William I. Lavis.

A telegram was received by The Leader on Tuesday, asking for particulars of Wm. I. Lavis, who, the despatch said, had had his skull fractured, while going up some steps to his hotel on Tuesday. He was taken to an hospital in an unconscious condition, from which he never rallied, death ensuing at 3 o'clock yesterday (Wednesday),

The late William Ira Lavis was born in Matilda in 1854, being the son of the late John C. Lavis of Riverside. For many years he was the representative of Langlois & Co., of Montreal, in the egg business. Lately he had been travelling for Stone & Wellington, nurserymen, Toronto.

The deceased leaves a wife and daughter residing here, and two sons, William C., in Brownsburg, Que., and Fred E., Montreal. Besides his family he leaves a sister, Mrs. Swarth of Easton's Corners, Ont., and three brothers, John, of Ottawa, George, of Minneapolis, and Allen of Riverside.

The body will arrive here Friday, and the funeral will take place on Saturday at 2.30 p.m.—Morrisburg Leader.

Cornwall to Buy Grounds.

At a meeting of the executive of Cornwall lacrosse club on Wednesday evening it was decided to call a general meeting of the club within two weeks to decide upon the purchase of grounds. The club has now on hand $3,000 in cash and they hope to accumulate sufficient money to buy grounds and build a modern grand stand and club house.

Towards this end it was decided to hold a grand tombolo, lasting a week, during the month of November. Organization for this purpose is well under way and the executive hope to make the C. L. C. tombola the best and most successful ever held in Eastern Ontario.

Telegram:—Kemptville now possesses an automobile. Dr. Hanna is the fortunate owner. For some time the doctor has had a notion that he would like to travel around in an auto, so on Tuesday he visited the Capital, and on Wednesday returned with a handsome car, which he purchased from Wilson and Sons of Ottawa. It is a 1907 "Buick" model with accommodation for five passengers, weighs 1600 pounds is two cylinder and 22 horse power. This machine was built in Detroit but the McLaughlin Company of Oshawa are now Canadian manufacturers of the same model.

Merkley—Alford.

A very pretty but quiet wedding, only the nearest relatives being present, occurred at the residence of Mr. John Alford, just south of the village, on Thursday evening last, when his eldest daughter, Mary Ethel, was united in holy matrimony to Howard Merkley, eldest son of Mr. Alvin Merkley of Williamsburg. The Rev. A. E. Runnells, B.D., Methodist minister of Chesterville, tied the knot.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful and costly presents.

The RECORD extends congratulations.

I wish to thank the people of Chesterville and vicinity for their very liberal patronage during the past twenty years, and hope for a continuance of the same in my new business venture.

Huxtable swam to shore and McElroy clung to the canoe and was rescued after going down the river quite a distance.

A suit of much interest to cheese factory patrons was tried at the session of the Perth Division Court last week with a jury. It was an action brought by R. G. Bourns against the Upper Scotch Line Cheese Factory. The point in dispute was that plaintiff had drawn his own milk in 1902, 1903 and 1904, the same as his brother did before him, and the directors of the factory refused to pay him for drawing the milk. The directors intended to revoke the privilege of paying patrons for drawing their own milk, but did not do so in accordance with their own by-laws. Judgment was given for Mr. Bourns for $98 and costs.

The Late Kenneth Weagant.

The bright young life came to a close on Tuesday, May 5th. by the death of Kenneth Weageant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas W. Weagant, Hosaic. For months the deceased had been in ill health resulting from an attack of pleurisy and last January he went to the Canadian West, hoping that the climate might be helpful In February his physicians advised him to go to Sarnac Lake which he did to no avail. Since his return home his condition gradually grew worse until his peaceful passing away on Tuesday. The funeral was held on Thursday of last week at Holy Trinity church and cemetery, Riverside. Deepest sympathy is tendered to the sorrowing family—Herald.

Cheese Factory Burned.

The River Raisin cheese factory at Martintown, Glengarry, was totally destroyed by fire one night last week. The blaze was first noticed about ten o'clock and as there had been no fire in the building for eight hours, the blaze is believed to be of incendiary origion. The building, with the cheese and butter apparatus was owned by Samuel Murray, and was valued at $3,000. Insured in the Metropolitan Insurance Company for $1,500. There were about 40 boxes of cheese in the factory. These were uninsured. Capt. A. J. McDonald, the local agent of the insurance company has reported the fire as incendiary, and a detective will probably be sent to investigate as this is the third cheese factory fire in Martintown within a couple of years.

The Late Jas. Dickey.

After a somewhat prolonged illness, death claimed at an early hour Monday morning, a most highly respected resident of Williamsburg in the person of Mr. James Dickey.

The deceased gentleman was born in 1835 in the township of Yonge. His father was a native of Irelaud, emigrating to this country in pioneer days; his mother was Jane Purvis, a native of the township of Yonge.

The subject of this sketch was a well known and respected citizen. For a number of years he took an active interest in municipal matters; was reeve of Williamsburg and for several years a member of the Counties' Council being warden one year. The immediate relatives who survive are his widow, Mrs. Dickey, three sons, Dr. John of Newington, George of Montreal, William at home; one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Smyth of Rowena; also two brothers and one sister, to each of whom the sympathy of the community is extended.

The funeral was conducted at the Presbyterian Church, Williamsburg at 1.30 o'clock yesterday (Wednesday) Rev. Mr. Lundy officiating. The remains were interred in the village cemetery.—Herald.

Crews Tranferred.

A C.P.R. change of great importance to Smith's Falls went into effect one day last week when the crews of the northern division, or that portion of the line between Chalk River and Carleton Place were transferred from Carleton Place to Smith's Falls.

This means that hereafter Smith's Falls is to be the terminal point, and the men on that division who formerly resided at the "junction" town will of necessity have to make their headquarters there. Already fifteen crews have transferred, and as this represents eight men, the greater part of whom are married and have families, it will mean a very valuable addition to the population of Smith's Falls. As yet there are not enough available houses there to accommodate the increase, and the men will not be able to move their families until autumn. A number of good dwellings however, will be rushed up this summer. This move was decided by the C.P.R. on the ground of economy. With Carleton Place and Smith's Falls both divisional points, extra crews were required to transfer freight between these two places though the distance is only twenty miles. Now the run will be a direct one from Smith's Falls to Chalk River, which is only about one hundred and thirty miles distant.

A SHADOWED PATH;

Or, The Curse Of The Family

CHAPTER XIII.

Judith was very silent all the way to Great Crowland Street, whither she had desired the coachman to proceed. He—great aristocrat—had once upon a time professed to know the way there; but his mistress's instructions speedily recalled its whereabouts to his recollection, and accordingly he drove on without stoppage or inquiry, whilst Mrs. Mazingford, leaning back in her handsome equipage, gave herself up to meditation. Lillian thought her somewhat moodily absorbed in this occupation; but Judith was really forming plans for her sister's convenience and comfort. She knew the operations could not be performed in Mayfair; for even had Mr. Mazingford been neutral on the subject, they were not to remain the summer in town, and then what could Lillian do? Miss Ridsdale's lodgings were unsuitable in all respects; clearly nothing remained for it but to take a furnished house, or a portion of one, out westwards, towards Brompton. Such a place would give Lillian a residence at once healthful, pleasant, and accessible; convenient for Mr. Chamberton, Miss Ridsdale, and Judith herself—that was the proper step to take immediately; so Judith determined, ere the carriage turned into Great Crowland Street, clattering over the pavement just as another had done one cold December's evening a long time ago.

From No. 72, Mr. Henry Bultin calmly surveyed this new arrival; he had left off marvelling concerning Miss Ridsdale or her visitors now, for he knew her history and their histories off by heart, and he had ceased to feel more than a neighborly interest in the lonely woman who, after nearly nineteen years' absence, had returned once again to her old quarters, to take her unsocial breakfast and eat her solitary dinner all alone; who still sat by the window in the twilight, and occasionally received visits from people who were "great," in Great Crowland Street. Twenty winters had metamorphosed Mr. Bultin into a plump individual of fifty, who had brought his dreams of a grand marriage to a practical and unpoetical, though exceedingly excellent close, fifteen years previously, by wedding Mrs. Hilton's daughter, the disconsolate widow of the greengrocer opposite, who, having died, and left her his name, his perishable stock-in-trade, and the money they had mutually made and saved—she speedily took up—as the step matrimonial is called in certain circles, with Mr. Bultin, bestowing on him her hand, her guineas, her goodwill, and her common sense.

The first Mr. Bultin honored her by putting a new ring on, the second he accepted with less scruple, in fact, without any; the third he disposed of to advantage; the fourth he made use of for their joint benefit; and the result thereof was, that whilst Hilton baker nominally ruled the shop long after that worthy woman's actual demise, Bultin attorney had his name painted on the private entrance, monopolized the first-floor, and fleeced as many clients there as good fortune or bad fortune sent his way.

Thus it came to pass that he could look at Miss Ridsdale with feelings merely of a friendly character, whilst he regarded her carriage friends with only a moderate portion of interest.

Professionally he had learnt their histories, as attorneys ultimately do learn everybody's, and accordingly when an acquaintance from the country who chanced to be with him on the day in question, inquired whose equipage that might be, he was able to answer,—

"Oh, Mr. Mazingford's."

"What! the new Welsh member, who voted on the right side last night in the House, and made a decidedly sensible speech into the bargain?"

"The same," replied Mr. Bultin, "and that handsome woman just now alighting is his wife. People say they don't live happily. Isn't she beautiful, though?"

Yes, she was, there could be no two opinions on that point, whatever there might be as to the merits of her husband's speech. Miss Ridsdale thought she grew more lovely day by day, and certainly Judith did look her very best as she entered her aunt's sitting-room, with a deep rich color on her cheek, and that strange brightness in her eyes. She came, she said, to tell Miss Ridsdale the oculist's opinion, and to consult what was best to do, and so at last it was agreed that the elder lady should go house-hunting, and that Mr. Chamberton's services were to be called into requisition as soon as possible.

"But where, dear Judith, is the money to come from to meet all these expenses?" inquired Miss Ridsdale.

"Oh, let me manage that," was the reply. "I can get it."

"You are positive," persisted the other. And Mrs. Mazingford answered, "Certain."

Judith had reached the head of the staircase, on her way back to Lillian, whom she had left in the carriage during her brief interview, when a sudden thought seemed to strike her, and she turned back.

"Aunt," she said, "could you keep Lily here for a few days, and I will get a suitable house for you? I wish you would."

Yes, Miss Ridsdale was willing to do anything Mrs. Mazingford asked her, with or without an expressed reason; and accordingly Lillian, somewhat to her own surprise, was assisted out of the carriage and up the stairs, and deposited on the sofa in her aunt's sitting-room, that very sofa whereon another aunt had once wearily flung herself.

Very hurriedly Judith took leave of both, and departed, promising to come back again very soon.

"Aunt," said Lillian, "what do you think is the matter with Judith?"

"Something, for want of a better name, we call a broken heart, Lillian," was the reply; "at least so it seems to me."

"Do you know whether Mr. Mazingford is unkind to her?"

"You ought to be better informed on that point than I," answered Miss Ridsdale.

"No," said Lillian. "She never tells me anything now—perhaps she may when I see her again; but Mr. Mazingford has been very generous to me."

"Indeed!" exclaimed Miss Ridsdale, with sudden interest; "are you quite sure of that?"

"Yes; for Judith told me he and she had settled all about the oculist. So you see he must have consented to pay the expenses."

"Perhaps," murmured Miss Ridsdale, as she turned to the window and looked vacantly, first up and then down the dreary street, to which Judith's handsome carriage had only given a momentary animation.

"God help the girl," she thought again for the hundredth time; "she is steering a dangerous course."

And for full five minutes the lady stood silently communing with her own spirit, much troubled concerning Judith's face, and Judith's position, and Judith's modes of procedure—whilst Mrs. Mazingford was rolling over the London streets to that house which she called home.

As the coachman, however, was driving his unexceptionable bays in his own unexceptionable and peculiarly tip-top manner, past one of the Clubs, he received a sign from a gentleman standing on the steps, which induced him, in consideration of the signer being his master, to pull up short, greatly to Judith's disgust.

Mr. Mazingford was about the last person she desired, at that moment, to meet; Mr. Mazingford's club friends were always the last individuals to whom she desired to be exhibited—but, as no escape was possible, she resigned herself to be stared at from head to foot by a fast young nobleman, who afterwards condescended to remark to his intimates, that Mazingford's wife was a deucedly fine woman, and that if she were single, she was just the sort he would choose to drive in double harness with. Mr. Mazingford—who boasted, with his usual thoughtful refinement, that he had the handsomest carriage, the handsomest horses, and the handsomest wife of any commoner in London—bade good-bye to his aristocratic friends, and took his place beside his wife, informing her at the same time that, as he wanted to see Messrs. Eives and Maycombe, in Antram Street, he thought he might as well drive round there with Judith, and then they could both go home together.

