"DUNDAS COUNTY THE LAND OF MILK AND HONEY" . . . . . COVERS EASTERN ONTARIO'S GREATEST DAIRYING SECTION

Sixty-fifth Year, No. 47 | Chesterville, Ontario, Thursday, August 20, 1959 | 8 PAGES | Single Copies, 10c

BY'S LINE TODAY

In a forest fire, there is everything to lose and nothing to grain.

Chesterville Fair patrons will be able to sit in a brand new grandstand this year. Builders are whipping the structure into shape and this week the first of the new frames have risen to position. We slipped up at the first of the week and caught the boys busily [illegible]ding spikes into the plank frames. That afternoon the first of the set of pieces was in position. The contractors are Wemerman and Testerink, of Chesterville. As the picture shows, all the cement foundation work is completed and sill in place.—Record Photo.

Show to open next month

Chesterville movie goers will soon have the opportunity of attending shows in town again. The refurbishing of Community Theatre is well under way now and the seats are being placed.

Workmen have been busy painting the premises from end to end and the theatre is now spick and span. It is hoped the work will be completed in time for an opening date sometime next month.

Applications have been received from several sources for the position of projectionist and manager. The committee is mulling over several and will make a decision at week's end.

One of the applicants is a very familiar name to Chesterville and district people. It is that of E. B. "Barney" Gravelle. He was the showman here for many years in the '20's after the Kearns operation was discontinued. He used to show pictures in what is now the fire hall and in Hamilton Hall if the picture was big enough.

It is planned to have the theatre in operation six nights a week, Monday to Saturday.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

Last a visit weekend we took off on quin[illegible]ting trip through Algon- Bay Park and across to Lake of m[illegible]s. Had a lovely cool stay with [illegible]ost hospitable friends, slept un- er two blankets Saturday night returned to 95-degree weath- clud[illegible]ere on Sunday. The visit in- of [illegible]d saying "hello" to a mess ca[illegible]deer along the highway; we [illegible]refully branded a large fat buck with our "CR" initial for this coming deer season, and hereby ask Nimrods to honour our brand.

The sight of the begging deer is something for the tourists but it leaves us just a mite cold. While we hunt them, and kill them in proper season, the wild things are being degraded and they don't know it. After watching a doe with a distended udder, denoting a hungry fawn or two in the bush, greedily gulping marshmallows, we wondered out loud if perhaps the degrees of intelligence were not quite so far apart. Sugar and slop that pleases the human gut should not be used to ruin a wild animal's digestion. And the deer become addicted to the handouts to the exclusion of their parental and native duties.

Not too long ago the highways in the park were typical north township roads. They have certainly improved in the 25 years we have travelled them. Not too long ago it was quite an ordeal to take Highway 60 across to Huntsville. And in the last year, the Department has turned the curly strip from the west entrance into a modern highway. Mr Cass's engineers should be proud of that job.

A compatriot of ours in this relaxing business of getting out a weekly newspaper, Ken Pettis of the Port Elgin Times has a pitiful story to tell, and he has come to the proper place. He can't get the right kind of honey up in his Georgian Bay countryside; he says there are bees but no buckwheat in one section and buckwheat but no bees in another. And he has an unrequited passion for comb buckwheat honey.

If Ken had read the headline of this family journal he would see that we are the centre of the "land of milk and honey" and we could add "buckwheat." As of now, we promise the Pettis family a mess of buckwheat honey, if Eddie Moore's bees continue to produce as usual. It's a little early yet for the combs to be full of the rich brown nectar, but let's be patient and our private St. Bernard will arrive at Port Elgin with a donation from Dundas County, Ken.

We see by the papers something is going on up at Carp. And it is such a secret, even the farmers who provided the land don't know what's going on. Actually, we understand it is not so secret after all—the government is building another surplus warehouse. This time they are going to store away a few thousand surplus civil servants who have worn themselves to a frazzle sending out notices reminding small printers of notices that were sent out some time ago.

AWARDED CONTRACT

Ontario Department of Highways announced the award of a $191,508.50 contract to Roads Resurfacing Co. Ltd., Chesterville. The contract is for resurfacing and padding 13.2 miles of Highway 34, including the stretch from Lancaster to Alexandria and the patrol yard at Lancaster.

Announcement of the award was made this week.

