It's dirty work, but somebody's got to do it...

Morrisburg Public School students held a Cleanathon on Friday, to raise funds for school trips, playground equipment, and ongoing programs. Senior Kindergarten students Laurie (at left) and Christine Kirkwood are pictured cleaning up around the school property. Organizer Andre Charlebois says the total raised from the project won't be known until Friday, and at that time prizes will be awarded for the top fundraiser in each class.

Fiberglass plant relocates to Morrisburg Industrial Park

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—There is a lot to be said about small municipalities like this one.

In fact, for Dave Doldon, there is something to be said about doing business in this small community.

The owner of Sandabar Fiberglass will soon be moving his small but highly-specialized operation out of Montreal and into Morrisburg.

Doldon's company manufactures fiberglass hoods for gondola-style rail cars.

The cars are commonly used to transport mining ore like iron, zinc and coal.

Doldon says the covers are an ideal solution to a common problem. Mining companies and the Ministry of Environment are very concerned over the high volumes of dust during loading.

Through Doldon's own ingenuity, he has developed a rubber door flap that can be pulled back during chute loading. Prior to his discovery, the entire cover would have been removed.

The only other alternatives are plastic tarps, but they soon become torn and weathered.

Doldon says his business will build about 150 covers a year, not to mention another 50 for repairs.

He says the plant will move into a vacant building inside Morrisburg's industrial park.

"The fact that the site already had an existing spur line was definitely a positive factor," says Doldon.

Because of the hood's awkward size, Doldon says his customers must bring their work to him.

"In Montreal that was a problem. We had to share a common spur line and could only use it at certain periods of the day," he says.

Obviously, this will not be a problem here since the railroad line has been very quiet for several years.

"The only thing stopping us from starting up tomorrow is that the line is over-grown with weeds, but CN has told me that they'll be taking care of as soon as they can."

Originally, Doldon was considering re-locating in Iroquois.

"I have to admit the price of their industrial land made it look very appealing," he says.

But Doldon says he would have had to contend with similar traffic problems on their rail line.

"Then I received a call from Gordon Thom, and he wanted to talk," he says.

Fortunately for Morrisburg, Thom's offer was acceptable to Doldon and he signed shortly after.

"I was very fortunate that Gordon extended his offer. He made us a deal we simply couldn't refuse," says Doldon.

Thom says he felt that Morrisburg could always benefit from another business and was willing to go the extra mile.

"We need more industry here in Morrisburg. I don't think I did anything special," says Thom.

Doldon says the plant will have five employees for the first year but says that number may easily increase depending on contracts.

"Spring is usually our busiest time, but you never know. Sometimes business will suddenly increase, and we'll have to hire additional men," he says.

Doldon also believes that Morrisburg will be the perfect location for another of his projects.

"It's my dream to set up a small museum," he says.

Doldon's hobby is collecting antique phonographs, which he hopes to display in the very near future.

"I guess you can call me a jack of all trades, but a master of none," he says with a smile.

Stories surface around Seafarers

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

WILLIAMSBURG TWP.—Once again conflicting stories are surrounding the Seafarers' Institute, located on Highway 2, just east of Morrisburg.

But this time the reports are coming from those directly involved.

According to a civil servant with the Department of Public Works, the proposal to transform the Seafarers building into a training facility for the RCMP was turned down.

The source, who did not wish to be identified said the federal government felt it would be too costly a venture during the current economic climate.

"Basically, I received a letter from the Treasury Board explaining their restraints on spending," the person said.

The source would not elaborate on definite figures but said the proposal included a long-term lease with some on-site construction.

However, the property's owners, the Kaneb family from Cornwall, say the project has only been delayed until the country's political problems can be eased.

"All you have to do is turn the television on and see what's keeping the government busy - the Meech Lake Accord," says the Kaneb's patriarch, George.

"I really don't think they've turned us down. From what I understand, they've simply told us that they're going to put us on the back-burner until this Meech Lake thing is settled," he says.

"In fact, we're meeting with government officials today (Wednesday) to discuss the matter further."

Kaneb did not want to specify on who the "bureaucrats" were but says "they seem to know what's going on."

Still, there is some concern over the civil servant's comments.

The source said the public works department had originally considered transforming the Seafarers complex in the summer of 1987 but failed to get government approval.

"The news was particularly disheartening for many of us, who have been working on this project for three years," the souce said.

But Kaneb maintains the project is still under consideration.

"This thing isn't dead, not by a long shot," he says.

The successful businessman says the family will have a better perspective on the issue following the meeting today.

"Call me after June 23, when the Meech Lake Accord is settled," he says.

Federal convention held here

COR depicts "new era for Canada"

CATHERINE THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—According to speakers at a Confederation of Regions federal convention here Saturday, seeds of discontent with the three major political parties in Canada are deeply sown.

For eight hours, spokesmen addressed a number of topics ranging from the Canadian economy, agriculture and education in Ontario to the Meech Lake Accord and "A New Era for Canada" (life depicted under the COR party).

"Speaking as a non-partisan, this country is in deep trouble," Dr. Marguerite Ritchie, founder of the Human Rights Institute, told the group of about 200 delegates. "The people across the country are demanding a change."

The Human Rights Institute is an organization established to provide Canadians with non-partisan information on government policies, and Ritchie's chief complaint was against the autocratic and secretive mode of government by either the Liberals and Conservatives when in power.

"This government has taken away from the people the right to run their own country," Ritchie said.

"We are told we should be quiet and accept the loss of freedom and democracy while a replacement 11 men decide on the fate of the country," she added.

Ritchie says Meech Lake is a nightmare

Ritchie's harshest words were for the Meech Lake Accord on grounds it gives Quebec power to override the Charter of Rights and Freedoms and other areas of the constitution under the "distinct society" clause.

She claims the term lacks definition, and in effect gives Quebec a blank cheque to do as it pleases.

"If you think official bilingualism is a bad dream, Meech Lake is a nightmare," she said, noting the clause might be used to override existing rights protecting women and minority groups.

She saw a further bone of contention in the granting under the Accord of three Supreme Court judges to Quebec, while the rest of the country has only six. "It's the only province that has the right to write the rules and have a referee of choice as well, and that's why I'm scared stiff."

She also criticized the omission of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon from the Accord and the impossibility of amending the deal unless all provinces agree.

On the same note, Arch Pafford, president of the New Brunswick provincial party, criticized the undemocratic fashion in which the "Meech document was developed behind closed doors without the people being involved. If it fails, let it fail!" he said.

Not only Meech Lake but other decisions have been arbitrarily made by government and foisted on the people, such as the goods and services tax. "Ninety percent are against it, but they go ahead anyway," Pafford said.

He disclaimed charges the party is anti-French, but declared they do object to "official bilingualism" a policy the government "foisted" on New Brunswick.

"These people are here for political gain, there's no moral reason to have legislated bilingualism in this country. If we'd get rid of the terms francophone and anglophone and call ourselves Canadians again, we'd be better off," he said.

"We must rid this country of the cancer that's out there. It's not the French people, it's the

Village Picnic to be held July 22

KIM TOSHACK
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—Plans are being made and the wheels are in motion for Morrisburg's 2nd Annual Village Picnic, scheduled for July 22.

Last year, over 300 children attended with their parents, the Boy Scouts sold 1,800 hotdogs and 100 "Picnic 89" T-shirts were handed out.

A number of events which took place last year will again be scheduled into this year's picnic along with some new activities.

Area residents will be able to enjoy hot dogs and drinks throughout the day. Popcorn will also be available. There will be kids' games where each child can choose games of their choice, with the winners receiving tokens for prizes, pie baking contests, face painting, bike decorating and pony rides.

The new games will include games at the beach, an obstacle course for adults along with other adult games, a fitness trail event and games for children three and under. There will also be a long piece of paper for children to draw on which will take the form of a mural.

Throughout the afternoon, local musicians will perform on the stage, and in the evening the Ottawa-based band "Magic Circle" will perform. To top the day off, a fireworks display will be given.

Although only seven people attended the meeting at the Morrisburg Golf Course May 23, a number of others have indicated their interest in helping.

At the present time, there are still positions open for anyone interested in volunteering their time to help out with activities.

Anyone wishing more information, or who would like to help out or make donations contact Margi Laurin at 543-3106.

Further information regarding times will be listed at a later date.

Seaway Valley Tourist Council

Council wrestles with new constitition

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—The Seaway Valley Tourist Council might have as much trouble passing their new constitution as the Meech Lake Accord.

