The Brownies Whispers

One of the most delightful entertainments ever put on by Chesterville talent was that of Monday night, when the operetta, "The Brownies Whispers" was presented to the largest audience of the season. The piece in itself delightful, prevented many pleasing stage pictures. It is the unravelling of a dilemma in which a gardener finds himself on receiving an order to decorate a mansion with flowers for a festival the nature of which is kept a secret. The gardner anxious for his reputation a as decorator, not knowing the nature of the festival fears he will use unsuitable flowers and cannot make a choice. To help him his daughter calls up the flowers in review to aid her father, and the daisies, the roses, the lilies, the pansies, the sweet peas all appear and plead to be the ones chosen for the occasion, but one after the other are let go without a choice. The daughter at her wit's end falls asleep and the brownies' whisper the secret in her ear, that the festival is the birthday of a little child, she believes she dreamed it and so tells her father, who accepting it as true, takes all the flowers to the mansion.

Forty young girls appeared in the cast representing the flowers and the brownies, and their training made the success of the operetta. Obviously we cannot especially mention each one, but it can be frankly said that each was as important as the other in their own places. Miss Cross, as the gardner's daughter, was at ease and natural in a part that suited her admirably, while Mr. A. E. Bolster, the only male in the cast, gave a faithful portrayal of the perplexed gardner. Miss Amy Beattie violinist and Miss Violet Saucier as accompanists added the necessary touch to lift the whole performance to the plane of an unqualified triumph.

So much for the success of the performance but away and beyond that the primary credit must be bestowed on Miss Ruth Garrow and Miss Helen Soule, from whose initiative the work was carried to so successful a conclusion. During the past seven or eight weeks they have given unstintedly of their time and abilities to the perfection of the training of those taking part in every detail of the preparation other than vocal training, which was ably handled by Mrs. Vene Robinson.

The proceeds will be well over a hundred dollars for the benefit of the Red Cross, all made possible by the co-operation of forty girls of Chesterville, who deserve the greatest of praise.

The Anniversary of St. Julien

A display of bunting in many places about town was the only visible sign that the citizens of Chesterville remembered the battle of St. Julien, which was fought a year ago, and where her sons fought and died in defence of their flag and to the undying fame of their home land. The first of our boys, and so far the only ones to fall victims to the Germans, were slain in the thick of the St. Julien battle, when Charlie Forward and Gerald Gibbons were counted among the dead. For sometime there were hopes held out that the latter might be found a prisoner in Germany, as his name first came out in the casualty list among the wounded, but no further trace of him could ever be found and he has been counted among the slain. Another Chesterville boy who went through the big battle, luckily unhurt, was Bert Huxtable, and herewith we give a letter of his, written a couple of weeks afterwards. Bert is now in the firing line, but since the battle of St. Julien has been in the hospital three times for minor causes.

May 13th 1915

Dear Father:—

I received your letter, and am now back having a rest. I was through that big fight for Ypres, but how I came through without a scratch is a mystery to me. I was in the charge that the 10th Battalion, supported by the 16th made, when we took a German trench and the woods behind it. We lost quite a few men, as we had to go through a hail of bullets before we got there. The Germans couldn't face our bayonets and they ran back into the woods. Where we followed them like madmen. It was the first time we had the chance to use our bayonets, and we sure used them on the Germans that night, They were the Second Prussian Guards, that we ran up against and are supposed to be the cream of the German army. We were in the fight twenty-one days and it is fine to be in a quiet place now. The artillery fire was very heavy and it was an awful sight to see men and horses blown to pieces. That is a true saying that "war is hell", I have not seen any Chesterville boys yet but I hope they have all come through it. With love to all.—Bert.

Henry's Shorthand School
Ottawa, Ont.

On the May Civil Service Examination, this year, we passed more stenographic candidates than the other local business colleges combined.

It is a common occurrence for Henry-trained students to get 100% in Shorthand 100% in Typewriting, and 95% in Composition.

These subjects being the most difficult on this examination, our record of FIRST, SECOND and FOURTH places for the whole of Canada, is at once explained.

During the past two years, more than 235 students have come to us from other local business colleges.

Does it not prove that we have a superior school?

Our instruction being individual, you may start at any time.

"What is a roost dad?" asked Tommy.

