DRIVER OF CAR UNDER ARREST

A. WARD CASSELMAN IS CRIMINALLY RESPONSIBLE FOR AUTO ACCIDENT IN WHICH TWO WERE KILLED

NAPANEE, Ont., April 12.—A. Ward Casselman of Sault Ste. Marie, young medical student at Queen's University, was this afternoon formally charged with being criminally responsible for the death of Paul Putman, aged 26, son of Dr. J. H. Putman and Mrs. Putman, of Ottawa, as the result of an automobile accident.

After evidence had been heard, Casselman was committed for trial by Magistrate M. H. Graham at the next court of criminal jurisdiction. The charge read "that he did slay and kill Paul Putman." A plea of not guilty was entered.

A previous charge against Casselman of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor was allowed to stand over for the present.

Traffic Officer Rawlins, who was called to the scene, said that when he arrived, Casselman was standing alone and refused to talk to him.

Rawlins said he examined Casselman for odor of liquor and came to the conclusion he was intoxicated. He could not stand steadily and his eyes were bloodshot. "On entering Dr. Blackwell's office at Deseronto later, Casselman fell down," said the officer. He also stated that Casselman did not have a driver's license, but said the car was his and that he had been driving it.

Miss Avery, R.N., one of the occupants of the car, in a statement said that she had had a drink of gin. She also stated that Casselman did not have a drink, as did Graham Young, the other occupant of the machine.

Graham Young said the three young men had left Kingston about 7.30 p.m., on Saturday, April 1, to go to Belleville for the young ladies. He said they stopped twice on the way having a drink of beer at the first stop and a drink of gin at the second. During their stay at Belleville, each of the party had one drink, Young said, and each of the ladies had one also.

Young said that to his knowledge Casselman had only had two drinks, one of beer and one of gin. The car was going at about 45 miles an hour.

Casselman was represented by W. F. Nickle, K.C., of Kingston and W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee, K. S. Ham, county Crown attorney, conducted the case for the prosecution.

Cornwall Woman Commits Suicide

Mrs. Louis Barque, of Cornwall, committed suicide on Tuesday night by throwing herself in the Cornwall Canal.

Mrs. Barque had been suffering from a nervous disorder for some time. Last evening, she put her two children to bed and prepared to retire. It is believed that she left her home shortly after 7 o'clock, clad only in night attire, bedroom slippers and a light kimona, and made her way south on McConnell avenue to the river. As soon as her absence was noticed, a search was made. This ended at 9.15, when her body was found in the river, a few feet off-shore, by Peter Payette, Alex. Jodoin and George Savard. The body was partially submerged in about 20 inches of water. No inquest will be held.

Horticultural Society In Splendid Shape

REPORT CANVASSERS IS VERY ENCOURAGING

It is not often that the Press forgets to record so pleasing an event as the gathering, held at the hospitable home of Miss Nora Elliott, on the evening of March 31st, when the officers, executive and canvassers of the Winchester Horticultural Society met to receive the report of the canvassers, and transact other business. Needless to say there was a large atendance, and after the Secy., Mr. Ed. Shaver had read the minutes the several canvassers reported. The result was very pleasing, as they reported that over 53 had joined the society, and one district as well as the surrounding country had not at that time been canvassed. The society ought to total a membership of over 70 this year. Mr. J. D. Stewart, the President, presided. Mrs. George Armstrong, of Kingston, Ont., who had for a number of years acted as the Secretary was present, and she, being asked, expressed her pleasure at being able to attend the meeting and thought the success of the Society was due to the enthusiastic work and support given the Secy. by the officers. A hearty vote of seconded by Mr. W. J. Stewart, to the canvassers, to the late Secretary, and canvassers, to the ate Secretary, and to Miss Elliott, who so generously offered her home for the meeting. Reeve J. H. Ross was asked to see what could be done toward having that space just west of the village, at the turn to Ottawa put in a more presentable and attractive condition. If the provincial authorities would fix the grounds, the society would plant a bed of flowers and otherwise make the space attractive. Mr. Ross agreed to look after the matter. At the close refreshments were served, and one of the most enjoyable gatherings of the Society was the verdict of all who were present.

100 Club Entertain

CO-OPERATION AMONG FARMERS, BETWEEN TOWN AND COUNTRY, AND GREATER PRODUCTION IS THE MAIN SOLUTION OF DEPRESSION DIFFICULTIES, SAYS DR. G. I. CHRISTIE, OF GUELPH.

It was a happy thought that suggested the get-together meeting of the 100 Club on Thursday night last, when they invited the men of the surrounding country to join them in a social evening, and to listen to an address by Dr. Christie, Supt. of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont. The hearty response to the invitation was very gratifying and the evening was one that not only brought pleasure, but information and inspiration to those who heard the earnest, vigorous and fact-dealing address of the guest speaker. There were fully 200 farmers present, and the hall was filled to capacity. Besides the address by Dr. Christie, there was a short programme. Besides a number of Centurian selections, led by Chester Timmins, and heartily joined in by all present, there was a solo by Mr. Fred. Johnston, and a humorous reading by Mr. J. D. Stewart. Miss Helen Timmins and Mrs. H. Fetterly acted as accompanists.

The meeting was presided over by President Centurian Albert Johnston, Secretary Centurian Hawkins read the minutes and there was the roll call. It was explained by President Johnston, that the object of the meeting was to promote a get-together feeling between the town and country people. He also explained that the chief purpose and object of the 100 Club was to assist those who were in need, and reviewed the work that had already been done by the Winchester Club in distributing Christmas cheer, in supplying a crippled boy with a pair of crutches. They were at present taking up the work of helping any who needed help who had defective eyesight or hearing. Already a number of cases had been brought to the attention of the Club and were being looked after.

Mr. A. Sweet, ex-M.P.P. for Dundas, who is not only the pioneer, but the merchant longest in active business in this section, introduced the speaker, Dr. Christie. He said that he had been associated in a business way with the Christie family, of which the speaker of the evening was one, for six generations, the youngest being the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keyes of Winchester, whose mother was a daughter of Mr. Arthur Christie, of Melvin Settlement. It was a great pleasure to see so many of the young men who had gone out from Winchester homes, make good, and among the more distinguished was the speaker of the evening. It gave him much pleasure in introducing Dr. Christie to the audience.

Dr. Christie was given a very hearty reception. He prefaced his address by a few reminiscences and expressed his great pleasure in accepting the invitation of the 100 Club of Winchester to address the farmers and the boyhood friends of his native town.

Dr. Christie commended the steady progress and the optimistic spirit that characterizes Winchester. The same spirit that was alive when the speaker left Winchester for the Agricultural College thirty-five years ago, is still in evidence for though we have no new factories, and we have not expanded, yet in the new concrete road definite progress is apparent. The community is building for the future.

The bringing together of the representative business men of the 100 Club and the farmrs of the community, enabling them to know each other better and to meet on common ground, is a praiseworthy function of the Club.

Deplorable conditions result from the lack of mutual understanding. The speaker illustrated this from his own experience of a situation in which Town and Country actually fought one another. For some real or fancied injustice, the farmers of a certain community decided to boycott the Telephone Company, and asked the business men of the near-by town to join them. When the town dwellers refused to join in the fight, the farmers in revenge boycotted the town as well as the company. Dr. Christie

DR. G. I. CHRISTIE'S ADDRESS AT W. H. S.

Last Thursday afternoon Dr. Christie also addressed the students of the Winchester High School. After mentioning some of the reasons why students come to school, he said they should come not to learn things or facts, but to learn how to do things, and illustrated his point. In one home he entered he could get nothing out of the daughter but Yes and No, although the mother said she was going to University, while in the next home the boy and the girl were no sooner introduced than he found himself in an interesting conversation. We should know how to talk intelligently.

He told of the function of the O.A.C., and what is being attempted there. Even in essay writing competitions, Guelph students are leading, as in the competitions of the Saddle and Sirloin Club of Chicago, five out the first eight were won by the O.A.C. students.

Research work is being carried on in all the departments and Dr. Christie cited examples such as the poultry and calf exhibits at their annual fair. The cafeteria method of feeding chicks and calves was mentioned, the animals betraying an intelligence above that of the average boy or girl in the choice of a suitable diet.

At the close of his address Dr. Christie was very heartily applauded and thanked by the Principal for his interesting and helpful talk.

MAJOR ADAMS RESIGNS H. S. STAFF

HAS BEEN VERY EFFICIENT PRINCIPAL HERE FOR OVER THREE YEARS

Very many citizens of Winchester and surrounding district will learn with regret that Major Adams, Principal of the Winchester High School, has resigned his position, the same to come into effect at the end of the present term. The Winchester High School has had a number of Principals during the past fifteen or more years, but never has the school been in such high standing, with a reputation for efficiency, splendid physicial training, a cadet corps with a better record, and a social freedom as during his tenure as Principal. When Major Adams came to Winchester four years ago the Winchester High School was rather in the decline, and it is owing to his energy and resourcefulness, his long military training, and his unfailing gentlemanly deportment that he has been able to bring the Winchester High School up to its present splendid moral and academic standing. Major and Mrs. Adams have made many friends here and their leaving Winchester will be regretted. The fact that Major Adams had resigned his position was made known to the Press only yesterday, and as to his future plans we have not been able to learn, as he and his family left today on a motor trip to Toronto.

Major Adams had a distinguished military career during the Great War, and has many mementos of his years of service in France. Major Adams also had frequently to act as interpreter for officers both in French and German.

BOWLING CLUB HOLDS MEETING

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED AND PLANS MADE FOR SEASON

Meeting of the Winchester Lawn Bowling Club was held in Mr. McCormick's office yesterday evening with a large attendance of members.

Mr. T. O. VanBridger was re-elected President; Dr. Sherwood, Vice-President, and John McCormick, Secretary-Treasurer, Messrs. B. F. Smith and Carl Rice were added as members of the executive.

Messrs. C. F. Coons, W. O. Rowat and J. F. Gibson were appointed as games committee.

Grounds committee, John Johnston H. C. Helmer and J. O. Stewart.

Much enthusiasm was manifested which argues well for the success of the club for the coming season.

A Croquet Club

It has been suggested that a croquet club would become popular in Winchester if a suitable place could be secured to play. Croquet, once a most popular outdoor game, is coming back strong, and in many places they have croquet clubs, composed of women and men, who find much pleasure in the game. That part of the bowling green set aside for quoit pitching does not seem to be used much, and is big enough for two good croquet greens. It could be easily lighted so that the game could be played day and night. If some of our enterprising ladies would take up the matter it would be sure to be made a success. The only cost would be the procuring of a couple of croquet sets, and keeping the greens in good shape. As a matter of fact there is more science in a good game of croquet than there is in a game of bowls.

Police Court News

A young man from Williamsburg brought before the local Magistrate by Provincial Constable J. F. Rose on a charge of being intoxicated in a public place. He pleaded guilty and paid the minimum fine of $10 and costs.

A local man appeared before the Magistrate on a charge of operating his motor car on the highway without having said car registered and paid $10 and costs.

A truck driver from Prescott contributed $10 and costs for operating his truck on a highway in a manner dangerous to the public.

HYDRO CHAIRMAN RESIGNS

The report is published in Toronto that Hon. J. R. Cooke, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission has resigned. The report is correct, and Premier Henry while not confirming it, does not deny it. From all accounts there is likely to be a general shake-up in both the Ontario Government and Hydro Commission in the near future.

COUNCIL HAS BUSY MEETING

Those Who Are In Arrears For Poll or Dog Tax Will Have To Settle With Magistrate Was Decision of Council

The regular meeting of the Municipal Council was held on Friday night last. There was a full attendance. A number of accounts, principally for relief, were ordered paid. A deputation of ladies from the Sink-Funny Orchestra was present. They stated that that organization had ordered a new curtain for the stage of the town hall and asked the council if they would have the interior of the hall brightened up some by re-painting. The ladies were thanked and told that the council at its last meeting had passed a resolution of appreciation and thanks to the organization and had instructed the property committee to meet the ladies and see what was necessary to be done. The hall had been repainted only a little over a year ago, and the council did not feel that it was necessary to repaint the interior, but it would be cleaned and re-touched as the property committee found necessary. A delegation was also present asking the annual grant for the Horticultural Society, and they were assured that the same would be given. There was a lengthy discussion with Mr. Stewart, tax collector, re arrears of taxes, especially those who had failed to pay their dog and poll taxes as well as some who paid no attention to the taxes on their properties. The collector was instructed to hand all cases of arrears for dog and poll tax to Magistrate McCormick to deal with. It was not fair to those who had paid to allow others to allow their taxes to remain unpaid year after year, and it was decided to bring the matter to a head and let the delinquents settle with the magistrate. The Hydro Utility Board was asked to sign a contract with the Hydro Commission with reference to the installing of hot water tank heaters, as per a certain contract submitted, but the matter was laid over until the next meeting. The question of continuing relief to transients and the issuing of meal tickets was discussed, and it was decided to continue the system until the end of the present month. There was some discussion as to fixing certain streets, but it was felt that it was too early to take any action, but the matter would be looked after by the street committee as soon as possible.

LITTLE CROSS ROAD STORE

With a fond recollection,
I recall the days of yore,
When I catered to the public
In a little village store.

Quite early in the morning
We'd open shop and then
Continue in the evening
Till nine or maybe ten.

Ease and comfort for the patrons
Was the thing for which we strove
By keeping soap boxes handy
Near the roomy old box-stove.

In front of the stove hearth
Reclining on the floor
Was a little tin of ashes
Commonly called a "cuspidor."

We had an ideal stock,
You couldn't beat it anywhere
No matter what you wanted
You could always find it there.

Drygoods, boots and groceries,
Patent medicines and cheese—
If they should ask for credit
Why we always tried to please.

They came in from the country
In buggies, carts and sleighs,
And we were kept quite busy—
Especially on Saturdays.

When the rush was over
We would check up on the till:
We'd find some dimes and nickels
With a straggling dollar bill.

