It takes a little dear to make an old wolf feel sheepish.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

There comes a time in the affairs of mice and travelling editors when duty calls. In this case it is the v.p. She has been warning in dire tones all afternoon we had better get the lead out and send our Maritime message home to our panting readers. So we gulped another mouthful of peas and headed for this infernal machine. And here we are, sitting quietly in the bathroom, on the only furniture there, sittable that is, beating away on our little electric typewriter. Our vanity has finally caught up with us. We insisted in bringing the brand new electric portable along to type these puny notes. Now we find this motel had only one plug available to run the thing. It is in the bathroom, and the conjunction of the t.s. and the wash basin are just right. If an undercurrent of electric razor or running water creeps in you will not flush with embarrassment.

Since last we met a lot has happened. We have enjoyed a most successful convention, marked by the dry weather and liquid hospitality. Halifax gave a good account of herself in the matter of food and drink, and while some of us dipped deeply into the coffee pot, we all emerged the next day ready for business. We toured the harbour, the buildings and the shore. We ate sea food in abundance and we arrived at a lasting conclusion. The Maritimers only grow one vegetable down here and it appears with every meal. If peas appear on the family plate at the Castle for the next two years, somebody will end up in the moat.

The food has been delicious, though, at nearly every stop along the shore. We started at Halifax, went down the shore to Yarmouth, met a broiled lobster there that was big as a nightmare, subdued it and slept the sleep of the innocent. At Digby we spent a long time on the wharves messing around watching how the fishermen make a very tough living. The sight of the luscious Digby scallops was just too much for this ancient Boy Scout. We bought a mess fresh off a dragger, rushed out to a roadside park and fried them. Even though your scribe swore he would never again rub two sticks together to make a fire, this time it was worth it. Fried on the shore, with a pan of hot butter, and fried slices of bread to add filling, what could be better. As the child remarked, "Look at Father's front!"

In case one would wonder whether we are just travelling from meal to meal, he would be wrong. The scenery is out of this world along the coast, the roads are excellent and to date we have been able to find a place to sleep and sometimes find the price downright reasonable. There is little doubt we are in the wrong business. While it is said we have to take our loot to the bank in a wheelbarrow, these motel people have Brinks armoured truck come twice a day. Part of the travelling habit is to figure what the last overnight place took in with the rooms filled. The short season seems to make some proprietors desperate.

This writer was never one to wallow in the troubles of Anne of Green Gables but tomorrow, if the ferry runs, we will take the child in tow and show her the place. We understand they have potato fields over there too, and if the vodka people have not dug them all up, we hope to get a few coloured pictures of famous P.E.I. spuds growing in red soil. After that we will turn the Red Monster homeward via Quebec and Finch. Quebec has limited appeal because we understand one has to walk a lot there as did Mr Wolfe some time ago. Our feet have become almost useless and our sitters have been pounded into a salesman's pattern. See you all soon.

Finds banded pigeon

Charles Hummel, of Connaught, found a pigeon—a rather soggy pigeon — sitting out Monday night's downpour. Being very tame, it wasn't difficult to pick the bird up and examine it.

The pigeon carried a leg band with the number G7212AU59. Mr Hummel is going to turn it loose and let instinct guide the bird home.

OPINIONS . . . OURS AND OTHERS

An unrecognizable political babe

To those who may be wondering what kind of infant has been delivered at Ottawa into Canada's political life we suggest, says the Hamilton Spectator, that they wait and see. Its class, race or breed is as difficult to recognize as any other new-born babe.

Is it socialist? The convention rejected the breed of socialism outlined by the left wing intellectuals. Is it a labour party? Steelworkers and other trade unionists seem to have dominated the gathering, steering it on a middle road between left of centre and extreme left. But the first platform plank endorsed was a promise of legislaion to guarantee every Canadian a job. That promise, as Dr Eugene Forsey, research director of the CLC pointed out, could be implemented only by a socialist government ready to transform Canada into a totalitarian state.

The expected rejection of Hazen Argue in favour of Premier Tommy Douglas would seem to eliminate any shade of provincial rights colouring. Mr Argue, in a bid for support, was reported to have been championing the "bi-national" plan put forward by the Quebec delegation.

The truth is that the new party at its birth is eschewing any political philosophy or creed in favour of enticing as many votes from as many different classes and kinds of people as it can. The Steelworkers' Murray Cotterill summed it up well in admonishing the convention old line parties who just get elected.

And the convention is picking the best man to do it. Premier Douglas is an experienced labour politician who has governed a province of farmers with political success, flirting with, but never dedicating himself to socialism. Regardless of program or constitution we predict that the party will be largely what the leader wants it to be with the one qualification that he must not bite the hand of labour that will feed him.

Asylum for Dr Klotchko

So far Canada has handled well the case of the Soviet scientist, Dr Klotchko, who decided to seek asylum here. His request received prompt attention, states the Ottawa Journal. The RCMP gave him protection and the voluuntary nature of his decision was made clear to the Soviet representatives who were allowed to try to change his mind in a 90-minute interview.

The official Russian position apparently is to be that Dr Klotchko, despite his decorations and the prestige which allowed him to travel abroad, is really a nobody, never to be missed. Masters of propaganda that they are, the Russians in fact know this is for them a serious affair. Soviet scientists are supposed to be the heroes of the state, leading the exploration of both space and the mysteries of life, given limitless opportunity to pursue their studies.

When scientists leave Russia, when 3,000,000 East Germans in 12 years leave the Communist fold, when events such as the Hungarian suppression shatter the solidarity of Communist parties everywhere, the world has evidence that the promised land has not arrived under the Red banner.

Let us act here, however, with dignity. Canada must ensure that Dr Klotchko, like Igor Gouzenko, is given whatever continued protection is necessary. If he wishes to give public statements about the reasons for his decision, he should be heard; if he seeks privacy and silence, his wishes should be respected. He says he hopes to be permitted to continue his work in chemistry as an ordinary citizen; this is a modest ambition and if there is a place for him without prejudice to the national interest (in private industry or public) Canada should help him find it, without fuss or fanfare.

The good, old Summertime

Summer, observes the Ogdensburg Journal, is the season when you are an hour's drive away from home at the moment a hard rainstorm begins and you have left the bedroom windows open and the laundry on the line.

Summer is when you go to the river on a cloudy day and discover that the sun can burn your hide right through the clouds and a T-shirt.

Summer is when you go dessertless while everybody else is enjoying the strawberries because they give you the hives and then just as the raspberries begin to come in you find out you are allergic to them for the first time in your life.

Summer is when small children with a new interest in nature bring snakes home to Mother and ask her why she's standing on the kitchen table with that horrified look on her face.