The proposed charter features several specific changes including the group's name which if accepted will be known as The Seaway Valley Regional Tourist and Convention Association.

The tourist council's executive director, Terri Lalonde, says the current constitution "is basically two pieces of paper that are obsolete. In order to run this council efficiently, we find ourselves contravening it almost on a daily basis."

But from the moment the document was presented, by council president Paul Lefebvre, a number of directors had some serious objections.

Joyce Gravelle, the director of tourism for the City of Cornwall, said the name was somewhat misleading.

"My first concern is that with a name like the Seaway Valley Regional Tourist and Convention Association you may be giving the impression that you can actually provide convention services and all the associated services along with that," she said.

Lefebvre, however, felt that the association could act as an intermediary between organizations looking for convention sites and local facilities.

"I know we are not equipped to handle things like conventions, but we could direct anyone to either the City of Cornwall or the City of Prescott or whoever can accomodate them," he said.

Still, Gravelle explained that most tourist councils in Eastern Ontario do not use the term "convention" in their names because they simply do not offer the service, while some of their members do.

But Lefebvre remained steadfast in his position.

"I think that's part of the problem (with this council) that people feel like we're trying to take over from other groups like the City of Cornwall or anyone else."

"But in reality all we're trying to do is promote the area equally," he said.

The most heated exchange was between Lefebvre and the council past chair-person Freda Eaton.

Eaton has been involved in tourism for many years, particularly in the Prescott area. She has also been involved with other similar organizations, such as the Chamber of Commerce and the Motel Operators Association.

Originally, Eaton was asked to draft a new constitution for the tourist council about six months ago; however, the recently elected executive decided it would prepare its own but failed to inform her of the change.

"Why weren't you decent enough to let me know," she asked.

"Well, we hadn't heard from you in awhile, and when I asked Terri she told me that all you had were a few notes," he said.

"A few notes? I've been working on this since March, and you knew that," she answered.

Eaton said she was so upset when she heard about the executive's constitution that she threw her draft in the garbage.

Carson Elliott, council's second vice-president hastened to add that the executive's document was simply a proposal and designed to encourage discussion.

"There's really no reason why we can't add or delete different sections. The point here was to get some input from the members," he said.

It pays to start saving early

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—Adam Tyo is living proof that you can never start saving too early.

The 17-year-old Glen Becker resident has been banking for nine years.

"My parents opened up an account for me when I was about eight, and I guess I just sort of grew up with it," he says.

Last month, Tyo's frugality paid-off in a surprising way. He received $100 in the Bank of Nova Scotia's monthly draw for young customers.

The program, called "Getting There," is designed to encourage people under the age of 18 to make regular deposits in their account.

"The only stipulation in the draw is that the young person must have made a deposit within the last 30 days," says Peter Krug, manager of the Morrisburg branch.

Krug says the institution draws 30 - $100 prizes each month.

"There is also a grand prize, which will be drawn in September, for a trip for two to Walt Disney World in Florida," Krug says.

The chance of Tyo or anyone local winning one of the prizes are fairly slim. The bank has over 1,200 branches across the country and thousands of young customers.

Tyo says he intends on leaving the money in his account.

"It's probably a lot safer in here than with me. It wouldn't take me too long to find somewhere to spend it," he says with a smile.

Krug says Tyo's name will also appear in the bank's "Getting There" magazine, which features articles specifically for its young customers.

Prank calls not funny

MORRISBURG—Police are issuing a warning to teenage girls and their families in regards to any telephone calls they may receive from a male stating he is an agent for a modelling agency.

The calls, which have been received in Prescott, Iroquois and three in Morrisbug, ask the girls if they are pretty, if they would like to be involved in group photos, and if they have any friends who might be interested.

At the present time, the Morrisburg OPP feel the calls are a farce as they can find no substantial information on the companies the males have stated they work for.

Joining forces

Two of Morrisburg's most influential bodies, the BIA and the Chamber of Commerce met Monday night to discuss some common goals and future plans. Both groups agreed that the village could gain a new sense of identity by establishing a downtown mainstreet, where people can regularly meet. Here, Earl Baker, left, and Gord Lane look over the meeting's agenda.

Morrisburg BIA, Chamber promise closer co-operation

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—There were several reasons why a meeting between Morrisburg's BIA and Chamber of Commerce seem to be so natural.

First, both groups share similar goals - to promote and encourage business and tourism within the community.

Secondly, the two strongly believe that through co-operation the people of Morrisburg can ensure their economic and social prosperity by getting involved.

But beyond their common aims and vision, lies perhaps their most obvious parallel. At the heart of both the BIA and the Chamber of Commerce are optimistic leaders of business and industry, who are trying to make the area a better place to live.

For these reasons and many more, their meeting Monday night was considered by all to be a success.

In fact, the hour-long session culminated with both sides offering to form a committee, which will see members from the BIA regularly attend chamber meetings and vice-versa.

This promise of collaboration was mentioned several times during the informal gathering.

However, there was some business to be discussed. At the request of the BIA, the meeting was scheduled so that the chamber could be informed on the current status of the village's plaza project.

"The BIA has been working seriously and steadily for over five years and has established a Morrisburg Business Improvement Area as one of the most successful in Ontario," said BIA chairman Gord Lane.

"Through hard work of the volunteer directors and coordinator, we have accomplished much. We have our critics and doubters, and that's okay, because we also have results," he added.

Lane went on to explain that the BIA is awaiting a response from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs following a PRIDE grant application.

He said the funds would result in the completion of the Morrisburg mall project and would feature streetscaping, such as parking islands, additional signage, and some greenery.

"I think the key to our plan is the establishment of a main street in Morrisburg. A place where residents can meet and share some conversation," Lane explained.

"We want to get this thing underway. We also want to have your input so that this can truly be seen as a village project," he added.

Lane said the second phase of construction would continue with the 1860's theme, made popular by nearby Upper Canada Village.

"By maintaining this uniformed theme we can take advantage of the mega-bucks used to promote the village (Upper Canada)," he said.

Lane also included a cost analysis of the project, which would need about $150,000 locally in order to complete the entire proposal.

"Hopefully, these funds will be matched by the provincial government through a PRIDE grant. Our local share would be divided with $75,000 coming from the village itself for cement work along the courtyard and both breeze-ways. Another $30,000 would come from our own BIA budget, and finally, the remaining $45,000 could come from private donations and corporate sponsorship," he said.

But Lane quickly added that the second phase would most likely be paid during a three-year period.

He said that if the current grant application is turned down, the BIA has every intention on applying again next year.

"Either way, we're committed to getting this thing off the ground as soon as possible," he said.

Sheep's spring ritual at village

MORRISBURG—Upper Canada Village residents are hoping for the arrival of warm weather to proceed with the annual sheep shearing this Friday and Saturday.

Several Leicester sheep are about to be relieved of their winter coats, and visitors will find out about the commerce of wool as it existed in the 1860s.

The hand shearing will take place from 10:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m each day in the main barn at the Village's Loucks' Farm.

The sheep will be shorn using techniques and tools of the 1860s, with a yield of approximately 140 pounds projected for the weekend's work.

Some of the fleece will be hand-processed at the Village's McDiarmid House over the weekend and throughout the summer, by either spinning, weaving or dyeing it.

The rest of the wool will be "sold" to the Asselstine Woollen Factory where it will be graded and washed in the scouring tanks.

This wool will then be blended with Leicester and Cheviot wool purchased from other breeders in the surrounding area and manufactured into knitting yarns and warp and weft for blankets.

Visitors will be interested to discover how wool, as a commodity, linked together the farm family, the mill owner and the merchants of the Village.

Remember "Honest Ed"?

Remember "Honest Ed" Broadbent? As leader of the New Democratic Party, Broadbent labored mightily for years to deceive Canadians about the socialist agenda of the NDP. At the drop of a hard hat, Broadbent would posture and spout platitudes about "ordinary Canadians".

Where is Ed Broadbent now? He is collecting a government salary of at least $109,000 as head of a "human rights" outfit in a patronage job created for him by Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

But it gets worse.

The same Ed Broadbent now gets—automatically—without a question, a pension of unlimited indexing for inflation that is worth a minimum of $45,000 this year. Do you know of any "ordinary Canadian" who gets a fat double-dip like that at the taxpayers' expense?