At the tiresome routine
We would often times complain,
Still I think I'd like to cater
To that country trade again.

Wilfred Malcolm.

O, WHY SHOULD THE SPIRIT OF MORTAL BE PROUD

O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fleeting meteor, fast-flying cloud,
A flash of the lightning a break of the wave,
Man passes from life to his rest in the grave.

The leaves of the oak and the willow shall fade,
Be scattered around and together be laid;
And the young and the old and the low and the high,
Shall moulder to dust and together shall lie.

The infant a mother attended and loved,
The mother that infant's affection who proved;
The husband that mother and infant who blessed.
Each all are away to their dwellings of rest.

The maid, on whose cheek, on whose brow, in whose eye,
Shone beauty and pleasure,—her triumphs are by;
And the memory of those who loved her and praised,
Are alike from the minds of the living erased.

The hand of the king that the sceptre hath borne,
The brow of the priest that the mitre hath worn;
The eye of the sage and the heart of the brave,
Are hidden and lost in the depth of the grave.

The peasant whose lot was to sow and to reap,
The herdsman, who climbed with his goats up the steep;
The beggar, who wandered in search of his bread,
Have faded away like the grass that we tread.

The saint who enjoyed the communion of heaven,
The sinner who dared to remain unforgiven,
The wise and the foolish, the guilty and just,
Have quietly mingled their bones in the dust.

So the multitudes goes like the flowers or the weed,
That withers away to let others succeed,
So the multitude comes, even those we behold,
To repeat every tale that has often been told.

For we are the same our fathers have been,
We see the same sights our fathers have seen,—
We drink the same stream, and view the same sun,
And run the same course our fathers have run.

The thoughts we are thinking our fathers would think,
From the death we are shrinking our fathers would shrink,
To the life we are clinging they also cling;
But it speeds for us all like a bird on the wing.

They loved, but the story we cannot unfold;
They scorned, but the heart of the naught is cold,
They grieved, but no wail from their slumbers will come,
They joyed, but the tongue of their gladness is dumb.

They died, ay! they died, and we things that are now
Who walk on the turf that lies over their brow,
Who make in their dwelling a transient abode,
Meet the things that they met on their pilgrimage road.

Yea, hope and despondency, pleasure and pain,
We mingle together in sunshine and rain;
And the smiles, and the tears, the song and the dirge,
Still follow each other like surge upon surge

'Tis the wink of an eye, 'tis the draught of a breath,
From the blossom of health to the paleness of death,
From the guilded saloon to the bier and the shroud—
O, why should the spirit of mortal be proud!

THE DIFFERENCE

The gum-chewing girl
And the cud-chewing cow
Are somewhat alike,
But different somehow,
What difference?
Oh, yes, I see it now;
It's the thoughtful
Look on the face of the cow.

—Vancouver Star.

FAILURE

He lived for self
And selfish ease,
His only thought
Himself to please.

He labored hard
For money gain,
A daily life of
Stint and strain.

For sick and poor
He had no time,
His hands besmeared
With money grime.

And so he died
A failure drear,
With not one friend
To shed a tear.

—Grenville Kleiser.

NOT TO FORGET

If you were busy being kind,
Before you knew it you would find
You'd soon forget to think 'twas true
That some one was unkind to you.

If you were busy being glad,
And cheering people who were sad,
Although your heart would ache a bit,
You'd soon forget to notice it.

If you were busy being good,
And doing just the best you could,
You'd not have time to blame some man,
Who's doing just the best he can.

If you were busy being true,
To what you know you ought to do,
You'd be so busy you'd forget
The blunders of the folks you've met.

If you were busy being right,
You'd find yourself too busy quite
To criticize your neighbour long,
Because he's busy being wrong.

—Rebecca Foreman

WOULDN'T DO ANOTHER HARM

In talking with a traveller yesterday, one who has been on the road for a long time, we happened to ask about a business man with whom we formerly did business, but who is long since dead. The traveller was employed by this man and said during the conversation: "I never knew him to speak a word about another man which could do him harm." That was a great appreciation for an employee to give an employer and sounded good. It caused us to think that uncharitableness can be much more disastrous in its effects than vices which are counted much worse. It can be more debasing in its effects because of its debasing of all nobility of mind and body and its destructive influence or character. Of chronic and malign offenders in this way it is almost to be said, that "with every word a reputation dies." Oftentimes it is a thoughtless evil of tittle-tattle. We can be guilty of it by failing to speak out against the belittling of somebody or by the repeating of a story partly true, mind you, or it may be, wholly untrue, which places that person in a bad light. It is often due to envy which should never affect a person of generous instincts with a sane outlook on life. And that, we cannot have unless we cultivate honesty of heart as well as honesty of head.—Smith's Falls Record-News.

A NEED—APPRECIATION, LOYALTY

One hears much these days of loyalty. Loyalty to country, to church, to school, to community, to home, to merchants, to lodges and other organizations. One of the great institutions in any community is the home town newspaper, be it weekly or daily. From personal experience, here and elsewhere, remarks Editor James, of the Bowmanville Statesman, we regret to see this lack of appreciation and loyalty to the local newspaper which lends itself so wholeheartedly and continuously to the betterment of its people and the community it serves.

The local newspaper is recognized as the servant of the people. It fights their battles, seeks justice for the masses, often gives service without thought of pay, and last but by no means of least importance gives a dependable news service of the area it covers, never losing an opportunity to say a good word about an individual or boost a worthy cause. It is therefore often difficult for the publishers to understand the apparent disloyalty, or maybe it's only thoughtlessness, shown to the local newspaper by so many people. Those whom the paper benefits most are often among the most perfidious, and those whom it serves best are among the most false in their allegiance to their local newspaper.

Without beating around the bush, or camouflaging the facts, we wish to point out that no newspaper can retain its high standard and continue to give the service that is expected or demanded of it without the loyalty and support of those whom it serves.

Dr. G. I. Christie's Address

served as arbitrator and the bitterness shown by those at odds made him wish never to repeat the experience.

Conflicts cannot but result in great loss of brotherly love, not to mention financial loss. The work of the 100 Club in seeking to avoid such misunderstandings and in fostering real friendship and fellow-feeling is a splendid one and should be followed up.

In addition to co-operating with the town it is vitally necessary that the farmers co-operate with each other. The speaker expressed perturbation at the failure of producers to get together in this difficult economic situation. The seriousness of the present condition was brought out graphically in the following data presented by Dr. Christie:

	1929	1933
Price of walking plough	$21.50	19.75
" " " in milk	935 lbs	1796
" " " in hogs	1	3
" " wagon	$113	$100
" " " in milk	4914 lbs	9091
" " " in hogs	5	14
Price of Binder	$250	$225
" " " in milk	10800 lbs	20500
" " " in hogs	12	32

Though radical measures are needed to better this economic condition, Reduction of Production as practiced in U.S. is no practical solution. No less than $600,000,000 and 100,000 employees are necessary to put this unwieldy scheme into operation. To meet the obligations of 1933 more produce is necessary than in 1929. The situation cannot be met by cutting down in production, for unless the price goes up production cannot be lowered. The solution of the need for more money is greater production.

Canada cannot, as some suggest, reduce her production of wheat. In 1929, 500,000,000 bushels were raised and sold at over $1.00. Theorists advocate the production of only 300,000,000 bushels in 1933. But just as many people are hungry now as in 1929. While humans go hungry the amount of produce must not be curtailed. That Supply is still very far short of Demand is shown by the fact that if each human being in the world had enough food 50 per cent. more wheat than the world now raises could be consumed.

Therefore, rather than use our funds to finance the cumbersome Reduction of Production scheme, let us use our money to seek other markets, the markets that are waiting for our wheat.

The facts show that the situation cannot be solved by catch words such as "Prosperity round the Corner," "Gold Standard" and so on. "The Law of Supply and Demand" is also a mere catch word in the present conditions for the demand depends not on the actions of unprincipled dealers and foolish farmers. For example if a farmer is in need of money, becomes panicky and sells a truck load of potatoes at 15 cents a bag (the absurd figure that obtained in Toronto last fall), he thereby brings down the price to 15 cents for the whole district. The only solution for this condition is strict co-operation among producers. Lack of united action is fatal.

Changing to a more cheerful note Dr. Christie read an interesting excerpt from Macaulay showing that in 1830, after the Napoleonic Wars, there existed a time of depression almost precisely similar to the present, but the speaker pointed out that we are richer by far than we were fifty years ago.

Moreover, the period just before the crash of 1929 was not quite so golden as we sometimes imagine in retrospect. A number of things were very wrong with our business system. Lazy people, a large army of them, were "playing the market" and taking their ease while they drew unearned profits. Advertising was carried to absurd lengths to force up prices and production. For example, a one dollar razor was sold for five dollars by means of intensive propaganda. In the wollen industry and other great business combines forced advertising resulted in enormous overhead costs and raised consumer prices.

In conclusion the speaker declared that some remedy must be found for the bad condition that leaves jobless college and school graduates, who are qualified and eager for work. Many hold-ups and other forms of lawbreaking are undertaken merely for something to do. There must be some way found to give these able young men jobs. Unified effort of town and country is the sole solution for this grave problem.

Reeve J. H. Ross, seconded by Magistrate John McCormick, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Dr. Christie for his splendid address, which was responded to by a most hearty applause.

Refreshments provided by the Club were then served and a very pleasant social hour spent. Before the close, on behalf of the farmers present a vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Arthur Christie to the 100 Club for their entertainment and another to the refreshment committee was given on a motion by A. Sweet, seconded by T. A. Scott.

A SOCIAL CURSE

Of all social curses most detested in this era of broad-mindedness is the insidious habit of gossip, plain devil-tongued talking about each other. More homes are broken, more happiness ruined, more careers downcast by the careless repitition of guesses, rumors, scandals, half-truths, and untruths, than by any other cause. Gossip proceeds from jealousy, grows on guesses and whispers and "I told you so's." Gossip is a coward. When confronted with truths, it slinks away like a cur. People who deal in gossip are only displaying a wretched mind and revealing their true character. No community can go forward whose members are busy seeking scandal. Gossip has one weakness; it has no use for the individual who has no time or attention to spare.

OBITUARY

LATE ROBERT JOHNSTON

Mr. Robert Johnston, of South Mountain, passed away on Sunday, April 2nd, at two a. m. in the Brockville General Hospital, to which place he had been taken only a few days before. He was in his 64th year and his sudden passing was a great shock not only to his family and near friends and relatives but to the whole community.

Mr. Johnston had been for years one of South Mountain's foremost and most public spirited citizens. He served with distinction on the council of the Township for a number of years as Councillor and Deputy-Reeve. He was a familiar figure at the South Mountain Fair having been a Director since its beginning. In farming circles he was also very well known. He was an Oddfellow of many years standing.

Mr. Johnston was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and sang in the choir for 40 years, also serving on the Board of Management.

Such a kindly sympathetic man as Mr. Johnston will be sorely missed.

In his remarks during the service, Mr. McLean, former pastor, now of Montreal, said that Mr. Johnston had always a song in his heart and a cheery good word for everyone. He had many friends, Mr. McLean continued,and knew how to keep friendships.

The little church was crowded to overflowing for the service, which was held on Tuesday afternoon, April 4th, indicating in some measure the esteem in which Mr. Johnston was held by people far and near.

The choir sang "Face to Face," a favorite hymn, and Rev. W. D. Turner, of Winchester, read the Scriptures and Rev. W. Johnston, of South Mountain, led in prayer.

There was a number of floral tributes from the family and friends.

Mr. Johnston is survived by his widow and daughter, Gladys. Their only son, Donald, died over a year and a half ago. There are also three sisters of the deceased, Mary Magee, Janet Cleland, Jane Johnston, and two brothers, Thomas, of Iroquois, and William, of South Mountain.

The pall bearers were Messrs. R. K. Graham, Len. Monteith, R. Mulholland, Herb Fader, Bert Berry, and Roy Shaver.

Burial took place in the South Gower cemetery.

GOLDEN WEDDING AT CHESTERVILLE

MR. AND MRS. JAMES BROWNLEE OF CHESTERVILLE CELEBRATE

Surrounded by a large family circle and hosts of friends and relatives, Mr. and Mrs. James H. Brownlee celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding at their home on Main street, Chesterville, on Friday, April 7th. Throughout the day, the honored couple were recipients of greetings from their friends from far and near, and many guests were present to offer their best wishes.

Both Mr. Brownlee and Mrs. Brownlee, formerly Mary Ann Pratt, are of Irish parentage and natives of Marlborough township, Carleton county, and were married at Prescott on April 7, 1883. Following their marriage they resided in Marlborough for four years, moving to North Gower township in 1901. Nine years later they moved to Saskatchewan, residing in Rouleau, Eston and Brock until in 1916 they returned to North Gower village and later took up residence in Kemptville. During these years, Mr. Brownlee was engaged in farming and other business activities. For the past ten years they have lived in Chesterville, where their genial nature and readiness to help have gained for them a wide circle of friends.

Their family of five children, one child having died in infancy, are now all married, and Mr. and Mrs. Brownlee are the proud grandparents of 13 grandchildren and one great grandchild. In religion, the couple were Methodists, and are now members of the United Church of Canada. Mr. Brownlee has the distinction of having been a member of the Orange order for over 52 years, is past master of six lodges, viz.: Goodstown, Rouleau, Eston, Brock, Kemptville and Chesterville, and is this year honored by the office of district chaplain for Dundas county. He is also a member of the Masonic order, his mother lodge being Rouleau, Sask. He was also a member of the Canadian Order of Forresters.

In municipal life, Mr. Brownlee has held the offices of reeve and councillor in three municipalities, viz: Reeve of Snipe Lake municipality, Eston, Sask.; councillor at Kemptville, and reeve of Chesterville in 1928. In politics he is a supporter of the Conservative party, and of the many messages he received on the occasion, one, of which he is very proud, is from Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner in London. Although now 70 years of age, Mr. Brownlee, with his wife, now 67, went about among their guests receiving the warm greetings on their honored and happy celebration. Their home was beautifully decorated in gold and green, and the table to which the guests sat down at noon to a delightful luncheon was prettily decorated in golden effect, with a huge wedding cake surrounded by golden flowers adorning the centre.