"Perrins told me you had gone out with Lillian?" he remarked, interrogatively, when the "nobs" were left fairly behind.

"He was quite correct," replied Judith.

"And where have you left her?" was the next question.

"With Miss Ridsdale," answered Judith, who never called her relative, aunt, to Mr. Mazingford.

The member uttered an exclamation, expressive of sincere satisfaction on receipt of this intelligence.

"I wish she would stay there!" he exclaimed.

"Your desire is likely to be gratified for a short period," retorted Judith. "Lillian remains for a few months with Miss Ridsdale, at my request."

Mr. Mazingford turned and stared at his wife, to discover, if possible, from what new quarter the wind was blowing, for he had not forgotten the morning's conversation, and accordingly marvelled exceedingly; but Judith returned his gaze with one of such perfect indifference, that he could make nothing out of it, and so was compelled, bon gre mal gre, to rest satisfied, as he did not choose to ask for an explanation of Judith's change of tactics.

"Here is Antram Street," said his wife, after a moment's pause, as they turned down a dingy thoroughfare, that but for the name of the thing, might as well, or better, have been called a lane. "Here is Antram Street. Shall I wait for you, or go home, and send the carriage back?"

"Wait for me, of course!" was the polite reply—uttered in a tone which implied it was her business to wait his pleasure—as the carriage stopped, with a tremendous clatter, before the door of Messrs. Eives and Maycombe's office.

Judith's husband descended with a braggart air from his equipage, and went into his lawyers', whilst Judith remained in the carriage, listlessly looking away along the dreary vista of that London street, and thinking about anything, Heaven knew, but the scene she was gazing at.

Until her eye chanced to fall, by mere accident, on a figure cowering in a neighboring doorway; a boy—barefooted, clad in a ragged shirt, and, if possible, still more ragged pair of trousers.

He never looked up to beg. He seemed as if he had sat himself down there with the intention of never stirring from that door-step again. He did not cry, nor even moan. Judith did not know what to make of him; was he hurt?

"Thomas," she finally said, turning to the footman, "ask that boy what is the matter with him."

Reluctantly obedient to the order, the fellow got down, and stooping to inspect the boy, as he might had he been a bundle of rags, instead of an imperfectly clothed mass of flesh and blood, he commenced operations with the encouraging sentence:

"Hallo, you sir!"

The lad looked up, and as he did so, Judith, gazing from her carriage, caught a glimpse of his face; oh! such an one, so worn, so pale, so thin, so marked and pinched with poverty.

"What are you sitting there for?" continued Thomas. "What ails you?"

"It does not signify," said a low voice, and the tired head dropped again, and Thomas returned to his mistress.

"Well," she asked, "what is it?"

"He says it don't signify, ma'am," returned Thomas.

"Open the door," she said, "I must see what it really is;" and the next moment she was on the pavement close beside the boy. She did not approach him, however, as her servant had done—with easy insolence and well-fed contempt, but without a thought of difference of rank, or superiority of station, did she, that proud, stricken woman, lay her hand pityingly on the young head of the beggar boy, and say in a voice soft as charity's own loving tone:—

"What is the matter, my child? Why do you sit there so hopelessly? I want very much to know," she added, seeing a pair of large black eyes scanning her features curiously, "why you look so miserable?"

The white lips trembled for an instant with a more powerful emotion than any which could have been caused by mere bodily suffering, and then the words, "I am so hungry," were dropped out rather than spoken.

There was a baker's shop within a few yards of the horses' heads, and thence, at a signal from Mrs. Mazingford, the footman procured a supply of biscuits, which the lady gave into the boy's hands. Instinctively his fingers clutched at the precious morsels, and the sunken eyes glanced ravenously upon them; but the next instant a feeling of a different kind swelling up in the youth's breast, caused him to drop the biscuit he was carrying to his lips, and exclaim, not in a tone of churlish pride, but in one of earnest protest against such a supposition—

"I am not a beggar, ma'am."

"I know you are not," she returned, "and neither am I; yet still we both require to eat, finish what you have there, and then go and buy more;" and she laid a piece of glittering money in the hand which never closed upon it.

"Oh! ma'am," he cried, "don't give me money; let me work for you and earn it but don't—don't give me money. I am not a beggar—but a gentleman."

A gentleman of fifteen summers, with bare feet and ragged shirt and trousers!—there would have been a something ludicrous in the scene, had it not been part of a real tragedy; one which is enacted every day in actual life.

Pride and poverty; starvation and independence. Judith looked down with swimming eyes on the little figure which stated itself to be a gentleman, and yet could refuse, in its blackest hour of need, money it had not worked for.

"Work for me, my boy, in your sense of the word, you cannot; but still keep the trifle without a shadow of honest scruple disturbing you. For the future, work of a different kind you shall have by some means. Remember, however, my last words—in whatsoever strait or temptation you may hereafter find yourself, always maintain your independence; it may bring you all good; it will preserve you from all evil;" and so saying, she passed through the knot of idlers to her carriage, where, beckoning a policeman to follow, she said—

His Last Ship

Captain Norris lounged idly on the Valparaiso Quays. He waited in hope that some acquaintance would heave in sight—some captain or first or second officer who would be good for a drink—or after dark even, he would accept the hospitality of a man before the mast, or a steward. His thirst had overpowered his sense of the dignity of a man who had commanded numberless vessels on the high seas. And now times were particularly hard.

After the collision of the Amoor with the Nancy Bell, which caused a paralyzing amount of perjury at the Board of Trade inquiry, the Captain's certificate had been suspended for a year. At the end of that time a wily shipowner, knowing that Captain Norris was a fine sailor and could be got cheaply, had given him another chance. But the shipowner's agent in Valparaiso, on finding that the Captain had never been sober during the voyage out, had cabled to Liverpool and had him discharged.

So now Captain Norris was without a ship, or the prospect of a ship, without friends, without money, stranded on Valparaiso Quay.

Night was falling, and no one came whom the Captain knew. He had sold all his possessions save the clothes he stood in. The fiendish thirst gripped him by the throat. He was even now wondering if he proffered to ship as able seaman whether some crimp would advance him enough money for one big drink.

Suddenly a tall man strolled past and glanced casually at him.

"Captain Norris, I declare, ain't it?" said the stranger.

"Yes, but I can't put a name to you," grunted the Captain.

"That's no account—come and split a drink, Captain."

Captain Norris would have gone anywhere with anybody for a drink at that moment, so he eagerly accepted the invitation.

The stranger led him, not to a bar, but to an office at a short distance from the quay. A glance at the doorplate informed the Captain that it was the office of Stevens & Tearn, Shipowners.

"Don't be backward, Captain," said the stranger as the Captain paused at the door, "there's plenty of liquor here."

Directly they were in the office the stranger produced a bottle of whiskey and glasses from a cupboard, and said: "Now, Captain, help yourself."

Norris swallowed a glass of whiskey in a gulp, and then held out his glass to be refilled. "I wanted that drink badly," he said simply.

"Much as you like, Captain—jest get yourself settled, and then we'll talk business."

The second glass made Captain Norris feel himself again.

He looked at the stranger and said: "You'll be Mr. Stevens, I suppose?"

The tall man nodded.

"Well, what do you want with me?"

"Look hyar, Captain, I want to talk straight to you. You're right up against it. Lost your ship, lost your reputation. Do you think there's a shipowner on the West Coast who'd trust you with a vessel?"

"Give me some whiskey and tell me something fresh," grunted the Captain.

"Well, you're right up against it—you can't get a berth—you're dying for the drink, and you can't get that. For all I know you've folk dependent on you somewhere."

The Captain wriggled as he listened to this sentence. He thought of his wife and three children at Poplar, and wondered what she thought when she heard from the owners that he had been discharged and that she could no longer draw against his pay.

"Now, I can give you a chance—the command of a ship, and as much drink as you like shipped aboard, for the drunker you are the better it will suit me."

"What's the game?" thundered Norris, slamming his fist down on the table.

"There's a ship if ours loading at the jetty. Could you take her to Maranaibo?"

"There ain't a ship sailing that I couldn't take anywhere," roared the Captain.

"That's what I thought," said Mr. Stevens; "have some more whiskey, Captain?"

"As much as you like—it makes me feel a man again."

"Well, this particular vessel isn't what you might call a profitable speculation, Captain. She's old and cranky, and won't last many voyages more. Already the underwriters are sniffing at her. So I thought that you, being a first-class seaman with a liking for drink, might, while you were on the bust, pile the ship up on Maranaibo Bar."

"Heavens!" cried the Captain; "see what drink brings a man to. Last night I cadged drinks from a steward, and to-day a derned Yankee asks me to lose my first ship."

The shipowner rose quickly from his seat.

"Hyar, Captain, if you can get a vessel from any other firm, go and get it; but take care how you talk about this firm. My partner's a Spaniard, and touchy—he might see you got a bowie in your back. Though, after all, what you say won't be of much account. Who'd take any notice of the ravings of a drunken, discharged coptain?"

Captain Norris glared at Stevens.

"I didn't say I wouldn't do your dirty work. Only it ain't pleasant for a man to know how low he's got. But mind you, if I agree to sell myself I want my price. What's it mean to me if I pile this vessel up—the loss of my certificate. Never will I command a ship again. What's it mean to you The full value of a rotten ship and all you can get from a faked cargo. I know you wreckers' dodges. It'll be ten or twenty thousand pounds in your pockets. Now, it's money down I want. I fancy myself coming to you when the job's done for my pay and getting kicked out of this office as a derned blackmailer. Give me five hundred pounds down, and I'll scuttle her or pile her up, or do what you wish with your rotten ship.'

"It's a lot of money," said the shipowner, shaking his head.

"Five years ago I'd have laid any man out who offered me fifty thousand pounds to sink any ship I commanded.'

"We might arrange for you to have half the dollars in advance and half when the job's done."

"That's like offering me half my price. No, if I risk my certificate and my life and the lives of twenty better men than me it'll be for money down—cash, no credit."

"Well, we won't quorrel about the amount. Now, Captain, let me tell you what we want you to do. You must keep fairly sober till the vessel sails. Give us the chance of saying you've sort of reformed. When she's out of harbor the more you drink the better. There'll be a super-cargo aboard."

"Never had I a super-cargo on ship of mine yet," groaned the Captain.

The shipowner ignored the interruption. "He will protest against your drinking habits.'

"I'll clap him in irons if he does."

"Then we think it would be as well not to scuttle the ship. Sailormen talk when a vessel springs a sudden leak at sea, and the underwriters might turn rusty. So you'll be drunk when running into Maranaibo Harbor——"

"You needn't explain to me. Don't I know that the channel at the Bar is always shifting? Don't I know that any ship that touches there goes to pieces inside of half an hour, and that the outdrift from the harbor keeps wreckage from washing up? Aye, Maranaibo Bar was made to suit shipowning sharks.'

"Well, about the money, Captain?"

"I want paying what's due to me in English sovereigns or American dollars—none of your bills or cheques which won't be met."

"Well, where are you staying now?"

"Last night I slept on some cases on the quay."

"That won't do now you're in my employ. See, Captain, I'll advance you a couple of hundred dollars to-night. Smart yourself up a bit. Stay at a decent hotel. We want you to look like the sort of man we could employ. So don't drink till you are out of the harbor. Now, shake hands on our bargain."

Captain Norris surveyed the proffered hand contemptuously, and then, making an effort, extended his hand and gripped it. Then the shipowner counted out two hundred dollars and they left the office together.

During the next few days the Captain's acquaintances were astonished to see him in a comparatively prosperous state. They were even more suprised to find that he declined all invitations to have a drink. It was generally agreed that if Captain Norris had thrown up the rum for good and all he was pretty sure to get a ship soon. They did not know that the Captain secretly smuggled whiskey into the bedroom at his hotel, and made up for his sober days by drinking all the night.

The money agreed upon was paid down the next evening. "Now, Captain," said the shipowner, "don't make a fool of yourself by swanking those dollars about. People might wonder how you got them."

The Captain glared at his employer.

"What do you think I am going to do with this money? Every penny of it's going to be paid into a British bank to be sent to a little woman at Poplar. If it weren't for that little woman you'd have to look a sight further for a man to pile up your rotten tub.'

After a few days Mr. Stevens let it slip that as Captain Norris had reformed he had offered him the command of the Oregon. One or two wily persons who knew Stevens' way of doing business smiled at the news. But most people agreed that, as Norris had turned over a new leaf Stevens & Teran were lucky to get him—especially as having a black mark against him he would come cheap.