National Safe Boating Week

With our fortunate location beside the beautiful St. Lawrence, boating has always been a favorite summer pastime for area residents, and recently improved marina facilities have brought this healthful activity to even more enthusiasts. This year, National Safe Boating Week is being observed from June 1 to June 10, and although the weather until recently has not been conducive to much activity on the water, that condition has now changed, and boaters hope for continued fine conditions for the rest of the summer.

The Safe Boating Week program is spearheaded by the Allied Boating Association of Canada, representing most major manufacturers, importers and distributors of boats, engines and boating equipment, in co-operation with trade associations in Ontario, Quebec, and British Columbia, and the 3,000 marine dealers and marina operators across Canada.

Also actively participating in the program are such organizations as Canadian Red Cross Society, Royal Lifesaving Society, Canada Power Squadrons, Canadian Water Ski Association and Canadian Yachting Association.

More than ever, this year, responsible boating is definitely in fashion. According to Michael Vollmer, Executive Director of Allied Boating Association of Canada, "Taking a course, knowing the law, and not mixing water and alcohol are the statements to make". Safety is in style always on the water, and here's what's hot and what's not:

What's Hot

- Driving, Miss Daisy Style
- Nouveau Charts
- Boating law straight up - never watered down
- Saying it with sun blocks
- Flaunting the latest in lifejackets
- And my favourite, Taking your class act on the water

What's not

- The wave
- Crowds, especially on board
- It's a mystery to me - navigation
- Changing waterways to garbage ways
- Getting into the wrong spirit
- And the worst, Ultimate Weekend Warriors!

Be a hometown booster

Most of us would probably subscribe to the premise that there is not so much any one of us as an individual can do to help boost our community and its many advantages; not so much that we can contribute to still further progress, and to a better way of life for every one of our citizens.

But that premise is patently false. For there is indeed a very important contribution which any one of us can make. And it will cost you absolutely nothing. In the next few months, this area will be playing host to many thousands of summer visitors, from every part of Canada, and from many foreign lands, all of them seeking relaxation, refreshment, hospitality and friendship. We have many tourist attractions in this area, it is true; we have some attractive accommodations and good eating places, and many other facilities which contribute to making Morrisburg a great place to visit, or in which to reside.

Officially appointed bodies are already promoting this area, and doing it well, in many instances — but the most persuasive booster of all is you!

The only really necessary qualification is that you be thoroughly convinced in your own mind, of its many advantages. We have, first of all, a beautiful and convenient location, good shopping facilities, recently improved and updated, public utilities second to none, excellent transportation, available manpower, complete recreational facilities, everything that could be desired in cultural educational and religious establishments. These are only a few of the many advantages which our community enjoys, and which we should be constantly bringing to the attention of others who may wish to join us for a few days, for the summer months, or for the rest of their lives. And today is the very best day for you to become involved in this promotion!

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles
by Kim Toshack

The front page of the May 28 issue of The Leader featured a story on the computerization of tax bills to Morrisburg residents. Previously, it had taken three village staff persons three full weeks to complete the bills at a cost to the municipality of $5,500. The new computerized tax bills compiled by the Data Pro firm of Ottawa were done at a cost of $400. The actual work took the company only two hours to complete by computer, but the final results had to be verified and checked over a one week period. Data Pro also provided the envelopes for mailing and the change of address stickers.

In sports, 19 athletes from Seaway competed in the EOSSA track and field meet in Brockville. The next step students took following the EOSSA for those who qualified was the regionals. Those who attended the regionals were: Glen Elliott in the 400 metre, Chris Clements in the high jump, Wes Douma in the long jump and Clayton Barkley in the 800 metre.

McHaffie's Flea Market and Auction Service held its grand opening May 30 at 7 p.m. Sheila McHaffie of Morrisburg had been looking for a business idea which would add to the family income but still allow her a measure of personal freedom. She packed up her duds and her resolve and headed for the Reisch World Wide College of Auctioneeers in Mason City, Iowa which produced a graduate auctioneer who came back to Morrisburg to take up her trade. Sheila cleaned up and renovated an unused egg grading station and bought the vacant Roydon Manor Nursing Home which was in the same area but across the street. The buildings weren't long being opened for business. Space outside for consignments rented for $5 a day while space went for $10 a day inside.

In the June 5 issue of The Leader, a couple in Williamsburg were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Ross H. Beckstead celebrated the occasion of their golden wedding at the social hall of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, May 30. The Becksteads were married June 12, 1920. The couple had two children, Dale and Doreen.

The Lions Club of Morrisburg embarked on another of their programs of help to the community by retaining advertising space in The Leader, which could be used free of charge by any student seeking summer employment. A list was found on page 8 of the great many of Morrisburg and area students who were willing to do all kinds of work during the summer months. The program was original with the local club.

At the Dominion Store, Sunkist oranges were going for 89 cents a dozen, Kreamy White sliced bread was 19 cents a loaf and two 750 ml bottles of Coca Cola were 39 cents. A pecan pie was only 59 cents.

Mrs. John Sutherland of Chesterville was re-elected president at the 55th Annual Meeting of Dundas District Women's Institute held at the auditorium of Morrisburg Public School May 26. Some 100 institute members of the combined Women's Institutes of Chesterville, Colquhoun, Iroquois, Matilda, Morewood, Morrisburg, Mountain, South Mountain, Elma, Williamsburg, Winchester and Riverside Heights met for registration. Miss Frances Hucks of Toronto was present for the morning session as guest speaker. She outlined training school programs which were being conducted throughout the province for Women's Institutes and Homemakers' Clubs. Miss Emma Casselman entertained during the afternoon session.

It was announced by A.M. Pederson, Manager of Ontario Hydro's Eastern Region, that tours of the Robert H. Saunders-St. Lawrence Generating Station would be extended through to the evening. Visitors to the plant were taken on guided tours of the administration building and provided with detailed explanations of the functions of the generating station. Visitors could also see a working model of the plant, the control room, and a panoramic view of the entire power project area from the all-glass Observation Plaza. Visitors to the area as well as residents of the St. Lawrence Valley were invited to see the generating station.

At the Morrisburg Feed and Produce Co. Ltd. bone meal was selling for 8 cents a pound, peat moss was $3 per four cubic foot bale, and Parkside lawn mix was just 75 cents a pound.

On the front page of the June 2 issue of The Leader the following rates for play at the Morrisburg Golf Club were listed: Men, $12; ladies, $8; man and wife, $16; additional dependent members of a family, $5; juniors under 18 and attending school, $3. Local residents were told they would not be allowed to play by paying green fees.

At the Picadilly Theatre "The Devil on Wheels" was playing. It was stated this movie would give a solution to the problem faced by thousands of American homes and was a "must" for every person who drove a car. The movie starred Noreen Nash, Daryl Hickman and Jan Ford. Also at the theatre was "Rogue's Regiment." It listed that Dick Powell crowded his luck in nerve-tingling drama of the Foreign Legion, a Saigon revolution and a disguised Nazi. The movie was starring Marta Toren, Dick Powell, Vincent Price and Stephen McNally.

The wonder fruit of the tropics, the coconut, was to play a large part in supplying the 100,000 tons of vegetable oil Britain needed so badly. At the same time, plantation owners stood to reap considerable financial reward. A thousand coconuts gave approximately 500 pounds of copra, from which 25 gallons of oil could be obtained. To the natives on the islands on which coconuts grew, the coconut palm was a universal provider. The trunk was used in the building of their homes, with the leaves used for roofing. The flesh of the nut was used as food while the juice it holds was used as drink.

Attendance had been high at the Red Cross meeting May 26. It was decided that the local branch would sponsor a grand entertainment, to raise funds for war work. It was discussed that either the Royal Canadain Mounted Police Band from Ottawa, or the Royal Canadian Air Force band from Trenton be hired for the event, which was scheduled to take place during the second of third week in June. It was also decided that the best place for dancing would be in the Morrisburg Arena. A few committees were appointed to look into the matter of additional entertainment. The women also intended to have a draw for lucky tickets as was done at the previous Red Cross dance. Several firms were contacted and signified their willingness to donate towards the cause.

At a meeting of farmers held on May 29 in the office of the Department of Agriculture, there was formed the Crop Improvement Association for the Counties of Dundas and West Stormont. The district, comprised of six townships, were to choose four directors for each township. In Williamsburg, Charles Marcellus, Oscar Beckstead, George Hess and Ed VanAllen were chosen.

