Morrisburg forms new recreation association

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—Guys and gals, young folks and elders: anyone interested in recreation is invited to join a new group which will eventually replace the Morrisburg Recreation Association.

Plans are afoot to expand recreation from a relatively narrow concept of team sports to a broader concept which would include individual as well as team sports and take in all aspects of recreation, social and cultural as well as physical.

"Members of the Association would get together and bring ideas and future concepts for discussion. Anyone with an interest in recreation could be involved," said Coun. Larry Schnurr, Morrisburg councillor for recreation.

"The Association would be program developers," Schnurr said. "It would be up to whoever has the idea to bring it to us. If for example, someone had an idea for a program, he or she might find other interested persons, and approach the Association with the idea. If it's a swim program or water skiing program, we could advertise and help put it together and go further."

"The Association would help the group prepare an outline of capital and operating costs, short and long-term how it would fund equipment and personnel etc, and the proposal would be taken to South Dundas Recreation Council for approval. If the group is successful in obtaining funding, they would be responsible for their own bookkeeping," Schnurr added.

It is not the wish of the South Dundas Recreation Council to run every program of every community group, but the Council would assist in funding programs. The volunteers who initiated the program would then do day to day operations, report and update the Association on these matters, he explained.

The SDRC would advise the association, and in turn help put together concepts and ideas which might appeal to people. For example, the Council is currently advertising for persons interested in starting new programs like Youth LaCrosse House League, a Family Canoe Club, Tennis Club, or Cycling Club.

"The idea of the outdoor rink might have been developed through the association," Schnurr stated.

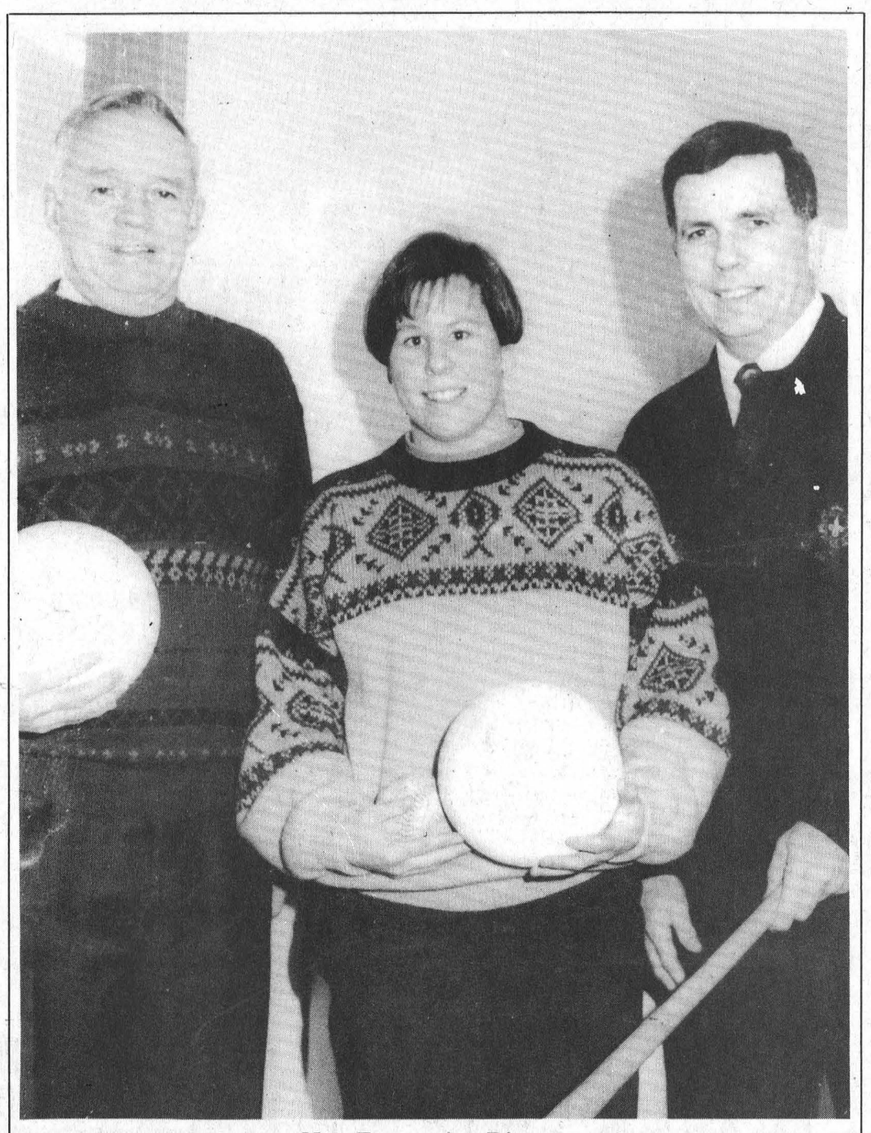
"If you have a particular interest in getting a program for yourself or the kids developed through the Morrisburg Recreation Association, for the time being there will be no limits on whoever is involved," Schnurr said.

"It's to let people in the community get together. If there are eight to ten people with ideas they may access others and find people who like to do these things. The Association will help the people with their needs put together a program," he added.

While the swim program is currently run by South Dundas, if someone wanted to run a swim program with a Morrisburg element, the SDRC could assist funding any group who came up with a concrete proposal.

Schnurr said that the proposed Recreation Association would likely have a council member on it, and a community member as chair. And it would be desirable to have a high school student on the Association, to give input from the perspective of that age group.

Open meetings would be advertised in the newspaper and once established, the Recreation Association would likely meet once a month. "I hope it will be a reasonably open group, we don't plan to limit it to four, six, 12 or a specific number of people. All who are interested may bring ideas and questions," Schnurr said.



New Recreation Director

Kim Felteau, Osnabruck's new Recreation Director, is ready and anxious to get going. She started work last Monday and soon will be meeting with the new recreation committee to coordinate the summer's activities. Here Reeve Jim Bancroft and Deputy Reeve Bart Whitton help her get into the spirit.

New Recreation Director in Osnabruck Township

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

INGLESIDE—If there could be a better dream job for Kim Felteau, she wouldn't know about it.

Osnabruck's new Recreation Director is just bubbling over with enthusiasm to get started.

Having just about completed her master's thesis in recreation at the University of Waterloo, the 27-year-old Ingleside resident is anxious to put her academic training to practical use. She moved to the area from Thunder Bay just over a year-and-a-half ago, and she's just starting to get to know everyone.

"Right now I'm just getting my feet wet," she said, pointing out that it'll probably take a few weeks to get a handle on what to do.

Besides her academic background, Felteau's main involvement in recreation so far has been as a participant.

All her life she been "very involved" in aquatics; she's coached a swim team and worked as a lifeguard in day camps and over-nighters. She likes to ski and windsurf, among other hobbies. And last summer, she worked as a time traveller at Upper Canada Village.

Reeve Jim Bancroft said the process of narrowing down the list from the original 56 applications was long and arduous. Eventually, it came down to a choice of two people, both of whom were local. Felteau's enthusiasm gave her the competitive edge.

"She was bubbly and excited. It seemed she really wanted to go out there and do the job. She seemed to have a vision where she wanted to take the township."

At this point, council hasn't really laid out the ground rules for the new position. Felteau will have to grow with the job, the reeve said.

Council wants to give its new employee some breathing room so she can work with the volunteer recreation committee to establish their own set of guidelines and goals.

