CORNWALL TOWNSHIP APPEAL WITHDRAWN

Several thousand dollars in court costs and legal fees were saved on Tuesday when Cornwall township authoriities withdrew their appeal against the equalized assessment as fixed by Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry counties' council at its session last June. Hearing of the appeal opened before County Judge Francis T. Costello, on Monday,when the judge urged settlement. This was reached on Tuesday when counsel agreed to withdrawal of the appeal and the placing of costs against the counties.

The township had appealed against an increase of about $800,000 in its assessment, and it was expected that hearing of the case would take from two to three weeks with scores of assessors and reeves to be called. Ten lawyers had been retained by the counties and individual municipalities.

WARDEN PRESENTED WITH GOLD WATCH

As an evidence of the regard in which he is held, and the ability with which he conducted the business of council, members of the counties' council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry presented the retiring warden, George L. McIntosh, reeve of Roxborough, with a gold watch after the business of the October session was over Saturday afternoon last.

Arthur Flynn, reeve of Morrisburg took the warden's chair as Mr. McIntosh descended to the floor of the council chamber, when J. R. McLachlan, reeve of the village of Lancaster, read an address to the warden. The watch was presented by J. Leonard Johnson, reeve of Cornwall.

In reply, the warden thanked his fellow-members for the gift and good wishes contained in the address, and as he returned to the chair, the members rose and sang "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow."

PRISONERS REVOLT IN CORNWALL JAIL

Threatening jail guards, wrecking furniture in the cell block and refusing to obey commands, six prisoners in the overcrowded counties jail in Cornwall this week participated in a disturbance which might have resulted in their escape.

As a result of his part in the disturbance, Duncan Willard, 21-year-old Kenyon Township farmer, serving an 18-month term for theft, was said to be in solitary confinement while five other prisoners are being punished.

Governor Threatened

The disturbance came at supper time when all of the six prisoners in one cell block threatened Governor Ralph Cook and Bernard Maloney, guard. They broke furniture in the cell block and were not subdued until Provincial and city police had been hurriedly summoned. Realizing that they were overcome by numbers, the prisoners were quieted and allowed themselves to be placed in their cells. At the time of the disturbance, the prisoners were in the cell block, while Cook and Maloney were in the adjoining corridor. Had one of the men gone into the block he would, unquestionably, have been overpowered and the prisoners might have effected their release.

Among the prisoners was Clarence Cameron, a native of Amherst, N.S., who is awaiting trial for the murder of Louis Volvey, 55-year-old farmer, ten miles north of Cornwall, on April 22 last. Cameron, it was learned, has been restless lately and he was said to be one of the key men in the disturbance. It was learned that he threatened Governor Cook during the disturbance.

Another of the prisoners, Girard Beauclaire, who is serving a 30-day term, took no prominent part in the disturbance. Beauclaire, a Cornwall man, participated in the riot at Kingston Penitentiary two years ago.

SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Wilkins of Toronto, formerly of Morrisburg, celebrated their twenty-fifth anniversary on Sunday, October 27th. About twenty-five guests were present for the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins received many nice gifts of silver, including a silver tea service from their two daughters, the Misses Margaret and Alice Wilkins.

After a most enjoyable evening dainty refreshments were served and all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows, and wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins luck and happiness.

CAR SOMERSAULTED

Five Chesterville girls and a Montreal girl, who were visiting in Chesterville, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Thanksgiving Day, when the automobile in which they were driving failed to make a turn at the south end of the village. The car was driven by Miss Shirley King, daughter of O. L. King, and with her were the Misses Audrey Alford, Evelyn Boyd, Helen Smith and Ethel Smirle, all of Chesterville, and Winnifred Lockhead of Montreal.

The car became out of control, somersaulted and landed in the ditch. The girls all escaped injury with the exception of Evelyn Boyd, who received a badly sprained arm. The car was considerably damaged.

Y. P. L., WILLIAMSBURG, HOLD BANQUET

A Young People's League banquet, under the auspices of the Williamsburg United Church Y.P.L. was held in the Sunday School room on Friday evening last, when supper was served to a large gathering of young people. The tables were prettily decorated with bowls of marigolds and asters. While the gathering remained seated at the table, a sing-song led by Rev. Thos. Knowles of Iroquois, and Mr. W.H. Scrivens of Ottawa, was enjoyed. The program consisted of a duet by Mrs. Allan Farlinger and Mrs. Arthur Casselman, entitled "Jesus Is My Neighbour," with Mrs. C.A. Adey at the piano. Miss Florence Waddell of Iroquois, president of the Young People's Union of Dundas-Grenville Presbytery, gave an interesting address on young people's work. Mr. Arthur Casselman of Mariatown rendered a vocal solo, "In the Garden," with Mrs. Casselman accompanist. Mrs. Allan of Hallville, brought greetings from Hallville League. Rev. Thos. Knowles of Iroquois entertained the gathering with an address, after which Miss Vivien Barclay was heard in a vocal solo, with Mr. Darwin Stata of Morrisburg as pianist. Mr. W.H. Scrivens, president of Young People's Union of Ottawa-Montreal Conference, gave an interesting address. The evening's program was brought to a close by a short sing-song, and prayer by the pastor, Rev. C.A. Adey, who acted as chairman.

OFFICIAL COUNT REVEALS CASSELMAN'S MAJORITY 2,355

According to revised figures, issued by W.S. Johnston, returning officer for Dundas-Grenville, A.C. Casselman's majority in the Federal election was 2,355. The official figures show that Casselman, Conservative, polled 8,936 votes; Elliott, Liberal, 6,581 and Patterson, Reconstructionist, 1,615.

Johnston's official figures vary little from the election night returns published a few weeks ago. Casselman's total is slightly lower, while the totals for Elliott and Patterson are practically the same.

MINISTERIAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Dundas-Grenville Ministerial Association was held in South Mountain United Church last week, wth a good attendance of clergymen present.

Rev. Donald Morrison, Hallville, presided. Following a very lengthy discussion on the "Form of Worship Service," the election of officers took place, and resulted as follows:

President—Rev. W.R Johnson, South Mountain.
Vice-Pres.—Rev. W.D. Turner, Winchester.
Sec.-Treas.—Rev. Kenneth Wodwark Elma.

It was decided to hold the next meeting in Winchester during November.

QUEBEC MOTORIST HITS MILK WAGON

Mr. Roy Baker of Winchester had the misfortune to figure in an accident Thursday morning when the rig in which he was taking the milk to the station was struck by a truck bearing Quebec license plates.

Mr. Baker was proceeding north along the highway, about 100 yards from the "Four Corners," when the truck loomed up through the mist in the rear. It smashed into the wagon with considerable force, breaking both rear wheels and throwing the milk cans in all directions. Mr. Baker tried desperately to keep the horse under control, although the animal was badly frightened. The entire contents of the milk cans was lost.

Following the accident, the driver of the truck informed Mr. Baker that he was proceeding to Winchester to get repairs made to the truck and he would be found there. An investigation by Traffic Officer Rose revealed that the man had proceeded on his way.

Offices As Hard On Hands As Kitchens

Women who do housework and those who handle carbon paper in offices have to take special care of the hands and finger-nails. Dust and the grime are among the worst enemies of the cuticle.

When you have finished the breakfast dishes (use bland soap flakes or powder) cover your hands and wrists with a thick hand cream or plain olive oil and put on rubber gloves. Modern rubber gloves are so thin that they are in no way cumbersome.

The office worker who can't wear rubber gloves during the day ought to cover her hands with cream and should wear old cotton gloves at least two nights a week. The cream does its work while she sleeps. Also she must remember to wash her hands frequently—certainly always after changing a typewriter ribbon, using carbon paper or reading proofs.

Keep a piece of fresh lemon or a bottle of lemon juice on the bathroom shelf and use it to remove stains on fingertips. See that your manicurist uses an oily polish remover and that the peroxide she puts on under the tips of the nails is removed quickly before it has a chance to spill over on cuticle.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets. Made in Canada.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

The GREEN GHOST

by Stuart Martin

SYNOPSIS

Maud Barron awakes with a premonition of disaster. She hears padding footsteps. Rushing into her father's study she finds him dead.

Dr. Sidney Foster, a friend, is joined by Detective "One Eye" Uttock, a mulatto, who has never lost a man.

Maud Barron and Hughes return to England. Dr. Foster gives Maud his address in case of need. He receives a telegram informing him "The Ghost" has reappeared.

CHAPTER IX
WHO STOLE THE PRINT?
Where was William Hughes

Dr. Foster stared at the unruffled cover and pillow, but he had no time to waste. He wheeled, put out the light, closed the door and dashed downstairs. He had to unlock the front door, and by that time he knew it was useless to try finding the thing he had seen. He stood for a little while on the top, broad step and looked in every direction. There was not a sound, not a sign of anything that disturbed the quietness of the night. The lawn was dark, and the only thing he heard was the light breeze among the trees beyond the garden. He shrugged his shoulders and went indoors.

It was a long time before he went to bed, however. The first place he went when he mounted the stairs was the billiard room. He pushed open the door. The place was empty, but the first was still burning.

He went to the window and looked out, then stood wondering. Miss Monteith had gone to her room apparently. Foster ran his fingers through his hair in perplexity. Then he turned out the fire and went to his own apartment.

He was up early and came down to breakfast before the others were strring. His first duty was to see Maud Barron, and he waited until Mrs. Gibbs came down to report. Maud had passed a restless night, but she was much better. He went up to see her as soon as possible.

"There are one or two things I want to mention to you, Miss Barron," he said, "and I don't want anyone present when we talk. Now, please don't dstress yourself, but remember that I am working for you."

He told her that he had cabled to One-eye, and she agreed with him in this. Then he asked the question that was in his mind. Did the face of this apparition in any way resemble the features of the man with whom her father had quarrelled?