During the afternoon, the Philathea Bible class of the local United Church and the pastor, Rev. R. E. Newman, called to offer their congratulations. Many of the local Orange body serenaded the couple, presenting a gift and their best wishes for continued health and happiness. A gift of gold was received from Wm. H. Brownlee and family, the oldest son, residing in Rouleau, Sask. Among the numerous telegrams and letters of congratulation received were Telegram from Mrs. Harry Johnston of Rouleau, Sask., and Mrs. Leonard Graham of Hearne, Sask. Rev. A. A. Pratt of Kentucky, brother of Mrs. Brownlee, and Harrison Pratt of California; greetings from the county L. O.L. of Dundas, and congratulations and a beautiful floral gift from the Ladies' Aid of Chesterville United Church.

MONKLAND YOUTHS ESCAPE DROWNING

Four young lads of the village of Monckland, Hugh Brownlee, Calvin Kinnear, Lyle Gagnon and Bernie Lapierre had a narrow escape from drowning on Saturday afternoon when a boat in which they were playing on the creek east of the town upset and they were thrown into the stream. The cold water, which at this time of year is from five to seven feet deep in places, and the heavy clothing of the boys hindered their movements considerably, and had it not been for the rescue efforts of Lyle Gagnon, the only member of the quartet who could swim, it is doubtful if they could have got out as the current is fairly strong at present.

OUR GARDEN

Talking of spring brings us to gardens. If you have a garden you will be planning improvements upon last year. Don't you just long to get into it on sunshiny days. But it is too soon to do much yet, but keep on thinking. Take the advice on the experts that is in the papers. Get perennials and biennials for the borders and use your own judgement for the annuals. You sow the seeds in low boxes in the house and it is suggested that it would be well to bake the earth well in the oven to kill the germs and weeds. You do need good soil. It is simply waste of time to try and grow plants in poor soil. A certain amount of sand is required and for such flowers as roses rich earth will give you good results. Ask the members and executives of your horticultural society for information. As for your flowers and vegetables garden, if it is worth doing, it is worth doing well.

IS IT YOUR FAULT?

A small girl was heard complaining that she could not do all that the Bible said she must. When asked to explain, she replied dolefully, "Why the Bible says you must love your enemies and I havent any."

Her lack was not a surprising one. The average person has few, if any, enemies. Outstanding men, champions of great reforms are, of course, the target for the hostility of the baser element. Few of you young people, however, can boast of anything so spectacular as an enemy. If there is some one who really despises you and would do you harm, if he could, it is a good idea to ask yourself how this happened. What have you done to acquire an enemy? It may be to your credit. A man's enemies may do him honor, provided they are gained by his loyalty to his right. If you have anything so unusual as an enemy, however, find out the reason.

THE VOICE OF UNDERSTANDING

Misunderstanding is one of the heaviest crosses we will have to bear. To be misunderstood by those acquaintances or friends is bad enough, but to be misunderstood by those nearest and dearest almost brings us to the breaking point. At such a time we can only bear and wait and by our understanding of others fall back on a reserve built up from the past, and pray for strength to hold fast.

While we are expecting folks to understand us let us not lose sight of the fact that we must try to understand others.

We frequently see the word understanding clothed in new garments or spelled in a new way, but it's the same old word. Some call it psychology, but let us call it understanding.

I like to think of the story of a woman who went to Boston for a visit. She saw an old lady trying to cross the street through a heavy traffic. After several vain attempts the lady "gave up" and retired to the curb. A soldier was standing nearby gazing fixedly at some unseen object as if to avoid seeing the old lady. The woman went to him, gave him a withering look, and helped the old lady across the street. Then she returned she walked directly to the soldier, who was still standing in the same place, and looked him full in the face, intending to tell him what she thought of him. But before she could say anything a gust of wind blew his cape open and showed his chest. She saw a row of medals on his chest, but she did not gasp at that, two empty sleeves were pinned to the side of the coat. She looked into his white, set face with an expression both surprised and hurt as she said, "I didn't understand."

THE UNITED CHURCH

Rev. John MacKay on Sunday morning gave a very fine message on their eleventh hour man, who he said was typical of people who at the eleventh hour find themselves outside the kingdom of God and they have no good reason for it. His text was Matt. 20:6. He asked: Are we by our Christian inactivity or because we do not practise the principles of Christ in our everyday life, hindering others from accepting Christ. The employer in this story is unusual because he is thinking of the men out of work. God is an extraordinary God who gave His only son to die for us, and He is the God who is out on the highway waiting for the prodigal. The eleventh hour man got more than he expected. Eye hath not seen neither hath it entered into the heart of man the things God has prepared for those who love Him. He is looking for folks to give themselves to Him.

At the evening service Rev. R. E. Newman, of Chesterville, gave a stirring message on the Cross and World Brotherhood, taking from his text Mark 15:31. "It is wrong," he said "for individuals or nations to live for themselves," Jesus went to the Cross for the world.

Mr. Newman testified to the power of Jesus in his life and said he had never seen days of opportunity such as these. He continued: "I believe in God and in Jesus Christ as my Savior. I believe in humanity and that this world will become the kingdom of our God. The Fatherhood of God is the solution of the problems facing us.

At the morning service the choir sang an appropriate selection for Palm Sunday. A duet by Miss J. Preston and Mr. Fred. Johnston at the evening service was well received.

"Never mind—we'll soon fix that"

Mrs. Hendry was in great distress. She had broken her spectacles and the prescription was at the optician's in the city.

"That means I can't go to the social tomorrow night," she said. "Whatever will I do?"

"Don't worry," Tom Hendry consoled her. "I'll just 'phone the optician right now and he can have a new pair here in tomorrow's mail."

OBITUARY

LATE W. J. BELLINGER

A large number of friends joined with the relatives to pay final tribute to the memory of William J. Bellinget life-long resident of Mountain Township, who died on Tuesday, April 4th, and whose funeral was held Thursday afternoon from the family residence to Van Camps United Church.

Mr. Bellinger was in his 78th year, son of the late David and Catharine Bellinger. He had spent his life on his farm near Van Camps, where he had for many years one of the largest apiaries in this district.

About 54 years ago he married the former Miss Mary Jane Stoodley, of Osgoode.

His wife died 29 years ago.

Services were conducted by Rev. T. F. Townsend, of Inkerman, and the choir sang special anthems.

Chief mourners and survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Harry Allan, Mountain Station; Mrs. Hiram Fawcett, Mountain; three sons, Silas, Winchester; Lyman, Mountain Station, and Williard, at home, and one brother, John, of Hallville.

The pall-bearers were: Archie Lavere, George Walter, Herbert Vanallan, Alex. Wylie, Kenneth Grey and William Barclay.

Interment was made in Van Camps cemetery.

Among other floral offerings was a pillow from the family.

FENIAN VETERAN IS LAID TO REST AT SPENCERVILLE

Spencerville, April 6.—Impressive tribute was paid to the memory of James Bennett at his funeral service this afternoon at two o'clock in the United Church and attended by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends. Rev. W. P. Wornell, pastor, conducted the service and was assisted by Rev. A. W. R. MacKenzie, minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, and Rev. W. R. Johnston, pastor of South Mountain United church and a former pastor at Spencerville. Interment took place in the family plot at the United church cemetery.

The late Mr. Bennett, who was 81 years of age, was the son of the late Andrew W. Bennett and his wife, Eliza Beckett, who came to this country from Ireland and were early pioneers of this district. Mr. Bennett has resided here all his life, living practically all his life on a farm, which he helped to clear and on which he secured the material to erect the beautiful stone residence, one and a half miles west of the village. He was a prosperous farmer and a few years ago retired, having lived in the village ever since. His wife, Sophia Dangerfield, predeceased him several years ago.

Mr. Bennett was among the few survivors of the Fenian Raid, being the last in this district. He served at the age of 17. He was the outstanding man in the Grenville Patron Mutual Fire Insurance Company and for over 30 years acted as manager. He took an active part in the enforcement of the Scott Act and was appointed county constable during this time, after which he was appointed justice of the peace, holding this office until his death. Mr. Bennett was prominently identified with the municipal life of Grenville county, having held the offices of councillor, reeve, and county councillor for the municipality of Edwardsburg township. In politics he was a staunch Conservative.

Mr. Bennett was intimately associated with the various church organizations and served as recording steward in the former Methodist Church for several years and since the inauguration of the United Church, he was a devoted member of that body.

DEATH AT CHESTERVILLE

After a long illness there passed away a highly regarded resident of Chesterville in the person of Mrs. Jas. Masterson, on March 31 last. Mrs. Masterson before her marriage was Ellen Foley, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Foley, Finch, Ont. Her many years' residence in this community won for her a wide circle of friends who will long cherish her memory. Being of a very retiring disposition, this most exemplary mother performed her many acts of Christian charity in a quiet, unostentatious manner.

REVIVAL OF OLD PRACTICE SEEN IN BRISKER EXPORT

Since the beginning of January, Canada has shipped to Great Britain some 6,000 head of cattle and, this number will be increased to 20,000 by the early part of June.

With the revival of our export trade with the Old Country, a popular practice of some thirty years ago may be re-established. Transportation companies make provision for one man to travel with each carload of cattle and, when export trade was brisk, many farmers availed themselves of this opportunity to visit Great Britain. In addition to those engaged in agricultural pursuits, it has been stated that a great number of Ontario's older professional men, during their college days, visited England and Scotland as a result of getting the job of tending cattle in transport.

FINCH W. I. HOLD DEBATE

The regular monthly meeting of the Finch Branch of the Women's Institute was held Thursday afternoon in the local Community Hall with 31 members and visitors present for the afternoon's program, which was in charge of the president, Mrs. K. C. MacLean. During the afternoon a very interesting and instructive debate was held by the ladies, resolved, "That the present depression has a good effect on the youth of today," which was won by the negative side by a two point margin. The negative debaters were Mrs. D. C. McLeod, leader, and assisted by Mrs. Thomas Foley, while the affirmative was upheld by Mrs. Charles Jack, alone, in the absence of Mrs. J. T. Campbell, who was unable to attend.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR

By JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D.

YOUR PHYSICIAN

"Doctor, what's the matter with me?"

"Can you cure it?"

These two questions make the "horns" of the dilemma in every case treated or applying for treatment. Both questions are of the highest importance for the doctor and patient.

A doctor may know exactly what the trouble is—he may be the best of diagnosticians—yet he may be sadly deficient in his knowledge of the best remedies for the disease; so broad and deep is the science of medicine!

I believe there are hundreds—thousands of patients treated and cured—when the diagnosis was absolutely a mistaken one. How? Well, the skillful doctor treated the important SYMPTOMS.

The best doctor strives to be equal to the answer to both of the questions at the head of this letter; happy the physician that can, truthfully answer both.

Suppose the doctor cannot accurately diagnose the case—yet believes he has done so; I'd trust that doctor anywhere. Why? Just because he knows what remedy to apply for the symptoms.

I would be perfectly willing for a doctor to treat me who knows well the action of the medicine he uses; he knows the cause that will bring about the effect. A good physiologist is a good doctor; the man who knows healthy life is quick to recognize any departure from it. Physiology is the science of life.

I am not so devilish particular about a technical diagnosis; I do not care how many red cells a man has, just so I know he is anaemic. Now laugh, if you want to!

Electricity!

No tale of wonders and enchantments has ever been written that excelled the actual reality which is today at mankind's fingertips in the wonders and magic of electricity. Step by step the intelligence of man leads him on through the ages of civilization until to-day our most common utility is in fact far beyond the mere comprehension of even the dreams of our forefathers. The Hydro System brings all of this to the citizens of Winchester. There is no new development or equipment in the fields that is not available to the life and business of local citizens. The drudgery can be taken out of housework if you let electric energy be the slave.

Possibly your home needs re-wiring or the present wiring a little overhauling. If so let us know about it. We are here to see that you get the best possible results from Hydro Light and Power.

BACKSTAGE AT OTTAWA

(By a Politician with a Notebook in Maclean's Magazine, April 15, 1933)

So numerous are Ottawa events these days, with one trouble jostling another, it is difficult to keep up with them. No sooner does one sensation die down than another leaps to the headlines, or if not to the headlines to disturbance behind the scenes, to be whispered furtively in lobbies and clubs. The political barometer invariably points to "Stormy."

Precedents and traditions mean nothing. More than that, the area of government has been so enlarged that the ordinary citizen must needs be an encyclopedist, with a passion of curiosity about all things everywhere at the same time, to understand half of what happens. In the old days Prime Ministers sometimes called up Montreal or Toronto, consulted political leaders or bankers. In these turbulent days Mr. Bennett gets on the telephone regularly with London, talks with Canadian delegates at Geneva, keeps the line busy between Ottawa and Washington for two hours at a time.

The line between Ottawa and Washington is, in fact, being kept busy a great deal of the time. It has been kept that way ever since Henry Morgenthau, Jr., dropped in on Mr. Bennett one day, told him that he had been sent by Franklin Roosevelt to find out whether Canada would be prepared to talk reciprocity with the United States. If Canada would talk, said Mr. Morgenthau—Mr. Morgenthau, by the way, is a big shot in the Democratic Party, being the son of the noted Jew who was President Wilson's ambassador at Constantinople — then Mr. Roosevelt would be delighted to have Mr. Bennett visit Washington to discuss things with him at the White House.

Mr. Bennett didn't say no, didn't say yes. Instead, he treated Mr. Morbenthau with great courtesy, told him he would think the matter over, later on send Minister and Brother-in-law Herridge to Mr. Roosevelt to tell him what he thought. A few days later Mr. Herridge and Mr. Roosevelt sat down together at Hyde Park, New York and talked reciprocity for an hour.