Found on the front page of the May 23 issue of The Leader was an announcement by the Laymen of Dundas-Grenville Presbytery for their annual banquet at Kemptville in the pavillion of the Agriculture School. The program was being prepared with hopes of having J.W. Netram of India as the guest speaker. It stated that ladies were welcome.

In the News and Information for the Busy Farmer section, it was said that a prominent authority had estimated that 26 million dollars was the price paid by farmers and poultry raisers for loss through diseases in poultry flocks in Canada. Most of the loss was caused by internal parasites, and much of it was preventable. Advice given was to keep the young chicks away from the adult birds and on absolutely clean soil.

At J.R. Reddick Groceries six chocolate bars were 25 cents, a 40 ounce jar of raspberry or strawberry jam was 34 cents and one could buy two pounds of raisins for 25 cents.

On the front page of the May 21 issue of The Leader was a story with the headline "Why Not Morrisburg?" It stated that practically all the municipalities bordering along the St. Lawrence had adopted day-light saving--Brockville, Prescott, Cardinal, Cornwall, and all other towns large enough to dot the map. It was felt that a move for day-light saving during the months of June, July, August and September would receive the endorsement of a large majority of the citizens.

A new garage which opened in Morrisburg, under the name of Harback and Barr was located on Main St. east. It was being fitted with all modern equipment, including a Ford Service Station. The station also boasted a "Premier" gasoline tank and was hoping to have a free-air system in operation in the future. To announce the opening of the new industry, a large "Garage" sign was placed in front of the building.

Bacteria to save food?

by John Eberlee

Scientists at the University of Alberta have discovered harmless strains of bacteria that may some day help grocers extend the shelf life of fresh meat.

The natural preservatives are strains of 'lactic acid' bacteria - a family of microorganisms used to make yogurt, cheese and other fermented dairy products. Food microbiologist Dr. Michael Stiles says lactic acid bacteria predominate in certain environments - namely, on refrigerated, vacuum-packed meats - by releasing chemicals that inhibit the spread of other bacteria.

The chemicals, called bacteriocins, prevent both food spoilage bacteria and pathogenic bacteria from colonizing vacuum-packed meats, he says. Lactic acid bacteria themselves cause neither 'off odours' nor 'off tastes'.

In effect, lactic acid bacteria and their products account for the long shelf life of vacuum-packed meats - up to 90 days in refrigerator if packaged under carefully-controlled conditions.

Stiles' team hopes to breed lactic acid bacteria that thrive under aerobic conditions as well - that is, in the presence of oxygen. 'Seeding' freshly-cut meat with such organisms might make it as 'long-lived' as vacuum-packed produce without incurring the costs of vacuum-processing.

This would dramatically reduce the amount of meat wasted each year by grocers, food exporters and consumers. Paper- and plastic-wrapped meats typically last less than five days in above-freezing temperatures before they go bad, notes Stiles.

Stiles' breeding program aims to isolate, or engineer, colonies of lactic acid bacteria that produce bacteriocins early in their growth cycle. The earlier they do so, the more of an edge lactic acid bacteria have against other meat microbes. Stiles explains that lactic acid bacteria generally fare poorly in aerobic conditions because their bacteriocins take too long to accumulate. By the time they would normally appear, food spoilage bacteria have taken over.

Stiles says consumers have little to fear from either lactic acid bacteria or their bacteriocins. Both are digestible, he says. "If people can accpet lactic-acid preserved milk products such as yogurt, cheese and buttermilk, they should also be able to accept lactic-acid preserved meat."

Funding for this research came from the government of Alberta's Farming for the Future Program, the Alberta Agricultural Research Institute, the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council and private donors.

Students encourage environmental awareness

Seaway High grade 13 students organized an environmental fair last week, inviting speakers, and environmental groups to participate and displaying projects to increase the general public awareness on this subject. Pictured at left is Corrie Richardson with a project on acid rain and its effects, and at far right Thomas Schraner is shown with a display on ozone depletion and the greenhouse effect. The projects for the fair were a major component of this year's grade 13 geography course, comprising 20 per cent of the work. Younger students were given questionnaires to answer, with prizes awarded to the two students who had the most correct answers in each grade. — C. Thompson photos government," he stated.

He urged the fledgling Ontario party to work hard at attracting new membership and promised the assistance of the New Brunswick party in any way.

COR grows rapidly in New Brunswick

Since its inception two years ago when COR founder Elmer Knutson brought the party to New Brunswick, the provincial party has had many struggles. But now with a membership approaching 30,000 and a newsletter, Pafford claimed "people are seeing COR as a viable alternative, a party of substance that's concerned for the future of the country."

"The most talked about thing is the COR party in New Brunswick," he said.

In April, 'pro-tem' leader Morrisburg resident Gord McGregor delivered a petition to have the Ontario party of almost 15,000 registered and is still awaiting word of its acceptance by the Office of Electoral Finances.

Ontario president Dean Wasson said the provincial party had about 40 riding associations, and already, the party is lining up its goals and plans in preparation for the upcoming provincial elections.

"The Ontario system must change; the question is how? There's only one alternative - a new political party dedicated to fulfilling the will of the majority, that's what Ontario COR is all about," he said.

National leader Elmer Knutson declared it was time for a change and for the establishment of a parliamentary democracy.

He described a new era in Canada by which democracy would be established with fixed terms for government, free votes in Parliament, and a new economic system not based on debt.

Federally, the party holds there should be one official language in Canada, English, and is opposed to a dual judicial system of British common and Quebec civil law.

"All would operate under the British system of laws, freedom, justice and equality. We have lost a lot of it; it's time to make a u-turn," said Knutson.

COR literature states that if they form a national government, the party would call for an election of a "Constituent Assembly" (one person elected from each riding) and an elected Triple E Senate providing equal representation by the provinces.

The party believes the constitution of 1981/82 with its Charter of Rights and Freedoms and notwithstanding clause was "imposed" by the Rt. Hon. Pierre Trudeau and should be replaced by a constitution formed by the constituent assembly and ratified by at least 70 percent of eligible voters.

COR holds that Canada has formed into four distinct regions (Atlantic provinces, the West, Ontario and Quebec) and that sufficient administrative authority allotted to each region would strengthen its development.

Formed six years ago by Knutson in Alberta, the national party reports a membership of 60,000. Knutson appealed to the delegates to assist him in ushering the 'new era' by helping him win a by-election in Oshawa August 13.

OBITUARIES

Marion Wright

A native of Watford, England, and resident of R.R. 2 Brinston for the past five years, Marion Wright died at the Winchester Hospital on Wednesday, May 23rd, following an illness of five years. She was 54 years of age.

Born July 30, 1935, she was a daughter of the late Frederick and Ivy Barnes. She received her early education in England and graduated from Watford High School in 1950, excelling in secretarial skills and typing. She attended the International Bible Training Institute, graduating in 1957, and a year later was married to Michael Wright, a graduate of the same class. She assisted her husband in the ministry at Crawley Full Gospel Church in Sussex, England, the Bridlington Assembly of God Church in Yorkshire, England, at Grenville (Que.) Pentecostal Church, and in a bible teaching ministry across Canada and the United States from New York City to Bakersfield, California.

Besides her husband, Rev. Michael Wright, she is survived by four sons and one daughter: David, John, Andrew, Timothy and Rebecca; a brother William; and a sister Peggy in England.

The family, all living in Brinston, attended the Rowena Pentecostal Church during the past five years. Mrs. Wright was known for many miles around for her knitting skills and her generosity and never accepted any payment for the articles she knitted for so many friends.

The funeral home was filled to capacity for the service, held on Saturday, May 26th at 10 a.m. Her husband conducted the service and took his text from Hezekiah "Thou shalt not die, but live." Rev. Marcel Charette, pastor of the Rowena Church, also spoke, and Rev. Atchinson of Inkerman led in prayer. Soloists were: Ilean Armstrong of Winchester, Nolin McLean of Grenville, Que., and Rev. Michael Wright. Songs were led by Kelvin Beckstead. Interment at Iroquois Point Cemetery followed the service.

Pallbearers were: Rev. Marcel Charette, L. Sullivan, Kelvin Beckstead, Denzil Markell, Kevin Markell, and Jan. Doornward.

Anyone interested in some frogs legs?

Waterwood Productions, a professional acting troupe from Toronto, rolled into Morrisburg Public School last Friday to entertain the students. Budget finalized

Matilda has single digit increases

CATHERINE THOMPSON
Leader staff

BRINSTON—Matilda council approved a $3,262,651 budget on Thursday, representing a total increase of $272,554 over last year's total budget of $2,990,096.

