Study shows there's a market for luxury, resort hotel

Effect on existing area motels marginal

The results of a feasiblity study on the construction of a resort hotel near Upper Canada Village were released on Monday. Making the announcement were, from left, Warren Adamson, and Pannell Kerr of Forster Campbell Sharp Management Consultants, Sam Ault, vice chairman of the parks commission, Barbara Pickett, of the consulting firm, parks commission chairman Don Irvine and Tourism and Recreation Minister Reuben Baetz.

UPPER CANADA VILLAGE (Staff) - Because a feasibility study indicates a resort hotel in the vicinity of Upper Canada Village will have marginal negative impact on existing hotel and motel operators in the area, the provincial government will probably go ahead with the project.

The new facility could be opened on St. Lawrence Parks Commission land, although it would be run by private enterprise, and opened as early as 1985.

Area tourist operators and municipal politicians learned the results of the study, conducted by a Toronto consulting firm, on Monday. Reuben Baetz, Ontario Minister of Tourism and Recreation, along with parks commission chairman Don Irvine and representatives of Pannell, Kerr, Forester, Campbell, Sharp, made the announcement.

Mr. Baetz emphasized that a new four-seasons resort style of hotel would not have much of an impact on area hotel and motel operators since they are not attracting the type of clientel this type of facility would cater to.

The year-long $30,000 study was commissioned to answer two questions: is there a market for such a hotel if it were located in the vicinity of Upper Canada Village, and what sort of impact would it have on existing hotel and motel operators in the area.

If the study had indicated that such resort facility would be in direct competition with existing operations, it would have been immediately scratched, the minister said.

The Ontario government doesn't want to "give to Peter by taking away from Paul."

The minister also said the government does not want to get into the hotel business itself, and plans to discuss the consultants' report with resort and hotel chain operators to find a suitable operator for the heritage-themed facility.

Although the hotel would be run by private enterprise, it would be located on five to six acres of commission-owned land, in the vicinity of the Crysler Battlefield Memorial mound on the south side of Highway 2. It would not be visible from the Village or from the highway, thus cutting down on its ability to attract transient traffic, which at present is the domain of existing operations.

The main idea behind the proposal is to attract and keep the kind of clintel that is now only passing through the area. It would be in direct competition with Western Quebec resort hotels and major downtown hotels in Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston, according to study manager Barbara Pickett.

Room rates are envisioned to be in the area of $57 a night (expressed in 1982 dollars). By the time the facility is built rates could be about $77 a night, she said.

Last year rates in the area averaged $26 a night and a survey of visitors to the region last summer indicated that only 17 per cent would be willing to pay more than $50 a night for accommodations, Miss Pickett said.

She added that a luxury hotel would capture only about five per cent of those now spending at least one night in the area.

"You will lose those people who are now looking for a full-service hotel in the area and who decide not to make the drive to Ottawa or Montreal," she said.

The hotel would offer activities throughout the four seasons to boost off-season visitor numbers to this region, Mr. Baetz said.

The consultants stated that on the basis of 100 rooms, the hotel would have a year-round occupancy rate of 72 per cent within five years, based on summer occupancy rates of 92 per cent and 60 to 70 per cent in the fall, winter and spring off-seasons.

The breakdown of the kind of visitor a resort hotel would attract shows that 58 per cent of potential guests would be tourists, both independent vacation travellers and persons in group tour and weekend packages. The rest of the hotel's business would be made up of commercial business stemming from the growing business conference market, which is now going to Western Quebec ski and non-ski resorts and to large urban hotels.

Upper Canada Village would be the major attraction for potential guests, but the parks commission also offers a championship 18-hole golf course, boating, horseback riding, swimming, snowmobiling, fishing, (both summer and winter), cross-country skiing, a marina, air strip, migratory bird sanctuary and other small historical attractions, the consultants' report notes.

In addition to these attractions, a potential operator would be encouraged to add tennis, racquetball and squash courts, an indoor-outdoor swimming pool, sailing and water skiing, exercise and games rooms and bicycling facilities, according to Warren Adamson of Pannell, Kerr, Forster, Campbell, Sharp.

Mr. Adamson added that a destination resort hotel should also have a gourmet dining room (perhaps relying on indigenous game), a large and less expensive dining room which could be partitioned off, a bar-lounge with live entertainment, a quiet bar, a large meeting room that could double as a private banquet hall, a number of smaller meeting rooms and provisions for room service.

No such facility now exists in the Morrisburg area, he added.

The consultants envision each of the hotel's 100 rooms with a fireplace, in keeping with the heritage theme, and 12 would have whirlpool baths, he said.

Parks commission chairman Don Irvine said arrangements could be made with area motel operators to have their guests use the resort hotel's facilities at reduced rates and he said the commission could be the co-ordinating body to help arrange package tours, to make use of

Winchester hospital deficit changes to surplus with extra funding

WINCHESTER (Staff) - The board of directors of Winchester District Memorial Hospital received good news last week. The hospital learned that the sum of $142,000 will be added to its 1982-83 budget by the Minister of Health.

Letters from Larry Grossman, Minister of Health and from MPP for SD&G, Osie Villeneuve, confirmed the increase in funding from the province.

Last November hospital administrator Bert Stel learned the province was allocating additional money to hospitals, and in March the province announced a province-wide 7.8 per cent increase in hospital funding.

The $142,000 more fully recognizes the hospitals 1981-82 spending level and accounts for the operation of the Intensive Care Unit, notes the hospital.

The additional money is greater than the amount expected last November by Winchester hospital. Last November the hospital had been allocated $105,800 more than its original $5,680,326 allocation. The $142,000 announced last week is an increase of another $36,200.

When hospital budgets were submitted to the province for the 1982-83 year WDMH predicted a $90,000 deficit.

But with last week's announcement the hospital will change the operational deficit to a surplus of $76,000 before building equipment depreciation, which is not fundable by the Ministry of Health. (After the application of Building Depreciation expense, the net accounting surplus stands at $21,596, including year-end inventory adjustments.

The adjustment in funding will be added to the hospital's funding base and will be reflected in funding in future years.

The province-wide allocations made to hospitals last fall to the base of hospital's funding were insufficient Mr. Stel said then.

An insufficient base was causing funding shortfalls to compound themselves, he said. If a base was insufficient one year, that base plus 11.4 per cent for inflation would again be insufficient the following year.

Factors in Winchester District Memorial Hospital deficit (as predicted by their initial budget) were inflationary chronic care costs and an as yet unsure financial footing for the hospital's coronary care unit (intensive care, explained Mr. Stel.

Chesterville PS loses program

CORNWALL (Staff) - Chesterville Public School lost its extended French program in grades 1 and 2 last week.

The SD&G Public School Board accepted a report on schools opting for late French immersion, one of which was Maple Ridge Senior Public School, effectively cancelling the extended program at last week's board meeting.

The program's future has been uncertain since the board passed a motion several months ago saying the program would go if late French immersion was implemented at Maple Ridge.

Last week the board was informed Maple Ridge had enough students and parents interested in the late French immersion program to form two classes.

The extended French program provides grades 1 and 2 students with 60 minutes of work taught in French. The late immersion program provides about 50 per cent of class work taught in French and 50 taught in English in grades 7 and 8.

Parents of students at Chesterville fought hard for the last three of four months to save the program which is working so well.

Trustee Lorne Thompson, representing the Chesterville area, brought the program back into board discussion, in an attempt to save it.

Mr. Thompson argued the program was a good one, like by both parents and pupils. He also noted grades 1 and 2 students were in the program.

The teacher at the school responsible for the program was praised by the trustee. He noted she had designed a program to combat the children's short attention spans.

Continuing the program would cost nothing extra next year, he added. The same teacher would take the grade 3 class, and materials for the course are already available.

However, trustee Roy Hastings, noted the board's French committee believed the later immersion program provides students with a better chance of bilingualism at graduation.

Allowing Chesterville, the only school now with the program, to keep it would open the doors for other schools to ask for the extended French said Mr. Hastings.

The trustees did not consider a second option offered by the board administration, that of phasing the program out. The option would have allowed students now in the program to finish in it.

Board of education budget cuts spending, projects

CORNWALL (Staff) - In attempts to respect the working taxpayer, the 1983 budget presented to the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Board of Education Tuesday night was one of cuts.

The average spending increases in both elementary and secondary panels are under the inflationary factor of nine per cent. (The elementary increase amounts to 7.86 per cent while secondary amounts to an 8.73 per cent increase).

These two figures are gleaned from an A and B form of budget presented to the trustees. The A set of figures represent cuts not as harsh as the B form but which offer a reduction from the initially suggested 11.7 and 26.9 per cent increases in elementary and secondary panels, respectively, spending.

The finance committee recommended trustees go with the B format, however. These further cuts mean cuts to board projects, consultative staffs, school budgets, drawing on working fund reserves, reductions of the director's and superintendents' budgets and the reduction by five positions in the board teacher pool.

The cuts are necessary, explained board chairman Wes Libbey, because the average wage earner has experienced severe cutbacks or level-holding in his salary during the past half of 1982. Unfortunately this will reflect into the future until the economy recovers.

While teacher salary settlements can be seen as a villain demonstrating increases of from 11.5 to 12.5 per cent. However, explained Roger Leblanc, director of education, in a pre-budget press conference Tuesday, these settlements were made before the government's restraint program, while the economy was fairly buoyant and also only served to bring SD and G teachers in to the mid-range of average provincial salaries. Previously the teachers were in the bottom one-third range.

The impact to the average taxpayer is an increase of $42.40 on a residential public supporter assessment of $5,000. On that assessment the portion of taxes levied for educational purposes will be $556.60 for 1983. (The municipal and county levies are in addition to the board's demand).

