C.N.I.B. canvass being conducted in United Counties

More than 7,000 volunteer workers assisted the Canadian National Institute for the Blind in a year to serve 24,000 blind Canadians, it was revealed in the annual report of the C.N.I.B. for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1961.

Many of the volunteers served on its Advisory Boards and Committees. Each of the three United Counties has an Advisory Board which advises on the raising and spending of funds. The chairmen for the Advisory Boards for the three United Counties are: Keith Graham, Chesterville, for Dundas; M. R. Salhani, Cornwall, for Stormont, and Air Commodore N. F. Mossop, Alexandria, for Glengarry.

The annual budget for the C.N.I.B. for the three United Counties is approximately $21,000. This is to provide service to 175 blind persons and approximately 180 people who require preventive treatment. In the City of Cornwall the C.N.I.B. is a member of the Community Chest Association but in other parts of the counties funds are raised by public subscription supplemented by grants from the City of Cornwall and the United Counties Council.

During the month of September volunteer workers in the three United Counties under the sponsorship of interested organizations, such as branches of the Women's Institute, will canvass for funds to provide C.N.I.B. services. The C.N.I.B. appeals for financial help once during the year and all funds raised in the United Counties are used for service within these counties. Every dollar raised helps to rehabilitate a blind person or to prevent a person from becoming blind.

Mr. Mrs H. S. Markell celebrate 50th anniversary

More than 200 relatives and friends of Mr and Mrs Herbert S. Markell of Ingleside, gathered at their home Wednesday afternoon and evening, the event being the celebration of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

In their home which was beautifully arranged with many floral settings, they had the pleasure of entertaining their two daughters, Mrs Howard (Beatrice) Smith and her husband of Fullerton, California, Mrs Florence Lancaster of Tottenham, Ontario, and their son Stuart, his wife and three children of Ingleside.

A special guest of honor was Mrs Markell's mother, Mrs Mina Wyatt, who is approaching her 95th birthday and who has always made her home in this district. Other out-of-town guests included Mrs Markell's sister and her husband, Mr and Mrs Preston Gilmore of St. Petersburg, Florida and Mrs Hilda Warner of Pense, Saskatchewan, together with a number of guests from Ottawa.

A letter of congratulations was sent by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and also Grant P. Campbell, M.P., telegrams were received from relatives in Longview, Washington, Reno, Nevada and Marathon, Ontario, and a phone message from Mr Peter Manley, M.P.P.

Mr and Mrs Markell received many beautiful gifts and during the evening a purse was presented by the visiting neighbours and friends.

During the afternoon festivities Miss Lottie Wyatt and Mrs Gladstone Warner presided over the tea table and in the evening Mrs Henry Shaver and Mrs Fred Crygerman served coffee.

There were several persons present who were at the wedding which took place at the North Lunenburg Church, fifty years ago.

Mr and Mrs Markell have four other grandchildren in Tottenham who were unable to be present at the celebration.

A dinner to celebrate the fourth anniversary of Mr and Mrs Howard Smith was held at the home of Mr and Mrs Markell with visiting members of the family in attendance.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our thanks and appreciation to all our kind friends and relatives for messages of sympathy, cards and floral tributes received after the death of our dear mother, Mrs Wallace Rogers.

Daughters Florence and Joan and families.

High School News

Miss Montcalm's bending exercises in physical education have been put to good use. It seems, girls or no girls, football practice must go on—across the front sidewalk.

Track and field workouts are going forward. Such things as 80- and 120-yard dashes, softball throw, running and standing broad jumps and the high jumps are being practised.

The girls taking home economics this year are busy buying material for aprons and pot-holders. Each class was divided into three groups and were assigned to assorted jobs. Grade Nines have made sandwiches. The Grade Tens have made afternoon tea and chocolate chip cookies.

The Grade Nine boys have learned the fundamental use of some of the shop tools. Next week I'll tell you their first project.

Mr Blondin, our Science teacher, is having a hopping good time collecting little leopard frogs and grasshoppers to be examined in class if they can be held down long enough.