Summer is when you rent a cottage at some distant lake to get away from familiar faces and then your brother-in-law and his loud-mouthed kids arrive with a sad story about not being able to find accommodations anywhere within 50 miles.

Summer is a long period of unbearably muggy weather except for two weeks of steady rain that happen to coincide with your vacation.

Summer is a time of cool evenings ideal for sitting out on the lawn and chatting with friends and getting bitten by a record population of mosquitoes.

Summer is when you walk across the lawn after dark and trip over the handle of the snow shovel, of all things, which your youngest child dragged out from the cellar to dig a Burmese tiger trap, which is the next thing you'll fall into.

Anyone for skiing?

ANTI-SMOG MUFFLERS

It may be only a matter of time before you'll have to fit your car with an anti-smog muffler and other purifiers, reports Basil Jackson in The Financial Post.

Canadian provinces will almost certainly follow any large-scale anti-pollution moves in the U.S., and important experiments are rolling there now.

What will it cost you? You can have a new standard muffler installed in your car today for $20 or less.

You'll have to pay $60-up for a special anti-smog muffler and other purifier gadgets.

ROYAL ARMS

If you're tempted to use the Royal Arms or the Canada Arms in a sales promotion—don't. It's against the law in Canada to use them, and only the Exchequer Court knows what punishment you'd get.

The same goes for other heraldic emblems protected by the Trade Marks Act. But above all else, this sort of thing is simply "not done," Ottawa experts say.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The Philippine Bible House reports good success with two ventures in Bible distribution. A Bible van, complete with audio-visual equipment, was loaned to the Christian and Missionary Alliance Churches in Catabato Province. A director appointed by the mission reports that visitation to the churches and canvassing by voluntary workers produced sales of 8,000 Gospel portions and 1,000 each of Bibles and New Testaments.

Rev A. B. Taglucop, Executive Secretary of the Philippine Bible House writes, "Two people who directed the work have continued their efforts after the van left for another area. A book store was established. Moslems bought English Bibles and Gospels in their own dialect. The stocks of portions were exhausted in a short time."

A similar campaign is now being carried out in another area under the direction of the Free Methodist Church.

A display of Bibles in many languages and the showing of films was undertaken by the Bible House at the time of an international fair held in Manilla. Included in the display were Bibles and portions in 25 different dialects used in the Philippines alone.

A TOUGH JOB

Big George Lee figures he has the most dangerous job in Toronto after a month trying to keep eager motorists off a complete but unopened thoroughfare.

The 240-pounder from Fererrsham, Ont., standing six feet four inches tall, is a contractor's employee posted at one entrance of the new Don Valley Parkway to flag away traffic until signs and road markings are finished.

George, whose usual job with the contractor is cook, says that in the last month his life has been threatened by motorists twice, he has been run down once, had to duck a second attempt to knock him over and had a knife pulled on him. In addition, he is the target for a daily barrage of verbal abuses from motorists who want to use the road.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

Although I've worked like a dog every week day all summer it seem's I've lived the life of Riley on Sundays. Not that I've sold my soul down the river exactly. My Sunday entertainment has been of a rather innocent variety ranging from unpaid TV interviews through the occasional drive or family get-together. And last Sunday was no exception.

Remember that big cruiser that was pictured on the front page of your favourite weekly a short time ago? Well I was fortunate enough to be invited for a trip on it last Sunday.

About nine o'clock that morning I wouldn't have used the word "fortunate." A few extra hours of sleep and rest looked more inviting just then after a long week on the tractor binding grain. And when a cold northwester blowing off the Rideau hit my face as I climbed out of the car at Little Chesterville I didn't feel exactly fortunate. But I'd said I'd go and if the boat went I'd go if it killed me.

By 11.30 the captain, crew and all the passengers were aboard ready to sail. Also aboard were boxes, baskets, thermos jugs, blankets, pillows, cameras, binoculars, etc. for we were to live on the water for about six hours. It was quite an engineering feat to get everything organized.

When we got comfortable someone untied the big craft, the captain started the motor, steered us out into mid-stream and we were off. Then someone shouted to count noses. How many were aboard? A check showed we were five adults and five teenagers. We counted the life jackets. There were only nine. Being members of safety councils (and scared stiff we'd be stopped by a Mountie) we circled back to port. Another jacket was found and we set out once more.

Now for you readers in New York and Vancouver I shall interject a bit of geography. Little Chesterville is a colony of summer cottages lined up along the shore of the Rideau river midway between Beckett's Landing and the village of Kars. The Rideau is part of the system built some hundred years ago to connect Kingston with Ottawa. It is a series of rivers, lakes, canals and dams and usually the water is about as rough as your Saturday bath. Originally the Rideau system was designed to help us fight the Americans. Now it is used solely for pleasure craft many of which belong to Americans.

Somehow the weather warmed on Sunday about the time we got aboard the big boat. My teeth stopped chattering and when I found I could park my carcass in a comfortable chair and just sit I was more than pleased that I was along. And the delicious dinner served to us on lap trays made the trip even more enjoyable.

The scenery along the Rideau below Little Chesterville is very civilized. Occasionally a field a swamp or a grove eases down to the water's edge but mostly the river is lined with houses. These are of various sizes, shapes and colours ranging from a 2x4 cabin to a huge $40,000 house nearer the city. I sat with my back to the east shore and the crowd delighted to pointing to something behind me so I'd have to crane my neck in curiosity.

Three honks of the horn brought action at the Kars bridge. The boat wouldn't go under the old structure there so the bridge attendants had to stop traffic and swing the bridge for us to pass. It makes one feel very important.

The cruise down stream was delightful. One passenger knew all the points of interest. He showed us Hon. John Bracken's farm, a colony of new homes near Manotick where all the owners have Ph.D.'s, and the house where the woman is boss and has led her husband through a series of unsatisfactory projects.

Near Manotick we came to Long Island. We kept to the east of it and very soon were in sight of the locks. Now being locked downstream is very exciting. We had to tie up and wait our turn. Then the big gates opened and our captain steered us inside. The gates closed behind and we were in a sort of big box. Gradually the water below us kept going down. We could see the wet walls of the canal. Down and down we went. Then the gates opened in front. We went into another big box. The gates closed behind and the water went down. There was yet another lock to go through. Finally we drove out on the level river ahead. Looking back we could see that the locks had lowered us possibly 60-75 feet.

Just past Uplands Airport we turned to come back. The locks on the return trip were equally exciting. That time the inflowing water lifted us up.

But the greatest excitement occurred at the Kars bridge. The driver blew for the bridge to be opened. He headed through. Then while interested spectators wa ed the motor chugged to a stop. "We're out of gas," someone said. There was a mad scurry to get an auxiliary tank from the hold and connect it. By the time everything was in order the boat had drifted around and was heading downstream. So the driver shifted into reverse and we went through the bridge backwards.