Mr. Leblanc stated although some programs have been trimmed, the budget is in line with what other boards will be presenting and is reasonable.

Among the changes the board will make to realize the spending cuts are a scaling down of work commission-owned facilities, with smaller operators.

The consultants estimate it would take up to 18 months to build the hotel. Construction would generate 400 jobs (180 man years of employment) and the hotel would employ 100 persons.

Gross revenue in the first five years of operation would be about $24-million, with all but $2-million of which would be pumped back into the local economy, the study states.

Mr. Baetz said his ministry is concerned that visitor numbers to Upper Canada Village and other parks commission sites are "plateauing off" and a new attraction is needed to bring in fresh visitors. Eighty-two per cent of visitors to the Village said in last year's survey that they spend less than one day in this area.

Miss Pickett said a resort hotel would help fill this need and would generate spin-off benefits for all those in the area involved in tourism.

The hotel itself would be a major attraction and the increased advertising and promotion it would create would attract more visotors of all types to the area. She said a good mix of accommodation rates, from campsites to luxury resorts like the heritage inn, is needed to allow an area to cater to every taste.

The hotel and motel industry is facing difficult times, while the future for resort hotels is one of considerable growth, Miss Pickett said.

Tourist demand for resort accommodation is increasing at four per cent a year and the demand for conference accommodations is growing at an annual rate of four per cent. Without a suitable destination point for these growth trends, this region will lose out completely, Miss Pickett said.

She added that 14 of the 15 package tour companies surveyed last year indicated they would be interested in booking space at the proposed hotel. Corporations, including Ottawa's booming high-tech industry, were also surveyed and expressed interest in an area conference facility, she said.

This is business that would otherwise be lost since so many of the small operators in this area can not accommodate these travellers, she said.

The survey also recommends that the Village be kept open later at night and that the visitor season be lengthened. Other night-time attractions are also needed in the area.

Miss Pickett said market studies indicate Eastern Ontario could support two such resort hotel complexes and she expects that another will come "on-line" in another part of the region by the time the Upper Canada Village site is ready for occupancy.

"We're bullish on Eastern Ontario," she said.

E. Ontario can expect more dollars

MORRISBURG (Staff) - With organizations like the Seaway Valley Tourist Council (SVTC) working together with other tourism bodies eastern Ontario can expect to get a "bigger share of a growing pie" of world wide tourism.

Speaking at the annual dinner meeting of the SVTC here last week Bill Elliott, former manager of the Eastern Ontario Travel Association (EOTA), told a gathering of 65 councillors and tourism operators, that in 1990 worldwide tourism is expected to generate $120-billion annually.

In 1982, he said, tourism revenues in Eastern Ontario increased at the rate of between 18 and 20 per cent and last year accounted for more than $1-billion.

"No region in North America is better situated to take advantage of tourism. You have Montreal on one side of you, Toronto on the other. The natural drawing power of Ottawa and more than 100-million people living immediately south of you," he said.

Mr. Elliott, who retired from the EOTA March 31, stressed that co-operation is one of the keys to success, saying tourism development groups like the SVTC must continue to work with their umbrella organizations like the EOTA and co-operate with the provincial government.

An example of the benefits of this pooling of resources is the EOTA's $100,000 co-operative advertising program in which the SVTC is participating. Full-page advertisements designed to draw more visitors to Eastern Ontario are appearing in daily newspapers in Toronto, Montreal and American cities and already responses are pouring in to the EOTA's office in Lansdowne, Mr. Elliott said.

Tourism is a "people industry" and although the co-op advertising program is doing its part in getting visitors to the region, individual operators must continue to do their part, he said.

"The Seaway Valley Tourist Council made a policy decision several years ago to service the people while they are here and the literally hundreds of thousands of people who travel through the Seaway Valley are treated like friends. This happens in places like Prescott, Finch, Avonmore, Cardinal and Morrisburg and there is no better advertising than word of mouth," Mr. Elliott said.

This attitude has helped buttress the provincial "We Treat You Royally" campaign and, combined with the increased co-operation now being demonstrated in the industry, has helped make tourism Ontario's number one industry, Mr. Elliott said.

He gave as an example of tourism's potential the food service industry, "which is just one part of tourism". Last year the industry accounted for $15-billion and provided 600,000 jobs in Canada.

"Compare General Motors to tourism and it's small in comparison. We are number one and we have the potential, by working together, to become even larger. If just a small segment can generate $15-billion and 600,000 jobs, think of what we can do.

"Our problem is that we have not been vocal enough and we have not worked together as much as we should have."

But the value of co-operation and the benefits of working together are being learned by other Eastern Ontario travel groups.

Public School Board abolishes three administrative positions

CORNWALL (Staff) - The SD&G Public School Board has hired a new superintendent of education to fill a new position with the board administration.

James W. Dilamater of Woodstock, Ontario joined the four other superintendents, J.J. Comtois, Lorne Lawson, Ken MacLennan and Roger Davidson last fall.

As a result of the new position three posts of assistant to the superintendent were abolished.

Several years ago there were six superintendents, explained assistant to the director of education, John Beveridge.

Two superintendents retired leaving four rather thinly spread. To aid them, principals were taken on as assistants to the superintendents. The principals were also then receiving professional development, in the two year part-time positions.

Schools whose principals became assistants to superintendents then received vice principals to compensate.

In looking at the situation, said Mr. Beveridge, the board found the arrangement costly.

As a result one superintendent was hired, and the three positions of assistants to superintendents were abolished.

Chairman of the board, Wes Libbey, noted the move was aimed at providing continuity for elementary schools; instead of having assistants coming and going one superintendent will be there.

The board will offer its principals professional development in other ways, including consulting and coordinating.

Superintendent Roger Davidson will be leaving his contracted position when Rosaire Leger returns to his post as director of education in September. Roger Leblanc will leave his temporary post as director and return to superintendent.

At this time one secondary and two elementary school principals have been working as assistants to the superintendent, Bill Roddy of CCVS, Grant Edwards of Memorial Park, and Ivan St. John of Elma.

Happy Face registration kicks off tenth year

WINCHESTER (Special) - The Happy Face Nursery School will kick off the tenth busy year of serving pre-schoolers and their parents in Dundas County with an annual registration May 9.

Nancy Bowman, a teacher for nine years, is returning in September after taking a year off to complete work on her early childhood education certificate.

The school, which operates from the basement of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Winchester, has room for 15 children each in its morning and afternoon classes on Tuesdays, Wednesday and Thursdays.

President Linda Schwerdtfeger said the school will continue to strive for the balance between play and learning that most appeals to the needs of pre-school-age children.

She said the involvement of parents has made the school a success. In addition to paying all the school's costs, parents are involved in the daily school program, in organizing field trips for children and in running active fund-raising campaigns.

It is these fund-raising events that have helped keep tuition fees among the lowest in Eastern Ontario. A three-day weekly enrolment will cost $35 per month and a two-day enrolment will cost $27 per month.

Parents will have the choice of either the morning sessions of 9 to 11:30am or the afternoon sessions of 1 to 3:30pm.

Mrs. Schwerdtfeger urged parents to come out to the registration day programs at the school to get answers to any questions they might have. The registration is May 9 at 9:30 to 10:30am, 1:30 to 2:30pm and 7:30 to 8:30pm.

The school has operated at full enrolment in some sessions for several years so a prompt decision is recommended. There is a $10 non-refundable fee on registration.

The program is open to children who will be toilet-trained by September and who will turn three years of age by Dec. 31, 1983.

be effected at less cost than decreased by a total of $1,800.

The utilization of working fund reserves does not indicate the board is 'cashing in its bonds' as it would to the average ratepayer, explained Mr. Libbey. Those funds are specifically allocated as working funds in the case they are required to promote cash flow efficiency.

In addition to cuts at the school levels, on both secondary and elementary panels the director of education and superintendents' budgets will be initially planned, consultative staff will be cut and school budgets will take a two per cent cut.

A belated happy birthday to Mary Ann Reynolds whose birthday took place May 1. Coming birthdays include May 5, Ron Lynch, Nelly Roosendaal and Sylvia Grose; on May 6, Rotarian Jack Cross. To all, our best wishes for many more. Jim and Anne Sullivan celebrated their wedding anniversary May 2; our congratulations and best wishes to you both, may you also share many more. Finally Nick Nixon will celebrate his birthday May 11 but Nick says he won't celebrate this, his 39th.

Monday's meeting was cut short due to the weather warnings of tornadoes. However we still had a condensed talk by the local veterinarian, Brian Kennedy. It was unanimously agreed (including Brian) that he would return at a later date. He had just gone far enough in his talk to whet the appetite and questions were getting more frequent when the storm hit and the meeting adjourned. Ultimately the storm passed on and the wind settled down much to the relief of everyone.

I'm informed that the Cancer campaign is running slightly behind last year at this time. Please, give some thought to this and if you haven't helped; now is the time to come forward and give.

When driving remember the Little Ones; their whole life is ahead of them. Don't write them off through negligence on your part.

Have you collected your pledges for the walk-a-thon on May 14th or are you like most of us doing the pledging? What ever! We need your participation in this annual Rotary fund raising event. If you walk, walk tall; if you pledge; pledge big.

Have a good Rotary week.

More than 500 head to be sold

C.C. Morrow, P. Ag., Ministry of Agriculture and Food,

Entries are coming in for the first spring stocker sale sponsored by Eastern Ontario Stocker and Feeder Sales Association. This sale will be held on Mon., May 9th at 1pm on the premises of Galetta Livestock Sales at Galetta, about 45kms. west of Ottawa, just off Highway 17.