Mr. Herridge told Mr Roosevelt that Mr. Bennett would visit Washington—but not just yet. Mr. Roosevelt, no mean politician himself, would understand how an astentatious trip to Washington by Mr. Bennett might be misunderstood. People and politicians, not to mention reporters, would ask questions, and some might even start digging up Mr. Bennett's speeches in the last election. A better plan would be for Mr. Bennett to drop down to Washington quietly for his Easter egg, stay overnight with his brother-in-law, call—as he would have to call—at the White House. It would be—to the public—just a courtesy visit.

The Premier's Dilemma

That, apparently, was okay with Mr. Roosevelt, and were it not for something that happened in Parliament, few would have known that such an important event was pending. The something in Parliament was a resolution by William Duff, Nova Scotia Liberal, calling for reciprocity. Mr. Duff, putting his resolution on the Order Paper, probably thought no more about it than that it would help him with his constituents even though it were rejected overwhelmingly, as he believed it would be. Mr. Duff, of course, didn't know about Henry Morgenthau. Neither did he sense the dilemma in which he was placing Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Bennett, unable to attack the principle of Mr. Duff's resolution—what would Mr. Roosevelt have thought?—did the sensible think. On the morning of the day on which Mr. Duff's resolution was coming up, he called a caucus of his followers, broke to them the news of Mr. Roosevelt's gesture, hinted that they might treat Mr. Duff's resolution gingerly or tenderly. A few hours later the House heard Mr. Bennett state that the United States was Canada's "natural market," that if a "fair offer" came from Mr. Roosevelt he would gladly consider it. To the wastebasket instead of to Hansard went speeches of staunch Conservatives smiting reciprocity.

Not that Mr. Duff's resolution was accepted. Calling for immediate reciprocity action by Canada, Mr. Bennett was able to oppose it on the ground that it was premature. If and when it comes up again—it may come up before this sees print—there will be a Government amendment to deal with it without embarrassing Mr. Bennett or disturbing Mr. Roosevelt.

Thus, reciprocity, entombed for 20 years and its grave neglected, has had a resurrection. The extraordinary thing is the way it is being received. Some few, of course, are digging up Mr. Bennett's 1911 speeches, also some of his Economic Conference speeches, asking how it is that the United States is our natural market in March when the Empire was our inevitable market in July; but in days like these, when everything is changing and speeches don't much matter, nobody pays attention. The main thing, everybody argues, is to get markets and so we have Lord Atholstan's Montreal Star, and P. D. Ross's Ottawa Journal, and Mr. Killam's Toronto Mail and Empire, saying that the reciprocity which they damned with bell, book and candle in 1911 would be a grand thing in 1933—which it very well might be.

Amalgamation Setback.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bennett has on his hands a lot of financial problems—the budget, the railways, other things. The bill embodying the recommendations of the Duff Report, providing for a board of three trustees to run the National Railyays, and for an arbitral board to pass upon disputes—actually to enforce economies — between the National and Canadian Pacific Railways will be passed into law, may be the law ere this. Ironically enough, the man who more than any other made its passage possible was Edward Beatty, ably assisted by Sir Herbert Holt.

Up to February, when the House first met, the idea of amalgamation was steadily gaining round. Newspapers, politicians and public leaders everywhere were bewailing Canadian National losses, pointing with alarm, chorusing that "something must be done." The "something" they had in mind was amalgamation of the two railways, with the Canadian Pacific on top, and no reason exists for believing that the Government disagreed with them violently.

Then, at the wrong moment—or the right one, as the reader wills—came Mr. Beatty. Also Sir Herbert Holt. Mr. Beatty began his drive in Toronto; Sir Herbert followed in Montreal; then Mr. Beatty carried the war to Winnipeg.

It was the death knell of amalgamation. No Government, after that, could touch it; and Mr. Bennett, who isn't the puppet of anybody and certainly doesn't want anyone to believe that he is, wouldn't touch it with the proverbial ten-foot pile. Mr. Meighen was to take the Duff Report bill and go "full speed ahead."

Mr. Meighen did exactly that. No lover of the Canadian Pacific Railway, he piloted his measure with masterful skill, worsting its enemies in debate, sometimes conciliating them, always outmanoeuvring them. When, one day, Mr. King called his Senate supporters into caucus and told them they must crawl down off the amalgamation band wagon—"put the boots to them," as one Liberal expressed it—the end was inevitable. Senator Dandurand and Senator Beique—good, lusty amalgamators—promptly struck their flags.

Not so easy to dispose of is the financial problem, which in truth is a part of the railway probblem. At this writing Mr. Rhodes is drafting his budget speech, wondering how and where he may make up a deficit of $150,000,000. He can't do it with mere economy. Mr. Rhodes could cut services, slash everything to the bone, and he would still be scores of millions from a balanced budget. What he faces, inescapably, is more borrowing, after he has taxed and taxed to the point of danger. Just what he will do about it, how much he will borrow, when and where and under what terms, we shall have to wait and see.

Rumors of National Government.

Meanwhile the new Tariff Board is being got under way, though very slowly—nobody seems to be unduly excited about it except the British, who already have applications ready for it—while a half dozen or more important appointments wait upon Mr. Bennett. There are, for example, Civil Service Commissioners. Nine months ago a Committee of Parliament condemned Commissioners Tremblay and McTavish and recommended their retirement. Both, however, are still carrying on to the annoyance of a number of gentlemen who feel themselves eminently qualified to improve the Civil Service.

CANADIANS ENJOY ICE CREAM

It is evident from a report just issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of statistics on the ice cream production in Canada for 1931 that Canadians have an appetite for ice cream. The total consumption in the year under review was 8,234,272 gallons, an increase of 2,783,138 gallons, compared with the total production in 1921. The 1931 production was valued at $11,161,595. The Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics states ice cream is an article of food. It possess all the elements of a real food, being easily digested, palatable and highly nutritive. The production of ice cream in the Dominion is carried on chiefly by the dairy and confectionery industries. The per capita consumption of ice cream according to the latest figures is .79 gallons. The provinces showing the highest per capita consumption were Ontario, British Columbia and Nova Scotia, with 1.09, .89 and .87 gallons respectively.

BETTER TIMES ARE COMING

THINKS CORNER TURNED AND FARMERS SHOULD SMILE

Mr. Denton Massey, of, Toronto who is often heard over the radio on a Sunday afternoon, in a speech delivered last week called upon Canadians to "Take off the Spectacles of Gloom" and face the situation with more cheerfulness and courage. Dealing with the problem of the farmer, he is reported as follows:

The only excuse for pessimism is ignorance. There were lots of closed doors upon which all it was necessary to do was to lift the latch. The law of supply and demand was still in operation, and at the present time the supply was low and the demand was increasing. All that was needed was a little more faith, a little more confidence, a little more courage and freer spending of money.

For instance, the truth was that only 17 per cent. of the farms of Canada and 19 per cent. of the farms of Ontario were mortgaged at all. During the past few months the price of food stuffs had risen in the United States by 7 per cent. Feed cattle had gone up from $3 to $5 and hogs were selling for $6 in Ontario. There was not a single class of cold storage goods which had not shown a shrinkage in quantity. There was 78 per cent. less butter than a year ago and the lowest shrinkage was 13 per cent.

Whatever one's political proclivities one must look to the Imperial Conference of last summer with happiness and pride. It was not possible for the representatives of the Mother country and the Dominion to get together without knowing more about one another. On that basis alone it had been a wonderful success. To Great Britain Canada last year exported 38,800,000 pounds of bacon and ham "and we have not yet begun to scratch the surface." The trouble was that Canadians were too prone to want to tell the Englishman what he wants. Whereas "he wants what he wants" and he is going to have it. There was a big market for Canadian cattle in the old country. Last year we had shipped to Great Britain 800 cars of apples, a big increase over the previous year, and 113 cars of pears and plums, where we had sent none before.

"Do not quote me as saying everything is fine," Mr. Massey said. Nevertheless he believed the future was assured. Canada's business was fundamentally agrarian. We would soon realize the future was assured if only we would correct the "silly prices." Yet the farmers were far from down and out. There was a deposit in the farmers' banks of a certain community $7,000,000. It had been $7,600,000 until the last loan, and the farmers had taken out $600,000 to invest in Government bonds. Of a million dollars due in mortgage interests to one concern last June, $600,000 had been paid on the third of the month. If one went West one would find the farmers full of hope and optimism, and confident that there was still wealth in the country.

Where Milk Money Goes

From evidence submitted by the head of a milk distributing concern to the parliamentary committee now investigating milk prices throughout the Dominion, the Farmers Sun ascertains that the ten-cent piece which the customer sometimes pays for his quart of milk is divided as follows, using data for February last:

	Cents per quart
The farmer got	2.15
Handling charges at depot.	46
Transportation to city	64
Production costs including pasteurization	1.19
Selling and Delivery	4.12
Containers (bottles)	19
Income tax	08
Net profit	68
Unaccounted for	12
Average selling price	9.63

This looks like rather poor business from the standpoint of the dairy farmer. Certainly there must be something wrong with the system of distribution when the costs attending the selling and distributing of milk alone are nearly double what the farmer gets for the raw production. As the Sun also points out, the gross spread between what the farmer receives at the farm and the average selling price is over three and a half times what the farmer gets to cover the whole of his production costs.

SAYS BIG BUSINESS RUINATION OF PEOPLE

WINNIPEG—Declaring the exaltation of "big business" had been the undoing of countries and people, Rev. Dr. G. W. Gordon, better known as Ralph Connor, made an impressive plea for the uplift of brotherhood and citizenship in a sermon here.

"The dominating passion for making money quickly has been the ruination of many," Dr. Gordon said. The mere desire to achieve wealth, he thought, was an ignoble thing compared with the desire to excel as a citizen and seek to perform the ordinary duties of every-day life.

CANADA—THE IDEAL VACATION LAND

A COUNTRY OF SCENIC CHARM AND OUTDOOR RECREATION

UNEXCELLED IN ABUNDANCE AND VARIETY OF HOLIDAY ATTRACTIONS

IN recent years Canada has become one of the most popular playgrounds of the North American continent and millions of tourists visit this country annually, in search of recreation.

Canada possesses an extensive system of modern highways, with good secondary roads linking together the main routes of travel. Excellent train services are in operation between the principal cities, while steamship lines connect lake and ocean ports. Every class of travel accommodation is available, from tourist camp to luxurious hotel. Our larger Canadian cities possess some of the finest hotels in the world and the majority of smaller cities and towns have modern establishments which cater to the travelling public.

Recreational Attractions Nearby

Within reasonable touring distance of the main centres of population, recreational attractions of outstanding merit are to be found. Lakes and rivers well stocked with fish, hunting areas of vast extent and camping grounds in their natural state, are only a few of the many features which make the country a popular vacation land during all seasons of the year. An atmosphere of old France permeates Quebec and the Maritimes, while Ontario and the Western provinces have much to offer by way of historic sites and monuments.

Numerous Canoe Trips

For those who desire a vacation close to nature, a canoe trip is ideal and Canada's extensive system of rivers and lakes offers a limitless choice of route and type of trip. For the novice there are many trips close to civilization, which may be taken with comfort and perfect safety, while unmapped and even unexplored regions challenge the expert and the adventurous. Canoes and equipment may be rented and guides are available in practically all districts. Subject to reasonable fire prevention regulations the canoeits, camper, camera hunter or student of wild life, may come and go, unrestricted, through the country's vast forested area.

Excellent Fishing

Canada's fishing waters, on account of their extent and diversified nature, provide an exceptional range of sport for the angler. The game fish include, salmon, brook trout, lake trout, bass, maskinonge, pike, pickerel, grayling, steelhead and tuna. Intelligent protection and constant re-stocking help to keep up the supply of fish in the popular districts, while in the more remote areas there are still plenty of virgin waters. The cost of fishing licences is moderate and the open seasons are long.

Golf and Tennis Popular

Canada is well supplied with golf courses and new ones are being built in every province. No city is without at least one golf club and most of the larger towns and popular summer resorts have courses. Tennis is also popular in all parts of the country.

Government Bureau Free Information Service

A number of specially prepared booklets on Canada's recreational attractions and automobile road maps indicating the main connecting highways between one province and another may be obtained free of charge by adults, from the National Development Bureau of the Department of the Interior, at Ottawa. The Bureau also has on file information concerning practically all phases of recreation in Canada, which will be gladly provided, upon request. In order that the most complete information may be supplied it is desirable that applicants be as specific as possible as to the areas in which interested.

UNEMPLOYMENT AND YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS

The arrest in Ottawa a few days ago of two young men, aged 20 and 21 years, for a series of burglaries in that city; the number of attempted as well as successful hold-ups of small stores, purse snatching, and other like crimes that are becoming so common in the cities, is an evidence of the fact that, notwithstanding the unemployment situation, there is something sadly lacking in the home training, in the school discipline, and in the bringing up of the youths of to day. The old saying that "Satan fines some evil for idle hands to do" is very true, and particularly of our young men. Dr. Christie when here last Thursday night, addressing the 100 Club, made reference to the very sad situation of young men leaving the high schools and colleges being unable to find employment, and in desperation being driven to crime to secure that which is being withheld from them, even though they are anxious and willing to work for wages. That is the clearest and most convincing evidence that there is something wrong with our social and economic situation; something so seriously wrong that we are turnign out of our schools of learning too large a percentage of young criminals whose minds and energy could be turned to better advantage.

Talking with a government official this week, who is making a tour of Eastern Ontario and inquiring into the unemployment situation and administration of the Relief Funds, he told the Press that from his observation the granting of relief without work was a mistake and was encouraging a spirit of dependence and lack of desire to work on the part of too many. This is only too true, and while the system of requiring municipalities to go into unnecessary and sometimes extravagant enterprises to furnish work, is not desirable or necessary, there is no reason why much of the provincial road system could not be kept in better repair, dangerous places made more safe, ditches filled, and trees planted along the highways by the army of transients who are daily tramping from one town to another and seem quiet satisfied so long as they get fed and a warm place to sleep in. The highway between Morrisburg and Ottawa could easily take care of several hundred young men, who could be employed under a government system at a reasonable wage, and independent of the municipalities. The villages of Chesterville and Winchester and the Township of Winchester are paying out enough in direct relief to make the Ridge Road one of th best, and yet because of the lack of a system and co-operation not a thing is being done, and when the road is repaired it will be under and by men who are not actually in need of the work.