"A roost, my son, is a pole upon which chickens sit at night," replied his father,

"And what is a perch, dad?"

"A perch is what chickens perch on."

"Then I suppose, dad, a chicken could roost on a perch?" came the further inquiry.

"Of course," was the smiling reply.

"And they could perch on a roost?"

"Why, y-yes," answered dad.

"But if the chickens perched on a roost that would make the roost a perch wouldn't it? But if just after some chickens came along and perched on the roost and made it a perch then the roost would be a perch and then the perch would be a roost, and some of the chickens would be perchers and the others would be roosters and—"

Production and Thrift

"GAIN or no gain the cause before the farmers of Canada is as clear as it was last year—they must produce abundantly in order to meet the demands that may be made, and I believe this to be especially true in regard to live stock, the world's supply of which must be particularly affected in this vast struggle."—HON. MARTIN BURRELL, Minister of Agriculture.

THE FOLLOWING STATEMENTS ARE BASED ON REPORTS CONTAINED IN "THE AGRICULTURAL WAR BOOK, 1916," PUBLISHED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, OTTAWA, ONT.

LIVE STOCK—The herds and flocks of Europe have been greatly reduced. When the war is over there will be a great demand for breeding stock. Canadian farmers should keep this in mind.

MEATS—In 1915 Great Britain imported 664,508 tons of beef, mutton and lamb, of which 364,245 tons came from without the Empire. Out of 430,420 tons of beef only 104,967 tons came from within the Empire.

The demands of the Allies for frozen beef, canned beef, bacon and hams will increase rather than diminish. Orders are coming to Canada. The decreasing tonnage space available will give Canada an advantage if we have the supplies.

DAIRYING—Home consumption of milk, butter and cheese has increased of late years. The war demands for cheese have been unlimited. The Canadian cheese exports from Montreal in 1915 were nearly $6,500,000 over 1914. Prices at Montreal—Cheese: January 1915, 15¼ to 17 cents; January 1916, 18¼ to 18½ cents. Butter: January 1915, 24 to 28¾ cents; January 1916, 32 to 33 cents.

EGGS—Canada produced $30,000,000 worth of eggs in 1915 and helped out Great Britain in the shortage. Shippers as well as producers have a duty and an opportunity in holding a place in that market.

WRITE TO THE DOMINION DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE AND TO YOUR PROVINCIAL DEPARTMENT FOR BULLETINS ON THESE SUBJECTS

Tens of thousands of Canada's food producers have enlisted and gone to the front. It is only fair to them that their home work shall be kept up as far as possible. The Empire needs all the food that we can produce in 1916.

DEEDS OF CANADIAN DARING TOLD BY EYE-WITNESS

During the period that our troops held the line in front of St Eloi the circumstances of the fighting afforded a wealth of opportunity for deeds of daring and several members of each battalion greatly distinguished themselves in the eyes of their comrades. The following are but a few of the instances:

Sergt. E. W. Stanbridge of the 21st Battalion, after his officer had been wounded, took charge of an exposed trench on the left flank of his battalion and maintained his position. On three occasions he took out parties under heavy shell fire to recover the bodies of men killed or to bring in the wounded.

Corp. W. J. Cross, of the 21st Battalion, formed one of an attacking bombing party. When all available bombs had been thrown he withdrew his party in the face of the enemy's bombardment and brought in a wounded officer.

Company Sergt.-Major Deane and Lance-Corporals Currie and Henderson, of the 21st Battalion, assisted in the rescue of wounded men from exposed positions.

Sergeant H. W. Norton Taylor, of the 21st Battalion, was for five days in charge of a machine gun crew in a detached position. During this period his post was attacked by a party of about thirty Germans. The enemy flung bombs at our men, but under the steady fire of the machine gun was quickly mowed down. Only two of the hostile party were seen to escape. On two consecutive nights prisoners were taken by the detachment under Sergeant Norton Taylor.

During fifty-six hours Lieut. J. Gordon Weir, of the 19th Battalion, in charge of machine-guns on the left sector of the brigade, took no rest. He moved continuously from gun to gun and encouraged the crews.