Many cow-calf beef producers will not be able to decide until close to the sale what numbers of cattle may be delivered for the sale. However, directors of the Association, which has been successfully sponsoring stocker and feeder sales since 1976 would like to have consignments made well before sale day. Nevertheless, some cattle will be consigned up to sale day.

As was the case with the November 22nd sale last fall, cattle will be delivered to Galetta Sales barn either on Sun., noon to 6pm or on Monday, Sale Day, 7am to 12 noon. All cattle will be sold in lots of one consignor's cattle and there will be no comingling of different owners' cattle. The minimum lot size is five head per owner.

It is expected that well over 500 head will be sold. The minimum set for the sale is 300 and up to 1000 head will be taken and will be accepted on a first-come first-served basis. Calves weighing less than 350 lbs. will not be accepted.

Consignors are encouraged to precondition their calves as much as possible. A three year study at Iowa State University has demonstrated that fully preconditioned calves on trials gained an average of 9.8 lbs. during the first seven days in feedlots compared with a loss of 15.9 lbs. for those sold directly from dams. If calves are dewormed, implanted, castrated, dehorned, injected for disease, trained to eat hay and grain, and such like, this information should be available at sale time.

Directors are expecting good demand in a firming cattle market as some will go to feedlots and many farmers are wanting stockers to put on grass shortly.

A stitch in time needs more hands

Hana Slavik, knitter par excellence, is hoping to share her craft with other enthusiasts. The market for Mrs. Slavik's distinctive designs has expanded and she is knitting furiously to keep up with demand.

(Staff) - With experience as a draftsman, darkroom technician, organic gardener and world traveller, what is Hana Slavik now doing to keep busy and make money? Knitting. Her business keeps her so busy she would like other knitters to join her.

To keep up with the demand for her sweaters and other children's designs, Hana is in the market for neat knitters to join her forces; the demand for well finished handmade garments has just increased with a recently obtained contract with a wholesale firm.

The final details are important to Hana who was taught to knit and sew in her native Czechoslovakia along with all the other primary students. The fabric jumpers and bloomers are partially lined and seams are bound; sweater collars are begun and ended on exact marks - quality is her hallmark.

The future of these well-made, neat colorful garments is bright. The firm, with whom she recently contracted, attempted to have designs manufactured and were forced by consumer demand to return to handmade items.

The European influence is apparent in Hana's work. Tailored children's jumpers, high Bavarian collared sweaters and vibrant color combinations are among the distinguishing traits of Hana's creations.

She laughed, remembering the customers at craft shows and the co-operative of which she is a member who ask what pattern number she used or how many stitches. Since these garments are all her own creations, there is no conventional pattern and because of the manner in which Hana knits there is no set number of stitches.

Instead, she constructs the garments to cardboard patterns which she has previously designed. Her potential knitters are often intimidated by the patterns and seem reluctant to try her system, but she assures them it is the easiest (and once you're onto it, the only) way to knit.

This ensures each sweater that should be size five, is indeed size five. Most knitters have their own particular tension or method and from a conventional pattern a garment can vary in size considerably. With the templates the cast on stitches needn't be strictly adhered to, explained Hana.

Wools and cottons are the main materials with which Hana works. She explained natural fibres breathe well and in sweaters especially, can be shaped and changed slightly after finishing while polyester retains the exact shape to which it was knit.

Another factor is that natural fibres resist soiling better than synthetics. A wool sweater can sometimes be worn up to a year without cleaning. And, she chuckled, when you can buy a polyester sweater at the store, why bother taking the time and effort to knit one. A handmade garment is special and the material should be, too.

This blossoming business was not always Hana's livelihood. Born and raised in Czechoslovakia, Hana studied social work in Prague but she and her husband Karel left the country very soon after graduation. South Africa became the young couple's first home. They left to immigrate to Canada, living in Vancouver, then Toronto and in search of affordable farmland, in the Ottawa Valley.

When the farm was purchased (near Berwick) jobs were next on the list and when Karel was hired at Nestle the family moved to Chesterville.

It was here that Nicola was born and that Hana began almost compulsively crafting little outfits. Friend and fellow craftsperson Janet Whittam encouraged Hana first to join the Nepean Craft Show and later Snapdragon, a co-operative store in Ottawa where her designs are now selling well.

While Hana keeps her fingers busy with knitting, they will soon be busy rocking another cradle and she would like her small army of knitters to increase to keep her product on the markets.

In Memoriams

IN MEMORIAM

STEEN — In fond and loving memory of a beloved husband, father and grandfather, Henry Steen, who passed away May 7, 1951.

We often sit and think of him
When we are all alone
Of all the things he did for us
To make a happy home.
But memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Like ivy on the withered oak
When other things decay
Our love for him will always be green
And never fade away.

Always remembered by
Wife Alice,
Daughters, Eileen and Sadie and Granddaughter Beth

IN MEMORIAM

CASS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, George Cass, who passed away May 8, 1965.

May the winds of heaven blow softly
On a quiet and peaceful spot
Where our dear father lies sleeping
And will never be forgot.

Marvellous marketeers

NDDHS students have been making a habit of sweeping the SD and G contests sponsored by the Ontario Business Educators Association. This year is no different. In the marketing division the school took all the top honors for a product manual which describes what takes place from production to a successful sale. Winners are, left to right, Joanne Casselman, Nancy Sherwood, Debra Woods, Neil Mesman, Rhonda St. Pierre and Greg McKibbin.

SVTC gets grant in time of need

MORRISBURG (Staff) - A $40,000 grant from the federal government puts the Seaway Valley Tourist Association's (SVTC) budget over the $100,000 mark for the first time ever.

Stormont-Dundas MP Ed Lumley announced the New Employment Expansion and Development (NEED) grant, and SVTC president Ian MacIntosh of Lancaster made it public at the organization's annual dinner meeting here last week.

The grant will allow the tourist council to employ five tourist counsellors, who will work a total of 150 weeks. The grant will also allow the council to staff its newly acquired tourist information centre at the entranceway to the Long Sault Parkway. The facility was recently handed over to the council on a trial basis by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission.

Heart Answers

WHAT IS CHOLESTEROL?

Cholesterol is a fatty substance found in animal tissue. Primary sources of cholesterol in the Canadian diet are fatty meats, egg yolks, and whole milk dairy products. Cholesterol is essential for certain body processes, but the amount the body manufactures is sufficient for these needs. High levels of cholesterol in the bloodstream are associated with a higher risk of heart disease and stroke. This risk can be reduced by adopting an eating pattern moderate in cholesterol-containing foods and saturated (animal) fats, which can increase the cholesterol level in the blood. Contact your local Ontario Heart Foundation for more information.

Garden Club visits greenhouses

by Linda Streng

The second meeting of the Dundas Garden Club was held on April 18.

Members visited Gary Southin's greenhouses in Williamsburg. He took the members on a tour of each of his nine greenhouses and explained how he owns each one of them.

Each greenhouse is set up to accommodate its own particular type of plant. Gary and his daughter work in the greenhouses every day and make sure everything is well taken care of.

After going through his storage building we went back to the first greenhouse for refreshments while Gary answered questions.

Record Recipes

by Chris Brown

As I am wont to do, I have taken two perfectly good recipes and made another out of them. This is out of no disrespect for either of the two originals, just a curious nature.

The originals belong to Record editor Mary MacDonald and a former co-parent at the Happy Face Nursery School, Elaine Freeland. I had always used Elaine's recipe for carrot cake until Mary's came along and I tried it. Now the two have been blended and the pan shape changed to make a slightly more formal dessert cake.

The original recipes call for a round and loaf pan, respectively. I have moved mine to a Bundt pan (if for no other reason than to give it some use!)

CARROT CAKE

1 2-3 (two-thirds) cup flour
1 cup sugar (white)
½ tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. nutmeg
1 tsp. cinnamon
3 eggs
¾ cup vegetable oil
2 cups grated carrots
½ cup walnuts
1 tsp. vanilla

Mix the dry ingredients and make a well in the centre. Add the eggs, oil and vanilla and blend. Stir in gently the carrots and walnuts. Bake at 350F for 50 minutes in a Bundt pan and let cool with the door open. Suspend the cake in the pan and it will drop out onto a cooling rack.

Make an ordinary butter icing substituting an equal amount of cream cheese for butter. Usually half a package of cream cheese is more than plenty. When the cake has cooled, ice it including the centre of the tube. Because of the vegetable oil this cake is moist and keeps well. (If you can keep hungry fingers away long enough to store it!)

Rotarians urge walk, pledge big!

(Staff) - The Rotary Walk-a-thon attracts young and old alike to its annual fund-raising trek. One of tender months who saw the course last year was Joanne Saunders' son Will who completed half the walk from a baby carriage his mother pushed.

Rotarians hope the community will rally to the starting line since the event funds many local projects as well as fulfilling their commitment to Rotel (made up of the words Rotary and hotel) which is being constructed on the grounds of the Riverside Hospital.

South Ottawa Rotary Club is spearheading the project and Chesterville's members have pledged $1,000 toward the cause. Rotel will provide housing for families of out of town patients in the Riverside and National Defense Medical Centre.

Among the walkers at this year's Sat., May 14 event will be Ernie Calcutt, a member of radio station CFRA staff. The station was approached in an attempt to gain media coverage, said publicity chairman Lloyd Grose and were told Mr. Calcutt, who is on the board of directors of Rotel, would walk.

Rotarians have set a $2,000 target for their walk-a-thon in an effort to fulfill increased commitments, continued Mr. Grose. This exceeds other years' totals by approximately $200.

Both elementary schools and NDDHS have been approached to encourage students to take part in the walk said Mr. Grose. As well, a pre-walk rally has been scheduled for Wed., May 11 at 6:30pm in the Drop-In Centre. In addition to a pep talk, participants will be advised which areas have been canvassed for pledges.

