Centennial Committee sponsors interfaith service community hall well filled last Sunday night

Chesterville Community Hall was comfortably filled Sunday night. The Interfaith Service, sponsored by the local Centennial committee was a complete success.

A massed choir under the direction of Mrs Allison Graham filled the hall with music. The members of the visiting clergy led the congregation through the printed liturgy, the hymns and prayers.

The Rev. L. M. Ferguson opened the service with an introduction and a prayer. The Rev. Lorne Trimble read the Scriptures and Father J. J. Collins introduced the guest preacher. Mr J. Jensen led the liturgy.

Father Edward Blanchard is a professor at the Redemptorist seminary of Brockville. He spoke feelingly on the need for more understanding between the faiths of Canada. It was his feeling that the time has come for a closer look at ecumenical understanding between the groups that make up the Christian world. Father Blanchard noted the great improvement in understanding that has taken place in just five years between the two largest groups, the Roman Catholic and Protestant communities.

The unity of the great land of Canada, the speaker said, will have a much greater reality when religious thought is based on more and closer understanding between the Christian churches.

Chesterville Centennial Committee members staged their first big event of the celebration year. An interfaith service was held in Community Hall to a large congregation. Guest preacher was the Rev. Father Edward Blanchard, Brockville. Clergymen participating in the service are shown here with Centennial committee chairman Emerson Johnston at the left, Father J. J. Collins, sub-committee chairman of the meeting, Rev. L. M. Ferguson, Father Blanchard, Mr. J. Jensen and Rev. Lorne Trimble — Record Staff Photo.

OPP Release interesting statistics

Drivers in Dundas County finished up the year in excellent fashion. With people being killed or injured in traffic accidents all around us, there were no serious accidents reported to this Detachment during the holiday season. Drinking drivers were at a minimum. Could this mean that someone is taking heed to the pile of statistics that continues to grow higher each year? We hope that the people in this county regard this as sort of "a feather in their hat" and endeavour to follow this example all through this New Year. Maybe together we can prevent that pile of statistics from getting too high. To give you an idea of what is ahead of us, here is a list of 1966 statistics for Dundas County.

Personal Injury Accidents 61, fatal accidents 5, property damage accidents 342, persons killed 6, persons injured 106.

How much of this was necessary? I would think none of it is. Here however, is another list of statistics that I would have to say is necessary.

In 1966 OPP officers in Dundas County patrolled approximately 470,000 miles of highway and secondary roads Total number of hours on duty was 31,200 hours some of which was dedicated to criminal work and gneral law enforcement. Total number of traffic charges laid was 2355. Traffic warnings issued totalled 1148.

It seems a pity to think that next year both of these lists will be even higher. We, as policemen, are willing to do all we can to prevent these senseless accidents. What about you as drivers?

Morewood Ladies Aid holds meeting

The Ladies Aid of Morewood Presbyterian Church, met in the hall to review the year's work and were surprised with the number of activities which were accomplished. The greatest effort would be the redecoratng of the hall inside and out.

Each monthly meeting usually had some business to care for and the production of another quilt, which seems to be very much in demand, was completed.

The officers were reinstated for 1967 with everyone feeling it could mean another successful year. The usual, games, contests and carol singing was held and the meeting was wound up with a complete Chrristmas dinner. The tables and room were tastefully decorated for the occasion. It was unfortunate, through illness, a few of the members were unable to be present.

On Friday, Dec. 23, a Church School Christmas Party was held with the classes under the instruction of their teachers presented a very fine program.

Awards were presented to the students for atetndance, good work and catechism study. Many parents and friends were present. Everyone was pleased to see the new student minister, his wife and new baby out.

After some games and exercises the evening closed with a very nice lunch and treats.

Former Avon. minister named assistant in Ottawa charge

On New Year's Day Rev. John MacKay, a former mnister of St. James' United Church, Avonmore, was installed as assistant minister of St James' United Church, Ottawa.

Dr. MacKay, who has gone to Ottawa after a lengthy pastorate in Chalmers-Wesley Church at Quebec City, served the Avonmore Church from 1928 to 1932 and at Winchester from 1932 to 1935 He was minister of MacKay United Church, Ottawa, from 1935 to 1945, and was president of the Montreal - Ottawa Conference in 1950. He went to Quebec City in 1945 where he served until this year.

Two sons have followed their father in the ministry of the United Church. Rev. Douglas MacKay serves the Williamstown Martintown charge and Rev Harold MacKay is at University Hill United Church in Vancouver. A third son, Murray, is a mathematics teacher in Quebec City High School.

S. H. L. off to good start Sr. and Jr. teams organized

A large number of avid players got the newly formed North Stormont Junior Hockey League off to a good start with a double-header exhibition game last Saturday afternoon.

Osnabruck Centre took the opener by a score of ten to four over Avonmore and Finch edged a win over Berwick four to three.

All future games are double-headers which will be played on Tuesday, Thursday and Friday nights and Saturday afternoons.

On Thursday night Avonmore Juniors vs Berwick Juniors, Finch Seniors vs Lunenburg Seniors. Friday Chesterville Srs. vs Lunenburg Srs., Avonmore Srs. vs Finch Srs.

A fine sheet of ice was provided for the four North Stormont Hockey League teams as they met for the first time at the Finch Community Centre on Friday night in what would be their last encounter for 1966.

Perhaps the Chesterville and Finch-Berwick entries had listened to the safety tip as broadcast by the O.P.P. wherein motorists were advised to take temperature of icy roads by selecting a safe area where they could apply their brakes to get the feel of the highway. In any case, though on a slippery surface, both teams seemed more interested in testing each others tempers rather than taking temperatures and at times almost forgot about applying brakes.

In this interesting first game of the double bill Chesterville captured the first period 2 to 0 and the second 2 to 1. Finch-

Maurice Stoddart --

Faulty exhaust's fumes kills sleeping driver

A mechanic whose car had a faulty exhaust system was iccidentally killed by carbon monoxide gas in his car alongside County Road 11, about three miles couth-west of Finch.