Grantley W.A. members meet at Casselman home

The August meeting of Grantley W.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs S. B. Casselman with 11 members and 12 visitors present.

The president, Mrs Albert Winters, opened the meeting with the hymn "As Pants the Hart for Cooling Streams" and the Lord's Prayer in unison.

Miss Bessie Shaver, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting a letter of thanks from Miss Hazel Wereley in connection with printing the coin cards. Mrs S. B. and Mrs Phil Casselman had charge of the worship service.

The members voted to discontinue sending for Christmas cards this year. The offering was dedicated.

Mrs Donald Casselman gave a vivid description of a trip taken by Finch W.I. to Quebec City, showing views of places of interest visited.

Piano solos were given by Audrey and Joan Casselman, Margaret McMillan and Lois Robinson. Mrs Phil Casselman gave a reading, "Old Things Abide," by Edna Jacques.

Lunch was served.

OVER $200. RAISED--

Race night success

Chesterville Fair supporters turned out in heartening numbers last Wednesday evening. The occasion was the set of matinee races staged at the grounds with all proceeds going to the grandstand fund. Final figures showed over $200 in cash ready for the bank. Everything was donated to the cause and the directors have cause to be grateful to many people.

The races proved interesting and the entries showed 15 horses on hand. Ted Lockhart's colt, Little Brown Derby, chalked the best time of the night with a fine 2.17 2-5.

Winners in the 2.30 class were: Little Brown Derby, 1-1; Patricia Hal, 2-3; Chief R. Gratton, 3-2.

The Free-for-All was won by: Stewart's Majesty, 1-1; Adam's Orphan, 2-2; Richard Henley, 3-3.

The 2.25 class: Queen's Coronation, 2-1; Filso Gratton, 1-3; Gladys Hy, 3-2.

The special donated prizes were as follows: Blue Bonnets blanket for best outfit, won by Graham Riddell; best outfit in 2.25 class, a blanket donated by Harry Saunders, to W. Woods, Long Sault; best outfit in free-for-all, blanket donated by Max Johnston, to Mac Beckstead, driver of Bunter Dolomite; best time of any race, halter from Harold Faulkner, to Ted Lockhart, Cardinal, and another blanket to Guy Nelson for winning the most heats.

NEW LIBRARY BOOKS

The following new books have been purchased for Chesterville Library:

"Isabel the Fair," by Margaret Barnes; "Beckoning Trails," Emilie Loring; "April Gold," Grace L. Hill; "Blake's Reach," C. Caskin; "The King Tree" (the All-Canada Fiction Award), by Gladys Taylor; "My Mortal Enemy," Willa Cather; "The Light Heart," Elswyth Thane.

More in the Nancy Drew and Blackie series have been purchased for the girls and, for the younger readers, "The Happy Hollisters."

New phone directories mailed soon

Chesterville telephone users will be getting a heavier than normal mail delivery within the next few days.

It will contain the new telephone directory, which is now being distributed through the mail to telephone users in Chesterville and some 75 other area communities and localities.

The postman will be dropping 900 copies of the new directory into Chesterville mailboxes this year, as compared to 845 a year ago, George Thompson, Bell Telephone acting manager for this region, announced this week.

Distribution figures for the entire area served by the directory reflect the steady growth of the region. A total of 19,000 copies of the new book have been mailed to telephone users throughout the area, an increase of 2,530 from the 17,470 of 1958.

Aside from Chesterville, major centres served by the directory include Brockville, Prescott, Cardinal, Iroquois, Morrisburg and Winchester.

Because the directory contains many new and changed listings, Mr Thompson urged all customers to discard last year's copy as soon as they receive the new edition.

"By doing so they will avoid wrong numbers and unnecessary calls to information," he added. The manager also suggested that telephone users bring their "Blue Book of Telephone Numbers" and other personal lists up to date by checking them against the new directory.

The directory cover again features a drawing of the Iroquois Lock of the St. Lawrence Seaway by the noted Canadian artist Lorne Bouchard, A.R.C.A.