The following students who graduated last June are continuing their education:

Johanna Bollegraaf at Ryerson Institute of Technology in Toronto; Elaine Kyle has entered the School of Nursing at Cornwall General Hospital; Dennis Lightfoot at Eastern Institute of Technology in Ottawa; Carol McIntosh at an Ottawa business college; Marlene Merkley at the Brockville Business College.

Nico van Kats is attending university at St. John's, Quebec; Wilhemina Van t'Foort at Calvin College in the U.S.A., and Elwood Whittaker is studying Chartered Accountancy in Ottawa.

Graduates of last year who have completed their first year at university and are starting their second year are Robert Bugden at Queen's University in Kingston, Benno van Kats at the Royal Military College in Kingston; Charles Graham at Carleton University in Ottawa, and Robert Gilroy, at Teachers' College, Ottawa.

Strike !!

Last week Newington Bowling Lanes opened with a crash of falling pins. The schedules are coming together well and every night promises a full house for the season. This year the lanes have been newly finished and are in as good a condition as when they were built in 1958, according to Mrs Lyle Forsyth, who operates the lanes. The popular sport draws many from this district with 24 scheduled players from the village here. The annual banquet last year catered to 215. In our top photo ladies of the Friday night schedule are busy setting 'em up and knocking them down. In the bottom picture, John Gove, president of the Newington Mixed League, and Doug Zeran, president of the Lanes, get the games going officially.—Record Photo.