"As long as she stays on budget I don't see council getting too involved," Bancroft said. "I'd like to keep a hands-off policy if possible. We have a good committee in place, a good cross-section of people from all over the township. Let's see what they can do first."

That's suits Felteau just fine.

Right now, she's working with the committee to determine the kinds of needs residents want within recreation. It's an important job, she argues: lifestyles are changing — society is aging, work hours are shifting, and teenagers are turning increasingly to drugs and alcohol to relieve anxiety and stress.

Fitness affects a person's quality of life: the more involved township residents become, she more successful she will have been in her job.

"It provides people opportunities for different kinds of positive behaviour. Getting involved in community events gives people a sense of ownership, builds community spirit.

"Right now, I'm looking towards the summer season, starting to get ready for that. The Newington Fair starts this Saturday, and we'll be having the official opening of the rinkhouse there at 11:30 a.m."

Felteau isn't concerned about the hours she faces. When she majored in recreation in school, she knew what she was getting into.

"I don't think any recreation job is nine to five. If there is, I've never heard of it."

Still, she's looking for volunteers to come out and provide input. The township will need coaches for softball, refs for soccer, and promoters for all the other events.

"A lot of people have really good skills. It's just a matter of helping them get started up. That's what I'm here for."

Besides coordinating the volunteers, the new recreation director will have to push for a higher utilization rate of township facilities, including the Lancer Centre.

Council believes fund-raising opportunities haven't been fully capitalized on in recent years. That issue, more than any other, dominated the November elections, and was a major reason the position became available.

If Felteau is feeling any pressure, she isn't showing it. For now, she'll be operating out of the township office. That could change at any time, however.

"I'm really looking forward to it. It should be a really fun job."

Deighton trial scheduled

Charged with First Degree Murder in the shooting death of his son Alistair Andrew Deighton, 18, the senior Deighton faces life imprisonment if convicted.

The younger Deighton was found in the family home at 3643 Marcellus Road late in the evening of Jan. 30. He died as a result of two shotgun blasts, one to the head, one to the chest.

Police haven't released any possible motive for the shooting, although the younger Deighton was scheduled to face a sexual assault charge later in the month.

Murder suspect escapes

CORNWALL— Accused Winchester murder suspect Daryl John Bolton was arrested Sunday after a prisoner escaped from the Cornwall Jail by scaling the prison wall.

Bolton, 23, was one of three Winchester residents charged two weeks ago in the brutal slaying of Winchester senior Kenneth Hutt.

Around 2 p.m. Feb. 5, prison guards witnessed a man scaling the north end wall of the prison's exercise yard. Police combed the downtown neighborhood around the jail, climbing onto the roofs of surrounding buildings. A canine unit was later called in, as were OPP officers and members from the anti-smuggling RCMP task force.The suspect was found in the stairwell of a mall parking garage about an hour later.

Bolton appeared in Cornwall court yesterday morning facing the additional charge of escaping from lawful custody. His next court appearance is in Morrisburg February 28. Douglas Therkelson, 21, the alleged co-conspirator in the Hutt murder, will be making his next court appearence on February 14. The young offender also charged in the Hutt murder will be tried separately in Cornwall.

Old train at UCV may be linked to museum

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—Costs of moving the old train at Upper Canada Village to a location somewhere in Morrisburg will be hefty, at a conservative estimate of $24,000.

The rolling stock consists of a 1910 Class Mogul locomotive, a 1901 passenger coach and a 1920 refrigeration/baggage car, which were donated by the CNR. Due to deterioration of the equipment, and high costs (over $500,000) of restoration and maintenance, and after examining the alternatives, the St. Lawrence Parks Commission announced plans last year to relocate the train to the Smiths Falls Railway Museum.

But reeves from neighboring municipalities, including Morrisburg reeve Gord McGregor and the local Chamber of Commerce rallied in support of keeping the train in the local area.

At Tuesday's meeting , the Chamber previewed a mini report on costs of moving before the costs of restoration and maintenance are even considered.

Member Chick Bidgood had researched the weights of the stock and rough estimates from companies who move heavy equipment. The engine and coal tender alone weigh 135 tons. Using a crane and supports to lift all of the equipment onto a float would cost $8,000 and it would cost another $8000 to have a float company move it. Building a foundation and track to set the train would be at least another $8,000.

Thus at a conservative estimate, Bidgood said costs of moving to a location in Morrisburg would be $24,000. Possible locations may be at the waterfront, near the Tourist Information Booth, at the Old High School, or in front of the municipal building which at one time was a railyard.

Bidgood was preparing a report of approximate costs for reeve Gord McGregor to approach federal and or provincial governments for possible sources of funding. The request would be in conjunction with Morrisburg Council's proposal to establish a Morrisburg Museum in the Old High School.

"This is just ammunition for him to take to see if there are funds to move it," Bidgood said.

If funding were available and the project were feasible, the train would probably be moved during the winter not during the summer, as there would be less damage in moving the train over frozen ground.

Just moving the train would involve three decisions: the new location, the establishment of a foundation to set the train down, and the actual moving.

"The next project will be to try to figure out where to get the money to fix it, and the cost to restore and maintain," Bidgood stated.

Discussions will then be held with the Chamber on economic feasibility: in other words, the possibility of the train being a drain or not on the community.

Additional decisions will have to be made on whether just the locomotive should be moved and restored, or the locomotive and cars. The cars are in worse condition and moving may cause further damage.

While area reeves were to meet and report to the SLPC on proposed options to keep the train locally, the Commission had not yet received the report. However, Bonnie vanMoorsel, attending the meeting on behalf of the Commission said they would be willing to work with whoever puts forward a report.

Don Hill noted moving the train to the town would expose it to the danger of vandalism, and Bidgood agreed this would have to be considered when deciding on one location over another.

In an interview, reeve McGregor said the train could be a part of the proposed museum, but not necessarily located in the same place. "You could have a museum in the high school, and other things around the Village to attract and keep visitors here."

He reiterated his support for keeping the train in the Morrisburg area. "It was used on the Mocassin and it's

Iroquois Matilda looking for logo

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS-The Iroquois Matilda Promotion Committee is looking for a logo and theme to represent both areas from a tourism perspective.

The Tourism Committee met a few weeks ago, and one of the first items on the action agenda was to find a suitable logo to identify the attractive aspects of the area for visitors.

The logo would consist of a pictorial symbol and the theme a slogan of a few words. Suggestions are being taken at the municipal offices in Iroquois or Matilda before February 10. A few have already been submitted, but interested residents are still invited to participate.

"We're looking for idea's from the people mainly, some kind of decent tourism logo to attract the eye," said Iroquois deputy reeve Wilf Gibbons.

He admitted coming up with an original idea may be difficult, as the most representative symbol the Iroquois Locks has already been used on the Village pin, with the slogan "Best village by a dam site."

""I've been toying with a few ideas such as 'Come Alive in 95,'" Gibbons added.

"I'd like to see people get involved and come up with ideas not just for a logo but for tourism and see what we can do," he said.

"We feel we have a lot to offer. The major focus will be tourism, although there are other things we have in mind to promote. We wish to work with the South Dundas Economic Commission to promote economic growth too," said committee member Jacques Asselin.

Asselin added there are some things for the tourism committee to tidy up first before launching a promotion campaign "one of the first being the Information Booth. We may build a new one and locate it so it is in view of where the most traffic is."

Matilda member Jim Locke said the tourism committee had met to develop a policy, and one of the first items was to get public input on a logo. "But until we see what the public wants, we don't know further directions."

