, organized by the Morrisburg Lions Club, will be open to anyone wishing to make the 60 mile trip from the Brockville Marina to Cornwall. Members of the Edwardsburg, Iroquois-Matilda and Morrisburg Lions Clubs will take part in the venture in order to raise money for several local charities.

The marathon will begin at 9:30 on Saturday from Brockville and move as far as Iroquois the first day. At Iroquois, the canoers will be put up for the night at the golf club but they must provide their own camping equipment.

Supper will be served to the group for a small fee on Saturday evening, Sunday morning and Sunday evening. The rest of the meals for the trip will be provided by the canoers themselves.

Along with their meals and camping equipment, the group will have to provide their own approved life jackets and transportation for their canoes.

The two-day event should be beneficial to both the canoers and the charitable organizations for whom the money is being raised.

Despite broken hand, Carter will jump

The International Jump across the St. Lawrence River will be happening in spite of the fact that stuntman Ken Carter will have the use of only one hand. The self-styled Mad Canadian injured his hand in a jump in Edmonton last week and will have it in a cast for the next 12 weeks.

Mr. Carter, who was released from an Edmonton hospital last Thursday is concerned about his credibility and was quick to point out that the jump from Matilda Township to Ogden Island will indeed be taking place. A story in the Edmonton Journal quotes Mr. Carter as saying "The jump is still on. I am definitely not going to miss it."

The stuntman noted that he will be able to drive with one hand, after slight modifications to the car. "Anything I have to do with my left hand is moved over to my right hand."

The jump is scheduled for September 2nd, three weeks from this coming Sunday, but so far no work has begun on modifications to the jump site.

Guidelines Overdue

After untold numbers of years of allowing auto insurance companies to fleece some of their customers, the provincial government is going to establish new guidelines for the sale of car insurance. The move is long overdue, but should be applauded nonetheless.

Preparations for the new guidelines are in the final stages, so that they can hopefully come into effect within the next year or so. Rather than lumping an individual into a category of male or female, age 25 or under, single or married, the insurance companies will be forced to offer rates based on a driver's personal safety record and on the number of miles he travels in a year.

For too long now, insurance companies have fallen back on the old excuse that young men were, statistically, the worst drivers, and that therefore all young men should pay high premiums for their auto insurance. Now the province has forced the insurance companies to take a second look at the policy and to come up with more realistic and rational justification for rates. Now drivers will be charged a rate that is based on the number of miles they drive and on their own accident record and their traffic safety record. Not only will it be a more equitable system for all drivers, but it will promote safer driving once motorists see that fewer tickets or minor accidents will definitely mean money in the bank for them at insurance premium time.

Garbage At The Gate

Driving used to be a pleasure, but in recent years OPEC and inflation made that habit of many North Americans a luxury. While there seems to be no slowdown in traffic on our highways, one would hope there would be a slowdown on another familiar sight along our paved paths, that of garbage.

The inhabitants of many of our vehicles have an insatiable cause which they always seem to wish to promote, that of having a clean automobile.

While the ideal is something to be commended, it is unfortunate that the doers of this good deed do not ever get out of their gas guzzling chariots and walk along the sides of the highways. They would probably be disgusted at the waste discarded by passing motorists and their passengers.

Paper of all shapes and forms, bottles that could have been recycled, garbage bags that never made it to the dump, and numerous other articles that do nothing to enhance the scenery of our Seaway Valley, or of the country.

Have we become such a consuming society that we have become enveloped in our own myth that there is an infinite supply of everything?

If one were to look at our nation's highways, one would surely believe so.

It must also be remembered that cleanliness is next to Godliness, and it is doubtful that even He allows trash to accumulate at the gates of St. Peter.

Letter to the editor...

Dear Sir:

My sincere congratulations to the Iroquois Post on winning three national awards in the Better Newspapers Competition sponsored by the Canadian Community Newspaper Association.

These awards, along with the past awards achieved by the Post in provincial competitions indicate the calibre of interest and hard work which you and your staff contribute to the Iroquois Post.

In closing, please convey to your staff my best wishes and once again congratulations.