The body of Maurice Stoddart, 49, of RR 1, Finch, was found in the car about 2.15 p.m. Sunday by Sylvio Lachapelle of RR 1, Finch.

Mr Stoddart was declared dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. L. M. Emard of Cornwall who said he would decide whether an inquest should be held upon receiving the report of investigating officer Constable G. R. Holmes of Long Sault detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Describing the death as an accident, police said Mr Stoddart apparently got tired, stopped his car to rest and never woke up.

He leaves his wife, Mrs Margaret Bertha Stoddart, 35, and three children, Donna Louise, 12, Eric Robert, 8, and Tina Marlene, 4.

Mr Stoddart was self-employed at his home on Highway 43 halfway between Finch and Chesterville since leaving his job with a Kemptville garage about three weeks ago.

Police said an investigation of his car revealed that the tail pipe was broken off at the muffler and not properly secured to the engine. Floor-boards of the vehicle were patched and had holes in them.

A passing motorist saw Mr Stoddart slumped in the front seat of the car about 7.30 a.m. Sunday, about four hours before Mr Lachapelle discovered the body.

Police said the motorist assumed Mr Stoddart was sleeping.

The body was taken to Cornwall where a post mortem was performed.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

The beginning of a new year is always a dificult time. Here at the family Castle, the walls are hung with lists of good resolutions. Season after season, we decide just what we will do to make the world and, incidentally, our own small part of it a better place.

We head the list with a firm resolve to be better natured. Over the years that resolve lasts for about three days. Then someone takes aim on a couple of joints in our favorite philosophical facade, and away we go in a knock 'em down argument. So much for being good natured. Invariably, when we get into an argument, our side wins, but only because it is hard for a zephyr to stand up to a hurricane.

The smoking bit is easier to maintain. One of the reasons for such a sturdy life to that resolution is that we have been away from the weed now for 14 years. At one time we lived in a halo of pipe smoke and wet tobacco heels that would do justice to a native of Perique. Our first thought in the night when awakened by the family owl, was to light up a nail, then find who was bothering who. Now, the vice president just gives the whole thing up and investigates the matter herself. It was not any pleasure to give up the habit, but like marriage, one gets used to the idea after a while; except that in marriage, one can go deer hunting once a year.

'Love that Diefenbaker fellow" is farther down on the list. Right beside it is the line: "And Pearson pleads for pity, too." All in all, Canadian politicians are in need of more than love. They cry for understanding and at the moment, even the United States can't undestand Canada. Fortunately a political resolution is hardly worth the struggle. We are in the midst of a sweat and flurry over our hundredth Canadian birthday and that will absorb most of the extra bile. By the time the year is over, the leaders will be positively sunburned from being exposed to the public gaze.Both the old leaders will probably be ready to sink into history and let the rest of the lieutenants take over.

Mead is for the masses and in the new year we will maintain our excellent reputation in that respect. When the wind is in the right quarter across the west meadow, the residents of our small settlement know the brew is heading up. An aroma, changing by the season, ranges from the Bavarian lustiness of sauer kraut to winy grape to malty mead. Experimental batches of this and that erupt occasionally from the mead room and offer competition to Jim Moonie's products on the other side of the hill.

Our best resolution of all is to continue to help get out the only newspaper published in Chesterville that cares a darn about the people of Chesterville and district. Twenty-six years after Canada's official birth, this family project got underway. Over the years it has grown and flourished in the rich food of acceptance by our subscribers. Three families have operated it with the present managers stretching the line since 1915. The "Record" has swung with the hard times of the Thirties, drifted with the rough war years and blossomed with the present decade. It has more modern machinery than the Castle ever will and it also has much of the old that puts a patina of excellence over some of the newness.

Here at the Castle we are surrounded by good resolutions. Most of them we break almost at once. One we mean most sincerely: Happy New Year.

Happy New Year

A new year has started and with it a brand new century for Canada. Here at the "Record' we are comparatively young as we work along in our 74th year.

It has been a good year for Chesterville and district. Weather problems were few and far between; it has been a pleasant change. The past few years have been more than difficult for the countryman.

The village has moved along. Assessments have risen to a new high. Employment has remained at almost 100% and work in district industries is readily available for all hands.

Village council here will find a couple of new faces on hand on opening day. New faces and new brooms may go together. It never hurts to test rigid patterns in a new mold. Sometimes the changes are welcome.

The new year should see some action at last on a village sewer system. It has been long in the works and by now the gestation period should be over.

This newspaper is grateful for many things. The continued support of our many subscribers, our many faithful correspondents and above all our continuous advertisers are offered the best wishes of the season and our thanks for a successful year.

Happy New Year.

What will next century bring?

At midnight, Saturday night, a beginning was made on Canada's year-long celebrations in observance of Confederation—the joining of Upper ad Lower Canada to form a single nation from the Atlantic to Pacific Oceans.

Confederation was not achieved easily, observes the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder. It required four years of complex negotiations with England, the Mother Country, before the British North America Act was approved to become effective July 1, 1867. What has transpired since has been an amazing story replete with successes and also set-backs. Through everything Canada has forged steadily ahead to become one of the world's great middle powers.

Sir John A. Macdonald was the chief architect of Confederation, ably assisted by outstanding men from the two Canadas. Without their invaluable aid, it is extremely doubtful if Confederation could have been achieved.

In war and peace, Canada has made worthwhile contributions to the type of freedom and democracy currently enjoyed by nations of the Western world. As she embarks on her second century of nationhood, Canada still is playing a vital role industrially, agriculturally, diplomatically, peace-keeping and in many other spheres of world and humanitarian activity.

The past 100 years will be commemorated in various ways during the ensuing year. Simultaneously, Canada will not stand still simply to celebrate. She will continue to progress and expand and do everything possible to fulfil her her world's role as a middle power. Canada enters her second century as a single nation with numerous and complex problems. Throughout the first 100 years there were problems galore, but most of them eventually were solved successfully.

Canada ranks as one of the world's most affluent nations. Basically, the country was noted for its agriculture. Now, its industrial prowess overshadows agriculture. Yet Canada still can be ranked more or less as a fledgling nation, with almost limitless, untapped, natural resources. The next 100 years should see it advance as never before, barring unforeseen circumstances such as war. In practially every field of endeavour it has kept pace and even outpaced countries of similar size.