"That's the first time I ever saw a boat come through that way," shouted the man at the bridge controls as we circled and hurried towards supper at the cottage.

And at the moment I can't think of a better way to rest and relax than to be a guest on someone's cruiser.

CORN ROOTWORM

Like the unwelcome guest who won't leave while the provisions last, the corn rootworm has become a pest in some parts of Ontario where successive crops of corn have been raised on the same land.

H. B. Wressell of the Canada Department of Agriculture's entomology laboratory at Chatham says that in such cases the rootworm may be controlled by insecticides or by a recommended crop rotation.

Heptachlor or aldrin, sprayed on the land just before planting and lightly worked in immediately afterwards, controls the rootworm. The insecticide may be applied as granules at a rate of three-quarters to one pound of active ingredient per acre at seeding time, using a special applicator mounted on the planter.

The adult of the corn rootworm is a small, green beetle about the size of the cucumber beetle, to which it is related. During the late summer the beetles may be found feeding on corn silks, which they cut off. This damage is not serious if the ears have already formed, but if the silks are fresh it may reduce pollination. This kind of damage on the ears indicates that the rootworms are present in the field even if no beetles are seen.

In the fall the beetles lay their eggs at the bases of mature corn plants. The eggs hatch the following spring and the larvae feed on the roots of young corn plants if this crop has been planted again in the same field. The rootworm can live on some other grasses but corn is preferred.

Corn plants are seldom killed by the larvae but are weakened enough to cause lodging later making harvesting with a mechanical picker difficult. The yield is also reduced because of a smaller root system.

Butter complaints swiftly checked

A lady near Belleville, brought up on a farm, told her husband that she didn't like the taste of the butter she had bought at her neighbourhood store. He agreed it was a little off the usual high quality of Canada First Grade Creamery butter so they called the local representative of the Canada Department of Agriculture's Dairy Products Division. He took the butter for laboratory examination.

From that point on things moved swiftly. There were phone calls, inspections, checks back to the factory, checks on individual churnings and on plant, several more analyses, and the provincial dairy authorities were also called in.

In the end, the trouble was found and the housewife's complaint was remedied. Thanks to her initiative and the energy with which the dairy products division went into action, a deterioration in standard had been checked before much loss was incurred.

According to Dr H. A. Derby, director of the division, there are few complaints because the quality of Canadian butter is generally very high. But he wants consumers to be aware of their right to submit to the division any dairy product which is considered below standard.

Fieldmen of the division are instructed always to follow up complaints, and refer them to the head office where further investigation is made.

While provincial graders supervise grading of the cream and milk from which butter is made, the federal department is responsible for enforcing quality regulations for the finished product. Officers grade for certification for export and for interprovincial trade. Grade checks are taken at all levels of trade manufacture by Dairy Products Division men, dairy produce graders and inspectors of the Consolidated Retail Inspection Unit.

Maintenance of the quality standard is essential if butter sales are to be sustained in the face of keen competition from other spreads.

Measures to protect the consumer, Dr Derby said, also safeguard the manufacturer by giving him a double check on his operation. Most provinces have adopted federal regulations and all creameries must conform to the same standard.

Dairy division officers spot-check consumer-sized packages from retail stores for labelling, weight, correct marking and moisture and fat content. If the product does not meet the standards, its sale can be halted until the discrepancy is rectified. Through the manufacturer's code, packaged butter can usually be traced right back to a particular churning.

Canada First Grade Creamery contains no more than 16 per cent water and not less than 80 per cent milk fat, no other fat being allowed. It must score not less than 92 points, 39 of them for flavour. Commercial butter generally scores 93, of which 40 are for flavour. Flavour is influenced by the quality of raw milk and cream used in the make.

The dairy inspector expects butter to be clean, with no objectionable flavour, and of firm texture, close and waxy with the minimum of free moisture. The colour should be practically true and even, and of a desirable shade. Achieving this by artificial means is not illegal. Where used, salt must be well dissolved in the butter and the product should be packed solidly in clean boxes, neatly and cleanly lined, branded and finished.

Butter adulteration is punishable by court action, but policing of the manufacturing end of the butter industry is a matter for the provincial authorities.

Federal, provincial and commercial co-operation is at a high level and consumer representations are generally investigated.

BRICK-THROWING CHAMPIONS

A six - man brick-throwing team from England placed second in what was billed as the world's brick-throwing championships against teams from three other Strouds in England, Australia and Oklahoma. The U.S. team was first. The match took place simultaneously with results transferred by cable and telephone. Ben Cochrane, 23, of Innisfield Township, had the second longest individual throw —104 feet.

BE VERY CAREFUL WITH POWER MOWERS

Is your power mower going to save you work this summer or relieve you of a few toes or fingers? Will it give you extra leisure or a hole in the head from a hidden piece of debris in the grass?

Don't count on it that you're a normally cautious individual, you just need to slip once with this machine to do irreparable damage, and the variety of grisly injuries it can cause is infinite.

Amputation, sprains, electrocution and death from hurled objects have been steadily on the increase as power mowers have come into widespread use. Yet the machine itself needn't be a menace—it simply has to be treated with utmost respect. Here are some survival rules offered by the Ontario Safety League to power mower users:

1. Rake and inspect your lawn before mowing, and clear away sticks, stones, wire and other debris. A mower can throw objects with the force of a bullet.
2. Disconnect the sparkplug wire or electrical plug when refueling or working on the underside of the mower.
3. Never fill the tank while the engine is hot or still running.
4. Stop the motor whenever you leave the mower and when clearing objects from the blades. Disregard of this rule has already cost a lot of fingers.
5. Wear heavy shoes, and cut sideways on hills.
6. Never let children operate mowers and insist they stay well away while mowing is in progress.
7. Never use an electric power mower during rain, or when grass is wet.
8. Have mower inspected yearly and maintained in good repair by a reliable serviceman.

If you want your mower to work for, rather than against you, these rules are of vital importance.

MILK AND WATER LAND AIRLINER

A Trans-World Airlines jet airliner landed in Los Angeles safely, its crippled hydraulic system repaired by squirts of milk and water.

"It was really something to watch," one of the 42 passengers abroad the Convair 880 said after seeing members of the eight-man crew hack a hole in the plane's floor to build up the nose wheel's hydraulic pressure by injecting drinking water and milk from baby bottles into the system.

The four-engine plane—TWA flight 120— circled over Southern California for five hours before the nose wheel was finally locked in place and the plane allowed to land at International Airport.

The airliner, which had taken off from the airport at 1.30 p.m. was bound for Chicago and Boston when the pilot, Capt. H. L. Brubaker, of Chicago, noticed the hydraulic trouble over Eastern Arizona.