Sincerely yours,

No one seems to know how soon -- if ever -- Canada will become self-sufficient in oil.

Most of us can remember when the late Joe Green was minister of energy. At that time, we were told that Canada had enough oil reserves for 90 years. That statement was soon refuted.

This nation is fortunate but the supplies are not going to last forever. Other sources must be found. Until that time, shortages will occur. The federal government already has a method of rationing for implementation. Even to the point where ration books have been printed, I understand.

Unless that rationing includes preferred treatment for farmers, this nation could be in trouble.

Peter Hannam, the articulate president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture puts it succinctly: No gas in the tractor, no potatoes on the table.

Other lobby groups no doubt will catch King Clark's ear. Certainly, the truckers in the Hew Hess Hay caught King Carter's ear. And who was left stalled in the back forty when the truckers got a bigger allocation? Farmer Brown, that's who. The agricultural allocation was shorted to satisfy the militant truckers.

What this says to me is that the Americans would rather drive than eat.

Farmers are not as militant as truck drivers. They are not as well organized as truckers' unions. They do not have the high profile that the teamsters have. I mean, they don't encase troublesome members in cement socks and then think of the bay.

Farmers could, indeed, become the people to suffer most when -- not if -- the fuel shortage becomes acute. The agricultural community must stick together on this issue. Before the shortages are acute, farmers must insist on reasonable prices for fuel. They must insist on adequate allocations, not just for the good of farmers, but for the good of the entire nation.

Because I like to eat. It is a habit I picked up very early in life, a habit that is difficult to break.

No gas in the tractor, no potatoes on the table. Or bread or butter or milk or vegetables or cereals. Or even whisky because it is made from grains.

Hey! Maybe that's the tack farmers should take.

"Give us fuel, people, or you won't be able to drink."

Most people cry like a wounded warthog when food prices increase but meekly accept the ripoffs in taxes on beer and liquor.

Little information is available about the federal government's emergency allocation plans. As I understand it, agriculture will be grouped with essential services -- in fact, the entire food chain will be considered essential -- such as hospitals, police and fire protection.

Farm organizations should be asking questions and demanding answers. Farmers should have some idea of just how important they are to the people of this country. Farmers should know they are wanted. Government policies on fuel allocation should be hammered out now before the crunch comes.

Food production now uses about 18 percent of all energy consumed by the total food system. Farmers are well aware that diesel tractors are most efficient fuel users than gasoline tractors. That is why so many diesel tractors are in use.

Farmers, because they must be aware of production costs, can show a lot of people how to be energy-conservation conscious.

The time has come to appreciate agriculture by letting farmers know what to expect when the fuel shortage arrives in Canada as it surely will.

The Oasis...

Almost every day in the summer I drop in at The Oasis, as I think of it.

I know, I know. Nasty-minded readers are already thinking it's some kind of watering-hole for dry old Bill Smiley. One of those airconditioned bars that are so dark you can't see a thing for five minutes and have to count your change by the Braille system.

Not so. I strongly dislike those joints. Most of them are dark and dirty and stink. They have a few poor, lonely souls who have nowhere else to go, and very often a construction gang or a road gang, noisy and beer-swilling and profane, sousing it up on the company's time.

Nope. I avoid those places like the plague. The Oasis is nothing like that. It doesn't have a braying television set, foul-mouthed roisters and cold-eyed waitresses. It's just the opposite.

True, it is air-conditioned. But not the kind that makes you wish you were wearing a fur coat after five minutes.

And true, it is not brightly lighted. But there is enough light to see what you are imbibing, count your change without using your fingertips, and read a book or a newspaper.

And that's exactly what I do there, and why I think of it as The Oasis. It's a charming little place to stop and refresh oneself, to cool out and meditate a bit, and gossip and just plain, sip before plunging back out into the desert of life.

What The Oasis provides for the wandering bedouins who stop there is a little peace and quiet.

It has none of the plastic jazz of the chain hamburger and submarine joints. But it has a number of things those places can never offer: charm, friendliness, good manners, courtesy.