As in other years, the walk will be 10 miles commencing between 8am and 10am at the Chesterville Drop-In Centre. The route follows the north side of the South Nation River out of town, crosses the river at the Nation Valley Bridge and returns to Chesterville via the south side of the river, back to the Drop-In Centre.

Mr. Grose counselled would-be walkers to take care in their dress this year. The changeable weather could well mean a walk that began in rain could require sunhats of participants to prevent sunstroke.

Proper footwear is essential, he added. Of the 10 mile route probably eight are on gravel roads, causing wear. Sandals and rubberboots are definitely out!

Rotary members will patrol the route to keep an eye on weary walkers and if need be, retire them, said Mr. Grose. As other years, coffee, juice and water will be available to refresh participants at the four and seven-mile checkpoints and at the finish line.

AUDITOR'S REPORT

To the Members of Council, Inhabitants and Ratepayers of the Corporation of the Township of Finch

We have examined the balance sheet of the Corporation of the Township of Finch as at December 31, 1982 and the statements of revenue and expenditure, capital operations, and the statement of continuity and analysis of year end position of the reserve and reserve funds for the year then ended. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards and accordingly included such tests and other procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. Three schools opt for late immersion

CORNWALL (Staff) - Three schools in SD&G have opted for the late French immersion program, the United Counties Public School Board learned last week.

A report to the elementary panel of the board showed Maple Ridge Senior Public School, Central Public School and Viscount Alexander Public School have interest and necessary enrolment to provide the program next year.

Late immersion is half the student's courses taught in French and the other half in English.

Both Roxmore and Lancaster Township public schools have shown interest in the program but don't have the necessary enrolment. The program will be postponed for a year while board officials study the possibility of twinning schools.

Morrisburg, Laggan and Rothwell-Osnabruck schools rejected the program for now. Votes on the program at Maxville and Iroquois won't be made public for another month.

Schools opting for the program usually keep it, noted director of education, Roger Leblanc.

The board guarantees strong English programs will be continued in those schools with late French immersion.

The Editor's Notebook

It's a shame

It's a shame. Chesterville Public School lost its extended French program last week because another French program, late immersion, was made possible.

It's a shame that an education program which was such as success was cut.

The SD&G school board cut the program for the next school year because of an earlier board motion. The motion had the extended program cut if the late immersion program became a reality.

But there is a bright spot in what seems to be a dark moment.

Chesterville Public School parents showed a sense of unity and co-operation among themselves, and with both school and board officials that can only be seen as a victory.

Chesterville parents conducted themselves in a truly professional manner throughout the entire proceedings regarding the future of the extended program.

When superintendent of education, Jean Comtois met with parents to discuss the program, they made all their points firmly and clearly. The issue, and only the one issue, was discussed.

Although this one battle has been lost (thus far) Chesterville residents know when the time comes for a battle to influence the educational system in their own community the people in the area are willing to fight, to speak out.

The committment to the cause of the extended program, shown by the parents says a lot for the community. - mary macdonald -

So important

The importance of retaining the quality of Ontario's health care system has become quite clear in the past few years.

When the media reports the various government cutbacks to hospitals, and doctors it doesn't carry the same weight as when a patient is actually sick in hospital.

Experiencing the cutbacks is certainly different from hearing about them.

Most Ontarians have, in the past taken for granted the provincial health care system and its complete coverage.

People have become accustomed to going to the doctor when they feel ill, seldom considering the cost of having a trained physician care for them, as well as all the support care system.

But a tight economy may be making the real cost of such health benefits extremely clear. When the economy produced lots of money for everyone the health care system provided what most people felt they deserved.

Good health is such an important element in life, how could anyone dream of allowing another human being to become ill because they didn't have the finances to prevent it, or cure the illness?

Of course, the value of good health has not fallen. Instead, we are only now realzing the real cost of good health. The weak economy has forced most Canadians to place the satisfaction of their needs on a priority list.

Health care is expensive. But, even with rising costs, its true value is becoming more and more apparent.

We must protect it. - mary macdonald -

National Physical Activity Week

Don't Just Think About It Do it!

PARTICIPaction — the Canadian movement for personal fitness — is very happy to join with Fitness Canada and many of the nation's leading amateur sport and fitness organizations to launch the first National Physical Activity Week (NPAW), May, 1983.

PARTICIPaction's primary contribution to NPAW will be in the area of promotion, through its regular, on-going public service advertising campaigns.

We believe NPAW is a great idea and in order to make it a success, we're doing our best to ensure that every Canadian knows about the Week and is prepared for the many activities offered in the local community.

One television and two radio public service announcements, produced in both French and English, are being prepared now as the cornerstone of PARTICIPaction's NPAW campaign. These materials will be completed and distributed to radio and television stations across Canada in the new year.

National Physical Activity Week aims to involve 10,000,000 Canadians in a national celebration of physical activity. We know a little bit about these people — courtesy of PARTICIPaction's recent national, independent research study".*

For example, we know that:

- 37 per cent of all Canadians engage in some kind of physical activity two to three times a week, which compares with only 5 per cent when PARTICIPaction began 10 years ago.
- 35 per cent of Canadians are active once a week on an irregular basis in activities like — walking, cycling, tennis and swimming.

One of the major findings discloses an increase in the number of blue-collar workers who are exercising, a development which closes the gap with their white-collar colleagues. Also, lower socio-economic groups are now quickly catching up to the interest in fitness demonstrated by higher socio-economic groups.

Another encouraging part of this research indicates that among those Canadians who know of PARTICIPaction, 85 per cent believe that our campaign "has caused Canadians to become more active physically". It is with this knowledge that PARTICIPaction has devoted part of its 1983 campaign to support the efforts of National Physical Activity Week.

PARTICIPaction's public service campaign has been very successful over the years for a variety of reasons: a light-hearted and positive approach, imaginative programming and award-winning spots rivalling the industry's best, have each contributed to PARTICIPaction's impact on the Canadian public.

But, there is another side to PARTICIPaction's success. Although not widely recognized, this other dimension is of equal value. The tremendous effort spent by PARTICIPaction to maintain personal contacts with all aspects of the media brings untold dividends.

A significant part of PARTICIPaction's small professional staff consists of two media specialists who travel across Canada visiting radio and television stations, newspapers and magazines on a regular basis. Over the years, they have maintained the personal contacts which have been so important to the success of the public service campaign.

And so PARTICIPaction's second major contribution to National Physical Activity Week will be the promotion of specific activities by participating groups during the visits of media staff in cities across Canada.

A tentative schedule for this program has been established and the timetable is outlined below. This schedule, though subject to change, gives a good outline of our intentions for January through May, 1983. The following cities will be visited prior to March, 1983:

Vancouver, Victoria, Montreal, Ottawa, Calgary, Halifax, Toronto, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon.

The following cities will be visited prior to May 15, 1982:

Quebec City, Chilliwack, Medicine Hat, Sudbury, Lethbridge, Prince George, Kamloops, Grande Prairie, Lloydminster, Waterloo, Stratford, Port Colborne, Owen Sound, Peterborough, Okanagan District.

PARTICIPaction staff will endeavour to talk about specific NPAW events during these visits and national associations involved in NPAW activities have submitted their plans for inclusion. Radio and television stations will be one of the major targets during these visits and an information package will be left behind at each outlet. PARTICIPaction staff will make good use of Fitness Canada's Site Listing (see cover) in mapping out final itineraries, and those interested in plugging into this opportunity for local promotion should be sure to list their activities with the Coordinator for National Physical Activity Week.*

PARTICIPaction will be a major contributor to the success of National Physical Activity Week. Through its media network, PARTICIPaction hopes to encourage the involvement of as many Canadians as possible, in campaign activities. Working in co-operation with the many others associated with this eventful Week, PARTICIPaction will strive to make it a memorable and long-lasting celebration for Canadians across the country.

by Wyn Thompson

Nobody asked me but...I remember the Family Herald, I said to no one in particular as I lay in my warm bed listening to H. Gordon Green reminisce on his many years of involvement with the Family Herald.

I recalled my friendship with Joy Guild, Women's Editor, and my sadness at her death. For I was one of the many hundreds of farm writers and consultants the Family Herald took under its wing.

I recalled the demise of this 100-year old magazine which was as traditionally Canadian as apple pie and cheddar cheese. I reviewed sentiments which I find I can not adequately express to this day.

I got out of bed and pattered bare-foot to the office to get the final issue of the Family Herald. There is on the wall in that office a fond reminder of the Family Herald and my small involvement with this Bible of the rural home.

There is something awesome in the passing of a paper that measured more than the life span of a man. It measured the birth and growth and death of his dreams. It did indeed. Each had their season and both had their end.

The issue was dated September 26, 1968-100th year, No. 16 - Ten Cents. The cover was particularly appropriate - an abandoned farm scene. Rurally, as well as urbanly, the old order from time to time changes. And between these covers for 100 years the changes had been monitored and ruralites assisted during the transition.

About the time of its demise many and varied areas experienced a population explosion. Different magazines surfaced in an attempt to fill the void for the abandoned farms and rural lands were bought up by city folk wishing to return to the land.

A new and yet not so new breed now inhabits the concession roads, and I have a notion that they too would race to the mail box each Wednesday to collect the Family Herald.

For within these pages were outstanding agricultural articles on animal husbandry, the wise use of our natural resources, the weeks news in capsule form, editorial comment, weekly market reports, information services, weather forecasts, fiction, advice on antique collecting, a women's section, a music page, the Juniper Junction comic strip, the children's department, the inspirational section, book reviews, child and animal behavioral advice not necessarily in that order, and a large classified section.