It was Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who said many years ago, that the 20th century belonged to Canada. Historians will have to assess that statement. However, the remaining years of this and those of the next century should bring health, wealth, progress and prosperity to Canada, provided the necessary unity of its founding races can be maintained and strengthened.

Funeral servces for George Ralph Rupert, 81, a former resident of Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge, were held at Meldrum Funeral Home, at 3 p.m., Saturday, with Rev. Cecil A Dawson officiating. Mr Rupert died Friday, at Cornwall General Hospital.

Born in Northfietld Station, he was a son of the late Samuel Rupert and the former Millie Harris. Mr Rupert was predeceased by both his first and second wives, the former Carrie Hill and the former Lillian Leland.

A resident of Mille Roches for more than 40 years before becoming a resident of the Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge, Mr Rupert was a member of St. Andrew's United Church in Long Sault. He was employed until his retirement as a master mechanic by the Provincial Paper Company when it was located at Mille Roches.

The body was placed in the vault of St. Lawrence Valley Union cemetery to await spring burial.

CABBAGES BRIGHTEN CITY FLOWER BOXES

The manufacturing city of Luton, England, has cabbages growing in the main street.

They are great big garde cabbages planted in desperation by Parks Director Robert English.

"In a big industrial town such as ours we wanted something colourful, green and beautiful in the streets," he says. "We first tried geraniums, they were quite pretty and brightened up the streets no end, and then things began happening to them."

They shrank.

"Yes, they shrank — here, I'll show you what happened." He held out a handful of deformed plants.

"This is what happened after they were exposed to the fumes of ordinary motor traffic for a few weeks.

"The diesel and petrol fumes from the passing buses and motor cars settled on them and you can see the disastrous result."

English began to think about what sort of plant might stand up to the fumes of the combustion engine—a device which Luton turns out by the thousands at big automotive factories.

"Then I thought of cabbages," he said.

That was two years ago.

They stood up to the exhaust fumes.

"By planting different types of cabbage we've been able to introduce colour," he observed. "They're selected strains and they may look so colourful as to look artificial, but they're not."

The cabbages make a spirited display of yellow, yellow green, dark purple and light purple.

"Cabbages are a lot cheaper than geraniums, too," he said. "They cost us about a penny whereas the geraniums cost the city about a half crown (35 cents) each."

ATTIC LOUVRES HELP KEEP HOUSE DRY

One excellent way to help eliminate wet walls, sweating and frosted windows and general dampness in a house in winter is to have attic louvers.

These louvers provide a means for the moisture in the house to escape and if it gets outside it can't cause any trouble. Now most homes do have attic louvers but in spite of this they have a condensation problem in winter. Something must be the matter and usually something is.

Lots of people close up the attic louvers in winter because they feel they'll save heat. They will probably save some heat but they may have to pay for it with a serious condensation problem. If you've been in the habit of closing off the attic louvers in winter and you've been bothered by too much moisture in your home, open the louvers.

The rule book says that for the average house, there should be about one square foot of free opening in the attic for every 300 square feet of attic floor space. Trouble is that in a lot of cases the opening is not free—it's louvered which cuts down on the free area and it's also covered with screening which reduces even more the movement of air through the louver.

For a louvered and screened opening you may have to have three square feet of opening for every 300 square feet of attic floor space. Also, a louver isn't going to be effective if it's blocked off by stuff stored in the attic or if it's not high enough.

The attic louver should be as close to the peak of the roof as possible. If it is far below the highest point of the roof, moist air will collect above it and condensation will occur on the underside of the roof sheathing.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The community we live in could be Anywhere, U.S.A. Here is my problem. I am a school teacher who sees children five days a week. Yet every Sunday morning my wife thinks we should load our station wagon with hte neighbours' kids and take them to church.

These youngsters are not taken to church by their own parents for the following reasons:

(a) The husband is in the service and the wife says she can't take three kids to church by herself. So she stays home and we take them.

(b) The mother has a six-month-old child and no one to leave him with. I guess she has never heard of hiring a sitter. So she stays home and we take her two little girls to church.

(c) This woman has insomnia and can't get to sleep before dawn. She says it is impossible to get up at 8 a.m. and take her sons to church, so she sleeps till noon and we take them.

We raised a family and took our children to church all by ourselves. Do you feel we should go out of our way to give the neighbour kids religion?—A Poor Samaritan.

Dead Poor Sam.: You and your wife sound like wonderful people and I hope you will continue to do this good work. You are not doing it for the lazy, irresponsible mothers. You are doing it for the kids, and I say God bless you.

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters fro... who tell you they are unmarried and pregnant. But you have never printed a letter telling what happens to the girls after they have had their babies.

Do any of these social outcasts meet nice men and get married? If so, do they tell their husbands about their past before they marry? I should be honest with you and confess that I am not quite 16 and in two weeks I am going to the Florence Crittenton Home. Right now I feel like I will always be considered "damaged goods" and no respectable man would want me if he learned the truth. Will I ever get over feeling this way?—Pail in Full.

Dear Paid: I have received and published many letters from girls who have out-of-wedlock babies, and I can tell you that some of them do meet and marry nice men.

When a girl asks me if she should tell her prospective husband about her baby, my answer is unequivocally "Yes." If he is unable to forgive and forget that part of her life, the time to find out is before marriage.

Please stop thinking of yourself as "damaged goods." One mistage does not brand you as worthless. Some girls emerge from this unfortunate experience wiser and more compassionate—and you can, too.

GROW TOMATOES WITHOUT SOIL

Chuck and Shirley Lindsay, of Lincoln, N.B., hope to produce from 1b to 18 tons of tomatoes from the 3,200 plants in their four greenhouses starting at Christmas.

The Lindsays are trying something relatively new in greenhouse culture in New Brunswick. The tomato plants are being grown in a mixture of peat moss and vermiculite, a medium that supplies no nitrogen. A commercial fertilizer solution is added to the weekly watering to supply the necessary nitrogen, phosphorous and other chemicals normally found in soil.