The next meeting of the joint committee is scheduled February 15.

First Monte Carlo Night Sat., Feb. 18 at Legion

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—Ten dollars will buy you not only a prime rib supper at next Saturday's Monte Carlo Night, but also $10,000 in funny money to use for betting on the casino establishments set up in the Legion Hall.

It's quite a deal, Branch 48 Treasurer Judy Laurin agrees. But it could be a lot of fun as well.

The event kicks off Feb. 18 beginning at 4 p.m.

Volunteers plan to set up two Crown and Anchor Wheels, four Black Jack tables, and a horse betting game borrowed from the Lions Club. Betting will continue through to the supper hour, with additional money available at $2 per $10,000 for those who run out.

Branch connoisseur Frank Oake will start cutting the roast some time around 6 p.m, giving participants an opportunity to build some energy for the rest of the evening.

Once betters have properly digested their dinners, the Legion will host a fun auction, with patrons using their "winnings" to purchase prizes donated by local merchants.

Entertainment will follow from 9 p.m. -1 a.m., featuring local favorites Dayton &Eric.

"They're middle of the road," said Laurin, who has seen them perform before. "They'll play rock & roll, everything."

The event was organized by Legion member Leonard Beckstead, chairman of the ways and means committee. All proceeds raised will go to local charities.

Tickets will be on sale at the Legion Bar on Collin Street until February 13.

WCA to elect new executives, committees

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

WILLIAMSBURG—The Williamsburg Community Association has a busy agenda to sort through at this year's annual meeting (Thursday, Feb. 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Seniors' Room in the township office building).

Besides electing a new executive and establishing committees for 1995, members will be debating guidelines for making donations, said WCA president David Lapier.

"We need something concrete in place — establishing the criteria for making donations and how much to donate."

Lapier said the need for such guidelines became clear to WCA leaders just before Christmas after they were forced to make a decision on providing aid to a fire victim. Set rules in place would eliminate any question of favoritism in these kinds of situations, he said.

"We can't donate to everything. We need maximum guidelines so no one gets upset."

Besides the guidelines topic, another potential issue of interest could centre on a suggestion to change the name of the WCA to encourage participation outside the hamlet. Lapier said almost every member of the present WCA comes from within Williamsburg proper. While other members might disagree, he personally would like to see representation from other township centres also — including Riverside and Mariatown.

"It's a big area, and there's not too much we can do about it. But we'd like to get some input from other parts of the township as well."

Other topics of discussion will include various organizational aspects of the spring yard sale and the fall Harvest festival.

The WCA plans to move the festival up a week so it doesn't compete with Thanksgiving. Signing the entertainment will be a top priority of the new committee, as will purchasing a new tent.

"You'd be surprised all the different things that must be organized for an event like that. You can't let these things go."

The WCA plans to purchase up to four parking signs to set up along the village's main strip. Determining where they will go is also on the agenda, as is updating members on the progress of several projects in the works, including the Neighborhood Watch program and the purchasing of "Welcome to Williamsburg" signs. Both should be up and running by spring.

Another potential issue of interest could be the property standards bylaw. At this point, the proposal has passed through the executive of the WCA. It's now out of the leadership's hands, and is awaiting Williamsburg council's decision, one way or the other.

Lapier said he'll stay on as president if the membership is agreeable. He finds the job "fun" and is proud of what the organization has accomplished in its two years of operation.

Games Night

On Wednesday, February 8, from 7-9 p.m., the WCA will host a games night for teens and seniors at the Park Lane Senior's Support Centre.

Organizers will be providing coffee, tea and lemonade for participants and games will include Cards, Chess, Checkers, and Backgammon.

Depending on participation levels, the WCA hope to turn the event into something regular, forming some sort of interactive group between seniors and teens. The idea, Lapier said is both to give kids something to do, and to get the seniors and the young people of the community more acquainted with each other.

history. We want to keep it as much as we can."

In other news, the Chamber approved a $500 expenditure for advertising and marketing in the Seaway Valley Tourism Discovery Guide and the First Annual Vacation Travel Guide and Atlas, a new product by the Recorder and Times for Leeds Lanark Grenville and Dundas Counties. The advertising is in partnership with the South Dundas Economic Commission, which has committed $800 for the two publications.

A representative from Chamber of Commerce Group Insurance has been invited to the March meeting to discuss group insurance plans for small companies.

Bidgood will be checking into the availability of the Morrisburg arena for the Spring Home and Trade Show. Bev Law is on the "phone committee" to remind members about meetings, the next being held Tuesday, March 7.

Parks of St. Lawrence host Winter Challenge

MORRISBURG—Gear up for the fourth annual Parks of the St. Lawrence Winter Challenge taking place Sunday, February 19 beginning at 1:30 p.m. at the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary.

The Winter Challenge, a first-rate outdoor experience, is fun for the whole family. Teams of five will be able to enjoy themselves while proving their ability to beat the Eastern Ontario winter.

Outdoor skills such as snowshoeing 500 metres, fire lighting, snowball target throwing and nature identification will put participants to the test.

A sense of humor will ensure a good time. The winners efforts will not go unnoticed and prizes will be awarded at 3 p.m. to acknowledge the exploits of the participants.

Visitors to the Sanctuary can also watch dog sled demonstrations, ski the 10km groomed trails (weather permitting) and enjoy a beautiful afternoon at the Sanctuary.

From noon till 4 p.m. participants will be able to warm up in the Visitor Interpretive Centre. The Friends of the Sanctuary will be selling beverages and snacks.

Admission for the afternoon of activities is $2.50 per person, and children 12 and under are free.

The Sanctuary is located 14km east of Morrisburg

OETIO opens doors to interested businesses

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—The OETIO wants to share its Morrisburg facility with outside businesses to help offset expenses while Local 793's financial restructuring continues.

Over the next several weeks, management will make available many of the classrooms, guest rooms and dining facilities presently vacant, said Administrator of Training Kingsley Cole in a recent interview.

"We're under new management now and we'd like to make the facility more open to other interested groups. If a group wants one room, 10 rooms, the dining facilities — whatever — we're going to be more client-oriented."

The move to open up the vacant facility comes quickly on the heels of the International Union of Operating Engineers' takeover of Local 793 (which controls the OETIO). Head office in Washington assumed control about three weeks ago after it became apparent union members in Ontario had lost faith in management's ability to resolve its financial difficulties.

Cole dismissed suggestions the new policy signaled a permanent downsizing of OETIO operations at the Morrisburg site. He suggested, rather, that management had decided to return to an earlier vision of the training facility.

"The training institute was never intended to be the only client in this place. We'll hold on to what we need and we'll time-share the rest of it."

In discussing the immediate future of the OETIO, Cole didn't wish to speculate when training classes would resume again. He stressed the union's committment to the Morrisburg site and the "temporary" nature of the work stoppage.

" You don't find a solution to these things in just a few weeks. I'm waiting for answers like everybody else. I'm sure I'll have something positive to report in the not-too-distant future."

Cole presently is restructuring the institute, preparing for a more efficient operation once the executive clears the present financial hurdles.

Among other initiatives, he's working on behalf of the OETIO in a cooperative venture with the Canadian Operating Engineers National Council to provide training programs for 22 Operating Engineer operations. Cole said the federally-funded program will provide "tremendous cost savings in course development" and allow union members "access to this needed training years ahead of time."