At last the Oregon was ready for sea, and the Captain heaved a sigh of relief. Now he could give up the miserable abstinence which had made his days a burden. He could let his chief officer look after the ship, whilst he himself could spend his time in an unceasing fuddle.

All went well for the first few weeks of the voyage. The Captain kept his cabin, and rarely appeared on deck. The weather was so favorable that even a leaky old tub like the Oregon gave no trouble. It was not till the vessel was within a day's sail of Maranaibo that anything untoward happened. Then a heavy south-westerly gale sprang up. When the chief officer consulted the Captain the only answer he got was, "Run before it.'

So the Oregon sped on her course, and early the next morning the look-out sighted Maranaibo lights.

The gale had become a hurricane, and the chief officer lost his nerve. He went down to the cabin and demanded the Captain's presence on deck. With some difficulty Norris was made to understand the situation. He staggered on deck and the air sobered him a little He saw the Maranaibo Bar in the distance—one mass of foaming breakers.

The supercargo stepped up to the Captain and whispered, "Not to-day, or every soul will be lost."

Instantly the Captain swung round, and with one blow of his fist struck the unfortunate supercargo to the deck.

"Set three men at the wheel," cried the Captain, "a man like me ain't afraid of Maranaibo Bar."

The crew hesitated, but the Captain pulled out a revolver and ordered them to their posts. The chief officer murmured an expostulation, and was ordered below at the revolver's point. Then whilst great seas smote the vessel and she trembled through every rotten timber, her head was set for the line of breakers which showed Maranaibo Bar.

The crew were frantic with terror; some cast off their oilskins and sea-boots so that they might stand a chance when the smash came. But much as they dreaded the angry seas they dreaded the angry Captain more. There he stood, clinging to the rail with one hand, holding his revolver with the other—now roaring his orders so that they could be heard even above the storm, now singing in sheer exultation at the fight with the tempest before him.

The vessel came nearer and nearer to the mass of foam. The Captain covered the men at the wheel with his revolver. If one of them had shrunk from his post he would have shot him.

A blind mass of foam and spume surged over the vessel's deck, the ship was turned and tossed about by the waves as if she were a plaything; out of the flurry on the port side a great mass of rock rose not five yards from the ship's quarter. Then came a final smother, the vessel turned nearly on her beam-ends, and then all at once it was in the smooth waters of Maranaibo Bay, and sailormen on the quays and on vessels in harbor were cheering the plucky Captain who had faced the deadly Bar.

As the Oregon took up her moorings in the harbor two boats sped out from the quay. In one the harbor-master and Lloyd's agent came to congratulate the Captain on his feat of pluck. Captain Norris was standing on the bridge, whiskey bottle in hand. He accepted their congratulations as if they were no more than his due. When they had left him he noticed a small, dark Spaniard whispering eagerly to the supercargo.

The next moment the Spaniard came up to the Captain. "I am Senor Teran, part owner of this ship. What does this mean? We paid you five hundred pounds to wreck the ship, and here she is safe in harbor."

Captain Norris struck his forehead with his hand. "That's the worst of whiskey—makes a man forget things so. I knew there was something all the time I had to do, but I couldn't call it to mind. Now, I'm a man of my word. I'd give you your money back if I hadn't sent every penny of it to the old girl at Poplar. But as I can't do that, I'll tell you what I will do. I'll take your derned ship out and pile her up for you—properly this time. I can't treat you fairer than that, can I?"

The Spaniard gave him an ominious glance, but left him without saying a word.

That night Captain Norris spent ashore in Maranaibo drinking. It was past midnight when he staggered down to the quay to go aboard his ship. He was singing loudly as he swayed his way down, and never heard the stealthy footsteps behind him. Then came a sudden knife thrust in the dark, and a slight splash in the harbor.

The next morning the chief officer of the Oregon, leaning idly over the ship's side, saw a body floating in the water. The receding tide brought it alongside. He started with horror when he saw the face.

It was Captain Norris's return to his last ship.—Pearson's Weekly.

MONEY WAS IN THE BED

THE HOUSEWIFE HUNG MATTRESS OUT OF THE WINDOW.

The Savings of Years Dropped Into the Hands of a Dishonest Neighbor.

Although the ordinary savings bank has its drawbacks, it is also true that it has its advantages over some hiding places favored by frugal wives. This truth has been rather rudely brought home to Mme. Marguerite Schenk, who lives in a modest apartment in the Rue Leibnitz, Paris, France.

Like the majority of French women, Mme. Schenk is the economist of her household. Her husband is all very well when it comes to earning the money, but it was his wife who held the purse strings and out of his small salary had managed to accumulate a surprisingly large bag of savings. Not having an overgreat belief in the honesty of others, and having a very satisfactory faith in her own care and watchfulness, she kept her savings during all the years of her married life in a constantly growing pouch hidden away

IN THE FOLD OF A MATTRESS.

Of days she could keep her eyes almost always upon it and at night her slumbers were more peaceful, knowing, as she did, that her fortune reposed safely beneath her.

A couple of weeks ago Mme. Schenk had an attack of spring-cleaning fever. Every husband knows what that means. Mme. Schenk had it in its most violent form. Everything in the little apartment was literally pulled up by the roots and submitted to no end of dusting, beating, wiping and washing. Among the articles thus treated was the mattress in which lay the family hoard, amounting to $12,000 in Russian bonds and $750 in French bank notes. Now, Mme. Schenk had no court below in which to beat it, so forgetting for the moment the bonds and the bank notes, she hung the mattress out of her window and belabored it with all the vigor and enthusiasm which the spring-cleaning fever always develops in a healthy woman.

Next door to the Schenks lived a stonecutter, August Hommet by name, and his pretty young wife. Now, it so happened that while Mme. Schenk was walloping her mattress, Hommet was standing directly beneath, day-dreaming of the time when he would be rich and live in fashionable apartments. Suddenly there dropped down in front of him, seemingly from the heavens, a fat bag. When he stooped and picked it up, opened it and gazed upon its contents, he was sure that it CAME FROM HEAVEN.

For his eyes fell upon French bank notes to the value of $750 and a pile of Russian bonds. The latter were much the richer prize, being worth $12,000, but to Hommet, who knew nothing of foreign investments, they were merely paper covered with printed hieroglyphics. Of the value of the bank notes, however, he was fully aware, and wasted no time tracing their source to any pleace nearer terra firma. He hurriedly returned with his find to his own apartments and told his wife of the miraculous gift he had received. They immediately packed up their few belongings and moved to better equarters in the Rue Championnet.

In the next few days Hommet gave evidence that poverty had robbed the world of a prince of spenders. He spent the $750 in bank notes with a hand so lavish that it would have made Monte Cristo himself turn green with envy. A stock of fine wines was ordered and the stonecutter and his wife did not give it an opportunity of accumulating the cobwebs of old age in the cellar, but drank it all as soon as it arrived. Furniture, new clothes and jewelry speedily followed, and, as a final effort, the couple invited all their relatives who lived near enough to a grand feast.

Meanwhile, in the Rue Leibnitz consternation had had its reign and remorse and regret had followed. After completing her cleaning, Mme. Schenk had bethought herself of her bonds and her bank notes. With the pale face of fear and the cold perspiration of apprehension, the good wife repaired in a hurry to the mattress, which now reposed once more on the bed. Search as she might in its folds, she could not find

THE PRECIOUS BAG.

A trip to the street below was equally fruitless. So she returned to her rooms in despair to await the homecoming of her husband. When that worthy arrived he had a whole lot to say that is not printable, and then decided to call in a lawyer. Accordingly, M. Hamard, a well-known Parisian attorney, was sent for and the situation explained to him.

Among the other undoubted talents, M Hamard seems to possess a keen scent for a trail that would make him a serious rival of Sherlock Holmes. At any rate, after a few preliminary inquiries in the neighborhood, he made straight for the swagger new apartments of the departed stonecutter and his charming wife. With an eye for the dramatic, he timed his arrival at the apartment in the Rue Championnet well, for he reached there just when the feast to the relatives was at its height. With the delicacy and politeness which makes arrest one of the pleasures of French life, he interrupted the gayeties and took Hommet and his weeping wife off to the nearest police station. There they both confessed and the former handed over to his captor a 50-centime (ten-cent) piece, the surviving portion of the $750. Not considering them of any value, Hommet and his guests had amused themselves by lighting their cigarettes with the Russian bonds.

Hommet has gone to be a guest of the French Government for a considerable term of years, while his wife, whose youth and comeliness appealed to the susceptible heart of the French judge, has been set at liberty. Mme. Schenk has the consolation of knowing that, being prudent enough to keep the numbers of her Russian bonds, she will be able to procure duplicates in five years. Thus it is that her spring cleaning cost her only $750.

GET AND KEEP MILK PURE

BY OBSERVING THE FOLLOWING RECOMMENDATIONS.

Ontario Board of Health Sends Important Rules to Local Boards.

Recommendations drawn up by the Ontario Board of Health with a view to securing pure milk have been sent to the local Boards of Health by Dr. Chas A Hodgetts.

All milk containing less than thirteen per cent. of total solids, of which three and three-quarters per cent. must be chemically dry butter fat, should be deemed below the standard required when the same is intended for human consumption.

KEEP BUILDINGS CLEAN.

All buildings for stabling cows should be so located that they will have good drainage; the floors should be water tight and of some non-absorbing material, and properly graded and drained.

No building used for dairy purposes should be within 100 yards of any marshy or stagnant water, and no chicken coop, hog pen, privy or water closet should be within 100 feet of the building used for keeping or handling milk.

The surroundings of all buildings must be kept clean and in good order.

The stables where cows are kept should be used for no other purpose.

COWS MUST BE WELL.

Each cow should be allowed at least 500 cubic feet of air space.

The herd from which the milk is sold shall not include any sick cows, and especially none showing signs of tuberculosis or contagious abortion, or one that is within thirty days of calving, or ten days after calving.

The cows should be kept clean and for this purpose should be groomed daily.

BE CAREFUL OF FEED .

No mouldy hay, decomposed vegetables, wet brewer's grains or any other materials that are unsound or will affect the taste or character of the milk shall be fed the cows.

Every dairy should be supplied with pure water, the source of which shall not be contaminated by any barnyard, privy, or other possible source of contamination.

Cows should not be allowed to drink from stagnant pools, and shall have free access at all times to a pure water supply.

EMPLOYES ALSO.

Employes should be clean in their habits, and free from contagious diseases.

No person connected with the dairy shall enter a house where smallpox, typhoid fever, diphtheria, scarlet fever, measles or other contagion exists, or is known to have existed, until it has been disinfected.

Before commencing milking, the milker's hands should be thoroughly washed and dried.

COOLING THE MILK.

The milk house should be separately partitioned from any part of the dairy buildings.

Immediately after each cow is milked, the milk should be taken to the milk house, promptly strained through a fine wire gauze and cheese cloth, and cooled to the temperature of 55 degrees Fahrenheit within two hours after being drawn.

Ice should be used in cooling.

Cooling tanks should be tighly constructed, of non-absorbent material, and frequently cleaned.

NO PRESERVATIVES.

No preservatives or other substance should be added to milk for any purpose, and no part of the milk should be removed. The delivery of milk of such character should be sufficient cause for the exclusion of the same from the municipality.

No milk vessel should be used that is rusty or otherwise unfit.

All milk containers, vessels or utensils being used in the delivery of milk should be so covered as to protect them from the rain, sun, dust or mud.

No milk vessel or utensil used in the delivery of milk should be used for any other purpose, and should not be used the second time without having been thoroughly washed and sterilized.

DON'T DRINK FROM BOTTLE.

No person should drink from any vessel or utensil, or the cover of any vessel or utensil, used in the delivery of milk.

All drivers or wagons or other persons engaged in the sale or delivery of milk should be free from contagious disease.

The collection of empty bottles or any vessel used in the delivery of milk, or milk tickets, from any house where a contagious disease is known to exist shall be made only after the house has been fumigated and such bottles sterilized.

WHAT WAS WRONG.

Wife—"Why, George, dear, what is the trouble?"

Husband—"Oh, there was something I was going to worry about and for the life of me I can't think what it is."

MUCH JOY.

"I was awfully worried about Johnny when he had that last sick spell," said Mrs. Lapsling, "and when the doctor told me he was going to get well I went fairly deleterious with joy."

The fact that some men are self-made is stamped on the wrapper.

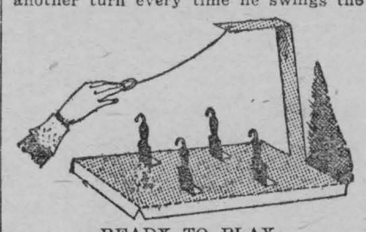

Freddy—"Hey, does your mother ever whip you?" Jimmy—"Worse'n that. She washes my face!"