She wrinkled her brows before she answered.

"Yes," she said definitely. " I understood that you knew that. But though the resemblance was there, at the same time there were exaggeratons. But, on the whole, the answer is yes. Was not tha just the very point that my father insisted on?"

"I remember, but I wanted to be sure. Now, in what way was there any exaggeration? Please try to think.

"For one thing the face of the spectre is a larger countenance, much larger. It is greenish in colour. But mainly the resemblance was brought home to my father and to me in the scar that ran down from the left eye to below the mouth. That was one of the curious facial marks of the man. It disfigured him. When he was angry, so I have heard father say, he looked like a demon."

"I see, the wrinkling up of his face in rage would have the effect of emphasising the scar, and the scar acted on the muscles. I can understand that. There is just another thing. I want you to promise that you will never go out alone—not even in daylight."

"I will promise that at once. As for night time I will not stir across the door."

She shivered as she spoke. Foster rose to go, but at the door he paused.

"I suppose that you have a master key to all the bedrooms?"

"There is one. It is in the possession of the housekeeper. Why?"

"I may need to use it, Miss Barron. Have I your permisson to do so, provided I have good reason?"

"Of course, doctor, you have a right to do as you want to here. I have given orders that no one is to oppose you in any way and the s aff are to do whatever you ask."

He sauntered down the staircase and asked a maid if Mr. Hughes was about. Mr. Hughes had just gone out to the garden. Foster went out also. Hughes was strolling about the lawn hands behind his back and pipe in mouth. He looked up as Foster stepped out.

"Good-mornng, Mr. Hughes."

"Good-morning What is it you want?"

"I should like to express my regret that you were not in your room last night when I knocked. I wanted you particularly—"

"How did you know that I wasn't in my room?" demanded Hughes harshly, menace in his tone.

"Well, I knocked on your door. Were you in?"

Hughes reflected for a moment.

"Well, what did you want me for?"

"To see the green ghost with your own eyes?"

Hughes threw back his head and laughed in his throat, a funny laugh that was the cackle of a comedian.

"Oh, you mean that time you were in the wood. Miss Monteith has told me this morning that you ran into her with your hair on end—"

"Did Miss Monteith say my hair was on end?"

"Well, she didn't exactly say so, but I can imagine what you were like."

"I wasn't referring to that occasion, Mr. Hughes."

"No?"

"I was referring to the incident between eleven o'clock and midnight—nearer the latter hour, in fact."

Hughes wheeled.

Hymn Singing In The Past

Writer in Boston Transcript Recalls Fervor with Which Gospel Tunes Were Rendered

The Boston Transcript says thae devil is getting too many hymn tunes! No good ones are being written:

"Many a man and woman going down the sunset side of life's divide, recall vivid childhood impressions of the fervor with which worshippers in meeting-houses used to sing the long-familiar hymns, especially when the tune was good. With what war-like roaring the grave men, with long beards and shaven upper lips, lifted up their voices when singing Luther's 'Ein Feste Burg.' How ecstatically the women, in voluminous skirts with sleek bandeaus of hair drawn over their ears, dwelt upon the crescendo, the dying fall and the refrain of a hymn like Cowper's 'There is a Fountain Filled with Blood.'

"This hearty joy in the Gospel tunes in some way made up to the singers for the repression of worldliness during the week. Their lives were in the main drab and uneventful. They were emotionally starved. They might not dance. They might not go to the circus or to the theatre. Playing cards was forbidden. There was moral death in a mug of beer. The game of authors in winter, croquet in summer, summed up the sanctioned secular reactions.

"Does not this explain why the Sunday meeting-house services and the mid-week payer meetings were crowded?"

Bicycle Come - Back

Even if we don't seem to use bicycles so much in Canada as in some countries of Europe, still we use a great many, and the numbers are growing. There were 40,000 sold last year, which included about 7,400 importations. These came almost entirely from the United Kingdom. No other year approached that in the number of sales, except the special spending year of 1929, when 1,500 more were sold. The exports are very small. At the beginning of the depression years there was quite a noticeable falling off in sales, but they picked up in 1933 and in 1934 the production by Canadian firms was double what it was two years before.

Less than one hundred years ago, Kirkpatrick Macmillan, a Scottish blacksmith, was the first to make it possible to preserve a continuity of motion on a two-wheeled, single track vehicle without touching the ground with the feet. The modern bicycle has grown out of Macmillan's invention. There were various stages in the development and tucked away in many an old Canadian garret may be found samples of the high-wheeled contraptions on which young men in smart knickerbocker suits used to ride out into the country. Bicycle clubs with distinguishing colors were part and parcel of youthful summer activities.

Woollen Dresses Decrees Fashion

Fur to Match Top Coat Popular as Trimming Stylists Say

New York—Woollen dresses with touches of fur are the smartest fashions of the moment—handsomely tailored, warm dresses to be worn without a topcoat now and, later, under a winter coat.

If you have a fur coat, it's a good idea to pick a dress that's trimmed with the same kind of fur. Choose a color that will harmonize with whatever winter coat you intend to wear.

Besides black, which is good, of course, you'll find luscious tones of wine and rust, Oxford gray, rich blues, ginger browns and various greens that you'll like.

A perfectly straight coat dress is slenderizing, doesn't require a topcoat and always makes you look well groomed. One particularly nice one, comes in heavy grey woollen with a diagonal stripe of white. It's trimmed with large button's covered with grey Persian lamb and a Persian lamb Ascot that slips through a slit at the front and crosses at the back. A hat to wear with it is trimmed with matching fur.

Another dress is a variation of the shirtwaist theme in black woollen in a diagonal weave with black Persian collar and cuffs. A green and black striped velvet Ascot is tucked into the neckline. Square buttons and belt buckle are interesting details. A black felt hat is trimmed with fur to match.

Daytime necklines seem to be getting higher. Coat, two-piece and tunic styles cover practically all of the throat. Even when the V neckline is fairly low, there generally is an Ascot to be worn across it.

If you aren't interested in fur trimmings, look at braided details in the military manner. A dress of black woollen, with front fullness, has red veleveteen Ascot and braid in a matching shade of red on the four patch pockets. Another frock perfect for week-ends in the country, football games and the office includes a plum colored woollen skirt and a slim blouse, lavishly embroidered with military braid in a deeper shade of plum.

If you look well in tunics and the Cossack lines flatter your figure, a woollen or velveteen suit with plain skirt and tunic coat is a practical addition to a wardrobe. With a tailored blouse, it will see you through the daytime hours. With a dressy one—perhaps or pleated chiffon—you can wear it to tea and dinner.

"A Pound of Eggs Please," Will Be Michigan Order

Detroit, — Michigan housewives, scarcely recovered from six days of world series baseball excitement, recoiled from a fresh shock when they learned that after November 1st, eggs will be sold by the pound—not by the dozen.

The order revolutionizing the egg buying habits of the entire state came from James Thomson, agricultural commissioner. He pointed out that after the change goes into effect dealers will have to grade their eggs according to size and quality.

"Housewives will then be able to get what they pay for," said the commissioner.

English Girls Are Healthy; Americans Are Decorative

New York — American girls are decorative, but English girls are healthier, Prunella Stack, president of the Health and Beauty League of England said as she sailed for home after organizing branches in Canada.

"American girls are smarter, better dressed and more decorative," she said, "but English girls take more outdoor exercise."

She added she did not think "that either drinking or smoking in moderation does any harm."

EVERY DAY LIVING

A WEEKLY TONIC
by Dr. M. M. Lappin

I am sometimes taken to task by correspondents because I so frequently recommend a heart-to-heart talk in cases where there is a difference, or a growing coldness between two persons. Many who write to me tell me that it is not easy to get down to talking things over. They are not sure whether the other person will listen or talk, and they question in their own minds if the other party concerned will be amenable to reason.

Well, I know it is not always an easy matter, but in many of life's problems we discover that the difficult way is more often the right way. The line of least resistance seldom leads to a true and satisfactory solution of our problems. Indeed, more often it only tends to complicate matters and make our problem more difficult of solution.

I have always been a believer in talking things over quite frankly when there is a difference between two friends, and especially if the friendship is a close one. Experience has taught me that it is the best way, and I have known many a home saved from becoming a wreck through a heart-to-heart talk between husband and wife. That is why I recommend it so often.

One of my correspondents seems to have got into a rather difficult position. She claims that she is the victim of malicious gossip and, from her letter, I think she is letting it play too much on her mind. She writes: "If only I were able to confide in my husband it would make matters much easier for me, but this I am unable to do". As I read those words, I was conscious of myself asking "Why" and of saying to myself "There is something wrong when a husband and wife cannot confide in each other." I think that would be the natural reaction of most folks.

This woman may feel that there are reasons why she cannot confide in her husband, but I am inclined to think that these are only the result of a process of rationalisation leading to the setting up in her of what psychologists call a "mental defence mechanism", and by this she is unconsciously trying to excuse herself from an obvious and plain duty.

If this matter is such that it is likely to reflect upon this woman's husband or home—and it appears that it is—then, whether she is in the right or in the wrong, it is her duty to acquaint her husband. If she is in the right and is being wronged, so much the better, it should be easy for her to tell him. But if she is in the wrong, then she should make a clean breast of the whole matter, show her sincere repentance, and ask his forgiveness. That is the only way. Otherwise she will just go on repressing the matter and repression will only lead to further complications. Besides, it will work havoc in her own inner thought life.

I think her husband will respect her confidence. He may be annoyed at the moment. That is to be expected. He will be even more annoyed if the information reaches him from some outside source. When he has got over his momentary annoyance he will admire her all the more for her courage and frankness. After all, this marriage business is a partnership and, if the partnership is truly based on love, then there should be a mutual sharing of sorrows and burdens as well as of joys. By all means tell your husband the whole story. Make him feel that it is your loyalty to him and to your family that prompts you to tell it. "A sorrow shared is a sorrow halved". You may find your very much more understanding and sympathetic than you have credited him with being. At all events, you will have eased your mind and cleared your conscience and that, surely, is something worth while.