Of this total $1,784,563 is raised in municipal levies, $110,088 is to go to the separate school board, $1,173,019 goes to the public school board, and $194,980 to the counties.

Clerk Bill Horner says the increase will mean the public school supporter with an assessment of $4,000 will pay approximately $80 more in taxes this year than last, and the separate school board supporter will pay approximately $60 more.

The municipal levy at $1,784,563 rose by 6.5 per cent over last year, and the counties levy at $194, 980 rose 7.6 percent.

The elementary separate school portion at $60,383 decreased by 3.3 percent, and the secondary portion at $49,705 rose by 18 percent.

The elementary public school levy at $649,328 showed an increase of 11.1 percent, and the secondary school levy at $523,691 showed an increase of five percent over last year.

"I think council is to be commended by increasing the municipal portion by only 6.5 percent, and if they can keep it in line, they're doing well," says Horner.

Altogether, the township budget showed a deficit in 1989 of $67,103. "This amount will be recovered from this year's taxes and was largely due to high maintenance expenses in the road department," Horner explained.

One project requiring a large amount of capital funding this year is the replacemtn of the Plante Bridge at an estimated cost of $728,000 to be spread over two years. So far, council has been promised a government grant of $229,000 to help cover expenses and is hoping for more funding.

Under planning and development, $11,000 has been put aside this year for review of the Official Plan, and there is a reserve of $20,000 for study and engineering design to control flooding at the South Branch of the South Nation River.

A reserve of $10,000 has been put aside in case an expansion is required at the landfill site.

The 19th Hole

MORRISBURG—Good weather finally arrived, and we almost got through the whole weekend without rain...almost.

Friday, the Morrisburg Golf Club hosted the London Life tournament, and Saturday, the Simmons Company took to the course. Both had great weather and indicated they enjoyed themselves.

There were no major club events over the past week as members continue to work on their games for the upcoming Anniversary Tournament and Valley and Border league qualifying rounds.

Last Tuesday night's ladies' night was sponsored by Parker Painting, and next week the girls receive their sponsorship from Edgerton Baker. Last night, Tuesday, May 29 was sponsored by Cook's Corner. Special thanks to all of our sponsors.

Leading the way in the May 22 ladies' best-ball was the team of Ricki Cottrill, Linda Barclay, Margi Laurin and Louise Irvine.

Second place was claimed by Patty Lemaire, Peggy Leroy, Lorinda Beckstead and Debbie Mabo.

The most honest golfer combo was Carol Dawley, Laurie Dillabough and Cheryl Hess.

Laurie Dillabough won the draw, and Gail Spencer identified the mystery prize.

Last week's men's night was sponsored by Beaver Dental with the low gross of the night going to Kevin Duvall.

Mike Laurin won B flight, and Jim Cavanaugh claimed the C flight win.

Net winners were Doug Taylor in A, Dave Tait in B and Kevin Keyes in C.

Bruce St. John was the high hole winner on number 4, and Lee Beaupre had the low score on number 7.

Coming up this Friday night, June 1, is the parent-child tombstone two-ball. Twosomes can be prearranged, and there will be a draw for groups at 5 p.m. Entry fee is $1 per person.

Following play, there will be a hamburg and hotdog barbecue at $3.50 per person. The sign-up sheet is now posted.

The next major club event is the Anniversary Tournament on Saturday, June 9. The tournament is restricted to the first 80 members, and registrations are being taken at the snackbar.

Entry fee is $16, and this includes golf, dinner, $1,000 in prizes (based on a full field) and dancing. There are extra meals available for non-golfing spouses.

The ladies will also be using the Anniversary Tournament for their BMW qualifying round.

Next Wednesday, June 6 is a seniors mixed event with tee offs beginning at 9:30 a.m.

All ladies should note that the sign-up sheet is posted in the ladies' locker room for the annual invitational on Tuesday, June 19.

Among the Cedars

WILLIAMSBURG—Lea Anne Munro shot a 44 here last Wednesday night to win a low gross at the Cedar Glen Golf Club's weekly ladies' night.

A few strokes back at 58 was Estella MacGregor who claimed B class low gross honors, and a 66 from Louise Beckinsale gave her C class honors.

Esther Johnston won D class with an 81, and X class went to Victoria Neilsen with a 68.

In the net department it was Sheila Crowder in A flight with a 40 net, and Janet Hillis won B with a 41. C class low net went to Laurie Fawcett with a 42, D class to Cindy Hill with a low net of 47 and Debbie McMillan won X with a 49.

The high on the sixth hole went to Danna McMillan while the most honest went to Nicole Copeland. In the hidden scores, the high went to Glenna McIntosh and the low went to Muriel Whitteker.

The sun held out this week allowing the club to hold its weekly men's night, which had been rained out the previous two weeks.

Al McNairn took the first low gross in A class with a 34, while Marty Little captured B class low gross when he shot a 40 on backholes. In C class Jeff Whitteker had a low gross of 41, and Maurice Villeneuve captured D class with a 51.

The longest drive on number one went to Darrell Shelp.

On Saturday, the club held its annual Dr. M.W. Locke Memorial Tournament for men.

Taking the low gross in A class was Don McMillan with a 74, while the low net went to John Morrow with a 67.

In B class, the low gross went to Rick Morrow who shot a 79 and to Gary McMillan with a low net of 67.

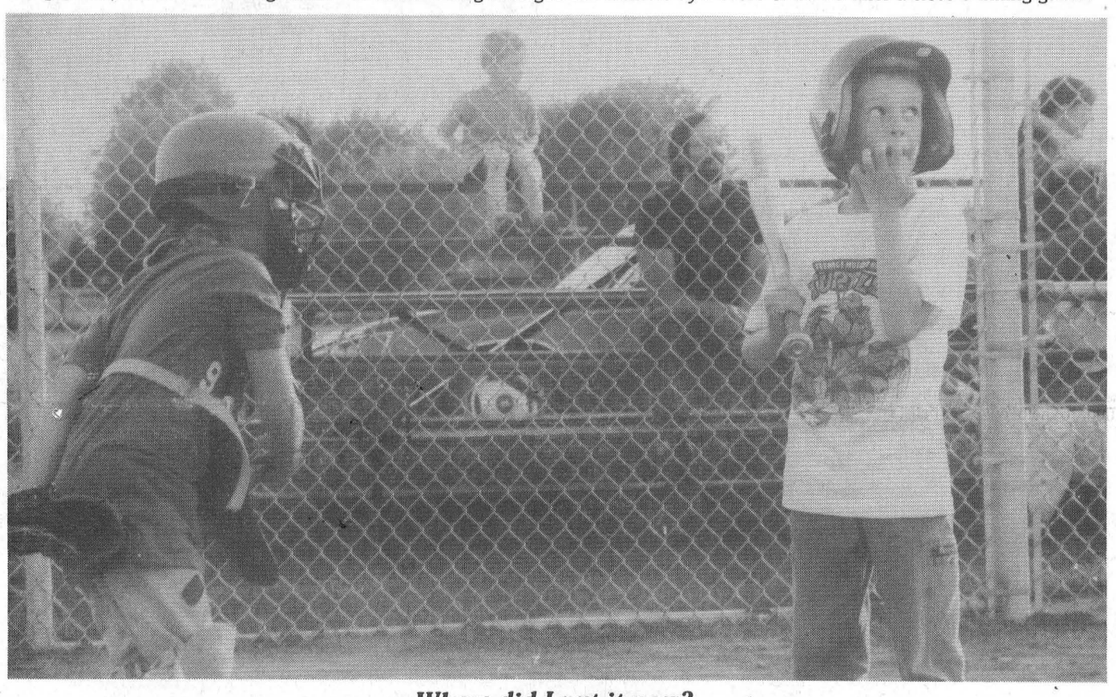
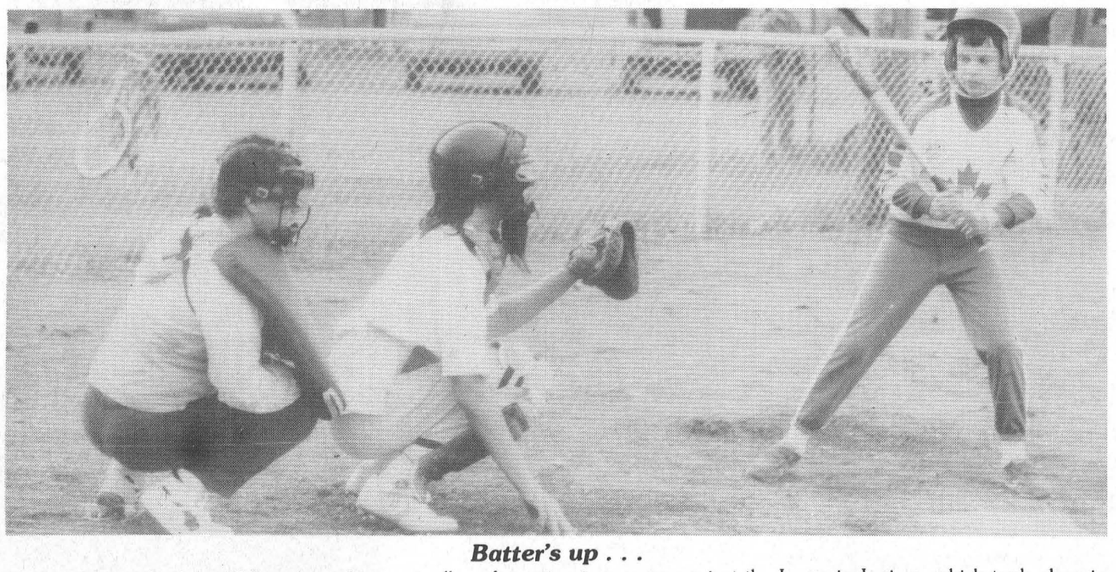
Honest, I didn't lose the ball . . .