A conceited coxcomb, staying at a small country inn, shouted to an Irish laborer standing near: "Here, you bogtrotter, come and tell me the greatest lie you can, and I'll treat you to a glass of whiskey." "Shure," cried Pat, "an ye honor's a gintleman!'

Ring Game

WITH very little trouble you may construct this game from strong cardboard. Upon the top of the four cardboard posts should be fastened hooks, each being of such a height that when the ring is permitted to swing forward upon the length of its cord, it may be possible to encircle the hook with the ring.

The players swing the ring in turn. The object of the game is to encircle the four posts, which, by the way, should be numbered 1, 2, 3, 4. First, No. 1 post must be encircled, then Nos. 2, 3 and 4, in order. The player gains another turn every time he swings the ring over a post; but if by chance the ring should encircle the wrong post, he must begin over again with No. 1 post. He who first places the ring over the four posts in proper order wins the game.

TO AVERT SMALLPOX.

Japanese Red Festival to Keep Away Epidemic.

There is an epidemic of smallpox in some sections of Tokio, and an ancient smallpox festival is being very generally revived by those who fear the disease. It is thus described by the Japan Times: "Those infected with or apprehensive of smallpox make a sort of table, four feet by two feet, which, covering it with red cloth, they deposit in the parlor. Upon it they heap bags of rice, on top of which red gohei—peculiarly cut paper, considered by the vulgar to be sacred—is placed. This forms a sort of temporary shrine, before which the family kneel and worship for twelve days, after which period all the rice and other articles and offerings are cast away, either in the river or by the roadside, to be touched only by dogs and mendicants. Simultaneously with this, the family, especially those infected with smallpox, bathe themselves in red colored hot water, which is produced by boiling red beans. The special feature of this practice is the redness of color which characterizes almost everything forming part of the festival For twelve days, which is the term of the festival, people use red colored towels, are dressed in red kimonas, and receive no gifts which are not rendered prominent by red. They keep their persons as clean as possible. The idea of this peculiar institution would appear to be that the god of smallpox stays for twelve days in one family; so that during his short sojourn they must coax and humor him as much as possible, that he may not leave any disastrous effects behind him."

UNTOUCHED.

Meek—"I say, old chap, I'm in shocking bad luck. I want money badly and I haven't the least idea where I can get it."

Beek—"Well, I'm glad to hear that. I thought, perhaps you had an idea you could borrow from me."

COULD COUNT ON MORE.

Her Father—"And so you want to marry my daughter, eh?"

Young Man—"That's what I said."

Her Father—"But how do you expect to support her on an income of $800 a year?"

Young Man—"Oh, come now, your income must be ten times that amount.'

Mysterious Pocket-Money

"WHAT'S the use of being so studious, Ned? Summer vacation will be here before you're half ready for it. I don't see how a fellow could be so crazy over birds' eggs anyway."

A peculiar smile appeared on Ned's face. He knew Dick was afraid that unless birds' eggs were left alone and money earned the two would be unable to go canoeing and camping that summer.

"How are your rabbits selling?" asked Ned.

"Oh, I'm making piles of money," Dick replied; "but I say, old chap, you'll have to hustle."

The other smiled again as he said:

"Don't worry about me. I'll be ready to bear my share of the expense of the trip."

Dick shook his head doubtfully, but he said nothing further, nor did he again mention the subject.

At last came the time for their outing. Dick had purchased all the equipment and provisions, and he now invited his brother to accompany him to the ship dealer's office, where final arrangements regarding the buying of a canoe were to be made. They had selected a desirable canoe on a former visit.

For some reason Dick looked perturbed. However, he did not reveal the cause for his unwonted silence, and soon the two were enthusiastically examining the canoe.

"And now, Mr. Grim," said Dick, "we will pay you."

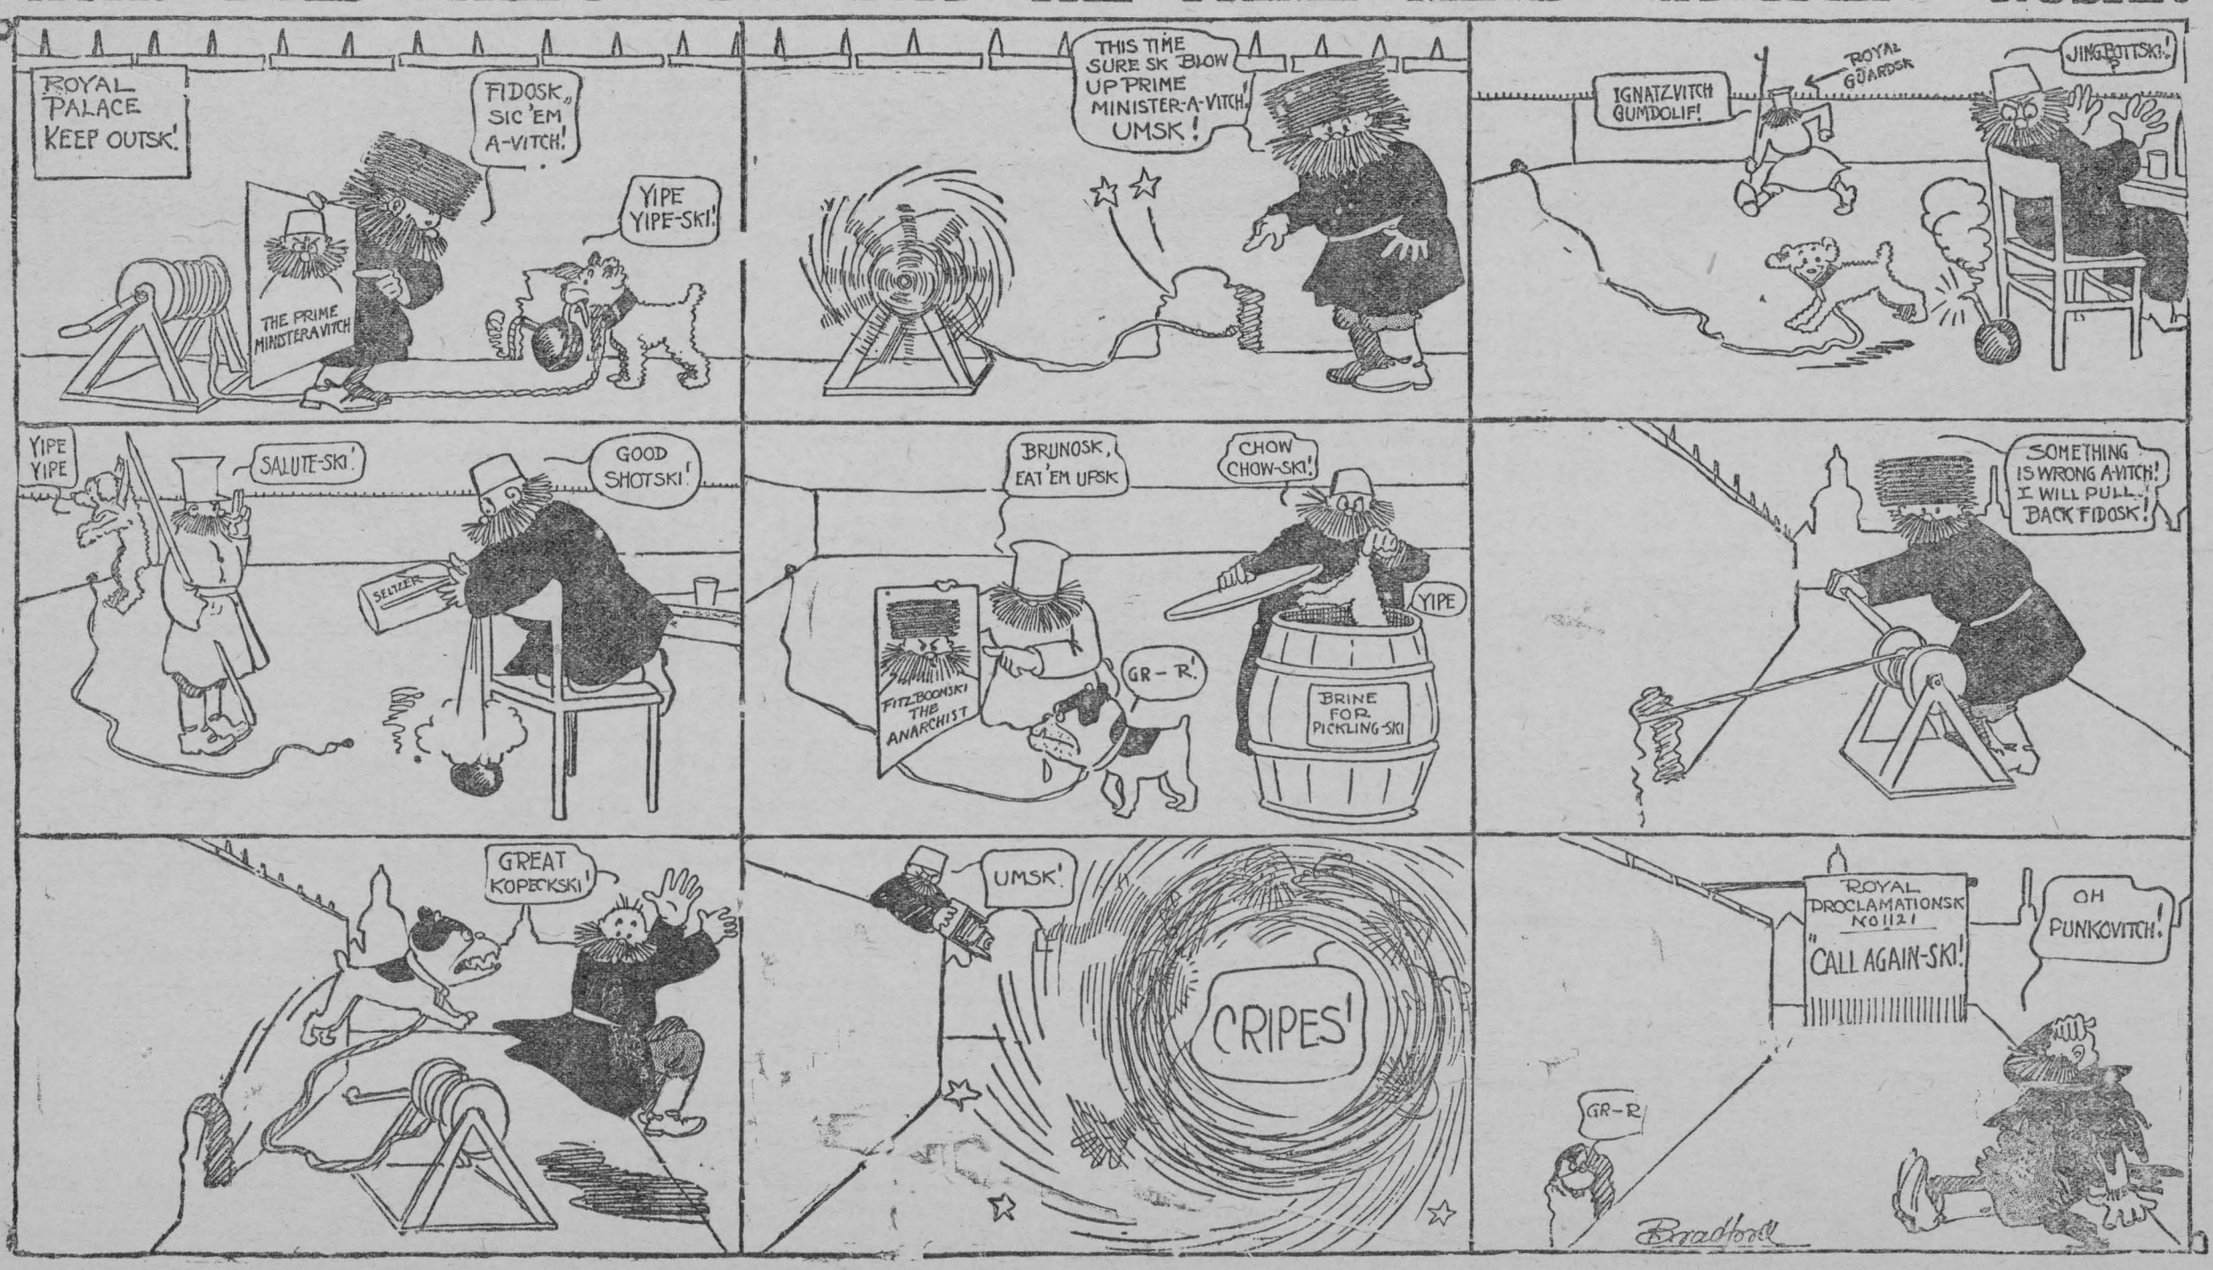

"Pay me? Why, your brother has already settled the bill," returned the shipbuilder, laughing.