One night sections of the new German line were attacked and bombed by men of our 18th Western Ontario, 19th Central Ontario and 21st Eastern Ontario battalions. On our left the bombing parties were under the command of Lieut. B. O. Hooper, of the 19th Battalion, and Lieut. C. H. Kerr, of the 18th Battalion, and were accompanied by a working party under Lieut. Lawson, of the 18th Battalion. The night was misty, and progress over the broken ground was very slow. Lieut. Kerr acted as guide, and eventually a position was reached close to the German lines. A slight lifting of the fog revealed a number of the enemy, who at once hurled a shower of bombs in the direction of our men. Most of the bombs fell into the crater, on the edge of which our party was lying. Our men retaliated vigorously. The mist was thickened, and as there had been no opportunity for adequately reconnoitering the ground, it was decided to abandon any further offensive action.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Lawson had found the remains of an old trench a short distance to the rear and commenced to rebuild it. Although our bombing parties were withdrawn at dawn, he remained in this advanced position with his party throughout the following day, having been supplied with bombs, carried out to him by Lieut. Hooper and Sergeant Jackson, of the 19th Battalion.

During the fighting in the crater Lieut. Kerr was wounded in the face, but, until he collapsed, continued to assist Lieut. Hooper in controlling operations.

Private Tom Jones, a member of the 18th Battalion, sanitary section, distinguished himself by repeatedly volunteering for dangerous duties. Although untrained as a stretcher-bearer, he dressed the wounds of many men under heavy fire, and assisted in bringing out a wounded officer. Afterwards, while guiding another officer in broad daylight towards the advanced positions, he was shot by a German sniper and died instantly. Private Jones was in appearance little more than a boy. No one was quite certain where he came from. It was rumored that he had an alias, Tommy Cronan. It was commonly stated that he was a deserter from the British army, and also from the British and American navies. However, that may be, Jones was a general favorite with both officers and men. For gallantry on a previous occasion he had been recommended by his commanding officer for the distinguished Conduct Medal. A whole battalion mourns his loss.

RHEUMATISM ARRESTED

Many people suffer the tortures of lame muscles and stiffened joints because of impurities in the blood, and each succeeding attack seems more acute until rheumatism has invaded the whole system.

To arrest rheumatism it is quite as important to improve your general health as to purify your blood, and the cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is nature's great blood-maker, while its medicinal nourishment strengthens the organs to expel the impurities and upbuild your strength.

Scott's Emulsion is helping thousands every day who could not find other relief. Refuse the alcoholic substitutes.

War and Dividends

During 1914 the Surplus earned by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada totalled over $1,676,000, an increase of nearly 50% over that earned in 1913.

In spite of financial depression, the Company is able to maintain its progressively increasing scale of Policy Dividends. Accordingly, Reserve Dividend Policies bearing Dividends in 1915 will receive larger Dividends than those received by similar policies in 1914.

War conditions merely emphasize the absolute security and the increasing profitableness of Policies in the Sun Life of Canada.

Your Spring Suit Tailored City Style

Come in and let's talk about your new suit. I have been specially lucky in making arrangements for my tailoring—city tailoring.

The niceties of tailoring are always found in the city man's clothes but the prices are in favor of clothes bought away from the city.

I have coupled up those two main points to your advantage, which should make it profitable and satisfactory for you to come to me for your next suit.

My whole stock of Shoes and Furnishings is the newest of the new and it will interest you to come in and look them over.

FROM THE TRENCHES.

Letter from Sergt.-Major Macdonald 1st Canadian Mounted Rifles to his sister, Mrs. K. A Gollan, Morewood.