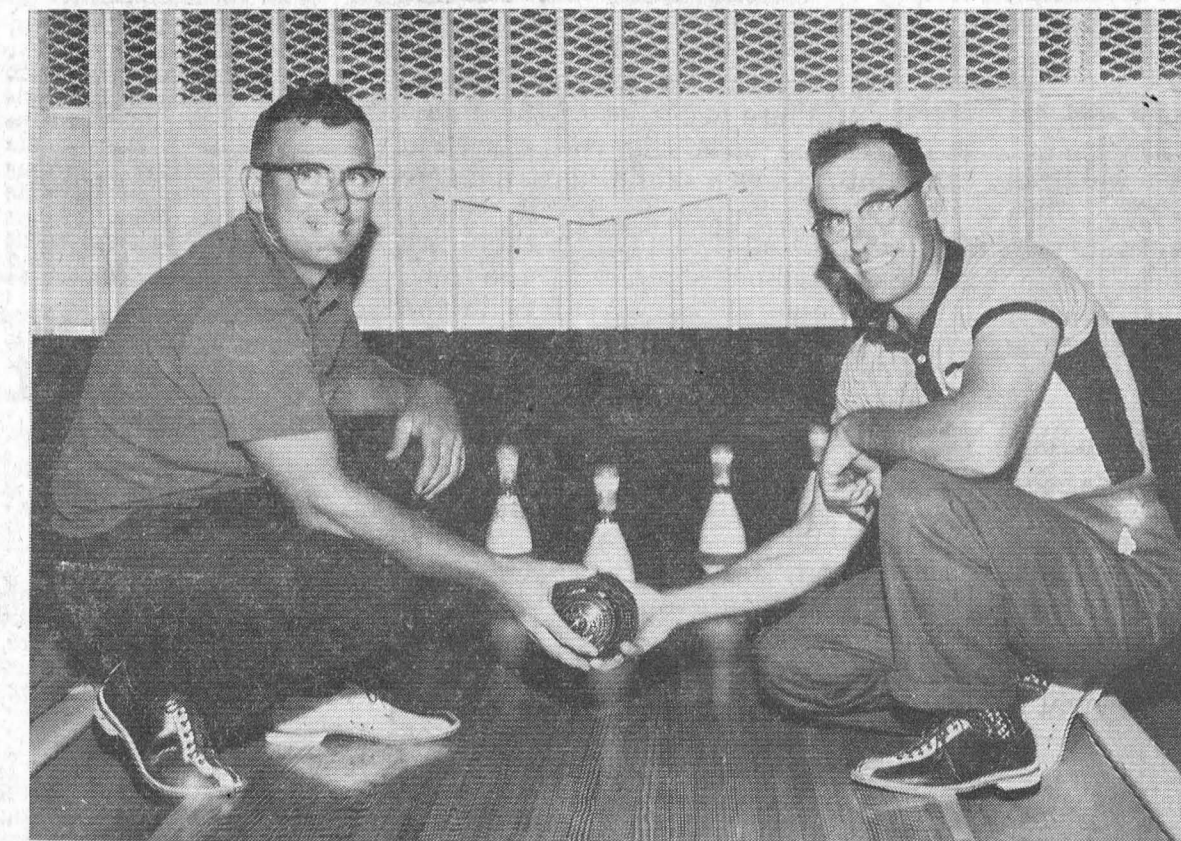

Council discusses school with Winchester reps.

Last week Chesterville village council met for a short meeting with reeve John Fader and councillor George Elliott, Winchester. The Winchester men were representing their council. Reeve Fader explained he and councillor Elliott had been sent to this village to explore the attitude of Chesterville council towards an abandonment of the two-school idea for the North Dundas High School District and return to a central school plan.

Chesterville council was unalterably opposed to the idea.

Sydney Morris must have spent all summer feeding a monster carrot he brought to the "Record" office this week. The big root, with only one solid, sound core when opened, weighed 2 1/2 pounds, was 11 inches around and 9 1/2 inches long. That would be the quickest and neatest way to get a couple of pounds of carrots we know of.

Colquhoun W.M.S. 75th anniversary

Duck season opens Sat. morning at dawn

Some confusion has appeared in the ranks of would-be duck hunters over the proper time and date of the season in this district.

This is the Central District and the season opens Sept. 23 at one half hour before sunrise. That is next Saturday. It has always been understood many duck hunters have fast watches the first day. They are inclined to start shooting at shadows before the moon has set. This year the Department of Lands and Forest men may be on hand here and there to reset the watches, if need be.

A sign outside a Thames-side boatyard in West London says: "Trespassers will be drowned."

On Wednesday, September 13, Colquhoun Women's Missionary Society celebrated their 75th anniversary.

The Society was formed on November 14, 1886, by Miss Ida Scott. The first president was Mrs Alex Colquhoun. At that time Colquhoun Church was Presbyterian and was in the same charge as Chesterville and Dunbar. In 1925, at the time of church union, Colquhoun and Williamsburg became one charge.

Other past presidents have been Mrs Ed Colquhoun, Mrs Sam Kyle, Mrs Wm. Wallace, Mrs Wesley Dawson, Mrs Harold Weagant, Mrs R. C. Colquhoun and Mrs Lloyd Gallinger.

In the afternoon guests were welcomed by the president, Mrs Graham Wells. Mrs R. C. Colquhoun and Mrs John Colquhoun were in charge of the worship service.

An "In Memoriam" was read in the afternoon by Mrs G. Wright and in the evening by Mrs M. Gow, and a minute's silence was observed in memory of departed members.

Mrs Wellwood Adam gave a piano solo and the message was delivered by Mrs W. Merrill, of Morrisburg. Greetings were extended by Mrs A. Morrison, Ingleside Branch president of Montreal-Ottawa Conference.

Corsages of red roses were presented to the three past presidents by Mrs J. M. Carkner.

In the evening, the worship service was in charge of Mrs W. Adam and the message was given by Mrs Ray Leizert, Cardinal Presbyterian president. Mrs Barkley, Elma, favoured the audience with a solo and two numbers were presented by a quartette of Elma girls.

The hall was decorated with white streamers and bells and banked with baskets of autumn flowers.

The tea table was centred with a beautiful three-tiered cake. Tea was poured in the afternoon by Mrs R. C. Colquhoun and Mrs T. Swedfeger, and in the evening by Mrs W. Adam and Mrs J. Colquhoun. About 140 signed the guest book.

Greetings were brought from the following places: Morrisburg, Robertson, Williamsburg, Winchester Springs, Winchester, Elma, Morewood, Chesterville, Dunbar and Ingleside.

The first school libraries in Ontario were established in 1850.

Local dealer high quota winner

Leon McMillan, local M-F dealer for this district was the recipient of a number of valuable prizes recently as well as a substantial purse of money.