But my fondest memories centre around the serials. It was yesterday, or the day before yesterday, that my Grannie must have read them aloud to me. There was no book store in our village and the children's library in the church and school was rather limited for an avid reader.

My Grannie introduced me to the printed word and the outside world through the pages of the Family Herald. My grandfather relied for his cultural sustenance, on the Pilgrim's Progress and the Holy Bible. Neither of which were particular favourites of my Grannie's. "Some things are better taken in small doses," she'd laugh as we left Grandpa to his books and escaped to her magnificent garden of herbs and flowers and vegetables.

The Family Herald bridged the distance between town and country. Like the Women's Institute, the Farm Forum, the rural church, the one-room school, the Family Herald moulded the character of the founding peoples of our countryside. A people the text books now immortalize.

As I leaf through it's pages I see two pages devoted to ethnic cooking which some young people today feel they invented. I read the recipes for "Ukranian Liver Casserole", Scandinavian Rodkel Red Cabbage , Sweet and Sour," and "Italian Meat Balls (Polpette)."

The old countryside is gone. A sprawling new rural suburbia has taken its place, but the countryside is alive and well. Soil conservation is once again uppermost in people's minds as, this winter, we are more familiar with soil than snow.

A good commonsense article from the Family Herald on the subject would do more, perhaps, to set our feet on the right path than all the seminars being set up in the many and varied areas at massive costs to the tax-payers. But then the old order changeth!

Yes, the Family Herald has had a successor or two but none yet seems to have been able to adequately address the many facets of country living. And for TEN CENTS yet!

Talk about timely topics? "Can we afford a livestock industry?" Well Canada Packers...? "The changing role of Farm Credit" "How to make a profit from Waste Disposal." And so on.

If it were W[illegible]esday April 20, 1968, I'd be scu[illegible]ing to the mailbox to secure my issue of the Family Herald so that I could check the 3-month Weather Outlook provided by Weather Consultants of Canada. For today Wednesday, April 20, 1983 it is weird and wacky. Four inches of snow lies on the ground and more coming.

Those who read this little homily and then come into South Gower will not find in this still-lovely township what I found in it when I came to it so many clock ticks ago. A way of life has vanished never to return and with it the Family Herald. A scale of values has vanished and is replaced by one which while it seems good and sensible to us today would not yesterday have been mixed very willingly with his barnyard manure by my old friend and neighbour Sam.

I miss them both. My "larnin" as Sam used to say, would not have been complete without them. To them once again I say "Hail and farewell."

A BROKEN CIGARETTE IS A LITTLE FREEDOM GAINED.

Painting must be fitted into mother's busy life

(Staff) - Kelly Dean says she has little time to paint although she loves to; small wonder - Kelly is the mother of three, including baby Brennan who can still be trusted to take an afternoon nap.

Jennifer and Matthew, a little older than Brennan, can't be counted on quite the same and Kelly has to fit her painting (both oil and watercolor) in around their schedule and the availability of husband Gary for babysitting detail.

Aside from the distraction of caring for the children while she is painting, it isn't feasible from the point of view of the potential dangers to them, says Kelly. The paints sometimes contain toxic chemicals and as well accidents such as a palette falling on young Jennifer's head have happened!

A schedule has been arranged with Gary's help, however and Kelly's work is hung in The Book Place, at Winchester. Several pieces have been sold and with her demanding life, she tends to only replace rather than add to the collection.

A light and airy living room doubles as a studio at the Deans' Armstrong Place home. With her easel backlit by the picture window, Kelly sits in a comfortable pine arm chair with her palette at her side, on the coffee table.

Because she cannot sit for hours in the field, Kelly uses a 35mm Kodak camera to capture a scene and lighting for later work at home. She has a file of snaps that are apt to have a tree removed from them or an out-of-place car erased.

Kelly notes quickly she doesn't use artistic licence in making changes in shadow or lighting; she doesn't feel qualified to do that . But obstructionary trees or extraneous details can be quietly forgotten.

Painting, to Kelly, is more than just an art form. It is a means of reaffirming her self worth.

'Rewarding' is the word she feels says it best.

The fact that others appreciate her work, that they feel it is good enough to pay money for, somehow makes it valuable, she explained.

An encouraging high school art teacher started Kelly painting. While in high school she practised her craft often but the demands of university (Guelph in Food Technology) saw her devotion slip.

She and her husband moved to Chesterville soon after graduation when Gary got a job with nearby Ault Foods. The demands of making their house into a home combined with the needs of then-baby Jennifer acted together to keep Kelly from her easel.

Friend and to some extent mentor, Joanne Duckworth, edged Kelly back to her canvasses about two years ago. She also encouraged Kelly to branch out and try watercolors. (Kelly had previously only worked in oils).

Joanne held workshops and provided moral support, recalls Kelly. She explained she rejoiced in the fact a watercolor could be painted so much more quickly than an oil only to be reminded by Joanne that factor also presents one of the detriments of water colors: the artist has very little time to get a scene right.

Oil paints take longer to dry, explained Kelly and therefore an oil painting can require up to a week with waits between colors.

That wait between colors and the slow-drying nature of oils combine to provide a delay in her painting that not every artist must deal with. An eager and curious hand recently explored one of Kelly's oil canvasses and little fingerprints are somewhere underneath a coat of paint on one of her paintings.

Her comfy pine easy chair pulled up to a window front easel are Kelly Dean's studio; photographs bring the original scene back for her many months after it was captured. Co-operation with her husband, Gary is elemental in being able to fit both oil and watercolor painting into her life as homemaker and mother of three.

Timothy Christian School authorizes new kindergarten

(Special) - About 95 members and supporters of the Timothy Christian School (TCS) Society of Williamsburg met in the school auditorium Tuesday evening, April 26 for their spring membership meeting.

The new operating budget of about $204,000 for the coming school year was presented and approved.

The principal, James Kooistra, reported that the four teachers, with some part-time assistants, had been extremely busy during the current school year with 115 pupils in 8 grades. He was pleased that there are presently 61 families sending their children to TCS, which shows a rising interest and desire for Christian education. He reported the Board recommended hiring one more full-time teacher for the coming year, and added that an extra classroom would be beneficial in accommodating more students.

Henry Zandbergen and Arie Geurkink were elected as new Board members and John DeJong was re-elected to another 3 year term.

The main item for discussion on the agenda was the proposal to add a kindergarten class in the fall of 1983. The financial aspect kept some members from supporting this proposal, as the school is almost entirely dependent upon tuition fees and donations from its supporters.

Those in favour of the proposal stressed the importance of the grade one class having the same kindergarten background, rather than coming from many different schools. In addition to having a Christ-centred approach to learning, the five year old children would adjust more easily to school if they could be with their older brothers or sisters.

After much discussion, a motion was made, which carried by a clear majority, to open a kindergarten in September 1983 and to immediately undertake plans to establish a permanent location. Although the kindergarten will temporarily be held in the gym, immediate construction of a permanent building was favoured as the school has received approval for a government grant this year to cover all of the labour costs involved. No doubt the Board and the Building committee will enter a busy time of planning and possibly constructing a 2-room addition in the very near future.

The evening concluded with a few more questions from parents, and a prayer of thanksgiving, seeking God's direction and provision in these new endeavours.

Nursery times

When students in Carl Ward's grade 13 sociology class agreed to host a day nursery they might not have realized how exhausting their charges would be. The teens have gone home each day knowing they had worked with children according to Mr. Ward but both young and old students enjoyed the week of afternoons. The family life class devised experiments to determine the children's motor and perceptual capabilities including this activity board being explored by Robbie Graham. Zippers, buttons and velcro are among the fine motor skills tested; Kim Beazer is keeping an eye on Robbie. record photo - brown

S-D elect delegates

CORNWALL (Staff) - A slate of seven uncommited delegates will represent Stormont-Dundas at the Progressive Conservative June leadership convention.

Jim Bredin and Doug Grenkie, past federal candidate and president of the riding association, respectively, justify their non-commitment by the probability of having to entertain several candidates in the riding before the convention.

The past federal candidate attends the convention as a matter of precedent while the riding association members are at liberty to appoint the president before elections begin.

Of the four delegates allocated the senior association, two were occupied by appointments while Fern Guindon, a former member of Parliament for Stormont-Dundas and Sam Ault were elected to the others.

Marie Bush, selected by the Women's Association earlier in the month, admitted to favoring Joe Clark but said she could be influenced by another candidate.

The two youth delegates are Jill Alguire and Marvin Mattice. The two have toured the riding in an attempt to rejuvenate local youth PC clubs recently.

Chesterville physician Dr. Gabriel Slowey will serve as an alternate delegate, having topped the polls. Honorary association president Dick Aubry and Jim Kirkey, a former unsuccessful provincial election candidate will round out the roster of senior alternates. Donald MacElheran and Rory MacLennan will serve as alternate youth delegates; Ruby Flannigan for the women.

The meeting of more than 300 were faced with a large selection of candidates for the delegate and alternate positions. Unsuccessful nominees for delegates were Jennie Colucci, Oscar Ouderkirk, Keith Henry, Jack Alguire, Ken Bough, Edward Touchette, Russell Dore, Dick Aubry, Frank Brick, Norm Warner, Dr. Jean-Roch Lafrance, Ray Guy and Karen Gorell; for youth positions Robin Cameron, Douglas Tupper, Val Rioux and Cathy Elliott.

Unsuccessful nominees for alternate posts were Jack Alguire, Carson Elliott, Ken Bough, George Williamson, Dr. Jean-Roch Lafrance; youth, Cathy Elliott, Val Rioux, and David Guy.