Dick, greatly surprised, glanced at Ned, but the latter made no explanation until they were on their way home. Then he said:

"You see, Ned, searching for birds' eggs may be a source of profit as well as education. You know how early I rose every morning during the spring and went out into the fields. Well, the eggs I then found weren't added to my collection. I spent all the time hunting on the ground for plovers' eggs, and so skilful did I become in finding large numbers that I made quite a fortune from them. Each one brought me six shillings in town. It was only because I wished to surprise you that I paid for the canoe in advance.

"But really, Dick," continued the brother, teasingly, "selling plovers' eggs is much more profitable than raising rabbits, even if it is a crazy pastime."

Death of John D. Hough.

The death of a very highly esteemed resident of Avonmore, Mr. John Doran Hough, was briefly announced in our last issue. He passed away on Friday morning, May 2nd, in his 72nd year. The deceased was a son of the late John H Hough, and was born in Lunenburg, Ont. He settled in Roxborough in 1845 and has resided there continuously, except short intervals spent in the West, where a number of the members of his family reside. He was married on Nov. 12, 1857. to Ellen Elizabeth Tinkess, who died in 1897. The surviving members of the family are seven sons and two daughters—Simeon, of Edmonton, Alta.; Herbert R, Arthur R. and Ernest, of Cantral Butte, Sask; Etsel E. and J. E, of Avonmore; A. B, of Winchester; Mrs. J. E. Brownell, of Avonmore; and Mrs. W. S. Casselman, of Bismarck, N.D.

The late Mr. Hough was an adherent of the Methodist Church and his father was the leading spirit in the erection of the church there in 1868. He was a millwright by trade and in partnership with his father and brother, Mr. Wesley Hough, built a saw mill at the south end of the village of Avonmore in 1849. The mill was operated by the firm until 1880, when it was sold to Messrs. Fulton and Wyatt, The deceased was held in warm regard by all who knew him. He was of a genial disposition, ever ready with a helping hand, and in his death the township of Roxborough loses one of its best citizens. The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of the com munity.

The funeral took place on Sunday last to the Methodist Church and cemetery, the service being conducted by the Rev Mr. Poyser. The pall-bearers were Messrs. J. E., A. B,, Herbert R. and Etsel E Hough, sons of the deceased, Jos. E. Brownell, son in law, and Wm. Brownell, grandson.

A Remarkable Escape.

Ross Edwards, a C.P R. employe, had an exciting experience on Friday at Smith's Falls. He was working in the yard there and was in the act of turning a switch when his foot got caught in a frog.

The train was backing down the track and was only a short distance from him, but he could not extricate himself. With great presence of mind, however, he grabbed the hand rail of the car when the train was close upon him, and by sheer force succeeded in tearing his foot from the frog, but not before the flange of the wheel had grazed his ankle. His boot was literally torn in two, the upper portion coming off as though cut with a knife. He then managed to jump clear of the train and though his limbs were all intact his foot was swollen to an abnormal size and had turned black.

Death of Rev. R. N. Jones.

The Rev. R. N. Jones, B.A., died suddenly at his home in Auitsville on Saturday morning, May 2nd. The deceased, who had been suffering from heart trouble for several years, a year or so ago had to request three months leave of absence, which enabled him to recover sufficiently to resume his work. He was feeling fairly well on Friday, but after retiring for the night had a severe attack of the old malady, which carried him off. Deceased was born at Hillier, Ont., fifty-three years ago and after graduating from Trinity College, Toronto, was ordained at the Anglican Church. His first church was at Farmersville (now Athens). Thence he went to Pakenham, where he remained ten years, being removed afterwards to Eganville. During the past six years he has been in charge of the parish of Aultsville, Gallingstown and Osnabruck Centre. The Rev. Mr. Jones is survived by his wife and six children, the eldest of whom is eight years of age.

Raward for Missing Farmer.

A reward of $250 has been offered by friends of Thomas Lytle for tidings of the Alfred Centre farmer, who disappeared in Ottawa a couple of weeks ago. It is thought there is a good possibility of his being found in Montreal. Lytle may have become mentally unbalanced. He is 45 years of age, has dark eyes, short moustache, 5 feet, 6 inches in height, and weighs about 160 pounds. He wore a brown suit and long black rain coat.

The Last Tribute Paid.

On Thursday afternoon last, at 1.30 o'clock, the funeral of the late Mrs. C. T. Casselman took place from her late residence to the Methodist Church, where the Rev. A. E. Runnells, B.D, preached an excellent and very appropriate sermon, being assisted by the Rev W. F. Crawford, Presbyterian minister of this place.

The day was a gloomy one, rain descending the major part, but in spite of all that, the church was well filled.

After the service the funeral cortege was formed and proceeded to Maple Ridge cemetery, where all that was mortal was lowered to its last resting place.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. W. R. and Chas. Fulton, Drs. W. A. and E. L. Brown, Murray Casselman and T. T. Shaw.

Are You Sleepless, Nervous?

Two horrors crowded into one life—the product of poor digestion and a poisoned system. There is just one cure for this terrible condition—plenty of food—but mind you, food properly digested; that's the difficulty, to improve the digestive power of the stomach. Get rich nutritious blood, strengthen the system and drive out poisons,—then comes vitality endurance, power. Ferrozone does all this and more, it makes sick people well weak people strong, changes it makes sick people well, weak people strong changes "nerves" and insomania into robust health. Take Ferrozone and health is yours. 50cts. at all dealers.

CARD PLAYERS MURDERED.

Slayer Shot Two Dead and Tried to Kill Others.

Watertown, N.Y., May 10—The crash of a charge of buckshot through a window on a party of card players sent Jerry Apple weltering in his blood to the floor of his little cabin on Apple's Island, in Black Lake, north of this city last night. As Apple fell, a son-in-law, Albert Crowder, jumped to his feet and fled from the cabin. The report of the shotgun again echoed through the woods and Crowder fell dead in his tracks.

Mrs. Royal Dunning, Apple's daughter, and another of the card players fled in another direction and escaped in spite of several charges aimed in their direction She brought the news of the double tragedy to this city after a night of terror and flight through the woods, On her complaint her husband, Royal Dunning has been arrested, charged with murder. Dunning and his wife quarelled yesterday and she went to her father's cabin. Late last night Dunning appeared at the cabin and sought to effect reconciliatian. When he failed, he left the cabin and the others engaged in a game of cards.

Apple, the father-in-law, was sitting nearest the window, when the charge of shot shattered the glass. His death was instantaneous. Dunning stoutly maintains his innocence.

Is Your Chest "Wheezy".

Tightness and wheezing means your trouble deep-seated. To delay is dangerous. Inflamation must be drawn out at once. Rub the throat and chest with Nerviline, and put on a Nerviline Porous Plaster. Relief comes in an hour. The counter-irritant effect of the plaster relieves the tightness and strain, draws out the soreness, eases the pain. The penetrating qualities of Nerviline enable it to soak to the very core of the trouble, and you experience a feeling of warmth and relief that proves the danger is past. For weak chest, sore throat and tendency to colds, the Nerviline treatment beats all others, try it.

SHERWIN WILLIAMS PAINTS & VARNISHES

An appeal to the pride of the owner of a home

Everyone who owns a home is anxious that that home shall make the best appearance possible. Two things are necessary to produce satisfactory results in painting and varnishing a home:

First—A satisfactory color scheme.

Second—Paints, varnishes, stains and enamels of such good quality that they not only give the exact color effect required, but are sufficiently durable to keep up the attractive appearance of the house in spite of the wear and tear of living in it.

These are offered by the Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes. The Sherwin-Williams Co. not only make every kind of paint and varnish used for a house and the best quality of that kind, but they make suggestions for the selection of colors, varnishes, stains and enamels, so that any given idea can be carried out, and carried out with the best materials.

You should see to it that when you buy paints and varnishes for your house, or any part of it, or when you give an order to your painter for any painting and varnishing you want done, that Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes are purchased.

In large work it is always best to have a practical painter; but there are many little things about the house that you can readily finish yourself by using Sherwin-Williams ready-to-apply paints.

Come in and have a little paint talk with us. Now is the time to "brighten up" your home for the long winter months. We can tell you the best product to use for any purpose you may have in mind and secure complete finishing specifications for you from The Sherwin-Williams Co., if you desire them, for special work. Our line of Sherwin-Williams Products is complete and we are in a position to take the best care of your paint and varnish requirements.

DOCTORS ALL ADVISE SUITABLE SPRING TONIC

Pays You to Get Strong and Nourish the Blood During Change of Season.

In the spring time the vigor and resisting power of the body fall very low. Instead of being rich and nourishing, the blood is thin and watery. As a result the bodily forces become less active, sleep fails to bring rest. An ever-increasing tiredness develops into over-powering weakness.

People suffering from this spring sickness feel heavy and drowsy: they don't want to eat; they don't enjoy work--about half sick and half well. This is just the condition that favors pneumonia and typhoid, and you must build up as quickly as possible. You must increase your blood supply and make it rich and red.

The only way this can be done is by using Ferrozone, which is acknowledged to be the most efficient medicine.

The marvelous purifying and tonic properties of Ferrozone are quickly felt, because the blood is at once supplied with the elements it needs to become rich and red. It is ironized, vitalized and rapidly brought to its normal strength

The very best ingredients for toning up the system are contained in Ferrozone and if you use it you are sure to get back your old time strength and spirits.

If you suffer from debility, insomnia nervousness, loss of appetite, or any of the symptons of disordered blood, nothing will so rapidly tone you up as this great food tonic, Ferrozone. It's record of successful cures, its recommendation by the public, by druggists and doctors commends it to every thinking person.

You need Ferrozone to make you well. Why not get to-day? Sold by all druggists; price 50c. per box or 5ix boxes for $2.50.

Mr. Jno. Crump has greatly improved his barn buildings by the addition of a windmill.

It is nice to be up to the minute in style, but sometimes it is rather embarrassing. A young lady, who evidently wished to be "in it," had donned the prevailing Merry Widow hat, proceeded to board a train here recently, but the platform of the car being somewhat crowded she had her own troubles First she would cant her head to one side and then to the other to try to edge her way in, and then she would "but in," but it was of no avail, and being of rather an excitable nature, she shouted to her auntie, who was standiug on the platform: "I can't get in." This caused considerable merriment among the other passengers. Auntie responded, "Take off your hat," which relieved the situation, and she proceeded merrily on her way.

Tired nerves, with that "no ambition" feeling that is commonly felt in spring or early summer, can be easily and quickly altered by taking what is known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. One will absolutely note a changed feeling within 48 hours after beginning to take the Restorative. The bowels get sluggish in the winter time, the circulation often slows up, the Kidneys are inactive, and even the Heart in many cases grows decidedly weaker. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is recognized everywhere as a genuine tonic to these vital organs. It builds up and strengthen the worn-out weakened nerves; it sharpens the failing appetite, and universally aids digestion. It always quickly brings renewed strength, life, vigor, and ambition. Try it and be convinced. Sold by Walter G. Bolster.

RELIEVES IN FIVE MINUTES.

Help Comes Quickly When Hyomei is Used for Catarrh.

The quick relief that comes from the Hyomei treatment for catarrh is most remarkable. Put a few drops of liquid Hyomei in the little pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, and before you have used the treatment for five minutes you will notice relief from your catarrhal troubles.

It gives a tonic healing effect to the air you breathe, kills all catarrhal germs, stops the poisonous secretions, soothes the irritated mucous membrane and makes a marked improvement in the general health.

Hyome is not a cure all; it has but one aim, the cure of catarrh and diseases of respiratory organs. When the catarrh is cured, the general health is improved, for then Nature has a chance to build up the whole system.

Sudden Death.

Adolphe Trudeau, an employe of the New York and Ottawa and a resident of Santa Clara, N.Y., dropped dead at the Central station, Ottawa at four o'clock yesterday afternoon. Coroner Craig, states that death was due to heart failure, Trudeau, who is a man about 55 years of age, has been a head blacksmith on the railway for 15 years and was a trusted and much respected official. Considerable difficulty was experienced in identifying the dead man as few people in Ottawa knew him. At first he was thought to be an Ottawa man but investigation proved that it was a case of mistaken identity. Some papers found on the deceased were afterwards instrumental in ascertaining his name His friends were at once communicated with and his foreman will come to Ottawa and take the body home. There will be no inquest. Trudeau was hurrying to catch the afternoon New York and Ottawa train when he dropped and died.