Leon came up with 222% over-plus on his year's quota on his company's tractor sales. As a result he received the following items as prizes: One 4-piece Giffard bedroom set; one Kodak movie projector; one electric coffee pot; one carpenter tool set; one well-filled purse of folding green stuff.

We add our congratulations to the winner. We like especially the remarks the successful young dealer made when we checked on the above. He said, and we quote: "Advertising locally in the 'Record' had a large part to play in getting such a high sales record."

Rev Douglas Fry, Iroquois, and former minister here of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was the featured speaker of Chesterville Rotary last Monday night. His subject covered the "Initiative, Inventions and Individuality of Man." He was introduced by J. F. Moriarty and thanked by Harry Bowden. President Carl Merkley was in charge of the meeting. The most important item of business was that of arranging details of the monster chicken barbecue to be staged Sunday, October 1.

There was a time in the history of man when furnaces were not a problem to approach every Fall with a certain amount of trepidation. According to history and Carbon 14 tests, man was satisfied then to depend on a bonfire for cooking heat and the little woman for evening warmth. He dressed in skins and kept ahead of the cold weather by living farther and farther south. When he found a cave he holed up in the same and if it turned cool, he emulated wine and stayed there without stirring until the weather changed. There was always the pastime of painting on the walls if time hung heavily. It is possible that this is the original beginning of some of the art found on certain public facility walls. It has degenerated somewhat from the original outlines of bulls.

It falls our lot to be custodian of a couple of the balkiest furnaces in Chesterville. Just about the time the v.p. starts to get the "outside window" look in her eye, we are called upon to wring the neck of the cranky oil furnace, tickle its controls with a hopeless feeling of insecurity, then touch her off. Usually the results are astounding, to say the least, and result in an immediate call to the nearest furnace man.

At one time our ambition exceeded our common sense, to the degree we installed a complete burner unit ourselves. We spent days scrounging various bits of wire, controls, fire brick and assorted items, hard to get after the late hostilities. Then to work we went. The construction went along fairly well. There was some small outcry from the family when we bored a hole for the thermostat wire. It was supposed to come up into a partition from below. Instead, the big bit burst shyly through the hardwood floor in the front room. We had measured the wrong partition. Finally came the day to turn on the juice. It was turned on and nothing happened. We dug a bit at the magic box and still nothing happened. That called for drastic action and we took it. We hit the thing with a hammer, and lo, still nothing happened.

The only thing left, then, according to our way of thinking was to look inside the firepot and see if she was squirting. We did, the furnace popped, and from then on things happened rather suddenly. We lost our amateur standing instantly, as well as a complete set of eyebrows; a frizzled mustache appeared and we acquired the most instantaneous blackface make-up seen this side of Broadway. From then on the furnace worked well, but for days we slept in the barn. It took that long to get the nerves under control and stop flinching every time the furnace started up.

Ever since those early days, we have fought furnaces. The move to the humming metropolis of Chesterville only added another pair of evil iron monsters to our worries. Just this week, the emporium of sweetness and light where we spend the lazy days resounded to the call of the mating furnace. This Crumb has sworn for years furnaces start the rut about the same time as the moose and emit about the same noises. We were resting quietly amid the lovely noise of others' labour, when the thing in the cellar took off. There first was a gentle rumbling, as she pulled herself together, then a gulping, rumbling rattle, like an elephant with a gas problem, and finally a climactic "ker-whoomp" that is the best stovepipe remover in the business.

With no barn to retreat to anymore, we called the plumber, and headed for the west keep of the Castle. There surrounded by and surrounding nerve restoratives of one sort and another, we waited out the operation. It appeared the old hot box had developed a cracked porcelain or something, and her cry of pain was a natural result of the injured part. For the next few days we will expect solicitous attention from the b's in the b.s. It has always been demonstrated a case of furnace nerves can only be cured by the sight of ducks across the decoys. We might just have to take that drastic cure to get the sound of balky furnaces out of mind.

OURS AND OTHERS

How about surviving a bomb?