The customers are not made to feel that the management is doing them a favour by serving them. They are greeted warmly, they are served quickly and efficiently, and they are thanked graciously when they leave, even though they've spent only thirty cents and taken up a seat for half an hour.

How many public places to eat and drink are there like that in this country? You could count them without taking your socks off.

Sure, we have fancy restaurants in the country where you can pay $50 for a so-so dinner for two, and be patronized by the wine waiter. And we have eleven-thousand snack bars and lunch bars and grills where everything tastes the same.

But we have scarcely any places like The Oasis. It's not much, physically. Just a half dozen or so tables in the back of a store. Very much like the sort of tearoom you can still find in England, if you get off the beaten track.

The menu varies little, but there's a good soup du jour, good coffee and hot tea, fresh-made sandwiches, and a lot of goodies that are baddies for the many little old ladies and all the vulnerable young ladies who frequent it: home-made pies, butter tarts, muffins loaded with calories.

Part of the fun, for me, is sitting there getting a jolt from my coffee and listening in.

"Just a pot of tea, thanks. Well what are you going to have, Ida? You are? Well what kind do you have? Well, maybe just a square of pineapple cake. And just one butter tart to get started on."

And half an hour later, those the gentle ladies are walking out with about six hundred calories they didn't need. Each.

Even when the Oasis is busy, there is no sweat. No barking orders. No getting cross. There's time to laugh and joke with old customers, be pleasant to new ones, and make sure nobody is being neglected.

I've watched tourists come in, a little uneasy because they're not used to such informality. They tentatively order soup and a sandwich, find them excellent, wind up with a whacking great piece of pie, pay a modest bill, and go out looking as though they couldn't believe what had happened to them.

It's a place that brings out the decency in people.

Seating is limited. The other day, four people walked in and there wasn't a table for four. A young couple, with a babe in arms, offered to move to a table for two that had just been vacated, transferring their food, utensils and baby. The newcomers were so shocked they would scarcely say thanks.

Very often, The Ticket-Seller is there. He sells tickets on every lottery you've ever heard of. He loves children and jokes and talks to the little guys in The Oasis. He drinks coffee, displays his tickets, usually selling one or two and hits the street. The Columnist observes.

Two teenagers grab a table. The Columnist listens. "So, I said to him, not on your life." Giggles. "So, guess what he says?" Giggles. And so on.

Despite what my wife thinks, I am not enamoured of the lady who runs the Oasis, though she does have a beautiful face, figure and walk. In fact, she doesn't walk. She sashays.

I am in love with a little place of sanity, sense and serenity in this increasingly ugly world.

Buy a lakeside cottage for inflation protection

By Lyman MacInnis, CA

It is easy to forget about things like inflation when you are lazing about at the cottage. After all, there are more important things to think about -- like what kind of bait the fish are likely to be going for today.

Well, the idyllic surroundings are not the only buffer against inflation. The cottage as an investment is an excellent protection for your money.

Assume you have $35,000 which you plan to invest, reinvesting each year, to create a retirement nest egg. Say you invest at a nice safe 10 per cent. Your money will earn $3,500 the first year. But that income is taxable -- at the 50 per cent tax rate, for example, you would pay $1,750 in income tax. Your after-tax investment would total $36,750 after one year, about $45,000 after five years.

General financial advice by members of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Ontario.

That $45,000 figure sounds great, but look at it in terms of worth. Five years down the road, the value of your money will have been substantially eroded by inflation. In recent years, inflation has averaged close to 10 per cent each year in Canada. If we apply that ten per cent to your $45,000, it turns out that by 1984 that sum would be worth about $25,500 in 1979 dollars.

The nest egg is fading fast.

Now, say that instead of investing in the money markets, you decide to use your $35,000 to buy a lakeside cottage. If you project your return on investment over the next five years, it is safe to assume that the value of the property will go up. At the very least, it will not go down.

A cottage worth $35,000 in 1979 will still be worth at least $35,000 -- in 1979 dollars -- in 1984.

Of course, you will have paid property taxes and maintenance costs over the five years, roughly $4,200 worth -- but you are still farther ahead with the cottage as an investment.