Exam results Morewood High School

The following are examination results for Morewood High School:

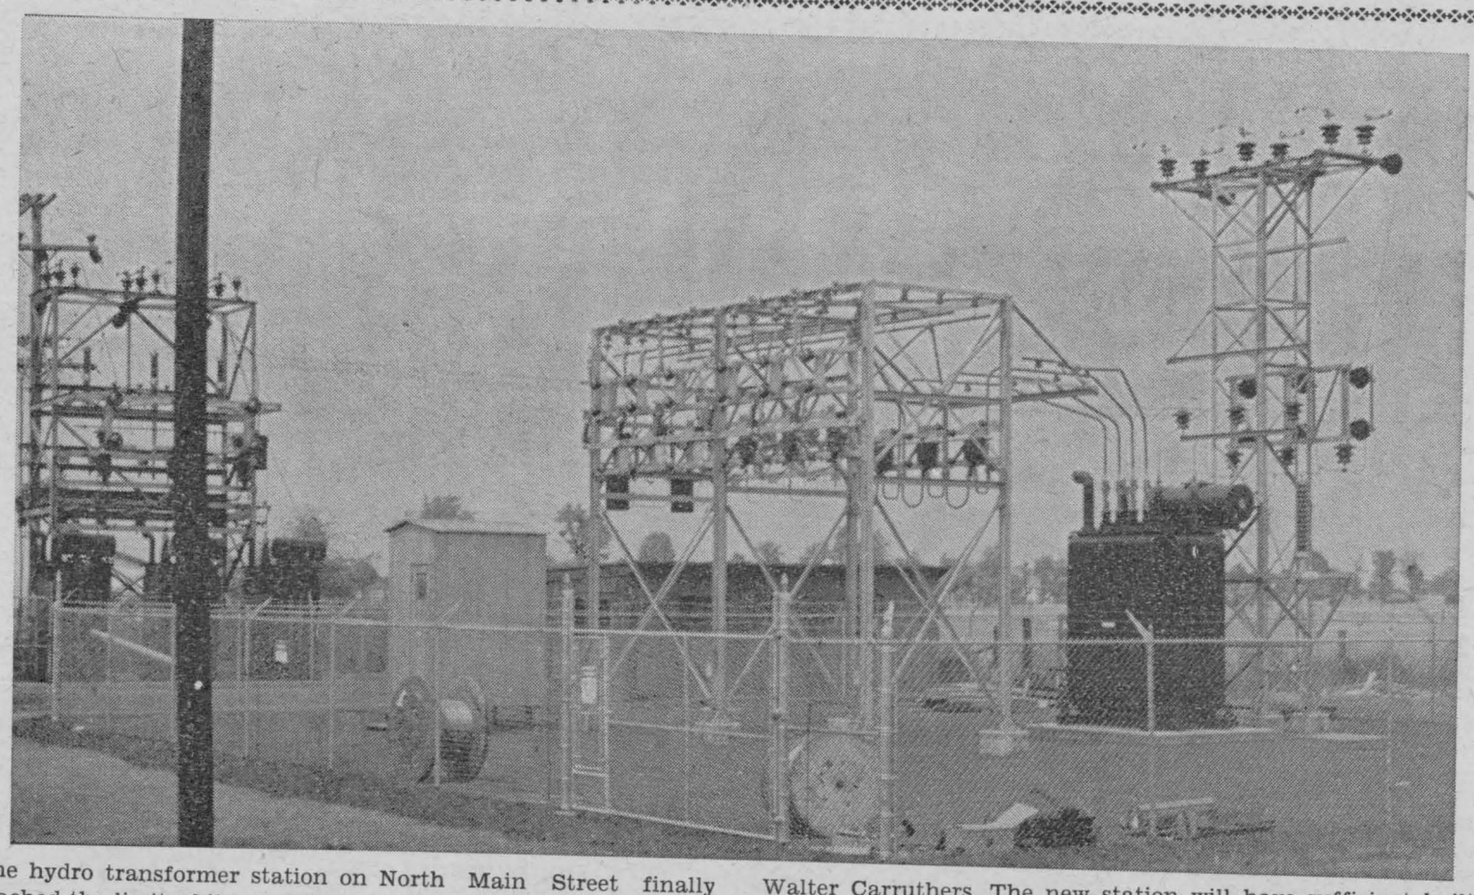
Grade XII: Alfred Gain, Lucien Gregoire, Frances Levesque, Miriam MacGregor, Richard Marion.

Two of the above students wrote Upper School subjects with the following results: Frances Levesque—French Authors, 67; French Composition, 69; Richard Marion—French Authors, 50; French Composition, 61; English Composition, 36. Four passes were made in the five papers written, with 80% passing results.