The Lindsays hope to have a six-week harvest from Christmas on and estimate about 10 to 15 pounds of tomatoes for each plant. New seedlings will replace the harvested plants for another crop next July.

THE BIBLE TODAY . .

New Year, New Testament, new translation! Of the many modern translations of the New Testament into English that are now on the market, the newest is entitled Today's English Version. Sales of this are rapidly reaching the stature of a best seller.

First published by the American Bible Society on September 19, as part of the 150th Anniversary of this Society, orders are being received in New York at the rate of 3,000 a day. In addition, well over 75,000 have been shipped overseas.

In simple, direct English, this version was originally planned to meet the needs of those whose second language is English. Its fresh approach and contemporary use of the English language is making this book welcome among almost all classes of English speaking people around the world.

Sales in some areas of Canada are most encouraging. One store in Ontario sold nearly 500 copies in one week.

Recently recorded for the use of blind people, the TEV (Today's English Version) New Testament, is proving that God's Word is still heard and read by many people today.

IGUANA GOOD PET —MAYBE

Lorne Parkman, of Toronto, awoke one morning and stared straight into the beady eyes of his three-foot iguana, which has teeth like razor blades and a tail lash that can break a dog's leg.

"I just didn't dare move an inch," said Lorne, "because when he gets scared by quick movements he gets nasty."

Except for such incidents, the 15-year-old schoolboy enjoys his lizard pet, a throwback to the stone age.

"I'm hoping he'll grow to six feet. I've read they can reach that length."

The iguana, really a small dinosaur that is a native of some parts of the southern United States, makes a fine alarm clock, Lorne said in an interview.

At its accustomed time, it jumps on the beds of Lorne and Basil Parkman, a nephew, who shares his basement room, and runs up and down until they get up.

"When he starts whipping about he moves so fast you can't see his tail moving," said Lorne.

The secret of handling the pet Lorne calls Whip is to move toward him slowly. Basil once moved too quickly and received a tail lash across the mouth that took five months to heal.

The lizard is easy to feed. Basically a vegetarian, he loves cabbage. He'll also dine on earthworms.

Ontario Hydro celebrated its diamond jubilee in 1966. The contrast between the old vehicle (upper left) and a new bucket truck, below, tells the story of changes in Hydro's operations in those 60 years. In the next 10 years existing generating capacity will have to be more than doubled to meet power requirements. Thermal stations, both coal-fired and nuclear, will play a major role in this. The reactor at Douglas Point, Canada's first full-scale nuclear plant, went into operation late in the year. Construction of Hydro's Pickering nuclear station, east of Toronto, continues day and night (upper right). In these stations a controlled nuclear reaction takes the place of burning coal in the production of steam. The electricity is generated by conventional equipment like this turbo-generator at Douglas Point (centre right). Hydro-electric stations will continue to play an important role—new plants are being built and the capacity of existing ones increased. Forms for water-carrying tubes of a two-unit extension at Barrett Chute on the Madawaska River are shown lower right.

Ladies' Fellowship Night well attended at Avonmore

Attended by 80 persons representing many of the congregations throughout the Presbytery, the fourth annual Ladies' Fellowship Night, sponsored by the Presbyterian Men's Council of the Presbytery of Glengarry, was held in St. Andrew's Church Hall, Avonmore, last Wednesday evening.

A sumptuous repast, served smorgasbord style, was enjoyed by all, following the Return of Thanks by Rev Hugh Wilson, who later, on behalf of the local men's group and the Kirk Session, warmly welcomed the many friends to the Avonmore church.

Allan McIntyre, with Mrs Neil Bush, as accompanist, led in the singing of several of the familiar carols.

Arthur Smith, Lancaster, entertained by reciting several of Henry Drummond's masterpieces.

Two of the young men, presently studying for the Christian ministry, Robert Fourney of Lancaster, and Jens Jensen, Chesterville, brought greetings and thanked the local men for their continuing interest and support.

Guest speakers for the evening were Mr and Mrs Douglas Hunter, of Morewood, both of whom have had extensive experience among the Indians of Northern Ontario. Mr Hunter taught for a number of years at the Cecilia Jeffrey School at Kenora and Mrs Hunter served as a deaconess on a nearby reservation.

Mr and Mrs Hunter gave an interesting and inspiring account of their years among the Canadian Indians. They disspelled some of the false impressions that are held by Canadians of white ancestry concerning their fellow Canadians. Both speakers encouraged their hearers to consider the various avenues of service that might be available to them in an effort to reach the Canadian Indians for Christ and His Church.

Mrs E. L. Blair, Moose Creek, warmly thanked Mr and Mrs Hunter on behalf of guests and members.

Complementing the addresses, a fine filmstrip, with an accompanying recording, "Two Stranyers," recently released by The Presbfterian Church in Canada, was viewed with great interest.

Special guest at the dinner was Miss Bessie J. Banfill, of Avonmore, the well-known writer who spent many years in various parts of Canada serving as a nurse among underprivileged groups.

On behalf of the members of the Presbytery Council, Miss Banfill presented Mr and Mrs Hunter with an autographed copy of her new book "With the Indians of the Pacific" as a memento of their visit to Avonmore.

Climaxing the very memorable evening was an impressive worship service, expressing faith and hope at the close of the Old Year and the beginning of the New Year, conducted by Mrs Hugh Wilson of Avonmore, with Rev Mr Wilson offering the closing prayer.

HONEY EXPORTS GROW WITH THE QUALITY

In 1965, the honey export grossed Canada's beekeeping industry $2,070,000 — about 170 times the export value in 1955 with only 90 times the amount of honey.

"In the past," explains Ontario Agricultural College Apiculture Specialist Professor P. W. Burke, "shippers made the mistake of exporting second class produce. Now our honey exports are the best quality in the world. Our honey is being demanded specially on the European market. Perhaps the biggest change, "he adds," in in Britain, where they are buying containers of honey ready for the grocer's shelf. Formerly, they bought it in bulk to mix with other imported honeys". In 1965, Canadian beekeepers produced 49 million pounds, exporting eight million. Slightly over four million pounds were imported into Canada.