NOTE: The writer of this column is a trained psychologist and an author of several works. He is willing to deal with your problems and give you the benfit of his wide experience. Questions regarding problems of EVERYDAY LIVING should be addressed to: Dr. M. M. Lappin, Room 421, 73 Adelaide Street, West, Toronto, Ontario. Enclose a 3c stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Potatoes Ideal Source of Energy

London—One of the most important sources of energy in a mixed diet is the potato. It is a rich source of many of the necessary mineral salts. These are facts stressed by Dr. H. K. Archbold in a booklet, "The Potato as an Article of Diet," issued by the Potato Marketing Board.

For slimming, it is said, potato constitutes the ideal carbohydrate. "A very satisfactory diet" would be fish, eggs, and potatoes, eaten as desired.

"Opinion is united that potatoes are best cooked in their jackets or steamed, next comes frying and lastly boiling, states Dr. Archbold. "In preparing potatoes by peeling as much as 20 per cent. of the tuber may be unnecessarily wasted, and . . . the outside layers which are cut away are more nutritive than the inside."

Recently one observer lived for four years on a diet consisting chiefly of potatoes and milk.

On Faith

A famous painter was proceeding down a London street one day when he saw a pavement artist drawing a large fish.

"What sort of fish is that?" asked the painter.

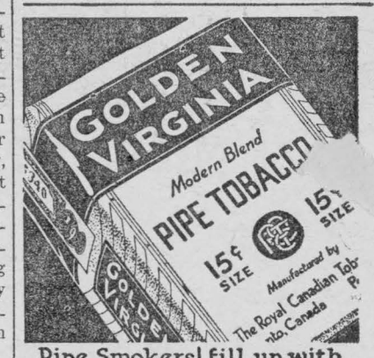

"A shark, sir," was the reply.

"Have you ever seen a shark?"

"No, sir."

"Then how can you draw a shark if you've never seen one?" persisted the famous painter.

"Well, sir," replied the other, "Don't some of them Academy blokes paint angels?"

SOME NEW APPLE DISHES

Everybody knows, of course, about eating apples raw for the sake of the teeth, and baked or steamed apples are fine for babies.

Nearly all salads, whether they are fruit, vegetable or meat, are better for the addition of a few apples. Cubes of tender, crisp apple add flavor and body to fruit cups, too.

Apples for pie, sauce and puddings to be baked should be tart, well-flavored and of fine texture to insure quick cooking. Those wanted for baking should be perfectly formed, firm and of good size. If they are too delicate in grain, they will fall apart while baking and be unattractive for serving.

Add Sugar Last

When you make apple sauce, remember the rule of adding sugar to fruit after the fruit is cooked. Less sugar is needed to sweeten the sauce and the flavor is more delicate that way. If you have not carefully trimmed out all bruised spots before cooking, the sauce should be rubbed through a colander because the bruished flesh of apples becomes hard and tough after cooking. Also be sure that every particle of core is cut out, especially if children are to eat the sauce.

Apple sauce with pork, and roast goose is an old story, but try it with veal and chicken, too. Baked apples are a perfect dessert to serve with a lamb chop dinner. Minted apples are good with roast lamb. Instead of using a leg of lamb, choose the shoulder and have the butcher bone it for you. Save the bones for broth the next day. Then make a stuffing and fill the boned cut, tie securely and roast as usual.

Fruit Snowballs

Both the grown-ups and children alike will come for second helpings of apple snowballs:

Peel, core and slice the apples, put them into a saucepan with sufficient water to prevent them burning, gently simmer until soft, then beat to a pulp with sugar to taste.

Allow the fruit to cool, then stir in two stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Form into balls sprinkle with shredded coconut and place a cherry on the top of each. Serve with custard or junket.

Delicious Chutney

As an accompaniment to cold meat, apple chutney is a great success:

Weight two pounds of hard, green apples, and after paring and coring, chop them into small pieces with two large onions and 1 lb. sultanas.

Mix together 4 oz. salt, 4 oz. ground ginger, 1 oz. mustard seed, ½ oz. chillies and a little garlic, if liked, add two tablespoons vinegar and mix to a paste.

Put the apples, onions and sultanas into a stewpan, pour over 2½ pints of vinegar, then simmer gently for half an hour. Add the paste and heat gently until boiling, then add 1 lb. demerara sugar and continue boiling until the chutney is soft and thick. Stir with a wooden spoon to prevent burning, then pour into jars, tie down and store in a cool, dry place.

Brown Betty

The following recipe was found in an eighty-year-old cookery-book. Pare, core, and slice some fi nejuicy but not sweet apples. Cover with apples the bottom of a large, deep pie-dish. Sweeten them well with plenty of brown sugar, adding grated lemon or orange peel. Strew over them a thick layer of breadcrumbs, and add to the crumbs a few bits of butter. Then put in another layer of cut apples and sugar, followed by a second layer of breadcrumbs and butter. Next, more apples and sugar, then more breadcrumbs and butter, repeating until the dish is full and finishing with breadcrumbs. Bake until the apples are soft and send to the table hot.

POT ROAST IS A BIG FAVORITE

It's unbelievable that anything so good as pot roast can be made from such inexpensive cuts. And pot roast gravy is the best of the gravy species. Only be sure to see that it stars in the meal.

Don't serve it with creamed potatoes, good as they are, but with plain boiled, mashed or riced potatoes, to be slathered in gravy.

All the fall vegetables combine well with pot roasts. They may be cooked surrounding the meat or separately. The only difference is that when vegetables are cooked with the meat, the gravy becomes flavored.

An iron kettle with an iron cover or any heavy aluminum kettle with a close fitting cover will do for pot roast.

Pot Roast of Beef

A boned and rolled rump roast is a favorite cut. Choose one weighing at least three pounds and if the family aren't too hungry you should have enough for two meals.

Three pounds beef, 2 tablespoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons flour.

Trim fat from meat and try out in kettle. Strain and return three tablespoons melted fat to kettle. Heat and when sizzling add meat. Brown on all sides, turning frequently. Be careful not to pierce with fork. When meat is brown all over, cover closely and cook over a low fire for three hours or until meat is tender. I never add water because the cover of my kettle fits so tightly that none of the moisture from the meat has a chance to escape but you may need to add ½ cup boiling water to prevent burning. Sprinkle with salt and pepper when meat has been cooking about 2 hours. When ready to serve remove meat to hot platter and keep hot. Measure liquid in kettle and add enough boiling water to make two cups. Return to the fire and bring to the boiling point. Stir in flour which has been stirred to a smooth paste with 3 tablespoons cold water. Cook. Stirring constantly for five minutes. Pour into gravy boat and serve.

Veal is delicious pot roasted this same way.

Scalloped parsnips and pineapple is a delicious dish to serve with a veal pot roast.

Parsnips and Pineapple

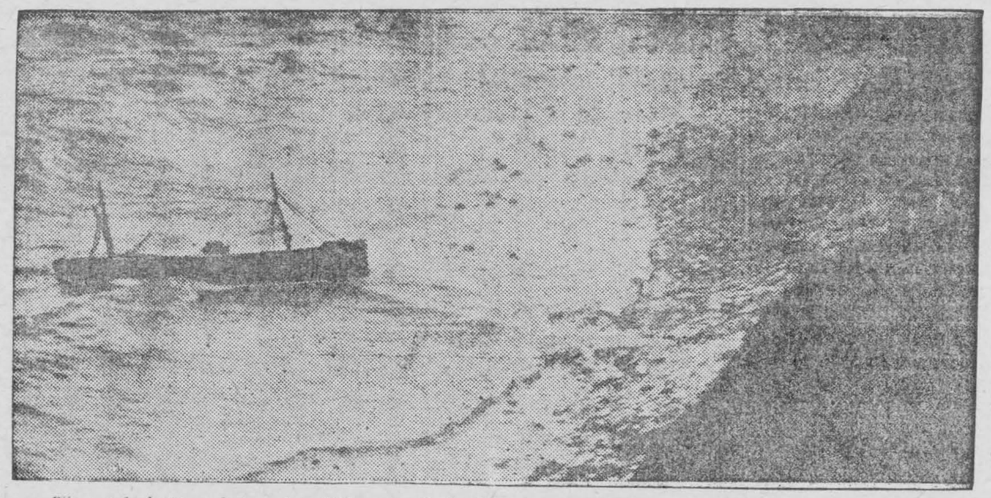

Four good sized parsnips, 1 small pineapple, or 1 can pineapple slices, ½ cup brown sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, 2 tablespoons butter, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup boiling water, 1 bouillon cube.

Scrub and scrape parsnips. Parboil. Cut in rounds about ½ inch thick. Cut pineapple in pieces of equal size and shape. Place in alternate layers in a buttered baking dish, sprinkling each layer with brown sugar and cinnamon and dotting with butter and flour rubbed together. Use 2 tablespoons flour. Sprinkle with salt and pour in boiling water with bouillon cube dissolved in it. Bake in a moderate oven until both parsnips and pineapple are tender. It will take about 45 minutes. Serve from baking dish.

POSSIBILITIES OF LAMB

What a lucky thing it is for homemakers that lamb is so plentiful this fall! Fresh lamb is so versatile it can be used for any meal in the day, from breakfast right on through lunch and dinner to the late midnight snack when hungry folk raid the refrigerator for a last choice morsel before retiring. If there is some cold roast lamb in the refrigerator, it can be counted on to please.

In fact, it is considered wise to choose a larger roast than you need for one meal, so that in case of unexpected company when you would like to serve sandwiches or a "hurry-up" substantial dish, you can do so with ease. You need never be afraid of fresh lamb being wasted for, if the company never comes, there is always breakfast and lunch ahead.