Other jobs in progress include participating on an industry committee within the Ministry of Labour involved in redrafting the entire regulation 150 Section for crane operation. This endeavor will ensure the union's voice is heard and needs are met in the work place, the administrator concluded.

"We didn't shut our doors and go away. There are a whole lot of other initiatives we are involved in besides the training facility here in Morrisburg."

Local gun owners organize to oppose proposed bill

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—Local gun owners believe they still have some firepower left in their struggle against the federal government's gun control legislation.

Charles Dillabough, an avid hunter and gun collector, together with a few dozen other concerned outdoorsmen, have organized a "grass roots" movement of like-minded individuals to campaign against Justice Minister Allen Rock's proposal. Last weekend's meeting with MP Bob Kilger in Chesterville was just a start, Dillabough said. Organized at the last minute, it drew 60 people out.

"We're finding people don't understand what the costs are, what the implications are of this legislation. People have not understood, weren't aware of content of the bill until recently."

Not only will the bill be expensive for both hunters and taxpayers, he says, (costing anywhere from several hundred million to several billion to implement); it'll be bureaucratic and inconvenient as well, with all hand guns now requiring registrtion paperwork.

Dillabough personally has six of these hand guns, each valued at between $500-1000. He's afraid of the "down the road consequences" of the government knowing who has a gun.

"Wouldn't it be better spending the money to put more police on the streets. Instead of creating new laws, we should be enforcing the ones we have. Guns don't kill people. People do."

That's not to say Dillabough and the others don't appreciate the point behind the legislation — to reduce crime. In fact, the local gun owners lobby group supports parts of the bill as now written: including a push for tougher border controls against smuggling; mandatory sentences for criminal acts involving a firearm; and the elimination of plea bargaining in crimes of violence.

"We think they should go even further in some areas," Dillabough says.

At this point, he doesn't want to call his local gun lobby group a formal organization. It's just a few gun owners who are concerned, and didn't know what else to do.

Kilger has committed himself to back his party's position, (and local gun owners within the organization appreciated having been given the opportunity to meet him on the issue). However, Dillabough says there are signals in the Liberal Party of a growing opposition, especially among MPs with a large rural base where voters (i.e. farmers) have a different attitude about guns and their usage.

Information meetings featuring guest speakers from the anti-gun control lobby group will soon be publicized in area newspapers. Dillabough said his "loose knit" group invites anyone interested to attend and ask questions.

White Cane Week

On Monday, Grade 4, 5, and 6 students at Morrisburg Public School learned that being blind isn't necessarily a handicap. Sandy MacLear from the CNIB in Cornwall showed how computers can be specially equipped with sound to guide employeees in their work. The demonstration was arranged by special education teacher Shelley Martin.

Valley Writers' Guild

KEMPTVILLE—Freelancer Bruce Pringle will discuss the business of technical writing at the Feb. 12 meeting of the Valley Writer's Guild (scheduled for 2 p.m. at St. Johns' United Church in Kemptville).

Pringle, retired from 33 years of service with the Canadian Armed Forces as a technical writer, now writes for religious magazines on a freelance basis. Among other subjects, he'll touch on how much better the Bible would be if a competent technical writer had been involved in putting it together.

Wise words from Iron Lady

A fresh perspective from an outside observer often leads to innovative, more effective solutions to problems those too close at hand couldn't manage to solve by themselves.

In what observers felt was a veiled commentary on Canada's constitutional crisis, former British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher recently alluded to her own country's struggles to stay united during the failed separatist movements in Scotland and Wales in the latter 1970s.

Thatcher never directly mentioned Quebec by name during her tirade against the economic and social destructiveness of separatist ideology in democracies .

But audience members certainly were right to assume the crafty Iron Lady was talking about the Parti Quebecois and the failed 1980 referendum on sovereignty association when she said with a smile: "I don't think you can have a referendum every few years just because you don't like the results of the last one."

Canadian Nationalists undoubtedly will welcome the backing of such an important international states figure. However, those within English Canada especially should take note with Thatcher's second but equally important point.

Defeating separatism, she argued, depends on reacting to the driving forces which cause such nationalist forces to emerge in the first place. Scotland wanted more autonomy in how decisions were made; Britain gave it to her, mainly through a process Thatcher referred to as "administrative devolution" — decentralizing authority away from the federal government to the outlining provincial authorities.

It remains to be seen whether or not Canadians, and in particular the ruling Liberal Party under Jean Chretien will accept such a message. The Charlottetown Accord failed at least in part because English voters believed it too generous to Quebec. And Chretien, an avowed proponent of strong centralized government, has never been too anxious to relinquish power even from the PMO's office, much less the federal government.

Still, maybe it's time he rethink the idea. Without some major changes, the separatist plague in Quebec will keep rearing its ugly head time and again. Repeated poles taken in the province since the early 1970s tell us a good third of Francophone Quebecois consistently want out of Canada, and another third swing from side to side depending on the type of question asked and the economic climate. Without the solid Nationalist block of English and immigrant voters in Quebec, the issue would have been history long ago, whether we here in English Canada want to accept that reality or not.

Decentralized government isn't necessarily a bad thing. Puerto Rico has lived as basically an autonomous unit within the United States for generations and the people there recently voted to maintain the present arrangement. Conservative philosophers, especially those inspired by the writings of former American President Thomas Jefferson, would say a decentralized system maximizing "states rights" is the most democratic form of government, returning power to legislatures closer to those holding them accountable, the voters.

For the sake of the country, lets give it a chance, and move on. —MvR

Snowmobile Safety Week

The snowmobile community across Ontario is marshaling its forces to stop the spiraling rate of deaths off-trails.

Already this season, 25 people have been killed in snowmobile accidents, matching the number who died all last winter. Twenty-three of the victims were males. Twelve drowned when their machines broke through thin ice. Alcohol and speed were again key factors in most of the accidents. These are the leading factors every winter in snowmobile-related deaths.

These are grim statistics. they underscore the seriousness of the problem faced by snowmobile clubs, community groups, educators and government officials involved in the "Ride Safe, Ride Sober" public education campaign across the province.

Snowmobile Safety Week takes place Feb. 4-12 across Canada. It is a time for everyone concerned with snowmobile safety to take stock, understand the reasons behind snowmobile accidents and ensure the messages behind the "Ride Safe, Ride Sober" campaign get out to as many people as possible.

"The tragedy behind these deaths is that they are definitely preventable," Ontario Minister of Culture, Tourism and Recreation Anne Swarbrick said. "The ice on lakes and rivers is weak because of the mild winter. Under constant freeze-thaw conditions, ice simply can't be trusted to support both individuals and their snowmobiles. Please heed the committee's advice. Stick to groomed trails. Don't drink, don't speed, and stick to day time driving whenever possible."

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Catherine Thompson

1985

A report by United Counties energy auditor Rob Winger recommended $33,000 of repairs to make the old high school more energy efficient. The high school, built in 1925, had been a bone of contention at several council meetings, but reeve Bill Dillabough assured concerned residents the building would remain open until suitable alternate facilities could be found.

Village council planned to meet with environment minister Andy Brandt to discuss provincial funding for the village's proposed sanitary tank sewer project. First proposed in 1978, the two-phased project was currently estimated at $2.5 million, and would see the sewer line extended from the treatment plant at the foot of Allison Street to Ottawa Street and north to the high school. The second phase would extend the line along Hwy 31 north past lights and across the intersection of Hwy 2. With 70 per cent financing, and the remainder to be debentured, council hoped to see the system underway towards the end of 1995.