It is particularly the young men, however, who are the serious problem of to-day, and how to find suitable work for them. If something is not soon done our prisons will not be large enough to hold the youthful criminals who are doing service for crimes that they could have, at far less expense, been saved from.

WHERE DOES THE MONEY COME FROM?

Where does all the money come from that is financing the Ontario Moderation League. Almost every day the Press receives a circular telling what a great benefit and blessing beer and wine retailed in Ontario, would bring to the people. Why, if one really believed all some of their literature sets forth, there would be no more hard times, no more depression, no more scarcity of money, no more unemployment in this province. It would be sunshine, happiness and prosperity to all. The literature is more alluring than a springtime patent medicine circular. And one wonders where all the money comes from that pays for the printing and posting through the mail of all this Moderation League literature. For it must cost a lot of money, and it means that men are willing to gamble on its having some effect. Why? It is not a charitable work. It is not intended to help our churches, our hospitals, our institutions for the deformed and for the old and helpless. Beer and wine, to be drunk, to make men and women feel foolish or ugly according to their temperament. Beer and wine to be spent in saloons, in restaurants, for what purpose? To take the money that should go to clothe children, to surround the family with home comforts. Beer and wine to make good men and pure women bad and impure. The men who are carrying on this Moderation League campaign are only thinking of the dollars it will bring to them in profits if they once got the unrestricted sale of beer and wine. The money they spend in trying to force the retailing of beer and wine they expect to be repaid them by the poor fools who spend their hard earned dollars in drinking their products and making themselves beasts instead of men.

RIGHT IN TORONTO THE GOOD

Can you believe it that right in Toronto the Good, in the centre of the city, in one of its imposing residences, a fashionable resort for the idle rich, a place known as "Plantation Inn," beautifully decorated, elegantly furnished, and carefully managed, was raided on Saturday night last. As one of the city papers describes it:

"In a unique atmosphere of a southern character, the walls decorated by original paintings by eminent Toronto artists, with scenes from the famous play, 'Porgy,' the elite of Toronto were visited by a squad of uniformed and plainclothes police when a raid was conducted on the Plantation Inn, 25 Bloor Street West, Saturday night.

"More than one hundred persons, a number in evening dress, were sitting at tables, while a negro was entertaining with tap dances. Liquor, it is alleged, was being passed around on tables by the guests themselves. When police appeared on the floor and announced the place was under arrest, there was a scramble to get flasks from hip pockets and bottles were shoved under tables, behind doors and against the walls.

"Four arrests were made, and it was stated five others would be brought to Police Court on summons to be served by police."

We who live in rural communities can only guess at the iniquities of the big cities, but who would ever think that in "Toronto the Good" such things would be going on. One is beginning to see why the "Oxford Group" was not popular in Toronto. It was an interference with their religious practices and peace of mind. Toronto the Good. Ha!Ha!

A WASHINGTON CONFERENCE

The conference to be held at Washington shortly between President Roosevelt, and the heads or representatives of England, France, Italy, Germanp and Canada, as well as some other countries, is being looked forward to with much interest and speculation. That better trade relations, as well as the national debts will come under review is expected. The movement toward reciprocal trade between the United States and Canada is already under consideration by the heads of the two countries. Will the United States under President Roosevelt show the world the way to better times—we hope so.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Subscriber—"You have so much interesting news and reading in the Press now, that I don't know which page I like the best."

A young hockey player who played on the Detroit Red Wings' team, went off his head when in Toronto Saturday night, and had to be taken to a hospital for treatment. No doubt he was trying to imitate some of the hockey fans who had been watching his play.

Italy has beaten England's speed record for seaplanes. The "Red Bullet," owned by an Italian, a few days ago made a record of over 423 miles per hour. That's some going. If one only knew where Heaven was located he might fly there in a few days without dying.

And now Cornwall is proposing to build an arena with artificial ice to cost over $100,000. Isn't it funny that a town that has so many people on the relief list, can find so much money to be expended in sport. This world is a queer mixture of contradictions.

The Province of Quebec Legislature, without a dissenting voice has adopted a Bill to put a stop to Communistic propaganda being carried on in that province, and especially in the cities. The action is taken none too soon, as Communism should not be allowed to get even a foothold in Canada.

The Press last week had an item about counterfeit coins being in circulation, and the day after the Press was issued a farmer came to the office and wanted to know what they looked like. He said it was so long since he had seen a coin of any kind that if the real kind ever came his way he wanted to be sure.

Counterfeit $5 American bills are said to be in circulation in Toronto. How many Press readers would know a counterfeit bill from the genuine, if offered it today. The new paper money of the United States looks so tempting that one grabs at it without a single thought of its genuineness. It's only when one gets fooled that he becomes cautious.

Those who pretend to know, predict that the Dominion Parliament will continue in session until the middle of May, or even later. It's costing the country a lot of money, and if the editor of the Press felt safe that some members wouldn't move a vote of censure against him, he would say that half the time being spent there is wasted time.

"Reciprocity"—And to think the Conservative party of to-day is inclined to favor it. It's enough to make some of those old Tory party politicians turn in their graves. Why the very word meant selling our country to the Yanks, and how the good old flag did wave in those days away back before 1900 when Reciprocity meant Rebellion. Experience without undue prejudice is an interesting thing.

When will people learn that gasoline is even more dangerous than dynamite, and it's victims are more numerous. Sunday night last a Toronto girl was washing her hair with gasoline, and a gas stove was burning in the kitchen near her. Easy to tell the result, a girl horribly burned, disfigured for life, etc., etc. No gasoline should be sold in a can or bottle without a warning label, and one that is a warning.

A poor man, who is unknown beyond his own neighborhood in Sarnia, has caused a suit to be entered to unseat Premier Henry because he holds stock bonds in the Ontario Power Service Corporation. The liquor interests will always find some poor tool to do their dirty work when they want to. Premier Henry's "No" to the beer and wine delegation, seem to have stirred what is known as the Moderation League to desperate measures. We do not think that this latest move will lose Premier Henry any friends.

PALM SUNDAY IN ST. PAUL'S CHURCH

Last Sunday morning, Palm Sunday, Rev. W. D. Turner, the pastor, preached a powerful sermon on the subject "Jesus' Triumphant Entry" from Matt. 21-10:

When Jesus was coming into Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, who is this?

Our conception of a person is a very important matter not only to our selves, but in some degree, great or small, to the other person as well. What did those who live in Christ's day and had contact with Him think of Him? What did they think of His teaching? They were offended and asked the question. Is not this the carpenter? the son of Joseph and Mary?

They saw only a man with a tradesman's hammer and a tradesman's hope.

There were others who felt that Jesus was unlearned as He had never attended the higher schools of learning and consequently would be far behind the Scribes and others of His time. Why should the world get excited over him and the multitudes follow Him from place to place and hang upon His word? Yet the people followed and listened and felt a stirring of new impulses within their hearts. Others felt that He was a great teacher and it mattered little to them how He came by His knowledge. "He spoke as never man spoke." He taught with authority and not as the Scribes. They saw God through Him but they did not see God in Him. He was a teacher but not the Teacher.

Others felt that He was destined to become a great national leader. They saw the empty throne in the city of David and they wanted right then and there to put Him upon the throne. But Jesus said "My Kingdom is not of this world." Christ's Kingdom was not an earthly one but a spiritual one. A crown of thorns was to be his diadem, but the world did not understand.

Then Jesus asked His disciples a question. What is the current opinion about me? Who do men say that I am? They answered, some say that thou are John the Baptist; some Elias; and others Jeremia, or one of the prophets and that seemed to be the general opinion. And then on the day of His triumphal entry into Jerusalem in response to the question, Who is this? The answer comes "This is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee." And they were right, for Jesus was a prophet but He was much more.

Then after the disciples had given Him the opinions of men concerning Himself, He asked them in a very pointed manner"—But who say ye that I am?" And Peter rushes to the front and he shouts so that all may hear, "Thou Art the Christ the Son of the living God." And Jesus at once put His seal upon that conception of pronouncing it a divine revelation: "Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona: for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee but my Father which is in heaven." The highest conception which man may entertain of Jesus. He was Carpenter, Teacher, Leader, Prophet. But is this all? Why the Hosannas; Why the palm branches strewn along the highway? Why the great multitudes? Why? Be of the soul-stirring vision, the life-ennobling conception, that Jesus the King, is the Church, the Son of the living God." Hosanna to the Son of David. Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest!"

Jesus by accepting the Hosannas of the multitude and riding upon the lowly ass, is surely riding on to victory. The Roman yoke will soon be broken and Israel will come again to his own so the people thought.

But the way that leads Christ to the throne is not that way, that is the human way but it is not God's way.

Jesus saw the shadow of the cross looming up before Him. The week which opened in triumph was to close in tragedy and gloom. The path to glory is by the way of the cross.

"We never choose the better part
Till we set the cross in the heart."

As Jesus rides forward into Jerusalem a dark shadow lies across the sunlit path before Him.

He sees the future and His suffering is clearly understood by Him. He took the twelve apostle and said unto them,

"Behold we go up to Jerusalem and the son of man shall be betrayed unto the crief priests and scribes and they shall condemn him to death and shall deliver him to the gentiles, to mock, and to scourge and to crucify Him and the third day he shall rise again." Just as soon as the disciples heard that Jesus was about to suffer and to die they began to fall behind in groups and talk in whispers for they feared the future. The record says, they understood not the saying and they were afraid to ask Him.

Here was a situation that did not fall in with their plans or suit their desires It was revolutionary. The fear of the cross gripped them with a clutching and benumbing grasp. And when the reality of it fell upon them there was panic. When they saw Him arrested and about to be crucified, they all forsook Him and fled.

The display of popular enthusiasm soon died down and the people who had been crying out "Hosanna to the son of David, were now crying crucify Him, crucify Him. Thus we see the fickleness of popular sentiment. To Jesus, Calvary was as certain to be as had been Bethlehem. It was not a possibility but a certainty; not a probability, but a necessity. So He faced the fact and went forward with calmness and steadfastness to the terrible end. And they crucified Him. The great central fact of this Passion week is the crucifixion of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, the Saviour of the world. It is the climax of the greatest love story ever told, love of God for sinful men.

The cross is not only the estimate God places upon the awfulness of sin but also a measure of the wonderful love God has for sinners. God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son to die for the world.

The Lord Jesus Christ proves to us the Fathers' love and reveals to us the Father's heart and brings to us the Father's gift. Eternal life is the gift of God through our Lord Jesus Christ. Everlasting life is the culmination of everlasting love.

Who is this? Jesus Christ the Son of the living God, the Saviour of the world.

CASSELMAN PRONOUNCED RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH OF TWO COMPANIONS

The coroner's inquest to enquire into the death of Paul Putman, son of Dr. and Mrs. Putman, of Ottawa, who met with a tragic death shortly after midnight on April 2, took place at the courthouse before Dr. T. M. Galbraith, coroner, at Napanee, Ont., on Monday, with the following verdict being returned: "We find that Mr. Paul Putman came to his death on the morning of April 2nd, 1933, on Provincial Highway No. 2, about one and one-half miles east of Deseronto as a result of an accident, being thrown from the rumble seat of a car driven by Ward Casselman and we are agreed that the driver named was responsible for the accident."

There were several witnesses and evidence was brought out that beer and liquor had been consumed during the trip from Kingston to Belleville; also that Casselman, the owner and driver of the car, did not have his operator's permit at the time the accident occurred.

OUR SYMPATHY AND BEST WISHES

To ex-Mayor W. J. Wilson, of Gananoque, who underwent an operation for internal trouble on Tuesday will go out the hope that he will make a speedy recovery, and soon be able to shout aloud the advantages and beauty of the "Gate of the St. Lawrence," the beautiful town of Gananoque. The Press joins in good wishes to ex-Mayor Wilson, and hopes to see his smiling face and hear his cheery greeting soon.

This is one-third of the allocation.

Miss Singleton and Mrs. Crowder were appointed to represent the Band at the Presbyterial meeting to be held in Brinston on May 3rd.

Many of the Band members have made scrapbooks to send to sick children in hospitals and to children in school homes and in foreign countries. Under the supervision of Miss Singleton they work at these during the latter part of the meeting.

PROVERBS OF THE ARABIANS

There are none so blind as they who willfully shut their eyes.

If the camel once gets his nose in the tent, his body will soon follow.

Advice given in the midst of a crowd is loathsome.

Love can make any place agreeable.

Delicious fruit is pleasing to the taste, but it is the tree that bears it that merits our esteem.

It is more noble to pardon than to punish.

Pardon is the choicest flower of victory.

The habitation of danger is on the borders of security.

Where virtue resides not, liberty can no longer subsist.

Truth is better than gold.

A little spark will set a whole city on fire.

He that speaks of things that do not concern him, shall hear of things that will not please him.

HOW TO GROW BETTER CROPS

PRUNING OF APPLE TREES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Pruning fruit trees is an operation which may be performed successfully during the dormant season, and the month of March or early April in most districts offers an excellent opportunity to get the job done. If it is a young tree which is to be pruned bear in mind that your pruning should consist of training the young tree to a good shape and that to do this may require rather severe pruning. The main branches to form the ultimate framework of the tree should be carefully selected in such a manner that they are spaced about twelve or fourteen inches apart on the main stem or trunk and that thy rotate spirally around the tree. Such an arrangement will produce a modified leader type of tree if the leader (the five or six main branches have been produced. Care should be exercised to select branches which are forming good crotches. Sharp or angular crotches are not as strong as right-angled crotches and should, if possible, be avoided. During the first six or seven years of the tree's life, considerable cutting back of the new growth may be necessary to induce the formation of lateral branches where required; in addition the removal of branches which cross or interfere with each other may be necessary.