"The possibilities of left-over fresh lamb as a breakfast or luncheon meat are legion", says Inez S. Wilson, noted home economist, "and there are so many dishes which require such a little time in preparation, too. For instance, creamed lamb served with hot baking powder biscuits makes a substantial breakfast which is nice enough for company, and one which is appreciated by every member of the family. Or if baking powder biscuits are too much bother, serve it on toast points —it will still be appreciated."

A few other tasty ways of serving left-over lamb are: sliced cold, around hot spinach with sliced hard-boiled eggs; sliced and heated in gravy with a mashed potato border; scalloped with macaroni, tomato sauce and crumbs; cubed in casserole with potato, peas, carrots and gravy; and chopped lamb baked with a mashed potato crust.

THE LESSON IN ITS SETTING

TIME. — Jehoiakim, the seventeenth king of Judah, was enthroned by Pharaohnecho, 607 B.C., and reigned until 597 B.C. Jehoiachin was king that year for three months. Zedekiah, the last of the kings, reigned from 597 to 587 B.C. Jerusalem was destroyed in 587 B.C.

PLACE. — For the most part, the cities of Jerusalem and Babylon.

"And it came to pass in the ninth year of his reign." That is, in the ninth year of the reign of Zedekiah, and,, consequently, B.C. 588.

"In the tenth month, in the tenth day of the month." Cf. the similarly exact dates in Ezekiel 24 : 1, 2. The days were observed as fasts after the exile (Zech. 7 : 3, 5, 8 : 19).

"That Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came, he and all his army, against Jerusalem, and encamped against it." It is evident from verse six that Nebuchadnezzar did not come to Jerusalem himself, but remained at Riblah (23 : 33), and sent his army from thence against Jerusalem.

"And they built forts against it round about." More accurately bulwarks or siege-works.

"So, the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of king Zedekiah."

"On the ninth day of the fourth month." The siege lasted all together one year, five months, twenty-seven days.

"The famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land." The horrors of the siege are referred to in Lamentations 2 : 11—20; 4 : 3—10; Ezek. 5 : 10.

"Then a breach was made in the city." The breach was made with battering rams such as are depicted on Assyrian sculptures.

"And all the men of war fled by night by the way of the gate between the two walls, which was by the king's garden." The two walls were necessary for the protection of the Pool of Siloam and the water supply.

"Now the Chaldeans were against the city round about." This would seem to indicate that, even by this route, the king and his followers had to break through the enemy's lines, as the city would seem to have been completely invested.

"And the king went by the way of the Arabah." The rabah was that deep valley running from north to south in which the Jordan flows, and which was, consequently, located some miles to the east of the city of Jerusalem.

"But the army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king, and overtook him in the plains of Jericho; and all his army was scattered from him." In the neighborhood of Jericho, the Arabah expands to the breadth of eleven or twelve miles.

"Then they took the king, and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah; and they gave judgment upon him." Nebuchadnezzar, with the grandness of his court, held a solemn trial of Zedekiah, as a rebel against his liege lord, in which, no doubt, his breach of oath was made prominent.

"And they slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, and put out the eyes of Zedekiah, and bound him in fetters, and carried him to Babylon." Ezekiel had predicted Zedekiah's blindness (Ezek. 12 : 13). Jeremiah 52 : 11 tells us that Zedekiah remained in prison until he died.

"Now in the fifth month, on the seventh day of the month, which was the nineteenth year of king Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, came Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard, a servant of the king of Babylon, unto Jerusalem." Nebuzaradan was literally the captain of the executioners, i.e., the one who commands those who are commissioned to execute the kings' commands, especially his death sentences, and so the captain of the guard (Gen. 37 : 36).

"And he burnt the house of Jehovah, and the king's house; and all the houses of Jerusalem, even every great house, burnt he with fire." In this conflagration, the common houses were spared for the poor who were left.

"And all the army of the Chaldeans, that were with the captain of the captain of the guard, brake down the walls of Jerusalem round about." The walls were broken down first, of course, to allow the soldiers readier access to the city itself, and, in the second place, they were broken down to eliminate the possibility of the city's being defended again by any returning body of Judaean soldiers.

"And the residue of the people were left in the city." These captives are probably to be taken as the chief part of the noncombatant part of the population of Jerusalem and Judah.

"And thase that fell away, that fell to the king of Babylon, and the residue of the multitude, did Nebuzaradan the captain of the guard carry away captive." These, no doubt, were the deserters (see Jer. 27 : 12; 37 : 13 ff.; 38 : 2, 4, 17, 19).

"But the captain of the guard left of the poorest of the land to be vinedressers and husbandmen." These agriculturists were allowed to remain in the land that crops might be raised which could be taxed or seized by the invaders. It is not considered a policy of wisdom on the part of any conquering power to leave fertile areas uncultivated and a nation utterly barren and depopulated.

Girl Retains Use Of Legs After Infantile Paralysis

St. Paul, — All the world smiled recently for Audrey Carlson, 18 of Dassel, Minn.

She walked out of the hospital for crippled children after a year in bed while surgeons added 4½ inches to her paralysis-shortened left leg.

When the girl was seven years old infantile paralysis impaired the growth of the leg. Two bone-lengthening operations made it equal in length to the other.

"One of the first things I'm going to do," Miss Carlson said, "is see a movie—one about dancing."

Be A Comforter

Do you know a shut-in,
Or one that's feeling blue?
Just take your pen and paper,
And write a line or two.

You may have a message,
Or a thought of cheer,
'Twould shed a ray of sunshine,
A-gleaming down the year.

It may be an effort,
But put that thought in ink,
It may do more good to one,
Than you would ever think.

God gave you a talent,
So use it for His good,
You'd say that wold of comfort,
If you understood.

Many are regretting,
The word they did not say,
When loved ones have passed over,
So write that word today.

News And Information For The Busy Farmer

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Canadian Wool

Sheep raising is an important phase of live stock production in all the provinces of Canada. Since 1913 a great deal of attention has been given to improving the quality of Canadian wool and the manner of its preparation for market.

Propaganda has been mainly directed to securing improvement in the preparation of fleece wool for market. Tub washing of wool and the washing of wool on the sheep have been discouraged. Today practically all wool sold commercially in Canada is "in the grease" and the fleeces are rolled and tied intact as they are shorn. Another important feature of the educational work is the emphasizing of the importance of keeping fleeces free from chaff and seeds. This entails better housing accommodation and greater care in feeding. Although there has been a great change in the quality of domestic wools there is room for further improvement.

Soil Drift Control

While individual effort is usually very effective in controlling soil drifting, and every farmer should adopt the best known control measures on his own farm, the most successful results will undoubtedly follow the adoption of communiity action. The importance of this community action will be readily understood from the fact that an area of unhindered, drifting soil usually expands very rapidly. Moving particles of soil are not always brought to rest by collision with stationary soil particles, and in many cases the latter are caused to join in a general movement under the influence of high winds.

The most carefully planned and executed control measures may be entirely ruined if the soil has to withstand the combined action of wind and drifting soil from adjoining unprotected areas. These facts show the necessity for community action if a miximum degree of success in the control of soil drifting is to be obtained. While the control of drifting on any farm is primarily the concern of the individual farmer his success may be aided or hampered by the action of his immediate neighbors.

Inter-Club Competition

The annual Ontario Boys' Inter-Club competitions for Calf, Swine, Grain and Potato Clube are being held at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, on Thursday, November 7th. Many coveted trophies and valuable cash prizes are being offered for competition. From the winners will be selected the teams to represent Ontario in the National contests at the Royal Winter Fair. It is interesting to recall that in 1934 teams from 24 Calf Clubs, 10 Swine Clubs, 17 Grain Clubs and 11 Potato Clubs competed for Provincial honours. In the National Contests at the Royal Winter Fair, Ontario stood first in the Dairy Calf project, second in Swine, first in Grain and second in Potatoes. During 1935 there were enrolled in the province, 5,746 boys and girls in 423 clubs. Club work is a definite project work for boys and girls between the ages of 12 and 20 and the principle embodied in the phrase, "Learn to do by doing" is carried out to the fullest extent. Arrangements are being made to hold a Club banquet on the evening of Nov. 7th at O.A.C. when Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture and Dr. Geo. I. Christie, President O.A.C., will be the speakers.

Timothy Seed Prices

The current timothy seed crop report indicates an abnormally large production of this seed in Canada in 1935. It would appear that there may be about eleven million pounds of seed available for commerce as against five million pounds in 1934 and an annual consumption in recent years of approximate seven million pounds. Owing to the surplus in sight. Canada is now for the first time in istory on an export price basis in respect to this seed. In te past years prices at Chicago plus freight and import charges were the basis of value in Canada, whereas this year, domestic prices may be based on Chicago quotations less freight and export charges. As a result of this changed situation prices are now very low. At this time last year timothy seed was selling in Canada at fifteen too twenty cents per pound as against three to four and a half cents per pound at the present time. Surplus production this year resulted from two main factors. i.e., the high prices of last year which stimulated production and the abnormally large hay crop which permitted farmers generally to leave fields for seed rather than cut for hay.

Standard Poultry Boxes.