Former reeve Earl Baker was honored with the presentation of an engraved gavel at a regular council meeting. Councillor C.F. McInnis, former reeve and warden, spoke of the high esteem in which Mr. Baker was held by councillors and residents.

Anne Marie Smith was chosen queen of the Morrisburg Winter Carnival. The previous year she was named queen of the Winter Carnival at Seaway District High School.

The Seaway District High School Curling Team travelled to Renfrew for the Division 1-Division 11 playoff, where Seaway curlers skipped by Blair MacDonald won over an Almonte team, and the win led to the Ontario Schoolboy Curling finals. Other members of the Seaway team were Peter Brunt vice-skip, Tom MacDonald, second and Gary MacDonald lead.

Pictured on the front page of February 12th edition of The Leader were Rev. R.L. Howald, Reeve Fred A. Hill, Hosea Droppo and C.F. McInnis as they examined the new infra-red heating system which had been installed in Morrisburg's $175,000 Community Centre. The new installation permitted 700 spectators on the north side of the arena to better enjoy hockey games even in the most bitter outside temperatures.

At the Dominion five 15 ounce tins of Burford peaches were 89 cents and a 24 ounce jar of Nation's Best strawberry jam was selling for 39 cents.

The Morrisburg Juniors squared their best of five Junior A playoff series with Cardinal with an 8-4 victory. Fred Harper led the winners with two goals and singles were counted by Terry Mccurdy, Ernie McMillan, Jack Notman, George Grant, John Bailey and Paul Beyman.

At Brinston's Allied Food market Robin Hood baking flour was 57 cents a seven pound bag and a one pound package of Catelli spaghetti was 19 cents.

Headlines in the February 11th, 1955 issue of The Leader read Major New Developments in Seaway Valley During Past Week. Of prime importance in the latest developments was an official letter from Ontario Hydro to the Planning Board that lands would be taken to the 249 foot level from Doran's Point to Iroquois.

The ladies of the Morrisburg Curling Club had two teams in the Tweedsmuir Competition in Ottawa and the local ladies went to the semifinals before bowing to a strong representation from the Ottawa Curling Club. Players of the Morrisburg rinks were Isobel Christensen, Lois Edgerton, Hulda Hummell, Lucille Crober, Nonie Keck, Lillian MacLuckie, Lorena Louden and Mae Meikle.

Ross H. Beckstead, Williamsburg was selling the giant 21 inch RCA Victor television set for $199.95.

In a letter to the Morrisburg-Williamsburg Planning Board, Hon. G.H. Challies, Ontario Hydro vice-chairman, indicated levels of the land required by Hydro in connection with the St. Lawrence Power development. Mr. Challies revealed all lands to an elevation of 249 feet would be required from Doran's Point, approximately one mile east of Morrisburg, to Iroquois.

The February 9th, 1945 issue of The Leader reported that Tommy Tindal was honored at an exhibition hockey game prior to leaving for overseas. Between the second and third periods, Tommy was presented with a $50 bill by a group of fans—Mr. John H. Meikle making the presentation on their behalf. The bill was pinned to the following inscription: To Tommy Tindal, our number one hockey player, a little token of our appreciation for his invaluable contribution to junior hockey in Morrisburg and his clean sportsmanship and gentlemanly conduct on and off the ice.

Headlines read Flt. Lieutenant Herbert Coons risks death to save chum. Coons interposed his aircraft in the line of fire from Japanese fighters attacking another R.C.A.F. Dakota, dropping urgently needed supplies to British army troop, driving the Japanese back on Mandalay. Coons managed to bring his damaged aircraft back to its base. Coons a former Morrisburg resident was loaded with supplies for ground troops, his supplies included highly combustible petrol and mortar shells. When Coons drove his aircraft in the line of the two attacking Jap fighters, the Japs were forced to execute quick turns to avoid collision. Turning upon Coons, they forced him to tree top level. After 10 minutes of dodging the Japs among the tree tops the later gave up the chase and Coons brought his aircraft back to base.

At Hess' Groceteria ready cut macaroni was five cents a pound and bread nine cents a loaf.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor;

The Federal government has indicated it will introduce new firearm legislation in early February. The draft proposals have been released by the Minister of Justice.

The rules regarding firearm ownership are to be drastically changed. Provisions for Firearm Possession Certificates and the universal registration of all firearms will apply to all gun owners.

Many individuals will be directly affected by new regulations which transfer hundreds of types of firearms to either restricted or prohibited status. Owners of these firearm will no longer be able to use them for either hunting or target shooting. They may be retained until the death of the registered owner at which time they will be confiscated from the estate without compensation.

Transfer or sale of a significant number of firearms will become a Criminal Code offense with severe jail terms. It is imperative that all members of the recreational firearms community become fully informed regarding these expected changes.

The National Firearms Association advises all firearm owners to contact their Member of Parliament to request a copy of the legislation.

Sincerely,
Wm. R. Rantz,
NFA—Ontario President

Council to know of final price tag for sewage treatment soon

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

INGLESIDE—Council should have a fairly clear sense of the final price tag for the Ingleside Kraft sewage treatment plant within the next week to ten days.

That's when representatives from the Ontario Clean Water Agency are expected to deliver a verdict on blueprints they're reviewing on behalf of the township.

Council isn't expecting too many additions to the proposal at this point. The redesigned plans have been finished; it's now mainly a matter of determining who picks up the tab for the added work required, said Reeve Jim Bancroft.

"We're still discussing the increased cost — to see what's absolutely necessary to do the redesign work. It's a double check, to make sure the township is on track with the consultants."

Council met last Friday afternoon with representatives from OCWA and the township's consulting firm, McNeely Engineering. While the reeve didn't elaborate, a major focus of discussion apparently centred on the consulting fees being charged, and how they'd eventually be broken down.

Councillor Heine Bruining said the township and McNeely representatives still have "different ways of interpreting" what the final consulting bill will be.

Apparently, the consulting firm is demanding reimbursement for all the work they've done downsizing the plant to bring the project back on budget target.

However, council believes much of the secondary work required could have been avoided if the engineering firm had been more careful when putting together its initial package.

Bruining in particular is of the opinion that the consulting firm should be held at least partially liable for the present hold up (especially in failing to take into account quality emission improvements at Kraft, which made the original plans too elaborate for the township's needs).

And apparently OCWA representatives agreed. They backed the township's position not to accept double billing on the redesigned work, Bruining said.

"It was a positive meeting, They (OCWA) understood our position. They agreed with us that we should be charged only to a point."

A few months ago, Bruining was leading a push to replace the engineering firm with another. That option isn't practical any longer, the councillor said, having debated the issue at length with the OCWA representatives.

"For the sake of expediency to save money and time — we're going forward with it the way it is," he sighed.

Under the terms of the original agreement, Kraft's contribution is capped. OCWA is to pick 81 per cent of the remainder and the township the rest (which could be an additional $150,000-175,000 to the $1.4 million originally budgeted).

Reeve Bancroft said township council should have a fairly good idea of the final numbers within the next week to ten days.

However, nothing definite will be made public until after the tendering process is completed (some time around the end of March, beginning of April).

Developing a framework for protection and recovery of endangered species

OTTAWA—Around the world, wildlife is disappearing. Canada is no exception. Since 1600, at least 14 species of birds, mammals and fish have become extinct in Canada. Most were hunted to extinction, including the passenger pigeon and the great auk (a penguin-like bird).