In handling bearing trees, the general practise is to perform what may be termed only regulatory pruning; that is, to prune just enough to prevent the head from becoming too thick. Continual cutting back delays the time of bearing and, if persisted in too long, may materially reduce yields. It is true, of course, that spur pruning, i.e., the cutting back of of each new shoot each year to within four or five buds of last year's growth, may be used instead of thinning as a means to produce fewer but larger and better apples. It is preferable, however, to keep down pruning in a bearing tree to the minimum and then, if necessary, thin the fruit during early summer in order to attain size and quality.

BUCKWHEAT IN A GRAIN MIXTURE

Within recent years the practise of including buckwheat in a grain mixture for grain production has become more common. Aside from any advantage in yield, two advantages might be claimed for such a mixture: first, the mature straw of wheat or barley might loosen up the sheaf and facilitate drying the buckwheat; second, buckwheat might tend to keep a weak strawed grain such as barley from lodging. The fact that this mixture must be seeded by June 1st might, however, be a serious disadvantage as buckwheat is liable to suffer severely from dry hot weather at flowering time.

Buckwheat has been growing with barley in mixtures for grain productions at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in each of the last three years. The silverhull variety of buckwheat, O. A. C. 21 barley and Garnet wheat were the varieties used throughout the experiment. The season of 1930 was the only one in which barley seeded alone at 2 bushels per acre of wheat alone at 1 1-2 bushels per acre did not outyield the combinations. The best mixture was sown at the rate of four pecks of barley and three pecks of buckwheat. These mixtures were sown on the average date of May 27th and cut the fourth week of August when the buckwheat was more than 80 per cent matured.

In a similar experiment conducted by the Ontario Agricultural College a mixture of four pecks of buckwheat and six pecks of barley gave the highest yield with three pecks of buckwheat and six pecks of barley ranking second. In this experiment the mixtures in which rough buckwheat was used yielded considerably better than those which contained the silverhull variety. From the standpoint of yield the data do not show any special advantage from these mixtures for grain production.

REDUCING DISEASES OF POTATOES

During recent years experimental results secured by the Division of Botany of the Federal Department of Agriculture, have suggested important limitations of tuber treatment in controlling such prevalent diseases as common scab, black scurf and stem canker, and black leg. This is because the organisms, causing these three diseases, are normal inhabitants of the soil. Therefore, the amount of disease which occurrs must depend very largely on the infestation of the soil and environmental conditions, and not on the amount of the organism which may be added by the seed piece. Old soils are apt to carry a greater infestation of these parasites than virgin soil does Therefore, it would be safer to disinfect tubers when using virgin soils Of course, seed treatment will effectively dispose of the fungi which are on the surface of the tuber in the case of a common scab and black scurf, but it cannot hope to kill the bacteria which cause black leg, because these are within the tuber With regard to the virus diseases, tuber treatment cannot be effective, because the causal agent persists in the juice of the plant and the tuber Present evidence suggests that, in the absence of a suitable resistant variety, crop rotation is a desirable method to reduce common scab, black scurf, and, to some extent, black leg Probably the best method for reducing black leg is to plant tubers that are free from this disease. The only method now available to reduce and control the highly important virus diseases (which cause the stock to "run out,' is to use seed free from these diseases The Federal Department of Agriculture, through its seed potatoes, certified with regard to inspection system, makes available disease content.

SYNOPSIS: Pauline, sentimental, trustful, sincere and loving love, becomes engaged and marries Dennis O'Hara in the belief that their blissful happiness will continue unchanged thru all the years. On her wedding morning she awakens with a strange premonition that maybe love does change, a thought buried in her mind by a letter from her closest friend, Barbara the night before. Pauline adored Barbara who had been married, was the mother of a child which died, but now divorced and living a life which some of her friends could not understand. Between Dennis and Barbara is a seeming wall of personal dislike by both. Six months after Pauline's wedding, Barbara comes for a short stay . . . NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Pauline hung up the receiver slowly and turned away from the telephone.

"Dennis isn't coming home till late," she said.

Barbara Stark blew a cloud of cigarette smoke into the air, turned a page of the magazine she was reading, then glanced up.

"Oh! Business?" she asked casually.

"He didn't say."

There was a little silence. Pauline went back to her chair and took up the work she had been engaged upon so happily a moment ago.

"I should give that up if I were you," Barbara said in her lazy, musical voice. "How long have you been at it?"

"Ever since I was engaged." Pauline spread the cloth across her knee and regarded it critically.

"Time flies, doesn't it? You've been married — how long? — Six months?" asked Barbara, musingly.

"Nearly." Pauline's blue eyes sought her friend's face rather sombrely. "It seems longer—sometimes," she admitted.

Barbara laughed. "Not very complimentary to Dennis."

"Dennis is a darling." Pauline gathered up the elaborate cloth. "He's a perfect darling," she said, with enthusiasm.

Barbara stifled another yawn and turned another page of the magazine.

"And they lived happily ever after," she quoted rather cynically. Pauline leaned forward, her chin resting in the cup of her hand.

"I want to ask you something," she said, suddenly. "May I?"

"My lamb, why not?" Barbara's dark brows lifted in mild amazement. "What is it? I promise to answer to the best of my limited eloquence." Pauline slipped to her knees beside her friend.

"I think I'm just beginning to understand that life isn't the simple thing I thought it was," she said slowly.

"If it were we should find it dull and uninteresting," Barbara declared. "It's the uncertainty that keeps us going at all. What is the important question?"

Pauline looked down at her new wedding ring and twisted it thoughtfully; then suddenly she raised her eyes.

"Why don't you like Dennis?" she asked.

Barbara was lighting yet another cigarette— her white slender fingers paused in their task; then she answered evenly: "But I do like him. I like him immensely."

Pauline shook her fair head. "It's nice of you to say so, but somehow I don't quite believe you. There's a sort of feeling of antagonism whenever you and he are in the same room."

Barbara interrupted calmly:

"Isn't it rather he who doesn't like me, don't you think? And isn't it perhaps because I am here that he has suddenly decided not to come in to dinner to-night?"

Pauline sat back on her heels and looked up at her friend. She admired Barbara immensely, and yet nobody had ever called Barbara beautiful. "Striking looking," had been Dennis O'Hara's reluctant admission. "The sort of woman a man looks at because he's not quite sure what she is."

It was a true if not very lucid description. Barbara was tall and slim, but she rather affected a droop, and she had queer nondescript eyes that were sometimes dark and sometimes pale, and a beautiful mouth, and hair of a real leaf brown. She wore clothes that were like nobody else's. "God knows where she gets 'em," Dennis grumbled. She seemed to be a perpetual source of grievance to him.

"She gets them at quite ordinary shops," Pauline said, ever on the defensive for her friend. "But you see she designs them herself, and she's so original."

Barbara certainly looked "original" enough now, as she stood with one hand on her hip looking down at Pauline with an indulgent smile. She wore a frock of the brightest jade green girdled with a band of dull orange, and her long drooping earrings were jade, and her cigarette holder was jade also.

"Why should he disapprove of you?" Pauline asked, realizing why, even as she asked the question. Dennis liked "womanly women"—the description was his own. "Barbara looks like a cross between an Egyptian queen and a film vamp," he had protested only last night. "Why on earth can't she wear frocks like this?" and he had pinched a soft fold of his wife's between a finger and thumb.

Pauline had flushed with pleasure.

"Now if Barbara wore what I call 'fluffy' clothes," he went on, floundering amidst explanations, "something blue—with some lace—"

"She'd look frightful!" Pauline told him.

"Why should he disapprove of it sounded profound, and then she asked the question which for months she had longed to ask. "Barbara, did you love your husband when you you?" she urged, as her friend did not reply.

"And you've never loved anyone since, Barbara?" asked Pauline

"Men," said Barbara, "always disapprove of things they don't understand."

"Oh," said Pauline. She was not quite sure what Barbara meant, but married him?"

The answer came without hesitation. "I thought I did, but we had been married exactly—I think one hour—when I knew I did not."

"How dreadful!"

Barbara laughed. "It was rather, but I've got over it, and it was an experience I don't regret."

"And you've never loved anyone since?"

"Yes. I've been fool enough for that."

"Oh!" Pauline scrambled to her feet. "Who was he? Do tell me!"

Barbara moved away to the window. "It wouldn't interest you," she said.

"Everything about you interests me," Pauline pleaded.

Barbara turned, smiling a little. "This wouldn't. It's nothing romantic."

But Pauline would not be denied. "Didn't he love you? Oh, but he must have," she insisted.

"I never asked him. One doesn't go about proposing to men who don't show the slightest interest in one, you know."

"I know, but—"

Barbara patted Pauline's cheek. "I said I'd answer one question, and I'm sure I've answered half a dozen," she protested. "What are we going to do with ourselves this evening?"

"Peterkin's coming to dinner."

Barbara raised her brows. "Poor Peterkin!"

"What do you mean?"

"Why, by coming here to see you."

"Why shouldn't he? He's my cousin."

"I know—a cousin who adores the ground you walk on. Now that's a man whose love I believe in, Pauline. You're the only woman in his life. You ought to have married him—I consider you are admirably suited."

"Barbara! I don't care for him in that way at all."

"I know you don't, but all the same you are admirably suited to him. You're both sentimental, whereas Dennis—" She stopped, but Pauline caught her up quickly.

"What about Dennis?"

"Nothing, except that temperamentally he's your exact opposite."

"Then we must have been made for each other," Pauline insisted. "'Like attracts unlike,' they say, don't they?"

"Attracts, yes," and then, as if regretting the word, Barbara laughed. "Why do you lead me on to talk such nonsense? Oughtn't we to dress? Peterkin will be here directly."

When she was upstairs in her room Pauline made no attempt to dress. She sat down on the side of the bed and stared at the rose-patterned carpet with eyes that suddenly seemed to see a great deal.

She had been married six months —happy months, yes, decidedly happy months and yet . . .

"Temperamentally Dennis is your exact opposite."

Barbara's words came back to her with insistent truth. Dennis was not in the least sentimental—he hated what he called "slosh." Now Pauline came to think of it, he hardly ever used any terms of endearment when he spoke to her.

Pauline sighed. It was the little things of life that were so disappointing, she decided. Only last night, for instance, he had come home earlier than usual from the City and had gone straight down to the garage and had tinkered about with the car.

When they were first married his first thought would have been for her—or—wouldn't it?

Pauline submitted herself to a stiff cross-examination. Perhaps she had been unwise. It was a mistake to show you were too fond of a man—Barbara had always said that—Barbara who was so cynically worldly wise.

But even Barbara admitted to being in love! Pauline wondered who the man could be, and decided that it was probably the married man with whom she had lately been going about.

A bell pinged through the house, and she changed hurriedly and went downstairs. Peterkin was alone in the drawing room—Barbara had not yet appeared—and Pauline went up to him with an unconscious little sigh of relief. "It's so nice to see you, Peterkin."

"Glad to see me?" he asked jerkily. He looked down at her, but he kept his hands firmly clasped behind his back.

Pauline nodded. "You're a bit of my old life, and you're so safe," she said comfortably.

He laughed rather grimly. "Is that a compliment?—and where's Dennis?"

"Out on business."

"Already?" There was an unkind little note in the question, and Pauline drew away from him offendedly.

"And you're still quite happy?"

She met his eyes serenely. "Perfectly."

He let her go at that. "Well—are we dining alone?"

"No. Barbara is here."

His eyes brightened. "Is she? I like that woman—she's a fascinating devil. I wonder she hasn't got married again."

"I wish she would. There is—" Pauline broke off, realizing she had been about to break a confidence by speaking of the man whom Barbara had admitted loving, and the next moment Barbara was in the room.

They had quite a cheery dinner in spite of Dennis's empty chair, before which Pauline insisted on placing a vase of roses and a glass of wine "for luck."

"Still so romantic!" Barbara teased her.

"And always will be, I hope," Pauline answered. She was rather quiet during dinner — afterward, when she was in bed and lying awake listening for Dennis, she realized there had not been much necessity for her to talk. Then she heard Dennis' step up the little garden and the sound of his key in the door. She flew out of bed and down the stairs, barefooted as she was, and when he opened the door she flung herself into his arms.

"How late you are! It been so lonely. Are you all right? I'm always so afraid you'll get run over or something when you're out so late."

O'Hara laughed and kissed her flushed cheek.

"Do you think I want a nurse or a keeper?" he asked. He put her gently from him. "You'll take cold —no slippers or dressing gown."

"I'm quite warm." She hung round him as he took off his coat, and she followed him into the dining room, talking all the time. "Have you had dinner?"

THINGS WE LIKE TO HEAR

(Bridgeburg Review)

There are a number of things we like to hear in these times;

That somebody or other who needs it has been able to get a job.

That somebody or other who owes us money is able to pay something on account.

That other people are just as badly off as we are ourselves.

That other people are doing better than the average and are trying to help some who are worse off than most.

That the man who can afford to buy a new car does not refrain from the purchase because the neighbour might call it a vulgar display of wealth. Buying a new car, a new necktie, or a new house, helps to relieve the situation for many people.

YOU MAKE TAKE YOUR CHOICE BUT YOU PAY ANYWAY

(Petrolia Advertiser)

Dr. Horace Brittain told the Empire Club in Toronto, the other day, that throughout Canada there are nearly four thousand governing bodies and advocated the abolition of County Councils. Asked what he would put in their place, Dr. Brittain replied, "Nothing. I would have no middleman between the province and the township."

On the other hand, T. J. Jutten, M. P.P., Hamilton Centre, was inclined to think Township Councils could better be abolished. The county, he said, was a better natural unit.