Hardwood of any kind is not suitable for standard dressed poultry boxes. According to the Canadian tandards, lumber used for making these boxes must be a sound, clear, dry qualtiy of soft wood planed smooth on both sides free from knots, and square, straight-edge stock but not tongued or grooved. When boxes are made up, there are five essential points; (1) each side and end must be in one piece and be square cut (2) tope and bottoms must be flushed with and fit flush over both sides. (3) an allowance must be made for a small space, of not more than a sixteenth of an inch, between the boards on top and bottom of the box to assist quick sharp freezing when placed in shortage, (4) the bottoms and tops should be in at least three pieces and (5) wide boards should be u ed as outside boards in both top ac and bottoms. The nails used should only be long enough and strong enough to give the necessary strength so that the weight of poultry contained in the box may be shipped in safety. In packing, strict observance should be paid to the allowance variation in weight in birds packed in the same box—squab and broiling chickens not over 1-4 pound per bird; all other chickens and fowl not over ½ pound; turkeys and geese not more than 3 pounds. It is recommended that this individual variation of turkeys and geese be limited to two pounds. The weight variation for ducks packed in the same box is one pound per bird.

Advance of Branded Beef

The popularity of beef as food has a much deeper foundation than simply its appeal to the palate. It not only contains many of the elements necessary for the proper growth and development of the human body but it supplements and improves the value of many of the nutrients found in grains and vegetables. In anada there is another incentive. Canadians have an advantage-over some other countries in that they have at their disposal a fine selection of many foods, which under the mark "Canada Approved" are guaranteed by the Government free from disease. In the case of Government graded beef a step further has been taken. In addition to the "Canada Approved" mark, there is a Government mark or brand of quality in the form of ribbon-like marks running lengthwise of the carcass. A section of this mark appears on every individual cut, and thus the purchaser is assured of receiving the quality paid for. The red brand marks the best quality, entitled "Choice" and the second quality called "Good" is branded in blue. The gradual spread of this knowledge in one way accounts for the steady advance in the sales of anadian branded beef. The total sales during the month of August 1935 amounted to 3,509,913 pounds, bringing the total for the eight months of the year to 27,823,692 pounds or approximately 640,000 pounds more than in the corresponding period of 1934; 6,848,527 lbs. more than in 1933; 13,529,389 lbs. more than in 1932, and 15,950,028 pounds more than in 1931 when the system was initiated.

HUGE STOCK SHOW TO OPEN NOVEMBER 30th

Preparations are under way to receive a record-breaking entry of live stock and farm crops at the Chicago Stock Yards. The Exposition will take place from November 30th to December 7th.

The show will be staged in the mammoth new amphitheatre, constructed last year on the same site as the buildings that had housed this largest stock show on the continent since 1900 and which were destroyed by fire in the Spring of 1934.

Record Show Predicted

Secretary manager B. H. Heide predicts that the Exposition will break its own past records for both attendance and exhibits this year. He bases his opinion upon the notable success of recent State Fairs, many of which established all time records for both number of exhibits and visitors.

In anticipation of the large turnout this year, extensive though the new quarters for the show are, the management is constructing an additional building to be connecte with the amphitheatre and will be used to stable horses. Construction was recently begun on the new building which will be completed shortly before theExposition opens.

Though a final check on entries in the live stock departments, which close November 1st, has not yet been made, the management feels confident that the tally will be well above 12,000 animals by the time all nominations are in.

Exhibits from Australia

Held in connection with the live stock exposition is the International Grain and Hay Show, largest competitive crops contest in the world. Growers of nearly every state in the Union and Province of Canada will be represented in this competition by samples of the past season"s harvest. First entries were made by seven farmers from New South Wales who will exhibit wheat that earlier in the year had been awarded prizes at Australian Shows.

Railroads enterin Chicago have indicated that specia excursion rates at attractive low rou trip fares will be offered from points along their lines to Chicago during the first week of December for this event.

CATHERINE KING.

W. M. S. SECTIONAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Central Section of Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial of the United Church W.M.S. was held in Iroquois United Church on Friday, October 25th, with Mrs. R. Peterson, 1st Vice President of the Presbyterial, presiding.

The morning session opened with the singing of Jesus Thou Joy of Loving Hearts, after which the President offered prayer. The morning devotions were in charge of Hanesville auxiliary, the scripture lesson being read by Mrs. T. Johnson, who took as her topic "the marks of a Christian." All Roman officials carried on their bodies, the mark of the Emperor; Paul was a prisoner in Rome and noticing that even the Roman soldier, who was his guard, had the mark of Caesar, said: "I bear in my body marks of the Lord Jesusu." He had the marks from the time he was a prisoner in Phillipi, also when he was stoned and left for dead, all for the sake of the gospel. Some of the marks of a Christian are:: Loyalty, Courage, Patience, Humility, Freedom and Generosity.

After reading the minutes of the last Sectional Meeting, by the Secretary, Mrs. R. Johnson of South Mountain, committees were appointed. A very cordial welcome was extended to the guests by Mrs. Jas. Benton and the reply was made by Mrs. Carlyle.

The report of the Montreal-Ottawa Conference Branch Convention, which was held in the city of Quebec was given by Mrs. D. Morrison. A solo entitled "Dear Lord Forgive" was beautifully rendered by Mrs. Basil Strader. Miss Violet VanAllen gave a very interesting talk on "Why a Mission Band," Jesus said " A little child shall lead them, and the children are the hope of the future W.M.S.

After the roll call Mrs. Peterson led in a discussion on things of interest to the W.M.S. The study book "The New Africa" was presented by Mrs. Gordon Cleland in an interesting manner.

Mrs. S. R. Collins of Montreal, Missionary on furlough from Camundongo, Angola, Africa, was at this time introduced to the Convention.

Rev. T. Knowles in a very earnest manner commended the women for their loyalty to the cause of Missions. He urged the Congregation not to look on W.M.S. work as merely a duty, but to give themselves wholeheartedly to the work. He stressed the importance of the prayer life. Prayer is the secret of the life of a Christian. The benediction was pronounced and all adjourned to the dining room where a sumptuous dinner was served.

The devotional period opening the afternoon session was in charge of the Brinston Auxiliary, the topic being "Prayer". Every missionary triumph of the past was the result of earnest prayer. Faith and prayer are among the forces God uses in this world.

Mrs. S. R. Collins of Montreal, who was introduced during the morning session, thrilled the audience by the earnest, inspirational manner in which she told of the work being carried on by the United Church in Camundongo, Africa. She gave us a word picture of the Mission Station. The Church is the central building, then the hospital; past the hospital is the leper camp, where 41 lepers are given treatment by a cured leper, one of the happiest places on the campus. The natives call the Mission Station the "Capital of the Faith."

Mrs. Collison gave us a study in contrasts, to show what Christianity does for the African people. She told of a heathen wedding, then in contrast described a Christian wedding. She then gave us a glimpse of the home life of the African woman, before Christianity has touched the home. A woman prepares the evening meal, carries it out in a mush pot to her husband in the palaver house, goes back to her hut and eats with her children, soon comes the sound of beating drums and the natives gather for the evening dance, then back to the huts to sleep.

In contrast picture a Christian home. Ester is a graduate of Means School; her husband of Currie Institute. The table is covered with a white cloth on which the evening meal is placed. She and her husband with their two children all sit round the table; grace is said; after the meal prayer is offered with the children, 7 and 4 years of age taking part. Before returning they sing hymns.

In closing her address Mrs. Collins expressed the hope that the day will soon come when the glad tidings of good faith will go into every African home sent by our missionary workers.

Mrs. Morrison completed her report of the Branch Meeting,; an invitation from Van Camp Aux. to hold the next sectional meeting in the church at Van Camp, was accepted, and a letter from Mrs. Stanley Adams, Presbyterial Temperance Secretary, was read. She urged auxiliaries to provide funds for our Temperance Secretaries to secure literature on the temperance question.

Mrs. I. Hilliard of Morrisburg, Dominion Board Temp. Sec., followed with a stirring address. The temperance business is a world business. A great temperance movement is under way in Japan, also in India, to rid these countries of the liquor curse, while at the same time Canada and the United States are saying "give us more liquor," the country needs the revenue. She challenged the women of the W.M.S. to work as never before to rid our land of this great evil.

Mrs. R. Johnson and Miss Violet VanAllen sang a duet "There"s a work for me and a work for you" which was very much appreciated.

Mrs. A. B. Allison of Morewood Presbyteril Pres., in her address emphasized the fact that all societies are asked to give a ten per cent. increase over last year's givings .She urged Church Stewardship Sec. to stress the importance of the "Love Gift". She also suggested that all Aux. report their meetings through the press, thus reaching many who are unable to attend the meetings. She announced a Presbyterial Rally to be held in Kemptville on the evening of November 6th at 7.30.

Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill of Morrisburg, Presbyterial Treasurer. spoke of God's goodness in giving such a bountiful harvest, and urged every Aux. to put forth their very best efforts to reach their allocation.

The report of the Courtesy Committee was read by Mrs. Charles Strader.

A motion was passed, authorizing the Secretary to write a letter to Mrs. I. Hall, who had been president, of Iroquois Aux. for over 20 years, expressing regret at her inability to attend the meeting.

THEY HAVE THE BIG IDEA

There was an item in the newspapers recently and by actual measure it received one inch of space. But it told a good deal. It came from Amulet, Sask., and said that farmers of that district were shipping truckloads of carrots to less fortunate farmers in the north. In dried-out years — and Amulet had its share of them — farmers there received supplies of vegetables from other sections. Now they find themselves in a position to help and they know where others are who need help, so they are keeping the thing going.

It is well that those farmers in Saskatchewan shipped vegetables to those in need; it is well that some person who heard about it had the good sense to see that it got in the newspapers. What a world we would have if the farmers-and-carrots idea began to expand! — Stratford Beacon-Herald.

BEFORE DAYS OF ROUGE

After listening to the usual damaging comparison between the girls of today and the girls of years ago, pert Miss Teenage remarked: "Well, if they were all so darned innocent, how did they know when to blush?" —Exchange.

FLYING DOCTORS

In Canada we have no official "flying doctor" service such as Australia possesses, but invaluable aid has been rendered for some considerable time past by the Canadian Airways Service. The ambulance notes of the company contain scores of records of flights, varying in length from ten to several hundred miles, all of which were made in response to urgent appeals for transportation and which in most cases definitely meant the saving of life.