Today, disappearing natural habitats and environmental contamination are the principal threats to wildlife. In Canada, 235 species of plants and animals are considered endangered, threatened or vulnerable (118 are in immediate danger).

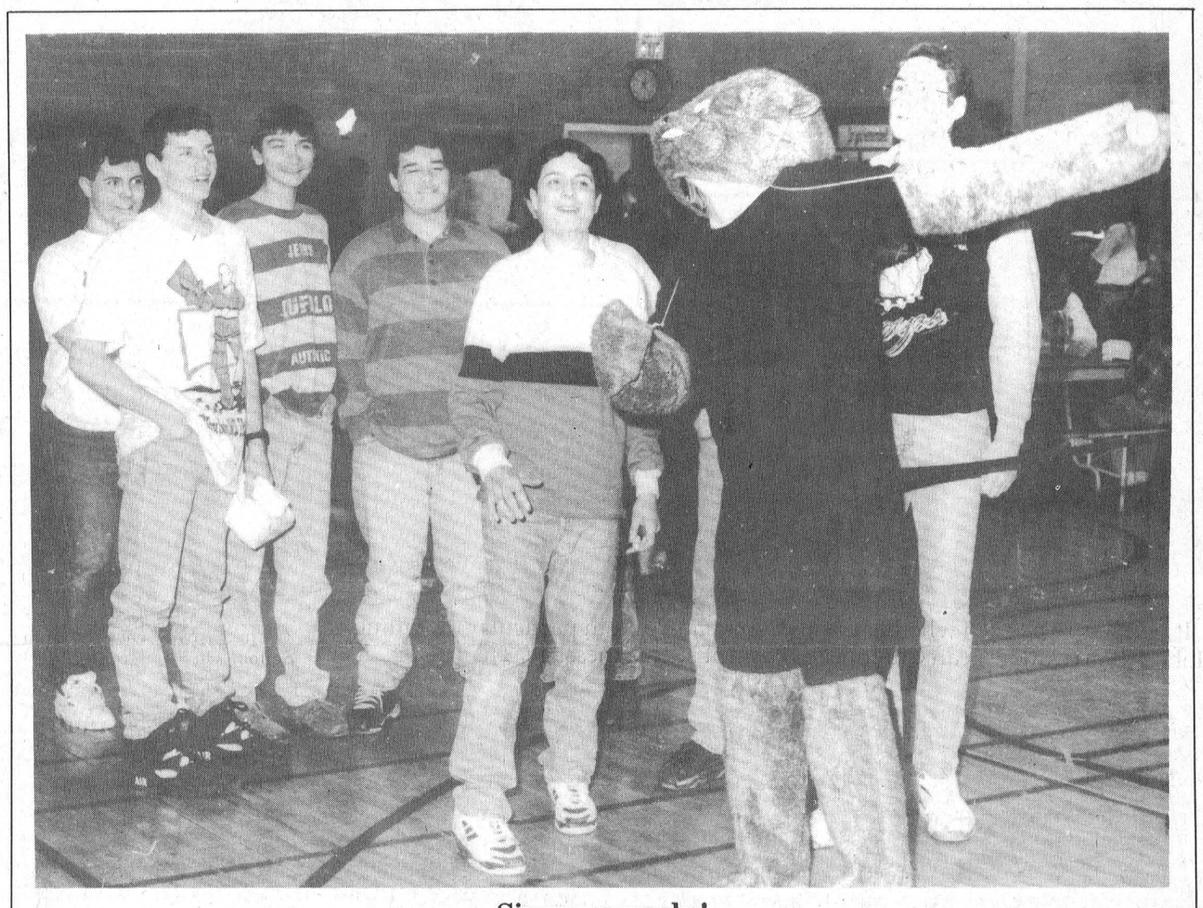
Every year, approximately 10 species are added to the list. Many species have yet to be evaluated. The conservation of Canadian species is of great importance: our well-being depends on the diversity of ecosystems, as well as the abundance within them.

By signing the United Nations convention on Biological Diversity at the Earth Summit in Rio in 1992, Canada committed itself to improving its legislation for the protection of endangered species. In November 1994, Environment Minister Sheila Copps released a discussion paper to launch the process. The document, Endangered Species Legislation, proposes options for the development of a new federal endangered species act, and fora national list of endangered species or the implementation of recovery plans.

Environment Canada is working in other ways to help protect our endangered species, in cooperation with provincial and non-government organizations. The national committee, RENEW (Recovery of Nationally Endangered Wildlife), has established recovery plans for 35 species so far and with the World Wildlife Fund, has created the Endangered Species Recovery Fund which has funded 172 different initiatives to date. Environment Canada is also working to develop regulations to implement the Wild Animal and Plant Protection and Regulation of the International ad Interprovincial Trade Act which will deter illegal trade and the commercialization of wildlife and their products.

Recent increases in the numbers of the swift fix and peregrine falcon, both endangered species, are proof that preservation measures can be effective. Humans are most responsible for the loss of animal and plant species, but can also make the greatest contribution to protecting them.

Canadians are invited to participate in the public consultations, which begin in February on how to protect our endangered species. To obtain the discussion paper and for further information, call 1-800-667-6767 or write to Canadian Wildlife Service Publications, Environment Canada, Ottawa, Ontario K1A OH3. Fax: (819) 953-6283.



Six more weeks!

Wiarton Willie, Canada's most famous shadow caster, visited Rothwell-Osnabruck on Groundhog's Day, passing out what he called groundhog tails to bemused observers. When he did manage to get back to work back in Owen Sound, he saw his shadow. Canadians can expect six more weeks of winter.

MORRISBURG—The newest restaurant in town, the Subway will be opening its doors to the public today.

Customers who have been eagerly awaiting the opening may now order their selection of sub sandwiches, salads and breakfasts here.

"Our bread is cooked fresh on the premises every day, and the fresh vegetables are put on to the customer's liking," area supervisor Lorraine Leighton said.

Breakfast consisting of egg rounds with different types of meat, steak, muffins turnovers, cinnamon buns is served in the morning with fresh coffee.

"The Subway will offer very fast, efficient service that will get customers in through the door as quick as possible, and still a friendly service as well," Leighton said.

The Morrisburg location is owned by Thomas Hellard of Kanata, and Jennifer McNairn of Morrisburg is the manager here. Area supervisor Lorraine Leighton is responsible for Morrisburg, and the other locations in Almonte, Kanata, Barrhaven and Kemptville.

The franchise is one of a chain of 10,000 fast food restaurants around the world, started by Fred Deluca in 1984. The head office is in Connecticut, and over700 restaurants are located in Canada, 8600 in the United States. Franchises are located in Germany, Austrailia and China as well.

The Subway will be open-Sunday to Thursday from 7.00 a.m. to 12.00 a.m. and on Friday and Saturday hours are from 7.00 a.m. to 2.00 a.m. This Wednesday the Subway is ready for business at 11.00 a.m.

Masons Donate

The Masonic Association of Eastern District, which represents 20 Masonic Lodges in Eastern Ontario, have once again donated $2,000 to the Winchester Memorial Hospital. The money was made possible by last summer's Duck Race. The events are sponsored jointly by the Masonic Association of Eastern District and the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario. Local merchants and citizens also were generous in their support of this venture with price money and the purchase of tickets. Pictured from left to right: W. Bro. Crisis Services under review in five counties

CORNWALL—An initial review on the availability of Crisis Services in the five counties of Eastern Ontario (Stormont, dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell) has just been completed.