Teachers for 1959-60 at Morewood High School will be: A. D. Rae, principal, English and History; Mrs Marion Johnston, Science and Mathematics; Mrs Chandraday Beebakhee, Latin and French.

M.P. IN TOKYO

This week we received a brightly coloured post card from Tokyo from Mrs Jean Casselman, our wandering M.P. for Grenville-Dundas. Mrs Casselman is enjoying her tour immensely, and plans Hong Kong as the next stop. She and a group of other ladies are touring with Claire Wallace, the radio and newspaper personality. They have Red China on their itinerary after Hong Kong is explored.



The hydro transformer station on North Main Street finally reached the limit of its capacity and any potential increase in demand called for a new station to handle the load. As a result crews have been busy the last month building and installing a new station just south of the old one on land purchased from Walter Carruthers. The new station will have sufficient built-in reserve capacity to serve the town and district for a long time to come. Power will be off this coming Sunday in the village when the new station will be hooked into the system by the Winchester ROA crews under manager Al Beardsall.—Record Photo.

OPINIONS . . . OURS AND OTHERS

No Grade 13 results

We regret that our news columns this week do not contain the high school Grade 13 results. In spite of the fact they have been published for every other surrounding school, we have not yet received the lists.

It is a matter of some regret that Chesterville results do not reach us at the same time other district newspapers receive their reports. There is a great deal of interest each year in the departmental marks, and we are deluged with calls asking for standings.

Chesterville school would be better served if exam results could be made available for publication a little more promptly.

The work that kills

For generations, mankind has had it drummed into its collective head that "hard work never killed anybody." And on the principle that if a thing is said often enough and loudly enough, it will be accepted as truth, this old saying is probably widely believed. Its defenders can produce examples to support their argument, such as "My father is 85 and he cuts the lawn, shovels the snow in Winter and does all the odd jobs around the house, not minding it a bit." Then there is the man of 79 who up to last year put in an eight-hour day shovelling snow at the Parliament Buildings.

Yet there's another side to the question. Manual labour and even hard manual labour may not in itself be harmful, but those forced to make vital decisions, those who take their problems home with them and worry until the small hours are the type which hard work can and does kill. Over the years and particularly during World II, it was said more than one civil servant whose work under great pressure induced a fatal heart attack, that "he was in the truest sense, a war casualty."

Recently, a trained research team carried out a study of working habits and mortality in the prosperous suburb of Englewood, New Jersey. The researchers found that the incidence of coronary thrombosis and other heart ailments and also nervous breakdowns was far above the average. Middle-aged and even young men, eager for promotion and "making their way to the top" were in some cases literally killing themselves with overwork.

The same situation prevailed among the wives of executives under pressure to keep up with their husbands, keep their homes immaculate and keep up with the Joneses. They too were victims of tensions and pressures.

A retired farmer who worked hard and well into his eighties, died near Cornwall the other day at the age of 103. An overworked businessman or executive may well drop off 40 or 50 years earlier.

August gardens

August is the month when the home gardener should be drawing full dividends of pleasure for his labours. Or, put another way, it is the month when income exceeds outgo, when the hours of leisure and contemplation are greater than the hours of toil. Not that the toil shouldn't be a source of satisfaction to the gardener too, but a time comes when he simply wants to sit down or lie back and relax, and look around him at what has been accomplished.

There will be a brave show of annuals by now, and these probably will eclipse the perennials, which have been succeeding one another group by group ever since the first rock plants began to bloom in early spring. The annuals have had as much as three months, in some cases, to get themselves well established and, above all, the petunias are again asserting their claim to being the most rewarding of flowers for the effort expended.

Lawns, to be sure, require occasional attention, but after those recent rains they can be left to their own devices for a while. Too much watering, and especially shallow watering, is not in their best interests.

Some gardeners are so distressed by the sight of the odd plantain or dandelion in their lawns that they pounce on every weed with knife or claw, thereby creating bare spots which will be occupied presently by grass or more weeds; it's a toss-up which gets there first.

There are gardeners of experience who hold and practise the theory that the best way to fight weeds in a lawn is not to dig them up or to spray them with a selective plant killer, but rather to encourage the grass to do the evicting itself. This is done by the judicious use of nitrogenous fertilizers at certain seasons—again not overdoing the business—so that the grass grows mightily and thrusts aside its competitors. The technique is not too easy to apply, because it also involves discouraging, to some extent, the tramping of human feet.