While the cost of one pound of honey in Ontario was twenty cents last year (only a two-cent rise in ten years) the price might be somewhat higher next year. Drought striking Ontario this summer prevented crops from blossoming, and in some areas there's not even enough honey to feed the bees through the winter.

During the post office's conversion of London telephone numbers to the all-figure system, a brewery was given the prefix 253—letter equivalent of ALE.

PLANTS CANADIAN MAPLES IN BRITAIN

Hundreds of Canadian red maple trees will soon be dotting parks and gardens throughout Britain. "Wherever they grow, Canada will be with us," says the man who dreafed up the idea, E. A. S. Brooks of Maidenhead, Eng.

Mr Brooks felt that the maples planted on building estates, verges and parks, would bring a splash of red among the gold and browns of the autumn, but found after a visit to Ottawa in 1965 that not only were the trees too difficult to obtain in England, but that they were too expensive —at about $3.00 each—for local civic societies or individuals. Another potential stumbling block, that red faples might not grow well in England, was removed when Mr Brooks discovered that the Queen has several near Windsor and that other specimens are flourishing in private gardens in the Thames Valley.

So Mr Brooks asked a Toronto friend to send him a supply of the seeds, and in May of this year they arrived. Mr Brooks planted seeds in his own garden, others in the local corporation nursery, in private greenhouses, and many hundreds more in the care of Greater London Council Parks Department for the Civic Trust, an authority with some 400 affiliated civic societies throughout England.

THE WAY TO DO IT

Kent, Eng., motorist Maurice Lugg, unable to diagnose the knocking in the engine of his 18-year-old car, sent a tape-recording of the noise to the factory 90 miles away.

Mechanics told him it was a faulty fuel pump, so he fixed it.

Mary Munroe

The many friends and relatives of Mary Maria Munroe were saddened to learn of her death on Monday morning, December 26, 1966, following a lengthy illness in the hospital at Woodstock, Ontario. She was 77.

Born at Nation Valley on September 23, 1889, she was a daughter of the late Calvin Munroe and his wife Kazie Bailey.

After being educated in the local schools she took up the dress-making trade, thus making many friends in the surrounding district. She was an ardent seamstress and many of her masterpieces were entered at local fairs. She was also a great lover of flowers and enjoyed working with them.

Surviving her is a sister, Mrs Wm. MacPherson (Lutheria), a half-sister Mrs Ralph Gray (Ida), both of Nation Valley and a half-brother, Jim Munroe of Ottawa. She was predeceased by two brothers, John and Enos and by a sister Grace.

The funeral service conducted by Rev. Gordon was held at the Vice and Craig Funeral Home, Chesterville at 2 p.m. on December 28th Interment followed in the Maple Ridge Cemetery.

Pall bearers were: Munroe cousins of the deceased, Charles, Calvin, Edwin, Harold, Lyle and Myles.

NITROGEN, PHOSPHORUS AID CROP YIELDS

Nitrogen and phosphorus applications sharply boosted yields of barley and rapeseed crops on stubble land in fertilizer trials this year at Melfort, reports Dr W. F. Nuttall, a specialist in soil fertility at the CDA Experimental Farm, Melfort, Sask.

Fertilized plots of rapeseed produced yields that averaged 400 pounds, or 41 per cent, more per acre than untreated check plots. Fertilization boosted barley yields by 18 bushels per acre, or 32 per cent.

arious combinations of nitrogen and phosphorus were tested and three rates of application were used for eash. Maximum yield was obtained with the use of 120 pounds of ammonium nitrate (33.5-0-0) and 40 pounds of 11-48-0 per acre.

The yield insrease obtained from the fertilizers is not surprising in view of the low level of available nitrogen in the soil of untreated plots. Soil tests last fall showed an aerage level for all plots of only 10 pounds per acre of nitrate-nitrogen.

SEES PLENTY FROM TOP OF FLAGPOLE

Suspended 97 feet in the air, the steeplejack wielded the paint brush expertly at the top of the flagpole at Padee Hall on the campus of Lafayette College, Philadelphia.

There was a major difference between this steeplejack and most others, though, Karen Klo Jones, 23, was doing the painting.

Blonde, five-foot-four and 124 pounds, Karen had planned to be a school teacher. But her father, Tony Klo, is a steeplejack and so are two of her brothers. One weekend when she was home from Mansfield State College she volunteered to help on a busy Saturday.

Ever since she's been helping out when things are busy.

"Up there it's absolutely beautiful," says Karen. "No matter how high I have to go, I always take a moment to look around. It is a sight that few others see."

Karen reports only one close call: When her ropes broke while she was atop a 147-foot pole. Fortunately she had one hand around the pole and her father, working nearby, was able to send wire up to the top of the pulley. She used this to repair the rope.

Seated in a bosun's chair, Karen begins her ascent up a pole by looping ropes around it, working her way slowly to the top. All the while she sands and scrapes. The journey up usually takes an hour and a half. She paints while coming down — which takes about as much time as going up.

Since her first ascent, at the age of 17, Karen has married and now has a two-year-old son.

In France, the best sardines are aged as carefully as vintage wines before consumption.

FIVE PERCENT OF CARS TO USE STUDDED TIRES

About five per cent of Canada's cars will be equipped with studded tires this winter. Fred G. Garner, tire division manager of B. F. Gooderich Canada Ltd., said his company was experiencing a booming consumer demand for tires fith the tiny metal spikes

Now that studded tires are legal across Canada and the use of studded tires is advocated by the Canadian Highway Safety Council, we can expect even more interest by safety conscious motorists," said Mr Garner.

With about one car in 20 equipped with studded tires, major tire manufacturers are producing almost all winter tires with small holes or pockets molded into the tread so dealers can insert studs into the tire. Safety officials recommend nearly 100 studs to a tire. Mr Garner said more than half of the cars using Canadian highways are now equipped with winter snow tires, at least on the two rear wheels.