"I don't think I owe you a letter but in view of my last news, I suppose you are feeling anxious about me. We are now holding a position in the centre of one of the most famous battlefields, as far as the Canadians are concerned of the war, where there has already been two desperate struggles and where a third will probably be pulled off before we get what we are after. These trenches are said to be the worst in the whole British line and I quite believe it. I have never yet seen anything quite so bad and dangerous. Strange to say, though ours is quite an inexperienced regiment in trench warfare, we have beaten all records in the matter of casualties during the 4 days we were in the front line. We had only two casualties (1 fatal) and both were practically accidental. In the first case, the safety pin of a bomb fell out while the missile was still in the bombers pocket. He heard the fuse hissing, pulled out the bomb, fumbled and dropped it, picked it up again and threw it over the parapet, but it exploded and lacerated his hand and forearm a bit. He will probably get over it and may get the D. C. M. besides. The other casualty was also a bomber, who was sitting down facing the front and eating his breakfast. Unfortunately his fire was showing too much smoke to suit a German sniper. His bullet struck the parapet ricochetted off an iron plate and lodged in McIvor's brain, killing him instantly. The battalion which relieved us had 8 casualties in their first 24 hours, so we were certainly lucky. I think we gave a pretty good account of ourselves as we disposed of certainly 60 of the enemy and we don't know how many more our bombers may have got as the result of information I brought in from my first night's scouting trip. I got quite close up to a party of five Germans and could hear them talk quite plainly. I am very sorry now that I have almost entirely forgotten all my German. You will be glad to hear the Adjutant told me that they were all pleased with my work and that the brigade intelligence officer had mentioned my name in his report to G. O. C. Two German scouts got mixed up the next night in our wire and were bombed. One was killed and the other must have been hurt as we could hear him swearing for some time. After everything quieted down I wanted to go out and investigate, but the officer on the post would not allow me as there was a chance of the wounded man still being about and getting me. The men who bombed him went out the next evening and found the dead man but could not extricate him from the wire. They brought in all his papers and personal effects, including a manicure set. The Colonel showed me the letters, &c., and from them I should say he was well connected, though only a private grenadier. His name was Richard Pross from Struttgart and had an unfinished letter to his father—I could find no reference to mother or wife. He was 31. We came across some gruesome sights in the rear of our front trenches. We have already dug up and reburied many British soldiers who had received but scant burial before—probably just covered over by debris from shell explosions. There is not much left of them but clothes and bones but we collect their identity discs or any other personal effects which will be duly forwarded to their relatives through the war office. One man had a watch which on being wound up went quite gaily, although it must have been silent as its owner for nine or ten months. I received Edith's parcel of eggs, cocoa and oxo last night and we polished off the first two mentioned this morning. They were much appreciated and the Mess sends its best thanks. A big artillery duel is going on overhead and I must get out and have a look at it, so will close.

154TH BATTALION BUGLE BLASTS

What is Your part in this war?

This war is too big an undertaking for any man to stay out.

Your call of duty is insistent. Are You listening to that call?

Are you going to help the German cause by staying at home and being a Slacker?

Furlough for farming has not been taken advantage of as much as was expected.

The man who has made a success of his business in Canada is the man who should make sacrifices for his country.

Send the names of men who should go and have not yet put on the uniform to our nearest Recruiting Office.

Enlist to-day in your Home Battalion the 154th. It should have your support. Don't go to some other unit, but help your own Battalion.

Ontario soldiers are performing daring deeds while holding the line in front of St. Eloi. A wealth of opportunity for like deeds await you, young men. Join the 154th now.

Some of the men in the 154th Battalion enlisted last December and can't get to the front because some of You who read these words are holding them back

One hundred and fifty more recruits required to complete establishment. Just fifty per county, surely these will be forthcoming by May 8th, that the 154th Overseas Battalion will march into Barriefield camp complete in every particular.

The officers of the 154th have no desire to separate fathers and sons. If the boy does not want to leave Dad behind, give Quartermaster Cokers, Dad's measurements, and a uniform for him will be immediately forthcoming, with all other accoutrements necessary to equip a smart soldier.

How often the world takes a man at his own valuation. There are hundreds of men in these united counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry who think they are not good enough to fight for their Empire. This estimation is going to stare them in the face at every turn to the last year of their lives.

There is a message to the women of the united counties, so many residents of which are descended from the United Empire Loyalists. Do you realize that the safety of those children of yours, of your homes, of yourself depend upon the 154th Battalion getting more men NOW. Do you realize that a little word of two letters "GO" may mean with your co-operation, the Battalion's full strength in two weeks' time.

Hesitancy and cautiousness, if carried too far, may easily be mistaken for cowardice. Enlist now and escape the stigma that will be carried by the coward.

There will be ten bands at Barriefield Camp this summer, and each band, including that of the 154th, is doing its best to arrive in camp with the finest organization.

"Keep the home fires burning"—Let the women who can't go look after the home fires and YOU go and do a man's part that You are called upon to do, NOW without delay.

CANADIAN HORSES IDEAL FOR FIELD.