Brubaker, after radioing the complete loss of fluid in No. 1 hydraulic system and the partial loss of fluid in No. 2 system, returned to Southern California and began circling to burn up fuel.

NEW GUN MAKES PLASTIC ITEMS

An Alberta company thinks it has a new tool that will move production of some plastic items from the factory to desk top.

Northwest Industries Ltd. will test market its portable gun for plastic injection molding. The company's research staff developed the 3½-lb. gun to replace usual stationary equipment weighing 300 pounds.

Besides lowering costs generally, the gun may lead to production of such products as costume jewellery and novelties on a short-run basis.

Some 150 canals twist through Venice, Italy, which has more than 400 bridges.

BUSINESSS FROM BALDNESS

Some 35,000 Canadian men and women spend an estimated $4 million a year on hiding their baldness under a variety of spruced up pelts, reports The Financial Post. The secret is shared only by their hairdressers.

Wig makers think about 20,000 men in Canada wear false hair to some extent, although the very nature of the business makes accurate figures hard to come by. They say that many Canadians buy their toupes in the U.S. to avoid the risk of hometown gossip.

But whereas a man can wear his baldness as a shining symbol of masculine virility if he wishes, women have to resort to imported hair (Canadians apparently don't have any to spare) to avoid the plucked sparrow look.

Mrs Angus MacLean

Relatives and friends throughout the district were saddened by the announcement of the death of Mrs Angus MacLean, who passed away suddenly in a Brockville hospital.

Mrs MacLean, the former Anna MacMillan, was born 61 years ago last June 18 in Roxborough Township, a daughter of the late Dan MacMillan and his wife, Rose Baker.

In 1923 she married Mr MacLean and following their marriage, they lived for a time in Maxville and Syracuse, N.Y., before coming in 1932 to Avonmore.

Survivors include her husband one son, Wren MacLean, Ottawa; and one daughter (Ruth), Mrs Gerald Rice, Ottawa; three grandchildren; one sister, Mrs Ernest Moquin, Chambly, Que.; and five brothers, John H. MacMillan, Newington; Donald MacMillan, Oxford Mills; Everett MacMillan, Avonmore; Melvin MacMillan, Winchester and Ivan MacMillan, Moose Creek.

The body rested at the Brownlee Funeral Home, Finch where many neighbours, relatives and friends called to express their sympathy to members of the bereaved family.

Rev. W. A. Douglas, B.A. minister of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Avonmore, conducted the funeral service and brought a comforting message. The hymn. "Nearer My God To Thee," was sung.

Pall bearers were Howard Kennedy, Earl Amm, James Tinkess, Alex MacLean, Duncan MacLean and Milton Salter.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral from Montreal, Ottawa, Maxville, Moose Creek, Finch Berwick, Chesterville, Crysler and Avonmore.

Many beautiful floral tributes surrounded the casket silent tributes to the memory of the deceased. Members of the family received many messages of sympathy.

Interment was made in Paul's Hill cemetery, Avonmore.

CARD OF THANKS

I wish to thank my neighbours, friends and relatives for their many cards, calls and gifts while I was a patient in Winchester Memorial Hospital. Special thanks to Dr Barton, local doctors and nursing staff for their excellent care, also thanks to Rev A. D. Sutherland and Mr Eaton.

Mrs Clifton Bogart.

USES NAIL POLISH

A report comes from Norway Bay, Que., that Jim Windsor, 72, used pink nail polish to brighten up an old fishing spoon.

On his first cast into the Ottawa River he hooked and landed a 34-pound muskellunge, biggest fish reported caught in the Ottawa area this season.

Bible School held at Avonmore

Another successful Summer Bible School was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. This is the 12th annual session of the school.

About 75 boys and girls of the community attended the school, which continued until Friday, Aug. 18th. Sessions were held each morning from 9 to 11 o'clock.

Rev. W. A. Douglas, B.A., minister of St. Andrew's Church was director of the school, which had a staff of ten teachers.

Theme this year was "Living for Jesus" and was developed in all grades through the study materials which are available.

Members of the staff included Mrs Allen MacIntyre, Miss Luella Alguire, Miss Katie MacRae, Miss Donna Cameron, Miss Jean Lang, Miss Laurel McIntosh, Mrs Neil Bush, Mrs Hugh Morrison and Rev. Mr. Douglas.

The school was divided into four sections — Beginners, Primary, Junior and Intermediate-Senior.

The program included such items as choruses, scripture, memorization, flannelograph, stories, filmstrips, choral reading and creative activities.

Climaxing the program was a Demonstrative Service held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday night, Aug. 17, at 8 o'clock when the boys and girls presented to their parents and friends a cross-section of the various activities in which they had participated. Prizes for attendance and memorization were presented at that time.

The last morning a picnic was served on the church grounds and a program of races and games was held.

A car pool worked effectively in bringing children from the surrounding countryside into the church each morning and transporting them to their homes after the session.

Bilingual Y.P.C. group first in province

The wisdom of experience and the bounce of youth came together Saturday to form the first bilingual Young P. C. group in the province of Ontario.

The Ottawa-St. Lawrence Y.P.C. Area Association was formed under the sponsorship of the Stormont and Glengarry P.C. Associations on Saturday evening at a meeting held in the Parkway Hotel, Cornwall.

The association, the second of three to be organized in Eastern Ontario, includes the ridings of Stormont, Prescott, Glengarry, Ottawa East and Russell. A constitution was adopted setting up the organization on a Council basis, with four delegates from each constituency forming the Council.

Grant Campbell. M.P, for Stormont, and Fernand Guindon, MPP for Glengarry, welcomed the delegates to Cornwall on behalf of the parent associations. Hawley Black, President of the Eastern Ontaroi Y.P.C.'s outlined the Party's approach toward providing "organization in depth". While Mr Guindon stressed the fact that the new Association would be bilingual and not merely french speaking, Mr Campbell defined the most effective role of the young peoples organization as "stimulating an interest in politics and among persons of High School or College age."

The officers of the Association are: President, Jean Lafleche, Cornwall, Vice President, Lucien Lefebvre, Glen Robertson, Secretary, Marie Dulude, Ottawa, and Treasurer, Wayne Ouderkirk, Berwick.

Calcutta, chief seaport in eastern India, was founded in 1690 by the British East India Company.

PAINTING HINT

Professional painters say it's bad to dip a brush too deeply in paint. The paint collects and hardens at the base of the bristles and eventually will ruin them.

Just dip the brush far enough into the paint so that when the excess on the bristles is removed by wiping lightly on the side of the container, the brush will hold the paint without dripping.