While the legality of studded tires was in question last year, all provinces now have legislation which allows use of studded tires by motorists during the winter months. Four provinces, British Columbia, Manitoba, Nova Scotia and Newfoundland, authorize the uhe of studded tires during specific months of the winter season. The other provinces have no prohibitive legislation affecting studded winter tires.

Tests conducted by safety, transport and highway officials show greatly improved traction and braking distances, said Mr Garner. He said the Motor Vehicle Research Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin concluded that studs reduce braking distance from a speed of 20 mph on glare ice by 21 per cent as compared with new highway tires.

TINY DEVICE OPERATES PHONOGRAPH

A phonograph that operates on a tiny electronic device no larger than the pupil of your eye has been developed by Westinghouse Electric Corp.

W. C. Fortune, marketing manager, said the device is called an integrated circuit, also known as a "chip" because it is made of a tiny piece of silicon. A single chip will perform all the functions formerly done by electrical circuitry, transistors, resistors, capacitors and other components of conventional phonographs.

In all, the chip replaces 18 separate electronic items. It is equivalent to 39 transistors, diodes and resistors that would be used to modify and amplify electronic signals in a conventional phonograph.

Fortune said the chip, only 50 - thousandths of one inch thick, transcends the relatively recent transistor revolution in electronics in about the same proportion as the transistor by-passed the old vacuum tube.

Two hair-like wires carry sound from the tone arm cartridge to the chip, two other wires supply power into the chip from batteries and a third pair of tiny wires transmit the sound from the chip to the phonograph speaker.

USE FALCONS TO FRIGHTEN SEABIRDS

The Royal Navy air base at Lossiemouth on the northeast coast of Scotland counters the menace of seabirds to jet planes with falcons.

Authorities purchased three falcons to clear the runways of seagulls that threatened to cause accidents by blocking the jet intakes of planes taking off and landing at Lossiemouth.

The birds of prey, already partly trained for sport, were purchased in Algeria and Pakistan for between $20 and $25 each.

A sailor son of a gamekeeper with some experience of falconry took charge of the birds, watching their weights carefully and feeding them just enough for fitness but not too much to erase their desire to hunt.

When gulls become a nuisance, the sailor-falconer takes a falcon to the runway, unmasks and releases it. The falcon swoops on a gull and the victim's death shrieks frighten away the other birds.

....STUDDED TIRES ALLOWED ON ALL CANADIAN ROADS

Studded tires are permitted or tolerated on the highways of every province in Canada, according to the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

The Council, in a survey, found that legislation enacted by provincial governments during the past year has made it possible to drive a motor vehicle equipped with studded tires without fear of breaking the law. In four provinces, the time for using studded tires legally is limited to the winter months. In most instances, a driver may be charged if his studded tires damage the road.

The Council advocates tthe use of studded tires in winter as a safety measure but adds that tire chains provide much greater stopping control.

The Council quotes Professor A. H. Easton, Director of the Motor Vehicle Research Laboratory of the University of Wisconsin: "1966 findings show that the use of new studded tires on the rear wheels of a vehicle will, on the average, reduce braking distance from a speed of 20 mph on glare ice by 21 per cent as compared with new highway tires. Under similar conditions reinforced tire chains on the rear wheels will reduce braking distance by approximately 47 per cent."

The Council adds that snow tires provide a seven per cent improvement in braking distance over conventional highway tires.

British Columbia, the Council reported, permits the use of studded tires between Oct. 1 and March 31 unless there is evidence of road damage. In Alberta and Saskatchewan, studded tires are not prohibited unless road damage occurs. New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island allow their use.

Manitoba permits their use between Nov. 1 and April 30. In Ontario and Quebec they are tolerated unless the road is damaged. Nova Scotia limits them to between Oct 15 and April 15. In Newfoundland the limit is from Nov. 30 to April 16.

With the use of studded tires increasing, the Council warns all motorists to take the shorter stopping distances into account in leaving space beween their vehicles and the vehicles ahead. "Tail-gating is always a perilous procedure," said CHSC, "but with stopping distances shortened considerably with studded tires, rear-end crashes will increase unless every motorist drives to avoid them."

THE WORM TURNS

Jack did much better in the fairy tale with his beanstalk than actor Bob Hill with a wooden replica.

Rehearsing for a little theatre production recently in Prince Rupert, B.C., Mr Hill climbed the beanstalk and it broke—without the aid of Jack chopping it down.

Mr Hill suffered bruises in his 12-foot fall and was treated at the hospital.

Chesterville defeats Avonmore Tues. night in North Stormont hockey league

Chesterville Black Hawks eked out a 7 to 6 win over Avonmore in North Stormont Hockey League play on Tuesday night at the Finch Community Centre.

Leading 3 to 2 in the opening period and 4 to 3 in the middle frame Chesterville gave up the lad early in the final 20 as Avonmore forged ahead 6 to 5. Both goalies saved repeatedly as the teams struggled to better their positions and the Black Hawk's efforts finally paid off as Munro blasted in the tieing counter at the 9-minute mark. The pendulum swung in Chesterville's favour at the 18 minute mark as Pat Burnside sank the winning goal. Fred Harper had three for the winners with Richard Sharkey, Floyd Dingwall, Don Munro and Pat Burnside each getting singles.

Bobby Grant paced the Avonmore attack with 2 goals, singles being added by Murray MacMillan, Ken Ouderkirk, Gordon Robertson and Art Buchanan.

J. Roy and L. Poulin had an easy time officiating in this the 1st game of the New Year being called on to award only 2 penalties, both going to Avonmore.

What has hapened to last year's crowd? You need not waitt for the finals to enjoy trills. The teams are playing their hearts out and deserve your support. Plan now to crank up the gasoline buggy and meet your friends at the Finch arena on the next hockey night in Stormont.

Warm clothing needed on moon trip

A Harvard University astronomer forecast recently good-sized expeditions of earthmen to the moon in 10 to 15 years — with the adventurers tapping their drinking water from the lunar rocks and planting the first lunar gardens.

But he said they'll have to be equipped to do their daytime gardening amid temperatures ranging up to that of boiling water.

And he said if they venture from their shelters at night to check on their moon-plants, they will have to have "pretty heavy red flannel underwear" to withstand temperatures some 240 degrees below zero.