The world is in a mess. What with Mr K rattling his rockets and the free world's statesmen rattling right back, things are getting so it is just a little perilous to overlook elementary safety measures of survival. Even here in the bucolic surroundings of Chesterville, danger is only as far away as the unsettled world will allow it to be.

It has been said in profound seriousness that a nuclear war will wipe out 50 per cent of the world's civilized population in a very short time. The remaining 50 per cent will survive through a number of factors, one of the most important of which is some measure of preparation before the event.

This area of Canada is not too likely to suffer the effects of a direct clobbering if a war should start. But we do live in fairly close proximity to important segments of Canada's industrial and governing world. In the event of a war, who knows where missiles may be aimed, and it would be well to assume the worst so that survival is assured.

We hate to enter the world of scare and worry through these pages. But it would appear to this writer, the final resort to safety is being slowly and inexorably aimed to our own initiative. Governments can set policy and set armies in motion; decisions affecting masses of humanity will be taken and are being taken with due care and attention to the mass. Joe, himself, here at home, will have to do the best he can when all the power and might is unleashed and the individual is only a mote in the world's upheaval.

Any time now would be a good time to get going on that cellar conversion. The empty cistern is a good place to start, and there are a lot of them now in the village since the water system came into being. While blast damage will remove a house or wreck it, we are more interested in knowing there are sufficient fall-out shelters in the town to offer some degree of safety in the event of nuclear war. Outside of the village, where the housing of farm animals must be taken care of, the problem is even more complicated. But even here Emergency Measures Organization personnel have some answers. Throughout the Counties work of organization is going forward through the various farm groups.

Shelter plans are available to everyone if they care to ask for them. A note to EMO, P.O. Box 218, Cornwall, and the request for Basement Fallout Shelter booklet will soon have the plans in your hands. The cost is nil.

If you think you are alone in your worry for survival, stop being alone right now. Ask your neighbour what he has been thinking about the last few weeks.

Will he run?

One of the interesting guessing games of the district for the past few weeks is whether the Hon. F. M. Cass, Minister of Highways for Ontario, is going to enter the race for premier of this province. Now that Mr Frost has declared his intention to open the position to the ambitious members of his party, much speculation has risen about his successor.

Fred Cass would make a worthy successor to the squire of Lindsay. He has demonstrated his capabilities to the province in the responsible position of Minister of Highways; there is little doubt the highways and byways of the province have benefitted from his attention to his ministry.

There was never any question about the Cass touch when it came to practical tical politics. He has the necessary skill and organizational ability that must be a part of responsible democratic processes. He has also shown a stamina in office that amazes his friends and augurs well for his developing importance in the provincial government of the day.

By the time the "Record" is printed and delivered on Thursday, the riding may have a better idea of the ambitions of its MLA. A meeting Tuesday night in Spencerville will choose delegates for the leadership convention in Toronto in October. By Tuesday night, local Conservatives may have the word the whole of Eastern Ontario has been wondering about.

Will Fred run?

NOW IS THE TIME TO PLANT TULIPS

Now is the time to plant tulips. You can plant anytime from mid-September until the ground freezes. The earlier the planting is finished, the better the root system will become before freezing.

"Certain practices should be followed to have a good tulip planting," says Professor J. C. Taylor, O.A.C. horticulturist.

Soil preparation is important. Tulips require a well-drained site and should be planted in full sun. It is a good practice to prepare the soil by digging in a well-rotted manure, or other organic matter such as peat or leaf mold. Also add superphosphate at the rate of two pounds per 100 square feet. The manure should be spread over the entire bed for a depth of 2" and dug into the soil. In heavy soils, the addition of sand will improve drainage and aeration and give better root development. Don't plant bulbs directly into the manure.

If you are buying new bulbs, buy them from a reliable dealer in order to be sure of top-quality, disease-free bulbs. Bigger bulbs give bigger flowers. If you are re-using bulbs from last year, throw away all bulbs with signs of disease and suspicious markings. Small bulbs should not be re-planted, as they may lack flower bulbs and won't flower in the spring.