This project surveyed agencies and services in the five counties to determine what resources were available to assist an individual who was experiencing an emotional or psychiatric crisis. It also asked this group to identify gaps in services, or present difficulties in helping someone in a crisis.

The study also asked individuals and families what services they used when faced with a similar crisis, and what new services would be of benefit to them. Some examples of services used in other communities were highlighted, such as Distress LInes and Outreach Teams to assess their potential usefulness in the five counties.

This review was part of a planning process by the District Health Council of Eastern Ontario, as a starting point in developing a Crisis Response System for the five counties. With the upcoming changes in the mental health field, initiated by Mental Health Reform, Crisis Services are seen as an essential service in each local area. In order to develop a plan to strengthen the Crisis Response System, this survey of resources and needs was gathered.

Some very common concerns were identified through this review. It was noted that the region had no identified lead agency for responding to crisis which led to a low profile for crisis Services, and a lack of coordination between agencies and services. For most people and agencies surveyed, the difference between Distress and Crisis was not a clear one, and whatever services are developed need to be able to respond to both conditions.

The lack of available/affordable transportation throughout the region was a common concern expressed. If Crisis Services are available, people need to be able to get to them when needed.

Another issue identified related to the lack of information collected by groups and agencies about Crisis, and that there wasn't a strong awareness of how to identify the early signs of Crisis.

The report makes 12 general recommendations for improving Crisis Services in Eastern Ontario, starting with the need for awareness and coordination of groups. The Study Group is planning to meet regularly to develop plans to strengthen Crisis Services in Eastern Ontario. Membership on this group is open to anyone who is interested in Crisis Services from a personal or professional perspective. If you would like to join this group, or get more information on what is being planned, please call the Canadian Mental Health Association at 933-5845.

Teens started smoking regularly after one puff

CORNWALL—Just one puff. . . that's all it took for more than 40 per cent of the teen smokes surveyed by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit to become regular smokers.

The recent survey of high school students in the five counties showed that of those who smoke, 40 per cent started smoking regularly after "just one puff" of a cigarette.

That figure is up form the results of a 1988 survey, which showed that 34 per cent of smokers aged 13-14 became regular smokers after that initial smoke.

Both 1988 and the 1994 surveys revealed the peak age for experimenting with smoking was 13 to 14 years old.

The 1994 survey, completed by 7,269 high school students in the five counties, revealed more disturbing statistics. by the age of 12, 48 per cent of boys and 40 per cent of girls surveyed said they had experimented with smoking. In 1988, more girls (52 per cent) than boys (48 per cent) had experimented by the age of 12.

About one quarter of students surveyed in 1994 reported they were regular smokers (at least one cigarette a day) - - up five per cent from the 1988 survey.

The 1994 survey also showed that the younger the first time smoker is, the greater the chances are that he or she will continue smoking.

Among those who tried their first cigarette before the age of 10, the smoking rate was 51 per cent. The rate drops to 20 per cent among those who tried their first cigarette after the age of 17, and continued with the habit.

"Obviously the longer we can keep kids from taking that first puff, the better the chances are they will remain smoke free," said Dr. Robert Bourdeau, medical officer of health for the Eastern Ontario Health Unit.

"As health professionals, as parents, as a community, we can't ignore these statistics."

The health unit, he said, will be stepping up efforts to stamp out tobacco use.

Junior Lions in logjam for last two playoff spots

MORRISBURG—There's a bit of a logjam for the third and fourth playoff spots in EOJBHL's St. Lawrence division as Char-Lan, Morrisburg and Kemptville are tied with 34 points each.

It may come down to that postponed game between Kemptville and Morrisburg to decide who gets to go on to the playoff series, as Char-Lan has just four games remaining. Morrisburg and Kemptville have five each, and two of them are against each other.

Friday night they'll meet at Morrisburg for their first of two showdowns, and it will no doubt be a bit of a struggle for the home town Lions, as Kemptville handed both the number one Glens and the number two Hawks losses last week.

It's anyone's game now, and it will definitely go to the team with the most crowd support, so now is your chance to let the Lions know you're still behind them.

Here Sunday night, Morrisburg needed the 8-6 win they achieved over the Char-Lan Rebels, but it was a close one throughout the 60 minutes of hockey.

At the breaks the Lions led by one each time and finally put the game away with a strong third period showing.

Mike McAllister, Josh Gowsell, Mike Marleau, Jeff Hyndman and Cory Payment supplied singles in the winning effort with Troy Sayeau in the crease.

Replying for CharLan were Dave Campbell with a natural hat trick, Terry O'Farrell, D.J. Zaluski and Robert Curran.

Back in Winchester Friday, it wasn't such a an outcome as Winchester dumped the Lions 7-3.

Chad Dugay fired two goals and midget affiliate, Jason Rice supplied a single. Geoff Hare had two assists, and Sayeau suffered this loss.

Dale Wilson once again proved why he's the Hawks' number one goal tender stopping 33 shots throughout the game for the win.

Single markers were supplied by Chad Barnhart, Mike Nannini and Jeff Scobie.

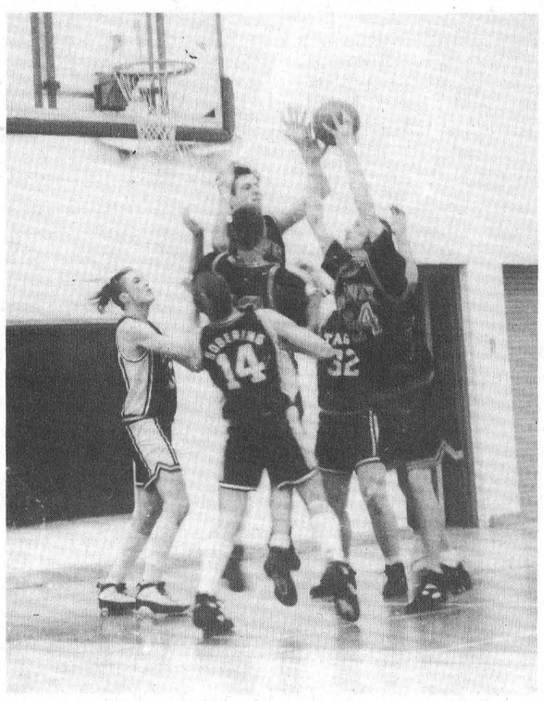
Coming up, the Lions host Kemptville Friday at 8:30 p.m., and Sunday, they travel to Alexandria. A couple of wins here wouldn't hurt.

Spartans show tough second half to take big win

IROQUOIS—With less than a minute to play, the Seaway senior boys basketball team led 51-50 against the Tagwi Warriors.

But with the hustle in the Seaway zone it wasn't long before Tagwi's Peter Jack was fired the ball and away he went on a breakaway.

Jack was in the air on the lay-up when out of the sky flew Seaway's Derek Casselman as he was able to block the shot to keep Seaway's hopes alive.



Rebound
Derek Casselman tries to sink one but was foiled by Tagwi's terrific defense.

A standing ovation by the over crowded gymnasium gave the newcomer the much appreciated thanks.

"He's got great springs," said coach Scott Corden after the game.

"That was the game saver right there. Derek is very gifted offensively, and we only saw a little of what he can do out there on the court today."

"He's only been with us a short while and had only played one game and been out for two practices, but I'm really pleased with how he's progressing."

Seaway went on to sink a few more for a 57-54 upset of the first-place Warriors.

Unfortunately, Corden was hoping to win by at least nine so as to stay in the hunt for first place.