Backing the stand taken by the Advertiser-Topic some months ago, when this question was being widely discussed in the press, Warden Elliott, of York County, said he favored the enlargement of the County Council and the abolition of the provincial legislature. He would give the county council much greater powers than they have now and enlarge their jurisdiction by combining them. The powers of the provincial government would be given county councils.

More to the point and following more closely the views of this paper were the remarks of Reeve McDonald, of New Toronto, who advocated the abolition of both the provincial legislature and the township councils and enlargement of the powers of the county councils. The municipal councils, he said, could be replaced by county commissions reduced in number as compared with the present councils and constituted like the present county old age commission.

Every one agrees that we are overgoverned and that the best governed people is that which is least governed.

VIMY VICTORY 16 YEARS AGO

(Perth Courier)

In the dark days of 1917, on April 9th of that year to be exact, the world waited with hushed voices for news of one of the outstanding battles of the Great War. Finally it came, news of the taking of Vimy Ridge by the Canadians, an encounter in which the Canadians covered themselves with glory.

History of that famous battle is well known. After a heavy bombardment lasting three weeks Vimy Ridge was brilliantly stormed by the Canadian troops. They had been especially trained for the assault and they went forward under cover of a skillful barrage. The enemy entrenchments had been blown to pieces but there was stubborn resistance at a few points.

Over 4,000 prisoners were taken by the Canadians, who pressed down the slopes to the village of Vimy and the outskirts of Lens. The assault was one of the most complete successes of the war. Near the crest of the ridge now planted with maples, stand two monuments to Canadian heroism.

There are many in Perth and district who will never forget those days at Vimy. The memory of that victory cannot fade.

Dim through the mists of passing years,
Resounds the bugle call,
To which our brave Canadian sons
Responded, one and all.
Bright through the mists of passing years,
There gleams the sacred light,
Of those brave sons of Canada,
Who fought for God and right.
Sweet through the mists of passing years,
The tender memories cling,
Of our brave sons who gave their lives,
For Empire, Home and King.
And reverently we bow our heads,
And turn our thoughts today,
To that fair spot in France, which is
For ever Canada.

KEEPING ONE'S MOUTH SHUT

(Gananoque Reporter)

The ability to mind one's own business is a great accomplishment. Too few people possess this virtue. Most of us are too prone to talk about the weaknesses or foibles of our fellows, especially if there is a bit of scandal attached to the story. Several of our weekly contemporaries have been writing on this subject of late, impelled, no doubt, by local incidents that thrust themselves upon the editor's attention. Such incidents are of never-ending occurrence. Every editor of a small town paper gets an earful of them every day.

Imagine, if you can, what it would mean if such stories were put in cold print! Libel suits, broken hearts disrupted families, fallen heroes, betrayed confidence and sadly disillusioned faiths. The waste paper baskets of the average newspaper do more to keep peace in the community than the fear of the law and the hereafter combined.

A man told us the other day that we do not publish all the things that happened. We should say not. In the first place, we have others who depend on us for a living. If we published all that happened we would soon be with the angels. In order to please people we must print only the nice things about them and leave the rest to the gossips. Yes, its a fact—we don't print all the news. If we did, wouldn't it make spicy reading! But this would be for one week only. The next week there would be a strange face in heaven, or wherever deceased editors go.

The gossips, and their name is legion in every community, are welcome to the monopoly of spreading the scandal. They are adepts to the task, and take a rather fiendish delight in it. That this town has its share of them has been evident of late. How much better to mind one's own business and to keep one's own mouth shut? In this connection we are reminded of that very fine daily prayer written by Robert Louis Stevenson. It is worth committing to memory:

"The day returns and brings in the petty round of irritating concerns and duties. Help us to be the man, help us to perform them with laughter and kind faces; let cheerfulness abound with industry. Give us to go blithely on our business all this day; bring us to our resting beds weary and content and undishonored, and grant us in the end the gift of sleep. Amen."

A GOOD EXAMPLE

(Ottawa Journal.)

The Ontario Government and its supporters in the Legislature are setting before the country an admirable example in the surrender to the general good of private and political advantage. Most elective bodies are too large, would be the more efficient for a judicious pruning. Premier Henry has shown that given good will, and an honest intent to make economy more than a slogan, the difficulties are not insuperable.

FEEL IT ALL RIGHT, ALL RIGHT

The Orillia Packet-Times says:—

"Though we realize it is not a popular thing to defend, we feel that it is but fair to the Dominion Government to say a word for the tax on sugar. It hits everybody. But that is its virtue. Unless peope feel they are paying taxes there will be no general demand for reduction in taxes. In the case of many Dominion and Provincial taxes, the general public scarcely realizes that they are levied. The cry has been to lay the tax "on those who can afford it." The trouble is that this principle leads to extravagance. When a tax like that on sugar is imposed, even the housewives begin to realize that public expenditure has to be paid for in taxation. After all, the sugar tax will average only $2 per capita per annum for the population. If you don't eat candy, your share will be below the average.

Maxville School Teacher Injured

Badly injured when an automobile struck the buggy in which she was riding, on the St. Elmo-Maxville road Wednesday evening last week, Miss Helen Campbell, Sandringham school teacher, is lying at Ottawa Civic Hospital in a serious condition. It was reported this morning that the girl is suffering from concussion of the brain and possible fracture of the skull. Miss Campbell drove to St. Elmo with John McLennan, to attend a meeting of the St. Elmo Literary Society. They were returning shortly after 11 o'clock when, at a point about 1 1-2 miles north of Maxville, an automobile driven by Gerald McEwan, Maxville, crashed into the rear of the rig. The buggy was badly damaged. While McLennan escaped with minor injuries, Miss Campbell was thrown from the rig by the impact and picked up unconscious.

McEwan drove McLennan and the injured girl to the Campbell home, where Miss Campbell was attended by Dr. W. B. McDiarmid, Maxville. She was subsequently taken to Ottawa.

McEwan claimed that he did not see the buggy until he was almost upon it. The road was icy at the point at which the accident happened. Provincial Constable Jack Berry, Alexandria, investigated.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Minnesota Boys Hustlers

As pig and corn producers Minnesota 4-H boys are setting a fast pace. In the pig raising contest the boys put it all over the men in making heavy ton litters. A 4-H boy made the most gain, and 8 of the 10 high producers of both adult and boy contestants were made by the youngsters.

John Miller, of Winona County, made the top record, producing a litter which weighed 3,500 pounds at six months of age. It was a fine recognition for the boy, as he had been working hard to master the problems of raising pigs profitably for eight years through 4-H club projects. His winning was made in the last year of his club work. In his work he had received encouragement and guidance from county agent Harold Pederson.

Running the 4-H champion a hard race for first was an adult who produced a litter weighing 3,383 pounds. Only one of the high ten winners made less than 3,000 pounds. These records compare well with the best which have been made in any of the pig raising states by either adults or club boys.

Champion 4-H corn grower for 1932 in Minnesota is Darwin Todd, 15, also of Winona county. There were 963 boys enrolled in the state contest. The champion harvested 123 bushels of corn on his acre. His selection was also based on fine exhibits he had made at local, state and national shows, and the records he submitted. This boy and 14 of his nearest rivals will receive prize trips to the next state fair to take part in a crop judging contest.

HENRY'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL, OTTAWA.

No school in Canada offers a better training, or ensures a more successful future. Henry's leads all others, and ranks among employers as "THE SCHOOL OF HIGHER EFFICIENCY"—a fact borne out by more than 600 pupils who have, since January, 1913, left other Ottawa Schools to come to it.
Therefore, it is not surprising that business men, in advertising for stenographers should specially say: "Graduates of Henry's School preferred."

STRANGE--BUT TRUE!

Backstage At Ottawa

In the interim, and pending the retirement of Messrs. Tremblay and McTavish, certain things are being done to the Civil Service Commission. They consist of one branch of Government after another being taken from the Commission's jurisdiction, this to the joy of partisans of both parties who have always hated the Commission and all its pomp and works. What we are witnessing is in reality a steady return to patronage, the latest trench taken being the penitentiaries branch, a department which, on the evidence of penitentiaries officials, benefitted more from the merit system than any other part of the Government.

Perhaps Mr. Bennett is not to blame. He is still the Government, or the greater part of it, buffeted by every circumstance, leading the House, taking upon himself the work of his Ministers or of many of them, trying to be in a dozen places and to do a dozen things at the same time. Three years of office haven't sapped his energy. As vigorously as ever, with the same determination, he works through long hours, shirks no task, hears deputations, sees countless callers, makes numerous speeches, takes a hand in nearly everything that calls for a decision. Perhaps, therefore, some minor things escape him; things like the mere turning to patronage.

Yet there are minor things which don't escape him. He still wars with the Press Gallery, or with a large section of it; still believes that most newspapermen are evil geniuses seeking to harass and thwart him. When, not long ago, the Ottawa correspondent of the Manchester Guardian cabled his paper that High Commissioner Ferguson was in the bad graces of the Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett, it is credibly said, seriously looked up the statutes to see what could be done about it. When, later on, the London Chronicle carried a story that Mr. Bennett was about to show Britain bad faith by negotiating secretly with Mr. Roosevelt, he called the British Government on the transatlantic telephone at eight o'clock in the morning and told them what he thought about it.

All this is done impersonally. Privately, he is on fairly good terms with most of the newspapermen, scolds, taunts and argues with them, tells them they are criminally inaccurate, that they are generally a menace. Most of them by this time have become inured to him.

Politically, the session has been negligible. There have been no spectacular debates, no vital issues, no figures on either front bench achieving a reputation. Mr. Woodsworth alone has made a difference as a member, but not enough difference to make his Co-operative Commonwealth Party a Parliamentary force. In the session's early days there was much talk about currency, more talk about banks, but with the crash in the United States many voices fell silent. Perhaps they concluded that, after all, our banks weren't so bad; that any money or little money was better than no money.

As the session nears its close there is talk of a National Government. But although Sir Arthur Currie led off for it—on behalf of St. James Street and the Mount Royal Club, so the politicians said—and others are scheduled to follow, Ottawa is not impressed. Ottawa never is. In 1917 Ottawa thought that coalition was impossible, held to the last that it couldn't happen—yet coalition happened. He would be a foolish man who would hold that it cannot happen again.

Tragedy Of Liquor And Unemployment

The tragedy of liquor and unemployment was told in a despatch from Sarnia, Ont., on Saturday last. The story reads as follows:

Tragedy stalked in the three-room cottage of Frank Olah, claiming the lives of the 35-year-old Hungarian and his wife Kathleen, of the same age, while their 22-months-old daughter played with her dolls in a room adjoining that in which police allege, murder and suicide took place.

Discovery of the tragedy was made by another daughter, 10-year-old Annie H. Olah, on her return from school. She found her mother lying on the floor of the bedroom and her father huddled on the bed, his throat cut.

On the floor were a blood-stained hammer and a razor. Neighbors alarmed by the terrified cries of the child, summoned police and Coroner Dr. W. B. Rutherford, who found Olah and his wife were dead when they arrived. Dr. Rutherford decided an inquest was unnecessary.

Children of the dead couple, the infant Kathleen and the horror-stricken Annie, were taken in charge by neighbors to-night. The infant was unharmed in the room next to that where, apparently, a fierce struggle had taken place between the parents.

Olah was unemployed and on city relief. Last July he attempted to commit sucide by the razor method, and on being discharged from the hospital he served a two-months term on a liquor charge.

BETTER BUSINESS INDICATIONS ALL ALONG THE LINE

We've had plenty of gloomy news all winter: here is a brighter budget for Easter:

Wholesale prices rose between February and March more than any month since August, 1929, when the depression began. Higher prices were registered for wheat, hogs, steers, lambs, hides, butter, fresh and cured meats, barley, corn, flax, rye, peas, flour, bran and shorts. How's that for one month?

Wheat prices are now fully 12 cents per bushel above the low mark reached four months ago. On wheat in Canada the value to-day is about $30,000,000 higher than then.

In the first two months of 1933 Canada exported 1,369,200 lbs. of fresh beef. In the corresponding months of 1932 she shipped only 547,500 lbs.

In the past twelve weeks Canada shipped 7,863 head of live cattle to the British market. Only 409 head were shipped in the same period a year ago.

Bank debits, which reflect activity of business, rose six per cent after seasonal adjustment.

Employment figures at the beginning of March, after seasonal adjustment, showed a rise. Improvement was registered in manufacturing, notably of textile, rubber, iron and steel products, also in mining and construction.

Imports of crude petroleum rose from 35,000,000 gallons in January to 37,500,000 in February, and the sales of new automobiles, trucks and buses jumped from 1,802 to 2,399. Exports of rubber tires rose to 38,144, being practically double the corresponding month a year ago.

Car-loadings, the most sensitive barometer of business activity, now stand at about the same level as on January last. In the first three months of 1932 the index fell fourteen points, so that this year's showing is much more impressive.

The total volume of Canadian exports for the fiscal year ending March 31st is calculated to be almost exactly the same as in the previous 12 months. In the face of world decline of trade this is held by government commentators to be a remarkable achievement.

Canadian lumbermen expect to benefit from the difficulties which are developing between the United Kingdom and Russia.

A smile cannot be bought, begged, borrowed or stolen, for it is something that is of no value to anyone until it is given away. Some people are too tired to give you a smile. Give them one of yours, as none needs a smile so much as he who has no more to give.

FIRE AT CRYSLER

DOCTOR'S HOME AT CRYSLER DESTROYED BY FIRE

FINCH—Fire, which was first discovered and noticed by neighbours at about 11 o'clock on Thursday morning, completely destroyed the large frame dwelling and office of Dr. Louis Legault, of Crysler, Ont. The leaping flames and clouds of smoke were noticed by neighbors who gave a hurried call to the village fire fighters and their chemical machines. Dr. Legault and his family happened to be all out at the time of the outbreak which, it was learned, originated in the upper floor and was caused by overheating of stove pipes and chimney. In a short time the bucket brigade of village workmen was formed and prevented the fire from spreading to nearby homes, and also helped to remove household furnishings that were obtainable from the ground floor. The home of Mrs. Paul, which was only some twenty feet from the burning building, was saved from the flames by the good work of the firemen, who were greatly assisted by the visiting fire chemical machine and men from Finch who lost no time in arriving on the scene.