The average gardener will probably not be bothered. He will still be happy enough about the aspect of his surroundings in August.

Rugs of the world

A beautiful Persian rug that may well be one of the world's most expensive floor coverings recently turned up at a dealer's shop in Singapore. Half the threads were found to be of gold.

The seven-by-ten-foot carpet was originally owned by the 17th-century Shah Abbas I of Persia. The story is told that the Shah promised a slave his freedom if he would weave such a carpet. Thirty-four years later the masterpiece was completed to the Shah's satisfaction.

But the weaver's freedom was short-lived, he died a year after finishing the rug.

Jewels of the weaver's trade, mosaic patterned Persian carpets have traditionally been regarded as "safe as diamonds." Oriental rug dealers in the United States recently reported an estimated 40 per cent upswing in sales, and they optimistically anticipate that the climb will continue.

Owners cherish their glowing carpets. Edward Stafford, Henry VIII's Lord High Constable, held up a treaty until he acquired the Persian carpets he wanted for the floors of Hampton Court. Rubens and Van Dyck immortalized the artistic carpets in their paintings.

Persian rugs retained their value during World War II, but with a shift in emphasis. American transport ships, returning from the Persian Gulf, found bales of Oriental rugs excellent for ballast.

Paradoxically, Persian carpets were seldom intended for floors. They served the nomadic Iranian tribesman as doors and windows in his tent, as pictures on his wall, and coverings for his couch and bed. A fine carpet was his most prized possession; it established his standing in the community.

Neither designs nor manufacturing methods have changed greatly since the 16th century when carpet weaving flowered under the patronage of wealthy Shahs. Rugs are still handloomed from strands of wool tinted with time-tested vegetable dyes. Usually woven on a base of cotton threads, the wool strands are knotted tightly around the base threads and cut off. Fine-quality rugs contain as many as one million knots in every three square feet. They can survive an estimated 500 years of wear.

Tribal designs, unaltered with time, continue to be woven into majestic floral, vase, medallion, geometric and animal patterns. No two carpets are alike, and the rug's distinctive pattern, texture and colour reveal the locality where it was woven.

Children, usually girls between five and 10 years old, are preferred as weavers, for their small, deft fingers can better manage the intricate work. Each team of four to six girls at a loom is supervised by an older girl whose hands have grown too large for weaving.

Work is tediously slow. A moderate-size rug takes about a month to weave. Grandiose rugs, as large as 15 by 35 feet, may take years. Often the weaving of a rug spans two generations.

Cuba ranks fourth among the nations of the world in iron ore reserves.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The Bible Society of India and Ceylon reports an increased distribution of more than 140,000 Scriptures in 1958. One million three hundred thousand Bibles, Testaments and Gospels were distributed to individuals, churches and schools. Each matriculant was presented with a copy of the four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, and each graduate received a copy of the New Testament and Psalms.

At the request of one of the district educational officers of the Madras State, a copy of the New Testament in Tamil has been placed in the 900 school libraries in his district.

There are now full-time women secretaries at work in South India, West and North-West India, North India and Bihar and in Orissa and West Bengal.

Many Indian newspapers publish the Bible in serial form in their papers.

CLIMBED DOWN

Coldwater, Mich., police and firemen were sent to a tall silo at the Coldwater Co-Operative Company plant. A boy, about 10, was on top.

Employees said the youngster had climbed up, apparently became panic-stricken and couldn't get down.

Officers climbed up. The boy was gone. He had climbed down the other side.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

by Lillian Allison

It seemed quite a coincidence that Iroquois and the Iroquois Locks should come up for so much publicity last week just a day or so after we were there. You probably read all about it in at least two of the city dailies.

In a considerable number of words the writers told of the dissatisfaction of many of the citizens of Iroquois over conditions near and at the new seaway locks. They expressed concern over the locks as a tourist attraction. Some tourists were also interviewed. They complained about the rough condition of the roads, the barbed wire barricades, the lack of signs, etc. They compared Iroquois very unfavourably with the Snell Lock on the U.S. side. I'd have liked to have added a few words too.