That's the word from Dr Donald Menzel of the Harvard Observatory who also told reporters at the 133rd meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science:

When the explorers run out of food they might bring from the earth, they'll conceivably be able to diet not only on their cultivated moon-plants but on such delicacies as "a form of sand flea that reportedly tastes like shrimp when ground up."

He said the U.S. Army quartermaster corps is experimenting with various forms of vegetative and animal life—such as molds, bacteria and the sand fleas—which theoretically might be cultivated in the virtually near-vacuum conditions of the moon's surface.

The Harvard astronomer, one of a panel of space scientists discussing the latest knowledge of the mon's surface and interior at the big science meeting, told a press conference:

"I think it's possible that some of the rocks on the moon contain what we call 'water of crystallization.' And, if so, there's a real possibility for man — about 10 to 15 years from now — to have self-supporting expeditions on the moon.

"They could perhaps usce solar energy or nuclear energy to melt the rocks, get the water from them, and then use the cooled solid rock residue for building blocks to make shelters.

"And, once they had water, it would be the first step towards planting 'lunar gardens'."

EVERYBODY EATS TRY THESE . . . .

ECONOMICAL LOW CALORIE MILK POWDER

AT THIS TIME OF YEAR the food budget may be suffering as well as the waist line, so to kill two birds with one stone here are some facts and recipes with skim milk powder in mind.

The Department of Agriculture's bulletin on skim milk powder has this to say: "Skim milk is whole milk from which most of the fat has been removed. Vitamin A is lost with the fat but the calcium, riboflavin, protein and other important nutrients present in whole milk are retained and skim milk has a lower caloric value than whole milk."

When using milk powder you may reliquify according to the directions on the package or you may use it dry. When using dry mix with dry ingredients and then add required amount of water.

As well as being useful in cutting calories, skim milk powder may be added to such foods as cooked breakfast cereals, meat loaves, etc., to increase caloric value if you are trying to put on weight.

Cheese Sauce on Toast

2 tbsps. flour
¼ tsp. salt
Few grains paprika
2 tbsps. butter
1 cup reliquefied skim milk
1/3 cup grated cheese

Melt butter in top of boiler; add flour and seasonings slowly. Blend well. Add milk slowly, stirring till smooth. Cook till thickened. Add cheese; stir until melted. Pour over toast.

Serve with a crisp cabbage salad for lunch or supper.

Caramel Custard

3 eggs
¼ cup sugar
¼ tsp. salt
2 cups skimmed milk (reliquefied)
½ tsp. vanilla
½ cup boiling water
½ cup sugar

Combine ¼ cup sugar, eggs and salt; add milk and vanilla. Pour into individual custard cups or one large baking dish. Place dishes in pan of hot water. Cook at 325 degrees until mixture does not adhere to knife. When baked, spoon hot caramel sauce over the top. Cool and serve.

Caramel Sauce: Caramelize ½ cup sugar in heavy frying pan. When a light brown colour add boiling water very slowly, stirring constantly until all sugar is dissolved. Simmer a few minutes.

Whipped Topping

½ cup cold ice water
1 tbsp. lemon juice (optional)
½ cup skim milk powder
2 to 3 tbsps. fine granulated sugar
¼ tsp. vanilla

Measure water and lemon juice into a mixing bowl. Sprinkle skim milk powder on top and beat with a rotary beater until stiff, about 5 minutes. Add sugar and vanilla. Continue beating until well blended. Chill. Use as a topping for desserts. This recipe makes 2½ cups.

Quantity Tea Biscuit Mix

8 cups sifted all - purpose flour
4 tbsps. baking powder
1½ tbsps. salt
2/3 to 1 cup skim milk powder
1 cup shortening

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, salt and skim milk powder. Cut shortening until mixture resembles fine crumbs. Store in a covered container in refrigerator or other cool place.

* * * *

Reliquefy skim milk powder and use as a beverage in place of fresh milk or mix half and half with fresh milk.

* * * *

Use reliquefied milk in cocoa, chocolate milk, soups, escalloped potatoes, custard sauce, macaroni and cheese, etc.

If you keep a box of milk powder on your pantry shelf you will always have extra milk on hand for emergencies.

Milk powder should be kept tightly covered as it is apt to take up moisture and become lumpy. I find I can leave it in the cardboard carton in the winter time but have to transfer it to covered jars in the summer.

NEW ZEALAND BUILDINGS DRAW KIND WORD

New Zealand has at last earned a kind word from a visiting expert for its housing habits. People had begun to think that their home building ideas were contrary to universal authoritative opinion.

A prominent United States building consultant, B. A. Johnson, has told New Zealaders that they are quite right not to pack people into cities, and to hold out for the "sensible idea" of every house in its own plot of land.

The "quarter - acre section" (building lot) is almost a New Zealand national housing slogan. There are hardly any semi-detached houses in the country, nor homes built flush with the street. Even apartment blocks are fairly scarce and only a few towns boast high-density housing blocks of more than a few storeys.

The average New Zealander's ideal is a house set in its own grounds, surrounded by lawns and garden (never called a yard) and often as not kept private from neighbours by hedges or tall fences.

Such an arrangement has many drawbacks, even for the householder. Grass, and weeds, grow rampant in New Zealand all the year round. Lawns must be mown weekly for almost the entire year. Keeping even a small garden tidy invvolves constant hard labour.

Eery home on its own lot causes even greater problems for municipal authorities. New Zealand cities, and even moderate-sized towns, spread over areas greater than taken by a big metropolis in countries where high-density housing is the custom.

Public utility services cost far more when spread over great areas for comparatively few people. Public transport operates at low densities and in consequenre is liable to lose money heavily.

STORMONT HOCKEY—

Berwick dominated the final frame by holding Chesterville scoreless while netting two. Both goalies saved repeatedly as Finch-Berwick pressed to tie the score but the game ended 4-3 in Chesterville's favour. James Harper scored twice for the winners with Don Munro and Fred Harper adding singles. Barry Brownlee earned a hat trick for the losers though only playing for one and one half periods.