VARICOCELE CURED

☞ NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on a double varicocele. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never lose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

FOUR KILLED, ONE INJURED

Men Meet With Terrible Death by Scalding Steam.

A despatch from Toronto says: Four men are dead as the result of the bursting of a defective pipe in the boiler of the steamer Brockville on Saturday afternoon, while another member of the crew was seriously scalded, but will recover. The two firemen, Adolph Chavageau and Octave Cote, were killed on the spot, while the chief engineer, Burneau Panten, and oiler, William Gouin, died at Grace Hospital a few hours after the accident. Fred Charboneau, aged 30, second engineer, will recover.

On Saturday afternoon about 2.30 o'clock the steamer Brockville was lying at the foot of Bathurst street. She belongs to the Richelieu & Ontario Navigation Co. and was to have left Toronto for Kingston on May 26, the intention of the company being that she should ply between that city and Prescott. The four dead men, with Charboneau and J. Fougere, were in the hold. The boiler and fittings were being tested under the direction of the chief engineer, Burneau Panten. A defective six-inch circulation tube gave way under the head of steam and the vapor spread first into the firehole and thence into the fire pit, where the men were at work, in its passage blowing out the fires. The two firemen, who were directly in front of the blast, fell dead at once. Planten and Gouin were also wrapped in the scalding steam and were so fearfully scalded that they both succumbed a few hours after their admittance to Grace Hospital, where they were hurried in the police ambulance. Charboneau managed to escape into the outer air and apprise the rest of the crew above of the deadly nature of the explosion, the faint rumbling of which had only been heard on deck.

The men dived for the hold, and in spite of the deadly clouds of steam soon had the four men on deck, two dead, and two alive but frightfully scalded. The bodies of Cote and Chavageau were taken to the Morgue, and Panten and Gouin were hurried to Grace Hospital. Here Gouin was plunged into a boracic acid bath, and Panten was wrapped in picric acid bandages, but the two men were too seriously injured for any remedy. Fred Charboneau was taken to Grace Hospital in a cab. He said that Gouin, Planten and he were standing in the engine room, when there was an explosion, and they were all enveloped in scalding steam. He continued:—"I had to fight my way through the engine room to the companionway, and I thought at one time I should never make it. Fortunately I did not swallow as much steam as the others." Charboneau's back and limbs are badly scalded, but little doubt is entertained of his recovery.

PRIVATE MOIR CAPTURED.

Slayer of Sergt. Lloyd Arrested on a Farm Near Arthur.

A despatch from Arthur says: After a desperate struggle of ten minutes up and down under the hoofs of the startled horses at the Robb Bros.' farm, four miles north of Elora, Private Moir, the murderer of Sergt. Lloyd, was finally overpowered by Chief Constable C. J. Farrel and Constable Cochrane of Arthur. Moir was carrying a 32 calibre revolver, loaded in five chambers, under his belt, and what use the desperate man would have made of it had not the officers taken him off his guard is sufficiently indicated by the fight he put up when he was pinioned from behind.

Constable Farrell of Arthur first got wind of Moir through W. E. Draper, the stage driver between Arthur and Fergus, who had seen Moir while driving past the Robb farm, and heard that he carried a loaded revolver with him always under his belt. Then David Robb got hold of a Stratford paper and was at once struck with the resemblance both the cut and the description bore to their hired man. Saturday night Farrell and Cochrane drove out to the Robb farm in plain clothes. Just as they arrived they saw David Robb and Moir, whom they at once recognized unhitching a horse. The farmer and hired man went into the stables and the officers followed them. Farrell began to talk to Robb of his stock and the season, all the time edging up to Moir, who seemed quite unconcerned. When Farrell was quite sure he was their man he sprang and pinioned Moir's arms to his sides, and in a second Cochrane pitched on to the struggling pair. Moir is far the smaller man of the three, but has the build of a sprinter and the physique of the all-round athlete he claims to be. Both Farrell and Cochrane are in the prime of life and heavily built, but for fully ten minutes the unequal struggle went on in the stable. Moir fighting to reach his weapon with the venom of a wildcat. At last he suddenly collapsed, allowed himself to be handcuffed and came very quietly to Arthur, where he remained all Saturday and Sunday.

FLEET TO PRECEDE PRINCE.

Four Battleships and Two Cruisers to Visit Quebec.

A despatch from Portsmouth, England, says: It is stated that the battleships Exmouth, Albemarle, Duncan and Russell, and the cruisers Venus and Arrogant, under the command of Vice-Admiral Curzon Howe, will precede the Prince of Wales to Quebec. Two warships will also escort the Prince, who will probably sail on the Indomitable. The report that he will fly an admiral's flag is uncorroborated.

Seeding is almost completed in the west.

SIXTY AFGHANS KILLED.

Result of the Recent Fighting in Khyber Pass.

A despatch from London says: Sixty Afghans were killed in the fighting which took place between a large force of Afghans and the British troops last Saturday at a point in the Khyber Pass near Landikotal, according to a despatch sent in by a correspondent with the British column. A message is published here to-day from Lahore giving the Afghan dead at 300, but this communication is discredited.

The British Charge d'Affaires at St. Petersburg has stated to a journalist that the troubles in Afghanistan are due to the feebleness of the Ameer, who lacks authority over his subjects, and that they are not caused by the Anglo-Russian agreement.

WHALERS PAY DUTIES.

Americans in Hudson Bay Acknowledge Canadian Authority.

A despatch from Ottawa says: American whalers operating in the Arctic Ocean, adjacent to the mouth of the Mackenzie River and eastward along the coasts of the islands as far as Beaufort Sea, have for the first time on record acknowledged Canadian authority in these remote regions by the payment of Customs duties. The amount collected has been comparatively small, but the principle is important as establishing what has already been admitted in Hudson Bay, the undoubted ownership of these northern lands by the British Crown

FELL DOWN THE SHAFT.

Robert Levigne Killed in the Nancy Helen Mine.

A despatch from Cobalt says: Robert Levigne, a Frenchman, single, aged 22 years, fell down the shaft of the Nancy Helen mine on Thursday, receiving injuries from which he died shortly after being removed to the Red Cross Hospital. Deceased was working underground at the 100-foot level, and fell 55 feet to the bottom of the shaft. Coroner Codd held an inquest over the remains on Friday afternoon, and the jury censured the company for not having guard rails at the shaft.

GLANDERS IN GRENVILLE.

Outbreak of Dread Disease—Two Animals Were Shot.

A despatch from Brockville says: Glanders has broken out among the horses of Grenville County. Two animals belonging to a man named Jos. Whitley, were ordered to be shot forthwith. The remaining horses of the farm were placed under quarantine. It is thought the epidemic has been nipped in the bud.

GREAT BRITAIN'S BUDGET

Estimated Revenue for 1908-9, $788,850,000---Estimated Expenditure, $764,345,000.

A despatch from London says: The budget was presented in the House of Commons on Thursday by Mr. H. H. Asquith, the Premier, instead of by the Chancellor of the Exchequer. This departure from precedent is a result of the recent changes in the Cabinet.

Mr. Asquith, after commenting briefly on the present slackening of trade throughout the world, following the boom of 1907, announced that Great Britain's realized surplus for the year 1907-1908 amounted to $23,630,000. tThis, he said, would be largely applied to the reduction of the national debt, which had already been reduced by approximately $90,000,000 during the past year.

Mr. Asquith estimated the total expenditure for 1908-1909 at $764,345,000, and the revenue on the existing basis of taxation at $788,850,000.

The new budget reduces the duty on sugar from 4s 2d to 1s 10d per hundredweight. The reduction will become effective on May 18 on raw and refined sugar and on July 1 on articles manufactured with sugar.

The budget provides for pensions of $1.25 per week for all persons over 70, excepting criminals, lunatics and paupers. It is estimated that the maximum number of pensioners is not likely to exceed 500,000, and the cost must not exceed $30,000,000 any one year. Married couples are to have $1.80 weekly between them. The charge for pensions is to be a national, not a local, burden. The scheme is not to be operative until January, 1909. No one in receipt of more than $2.50 a week income will be admissible.

CATTLE MARKET.

Toronto, May 12—There was not more than a couple of loads of export cattle. Some of these sold up to $6, and one or two at even more than that. Choice heavy export bulls in several instances sold at $5. There were a very few choice specimens of butchers' cattle, which sold as high as $6, but the great majority could not be classified as better than medium quality.

There is a strong demand for cows and bulls for butchering purposes, and the price of some of the best of these approached $5, while anything that sold at less than $3 was of very poor quality. Even canners were higher at $1.50 to $2.50.

Not many stockers were offered and the demand continues steady, but prices are not advanced.

The offerings of calves have been very heavy of late and the market is becoming loaded up with them. The prices have eased off considerably.

Sheep and lambs are steady and quiet. Spring lambs are quoted unchanged.

The hog market is weak. The demand is rather quiet, as the provision trade is dull at this season.

BULLETS FLEW IN BATTLE.

Owen Sound Strikers Attempted to Prevent Unloading of Vessel.

A despatch from Owen Sound says: The strike of the Canadian Pacific through freight truckers assumed serious proportions on Monday morning, when an attempt to unload the steamer Dundee led to a fracas, in which shots were fired, and several of the strikers, and special constables from Toronto and a spectator were injured. Subsequently a settlement of the strike was effected and the men returned to work at two o'clock on Monday afternoon.

At 4 o'clock fifty special constables brought up from Toronto were stationed around the yard and dock of the company. The strikers evidently did not anticipate this move, and when they went down at 7 o'clock they were in an angry mood. At 7.30 the marine leg of Elevator B was lowered in the hold of the steamer Dundee. There was a rush toward the vessel, at once, but the special constables started to use their clubs viciously. The onslaught was, however, overwhelming, and as the constables were being pressed back, they drew their revolvers and began shooting. A big pile of steam coal lies between the elevator and the freight sheds, and it was in the narrow strip between this and the edge of the dock that the fighting was fiercest. While this was in progress another fight occurred on the bridge at the inner end of the slip, and was of the fiercest character while it lasted. The result here was also serious. The fight did not extend over ten minutes, but the results were in evidence.

Charles Clarke, one of the Toronto contingent of laborers, was picked up with a bullet wound in the hip. Edward O'Brien, a former druggist of Toronto, who came up to secure employment in the steward's department of the C. P. R. liners, was carried away with a bullet in his foot. John McIntosh, one of the strikers, had his head badly injured by the clubs of five of the constables. Chief Detective Wright, of the C. P. R. staff, was shot through the fleshy part of the leg above the ankle. Robert Somerville, of Toronto, another constable, was seriously cut about the head and his right hand broken. Constable John Powers, of Toronto, received a serious scalp wound. William Fenemount, of Milton, another constable, had his face terribly lacerated, and his teeth knocked out. Major Merryweather and Frank Wright, special constables, of Toronto, were also injured.

MERLIN'S HEAVY LOSS.

Large Business Block and Other Buildings Burned.

A despatch from Chatham says: Racing its way through the village of Merlin, 16 miles from here, fire starting in the office of The Merlin Mirror, owned by C. A. Burnes, destroyed in three hours, from 8.20 Monday morning to 11.30, one business block and several additional buildings. The blaze started through gasoline used as power in The Mirror office getting ignited in some way. The flames quickly destroyed this building, attacked the residence of James Robertson, station agent, residing next door, then turned to the store of Mr. Abraham, destroying this building, though the stock was largely saved. The building of the National Supply Company, oil men's supplies, was attacked and destroyed, as were the Oddfellow's Hall and W. Smith's jewellery store. The barber shop on the other side of The Mirror office was in flames for a time, but was saved, as was the Marquis Hotel, which was threatened for a time.

WRECK AT WOMAN RIVER.

The Pacific Express From North Bay Comes to Grief.

A despatch from North Bay says: Number ninety-seven, Pacific express, which left North Bay on Monday morning at 10, was wrecked at Woman River the same afternoon at 5 o'clock. The scene of the wreck is two hundred miles west of North Bay, and the details are meagre. It is stated that no one is seriously injured. Superintendent Brady left for Woman River on Monday night on the Imperial Limited.

MONTCALM SUNK.

Lies on Bottom of St. Lawrence—Likely to be Total Wreck.

A despatch from Quebec says: The Government steamer Montcalm, which collided on Thursday night with the C. P. R. steamer Milwaukee, is now lying at the bottom of the Customs House pond, to which she was towed after the accident, with only her funnel exposed to view to designate her position. Experienced river men declare that the vessel is probably doomed to be a total loss, as she is badly wrecked on the starboard side.

$21,000 FOR SILVERWARE.

Record Price for Ninety Ounces at London Auction.