A Williamsburg pitcher is explaining some facts to coach Bill Barclay during a game of minor ball Monday between Williamsburg Team #1 and Morrisburg Team #1. Williamsburg emerged the winners by a score of 16-15 after a close 5-inning game.



Where did I put it now?

Casey Strong on Morrisburg Team #1 seems puzzled as to the exact location of the ball as he waits for the next pitch at a minor ball game against Williamsburg #1 Monday.



Batter's up . . .

Robbie Garlough of the Williamsburg Juniors is all set for action in a game against the Iroquois Juniors, which took place in Iroquois last Tuesday.

And follows through . . .

Garlough had a good hit in a game which saw Iroquois emerge the winners over Williamsburg by a 24-9 score.

Cornwall Speedway to hold student night Sun.

KIM TOSHACK
Leader staff

CORNWALL—Although the races had to be cancelled on May 19, The Cornwall Speedway was patient and held its opening night one week later, May 26.

On opening night, races were run in each of the three categories of cars, modified, semi-PROS and the amateur division (duke stocks).

As a special for the evening, two races were held in the modified division. The first race, which involved 20 laps, was won by Kingston's Pat O'Brien. O'Brien, who was the track champion two year ago, got off to a good start and led the race all the way.

Coming in second in the first race was Alexandria resident Laurent Ladouceur. In third position was Keith Dingwall of Prescott.

In the second feature, the positions were inverted from the first race, making it more difficult for top finishers in the first race to do well.

However, Ladouceur came back and took the first position, making it his fifth feature victory this year. Second place finisher, O'Brien managed to stay in the top finishers as well. Third place went to Ovid Doiron of Alexandria.

In the semi-PRO division first place went to Bill Woodworth of Norwood, N.Y. making it his first win ever. Second place went to Guy Brisson of St. Albert, Que., and third place went to last year's track champion Kevin Setterly of Massena, N.Y.

In the amateur division, Donald Binette of Dalkeith, Ont. took first place, making it his first win ever.

This coming Sunday night will be a student night, sponsored by St. Lawrence College. There will be races in all three track classes.

Correction

In the May 16 issue of The Leader, it was stated that summer sailing lessons were being offered at the Long Sault Yacht Club. The number given to inquire about these lessons was listed as being 936-6818. The number should have been 938-6818. The Leader regrets this error.

Adams organizing singles' dart league

IROQUOIS—For the first time in the area, Glen Adams is attempting to organize an in-house singles' dart league.

The league, which is an experiment for Adams, has been organized with the hopes of getting enough interest to get darts recognized as a sport.

At the present time, 10 players have registered with Adams at a fee of $10. Each player will invite the opponent into his home for game, and in return, the opponent will have the player back to his home another time. At the end of the season, each person will have played the other nine people twice.

A different aspect in the way Adams is running the league is the way in which the game will be played. Darts originated in England many years ago; however, as it was played in Canada over the years, the rules have changed. Adams hopes to go back to the British format.

"I want people to play the game the way it was originally designed," Adams said.

The league will be run on a point system, with a person receiving one point for each set they win. At the end of the season, whoever has the most points will take top spot.

Most of the money obtained from the entry fee will go towards prizes.

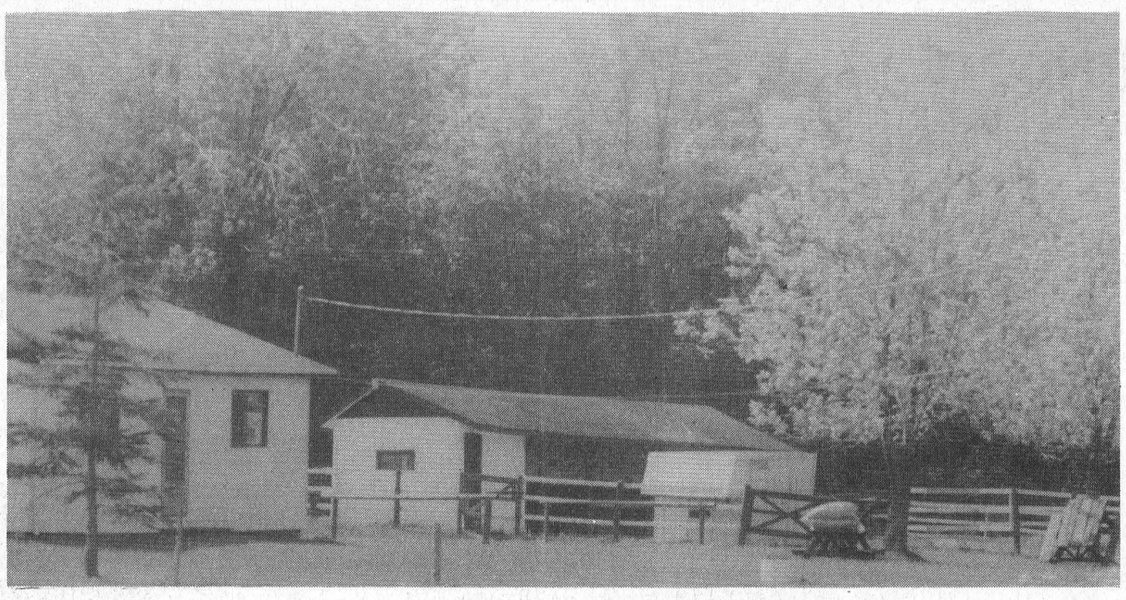
The first place winner at the end of the season will be awarded 50 percent of the total amount received at registration, along with a trophy.

The second place winner will get 25 percent of the money, and third place will take home 15 percent.

The final ten percent of the money will go to Adams for organizing the league as well as distributing a monthly newsletter.