Recent guests of Mr and Mrs Willard Swerdfeger and Kenneth were — Mr and Mrs Eddie Bowles of Chapleau, Mr and Mrs Stafford Yaunch, Lorraine and Audrey of Flinton, Kay and Nancy Smirle of Morewood and Mr and Mrs Graham Fossit, Jonas and Linda of Brinston.

Brown family reunion at Spencerville

More than 100 members of the Brown family gathered for their first reunion in the agricultural grounds, Spencerville. Samuel Brown, of Spencerville, said Grace and all enjoyed a luncheon.

Five generations were present, the three-year-old daughter of Mr and Mrs Clara Brown, of Iroquois, being the only fifth ance.

The only three living members of the first generation were present — Alex and Samuel Brown, Spencerville and Robert Brown, Syracuse, N.Y.

Two couples celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, namely, Mr and Mrs Samuel Brown, Spencerville, and Mr and Mrs Andrew Brown Depeyster, N.Y. These four also answered the roll call as great-grandparents along with Alex Brown and Mr and Mrs Ernest Feader, Spencerville and Robert Brown, Syracuse, N.Y.

Clarence Brown was re-elected president for 1961-62, and Hubert Robinson, of Hyndman, is secretary-treasurer.

The executive elected include Donald Brown, Leaside, representing Metropolitan Toronto, Belleville and intermediate points; Lloyd Brown, Brockville, representing Prescott, Brockville, Gananoque, Kingston and area points; Mrs Audrey Morrison, Depeyster, N.Y., representing the U.S.A.; Miss Gladys Gill, Spencerville, to represent Kemptville, Spencerville, Cardinal and Iroquois, and Andrew MacMillan, of Williamsburg to represent Long Sault, Chesterville, Morewood and District.

All expressed the opinion the day was a pleasant one. It was decided to meet again in 1962, possibly in the latter part of August to avoid conflict with holidays and cottage leases, and on the same site on the Kemptville Agricultural School Campus.

Godard–Rozon

Given in marriage by her uncle, Emile Lalonde, Miss Huguette Rozon and Lieutenant Maurice Godard exchanged marriage vows at St. Felix de Valois Church. Rev. M. Lalonde officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs Xavier Rozon and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Medard Godard, all of Cornwall.

Members of th Nativity Guards of which the groom is vice-president, formed an honor guard at the entrance of the church.

For her wedding, the bride was wearing a floor-length white organza sheath with overskirt. The fitted bodice featured a scalloped neckline trimmed appliques of sequins and pearls and the long sleeves ended in points over her wrists. Her shoulder-length veil of tulle illusion fell from a headpiece of matching material in the form of a flower and she carried a prayer book covered with carnations and stephanotis.

Attending the bride, Mrs Jeannine Carrier was wearing a street-length white organza dress with a pink overskirt and a pink headdress of matching material in the form of a flower and she carried a bouquet of white and pink carnations.

Raymond Carrier was best man.

The mother of the bride was wearing a mauve dress with white accesories and the mother of the groom wore a mauve dress with mauve accesories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Northway Hotel. For a wedding trip to the Laurentians and the province of Quebec, the bride chose a beige dress with a flowered overskirt with beige and taupe accesories and a corsage of Orange Delight roses. The couple will reside in Cornwall.

Guests from Ottawa, Vermont, Montreal and Crysler attended the wedding.

SPAR VARNISH

Spar varnish is not only a marine varnish but is, in reality, well suited to all outdoor surfaces. It also gives efficient service indoors on such surfaces as wooden kitchen work counters where a high gloss is not undesirable and a natural wood colour is preferred.

Spar varnish is, of course, highly moisture-resistant and very durable.

CLEANER GARBAGE CANS

Garbage cans can now be kept clean, dry, grease and odour-free with a jumbo disposable plastic liner now available at a price approaching that of paper.

A large rubber band holds the liner firmly to the can. A twist tie seals the bag for disposal. It may serve also as a laundry bag or a "see through" storage bag.

The death occurred on Thursday in Winchester Memorial Hospital of Miss Bertha Lily Montgomery of Crysler, Ont. Miss Montgomery was a daughter of the late Riely Montgomery and his wife Florence McPhee. She was in her 66th year.

Miss Montgomery who resided with her sister, Miss Cassie Montgomery, had been a dressmaker for many years. She was an active church worker and attended church faithfully. She is survived by one sister, Miss Cassie Montgomery of Crysler, one brother, Levi Montgomery of Gravel Hill and two nephews, Murray and Harold Montgomery of Bellevue, Washington; one brother and two sisters predeceased her.

The funeral took place on Sunday from Brownlee Funeral Home, Finch, to Knox Presbyterian Church, Crysler. Rev. A. Williamson, officiated. Burial was made in the Presbyterian cemetery at Crysler.

The pallbearers were — Thomas Armstrong, Frank Carruthers, Gordon McIntosh, Andrew Ouderkirk, Wilbert Paul and Alex MacLeod.

NOTHING STICKS TO NEW SLEEK SKILLETS

"As slippery as wet ice sliding on wet ice." That's the closest scientists can come to describing the smoothness of the coating on the new non-stick" frying pans in Canadian stores.

No fat, oil or shortening is needed to fry foods and even such notoriously sticky foods as scrambled eggs slide off the coat-surface.

There's no magic in this latest household labor-saver. It's simply a method of making surface so smooth that nothing can adhere to it. The plastic coating called "Fluon" has been used for years to provide industrial bearings which are so smooth they don't need lubrication. Commercial bakery rollers are coated with "Fluon" to keep the dough from sticking. A British ski team has used skiis coated with the plastic to privide extra speed.

Now this coating is being bonded to aluminum pans for Canadian housewives. Ideal for dieters and "cholesterol-counters", it makes it possible to fry foods without the fat or oil normally used to prevent sticking.

As with any household equipment, the non-stick pans must be properly cared for if they are to retain their usefulness for years of service. The pan will lose its non-stick quality if the coating is carelessly scratched and some manufacturers provide a wooden spatula for stirring and removing food. Also, it is important to note that the pan should not be left empty on a hot stove. Overheating may damage the coating and lead to fumes which could be harmful. Since nothing sticks, the pan can be washed in soap and water as easily as a saucer and should not be scoured.

Cleaning the frying pan has always been a sore trial to the housewife. So even if she has no dieters in the family, this latest boon from the plastics industry should still earn her gratitude.

Mrs S. B. Casselman hostess to meeting of Grantley W.A.

Mrs S. B. Casselman was hostess for the August meeting of the Woman's Association of Grantley United Church. The president, Mrs Albert Winters, opened the meeting and Hymn 249 was sung.