Greenhouse industry to benefit from provincial grant structure

(Special) - A five year $5 million incentive program to help the province's green house industry install energy-efficient technology will be sponsored by the Ministry of Agriculture and Food and the Ministry of Energy, Agriculture Minister Dennis Timbrell has announced.

Timbrell said that Ontario's many greenhouses businesses are especially vulnerable to energy costs because, an average 25 per cent of their operating costs are energy-related. Many growers don't have access to natural gas and must bear the higher costs of oil heating.

The two ministries have joined forces, Energy Minister Robert Welch said, because "the five-fold increase in greenhouse energy bills since 1975 has placed an unusual burden upon this industry and significantly affected its ability to remain competitive in the future. The new retrofit program will help brighten that future."

"Consumers will also benefit," Timbrell said, "since the program encourages growers to plant earlier in the year. This means that Ontario-grown produce is available sooner, thus making us less dependent on the sometimes vulnerable supply lines from other countries."

Qualifying growers will be eligible for grants covering one-third of the capital costs of approved technology, subject to a cumulative maximum of $4.25 per square metre of existing greenhouse space and a maximum of $17,000 per enterprise. Eligible technology will range from perimeter insulation to microprocessors for regulating environment.

The Ontario greenhouse industry generates total sales of $140 million annually and employs 4,500 people on a full or part-time basis. Flowers and ornamental plants account for 85 per cent of sales, and vegetables the rest, the agriculture minister said.

"The new program is a key component of my ministry's thrust to reduce Ontario's reliance of imported agricultural produce," Timbrell stressed. "Improved energy efficiency should also help flower producers expand their growing export market."

The new initiative was developed in response to the recommendations of the Greenhouse Advisory Committee, which included representatives of the Ontario Greenhouse Vegetable Producers' Marketing Board and Flowers Canada.

Beware the good deal at encumbered auction sales

(Special) - A farmer in Chatham thought he'd made a good deal. Last December, he bought a combine for $20,000 at an auction. Saved a bundle, so he thought. Two months after the purchase, the bank is one combine richer and the farmer is $20,000 poorer and minus a valuable piece of farm equipment.

Unfortunately, this is an example of what is happening all too frequently. The reason? The farmer never thought to ask for a certified search of clear title.

Ontario Consumer Minister, Dr. Robert Elgie, warns people purchasing anything at auctions to be aware that the item could be subject to a lien. "A bank, a finance company, a dealer, in effect any lender, may have loaned money on the security of things being offered for sale at the auction. If the loan has not been paid back in full, the lender may be paying you, the new owner, a visit and claiming his collateral, that is, your new property."

The next time you're at an auction, before you pay for the item you've successfully bid on, ask the auctioneer to produce a "certified search" to prove there is no lien on the property. Though the auctioneer is under no legal obligation to conduct such a search with the Ministry's Personal Property Security Registration Branch, it is to his advantage to allay the fears of prospective buyers. One search serves the needs of all the people present at the auction. It also saves money for those individuals contemplating a sale but failing to make a purchase.

An individual wishing to search the title himself and willing to pay the $10.00 fee can do so in any Land Registry Office where personal property security registration is offered. All that is needed is the name of the individual who currently owns the property.

Auctions can be fun. No one need get stung if the buyer follows a few "consumer sense" rules.

'I look after my health - do you?' - Health Day

(Special) - May 12th is Canada Health Day. This year, the slogan is "I look after my health - do you?". It would seem therefore appropriate at this time to review the programmes given by the local Health Unit so that people will have some idea of the services available to enable them to look after and protect their health.

The Unit has eight different departments, each touching upon the need of anyone from pre-birth to old age.

Departments include the Nursing, Environmental Hygiene, Home Care, Drug Addiction, Infant Stimulation and Dental with sub-offices in Alexandria, Casselman, L'Orignal, Rockland and Winchester.

The Nursing department has a staff of 37 including the director, Miss M. McIntosh. There is a complement of 25 public health nurses and 12 registered nurses.

The service is open to all age groups. Home visits are made for all ages, classes are held for prenatals, regular visits are made to the various schools and day care centres, nurses assist in a twice weekly venereal disease clinic at the Cornwall General Hospital.

There are immunization programmes for all schools, as well as infants and pre-schoolers. Nurses will also visit the obstetrics and newborn departments of hospitals in the five counties and City of Cornwall. Communicable disease control and tuberculosis testing, as well as checking ears and eyes, is done in schools.

The Environmental hygiene department has 12 public health inspectors with Mr. Don Ouellette, Director, in charge. They will inspect food in various businesses and institutions, water, communicable diseases are investigated as well as housing and recreational facilities. This area is funded under the general programme.

There is also a sub-section in this department: Sewage Disposal, Land severances and Subdivision Control. It is funded by the Ministry of the Environment. Three full-time people are employed. This programme offers inspections of both private and commercial sewage disposal systems, advice on installation and repairs and pollution surveys; also inspection of lots where systems may be proposed.

In the Cornwall area, there is also a separate Family Planning Programme in the Nursing Department, mainly for the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry area. Dr. Indra Deepan is in charge and clinic is held every Tuesday at the Unit, Cornwall Office. A Steering Committee is at present being formed to develop a suitable Family Planning Programme in the Prescott and Russell area.

The home care programme is under the direction of Mrs. Anita Bonneville-Latour and Dr. Denis Deslauriers is the Medical Advisor. The Home Care Programme in Ontario has 2 components, the acute and the chronic home care programmes. The acute programme is a short-term active treatment programme which provides health care services through a multi-disciplinary team approach to appropriate patients in their homes. The Home Care Programme is funded 100 per cent by the Ministry of Health and operated at the local community level by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit. The active treatment home care programme is legislated under the Ontario Health Insurance Act.

The philosophy of the Acute Home Care Programme is to meet the individual health needs of the patient on a short term basis while encouraging both the family and the patient to take greater responsibility for the health care of their members.

To be eligible for Home Care, patients must be insured under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan, be under the medical supervision of an attending physician and must be referred to the Home Care Programme by a physician. The patient's condition must be such that it can be treated adequately at home by the visitation services through the Home Care Programme.

The patient's needs must not be able to be met on an out-patient basis, and the patient must be in need of at least one of the professional services such as nursing, physiotherapy, occupational therapy, speech therapy, or nutritional counselling. (Homemaking service is a support service in the Home Care Programme and a patient only qualifies if a professional service is required).

Chronic Home Care Programme or Long-Term Care Programme is on maintenance and rehabilitation of patients with long-term or chronic illnesses. In order to keep the emphasis of the programme as a health programme, the patient must require at least three professional visits per month. Homemaking support service is limited to a maximum of 80 hours of homemaking in the first month and 40 hours each month thereafter.

The home must be suitable to enable the care to be given and the patient's family must be willing and able to participate in assisting the Home Care Programme professional staff to meet the needs of the patient.

The nutrition service is under the direction of a nutritionist, Ms. Carmen Ubbink. She acts as a nutrition consultant for the Health Unit staff and speaks to groups in the community. Ms. Ubbink's role is to prevent health problems in the community and promote sensible eating habits for all ages. This service is funded under the general programme and is free to the public.

The drug addiction service also has a staff of one and is mainly a francophone service offered in L'Orignal by a social worker, Mr. Laurier Vaillant. He comes to Cornwall occasionally and gives a consultation service to schools and the Health Unit. His treatment services are in Prescott and Russell in the majority of cases. This is funded under the general programme and the service is free.

The infant stimulation programme is under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth Sansoucy-Jones.

This programme is designed to teach parents how to help their young infants learn and develop. It is for infants up to age two who are delayed in their development or who are at risk of becoming delayed, due to medical environmental or hereditary factors.

Any family in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry or Prescott and Russell may be visited at home, and the service is free of charge. It is funded under the Ministry of Community and Social Services.

The dental department is under the direction of Dr. Rainer Tornow and there are three qualified dental hygienists and 2 dental assistants. They offer a fluoride rinse programme to schools, examine teeth of certain selected school grades and a teaching programme. For senior citizens, teeth are checked and they are instructed how to handle false teeth. It is funded under the general programme.

Drainage conserves Ontario

(Special) - Tile drainage is one of the best soil erosion control practices available to Ontario farmers, says Ross Irwin, extension co-ordinator of the University of Guelph's School of Engineering.

Tile drains provide extra storage in the soil for rainfall by lowering the water table. Rainfall entering the soil reduces the amount of surface run-off and soil erosion.

Irwin says run-off and erosion are reduced by 30 per cent to 50 per cent on tile-drained land.

Installing tile drains is costly - as much as $990 per hectare ($400 per acre). But farmers must realize land is a basic resource which must be protected, Irwin says.

"Good tile drainage not only reduces soil erosion, it also allows farmers to seed and harvest crops on time."

The number of tile drains needed varies with the type of soils, he says. Coarse, naturally well-drained sandy soils need few tile drains; finer silt soils, which limit water infiltration, require more tile drains to prevent surface run-off and erosion.

Clay tile drains were first used by the Romans. Canada's early settlers used wooden drains. Today, plastic tile drainage is most common but concrete and clay drains are also available.

Tile drains were installed on 90,000 hectares (200,000 acres) of Ontario farmland last year.

For more information on tile drainage, contact your local Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office.

WHAT IS AN ECG (EKG)?

ECG (EKG) is an abbreviation for an electrocardiogram, which is a graphic record of the electric currents generated by the heart. By reading the graph a doctor can determine several facts about the heart such as the heart rate, the heart's rhythm, whether the heart muscle is receiving enough blood, and whether there is an enlargement of any of the heart's four chambers. Contact your local Ontario Heart Foundation for more information.

Do-it-yourself interior painting low-cost home improvement

There are so many types of paints and painting equipment available for interior use today it's difficult to decide when, where, and how to use them. The criteria for selecting a paint should be first, the type of room, and secondly, the amount of care and maintenance required.