A despatch from London says: At an auction sale at Christie's of the late Marchioness of Coyngham's art collection, silverware and dishes, weighing together 90 ounces, a gift of George IV, to an ancestor of the Marchioness, sold for $21,000. This is a record price.

JUVENILE IMMIGRATION.

Nearly Forty Thousand Children Came Here Last Year.

A despatch from Ottawa says: During the last fiscal year, of a total of 204,157 immigrants arriving in Canada via ocean ports, 122,293 were males over twelve years of age, 43,541 were females and 38,323 were children under twelve.

TRAGEDY AT HUNTSVILLE

Nelson Smith Shot His Wife and Committed Suicide

A despatch from Huntsville, Ont., says: A double tragedy was enacted here on Friday, resulting in the death of Nelson Smith, formerly of Allandale, Ont., and his young wife, formerly Miss Martha Goldie of this place, who has been for some weeks visiting at the home of her parents just outside the town of Huntsville.

The details of the murder and suicide are as follows:—Mr. Smith, who has been for some time past an employee of the Galt, Hespeler & Berlin Railway, arrived in Huntsville early Friday morning, and after breakfasting at an hotel proceeded to the home of his wife's parents on the opposite bank of the river from the town. On the way he called at the district schoolhouse and inquired of his little son, who was in attendance, if his mother was at home, and upon receiving an affirmative answer, proceeded to the house. Upon being admitted he was shown into the parlor and received by his wife and mother-in-law, Mrs. James Goldie, and he engaged in friendly conversation with them for some time, exhibiting no signs of anger or excitement.

Mrs. Goldie, sen., left the room for a few moments, and was horrified to hear terrified screams and two revolver shots in quick succession, and upon entering the room found the murderer standing over the body of his dead wife, with the revolver still in his hand. She attempted to disarm him, but he rushed past her out to the ground, and, putting the revolver to his head, blew his own brains out.

The cause of the tragedy is not definitely known as yet, but is believed to have been insane and unreasoning jealousy on the part of the husband. The murdered woman was about 30 years of age, and very popular and highly respected in this her native town.

TEN PRISONERS ESCAPED.

They Struck Down Their Guards at Alexandrovsk, Russia.

A despatch from Alexandrovsk, says: A group of important political prisoners made an attempt to regain liberty here on Wednesday. Some of them were killed, and, in turn, they succeeded in striking down some of the prison guards, but ten got away. The prisoners were led by Illinsky, the man who assassinated General Count Alexsis P. Ignatieff at Tver, December 22, 1906. They attacked and disarmed the prison guards while at exercise in the prison. Three of the guards were killed and six were wounded with their own weapons. The prisoners then made a dash for liberty. The guards summoned help and a pursuit was begun, during which two of the escaping men were killed and four were wounded. Three others including Illinsky, were recaptured. Illinsky was serving a sentence of eleven years' imprisonment for the murder of Ignatieff.

NO REDUCTION IN WAGES.

Grand Trunk Management Gives Denial to Report.

A despatch from Montreal says: The Grand Trunk management announced on Wednesday that there was no truth in a report to the effect that a general decrease of 10 per cent. had been decided upon in the wages of employes under the rank of superintendent and the higher officers, to come into effect on June 1st.

BOMB UNDER CARRIAGE.

Russian Governor and His Wife Escaped—Passer-by Killed.

A despatch from Veronezhj, Russia, says: A bomb was thrown on Wednesday under the carriage of Gen. Bibikoff, Governor of the department, as he was driving with his wife to church. Neither the Governor nor his wife was injured, but a woman who was passing at the instant of the explosion was killed.

SUGAR REFINERS FAIL.

Largest Manufacturers in the World Owe $20,000,000.

A despatch from Odessa says: The failure is announced of two of the largest sugar manufacturing and refining works in the world, Charitoneko and Sons, and the Cherkassky Refining Co. The liabilities of the former amount to $16,500,000 and of the latter to $3,750,000.

JAPAN IN A BAD WAY.

Long-continued Financial Depression is Increasing.

A despatch from Tokio says: The long-continued financial depression is increasing. The causes are varied. There are rumors that the elder statesmen intend to change the Government policy radically by postponing the approved military expenditures and by offering the State railways as security for a foreign loan. Meanwhile it is significant that recent elections show that the country districts are not in sympathy with the Opposition's outcry against increased taxation. This may be attributed to Imperialistic sentiment. The war veterans are in favor of maintaining the military prestige of Japan at all costs.

SHOT HIS BROTHER.

Two Young Boys Hunting Gophers Near Claresholm, Alberta.

A despatch from Claresholm, Alta., says: George Miller, aged 11, and William Miller, aged 9, were trying to kill gophers, the one with a gun and the other with a sling. The elder boy shot the younger in the breast, causing a terrible wound, from which he died on Tuesday night.

FLED THE HAT-PINS.

Pittsburg Burglar Routed by Thirty Young Women.

A despatch from Pittsburg says: A burglar who got into the rooms of the Young Women's Christian Association, on Collins avenue, early on Thursday morning is probably thanking his lucky star that he escaped with his life. Thirty young women live in the rooms. Mrs. Garrison, the matron, was awakened early Thursday morning by unusual noises. Her cries of alarm brought thirty women, armed with brooms, curling irons, hat pins and similar weapons, to her assistance. The burglar was doing the best he could to get out, and one glance at the attacking party was sufficient. He willingly took a chance on jumping out of the second-story window. In his haste to get away the cracksman left behind his hat and his kit of burglar's tools.

VICTIMS NOW NUMBER NINE

More Bodies Found in House of the Indiana Assassin.

A despatch from Laporte, Indiana, says: The horrors of the murder mill at the late home of Mrs. Belle Gunness are increasing with the finding of additional bodies, and there is little doubt but the number of murders may be swelled to a score or more when all the facts are known. One body, the sixth, was added to the list on Wednesday, when diggers unearthed the remains of a man, and within an hour the detached bones of two other victims were found. The work of digging goes on slowly, but the sheriff is arranging to have the ground of the entire farmyard excavated to a depth of five or six feet, experiences on Wednesday showing that it is not only the "soft spots" that hide the bones of human beings, for some of the murders were committed so long ago that the ground has settled so compactly that it is as hard as that which surrounds the victims' graves and that was never disturbed.

The body found on Wednesday was uncovered about five feet from where four of the bodies were found on Tuesday and apparently occupied a wooden box about five feet long. The box was thin, and had rotted away in the soft ground. The skeleton was lying face downward, and had apparently been carelessly dumped into the box, then covered.

Detached bones were also found on Wednesday among a pile of stones on the Gunness premises. A search of the barnyard this afternoon revealed two more bodies, making four for the day, and a total of nine.

The belief is growing that Mrs. Gunness was not burned in the fire at her home, but that the body supposed to be hers is really that of another woman. The basis for this belief is that the head of the body supposed to be Mrs. Gunness' is missing. The autopsy held immediately after the fire revealed that while the head was apparently burned off, the rest of the body was scarcely scorched. Many persons think Mrs. Gunness is now on her way to Norway.

The basement and walls of the burned Gunness' home were examined on Wednesday, and the tappings disclosed several hollow places. Sheriff Smulzer tore these down to hunt for other bodies.

Mrs. Gunness was supposed to have been burned to death with her three children in a fire which consumed her house on April 28th last, and Guy Lampere, a carpenter, is under arrest on suspicion of having set fire to the place. It was while a search was being made for remains that the discovery of five bodies was made on Tuesday, one being supposed to be that of Andrew Heleglein, who came from South Dakota with the purpose of marrying Mrs. Gunness, and the other that of Jenny Gunness, a Chicago girl, who was adopted by Mrs. Gunness and who disappeared in September, 1906. The other three bodies were unidentified.

FOR 5 YEARS EACH SPRING

FACE AND SCALP ERUPTIONS

TROUBLED THIS LADY TILL ZAM-BUK CURED.

Miss Mary Levesque, 313 Stadacina St., Hochelaga, Montreal writes:—"I have found Zam-Buk an excellent remedy for skin eruptions. Up to this Spring I was bothered for almost five years with a red rash, small pimples and sores on my face and on the scalp thro' the hair. Nothing I used would clear this rash from the skin until I began using Zam-Buk. This salve has effectually and I believe permanently taken off those unsightly pimples and sores from both scalp and face. I shall recommend Zam-Buk to all my friends."

For healing eczema and all skin disease Zam-Buk is without equal. It is good for rheumatism when well rubbed in. Piles also yield to Zam-Buk All stores and druggists, 50c. or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

SENTENCE SERMONS.

Faith easily dies without fellowship.

What is given in love never is lost.

Many mistake faultfinding for fidelity.

Envy is a confession of inner destitution.

Sound doctrine does not cure a diseased heart.

The pursuit of truth is the secret of eternal youth.

The richest gifts come out of the poorest pockets.

The life of service has few difficulties of conduct.

A man's title to glory does not depend on the glory of his title.

You never lose your own joy by lending an ear to another's woe.

It doesn't take much fortitude to bear another's misfortune.

Happy is he who is too rich in faith to worry over a fortune.

A square deal has something beside sharp edges and angles to it.

The cross is irksome only when we try to climb it as a pedestal.

The man who cannot find a god in the universe discovers one in a mirror.

Only the morally astigmatic see lying as the only refuge in time of trouble.

Too many giving the poor crusts on the street are stealing their bread in the alley.

When a man tells the truth about himself he is anxious for some one to call him a liar.

He who believes nothing until he understands it fully must have a limited range of knowledge.

Religion never makes a permanently powerful impression without steady practical expression.

There would be little religious infidelity in this world but for our attempts to force the forms of one man's faith on other men.

SLEEPING DRAUGHTS SOOTHING MIXTURES.

A wise mother will never give her little one a sleeping draught, soothing mixture or opiate of any kind except upon the advice of a competent doctor, who has seen the child. All these things contain deadly poison. When you give your baby or young child Baby's Own Tablets you have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine does not contain one particle of opiate or narcotic, and therefore cannot possibly do harm—but always do good. Mrs. Geo. M. Kempt, Carleton Place, Ont., says:—"I have given Baby's Own Tablets to my baby since he was two weeks old. He was a very small baby, but thanks to the Tablets he is now a big, fat, healthy boy." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FATAL.

Nell—"A girl shouldn't marry a man till she knows all about him."

Belle—"Good gracious! If she knew all about him she wouldn't want to marry him."

They are Carefully Prepared.—Pills which dissipate themselves in the stomach cannot be expected to have much effect upon the intestines, and to overcome costiveness the medicine administered must influence the action of these canals. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so made, under the supervision of experts, that the substance in them intended to operate on the intestines is retarded in action until they pass through the stomach to the bowels.

Willie—"I say, father, what is the difference between 'well and 'good'?" Father—"I have noticed, my son, that about the only time when you are good is when you are not well!"

A small Pill, but Powerful.— They that judge of the powers of a pill by its size, would consider Parmelee's Vegetable Pills to be lacking. It is a little wonder among pills. What it lacks in size it makes up in potency. The remedies which it carries are put up in these small doses, because they are so powerful that only small doess are required. The full strength of the extracts is secured in this form and do their work thoroughly.

It Retains Old and Makes New Friends.—Time was when Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil had but a small field of distribution, but now its territory is widespread. Those who first recognized its curative qualities still value it as a specific, and while it retains its old friends it is ever making new. It is certain that whoever once uses it will not be without it.

POLICE SPIES IN PARIS.

Legitimist Leader Mystified Over a Revelation by Prefect Lepine.

Paris Gil Blas gives the world an illustration of the workings of the French secret police in an anecdote which it publishes with an assurance that the incident happened recently.

A distinguished member of Parisian society sent out invitations for a large soiree at his house in the Faubourg St. Germain. He is a legitimist, and it was hardly concealed that the gathering was to have a certain political significance.

As soon as he heard of it Police Prefect Lepine called upon the host and with the utmost politeness solicited a couple of invitations for agents on his staff.

"Monsieur le Comte," said he. "I give you my word of honor the men to whom I entrust them will look like perfect gentlemen; they will act like gentlemen; in a word, they will be worthy of the honor you confer on them by making them your guests."

The Count was very haughty, however. He explained with ill concealed disdain that his party would be made up of the bluest blood in France and any outsider would be at once conspicuous.

M. Lepine appeared to be convinced; at least he yielded the point gracefully, merely adding: "At least, Monsieur le Comte, you will allow me to see the list of your guests. My duty compels me to know who will be there."

Monsieur le Comte made no objection. He produced the list and Lepine scanned it carefully. He was wreathed in smiles as he returned it. With many bows he apologized for having troubled Monsieur le Comte.

"It was so unnecessary," said he. "I really would have no use for those invitations. I see that Monsieur le Comte already has on his list of guests the names of five of my most trusted observers."