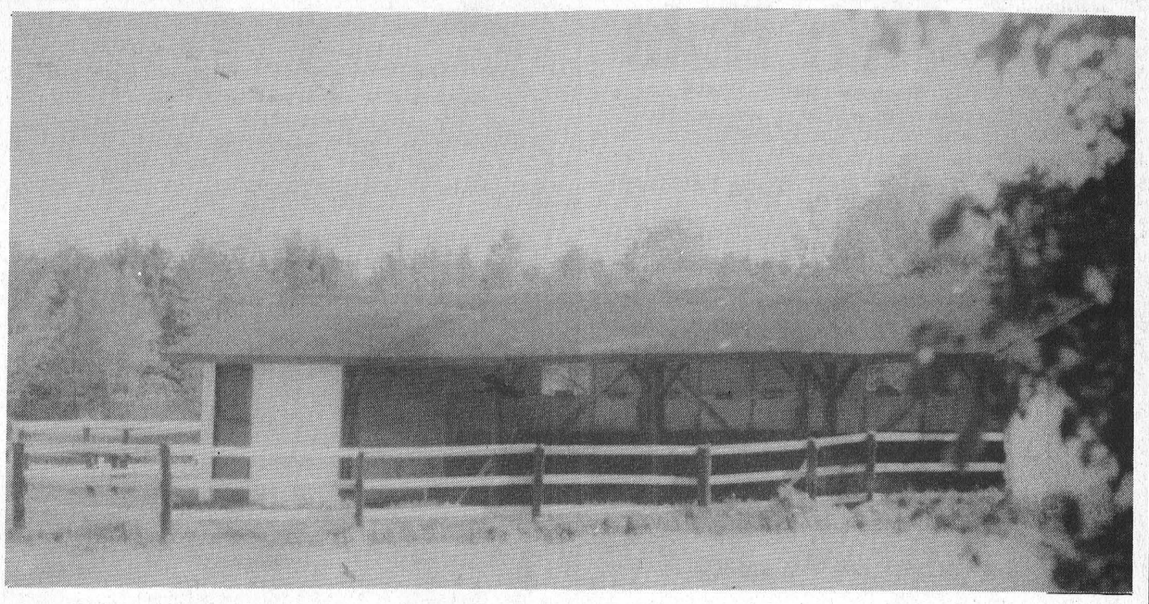
"I won't end up making any profit," said Adams. "It will cost me that amount or more to distribute the letters."

The season will run from May 31 until the end of September, and if all goes well this year, Adams says he will run the league next year as well.



Stables closed

The Horseshoe Corral riding stables will not open this season due to the fact there was no response to the invitation for tenders. Marge P. Hunt, who previously ran the stables, did not renew her contract after managing the corral for 25 years.



Property to remain vacant

The St. Lawrence Parks Commission has made no decisions at this time as to what will replace the Horseshoe Corral riding stables on the Highway 2 property owned by the Commission.

Lack of tenders results in closure of stables

KIM TOSHACK
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—Locals and tourists will no longer have the opportunity to experience horseback riding on the scenic St. Lawrence Parks sugar bush trails, at least not with the Horseshoe Corral Riding Stable.

The stables, located just east of Morrisburg across from Upper Canada Village, had been tendered out for the past 25 years to Marge P. Hunt and her trail guides.

However, this year, as her contract ran out, Hunt decided not to renew. Whether it was getting too expensive to run or whether 25 years in the business was enough is unknown.

Over the winter, the Parks Commission advertised for tenders in the local papers; however, there was a lack of response and interest.

Therefore, the successful stables will remain closed this years and the property, which belongs to the Parks Commission, will remain empty.

At this point in time, the Parks Commission will wait and see if any tenders are received for next year before making any hasty decisions as to what to do with the property. The Commission does plan on looking into other uses for it.

So for this year, horse lovers will have to miss riding the trails the sugar bush provides, described by many as the most beautiful trails in Ontario, at least on horseback.

Lifeguards hired for Iroquois swimmers

IROQUOIS—Swimming lessons are set to begin in Iroquois as prices have been set and instructors have been hired.

Assuming the position of supervisor will be Catherine Houze. She will ensure the operation runs smoothly and on schedule.

Aiding Houze will be Kelly Tryon, Rob Domanko and Julie Bylsma, who will tackle the position of instructors.

The beach in Iroquois will be open and available for swimmers June 1; however, it will be unsupervised until swimming lessons begin.

The cost of the lessons, which will run from July 2 to August 10 will be $25 per child and $60 per family (three or more children). An extra $10 will be tacked on to the cost for anyone registering late.

Registration will take place Friday, June 1 and Saturday, June 2 with openings for approximately 75 swimmers.

Iroquois Council endorses environmental conference

CATHERINE THOMPSON
Leader staff

IROQUOIS—On Tuesday, Reeve John McAllister recommended council approve wholeheartedly a proposal for an environmental conference to be held in mid-July for the St. Lawrence District.

Letters on behalf of Bob Runciman, MPP for Leeds and Grenville have been sent to area municipalities to determine interest in the proposal. The conference is to "provide an opportunity to elected officials to quote concerns of their constituents and to become informed of environmental initiatives from all levels of government," McAllister read.

Guest speakers would be invited to address the destruction and pollution of the St. Lawrence River and environmental organizations and government officials will be made available to answer questions and answers.

"We have personal environmental concerns not only within the village, but also beyond that scope," said Councillor Clare Brown.

"The river is running by our door, and we drink it; we should endorse it," said McAllister. Since no request for funding was placed, no resolution from council was required.

Also discussed was a disaster plan for the Village of Iroquois which council will deal with in more detail at a meeting this fall.

Deputy-Reeve Ed Thompson had attended an educational session on Disaster Preparedness 1990 in Kingston May 16.

"Each municipality should have a suitable disaster plan similar to insurance," said Thompson.

Where disaster plans are in place, they should be kept up-to-date, and persons responsible for the plan such as police, firemen, industry and municipal officials should be conversant with their responsibilities.

"It is critical that all persons involved know exactly who is in charge of what," said Thompson.

From information gained at the seminar, Thompson found that periodic reviews are more practical and less costly ways of keeping people up-to-date and that public education is critical to avoid panic situations.

"Within the last couple of weeks, our fire chief looked at the emergency plan, and Constable Roach and the Morrisburg OPP are to review it too," stated Thompson.

Councillor Clare Brown reported that the third status report on the marina study has been presented and is now in the municipal office. Christine Dimoff of Totten Sims Hubicki is a consultant in charge of the study.

"Three potential plans have been brought to the marina advisory committee, elaborated upon, torn apart and she came back with this report which met most of the criteria suggested by the committee," said Brown.

The marina advisory committee has suggested there be a five phase implementation stage because of the cost factor, and Dimoff was advised to go back to the Ministry of Tourism to discuss funding and to Ontario Hydro and other sources for the project.

The final draft study should be ready for the June 21 meeting, and if finalized, it will go to a public meeting in July or August.

At this point, council is considering a joint public meeting with the Iroquois Business Improvement Association who has also hired Totten, Sims Hubicki to do a "Community Improvement Plan" for the village.

"It's progressing quite well, but like anything else when you get involved with planners, etc., it's big bucks and scares the hell out of you. We'll have to phase it in over a number of years," said Brown.

Council is presently reviewing usage at the Civic Centre. They had a percentage chart drawn up showing the distribution of usage by paying and non-paying groups.

Fifty-eight percent of the hall's usage is by groups free of charge. The hall is vacant 48 percent of available time, and 3.6 percent pay fees.

Both councillor Clare Brown and Deputy-Reeve Ed Thompson noted the volunteer organizations who are presently using it free of charge can't afford to pay.

Thompson said he didn't want a change in this system because even doubling the fees would not cover costs.

"What I get upset with is the fact you hear people say they pay $450 at Matilda Hall and $85 for this and that, and then you hear them complain our hall isn't big enough. Part and parcel of it is we can't afford any more than what we already have in terms of maintenance and upkeep, and it's the general public utilization that doesn't allow us to expand any more.

If the general public wants to pay for everything like they do at Matilda Hall, we'll double the size of the hall and charge all $400 and make money off it," said Brown.

McAllister added he wanted it clearly understood that council is only reviewing user fees at the present time and is not making any decision one way or the other on changes.

The luck of the draw

Morrisburg's municipal staff got involved in the new BIA Victoria Day draw Monday afternoon. Deputy-clerk Marlene Bazinet, left and clerk-treasurer Cheryl Tynski were called upon to pull the name of the lucky person who won a $200 gas barbecue. The prize went to Sandra Brunt of Williamsburg.

Thieves take only $28 AT Elma store

ELMA—Marjorie's Groceteria here was the scene of a break-in late last Monday evening, as thieves entered a south window and made off with about 10 cartons of cigarettes and a cash register containing only $28.

Marjorie McMillan, the owner, explained that although she had heard a vehicle the previous evening, she had not been woken by thieves, and there was no damage to the store.

"The back door, through which they made their exit, was open in the morning," she said.

During a previous incident in the fall of 1986, Marjorie was held up at gun point by a masked robber, whose identity is still unknown.

"I was glad I was in bed when it happened. I was very calm when the police came in the morning at 8. I just let them take care of everything," she stated.

Marjorie's biggest concern now is how to make the new window secure through which the thieves entered the store.

Police found fingerprints at the point of entry, sending the information to the identification unit at the Long Sault Detachment.