In Canada air transport has completely transformed the service of government medical offices, as may be seen from a record of a recent tour of camps in western Ontario, when in less than four hours a doctor using a plane was able to visit four different camps, carrying out complete inspections and travelling 102 miles, in less than four hours. Aeroplane service has also made medical service possible over territories which in bygone years were covered only by dog teams making one trip per season. This is now replaced by many trips per season in comfort over a vastly larger area at considerably less cost, and without the grave risks that inevitably attended the dog team tours. — Star, Montreal.

WILL STRIKE EASILY

Year round exposure of the sun makes the skin rough and dry, so the nudists can easily strike their matches. — Brandon Sun.

PREVENT WAR ANYWHERE

"The best way to keep America out of war is to do what we can to prevent there being a war anywhere into which she can be drawn," says Newton D. Baker. And he might have added that in these modern days it is hardly possible to start a war any place, in which most of the nations of the world would not be involved. —Chatham News.

SLEEPLESS, DRINKS TEA

One finds it difficult to feel any quickening of the pulse over Il Duce's approach to a nervous breakdown. One feels that, had the nervous breakdown been complete and occurred some ten years ago, the world would be a happier place today.

Furthermore, when one learns that he has been drinking, not Ceylon or China tea, but Camomile tea, one loses reverence even for the steel thing on his head.

We have drunk that stuff. One drops dried Camomile flowers into a tea pot and pours hot water on them. If one desires one adds tilleul mint and verbena. The result is not unlike dish water in which sea-weed and pepperiment drops have been steeped.

Il Duce may never be wrong, but to our way of thinking anyone who drinks the stuff deserves a breakdown, Sanctions, or no Sanctions. — Hamilton Herald.

WEALTH OF THE NORTH

Another gold find is reported on the shores of Lake Athabaska. The riches of the north are great and even yet are barely tapped. — Edmonton Journal.

THE REPORTER'S PICTURE

. . . It is the same in newspaper reporting. The whole truth can not be told. There isn't time to write it. There isn't space enough in the paper to hold it, and if it could be all told the reader would grow weary before he had waded halfway through it. The newspaper, like the court, aims to get at the essential truth. The reporter selects his details and builds his picture, the things that do not matter he leaves out. He is a painter rather than a photographer. —— Vancouver Province.

YES, WE HAVE CANADIAN BOOKS

It is the habit of some of our Canadian intelligentsia, when they foregather about cocktails or coffee, to speak with something like shame of the shocking state of Canadian literature It ranks, they would have us believe with the literary production of the Laplanders; it has neither tradition nor background, little past, no present to speak of, at best a mighty uncertain future. Nobody is writing stuff that will live—outside, naturally, the ranks of those then present—and the outlook is black.

Perhaps all this is true—we should not like to get into an argument about it with this same intelligentsia—but certainly we are turning out books, even if they are not literature. The Toronto Public Library sends us a booklet of sixty-four pages listing "Books published in Canada, about Canada, as well as those written by Canadians, with imprint of 1934." In these pages there are listed, we should judge, more than 1,100 books. Forty pages deal with publications in English, twenty-four pages list the French works. They cover a vast range of subjects — philosophy, sociology, commerce, the sciences and the arts, biography, history, travel, poetry, fiction and so on — and anyone determined to persue all of them would find himself committed to three a day over the year.

This is, we submit, a lot of writing, and we should be surprised if these eleven hundred books do not contain a fair amount of what is called literature. It is hardly probable that so many men and women should aim at the mark and without exception miss it. — Ottawa Journal.

THE EMPIRE

STILL ON THE UPGRADE

Slowly, but surely, Britain is reducing her number of unemployed.

Official figures issued recently show that at August 26 there were 43,000 more insured persons at work than a month previously — 244,000 more than a year ago.

Thus the upward trend noticeable since the beginning of the year is maintained.

Since January the total number of registered unemployed has dropped by over 377,000.

The numbers of unemployed on the registers on August 26 were 1,533,259 wholly unemployed, 334,419 temporarily stopped and 80,236 normally in casual employment making a total of 1,947,964.

This was 24,977 less than the number on the registers on July 22, and 188,614 less than a year before.

The reduction during the month in the numbers of unemployed occurred chiefly in the North-Eastern and Midland divisions, where the improvement in coal mining was mainly felt.

TRINIDAD SHOWS THE WAY

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, and those responsible for medical reorganisation activity in Trinidad have reason to be gratified by the manner in which this movement has spread to other colonies in the Caribbean. Barbados, the Windward Islands, British Guiana, Jamaica — all have instituted medical service investigations of a more or less comprehensive kind which are expected to lead to important reforms. — Trinidad Guardian.

PROSPERITY COMES TO CANADA

Prosperity is reaching Canada, too. The Canadian West always held the view that dollar wheat was a paying proposition. Now, once more, they are bordering on dollar wheat At the same time the earth of Canada is not yielding wheat only. There is an immense output of nickel, copper, silver, and other precious commodities, to say nothing of the Dominion's forest wealth, which supplies the American market and a large portion of the British market also with newsprint. The British nations are showing the way to prosperity.— London Daily Express.

AUSTRALIA'S BUDGET SURPLUS

Having regard to the serious effects of the depression on Australia's economy, the recovery already achieved is the subject of justifiable self-congratulation on the part of those who have seen the country through its troubles. In his Budget speech Mr. R. G. Casey gave well founded evidence to prove the extent of the advance towards prosperity in the material sense, but he rightly laid emphasis on the great gain represented by the passing of the depression mentality. Internal adjustments inherent in the financial relations between States and Commonwealth still involve many difficult problems, but so far as the outside world is concerned the position of the country as a whole is one of growing strength. — London Financial Times.

Royal Betrothal Thrills Scotland

Attractive Brown-Haired Fiancee of Duke of Gloucester Has Strongly Marked Black Eyebrows Said to Denote Royal Stuart Stock.—Of Artistic Tastes and Abilities.

The betrothal of Lady Alice Scott, daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, to the Duke of Gloucester has given particular satisfaction to the whole of Scotland, writes a correspondent of the Glasgow Herald, but nowhere was the news received with keener pleasure than in the Borders, where the future bride and her family are so well known and esteemed.

The bride-to-be spends most of her time in the South of Scotland, and indeed is not widely known outside the Borders, where she hunts, sketches, and goes to all the local functions. One thing we are certain of is that Lady Alice will have her sister, Lady Angela, in her wedding retinue.

They have a great look of each other, with their clear fair complexions, brown hair and unexpectedly black eyebrows, strongly marked—brows which are said to denote the royal Stuart stock. Pretty Lady Burghley, tall Lady Sybil Phipps (always so graceful with her willowy figure), and indeed all five sisters (like the Duchess of York's sisters) have a strong "family look," making it difficult to say which Lady Alice resembles most — a typical Scott is the verdict.

"SCOTT GIRLS"

Though she has artistic tastes and abilities with which some of the other are not endowed, Lady Alice is very much one of the family. She has always known the joy of having sisters and brothers to share her life, a joy which members of large families take for granted, sometimes grumbling against the little annoyances and disappointments of living in a crowd, though in their hearts realising a crowd's mighty comforting in good times and bad. Being one of many also "rubs the corners off," even if you are a Duke's daughter or a King's son; you grow up with a "community spirit" very useful in every walk of life.

The "Scott girls" are always in a bunch at point-to-points, meets, and Border races, their numbers augmented by the tall and exquisitely beautiful Lady Delamere (daughter of Lord George Scott, her twin sisters (one a bride of last year), and other young people from their sporting group. Simple tweeds, hand-knit jerseys, a pull-on felt hat, and brogues are Lady Alice's racing uniform.

HER BROTHER'S SUPPORTER

But all her time has not been spent rusticating. She has travelled and she has enjoyed London at its best and gayest, though always retaining a preference for Scottish festivities. Electioneering has also come into her scope on her brother's account.

Lord Dalkeith, M.P., who has the pink cheeks and the shyness of a schoolgirl in spite of his war record, is a contemporary of the Prince of Wales. He was up at Oxford, at "The House," when the Prince was at Magdalen. Judging by the number of men—mostly — fellow-members of Buck's Club—who call him "Walter", he must be very popular. Pomopous people are seldom referred to affectionately, and one even forgets that they own Christian names. So Lord Dalkeith is not really stiff —just shy of limelight, which he leaves to his wife, who is a great beauty and was Mollie Lascelles, kinswoman of Lord Harewood.

Lord Dalkeith was in Grenadier Guards, like his uncle, Lord Francis Scott, who married one of Mary Lady Minto's handsome daughters (another connection with the royal family, as Lord Minto's mother is regularly in attendance on the Queen), and of all Lady Alice's relatives Francis Scott is most likely to capture the admiration of her soldier husband-to-be.

For Lord Francis is a great warrior—to use a grand old word — and did his duty nobly by the Brigade of Guards, returning to the trenches after wounds so severe that anyone else would have continued a most justifiable convalescence. Eventually he was crippled, and after war was over settled in Kenya.

The Duke of Gloucester loves Kenya for its sporting appeal, and Lady Alice loves it for its artistic appeal, judging by the excellent landscapes she exhibited at Walker's Galleries in Bond street last July. So as a married couple they are quite certain to revisit the colony.

ALREADY WELL ACQUAINTED

The Duke of Gloucester has been such a regular visitor to the Duke of Buccleuch's home for so many years that he's already well acquainted, as we say in the North, with his future in-laws, and they in turn are already attached to him by the affection which comes with friendship, as well as by mutual interests such as hunting, soldiering, and the simple life.

Everyone knows the Duke to be a keen soldier, a good horseman, an adequate dancer (who is not overfond of sophisticated parties — preferring a Hunt Ball to a night club), and a thoroughly good fellow in the pleasant sense of the phrase.