We were over to Point Iroquois a time or two during the construction of the canal and dam. We climbed the lookout tower with the other curious folks and looked down into the big ditch they were digging absolutely certain it was not nearly wide enough to accommodate ocean liners. We looked and wondered what was going on.

Eventually they finished the canal and lock system but last summer passed and we didn't manage to get to see it all.

When some friends from Toronto were visiting us during the Plowing Match we took them on a tour of the seaway one afternoon. We started at Cornwall and showed them all the sights to Morrisburg. It was really time to go home and milk but we decided to steal a few minutes and go on to Iroquois.

We followed Lakeside Drive around to the Carmen road that used to lead out to the old canal bridge and turned south. Suddenly, without word or warning, we came to a heap of stones and rubble in the middle of the road. Point Iroquois was only a hundred feet or so ahead but we couldn't go on. "The only way to get there," a friendly citizen explained, "is to go up new No. 2 Highway and down old No. 2." That was four miles or more and we simply hadn't the time. So we backed up half a mile and went home.

It was a week ago last Sunday when we were enroute to Prescott that we decided to try for a look at the locks again. We went up Lakeside Drive once more and asked the way. Another helpful citizen directed us exactly the same way we had gone last fall.

This time, instead of the pile of stones, we found a brand new, black-top road—crooked as all get out and about a half mile longer than necessary—which took us over a bridge to the Point. (You see the Queen had been there since we were. Thus the new road.)

It ended at the Point and we dipped and dived the rest of the way to the parking area. We climbed the lookout tower. Far below us were the canal and locks still appearing small and insignificant because of the distance. "Why can't we go down there?" Harry complained. "We used to be able to almost touch the boats at the old locks. Let's go down there." But there was no chance of that. Barbed wire and signs surrounded that area as if it had been a satellite launching platform.

Tourists were arriving and leaving at an amazing rate even though it was only 10.30 a.m. They didn't stay long for there was nothing to see. We weren't even allowed to go to the ru[in] surrounded cemetery. We left.

"Now it will be shorter if we go up the old No. 2 Highway instead of going back to town," I said. So I drove off the Queen's new road and up the familiar, old, narrow one. About a mile up there I stopped suddenly. Directly ahead fou[r], good, sturdy, cedar posts firmly planted in the pavement blo[cked] the road.

There we were. Cars sp[ed] by the corner a mile ahead bu[t] we sat there with the old cana[l] on our left, a newly formed pond [on] our right and a narrow road [in]

JUST ANTS

An alarm went out the other day that smoke was curling from the tower of the handsome Gothic Cathedral in Frankfurt, Germany.

Seven policemen, with heavy firefighting equipment on their backs, huffed and puffed up the steep tower in the heat.

When they got to the top, they found clouds of flying ants manoeuvring in and out of the delicate red stonework.

Presbyterian men meet at Prescott

The Presbyterian Laymen's Council held their regular meeting in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Prescott, on Tuesday night, August 4. The meeting was under the direction of president Doug Tannahill, Winchester, and the objective of the Council to guide the men of the Church along the path of effective Christian witness and service was clearly formed.

The opening exercises were conducted by Rev Earl Smith, of Brockville, and a Bible study period under the theme "The Rock Is Shaken."

During the business portion of the meeting full discussion was encountered concerning programs and projects for the month of September. It is quite evident that the Presbyterian Men of the Presbytery are forging ahead.

The next meeting will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Prescott, on Tuesday evening, August 18.

Representatives were present from the following congregations: Prescott, Cardinal, Chesterville, Brockville, Morewood, Mountain, Winchester, Kemptville, A visitor, Marvin Farrant, of Cascade, B.C., was welcomed to the meeting.

It was eggs, not yeggs, that Mrs Gussie Simmons, Boston, heard in her kitchen the other evening.

She called police and reported she believed there was a prowler in her kitchen.

"There is a loud, rattling noise," she reported.

Two patrolmen went to the house and found two hard-boiled eggs rattling around in a waterless, red-hot pan.

Mrs Simmons had put the eggs on to boil and forgot them.

The Arabs invaded Egypt in A.D. 639 and some remained as nomadic herdsmen.