St. John, N. B., April 26.—That horses from this continent, and especially Canadian horses, are giving the acme of satisfaction on the western front was the statement made today by Lieut. H. Cowan, of Westmount, Montreal, and Lieut. Ellsworth, of Marysville, Ont., both members of the Canadian Army Veterinary Corps, who arrived here on Allan liner Scandinavian. "It is really marvelous." said Lieut. Cowan, "how little contagious disease one finds among the horses on the western front. The Canadian horses seem to be very hardy. Why, they will sleep out in the mud week after week, and be perfectly healthy all the time. I had charge of 1,500 horses for ten months on the western front, and in that time I had only three cases of pneumonia."

"I've got you stopped," put in Lieut. Ellsworth. "I had charge of 1,500 horses for ten months on the Western front, and had only one case of pneumonia." The French and English horses, Lieut. Cowan said, have a little more "blood" as the horse breeders call it, but they are not built on the right lines. "They do not seem to be able to breed the light draft horse with sufficient action to make him well fitted for the saddle. Their saddle horses have too much ginger and two little stamina, whilst the horses from this Continent just fill the bill, I am told Lt. Cowan continued, "that the French Government has already purchased no less than 200,000 horses from the United States."

Lieut, Cowan said that at first stables were erected for the horses, but these were found unsatisfactory, and now the majority of horses are picketed in true western style Regarding equine casualties, he said: "When a horse has a leg broken or is badly iujured by a shrapnel shell, it is immediately destroyed. Our instructions are, if a horse cannot recover entirely in sixty days, to destroy the animal, for a sick horse for a longer period would become a burden on our hands. Horses are used with great care when ill or injured. We never treat serious cases on the firing line. If a horse is slightly wounded or ill, a big ambulance is sent up. The ambulance is low to the ground and has a padded floor and padded sides. The animal is placed in this, and away it is sent to the base hospital, where it is attended. The Blue Cross is doing a wonderful work at the base hospital, and in all the turmoil of war and fighting, the horses are never neglected. They seem as intelligent as the soldiers themselves after they have been in action two or three times. We actually have old veterans among the horses over there. We have animals that have gone through desperate shelling, animals that know what it is to be thrown upside down by a big shell explosion, and, under fire, it is a pleasure to see those animals work."

Board of Health Meeting.

The Board of Health met on April 25th, members all present.

Moved by Dr. W. A. Brown seconded by J. T. Kearns, and adopted, that, owing to the lateness of the season and the inconvenience in having their yards cleaned up at the present time, the Sanitary Inspector be instructed to allow until May 10th for his final inspection of premises in the village.

That Lawson & Cass be instructed to notify the C. P. R. Co., that certain food products have been shipped to this station, which on arrival here were unfit for food, more especially a recent shipment of sugar to Mr. Hamilton, intimating our right of confiscation, also that we are notifying the merchants of the village not to accept any such shipments in future.

That this Board of Health recommend the village council to get estimates on the probable cost of an adequate water supply for household use and fire protection, as we understand the Provincial Board of Health will send an engineer to make such estimates free of charge.

The Guards Start Overseas

Friday last the 87th Battalion, Grenadier Guards, left St. Johns, Que., where training in Canada has been finished, and started on the first stage of their journey overseas. Many homes in Chesterville and vicinity will from this time forward be intensily interested in the fortunes of this battalion. Many recruits from this section and from Western Canada whose homes are here, have gone overseas and are doing their bits in the various arms of the service, but the Grenadier Guards is the first battalion to have practically a whole platoon from this section. Almost six months ago the first bunch of recruits left Chesterville and formed a nucleus around which was gathered a platoon, and in all probability in the course of another five or six months they will find their way to the firing line in Belgium or France.

It has been interesting to watch the developement of the soldier in the mer of the Grenadier Guards. Leaving here, many of them the rawest recruits, slovenly of gait and careless of carriage, soon returned to visit friends and relatives and almost from the first of these visits, the beneficial effects of military training could be noticed, until when the farewell visits were made a week or so ago, more soldierly soldiers would be hard to find. The greatest of their changed appearances, however, was not in their bearing, but in the lines of expression of character developed and responsibility assumed, shown in their facial expression. In fact school boys leaving here, returned with the seriousness of the man's part they had sworn to carry through for their King and Country, plainly stamped on their features.