Dr. Legault, a residence of Crysler village for the past fifteen years, is at a great loss in the destruction of his lovely home, which is estimated at approximately $6,500, partially covered by insurance. It is not known as yet whether or not Dr. Legault will rebuild.

SUGAR, TEA, SALT AND WHISKEY PRICES PAID BY THE PIONEERS

Magistrate W. C. Mikel, K. C., in compiling a history of Belleville has assembled some information concerning the high prices paid by the early pioneers of this province. It is especially interesting when it is considered that there was very little money in circulation at that time.

The late Col. William Bell conducted a general store at Belleville known as Thurlow village, later Singleton's Crook, still later, Meyer's Creek, and in 1816, Belleville. He commenced business in July, 1787, and continued for about forty years. He was a very methodical man and preserved his accounts and papers with great care. These papers have fallen into the hands of the Lennox and Addington Historical Society and W. S. Herrington, K. C., has published extracts from these papers and records.

In these records we find in 1789 Col. Bell sold tea to Stephen Gilbert at six shillings per pound, (about $1.50.) In 1790 the following entries are shown: loaf sugar was sold to John Fairman at two shillings per pound (50c). Loaf sugar can today be purchased at eleven cents a pound. Calico was sold to John German at five shillings (about $1.25) a yard. There was also a sale of a half gallon of salt to Godlove Mikel at one shilling and three pence. A much better quality can now be purchased at half that price. In those days there was no such commodity as granulated sugar.

When the extreme scarcity of money at the above date is taken into consideration these prices would be higher than stated above as compared with present conditions.

The rate of wages per day in those pioneer times was fifty cents. If people were compelled to pay the above prices for tea, sugar and salt now it would be considered a hardship; notwithstanding the fact that wages are now from four to ten times higher. The labour in which the early pioneers were principally employed was cutting down the native forest trees, clearing up the land and building log cabins, which was extremely hard work, and their hours were from daylight to dark. They had one compensation, however, cheap whiskey. We find an entry in 1806 of a sale of whiskey to Margaret Simpson, hotel keeper, at five shillings per gallon (about $1.25).

In 1834, Belleville was incorporated as a police village, and in 1934, that City will celebrate the centennial of its existence as an incorporated municipality.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Transfigured.
Lesson for April 16th. Mark 9:2-29.
Golden Text: John 1:14.

The Transfiguration is a good lesson for Easter Sunday, for the glory of the Master's radiant face on the mountain top is akin to the glory of his risen body.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

It is one of the most impressive scenes in the career of Jesus, a spectacle of high religious significance. We are at once reminded of the Baptism, for the same heavenly voice, testifying to the divine Sonship of the Nazarene, speaks again. We also find here a vivid suggestion of two supreme forces that anticipated the advent of Jesus; for Moses, the representative of the law, and Elijah, a typical prophet, both appear in the wondrous vision.

But the matchless worth of this ethereal, mystical glorification is to be found in the light it throws upon the grandeur of the Person of Jesus. Just what happened we do not precisely know. Like the birth and resurrection narratives, the story of the transfiguration is saturated with the ecstasy of poetry. Therefore it cannot be analyzed or dissected as though it were a routine bit of fact. What we can be sure of is that Jesus was mysteriously exalted in the eyes of his disciples, with a divine illumination that strengthened mightily their appreciation of His deity. To a lesser degree this experience came to Moses, whose face shone after his communion with God at Sinai; to Stephen, whose countenance, at his trial, seemed that of an angel; and to Webster, who is said, after the delivery of his famous Bunker Hill oration, to have worn a grand expression that awed those near him.

Note that the disciples, at the close of his transforming experience, "saw no one any more, save Jesus only." May this be the experience of every follower of the Lord!

Then after the vision came the clear call to serve a needy world. From the mountain top of inspiration the disciples descended to the plain, there to meet an epileptic boy whom they vainly tried to cure. They had not sufficient spiritual vitality. There was a lack of personal trust in God. But when the Master came He at once remedied this deficiency, and restored the lad's shattered health.

A "MANY-SIDED" MAN

JESUS WAS, as we say, "many sided," and every man sees the side of his nature which appeals most to himself.

The doctor thinks of the great physician whose touch never failed, who by some mystery preceded modern science in its still imperfect knowledge of the relation of the spirit to health. The preacher studies the Sermon on the Mount and marvels that truths so profound should be expressed in words so clear and simple. The agitator remembers only that he denounced the rich; and the communist that his disciples carried a common purse. Lawyers have written in praise of his pleading at his trial; and the literary critics of every age have cheerfully acknowledged his mastery.

Bruce Barton

I am not a doctor, or lawyer or critic but an advertising man. As a profession advertising is young; as a force it is as old as the world. The first four words ever uttered, "Let there be light," constitute its charter. All Nature is vibrant with its impulse. The brilliant plumage of the bird is color advertising addressed to the emotions of its mate. Plants deck hemselves with blossoms, not for beauty only, but to attract the patronage of the bee and so by spreading pollen on its wings, to insure the perpetuation of their kind.

The spacious firmament on high,
And all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled Heavens a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.

It has been remarked that "no astronomer can be an atheist," which is only another way of saying that no man can look up at the first and greatest electric sign—the evening stars—and refuse to believe its message: "There is a Cause: A God." I propose in the next few articles to speak of the advertisements of Jesus which have survived for twenty centuries and are still the most potent influence in the world.

Let us begin by asking why he was so successful in mastering public attention and why, in contrast, his churches are less so? The answer is twofold. In the first place he recognized the basic principles that all good advertising is news. He was never trite or commonplace; he had no routine. If there had been newspapers in those days, no city editor could have said, "No need to visit him to-day; he will be doing just what he did last Sunday." Reporters would have followed him every single hour, for it was impossible to predict what he would say or do; every action and word were news. I repeat. Jesus had no routine. He was never trite or commonplace.

Last longer than any other gate you can buy or build. They weigh much less than ordinary all-wood gates and are far stronger than any steel, wire or gas-pipe gate made. They can't get bent and twisted out of shape by stock as steel gates do—the worst thing that can happen to a "CAN'T SAG" is a broken board — a new board and 5 minutes of your time replaces that and the Gate is as good as new.

Give you everything you can ask for in a farm gate—and at surprisingly low cost. They look neat—hang straight—swing freely and are strong and durable. America's finest farms are now almost universaly equipped with "CAN'T-SAGS." You see them everywhere you go. Come in and let us quote you prices.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Miss Margaret Rowe. R.N., and Mrs. John Rowe were joint hostesses on Saturday evening at a bridge and cup and saucer shower in honor of Miss Loretta MacDonald, R.N., of Williamstown, whose marriage to Mr. James Gormley, of Passaic, N.J., takes place the latter part of April. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and spring flowers.

The many friends in this district of Mason E. Hunter learned with much regret of his sudden demise on Friday morning, March 17, at the Royal Alexandra Hospital, Edmonton, Alta. He had not been enjoying the best of health for some time and contracted pneumonia and pleurisy following an attack of influenza.

Deceased was born at Dundela, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hunter.

THAT GHOST STORY

Last Thursday the Press received an unsigned communication telling of a ghost seen on Piety Hill. It is an unbreakable rule in this office to never print an unsigned communication. We receive many of them, but they all find their place in the waste basket. Sometimes we may miss a good piece of news by doing so, but more often do we save ourself from a lot of trouble and explaining. We are always pleased to receive items of news from subscribers, and if you sign your name, it will not be published unless with your consent.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBER IN THE UNITED STATES

Press subscribers in the United States who are in arrears for over one year, will be struck off our list after this issue unless a renewal is received. It costs us one cent for every copy of the Press sent to U. S. subscribers, and this week, one who had changed location, caused a card to be sent us that cost us 2 cents. That subscriber is in arrears. It seemed like rubbing it in, but it is partly our own fault because of our indulgence and good nature in continuing to send a paper to the U.S. after a subscription expires. After this week we discontinue the practice, and those in arrears will be notified by an authorized collecting agency that they will have to settle their arrears according to law.

SHOULD HELP THEMSELVES

Addressing the executive of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, which met recently in Ottawa, the Hon. H. H. Stevens recited some incidents from his own life story to emphasize his contention that men are not doing enough to help themselves out of their difficulties these days, but are depending too much upon government relief. The Huntington Gleaner thus reports an extract from Mr. Stevens' address:—

"40 years ago we worked on a farm near Peterborough and hauled wood all winter. He said that that winter he had so little money he could not buy an overcoat. Two years later he was found working on a prairie farm, and 35 years ago this winter he was in the Rocky Mountains in a prospecting party. That winter they had no money, but they had two oil cans, an plenty of tomato cans with which to improvise a stove. This improvised stove was put in a tent, and there they stayed throughout the winter, when the mercury registered 20 degrees or more below zero, most of the winter. In the spring they were all well, and had been properly nourished, because they hunted as they prospected. This winter Mr. Stevens met a number of his old associates at Fernie, B. C., who were asking for relief. He found that they were not wanting money but employment. They were apparently not endeavoring to help themselves, for the Minister suggested to them that they hunt for game instead of buying meat, and that they organize themselves in parties so that some might cut wood for those who hunted game. The result has been gratifying. The people now have plenty of meat and fuel, and what money they are earning or receiving in other channels is sufficient to give them other essentials.

Publication of obscene, seditious or blasphemous articles would be prohibited under legislation introduced in the Ontario Legislature by Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general. Stress is laid on obscene and immoral articles in certain magazines and papers in an explanatory note to the bill and prohibition of these is aimed at. The "seditious" reference in the bill is particularly inserted to cover communistic literature.

Services will be held in St. Peter's Church, South Mountain: Good Friday, 7.30 p.m.; Easter Sunday, Holy Communion, 8.30 a.m.

THE IDIOTS

A clergyman was annoyed by people talking and giggling during the service. He paused, looked at the disturbers, and said: "Some years since, as I was preaching a young man who sat before me was constantly laughing, talking and making uncouth grimaces. I paused and administered a severe rebuke. After the close of the service a gentleman said to me."

"Sir, you made a great mistake, that young man is an idiot."

"Since then I have always been afraid to reprove those who misbehave in chapel lest I should repeat that mistake and reprove another idiot."

During the rest of the services there was good order.

THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Quart were host and hostess at a dinner on Wednesday evening last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Solomon Shaver who celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Shaver were married at Morewood by the late Rev. William Brown. Mrs. Shaver was formerly Miss Sarah Fetterly, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Uriah Fetterly, of Morewood. Previous to coming to Winchester ten years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Shaver resided in Morewood for forty years after their marriage. Mrs. Shaver was an active member of the Methodist Church, and both are widely known and have a host of friends throughout the district.

Mr. Shaver takes an active interest in politics and has been, for many years, a member of the Dundas Conservative Association. He is an Oddfellow and a member of the Canadian Order of Forresters. In his earlier manhood, Mr. Shaver was a skilled painter and decorator and still spends considerable time at this art. He is now 77 years of age, while his wife has reached her 75th year.

Their three children are Mrs. Jay Quart, of Winchester; Mrs. James O McMillan, of Grantley, and Mr. Hubert Shaver, of Detroit, Mich.

Mr. Shaver has one brother, George, of Yale, Michigan, and two sisters, Mrs T. Pitts, Montevido, Minn., and Mrs. J. Carter, of Castlewood, South Dakota.

Only immediate friends of the family were present at the anniversary dinner but numerous messages of congratulations were received throughout the day.

At a recent mortgage sale of 200 acres of farm property in Bruce County, which was purchased for $15,000 thirteen years ago, there were only two bidders and the highest bid was $5,500. The mortgages on the farm, with accrued interest, brought claims against the property to $9,000, so the man purchased it has lost $6,000, and thirteen years of work.

It's always your innings. That's the big advantage Life holds out to you in the great game. You may be getting rotten balls from a trick pitcher on a slippery field. But the bat's in your hands and nobody can take it from you, and it's your pluck, your pep and your patience that make the runs. Nobody else's. The day's in your hands. It's always your innings.

You will find there is always plenty to discourage you if you will allow yourself to be disheartened. There is also plenty to fortify your heart if you believe that discouragement is a disgrace to one who calls himself a Christian. Faith in God will keep discouragement from getting the upper hand. Read over a few of the Bible promises to see if you can justify yourself in losing heart.

WINCHESTER MASONS MAKE A FRIENDLY VISIT TO CHESTERVILLE

Monday evening, April 10th was the date of the official visit to Chesterville Lodge of the District Deputy Grand Master of Eastern District, Rt. Wor. Bro. Clarence Cattanach of Williamstown, Ont. The Winchester brethern attended in strength, and there were also present representatives from the Lodges at Aultsville, Lancaster, Finch, Russell and Iroquois, a total of possibly one hundred including Chesterville.

The address of Rt. Wor. Bro. Cattanach was of very superior quality and thoroughly enjoyed by all, as also were the many brief but clever talks made by various brethern at the supper which followed the close of the work of the lodge room.

Chesterville Lodge has long been noted for the royal character of their hospitality but on this particular occasion they seemed to even excel themselves, for the table fairly groaned under the load of the many rich and delicious foods provided. In addition to the supper and speeches already referred to, the guests were treated to several vocal and instrumental solos which were a treat indeed, and the evening ended at a late hour with every one feeling that the Chesterville boys are one hundred per cent "the perfect hosts."

OUR CEMENT HIGHWAY

The compliment paid to Winchester by Dr. Christie in his address to the 100 Club, because of the cement highway, is not the only one that Winchester has received because of its enterprise in that direction. That the compliment is deserved is evident by a comparison of conditions in places where the approaches to a town are the old stone roads. This spring such roads are in a deplorable condition and in fact it is almost impossible to reach certain places except by horse drawn vehicles. The highway through Winchester is to-day clean and without a break.