Meyer–MacPherson

Miss Margaret Elizabeth MacPherson, B.A., A.R.C.T., teacher at Morrisburg High School, daughter of Rev and Mrs A. G. MacPherson, Hagersville, became the bride of Hunter Arnold Meyer, son of Mrs Arnold Meyer and the late Mr Meyer, of Morrisburg, at Hagersville United Church.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Donald S. MacPherson, of Toronto. The ceremony was performed by her father, Rev A. G. MacPherson.

Mrs William Aberdien, Mrs Joseph Dohrowolski and Miss Heather MacPherson were the bride's attendants. A. Reynolds, Morrisburg, was best man and ushers were Neil Coir and Hugh MacPherson.

The wedding music was played by Mrs David Beaton, of Toronto. Mrs Joseph Dohrowolski sang "O Lord Most Holy" and "Where 'er You Walk."

A reception was held in the church hall, under the direction of the Woman's Association. The toast to the bride was proposed by J. M. Aiken, Orangeville, and responded to by the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the Maritimes, Mr and Mrs Meyer will reside at Stratford where Mr Meyer is employed as a civil engineer with Ontario Department of Highways.

Guests were in attendance from Chesterville, Morrisburg, Prescott, Oakville, Toronto, Meaford, Douglas and Flesherton.

Peel cucumbers and remove seeds. Peel onions and tomatoes. Put all through meat grinder. Add vinegar and simmer until vegetables are tender. Combine salt, flour, seasonings and sugar. While wood warms the vision, it also helps cool the house. That's one reason why wood panelled cabinets and walls are so popular in the kitchen. The natural insulation of the material is no small consideration when the pots are boiling.

neath. Had I been alone I might be there yet. I wouldn't have tried to back out for any money and I'd have been scared stiff to try to turn.

Harry got out to investigate. There was a three-foot shoulder between us and the pond so he managed to turn around.

"We must have missed the dead-end signs," I said, trying to excuse the authorities. But we looked and there weren't any. There weren't any at the west end of that piece of old highway either. It looked as if the road block had been placed half way simply to trap visitors. I was disgusted. And until I read in the papers that things have been changed around the Iroquois Lock I don't expect to go back.

Edwin Webster Saskatchewan pioneer

Mr Webster has been a subscriber to the "Record" for many years, and we are pleased to reprint the following taken from the Watrous, Sask., "Manitou."—Ed.

This month when old-timers are getting together and telling stories of personal experiences in the pioneer days, along came our friend, Edwin Webster. Mr Webster has had a slight edge on many of his neighbour farmers, as he was a skilled blacksmith before arriving in this "land of milk and honey" . . . second only to Ed's hometown, Chesterville, Ont., which also claims to be the "land of milk and honey." For many years he did blacksmith work as a sideline, while operating up to 480 acres of land.

Ed Webster took off from Ontario in April, 1905, and landed at Qu'Appelle, Assiniboia, where he spent three years in a blacksmith shop. He was in the country but a few months when the homesteaders, and politicians, decided that a new province was necessary, so Saskatchewan appeared on the map. In May, 1910, Ed Webster arrived in Watrous, then hitch-hiked back to Venn and opened a blacksmith shop there. Besides looking after the repair jobs for the homesteaders, Ed fed a half-dozen bachelor boarders in his shack. Everything went fine and money poured in, said Ed, until the municipal officials allowed women to invade the village in 1910. "Life has never been the same since."

It was in 1910 that Miss Bertha Anderson of Renown was offered a position as cook at Venn, wages $40 per month, and this apperently, was Ed's downfall. According to the records, Ed Webster and Bertha Anderson were married on the townsite. It was also in 1910 that Ed filed on his homestead south-west of Renown. He continued his homestead requirements and operatel his blacksmith shop in Venn, until 1913 when he disposed of the business to Messrs Clements & Erickson. Then, he set up in business on the homestead and operated a blacksmith shop for several years. For some 25 years Ed Webster was part-time employee of J. A. Findlay "The Blacksmith," in Watrous. In addition to his farm and blacksmithing work, Ed Webster also represented his division on Wood Creek Council for eight years.

Mr and Mrs Webster retired from the farm to reside in Watrous some 10 years ago. They have one son and three daughters.

Mrs Webster was a daughter of Mr and Mrs O. T. Anderson, who homesteaded in 1905 within sight of the present hamlet of Renown. That was five years before the CPR line came through this district. During the first year the Andersons did their shopping at Davidson, the next year at Nokomis. In the late fall of 1907 Watrous appeared on the map.