Mrs S. B. Casselman read the Scripture. Lesson thoughts were given by Mrs W. A. Robinson.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Bessie Shaver. The president read a thank-you letter from Mrs John Shaver for the plant given her while in Winchester Hospital.

The meeting was brought to a close with Hymn 261.

The program consisted of a piano solo, "Country Garden," by Miss Lois Robinson; a reading, "Corabelle's Wedding," by Mrs M. O. Robinson; a piano solo, "Twilight Time," by Miss Joan Casselman, and a reading, "She Planted Trees," by Mrs Hugh Ross.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

CANVASBACKS SCARCE THIS YEAR

Resources minister Dinsdale appealed by open later Friday to fish and game clubs in the Prairie Provinces and Ontario to help his department inform duck hunters that canvasback and redhead ducks should not be shot this year.

He said that the two species of ducks are in serious short supply this year as a result of severe drought conditions on the Prairies where 70 per cent of North America's wild ducks nest and raise their young.

Drought conditions had seriously affected waterfowl production in general and the already low canvasback and redhead populations in particular.

Mr Dinsdale said that his department's Canadian wildlife service will distribute pamphlets identifying the two species to hunting licence vendors.

GIVE SHELLAC TIME FOR DRYING

A second coat of shellac may be applied four hours after the preceding one, but a longer interval for drying is preferable. Because of its quick-drying properties, shellac must be applied quickly.

Exceptional care should be taken to avoid skipped places. For a natural finish on a light wood, white shellac is used. Orange shellac produces a darker finish.

WINNING FRIENDS

Philadelphia police department is trying to win friends. Next month all 4,700 policemen will wear name tags in their jackets.

"When the public addresses a police officer by name there is a personal and warmer relationship," said Albert Brown, the police commissioner.

INCREASE

In terms of dollar value Canada's Gross National Product has increased by 16 percent over the past four years, but when rising prices are taken into consideration, per capita production actually has declined by about six per cent in the period.

CHICKIE WILLIAMS TO APPEAR AT WINCHESTER ARENA

Chickie Williams, whose recording of "Beyond The Sunset" sold nearly one million copies, will be one of the featured stars with the Doc Williams Show coming to Winchester Arena on Saturday, August 26. A big two-hour stage show will be presented starting at 8.30 p.m. A program of round and square dancing will be featured after the show.

Lovers of music throughout Canada and the United Sates are quite familiar with the recording of "Beyond The Sunste", which contains the memorable reading by Chickie of "Should You Go First". This beautiful singer has had several big hit recordings on the Country and Western charts. Today, she is most famous for her album, "Chickie Sings the Old Songs", which features "Beyond The Sunset".

One of the most successful and best known of all husband and wife teams in show business is that of Doc and Chickie Williams. Doc and Chickie along with the Border Riders have been one of the star features of the world renowned WWVA Jamboree for many years.

Widely recognized as two of the "All-Time Singing Favorites" of Country and Western music, Doc and Chickie are now celebrating their 25th anniversary in the world of entertainment. During that time, they have played hundreds of successful engagements in all of the eastern seaboard states from Maine to Florida and in Ontario and Quebec plus the Maritime provinces and Newfoundland.

During the engagement in Winchester, Doc and Chickie will proudly present a vocal trio known as Chickie's Chicks, composed of Peeper, Poochie and Punkin', the lovely daughters of Doc and Chickie Williams.

Other features with the show, when it appears in Winchester, will be Marion Martin, noted accordionist and composer; Dean Orville McNett, rustic comedian, singer and guitarist; plus a spectacular added attraction, the amazing Litle Mose. Known as "The Human Lodestone", this tiny man weighs only 105 pounds yet no one has ever been able to lift him against his will. The famous strong man, "Two Ton" Tony Galento attempted to lift Little Mose and had to admit total failure.

BILLBOARDS COMING DOWN

Poster advertising signs are leaving the green fields along the highways for the bustle of city and suburban locations, reports The Financial Post. This is a steady, long-term trend which likely will continue, advertising spokesmen and sign-makers say.

That's one reason why the industry generally is only mildly upset over a Quebec government decision to enforce its anti-sign regulations along provincial roads. Most provinces permit billboards, except on controlled-access highways. But such permission is hedged with a variety of restrictions on type of sign and distance from the highway.

Some companies in the industry say they have soured on highway signs in proportion to the steadily rising speed of road travel.

SKUNK TROUBLE

A telephone call from Mrs Ralph Grass put Mars Hill, Me., police chief Carroll V. Emery in a dilemma. A skunk with its head in a jar was under Mrs Grass' porch.

"I didn't want to use my magnum revolver; it's too powerful to use in the city," said Emery.

"So I went up to see James Craig. He has hundreds of squirrels and pet raccoons running around his house. I wanted to borrow a .22 so I could shoot the skunk.

"He told me, 'gosh, chief, I wish you wouldn't shoot him.' I said, 'gosh Jim, I'm not going to take the bottle from his head, that's for sure. He said 'I'll go up and get it.'

"Jim crawled under the porch and began talking to the skunk, just like you would to a child.

"He tried to console it. He started to pat the skunk and at the same time tried to work the jar off his head. When he got the jar off the skunk seemed to be in a partial coma. I guess you would say it was from a lack of air.

"Jimmy rubbed his neck until he was revived. The skunk trotted off and didn't scent Jim at all."

JUST BABY BIRDS

Pittsburgh auto mechanic Ange Marsh learned to take women at their word.

Clare A. Goetz of nearby Greentree took her car to Marsh's garage and said, "I have a couple of birdies in the front end. Would you please remove them."

Marsh figured she meant there were squeaks in the car.

She wasn't joking. Marsh opened the hood and found four baby wrens in a nest on a bracket behind the grillwork.

NIGHT LIFE NO HELP IN FATTENING PIGS

Pigs raised in continuous light from 50 pounds to 200 pounds did not benefit in rate of gain, feed efficiency or carcass quality over pigs with about 12 hours of light a day, Canada Department of Agriculture tests showed.

Growing and fattening pigs were tested in groups of 14 using individual self-feeders at the Agassiz, British Columbia, Experimental Farm.

Some groups experienced normal daylight and night darkness, while for others the daylight was extended by artificial lighting. All received a balanced ration of barley, oats, meat scrap, oil meal, salt and bone meal.

The pigs under natural light conditions gained 1.47 pounds daily and those exposed for 24 hours gained 1.49 pounds. The former consumed 434 pounds of feed per 100 pounds of gain and the latter 424 pounds. These differences were not considered large enough to be significant.

Dressing percentage and percentage of lean cuts, fat cuts and trimmed belly were not affected by the length of light period.

Concludes researcher D. M. Bowman: Self-fed growing and fattening pigs do not benefit from artificial lighting.