Until lately it was not realized that he had the same diplomatic gifts as the Prince of Wales. He seemed just the typical British soldier with a taste for sports and a sense of duty, but the Jubilee Empire tour he completed this spring proved him a man of many parts. Australians summering at home say that he was a genuine success not merely as the King's son but as himself—a simple, observant, and easily entertained guest, who fulfilled endless public engagements without sign of bore-

But we must not imagine Lady Alice's fiance is an inhuman "wooden soldier." Hasn't he a big circle of hearty men friends, including his brother-in-law-to-be, Lord William Scott, and hasn't he finally shown the good sense to fall in love with a Scots lass and plight his troth in the bonny Borders? If only they could be married in Scotland, what a great day for our country that would be! The Scotts are related to so many Scottish families that even were the wedding fixed at Westminster there would be a tremendous gathering of the Clans.

A SAD COINCIDENCE

It is interesting to recall that the Duke of Gloucester was at Eton in the same house as the tragically bereaved King of the Belgians, while Prince Paul of Serbia, now Regent in Jugoslavia (where the Duke and Duchess of Kent have been staying with him at Bled), was an Oxford contemporary of Lord Dalkeith.

Another of the Prince's generation is Lady Sybil Phipps's husband, an old Life Guard, while another Scott much in the public eye is Lord Herbert Scott, who, as chairman of Rolls-Royce, brings the family into contact with "big business."

To trace the ramifications of the Montagu - Douglas - Scott family in Scotland alone is too long a task to attempt here, but it's quite safe to affirm that one and all will give Lady Alice's husband a great welcome and feel pride in their kinswoman's good fortune and interest in the new life which opens out to her as a "Royal Highness".

They used to beat the swords into plow_shares. But now they beat the plow-shares into niblicks.

THE SLAVERY IN ETHIOPIA

Light is thrown on the question of slavery in Ethiopia by the latest Foreign Policy Association report on "Imperialist Rivalries in Ethiopia."

Slavery exists in Ethiopia. A condition of serfdom not easily distinguishable from slavery exists in British Kenya, which adjoins Ethiopia. And actual slavery continues to exist in Italian Libya, as Italy was only recently forced to admit before the League of Nations Advisory Committee of experts.

The slavery issue is always raised by the Power which at the moment hopes to annex part of Ethiopia. The charge was first brought not by Italy, but by Great Britain.

When France and Italy sponsored Ethiopia for membership in the League (the black Empire was admitted in 1923), Great Britain objected on the grounds that slavery still existed in Ethiopia. At that time the British feared that the Covenant of the League might interfere with their plans for control of the Lake Tsana region.

In 1924, in pursurance to pledges made on admission to the League, the Emporer of Ethiopia published an edict providing the death penalty for slave trading and emancipating all children born of slaves. Slavery in Ethiopia will probably be eradicated in this generation.

The reason for slavery is revealed in a passage of the Foreign Policy report: "One-half of Somaliland (under -Italian control) would repay extensive irrigation; but the natives, once freed from slavery, have been loath to work."

Fishing, farming and hunting are still free. So it is not economically necessary for the natives to work for a few pennies a day for some great Italian corporation. Italy, if it conquers Ethiopia, will remedy this. The farm land will be taken away from the peasants. Prohibitive taxes will be put on fishing and hunting. Slavery will no longer be necessary. Ethiopians will have to work or starve, and their masters will be relieved of the obligation to feed them when there is no work.

Just as in civilized Italy.

"In The Marriage Market" — Definition Of New York Debut

New York, The coming fortnight looms as a crucial period of preparation for the 1935 season of giddy whirls, heartbreak and lack of sleep for some 300 of Gotham's fortunate young women, — in short the debutante season.

The first big event of the winter "deb" season when the beauty and charm of the deb class is presented to society is the autumn ball at Tuxedo Park. From then through next January, the "debbies" will swirl along the stag lines at society's function, dash through round after round of cocktail parties and teas, serve on assorted committees, model clothes and undergo the stress of being photographed for the rotogravure pages.

One of New York's well-informed society editors defines the debutante as "a young gal in her late teens (an average of 18 or 19) whose parents feels she's of marriageable age and ought to be meeting some eligible young men. A debut is fair warning that Josie or Susie is in the market. It's a happy medium for putting her before her public, which is the stag line, composed of likely looking young men in tail coats.

Teeth

Observes the Milwaukee Journal "Novelists talk of heroines with "pearly white" teeth, but no human being ever had teeth that were white or anything like white, says the Milwaukee Journal. Examine your own against a background of white paper and you will see how true this is. More than that you will make the odd discovery that your teeth are not all the same color.

The first artificial teeth were made white, and dentists were obliged to stain them; nowadays they have no trouble of that kind for they have no fewer than 30 different shades from which to choose, and there is no tooth in the world that cannot be perfectly matched.

The variety in shape is equally wide. In all, the dentist has a choice of something like 2,000 different shapes.

Artificial teeth are made of a special porcelain. Before this was discovered they were sometimes carved out of solid ivory."

Regal Couple Will Live In Surrey

London, — The Duke of Gloucester and his bride-to-be, Lady Alice Scott, will make their first home at Camberley, Surrey, 35 miles from London.

The Duke is a major in the Hussars and was nominated to the Staff College at Camberley by the War Office recently. It is expected the Duke will join the college next January.

Just Like A Woman To Be So Practical

Manitowoc, Wis. — "Clean up your attic and basement and lessen fire danger," Mayor Arthur Schuetz told Manitowoc residents in a broadcast.

When he arrived home, Mrs. Schuetz met him with two bushel baskets and a broom, with a word that it might be wise if he followed his own advice.

"I guess we all get a little careless" he said with a grin. "My own place certainly needed attention."

Wistfulness

No longer do I feel inspired
Dear God, I'm young and very tired,
The hopes that lived in me lie crushed,
The song I would have sung is hushed.
Before my high ideals are sold,
Before my tale of life is told—
May I forget all sordid truth
And tread the carefree ways of youth.
May life hold laughter—love, perchance
Be colored with some sweet romance;
Light-heartedness—some joy supreme
Fufilment of one treasured dream.
May I have happiness to hold
Before I'm old—before I'm old!

Autumn Force

Daniel W. Smyth in the New York Sun:

This is a frosty drive that sharpens air,
So city bells may further clang the hour.
I tread on brittle glint when everywhere
The felds turn white and panes burst into flower
The wind has coasted down our thinning elms
Like unseen oceans roaring out of space,
And sudden earth is one that overwhelms
With windy beauty springing from its place!
Hill-pastures, roads and maples for whose sake
Autumn as worked with all its force and sound
Lose not this stirring hour but dare to take
The color and the wind that wheel around!

Uncle John came to visit, and before he left he gave his nephew a dollar bill.

"Now, be careful with that money, Tommy," he said. "Remember the saying, 'a fool and his money are soon parted'."

"Yes, uncle," replied Tommy, "but I want to thank you for parting with it, just the same."

MOTOR SHOW EARLY THIS YEAR

1936 Models Will Be On Display In November

Announcement has just been made by the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce that the National Motor Show will be held in Toronto November 9-16, instead of in January as in past years.

This new move by the Motor Industry has been undertaken with a view to levelling off peaks and valleys of employment in this seasonal industry.

"All manufacturers are co-operating enthusiastically in this plan," declared J. L. Stewart, General Manager of the Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce, today. "It is our belief that, by advancing the beginning of new model production from the first of the year to the fall more constant employment, spread over more months, for workers directly or indirectly dependent upon automobile manufacture will result."

New 1936 models of all makes of automobiles will be presented at the National Motor Show, and the public may be assured of a brilliant and dramatic presentation."

Canadian Exports To Japan Lower

Sharp Falling Off Since 50-Percent Surtax Went Into Effect

Tkyo.—Sharp decrease of Canadian imports into Japan since a 50 per cent. surtax was imposed on certain Canadian products under the trade protection law of July 20 is revealed by statistics published by the finance ministry. Imports listed for August represent chiefly commodities already in transit when the surtax was imposed.

The high water mark was reached in June for wheat and wood-pulp, 1,045,000 yen (currently $305,558), nd 1,170,000 yen ($352,108). The high level for lumber imports spread over the four months from February to May with an average value of 1,250,000 yen ($365,000) in each month.

In August wheat imports dropped to 260,000 yen ($76,024), pulpwood to 485,000 yen ($141,814) and lumber to 305,000 yen ($89,182). August wheat imports were the lowest of any month in years.

Countries benefiting from the decrease in Australian imports are shown to be Australia, United states, Asiatic Russia, Sweden and Norway. Imports from Australia of wheat, from the United States and Sweden of pulpwood and from the United States and Siberia of lumber showed large gains in August compared with July.

SMOKERS CAUSE THIRD OF FIRES

Hazard of Carelessly Thrown Cigarette Among Greatest Encountered

Last year early four and one-half billion cigarettes were smoked in Canada. This works out to an average of 1,250 cigarettes for every man and woman of smoking age.

The old adage: "Where there is smoke there is fire," is aptly illustrated by the cigarette, for in 1934 nearly 13,000 fires were definitely traced to the careless handling of cigarettes, these fires involving a property loss of over $2,000,000. Smokers' carelessness was responible for more fires than any other single classification, three out of every ten fires having attributed to this cause.

Canadians, in common with peoples of other countries are devoted to the little white rolls. The above statistics show this to be the case. Whether the cigarette is good for us or bad for us is not the point; we cannot blame the fires on Sir Walter Raleigh. The "smoke" is not at fault but the smoker — not the cigarettes but the habits of the man behind it. Every time a cigarette is carelessly tossed aside there is a danger of fire. A mathematician will tell you that if all the cigarettes smoked in Canada last year were placed tightly end to end they would encircle the earth at the equator nearly eight times. This is purely academic interest, but the fire hazard of 197,000 miles of cigarettes is of very real interest to Mr. and Mrs. Canadian Citizen because it hits where it hurts—right in the pocket. Fire Prevention Week serves to call attention to the fire hazard of the carelessly thrown cigarette amongst other causes of fire loss. BE CAREFUL.