As it sits now, both teams have just two games left in the SD&G schedule and Seaway needs both wins.

"If Tagwi loses one and we win both, we'll have first place," Corden explained.

"Right now, we'll just have to keep playing like we did today."

Casselman, new to Seaway this semester from the Toronto area, is not overly huge on the court, but he does have an abundance of talent, and is a great addition to the already solid team.

Clint Block led the scoring in the win Thursday afternoon sinking 24 points, while Jamie Helmer added 12 and Dave Peck, 10.

Andy VanderMeullen had five points, while Mike Adlington and Jamie Scott each had three points.

Jack was Tagwi's high scorer as he sank 20 points to lead the pack..

Kevin MacKilleran had nine points, Darryle Sobering, eight, and Jeremy Nixon added five.

In Midget action, the Seaway Spartans upset Tagwi 34-22.

Mike MacDonald fired 17 points in the win.

Ben McPherson had six, Brad Boivin, four, Brandon Cassell, three, and Jason Byvelds and Lance Fader added two points apiece.

In the Junior game, Chris Krug led the way for a 25-point spread win over the Warriors.

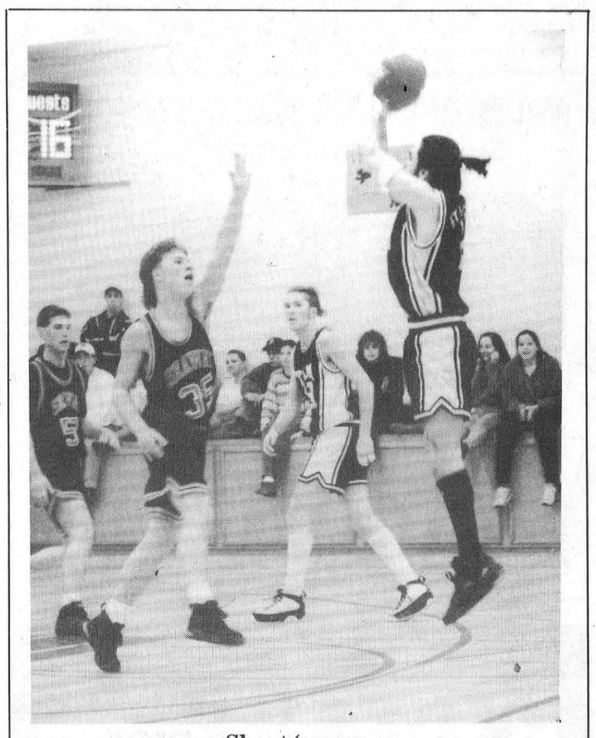
Corden stated Friday that the Juniors won quite handily and Krug scored 12 points in the win.

"There were a whole slew of others with points, but I just can't tell you who they were right now."

The boys will be travelling to CharLan on February 6th and on February 14th they will be at R/O.

Coming up, the girls volleyball teams are hosting an SD&G tournament today.

Saturday, they are hosting an exhibition tournament with eight teams in contention.



Shoot 'em up
Seaway's Andy VanderMeullen (35) goes up for the block.

Dick Wilkins brings news of Ontario Men's Curling Championships

Last week we talked briefly, and rather generally, about how an individual curling club went about planning and setting up to host the Ontario Men's Curling Championships. This week we will take a look from another view—the Ontario Curling Association's format of playdowns.

The principal reason to stage this Tankard series at all, of course, is to bring together all of the 10 area champions into one specific set of playoffs. This week-long set of games will determine the ultimate provincial champion, which team will then represent Ontario at the Labatt Brier, Canada's famous National Men's Curling Championships to be held at Halifax, Nova Scotia, in March.

To begin with, Ontario is split into two divisions. The less populous, but for curling purposes, the equally prominent Northern division is separated from the south by a line drawn more or less across the face of the map stretching from the Quebec border in the East, at about the North Bay level, and then due west to the farthest point of the province just south of Sault Saint Marie. All of Ontario south of this line, for purposes of uniformity, is considered in curling as simply "Ontario". All points north of this line, although still an integral part of the O.C.A., is designated as Northern Ontario, and has its own set of playdowns, and declares its own representative into the Brier.

Meanwhile, Southern Ontario, now referred to as "Ontario", is split into four Regions. The Regions, rather loosely defined are as follows:

1) The Eastern Region (Ottawa, Cornwall, Morrisburg, Brockville, etc.)

2) The Central Region (Barrie, Midland, Orillia, Penetang, etc.)

3) The Toronto area Region

4) The Ontario West Region (Windsor, London, Chatham, Kitchener, etc.)

The four Regions are then further split into four Zones each. For example, Zone 1 includes such places as Cornwall, Alexandria and Hawksbury and Ottawa East, while Zone 2 is made up of Ottawa West, Smiths Falls, Brockville, Gananoque and other centres located in between. With each Region comprising four Zones, when all preliminary playdowns are completed, each Region will produce two winners, who will then advance to the final Tankard series.

In addition to these eight teams, the O.C.A. also conducts what it calls the Challenge Round. Basically, this is similar in structure to having one more Region, as ultimately two more teams will qualify from playdowns in this series. Simply stated, this "Challenge Round" is open to all previously defeated contestants who would engage in a further round robin to attempt to re-enter the Tankard by another, slightly more circumventuous route. Two more qualifiers are then established, making a grand total of 10 Tankard teams from "Ontario", all vying for the right to represent the province in the Brier.

The Tankard series, played over a six day period, this year using five specially prepared sheets of ice at the Kingston Jock Harty Arena, includes two sets of games, or "draws" per day and is structured to allow for ties and tie-breakers, all geared to conclude with the grand finale game between the two finalists, with the winner automatically advancing to the National games in Halifax. There they will compete against teams from each of the nine other provinces as well as one each from Northern Ontario and the Territories. The Tankard "draw" times begin yesterday (Tuesday, February 7th) and will conclude with the final on Sunday, February 12th.

As previously written, Cornwall's Bill Dickie's success in capturing this year's National Men's Senior Championship, as well as Kingston's John McCoppen's Regional win at Ottawa, and subsequently his representing our area at Kingston this week, has created more pride and local interest than we have seen here in many years.

The favored participants in the Tankard, or course, are previous Brier and World Cup winners Rus Howard, Ed (the Wrench) Werenich, and Wayne Middaugh. However, as of this writing all 10 entries have exactly the same opportunity, with Ottawa Rideau's Rich Moffatt and Ridgetown's Bob Ingram given good outside chances by the so-called experts.

Naturally, here in Kingston, our sentiments lie with John McCoppen. When we reach you with our final article next week, we will examine these various personalities, along with their teams, their individual degrees of success, and some "Behind the Scenes" views that most of the Tankard fans won't ever get to see.

FERGUSON–In loving memory of a dear husband, Ross, who passed away February 11, 1994.
Beside your grave I often stand,
With my heart filled with loneliness,
Silent till the words come,
Not lost, but gone forever.
God knows how much I miss you,
He counts the tears I shed,
So I'll be brave, and pray each day,
That when He calls me home to you,
Your smile will guide the way.
–Sadly missed and always remembered your loving wife Bernadette 6p

FERGUSON–In memory of a loving grandfather, Ross, who passed away February 11, 1994.
A year has passed since you went away
Grandpa you are in my thoughts day to day.
If God could grant me just one last wish.
Grandpa, I'd wish for one last kiss.
–Loved and missed by Tammy, Dustin 6p