The standard of physical fitness for the Guards has been held higher than almost any other battalion recruited in Canada, and while more than enough men for two battalions have passed through the ranks and only the fittest of the fit retained it speaks well for Chesterville's young manhood that without an exception all stood the test and are willing and anxious to play their part in the great war. The casualty lists of next fall and winter, if the war should last that long may carry the dreaded news of Chesterville boys dying on the battlefield; but the homes so stricken will have the comforting assurance of knowing that a hero went forth to do his duty.

There have been many plans advanced for the purpose of inducing the unmarried men of Canada to enlist and of leaving the men of families at home. It has been suggested in Toronto that all single men of military age, physically fit, who do not enlist be deprived of their right to vote, but it is feared many would consider that of no account and fail of the object. Now, an Ottawa Correspondent suggests that those who refuse to do their duty be compelled to provide for the maintenance and support of one child of a married soldier, who has given his life for his country. He would guarantee to provide for a child intrusted to his care, till; 1st, The child reaches the age of twelve; or, 2nd. till the child's mother remarried, or 3rd, till he himself married, or 4th during the duration of the war; or 5th, till he himself enlisted.

Jog The Editor.

The $1.00 weekly newspaper in Canada will soon be a thing of the past. Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba have put the price up to $1.50, and British Columbia for some time past has been selling the weekly for $2.00. This gives the publisher a better margin and will help him to finance more easily. The result should be a better newspaper. A poorly paid editor is like a poorly paid preacher. Living from hand to mouth does not get the best out of a man. When your newspaper goes up to $1.50, if it does not suit you tell the editor so and give him pointers as to what he is missing that is of vital interest to you and your neighbors. It will do him good to jog him along and it will keep him up on the bit. Often a poor newspaper could be made a good newspaper if its patrons were candid with the editor and told him he had fallen into a rut. Show him you have the right to receive value for your money. If you do this you will be helping the community as well as yourself and the editor.

SEED POTATOES.

The man who grows good potatoes when potatoes are needed is a public benefactor.

According to present production and consumption in Ontario from twenty-five to thirty people or from five to six families are supplied with potatoes for one year from each average acre of land which the farmer plants with this crop. An increase of fifty per cent. in yield would mean an increase in the amount of potatoes produced on each average acre of land sufficient to supply about one dozen people for twelve months. In most years Ontario imports potatoes from the Maritime Provinces and at the present time a part of our supply is coming from the Provinces of Alberta and of British Columbia. Ontario is well adapted to the production of potatoes of excellent quality and should supply at least her own demands.

The potato crop of Ontario could be decidedly and economically improved by a more general use of pure, well bred seed of a few of the best varieties, by the adoption of better methods of culture, and by a more complete control of insects and diseases. It should be the aim of every grower to produce large yields of uniform potatoes free from disease and of high table quality. Varieties of potatoes differ greatly not only in yield per acre but also in freedom from rot and in cooking qualities. For instance, in the trying season of 1915, the varieties of potatoes grown under uniform conditions at the Ontario Agricultural College varied in yield per acre from 13 to 366 bushels, in amount of rot from less than one to over seventy per cent., and in table quality from 36 to 83 out of a maximum of 100 points. Some kinds are found to be very susceptible to rot and others to be almost immune. The table quality of potatoes varies far more than many people realize when mealiness, flavor and appearance of different varieties are taken into consideration and are carefully determined.

In each of four years an experiment has been conducted at the Agricultural College in testing under similar conditions potatoes obtained from different sources. For instance, eighteen lots of Empire State potatoes were secured from eight different sources, five in the Province of New Brunswick and three in Ontario. Seed potatoes grown about one hundred and forty miles north of Guelph in Muskoka district, near the Muskoka Lakes, have given a higher yield per acre than those obtained from any other source in each of the four years of this experiment. Seed potatoes grown in a cool, moist climate which prevents maturity are often superior to those which have ripened in a hot, dry climate. Immature seed potatoes are usually inferior for table use but furnish excellent seed. Potatoes grown in Ontario in a comparatively cold, wet season like that of 1915 are likely to be of good quality for planting providing they are free from disease. Tubers showing discoloration or signs of rot on the outer surface or when cut should not be used for planting.