The better the location -- waterfront property, proximity to city, landscaping -- the greater the eventual resale value is likely to be. In fact, well located real estate will almost certainly appreciate in value over and above the rate of inflation.

And what better way to earn money for your retirement than by lazily baiting the hook?

Mr. MacInnis is with Touche Ross & Co., Toronto.

J.M. is on vacation this week and will return next week on August 15th.

Producers Taking a Bum Rap

By W. Roger Worth

Canada's farmers and fishermen have been taking a bum rap from consumers who continually lay the blame for rising food prices at the dock-side, or at the farm gate.

Bluntly stated, a lot of the complainers don't know what they are talking about. In fact, Canadians are among the best fed people in the world, and at prices that are among the lowest in the world.

It's true, food prices have been rising at an inordinate rate during the past couple of years, but so have the producers' costs.

Certainly, farmers and fishermen have been faring well of late, but that's the nature of the business. Producers earn a great deal of money in the good years, hopefully offsetting losses in the lean periods.

Some misinformed city-slicker complainers are bright enough to remain silent when food prices are dropping, and producers are in trouble.

While there may be room for complaints about the in-adequacies and pricing policies of the nation's processing and distribution system, overall, consumers are getting food at reasonable cost.

Much has been made of the fact that it now costs $61 per week to feed a family of four people in Canada. Atrocious, some consumers would say.

Yet Canadians only spend about 22% of take-home pay on food. The complainers should look at Japan, where families spend as much as 40% of income on food. Or Europe, where it's not considered unreasonable if food costs surpass 30% - 35% of family income.

Canadian consumers complain about hamburger at $2.50 - $3 per pound. Yet the same product in Tokyo appears on retail store shelves priced at $10 - $15 per pound. And the Japanese don't complain.

What's important to note, particularly considering the energy crunch, is that North Americans have not been faced with outright shortages of food. The producers are doing their job.

Rather than complaints, Canadian consumers should be patting farmers and fishermen on the back. They deserve a break.

Charges result from high speed chase

Charges have been laid against two men, following two separate high speed chases on Sunday. Damage to two OPP cruisers came to $1,400. In the incidents that occurred, one on Sunday morning and the other on Sunday night.

David J. Melvin of Pine Street in Ingleside has been charged with criminal negligence, impaired driving, driving with a blood-alcohol level over .08 and will appear in court on August 14th, following the chase that ended north of Williamsburg, near Highway 31, on Sunday night.

Edward Bilmer was charged with impaired driving, criminal negligence, failure to give a breath sample, and having liquor in a place other than his residence, following the chase that ended on Sunday morning at the intersection of County Road 28 and 8.

Other than those two incidents, police at Morrisburg report a relatively quiet holiday weekend on the highways. The detachment has investigated 8 motor vehicle accidents of a reportable nature over the past week. They are also investigating the theft of a battery from a car owned by Louis Bailey of Iroquois and parked at Mac's Texaco.

Charges have been laid under the liquor license act against the following people: Scott Heriman of Williamsburg Township; Paul Keyes of R.R. 3, Winchester; James Mills of Brinston; Ricky Summers of R.R. 3, Winchester; James Christensen of Morrisburg; Sylvain Leclerc of Quebec; Steve Allen of Chesterville; Steven Patenaude of R.R. 2, Mountain; John G. Hume of Winchester; Peter Brogan of R.R. 2 Osgoode, and Edward Bilmer of Morrisburg.

McHaffie, Strader exchange vows

Marriage vows were exchanged between Debbie Marion McHaffie, daughter of Mr. Audrey McHaffie and the late Lloyd McHaffie of Williamsburg, and Basil Neil Strader, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Strader of Brinston, on June 30 in a double ring wedding ceremony at Williamsburg United Church.

Performing the ceremony was Reverend Kathy York. The bride wore a jersey gown with a matching train, trimmed in lace and lace applique.

Her headpiece was made with matching lace and veil was attached with pearls. Wearing an heirloom necklace of the groom's grandmother, presented by the groom's uncle, Gilson Strader, the bride was given away by her only brother Wayne McHaffie. Her bouquet was made from a flowing cascade of red roses and pink and white carnations.