Cupid On The Farm

The number of marriages and prospective marriages in Wentworth county is exciting comment in this rural area. Not for a long time have there been so many showers, such frequent publication of banns, and so many fluttering conferences over trousseaus. District news is frequently concerned with the doings of Cupid, who is shooting his arrows with speed and accuracy.

The fact is that the weddings which are causing such a bustle around the farms are a symptom of the times. Young farmers are still living up to their proverbial reputation for caution. They are not prone to take great chances like their city cousins, nor are they marrying to get on relief. They have seen a change come over agriculture. Cupid's visit to the farm is coincident with the return of prosperity.—Hamilton Spectator.

PUTTING TREES TO SLEEP

Sir W. Beach Thomas recently called in the London Spectator for information concerning induced dormancy in vegetation. While traveling in northern India one of his correspondents found that the native gardeners half exposed the roots of their roses to the air in the hot, dry season, thus checking their growth, which otherwise would wear them out. Sir William recalled that in Africa rose bushes are dug up and laid in dark places for considerable periods. Not only does this give the bushes rest, but it is asserted that it strengthens them against certain fungi. The notes on this topic brought prompt response from an authority on the subject, Ronald G Hatton, Director of the Imperial Bureau of Fruit Production, who wrote to the Spectator a letter in which he said in many parts of the British Empire "the successful establishment of commercial orchards of such temperate fruits as apples and pears is seriously hampered by the difficulty of inducing the trees to rest sufficiently to produce a sizable crop."

The Imperial Bureau of Fruit Production, which is situated at the East Mailing Research Station, Kent, is now collecting information on the general subject of artifical wintering of plants

Mr Hatton adds that in Bangalore, the capital of Mysore, in southern India, it is "confidently affirmed" that the success of apple cultivation is entirely due to induced dormancy in which exposure of the roots is practiced. He describes the procedure thus: In the months of October-November and April-May, when there is no risk of rain, the soil around the tree is removed to a distance of from two to four feet from the stem until the main lateral roots are exposed These roots are left uncovered, all water being withheld the leaves with and are removed by hand-stripping One to two weeks later a compost of well-powdered dung or artifical manures and red loam in equal proportion is packed into the excavation above the roots. If there is no rain the trees are subsequently well irrigated about twice a week. Blossom appears in a fortnight and the fruit is ripe in five months. Four weeks after the harvest the treatment is repeated for the next crop. The usual life of a tree under this treatment is under twelve years but two crops of apples are obtained every year or fourteen months.

The marvels that have been wrought by cattle breeders in increasing the weight of steps fed for market and in bringing milch cows to high productivity have attracted wide attention. Not less marvelous triumphs have been won in the vegetable world. The greens grocer of today, thanks to modern transportation and scientific treatment of seed, seed bed, plants, blooms and fruit, can offer at all seasons of the year an array of delicious foods that far surpass those which his predecessor offered only a generation ago. —New York Sun.

London Doctor Has New Theory

Doesn't Believe in Loading Child Up with Fats in Autumn

There is a most interesting new theory out about autumn feeding for young children. A Harley street (London, Eng.) doctor has expressed the opinion that there is absolutely no ground for the belief that one should start loading up a healthy young child with fats immediately the autumn begins.

His theory is that as in the spring the diet should now be light and not bulky.

His ideal diet for children of from nine months to five or six years is a whole cereal—either Scotch oatmeal, whole wheat or maize—plus plenty of milk, vegetables and fruit.

He is particularly emphatic about a proper amount of Vitamin B plus mineral salts for the child at this time of year. Vitamin B is the anti-neurotic vitamin, and is one of the most difficult to retain in cooked foods.

It is present in whole-grain cereals —if they are healthily grown and very carefully prepared and cooked, and it is also present in all vegetables, milk and eggs.

It is entirely destroyed by overcooking of vegetables and the addition of soda and some salts. A very great number of modern town children suffer from a deficiency of this vitamn.

Provided, however your cereals are whole, fresh, and lightly cooked, your vegetables are conservatively cooked and the child receives lightly cooked eggs and an abundance of fresh raw milk there is no reason whatsoever to add an extra allowance of this vitamin.

MRS. W. H. LOCKE

There passed away at her home at Irena, on Wednesday Oct. 23rd, a much respected resident of Matilda Township, in the person of Mrs. W. H. Locke, following a long period of failing health.

Deceased, a daughter of the late Oliver Smyth and his wife, Elida Marselis, was born on Jan. 3, 1867. She received her education at S.S. No. 7, Matilda, and the Morrisburg Collegiate, where she received a second-class teacher's certificate. Later she attended Ottawa Normal School, and secured a permanent certificate.

She taught school a number of years, and on July 10, 1902, married W.H. Locke, of Irena, who predeceased her by several years.

Of her family, there are only three surviving sisters, Mrs. T.E. Freeland and Mrs. A.C. Ford of Vancouver, and one brother, George Smyth, of Matilda. Several nieces and nephews as well as a large circle of friends, also mourn her loss.

The funeral, which was largely attended, was held at her late home, the service being conducted by Rev. S.T. Burman of Dundela, assisted by Rev. Mr. Adey of Williamsburg. Interment was made in the family plot in Brinston cemetery.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES AT DUNDELA

Rev. E.C. Lacey of Brinston was guest speaker at the anniversary service held last Sunday evening in Dundela United Church. The service was large'y attended, and the church was nicely decorated with autumn blooms and potted plants.

On Monday evening, a large crowd was in attendance at the supper. Following the supper, an excellent program was thoroughly enjoyed. The program consisted of several enjoyable selections contributed by the Chesterville male quartette, under the direction of Mr. P.G. Hewitt. Mrs. M.A. Epplett of Morrisburg, redered pleasing vocal solos, with Mrs. (Dr.) G.M. Gorrell accompanist. Mrs. Harvey Johnston of Hainsville rendered vocal numbers, with Mrs. Jay Tuttle at the organ. Miss Helen Latourelle of Iroquois gave several enjoyable elocution numbers. Rev. W.A. Morrison, of Aultsville, gave an address. The pastor, Rev. S.T. Burman, acted as chairman for the evening.

COMMUNITY HALL

Morrisburg, Nov. 1, 1935.

At the regular meeting of the Morrisburg Municipal Council to be held next Monday night, Nov. 4th, Councillor Jarvis proposes to move a resolution in regard to the building of a new Community Hall for Morrisburg, in view of the fact that the lease on the present town hall is about to expire the first of the year. Besides, Morrisburg certainly does need a decent town hall, being the only town which has not a fit public building to hold meetings in. Mr. Jarvis has found out that the Provincial Government will pay two-thirds of the labour cost towards relief work, also that we have the tin plate or the sheet steel company, as it was called, part of which building is cut stone, and would make a fine building for Morrisburg. Mr. Jarvis is in touch with a contractor about blue prints and plans for this building.

Let us all co-operate and, put shoulder to shoulder, get together and push this good move along on its way.

Your obedient servant,

A.M. JARVIS,
Municipal Councillor.

MATILDA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

Matilda Women's Institute were sponsors of a grand hallow'en party held in Gilson's hall, Brinston, on Saturday evening. There was a large number of masqueraders of goblins, witches and comics. The society offered liberal prizes for costumes, and Mrs. C. McMillan and Miss D. Richardson, as "Old Mr. and Mrs." won the ladies" prize; Mrs. Aubrey Harkness as a "Fisher Boy" won the gentleman's prize, and Doreen Stephenson, comedy, the children's prize. The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Johnston, Mrs. Russell Thompson and Mrs. C. E. Leacy.

There were side shows, well patronized, consisting of "house of horrors", the one and only green pig", fish pond, fortune telling, and teacup reading, and refreshment booth.

Throughout the evening the coon orchestra and Mr. B. Hutt, violinist, entertained the merry-makers, and there was step and fancy dancing. A special feature of the programme was the presentation of the drama "Greener Grass" by the Young People's Society of South Mountain. These players were Messrs O. Barclay, J. A. Johnston, E. Barclay, Mrs. W. Farrell and the Misses E. Boyd and L. Good. The play was under the direction of Mr. L. Ferrier, and was exceptionally well staged. These players were runners-up in the Ottawa valley dramatic competitions, Mr. O. Barclay gave a humorous chalk talk, illustrated by artistic crayon drawings. Mr. J. C. Strader acted as announcer during the evening.

REV. C. A. DENNIG

Many friends in this district, and members of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, will regret to learn of the death of Rev. Charles Augustus Dennig, pastor of the First Lutheran Church at Warren, Penn., and a former pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Williamsburg, twenty years ago. Rev. Dennig was born at Easton, Penn., in 1878, and ordained to the gospel ministry by the Chicago Synod in 1907 at Chicago, Illinois.

Rev. Dennig, in company with friends, attended a S.S. Convention at Lewiston, Penn., last week, and motored on to Pittsburgh, to attend a W.M.S. Convention, when he was taken seriously ill with an attack of appendicitis. He was taken to the Mercy Hospital at Pittsburgh, Pa., and before he could be operated on, Rev. Dennig passed away on Friday, October 25th.

His remains were removed to Warren, Pa., where the funeral services were held from his late residence to the First Lutheran Church at Warren, Pa. Interment was made in the Oakland Cemetery at Warren, Pa.

The late Rev. Dennig, with Mrs. Dennig, visited friends in Williamsburg in August of this year, and whle there preached to a large congregation in the Lutheran Church on Sunday, August 18th.