In the second game Lunenburg Flyers proved too powerful for Avonmore winning all three periods. The contest was hard fought and reasonably close for the first two periods though Lunenburg captured each by a 3 to 1 score. Lunenburg with greater reserve power wore Avonmore down early in the third period to take the frame 5 to 2 for an 11-4 win. Keith MacGregor paced the Lunenburg squad with four goals. Lynden Wells added three followed by Geo. Raymond with two while Brian McEwan and Percy Brownlee hammered in one each.

Avonmore goals came from Brian Robillard, Ron Beausoleil, Don McMillan and Bob Grant.

Three star selections handed in following the games were as follows: In the first game the first star went to Barry Brownlee for his three goal effort, the second star to James Harper for two goals and the third star being equally divided between Rocky Martin and Peter Monast the rival net minders.

In the final game Keith McGregor earned the first star for 4 goals, the second star was awarded to Lynden Wells for 3 tallies and the third star went to Garry Villeneuve, the Avonmore goalie for a brilliant effort.

The officials, Messrs J. Roy and L. Fitzsimmons handed out 12 penalties in the first game, Finch collecting five while Chesterville gathered in 7. In the second game they awarded 6 free trips to the penalty box, Lunenburg collecting 4 and Avonmore 2.

SEISMOGRAPH IN PARLOUR CONVERSATION PIECE

It was an earth-shaking event the day Dr Charles F. Richter moved the seismograph into the parlour, but now, he says, Mrs Richter "wouldn't be without one."

"She was a little upset at first," the earthquake specialist recalls, "but it was received enthusiastically by her girl friends. It makes a wonderful conversation piece at parties."

Dr Richter, 66, developer of the Richter scale of earthquake magnitude, has been with the seismological laboratory at Pasadena, Calif.—now run by the California Institute of Technology—since 1927.

He's the scientist who is called when an earthquake strikes. His instruments, including the one at home, help give quick clues to the earthquake's strength and location.

The seismological laboratory, nestled among trees and shrubs in an elaborately manicured setting, looks like anything but a laboratory. It is housed in an old mansion overlooking the Annandale Country Club above Pasadena.

The seismographs seen at the laboratory come in threes, one for recording east-west ground movement, another for north-south motion, and the third for vertical movement.

Richter said seismographs at the various stations in southern California record the movements on film, which is later developed, printed and analysed at the laboratory.

The instruments at the laboratory, however, use special ink pens that record on paper, giving quick access to first clues of an earthquake.

If there are no quakes, or other sources of jiggling, the pens make straight lines on the turning roll of paper. But when there is an earthquake, or perhaps an underground nuclear blast at the Nevada atomic test station, the pens move sharply — moved by sensitive apparatus secured to bedrock — depending on how strong the quake was.

This method gives precise graphs indicating the time of the quake, its magnitude, distance and, usually, direction.

The measuring of magnitude, Richter emphasized, differs from earlier scales which indicated the destructive results of earthquakes, their intensity.

The idea of magnitude, he said, concerns the total force of an earthquake, over the total area hit, not just the surface damage in populated areas. It is a measure of the energy released as shock waves when the underlying rock slipped, causing the tremor.

RECOUP REDWOOD TIMBER FROM YUKON GOLD MINE

Mr Holoway salvaged an estimated 330,000 feet of rare redwood timber, still in good condition 60 years after it was brought from California.

The timber was used by the Yukon Gold Co. in 1907, following the Klondike gold rush, to construct 12 miles of a 70-mile flume carrying water from Tombstone Mountain to Bonanza Creek.

The flume, known as the Yukon Ditch, was built for $7,000,000 by construction men who had come north after working on the Panama Canal. They had to battle permafrost and wade through muskeg to complete the job.

Tombstone Mountain is in the Ogilvie Mountain Range, 60 miles north of Dawson City. The flume brought water for gold mining operations from the 7,000-foot mountain almost straight to Bonanza Creek, 12 miles south of Dawson City where the big Klondike gold strike was made in 1896.

Except for the redwood timber, all the wood used in the flume has rotted. Mr Holloway hopes also to salvage an estimated 600 tons of steel straps used to hold the flume together.

Mr Holloway, who drives a mail truck between Dawson City and Whitehorse, 275 miles south, became interested in the Yukon Ditch and realized the materials had salvage value.

Last winter ,using a motorized toboggan, he reconnoitred the remote mountain country through which the ditch runs. In March he bought $12,000 worth of equipment and returned to the area with a crew of 11, a caterpillar tractor and a truck.

A 19-mile road was built to bring the timber out.

"We made the last trip about the middle of April. The big lowboy truck broke through the ice when we crossed the Klondike River and that took time to salvage and finished our work for that time."

Up to that point he had brought out 80,000 board feet of lumber which he estimates will sell for at least $200 for each 1,000 board feet.

He set up a planer 12 miles from Dawson Cnty and removed the weather encrustment on the boards, turning out deep red, beautifully-grained lumber.

During the summer he made plans to bring out the remaining 250,000 feet plus the steel.

Mr Holloway agreed to pay 10 per cent of the salvage value of the material he takes from the ditch to Yukon Consolidated Gold Corp., which still operates at Dawson City.

PREFER LIFE IN CANADA

Temperature differences between their former homes in Africa and their new ones in the western Labrador mining centre of Labrador City, Nfld., can be as much as 160 degrees, but two New Canadian couples aren't complaining.

Mr and Mrs Raymond Jessop came to Canada from Kenya. Mr and Mrs Edward Gurney left Johannesburg, South Africa, in 1960.

They were among eight persons from five countries who recently received Canadian citizenship at a ceremony in Labrador City.

"In Canada one can relax and not be continuously under tension as was the case when we left South Africa," said Mrs Gurney.

She does miss the great amount of outdoor living that the warmer South African temperatures made possible, however.

There are acute differences, says Mrs Jessop, like "from a high of 120 degrees in Kenya to a low of 40 below zero in Labrador City."

Supermarket shopping and indoor heating are two other marked differences in the Jessop lives but, like the Gurneys, they say they find life in Canada exciting.