Four bridesmaids attended Miss McHaffie. Miss Lorna Strader, sister of the groom, Miss Louise Arcand, Mrs. Linda McMahon and Fay Froats wore blouson-styled gowns in mint green and inserted lace at the neckline and silk mint green flowers in their hair. They carried bouquets of long stemmed ming green and white carnations with baby's breath strewn throughout.

Maid of Honor, Mrs. Christina McNairn, was accompanied by Groomsman, Brian Montgomery. Ushers included Doug McNairn, Charles Bailey, John Mellan and Dennis McMahon.

The bride's neice, Jennifer Arroyo-Torres, was the flower girl. She wore a lemon-yellow dress in layered chiffon, tied with a yellow satin sash and carried a nosegay of miniature green carnations and yellow daisies.

Baskets of pink and white peonies and mock orange blossoms decorated the church. The tables were trimmed with marigolds and pink and white carnations.

The reception afterwards was held at Matilda Township Hall, Dixon's Corners, approximately one hundred guests attended and came from Saskatchewan, Detroit, Toronto, Ottawa and the local area.

The couple honeymooned at Niagara Falls. Going away the bride wore a beige jersey-knit dress with matching accessories and a corsage of tangerine baby carnations.

Brockville, Cardinal tied for lead in Dundas fastball

The Brockville Stars and the Cardinal Pats are tied for the lead following last week's play in the Dundas Fastball League. The two teams each have a total of 28 points while the other two teams in the league fight it out for third and fourth spot with 12 points apiece.

On July 31, Brockville and Williamsburg had to play 8 innings before the outcome of their contest was decided in favour of the Stars 7-6. Williamsburg came right back the next night, however, and won 4-0 over the same Stars. As well, Cardinal defeated Maynard on the same evening.

The 2nd of August saw Cardinal defeat Brockville in 8 innings 3-2. Williamsburg won their game over Maynard 4-0 on the 3rd to move into their tie for 3rd spot.

The race continues this week with Williamsburg visiting Brockville on the 7th, Cardinal travelling to Maynard on the 9th, Cardinal at Williamsburg on the 10th and Maynard at Brockville on the 14th.

Correction

A report in last weeks Post erroneously stated that Delage's Jewellery Store was a victim of a break-in at the Morrisburg Mall. The statement should have read Walts Jewellery Store. We regret any inconvenience this might have caused.

HARD FEELINGS

by Don Bredes

A novel like Hard Feelings reminds one as to why they like to read in the first place. The narrator is Bernie Hergruter, who is 16 and going through the most turbulent period of his life.

Due to a teen crisis and a hard family situation, Bernie leaves home in Long Island and runs away to Ohio for adventure. There he realizes the real excitement is in the world he left behind, and he returns to come to grips with his own reality.

Hard Feelings does not give the reader the sense of reading, one feels like he is listening to the fast, emotional confession of a friend. Bernie speaks in the universal idiom of adolescence, the language is so familiar that everyone who comes in contact is compelled to listen.

Hard Feelings is gutsy and real, but also manages a desperate kind of optimism. Truly one of the best books I've had the privilege to read.

MURDER HAS YOUR NUMBER

by Hugh Garner

Another case for Inspector McDumont leads mystery fans on a summer quest for the killer of Alan Shelgrove. Veteran Inspector Walter McDumont questions and chases, follows and spies for the answer and provides readers with a solid murder mystery at the same time.

A POLITICAL MEMOIR

by Walter Gordon

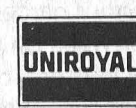

Walter Gordon played a crucial role in the reconstruction of the Liberal Party following the federal defeat in 1957 and 1958. After the election of Lester B. Pearson in 1963, Gordon emerged as his leading cabinet minister. As Minister of Finance, he introduced the controversial budget of 1963, reduced unemployment, helped to turn the economy around and in general, smoothed the way for a social security base for all Canadians including Canada Pension Plan and Medicare.

This book is Gordon's own assessment of those years, as well as the personalities which he came in contact. This book is an essential account of not only the Pearson years, but a close up of Canada's past economic policies and prospects for the future.