There are far too many varieties of potatoes grown on the farms of Ontario. This is one of the greatest weaknesses in the potato industry of the Province. It is a defect that should be remedied as soon as possible. If Ontario would confine herself to a few of the best varieties of potatoes the annual crop would be increased in yield, in quality, and in commercial value.

There are over one thousand named varieties of potatoes in North America, and fully four hundred have been grown under experiment at the Ontario Agricultural College. Many of these are quite inferior, even though they have been extravagantly advertised; some are old varieties under new names, and comparatively few are worthy of general cultivation by the farmers of Ontario. If these few were grown to the exclusion of fully eighty per cent. of the kinds now under cultivation better results would be obtained, whether the potatoes were produced for home use or for commercial purposes.

Some of the varieties of potatoes which have been prominent in the experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College and in the co-operative experiments throughout Ontario are the Empire State, the Davies' Warrior, the Rural New Yorker No. 2, the Green Eureka, the Early Ohio and the Stray Beauty or Bliss Triumph of the early varieties. In appearance there is a similarity between the Green Mountain and the Delaware varieties and also between the Extra Early Eureka and the Irish Cobbler varieties. In the experiments at Guelph, however, the Green Mountain and the Extra Early Eureka gave the best results in yield per acre, in table quality, and in freedom from rot. The three varieties of potatoes which have made particularly good records in the co-operative experiments throughout Ontario in productiveness, table quality, and popularity with the experimenters are the Davies' Warrior and the Empire State of the late, and the extra Early Eureka of the early varieties.

In the average results of all the varieties grown in the years 1905, 1906, 1910 and 1915, in which there was more or less rot in the potato crops at the College, the Davies' Warrior, the Extra Early Eureka and the Stray Beauty produced the smallest, and the Early Rose, the Beauty of Hebron and the Early Ohio the largest percentages of rotten potatoes of all the varieties grown under uniform conditions.

It has been found to be good practice to use smooth, well shaped, sound tubers of good size and of the best varieties. These can be cut by hand into sets from one to two ounces in weight, each set containing two, three or, even better four eyes. It is an advantage to throw the freshly cut potato sets into finely ground land plaster and to plant them immediately after being cut. Good results have been obtained by dropping the pieces separately from twelve to fifteen inches apart in the rows and by having the rows twenty-eight or thirty inches apart. The potato sets can be planted from three to five inches deep, depending upon the character and the condition of the soil. Level cultivation frequently gives the best results on a light soil, and ridged cultivation on soil of a heavier nature.

It is often an advantage to expose whole seed potatoes in a subdued light in a warm room about three weeks before planting. Especially is this true if the potatoes are to be grown for early use. The production of short, thick, green sprouts before planting helps to haster the growth and to increase the yield.

The Mayor Won.

I heard an amusing story at one of the military clubs yesterday. A major in charge of a D. P. O. S.—"District Purchasing Office for supplies"—had his area increased so that in his duties of inspecting the added depots he would often have to cover forty miles on horseback. He applied for an allowance for an extra animal. The War Office declined it, saying: "The distance measured by the ordnance map, as the crow flies, is not forty, but thirty-three and a half miles." The major promptly replied: "It is not an additional crow I am asking for; I have to ride a horse." He got.

Some Compliment.

"Mike, I am going to make you a present of this pig."

"Ah, sure, an' 'tis just like you, sir!"

A Bit Too Much.

"See here, waiter," exclaimed the indignant customer, "here's a piece of wood in my sausage!"

"Yes, sir," replied the waiter: "but I'm sure—er—

"Sure nothing! I don't mind eating the dog, but I'm blowed if I'm going to eat the kennel too."

THE FARMER'S LIFE INSURANCE

FARMERS are profound believers in fire insurance, and well they might be, removed, as most of them are, far from fighting facilities.

The farmer is careful to insure his barn, his house, his grain and his livestock. Yet, the most valuable thing of all, his own life, he often leaves uninsured.

A farmer aged 40, in good health, and able to produce only $1000 annually from his farm is worth at least $16,000 to his family if money earns 3½ per cent.

In the event of the farmer's death his thought and labour must be replaced by hired help. This would require money. Insurance would provide the money.

Perhaps a mortgage burdens the minds of the farmer and his wife. If so, a policy should be taken for the amount of the debt. If the husband dies, the policy would prevent foreclosure.

Every farmer should have a policy with