Paints are classified into two basic categories: oil-based paint (solvent thinned) commonly called alkyd paint, and water-based paint (water thinned) commonly called latex paint. Enamels made with a varnish or resin base instead of linseed-oil, are included under the broad oil-based paint category.

Oil-based paints are very durable and highly resistant to staining and damage. They can withstand frequent scrubbings and give good one-coat coverage. Many latex paints are advertised as having similar properties. The main advantage of latex paint are easier application, faster drying and simpler tool cleanup. It is water soluble, so the brushes, rollers, and other equipment can be cleaned easily with water.

Oil-based paints are used in bathrooms and kitchens where humidity of the room is high. Such a paint resists moisture better than the latex type and is easier to clean. Latex paints are usually used in bedrooms, living rooms and dining rooms where maintenance requirements are not as demanding.

Both alkyd and latex paints are available in flat and semi-gloss finishes however, only alkyd is found in high gloss. Generally, the higher the gloss or the shinier the finish, the easier that surface is to clean. Surfaces painted with flat paints have many pores or small openings and it is in these openings that dirt and dust particles collect. Surfaces covered with flat paints are more difficult to clean and also do not "spot clean" well. Often a washed area becomes very distinct from the rest of the surrounding wall, so it is advisable to wash the entire porous wall to prevent spotting.

Most paints, stains and other liquid finishes are available in litre (L) and millilitre (ml) containers. The usual sizes are 1 L and 5 L cans replacing the quart and the gallon.

If you buy paint by the litre, coverage is expressed in square metres (m2). If purchased by the gallon, coverage is expressed in square feet (ft2). The label indicates the number of m2 (ft2) a litre (gallon) will cover will applied as directed. To determine how much paint you need:

- Calculate the area of the walls in m2 (ft2) by multiplying the distance around the room by the height of the walls. This figure should include door and window space.
- Measure the area taken up by doors and windows by multiplying the heights of each unit by its width, then add the results.
- Subract one-half of the total area taken by the doors and windows from the wall area obtained in Step 1.
- Divide this figure by the number of square metres (ft2) a litre (gallon) will cover. Then multiply by the number of coats to be applied. The result is the number of litres (gallons) needed.
- If you plan to use a different shade of paint (usually white) for the ceiling calculate this separately. To find the m2 (ft2) area of the ceiling, multiply the length by the width.

Good equipment is important to good painting as to any other job. If you plan to paint many rooms or if you plan to do your own painting over a long period of time, invest in good quality equipment.

For speed and convenience, use a roller on the walls, ceilings and other large surfaces, then use a brush at corners, along edges, and in other places that you can't reach with a roller. Wood work is usually painted with a brush.

Different kinds of brushes and rollers are recommended for different kinds of paint.

Latex paint is best applied with nylon bristle brushes. Alkyd paints are easier to apply with natural bristle brushes. Ask your paint dealer what kind of brush to buy.

Other equipment you'll need for interior painting includes a step ladder, drop cloths, wiping rags, and a roller pan. Edging pads and similar specialized tools are also available. Good quality equipment lasts through years of service if cared for properly.

Latex paint brushes and rollers clean up with water, but a little detergent speeds up the process and provides better cleaning. Rinse equipment thoroughly with clean water and lay brushes flat to dry.

Alkyd paint brushes and rollers can be stored overnight without cleaning if wrapped in airtight plastic. For complete cleaning, rinse in several changes of clean paint thinner. Once most of the paint is out, brushes and rollers can be cleaned with several washings in paint solvent. Rinse well in water and remove as much water as possible. Comb brushes and smooth bristles to preserve their shape.

Health Matters

Dermatitis

It might not occur to parents that their young child is irritable and hyperactive because of an itch, but such a thing is possible.

Children who develop a rash called "infantile atopic dermatitis" may show just such symptoms. Atopic dermatitis is a rash that is scaly and crusty and may be brown like eczema. It usually occurs in individuals who have either a personal or family history of what is called atopy. Most doctors consider atopy to include the following conditions: asthma, hayfever, chronic itching where no cause is known, migraine headaches or infantile, childhood or adult atopic dermatitis.

LOW THRESHOLD

Most patients with atopic dermatitis have a very low threshold to itching. Therefore, anything that creates an itching sensation to them will result in them scratching until they produce a rash.

Irritants such as wool or chemicals (such as fabric softeners), exposure to heat or cold and exercise or emotional stress may start a child scratching and result in an atopic dermatitis. To help control scratching, keep the child's finger nails short and smooth.

With any rash a natural tendency is to try to wash often. With atopic dermatitis it is important to avoid excessive bathing because it tends to dry the skin which in turn causes itching.

If parents insist on daily bathing, the child should just be given a "quick dip". It is also important to avoid all perfumed products including bath oils, bubble bath, soaps and litions. Products are available which are cleansers, not soaps, but they are equally hard on the skin of an atopic person.

STEROID CREAMS

Unfortunately, no program of treatment can cure this problem, but it can help to control it. The medical treatment for atopic dermatitis usually consists of the application of steroid cream. When applied, the skin area should be left exposed to the air for a short time, rather than being covered immediately. When itching continues to be troublesome, particularly at night, some doctors recommend antihistamines to minimize the problem.

Ontario Tax Grants For Senior Citizens
1983 Instalments are in the Mail
Ontario Tax Grants for Seniors is a program designed specifically to help offset municipal and school taxes for Ontario residents 65 and over. The Ontario Ministry of Revenue is mailing cheques which comprise the first instalment of the 1983 Property Tax Grant of up to $250 and a temporary Home Heating Grant of $40. These cheques were mailed on April 29th.

Who will receive it?
- If you are 65 or over and own or rent your home, you are eligible for the Property Tax Grant.
- The 1983 instalment cheque is mailed to Ontario seniors who received the 1982 Property Tax Grant.
- This is intended to help you pay your property tax or rent for the first part of 1983. In the fall you will automatically receive an application for the balance of your grant.

Who will not receive it?
Basically, if you didn't receive a 1982 Property Tax Grant, you will not receive the spring instalment. In particular, seniors should note that:
- If you reside in a nursing home, home for the aged or any property tax-exempt institution, you are not eligible for the Property Tax Grant.
- If you turned 65 after December 31st, 1982 (and therefore did not qualify for a grant last year) you also will not receive the spring instalment. However, you will receive an application for the entire 1983 grant in the fall.

How Much Of Your House Is Really Insured?
You might be shocked to find out.

Inflation and fluctuating real estate values have a way of reducing your insurance protection – unless your policy is constantly up-dated.

Then there are questions of land value, house foundations and the cost of removal and re-building.

To find out where you stand talk to one of the I.B.A.O. insurance brokers listed below.

Is there a difference between an I.B.A.O. broker and an agent?

Yes there is. An agent works directly for one insurance company. An I.B.A.O. broker is independent and unbiased.

Your broker is able to choose a policy that gives you the right coverage at the right price... making sure you're not under-insured or over-insured and that your interests are well represented when you come to making a claim.

Get ready to walk, cycle or jog to Chesterville's NPAW

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - More than 10-million Canadians are expected to jog, cycle, walk and generally join in the fun and activity of National Physical Activity Week, May 15-23, and Chesterville area residents will be right along with the crowd.

Dave Arnold, Chesterville's Recreation Director, has planned a week full of activities to give young and old the opportunity to try something new.

National Physical Activity Week is the first ever celebration of physical activity. It is coordinated by Fitness Canada, a Fitness and Amateur Sports Program Directorate, in cooperation with provincial governments and Canada's national health and fitness associations. The week will celebrate Canada's growing appreciation of the benefits of physical activity.

Although the national theme of Physical Activity Week is for people to get out and try something physical, Dave Arnold has added a slightly different angle to Chesterville's week.

"We are going to give people a chance of trying something they've never tried before, at no cost to them," he explained.

Many activities are offered by Chesterville's Department of Recreation that people just don't know about, and the director is hoping the week will promote these activities, and promote a general awareness of what is available, by offering open houses and introductory lessons that people can attend free.

Kicking off Chesterville's Physical Activity Week will be the Rotary Walk-a-thon, Sat., May 14. Although this is a Rotary activity planned as a fund-raising event, it will be a good opportunity for area residents to get out and limbered up for more activities to come.

The Mixed Doubles Tennis Tourney will be held Sun., May 15, and Dave Arnold said he already has five doubles teams registered for the event. Registration is free, and there will be prizes for the winners.

If you don't feel you are a good enough player to enter the tournament this year, the Recreation Department will be offering free tennis lessons Wednesday evening for adults 18 years and over. Mr. Arnold has two qualified instructors who will give pointers to anyone interested as to the rules of the game, forehand, backhand, volley, etc.

Young and old alike are encouraged to "get physical" and in that spirit, Dave Arnold is planning a Fitness Seminar for senior citizens.

The seminar is aimed at improving their (senior citizens) awareness of phsycial activity and how it can improve their lifestyle and make them more independent," he stated.

Mr. Arnold is hoping this seminar will promote enough interest in physical activity to spur involvement in a program which he would like to set up. To do this, he will be showing a film made by TV Ontario, describing how seniors can incorporate physical activities into their lifestyle, and how they will benefit by it.

During the week, various clubs that have been giving courses throughout the fall and winter will open their doors to newcomers, giving free introductory lessons to those interested.

One such club is the Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do club. John Larabie, a Tae Kwon Do student, and Public Relations Officer for the club, suggested Tae Kwon Do would benefit most people of all ages.

Tae Kwon Do is a form of Karate, using a variety of kicks. Mr. Larabie emphasized that although the philosophy behind the sport is not aggressive, it can be used if necessary in self-defense.