"Now we're putting a list of suspects together to see if they match up," said Cathy Bourque, the investigating officer, adding it may be days or weeks before they will know for sure.

Osnabruck Council works hard at keeping tax increases down

CATHERINE THOMPSON
Leader staff

OSNABRUCK CTR. — Stewart Hart, Osnabruck reeve, was in a congratulatory mood Monday evening over a moderate increase in taxation for 1990.

The average public school supporter with a $4,000 assessment will pay $1,157.32, showing an increase of 4.89 percent of $53.96 over last year's bill of $1,103.56.

The separate school supporter with a $4,000 assessment will pay $1,111.84 or 5.93 percent of $62.32 more than he or she paid last year at $1,049.52.

"I'd like to compliment council and staff on the tremendous job they did on preparing this budget. It wasn't easy to come up with a figure of 4.89 percent," said Hart.

"This is something realizing the situation we were in a year ago to come back with a figure like this. I think that somebody must have done an awful lot of work," said Hart.

In March, Ross Markell, Blakely, Craig and Co. accountant, declared the township finances to be in a healthy state with a surplus of $34,000 compared to a situtation two years ago when they were $346,000 in the red.

This year's taxes saw a 4.5 percent increase in municipal taxes, a 7.8 percent increase in the county levy, a moderate increase for the public school board of 8.9 percent, and a relatively high increase in the separate board levy at 15.9 percent.

Capital projects this year include about $100,000 for the new community centre, a new computer at $40,000 and a new truck and plough which will be partly financed by a $75,000 supplementary grant from the Ministry of Transport.

Council has allotted $125,100 in road improvements this year including $5,000 for widening the Waldroff Road, $10,000 for widening the Stata Road, $15,000 for resurfacing Hunter's Road, $25,000 for construction on Otto Road, $31,000 for resurfacing on Eamon Road, and $32,100 for resurfacing the western section of the North Lunenburg Road.

In addition, council has allotted about $30,000 for operation of Farran's Park which it assumed this spring.

"There were no big gaps in the budget this year. We had a surplus of over $30,000. The only area where there was overspending was in the road department and that's customary every year," Hart stated.

With sanding salting and snowploughing it's over budget in the winter, then to make it balance you have to cut back in the summer in gravelling, dust layer, mowing and ditching," said Hart.

In 1989, the road budget was about $90,000 in the red, and the township called for a police investigation on misuse of funds resulting in charges against fewer road superintendent Blair Watson.

"Each department like the fire and water and sewage departments wanted more, but we had to put aside until we got more reserve built up," said Hart.

"We put a lot of work into it, and we sat here a good many nights," he added.

The Township of Osnabruck budget stands at $2,805,201.29 obtained from municipal levies of $1,181,538 including a general levy of $787,538.00, water and sewer billings, garbage billings and dump fees and local improvements.

The township pays $303,380.91 to the counties, $1,530.063 to the public school board, and $184,219.49 to the separate board.

Spectre of Zebra Mussels haunts Osnabruck Council

CATHERINE THOMPSON
Leader staff

OSNABRUCK CTR.-Zebra Mussels and the specter of damage they can create occupied some of Osnabruck council's discussions Monday evening.

The mussell is a small mollusk with a sharp shell which multiplies rapdily and has been spotted in Lake Erie, the Welland Canal, Lake Ontario, in the Cornwall area at the Eisenhower Lock, and in Lake St. Francis by a commercial fisherman.

The small creatures pose no danger to human health, but they can harm aquatic life by competing for plankton, thus depriving fish of a food supply. They also cause property damage by attaching themselves to water intake pipes, marine engines and boats.

Deputy-Reeve Carson Elliott suggested an assessment of the water system may be in order because in the Great Lakes mussels are clogging up water intake pipes. In fact, in West Lorne, Ontario, the Elgin County water intake is reduced by more than 50 percent by Zebra Mussel infestation.

"There's no concern at the outfall because it's chlorinated, and chlorine keeps them away. The big concern is the inlet which isn't chlorinated," says Bart Whitton, water and sewer supervisor.

Whitton added the intake pipe is over 3,000 feet long, is 30 feet down in the river at the deepest point, has a small diameter and only one access point. Each spring the Osnabruck crew flushed out the big retention tank.

"We noted this spring to see if there was evidence of mussel shells. We haven't seen any, but it doesn't mean they're not further out," says Whitton.

Councillor Don McElheran remarked that checking the water system should be done in conjunction with the sewer project, but Whitton says it wasn't in the terms of reference of the sewer consulting engineer, McNeely Limited, to look at water intake or water works unless instructed by council.

"In view of the length and depth, it could be a horrendous expense if there's a mussel problem," says Whitton.

There are a number of methods to deal with the creatures, including the use of chlorine, hot or cold water, all of which destroy mussels.

Whitton suggested that to begin with, the mussels may be removed by a chlorine mixture. However, in a worst case scenario, it may be necessary to construct additional openings in the pipe and a manhole type structure every 500 feet to permit access, and then to use a porcupine wire brush to scrape down the accumulated mussels.

He estimated the openings and structures should be spaced one every 500 feet and may cost a total of $100,000 to construct. In the early 1980s the township hired a diving crew to investigate the water intake pipe at a cost of about $2,000.

"I share your concern. For us this would be difficult to resolve," Whitton told Elliott.

Council agreed to contact government ministries for their advice and assistance as a means of forewarning should the problem occur.

Tourist council may become more selective

Executive plots new course for council

MICHAEL THOMPSON
Leader staff

MORRISBURG—It appears that the Seaway Valley Tourist Council plans to change more than its name.

Council president Paul Lefebvre presented members with a proposed constitution, which includes changing the name and specifying new objectives.

Lefebvre and his executive want to use the constitution to make the council a more significant and respected association.

However, this bold and agressive direction has already caused dissention among the group.

Some members do not feel comfortable with the proposed name of The Seaway Valley Regional Tourism and Convention Association, while others wonder if the severe changes are needed.

Perhaps, the most sensitive issue will be the difference in membership philosophy.

For years, the tourist council depended on the private sector to boost their operating budget, with the largest portion of their revenue coming from both municipal and county governments within the Seaway Valley.

However, with promises of a more effective council, the executive is proposing that individuals involved in the tourism industry would have to meet certain requirements before being accepted as a member.

"We feel this is the way to go," says council president Paul Lefebvre.

There are about 140 paid members in the council currently, but Lefebvre is convinced that with stronger marketing that number will swell to over 300.

"I think as a result of this new restructuring, we (tourist council) will have more clout. People will also start to realize that we're offering them 18 professionals who will sit around a table and discuss how we can improve the promotion of tourism in this area, without any real cost to them," he said.

Lefbvre said the key to becoming a stronger council is by being more careful in accepting members.

"We have to promote positive thinking. We have to be more selective in our members, not letting just anyone become a member," he said.

"We have to make sure that our members are promoting quality. If we don't think they're up to par, then we don't let them in," he added.

But this elitist attitude may cause problems in the future.

According to Lefebrve's plan, the council will have five new vice-presidents, who will be in charge of various aspects in the tourism industry.

The new positions proposed are vice-presidents of accomodation and food services; attractions and events; marinas and campgrounds; conventions and reunions; and finally membership services.

Lefebvre said it will be up to the vice-presidents to decide on whether an accomodation, marina or other tourist business is acceptable.

"That's how we intend to build-up our name, by being more selective in our product," he said.

However, most of the members at the general meeting last Wednesday decided to shelve any action until they had time to read the entire proposal.

Lefebre agreed and suggested that an entire meeting be devoted to the constitution.

Seaway News

by Cindy Laurin

IROQUOIS—So how's everyone doing this week? I hope everyone is having fun and your love life is fruitful and your marks are in the 90 percent range. But hey, that's probably too much to hope for. I hope everyone is at least having fun.

Seaway is a busy place these days, and here's what's going on.

On Thursday, Seaway's annual "Great Ride for Pride Bike-A-Thon" will take place. The event lasts all afternoon with the participants getting a bar-b-que picnic for all their efforts. Happy cycling to all those who plan to go in it.

This past Tuesday, students from the French (core) course at Seaway attended several seminars at St. Lawrence College in Cornwall. Thèy were very informative and allowed the students experience in French listening skills.

This Friday will be a half-day, so everyone can get a head start on the weekend. Saturday is Seaway's Prom. I hope everyone has fun. I can't wait to see everyone all dressed up! The party after will be a blast if everyone survives it, that is!

See you next time.