DISEASE-FREE ORCHARD PLANTED IN WASHINGTON

Future plantings of fruit trees in Canadian and American orchards will be healthier because of a disease-free orchard that has been planted in the State of Washington. It is on a hillside near Moxee in the heart of the central interior desert, about 20 miles from the nearest fruit tree plantings.

Restrictions on entry of tree fruit materials to this orchard are tighter than those for entry of the public to any hospital isolation ward. The fruit trees admitted must pass rigid tests for freedom from all known diseases, especially virus diseases.

Seeds and scionwood taken from the orchard are supplied on request to co-operating government agencies. They in turn will use the materials to aid local nurserymen establish and distribute disease-free rootstocks and varieties.

In the past, many serious virus diseases have been spread unwittingly in trees distributed from nurseries. Many varieties of tree fruits are now almost universally infected by viruses. Nursery stock grown from the disease-free materials distributed from the orchard should be more vigorous and healthy than most trees that have reached fruit growers in the past.

Scientists who planned the orchard included Dr Maurice F. Welsh, plant pathologist at the Canada Research Station, Summerland, B.C. Canadian government agencies share equal privileges with American agencies in the use of the orchard.

Trees of Canadian varieties have already been admitted and disease-free materials are available without cost to Canadian agricultural workers.

MISSIONARY MAKES CONTACT WITH HOSTILE INDIANS

A Capuchin missionary has reported making permanent contact with the Motilon Indians who, for more than four centuries, have lived in savage isolation in the mountainous jungle along the Colombia-Venezuela border.

Fiercely resisting attempts to pacify them, the Motilones have been the scourge of settlers who since the discovery of oil in the Lake Maracaibo basin in the 1920's have been pushing deeper into the Indians' territory.

The contact between Rev Adolfo de Villamanan and the Motilones was made in July, 1960. It climaxed 13 years of slow, arduous work.

"In 1947 we began our campaign to penetrate the jungle and reach the Motilones," said Father Villamanan. "The advance had to be slow and gradual to give Motilon scouting parties a chance to look us over and familiarize themselves with us."

Now a permanent liason has been established with the tribe, Father Villamanan said.

The Motilones are believed to have fled to the nearly-impenetrable mountain jungles to escape the cruelty of the 16th century gold-seeking conquistadors. Subsequent attempts by missionaries, explorers, scientists and adventurers to reach the Indians were futile.

They currently are thought to number about 5,000 but reports from the area say an epidemic, perhaps smallpox, has killed 1,000 of them in the last six months.

Resisting encroachment, Motilon war parties armed with primitive weapons made surprise attacks on isolated settler outposts. Sometimes drought, floods or food shortages touched off foraging raids on settler camps. In an attempt to forestall such foraging the government this summer sponsored parachute drops of food into Motilon villages.

Air reconnaissance of the area has helped provide what little is known about the Motilones. Of short stature, with features resembling the Carib Indian of the Antilles, their culture and language appear primitive. They live principally on fish, vegetables, corn and bananas.

Discriminating tastes of the Canadian consumer are being pampered—even to the shade of yellow of egg yolks.

Though the colour of the yolk has no effect on the food value of the egg, many people find a pale yellow yolk unappetizing and others object to a dark yellow colour.

With this in mind, the Poultry Products Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture has come up with a yolk colour chart which may yet become a standard in the industry.

Colour of an egg yolk is determined by the pigment in the feed offered to the hens.

Thus, if the eggs being laid by a specific flock are proving unpopular with housewives because of the colour of their yolks, the problem can be overcome easily by altering the diet.

D. A. Fletcher, special projects officer with the Poultry Division, started the task of creating a new yolk colour chart more than three years ago.

Working closely with the National Research Council's paints and oils research laboratory, he tested about 200 shades of yellow before settling on a representative group of 15.

Having determined the 15 shades of yellow, Fletcher and his colleagues put the colours on metal disks, each of which contained a hole the size of a yolk to facilitate the job of identifying the kind of eggs preferred by the average consumer.

Visitors to the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, asked their preference in yolks, unanimously selected numbers six to 10 on the colour scale—rejecting the top five as too dark and the bottom five as "anaemic."

The Toronto survey was a joint undertaking of the Poultry Division, the Ontario Agricultural College and the Poultry Products Institute.

Not only could the new colour chart set a standard for all of Canada, but it could be used to good advantage in the frozen egg business where the colour of the yolk is an important factor.

Given wide application, the chart should result in even more palatable eggs for the breakfast table.

Charts can be procured from Canadian Government's Specification Board, Montreal Road, Ottawa 2, at a cost of $15 per set.

TOO CLEAN

The story comes from London that Dr Ann Mullins, a mother of six children, contends that children can be too clean.

"Cleanliness may be next to godliness," she says, "but it can lead to a very miserable state of affairs.

"So, I spend as much time advising my patients to be dirty and happy as persuading them to be a bit cleaner."

Dr Mullins, 36, and a general practitioner, advanced her theory in an article in "The Family Doctor," a publication of the British Medical Association.

Dr Mullins said "fighting germs and improving hygiene are the main reasons for the rise in the nation's health standard, but like most good things, they can be overdone.

"I know mothers who make their children's lives a misery by following them everywhere with a face cloth."

MARRIAGE OFFER

Attention unmarried girls:

Would you like to live in romantic Italy? Settle down in a quaint little mountain village and spend your life among 400 Italian hill-billies?

The 107 yearning bachelors of Frattoli want you to come to their tiny town. You don't need money, though naturally they'd like that, just beauty and virtue.

Most of the folks in Frattoli can't stand the place themselves. It's crude, primitive and dull. The girls clear out as soon as they can to look for husbands elsewhere.

But the boys are stuck. They have to stay behind to work the tiny plots of family land.

Unhappy with wifeless tilling, they appealed to provincial authorities to send some women.

"We want women with dowries or stable incomes," they said in effect. "But if they don't have that, we'll take them anyway providing they are beautiful and virtuous."

The authorities could do nothing but publicize the plea.

GENERATES OWN POWER

A service station operator in Abbotsford, B.C., in the Fraser Valley, is generating his own electricity after a row with the British Columbia Electric Company.

Harry Flodin told the firm to cut off the power to his station on the Trans-Canada Highway and then he set up a 10-kilowatt diesel generator.

Flodin said his battle started when B.C. Electric refused to service its trucks in the area at his station.

"The company won't buy my products so I decided I would darned well stop buying theirs," he said.

Flodin let his electricity bills lapse for three months until they totalled $157, then offered to pay with gasoline, oil and repairs to the company's trucks.

The company refused "and I told them to cut off the power."

Fred Stirling, district manager for the BCE said: "We told him we had other commitments with other local firms and that we do not issue contracts in response to threats."