In terms of fitness, though, Tae Kwon Do, is a very physical exercise that promotes good breathing, posture and reflexes and builds self-confidence.

"This is an extremely good exercise for women," said Mr. Larabie. "Women are very agile, and actually are better at Tae Kwon Do than men".

Mr. Larabie also stressed the rehabilitative nature of the sport, which for the first time, is an official olympic game.

"One of the students came with bad knees, and his doctor, Dr. Rosenquist, told him to keep at Tae Kwon Do because he would benefit from it," said Mr. Larabie.

Another open house that people will be encouraged to attend will be held by Chesterville's Yoga instructors, Tina Savage and Chris Brown.

Yoga is a different form of exercise than Tae Kwon Do, or Dancersize. It is not an aerobic activity involving vigorous rapid movement, but gentle stretching that promotes flexibility.

"The idea behind yoga," said Mrs. Savage, "is that the spine is the basis of health. If you have a flexible spine, your whole body will be healthy."

"Aerobic exercise works from the outside," she continued, "and helps you lose weight. Yoga works from the inside out. It makes your organs healthy through stretching and relaxing, which makes your whole body feel alive and vibrant."

Mrs. Savage will be giving an introductory talk on Yoga and its benefits during her open house class Monday morning, then Wednesday evening, Chris Brown will take all those interested through a brief introduction to Yoga and a lesson of basic postures.

"I want (the participants) to feel the difference between calisthenics and basic stretching," she stressed, "and to prove that Yoga is easier than you think. Anyone can do it."

Mrs. Brown invited those interested in an introductory lesson to attend Wednesday evening's open house dressed in sweat pants, leotards or something loose, so they will feel comfortable when participating.

Another activity offering a free introductory session for Chesterville's Physical Activity Week is Sylvia Grose's Co-ed Dancercise class, which is a demonstration of dance and calisthenics performed to lively, popular music. This is an aerobic activity that gained widespread popularity with both men and women, as it promotes fitness, co-ordination and dance in one shot.

Cedar Glen Golf Club is also offering a Golf Night and Open House, Tues., May 17 in honor of Physical Activity Week. Free green fees, club rentals and introductory lessons to the game of golf will be offered to all those interested, with the compliments of Cedar Glen.

Getting back to the more physical side of National Physical Activity Week, Chesterville's Recreation Department is organizing a Run for Light, Thurs., May 19th.

Run For Light is a promotional event that began two years ago to create an awareness of blind sports. Dave Arnold said the run takes place after dark to enable sighted participants to experience what it is like to run, walk or jog when you are blind.

Ideally, the event takes place in an unlighted area. The run itself is free, and flourescent glow sticks will be available for $1 to those who would like them.

Mr. Arnold hopes everyone will participate. It's not necessary that you jog or run, the important part is getting involved, he said.

Berwick activity centre - a labour of love

BERWICK (Staff) - Berwick Public School doesn't have a gym - it has to bus it's grade 7 and 8 pupils to Maple Ridge once a week to use the facilities there. It doesn't even have swings or slides like most schools have.

But Berwick Public School now has something those other, bigger schools don't have. The small, four-room school now has it's own outdoor activity centre.

The activity centre is not made with store-bought jungle-gymns, swingsets, and teeter-totters. It is a unique blend of tractor tires, trees and two-by-fours all arranged to give maximum benefit and pleasure to those using it.

The idea was initially brought up by the school's principal, Bob Gilroy, who passed it on to Sandra Armstrong, Chairman of the School Committee.

A month later the activity centre was in place, ready for anything the kids could do to it.

Mr. Gilroy couldn't praise enough the backing of the School Committee and the community as a whole.

"Before there was nothing at the school in the way of recreational facilities," stated Mr. Gilroy. "No gym, not even swings."

But last Saturday, that all changed. In three hours, 30-45 people from the community, students and their families, all pitched in their time and materials to build the activity centre at no cost to the school.

"It was like an old-fashioned barn-raising bee," recalled Mr. Gilroy, still amazed at the speed with which the centre went together.

Right now there are five activity areas in the centre, which, Mr. Gilroy emphasized, could be added on to any time if they felt something more was needed.

The areas have been placed in such a way as to make a circuit, and each area promotes the use of a different muscle group.

For example, the first area is a group of tires, paired up in a long line. The main idea behind this activity is to promote eye-foot co-ordination and develop the large leg and thigh muscles.

Another area develops arm shoulder and back muscles as the user pulls himself up a 10 ft. length of rope.

Mr. Gilroy emphasized that altough there was a specific idea behind each area, already students had showed ingenuity in finding different ways to use the tires and the hurdles which is definitely encouraged.

The activity centre will be put to many uses. It will be there for the students to play on before and after school, and it will also be used, weather permitting, in the phys. ed. periods and for conditioning for team sports.

Mrs. Doris Empey's grade 5 and 6 class came out to test the activity centre, and the students were full of enthusiasm.

"You can see they don't have to be coaxed to use it," Mrs. Empey observed.

In fact, when she called her students to go back into class, a few raced to go around "just once more."

Local athletes athletes honored at banquet with provincial Award

TORONTO (Staff) - Ontario's Tourism and Recreation Minister Reuben C. Baetz paid tribute to the province's disabled athletes, including two local blind runners - Rod Barkley of Williamsburg and John Baxter from Maxville - during the 16th annual Provincial Sports Awards banquet on April 22.

"The disabled athletes, spurred by an overall desire to achieve excellence, continue to bring honor not only to themselves, but to this province," said Mr. Baetz.

More than 400 amateur athletes received Achievement Awards during the annual sports banquet in recognition of gold medal performances at national and international events.

For 17-year-old Rodney Barkley, this is the second year he has received an Achievement Award for his athletic abilities. His first award was for his performances in 1981.

In 1982, Rodney received three gold medals in the Ontario Games for the Disabled, for winning the 60 meters, 200 meters and 400 meters. He also earned a silver medal in the long jump.

In August, he went on to the National Games in Calgary where he won a gold medal in the high jump, and silver medals for ths 200 and 400 meter. Unfortunately, Rodney was sustaining a leg injury during the National Games and, according to his mother, wasn't able to do his best.

But his performance was good enough to earn him the distinction of receiving a Sports Award for his efforts and an accolade from Mr. Baetz.

"Once given the opportunity to participate in a chosen sport, Ontario's disabled athletes, and indeed athletes from across Canada, exhibit a desire to excel, and this desire transcends any handicap," said Mr. Baetz. "These young athletes exhibit high level skills and an admirable degree of sportsmanship."

Mrs. Ray Barkley, Rodney's mother, said Rodney has his heart set on competing in the 1984 Olympic Games for the Disabled. Canada's representatives are chosen by their results in this year's regional provincial and national competitions to be held this summer.

"Rodney's hoping to live in Ottawa this summer so he can train every day", she said. "He's going to be up against some tough competition, especially in the Canada games."

At the Sports Awards Banquet, which Rodney was not able to attend due to his workload at school, the Tourism and Recreation Minister pledged continued development of sports programs for disabled people in Ontario. He said that the disabled athlete would be given every encouragement to participate in sport and other areas of endeavour in the future.

But Mrs. Barkley commented that if it wasn't for Aults, Rodney wouldn't be able to compete as much as he has.

"Aults has been sponsoring him over the past years," she said "and without their support he wouldn't be going to most of these competitions."

Rodney will be competing this month in the Regional Games in Mississauga, then will move on to the Ontario's in Brampton and finally the Canada Games in Sudbury. It is from these events that the final selection of Olympic athletes will be chosen, of which Rodney Barkley will hopefully be one.

Deadline extended for moose hunter's validation tags

(Special) - The Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources has extended for 1983 only the deadline for moose hunters to apply for bull or cow validation tags under the selective moose harvest program - from April 29 to 5pm May 20.

Resources Minister Alan Pope said recently that the extension was needed to ensure all moose hunters are contacted and applications are filled in properly.

"This is a new process and a number of hunters made errors on applications that will have to be corrected in consultation with the applicants," Mr. Pope said. About eight per cent of the 40,000 resident hunter applications received so far by the Ministry of Natural Resources under the 1983 selective moose harvest program are incorrectly filled out.

"We have also had difficulty reaching hunters because of incomplete lists of 1982 hunters. As the ministry and hunters become more familiar with the program, we would expect to eliminate these problems in future draws," Mr. Pope added.

Tourney season underway

CEDAR GLEN (Special) - The tournament season will officially get underway at Cedar Glen this Saturday with the annual opening tournament.

Although spring rains have often threatened to inundate the course, drainage has been good and the layout has taken on a decidedly green colour, chasing away April's browns.

Action in the tourney is scheduled to begin at 10am.

Next week, Men's Night play will begin on its regular Thursday night time slot. Last year, the weekly golf draws attracted the largest followings in the courses's history. Crowds were often in excess of 80 golfers.

The ladies night festivities, also well attended last season are slated to commence May 25. A series of lessons from local pros are currently being planned.

The juniors will take the spotlight Mondays, beginning in June. Once again the young duffers will compete in individual and team events within their age and skill categories. Golf rules and etiquette will also comprise a fundamental portion of the junior golf program.

The club's first major event, the Dr. Locke tournament, will come two weeks after the opening tournament, and will offer prizes for golfers in each of three classes.

One week later, the Cedar Glen team will begin defence of their four-club title on home turf as members from Iroquois, Kemptville, and Morrisburg try to dethrone the reigning champions. One round is played at each of the competing clubs with the championship going to the club with the fewest aggregate strokes after four rounds.

With the season's first mixed two-ball added to the calendar on May 22, the club's first month of operation will indeed be very busy.