The Count and his friends have been wondering ever since whether this was literally true or whether it was a shrewd device to render the gathering innocuous.

SKIN ERUPTIONS AND PIMPLES

Disappear Under a Treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

There can be health and vigor only when the blood is rich and red. There are thousands of young men just approaching manhood who need the rich, red blood that only Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can make. They have no energy; tire out at the least exertion, and who feel by the time they have done their day's work, as though the day was a week long. In some cases there is a further sign of danger in the pimples and disfiguring eruptions which break out on the face. These are certain signs that blood is out of order and that a complete breakdown may result. In this emergency Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is the medicine these young men should take. These pills actually make rich, red blood. They clear the skin of pimples and eruptions and bring health, strength and energy.

Here is the experience of Adolphe Rolland, of St. Jerome, Que., who says: "For more than a year I suffered from general weakness, and I gradually grew so weak that I was forced to abandon my work as a clerk. My appetite failed me, I had occasional violent headaches and I began to suffer from indigestion. I was failing so rapidly that I began to fear that consumption was fastening itself upon me. Our family doctor treated me but I did not gain under his care. I was in a very discouraging state when a friend from Montreal came to see me. He strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so and inside of three weeks I began to feel better, my appetite began to improve and I seemed to have a feeling of new courage. I continued the pills till I had taken ten boxes and I am now enjoying the best health I ever had. My cure surprised many of my friends who began to regard me as incurable, and I strongly advise other young men who are weak to follow my example and give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial.' Bad blood is the cause of all common diseases like anaemia, headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, indigestion, all nervous troubles, general weakness and the special ailments that only women folk know. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the one cure, because they go right to the root of the trouble in the blood. They change the bad blood into good blood, and thus bring health, strength and energy. You can get these pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50c a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

AN ARCTIC ROMANCE.

A pathetic tale of Esquimau love is told by Lieut. Shackleton, the leader of an Arctic expedition. A young Esquimau loved an Esquimau lass, but as he had not the necessary number of sealskins to provide the marriage portion required by her father he met with no encouragement from the stern parent. A yawning chasm separated the respective dwellings of the ardent lover and his beloved, which could be crossed only by a snow bridge. The youth conceived a plan. He would cross the snow bridge in the night, abduct the girl and after recrossing destroy the bridge and so prevent pursuit. He carried the plan into effect. One night he crossed the bridge, invaded the hut of his idol, seized a sleeping bag and departed, destroying the bridge after he had crossed. Then he opened the sleeping bag and discovered that he had abducted—not the girl, but the old man!

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever introduced for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera and all summer complaints, sea sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief and never fails to effect a positive cure Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

GROWN UP WITH HIM.

An Irishman was in trouble about a gun found in his possession. The law, unfortunately for him, adopted the unkind suggestion that he had stolen it.

While awaiting his trial, he was visited by a friend, who urged him to steadfastly adhere to the statement that he had owned the gun for years. The friend, furthermore, cited how he himself, when in similar difficulty about a hen, had preserved both the hen and his character by swearing he had possessed the bird since it was a chicken.

The wisdom of this advice was not lost on Pat, and he henceforth regarded his trial with the settled serenity of, if not conscious innocence, sanguine anticipation.

On the day appointed, when conclusive evidence against him had been tendered, he was asked formally whether he had anything to say for himself. Pat throwing a glance of shrivelling contempt at the prosecutor, turned to the judge and said:

"The man's a perjured villain, yer honor. That gun's bin in my possission, yer honor, iver since it was a pistol.'

It's difficult for a silver-tongued orator to make short work of a speech.

ANY remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves.

The nerve centers require nutrition. If the digestion is impaired, the nerve centers become anemic, and indigestion is the result.

Peruna is not a nervine nor a stimulant. It benefits the nerves by benefiting digestion.

Peruna frees the stomach of catarrhal congestions and normal digestion is the result.

In other words, Peruna goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the disagreeable symptoms disappear.

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, 61 Marchant street, Watsonville, Cal., writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for six years. I tried many kinds of medicine, also was treated by three doctors.

"They said that I had nervous dyspepsia. I was put on a liquid diet for three months.

"I improved under the treatment, but as soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again.

"I took the medicine for two years, then I got sick again and gave up all hopes of getting cured.

"I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine being cured by Peruna, so I thought I would give it a trial.

"I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured.

"I have gained in strength and feel like a different person. I believe Peruna is all that is claimed for it."

Nervines, such as coal tar preparations, are doing a great deal of harm. Sleep medicines and headache powders are all alike,—heart depressants, and should not be used. The nerves would be all right, if the digestion were good. Peruna corrects the digestion.

THE DOOR TO OUR FEELINGS.

Every person's feelings have a front door and a side door by which they may be entered. The front door is on the street. Some keep it always open, some keep it latched, some locked, some bolted with a chain that will let you peep in but not get in, and some nail it up, so that nothing can pass its threshold. This front door leads into a passage which opens into an anteroom, and this into the interior apartments. The side door opens at once into the secret chamber. There is almost always one key to the side door. This is carried for years hidden in a mother's bosom. Fathers, brothers, sisters, and friends, often, but by no means so universally, have duplicates of it. The wedding-ring conveys a right to one; alas, if none is given with it! Be very careful to whom you trust one of these keys of the side door.

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend Drowned in Larder Lake.

Cobalt, May, 12.—Herbert M. Sperling, aged about 35, a young Englishman who spent several years in South Africa in the war as well as in mining and milling as an amalgamator, was drowned on Sunday afternoon at Larder lake. It appears Sperling and his comrade, Snyder, were crossing Larder Lake and broke through the ice, Sperling being unable to get out. Snyder arrived in Cobalt on to-day's train bringing Sperling's body along. Mr. Sperling was well known here and had a host of friends. He had spent most of the winter at Larder, having been in charge of a small mill at Reddick's property. His relatives in England have been cabled.

INSURANCE RATES MUST BE RAISED.

So Says Supreme Chief Ranger of I. O. Foresters.

Windsor, Ont., May 8.—Supreme Chief Ranger Stevenson, of the I.O.F., told Harmony Lodge last night that the Foresters' Insurance rates must be raised as the older members are being carried at an unsafe figure.

To place the insurance branch on a sound and substantial basis three options or plans are now offered to the older members. They may contribute the difference between the old and new rates with four per cent. interest compounded and continue under the new rates, they may have a new rating which will make up the difference or they may have a certificate for a reduced amount that can be met under the old rates of assessment.

An old member who had entered the I. O. F. at twenty years of age and has been a member for ten years must pay $26.43; for fifteen years membership he will have to pay $44.12, and for twenty years a member $65.40. An older member who entered it forty years owes on ten years membership $117.56; fifteen years $196.07; twenty years, $291.59.

If the member desires to carry less insurance and pay the old rates a twenty year member would get a new policy for $775 instead of $1,000, if he entered at thirty years would be given a new policy for $632, and if at forty years a policy for $535.

Mr. Stevenson frankly informed the members that the assessment rates in force previously to 1899 were entirely too small. He cited the instances of the A. O. U. W., where similar action was found to be necessary. It is believed that a large proportion will agree to accept the new plan and either accept reduced policies or an increase in assessments.

A New Hymnal for Methodist Schools.

A new hymnal maybe prepared for the Methodist Sunday Schools of Canada.

Acting on a request of the Methodist Sunday School Association of Montreal, the Book Room Committee have decided to go into the question, and have appointed a special committee, consisting of Mr. J. W. Knox, Montreal, convenor; Rev. R. N. Burns, D. D., and Rev. W. B. Creighton, Toronto, and Mr. J. H. Carson, Montreal. These will report to the Executive next November.

The chief criticism of "The Canadian Hymnal," the book now in use, is that it is ageing, having been compiled about fifteen years ago. A number of new hymns have been added since then, but it is proposed to discard a number and add others.

To Move off A Cold.

Cough mixtures "dope" a cold—but don't cure. Above all else, keep the bowels regular and stimulate the eliminating organs. More valuable than any cough syrup are Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They clear the system of every trace of cold—the dull headache, aching limbs, and cough disappears. Take the pills before retiring, they work while you sleep, and by morning your cold is broken and passquickly away. All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills in 25 ct boxes.

FOUND THE ORE IN TRUNK.

J. J. Hall Arrested as Receiver of Stolen Silver.

Toronto, May 13.—About a thousand dollars in Cobalt silver ore was found in the trunk and hand-bag of Joseph James Hall, a well-known Cobalt jeweller, doing business in the Opera block at the Silver City. He was arrested in this city as the receiver of stolen silver ore. Hall refuses to say from whom he obtained it. The Mine Owners' Association at Cobalt of the fact that a quantity of ore was being shipped to Toronto in a trunk, and they telephoned to Thiel's Detective Service, and the city police to arrest the owner of the trunk. Mr. Frank Culver, a director of the Silver Queen Mining Company, at Cobalt, and Mr. Robert Bryce, the superintendent of the same mine, came down to give any information they could.

James E. Stein, of the Thiel Detective Service, yesterday morning watched Hall's trunk as it was taken off the Cobalt special, and helped the express porter to carry it up to a room at a down-town hotel. Meanwhile Inspector Duncan had received a wire from Chief of Police Caldbeck of Cobalt to arrest Hall, and Detectives Tipton, Guthrie and Murray were told off to apprehend him When Hall came into the hotel he was told that he was believed to have the trunk full of illegally-obtained silver, and the men went up to search. They found altogether about 175 pounds of silver, worth about six dollars a pound, or about a thousand dollars altogether

Besides having the trunk full of ore, he had a small handbag in which the ore had been packed, and the straw cases used to express beer bottles in had also been utilized to hide the silver away. All the ore is believed to have come from the Kerr Lake Mining Company's shafts, but representatives from the various companies at Cobalt will be down to-day to identify it.

Are You Subject to Colds?

An Evening With the Foresters.

Last evening the Canadian Order Foresters invited the public to a box social given in the town hall and to which a large number took advantage and by the reports of the affair they were well repaid. During the evening a good program was produced and among others who were instrumental for the success of the affair were the McMillian Family, who are always well received; also the Misses Beattie and Saucier in violin solos and Miss Hazel Franklin in solos; in which all excelled in their selections

The Canadian Order Foresters, wish, through the RECORD, to express their sincere thanks to all who were instrumental in making the social the success it was. After the social an assembly was given to all those wishing to participate. The proceeds of the evening amounted to about $50.00.

REMOVE THE CAUSE.

How to Remedy Much of the Suffering in Chesterville.

There is hardly a family in Chesterville where there are not one or more members who suffer at times from the effects of a weak stomach.

It may be that this occurs only after eating some food that does not agree, or because of a supper late at night; or it may be that the stomach is so weak that scarcely any food can be eaten without pain and distress.

The only way to treat a condition of this kind successfully is with Mi-o-na. It removes the cause of indigestion, weakness of the muscles of the stomach and bowels, and restores the whole digestive system to health and strength so that it takes care of all the food that is eaten.

When the stomach is weak, indigestion is followed by flatulence, dizziness, headaches, sleeplessness and many other disagreeable symptoms. The one remedy that can be absolutely relied upon to cure this condition is Mi-o-na, for this removes the cause of the suffering, the weakness of the stomach and intestinal tract and restores health and strength so that all food is digested without pain or suffering.

Get well and strong by using Mi-o-na tablets. Take the remedy at the first symptom of indigestion, when you can be cured easily with a few doses. However, no case of stomach trouble is too severe or chronic to overcome.

Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere for 50 cents, and we positively guarantee to refund your money should you purchase a box and be dissatisfied with results. Write for free sample, addressing Booth's Mi-o-na, Box 977, Buffalo, N.Y. For sale by W. G. Bolster

FROZEN WHEAT FED TO DAIRY CATTLE

Central Experimental Farm Found it Gave Entirely Satisfactory Results.

April 2, '08.—The report of the Central Experimental Farms experiments with frozen wheat as food for dairy cattle, is given today.

When fed to milch cows, results were quite satitfactory. A number of cows, receiving as a meal ration a mixture of 8 parts bran and 3 parts gluten, were changed to a meal ration of 5 parts No. 1 frozen wheat and 3 parts bran. They did as well on the new ration as on the old. By this change the cost of the meal was reduced by about one-fifth. For this class of stock

It appeared Very Important to Grind the Wheat Very Fine.

For the benefit of those not familar with gluten, it may be said that in feeding qualities and composition the wheat compares very favorably with oil cake meal.

We have the only machine in the country that will grind this frozen wheat as it should be ground for feeding purposes. Makes it fine and white like flour.

$25.00 PER TON

What about sowing a few bushels of wheat this year? Flour costs money now. Our seed wheat is ready.