Flodin said he burns station lights night and day for about $9 a week, the cost of diesel oil for his generator. He estimates BCE power would cost him $200 a month.

And if the generator breaks down, Flodin has rigged up a bicycle device to operate his gasoline pumps.

Halifax, provincial capital of Nova Scotia, was so named in 1749 for Earl Halifax, president of Britain's board of trade.

Assistant ag. rep. transferred to Renfrew

Raymond S. Smith, assistant agricultural representative in Dundas and Stormont Counties, has been transferred to Renfrew County. He has served in Dundas and Stormont Counties for the past 2½ years.

While here, Mr Smith has been very active in the junior agricultural work in both counties and is well known to all 4-H Club and Junior Farmer members.

During his stay in Dundas, he has worked with young farm people in organizing Junior Farmer activties for the county, an organization which had not been active in the county for a period of 10 years.

Mr Smith graduated from Macdonald College in 1958 and spent one year as assistant agricultural representative in York County before coming to Stormont and Dundas.

In Renfrew he will replace Wm. Hermans who has been transferred to Frontenac County.

Sweeney–Kearney

The altar of St. Mary's Catholic Church, Chesterville, was arranged with urns of white gladioli, when Miss Ellen Kathleen Kearney of St. Petersburg, Florida, exchanged wedding vows with Mr. Peter O'Malley Sweeney of New York City.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr and Mrs Dennis Kearney, Limerick Road and the groom is the son of the late Mr and Mrs Michael Sweeney of Mayo, Ireland.

Officiating at the eleven a.m. ceremony on July 29th, preceding the Nuptial High Mass was the Rev. Father J. J. Collins.

Escorted to the altar by her brother, Mr John Kearney, the bride wore a white sheath deep linen dress, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, and an imported fingertip lace jacket. Her head dress was of matching lace featuring petals of organza. She carried a bouquet of white gladiola glamelias with trailing ivy.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs H. Ross Histed of Hamilton, who was dressed in a gold linen sheath dress featuring a lace applique panneled front and a bolera jacket. She wore a matching straw bonnet, accentuated with trimmings of tulle and velvet and carried a bouquet of bronze pom pom chrysanthemums encircled by multi-colored tufts of maline.

Miss Mary Lourdes Oakley was the organist and the soloists were: Mr Wm Van Kats, Mr G. Brugmanf and Mr A. Byveld.

Mr H. Ross Histed of Hamilton was the best man. Ushering the guests to their pews were the two brothers of the bride, Mr Dennis Kearney of Highgate, Ontario, and Mr Gerald Kearney, of St. Petersburg, Florida.

Following the wedding a reception was held in the Legion Hall. Music was suppied by the McMillan orchestra and Mr Harry Dufour who rendered piano selections. Mr Wm. Van Kats favoured the guests with solos during the afternoon.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to Montreal, Quebec, St. Anns and Cap de Madeline.

For her trip the bride was attired in a costume of navy and white and wore a corsage of carnations. Upon their return the couple will reside in New York City and Florida.

Prior to her marriage the bride was given a farewell party and presentation in St. Petersburg, Florida and while visiting in Hamilton she was given a miscellaneous shower by Miss Mary Morrison and a dinner party and presentation by Mr and Mrs T. A. Reding.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were the bride's sister, Mrs Joseph J. Stove of Pamona, California, Mr and Mrs Wm. Ryan and Mr and Mrs Harry G. Dufour of Old Chelsea, Quebec, Mrs Bernard Grady and Mr and Mrs Charles O'Duffy, Cornwall, Mr and Mrs T. A. Reding and Mr and Mrs H. Ross Histed of Hamilton, Mr Dennis Kearney of Highgate, Ontario, and Mr Gerald Kearney of St. Petersburg, Florida.

Former game warden new driver examiner

Jack Stewart, former game warden for Stormont and Dundas Counties, arrived in Cornwall Monday to take up his duties as senior driving examiner at the Cornwall driver examination centre.

Mr Stewart was game warden in the area from 1946 to 1949.

Before accepting the Cornwall position, he was with the instruction staff of the Department of Transport driver control section in Toronto. This branch of the Department is responsible for training driver examiners.

Mr Stewart served in the Second World War. He became game warden after he was discharged in 1946.

TIME TO LEAVE

A taxi driver testifying in a Los Angeles trial said he and some other cabbies were watching a fight when one of the participants drew a gun and shot the other.

"What happened next?" he was asked.

"He cocked the gun again," was the reply.

"And then?"

"We left!"

McLeod–Armstrong

Pink and white gladioli formed an attractive setting in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Cardinal, when Rev Chas. Staples united in marriage Edna Eleanor, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs James D. Armstrong, Cardinal, and Weldon James, son of Mrs Darlene McLeod and the late Stewart McLeod, Newington.

David Sutherland, of Ottawa, played the wedding music and Howard McIlveen, of Toronto, sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length white gown of organza over tulle, featuring a fitted bodice, round neckline, long sleeves and full skirt. A crown of seed pearls and tulle held her shoulder-length circular veil in place. She carried a bouquet of red roses and wore cultured pearls, a gift from the groom.

Miss Marie Armstrong attended her sister as maid of honour and wore an all-white sleeveless Swiss eyelet gown with fitted bodice, full skirt and round neck.

Miss Lois McLeod, sister of the groom, and Miss Cairine Caldwell, of Cornwall, were bridesmaids and wore white gowns similar to the maid of honour except for black linen tops. They wore matching headdresses with nose veils and carried pink and white carnations.

Little Sarah Brown was flower girl and wore a dress similar to the maid of honour, matching headdress and carried pink and white carnations.

Robert Maginnis, Cardinal, attended the groom and ushers were Wilfred Smith, Whitby, and Leonard Helmer, Newington.

For a reception in the parish hall, with St. Monica's Guild catering, the mother of the bride received in a floral silk dress, black hat with white trim, white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

She was assisted by the mother of the groom, wearing beige nylon, white and beige accessories and a corsage of bronze and yellow roses.

Leaving for a wedding trip to the East Coast, the bride wore a navy silk white polka dot dress with full skirt, and black patent shoes, with mesh, white hat, white straw purse and a corsage of red roses.

Upon their return, they will reside in Ottawa, where the bride has taught school since graduating from Teachers' College.

Guests attended from Montreal, Ottawa, Beachburg, Cornwall, Newington, Massena, Toronto, Whitby, Cardiff, Ingleside, Iroquois and Prescott.

STRANGE SOUND

When Camden, N.J., supermarket clerk Mrs Wm. Miller dropped what she thought was a penny, it made a strange sound.

On one side the coin carried this inscription: "U.S. 2½ D., 8151." Scratching the surface revealed it to be a gold piece.