After the bed is thoroughly prepared, set the bulbs on the surface of the ground in the location selected and space them in the pattern desired. For circular clumps, use a spacing of between three and four inches; in a formal tulip bed, a spacing of six to eight inches between the bulbs is practical.

Plant the tulips about four inches deep. In sandy soils or with larger bulbs, it may be necessary to plant as deep as five or six inches.

An idea: Label the varieties correctly so that next spring you will be able to re-order the varieties you especially liked.

CONTROL LAWN WEEDS IN THE FALL

If you've been wondering all summer what to do about the weeds in your lawn, now's the time to get busy.

"The rainfall and cool weather in September make both grasses and weeds grow more rapidly—the fastest since May or June. This is the time to control dandelions, creeping Charlie, mouse-eared chickweed, black medick and other lawn weeds," says Dr. C. M. Switzer of the Botany Department at the Ontario Agricultural College.

The chemical 2,4-D is still the cheapest and most readily available weedkiller and it does an excellent job of controlling dandelions and plantain. However, black medick, creeping Charlie, and mouse-eared chickweed are not as readily controllable with 2,4-D as they are with two newer chemicals called silvex and mecoprop (sometimes called MCPP). These chemicals will kill clover too.

Silvex, mecoprop or 2,4-D can be sprayed on. Take care that you use enough water to wet the leaves. Use one ounce of active 2,4-D to four gallons of water. This amount will cover approximately 2,500 square feet. Apply mecoprop at the rate of 1½ ounces per five gallons of water and silvex at one ounce per five gallons of water.

What are the dangers attached to these chemicals? Very similar to 2,4-D. Spray on a windless day; keep the spray away from ornamental flowers and shrubs that might be damaged. Silvex will kill bentgrass so should not be used on a lawn containing this species. Mecoprop can be used safely on most species of turf grass, including bentgrass.

SPEEDY POLICE

Smash-and-grab crooks soon may be in for a rough time. London's police force has been equipped with sports cars capable of 130 miles an hour to chase get-away cars.

FALL TREATMENT TO CONTROL WARBLE GRUBS

During recent years a number of systematic insecticides have been licensed for use in Canada. Some are applied as a spray, others are used in special feeds. In either case treatment is applied or administered in the fall of the year.

According to W. P. Watson, Ontario Live Stock Commissioner, tests conducted in this province reveal that these insecticides are quite effective in destroying the tiny larvae of warble grubs when used in accordance with directions. Thus the grubs are eliminated before they have an opportunity of damaging the hide or of causing serious discomfort to their hosts. Incidentally, Mr Watson warns that these products should not be used on lactating dairy cows from which milk in any form is being used for human consumption. He also points out that there is a withholding period between the date of treatment and the date of slaughter. Consequently farmers intending to use these products in treating steers or other cattle that might be slaughtered should read the instructions carefully and follow them meticulously.

Some farmers residing in townships where the Warble Fly Control Act is in force have been asking the question: If cattle are treated in the fall will it be necessary to treat them again the following spring? According to Mr Watson the Act is quite specific on this point: owners are not required to treat cattle that are free of warble grubs. Consequently where the fall treatment is 100 per cent effective there should be no grubs in the backs of cattle the following spring; thus the necessity for a spring treatment is eliminated. Furthermore, cattle that have been fall treated invariably make more satisfactory gains than ones infested with warble grubs.

NEW CARS IN PROFUSION

If Canadians were confused by a multiplicity of car models last year, they'll be bewildered by the new offering coming up, says Ralph P. Young in The Financial Post. Many of the 1962 model automobiles will be on display in dealer showrooms by the end of this month.

Not since the days before World War I, when there were dozens of companies making cars, has there been such a variety of automobiles from which to make a choice.

The trend? It's going in all directions at once. There are completely new cars in the lower end of the price range. These will be "intermediate" cars bigger than current compacts, but smaller than "standard" cars. Other cars in the "medium-priced" range are being upgraded, with modest increases in size in some cases, and a generally more massive outward look and more luxurious interior appearance. There will be more "sporty" models in the smaller sized cars.

Mr and Mrs Marshall Page, of Toronto, were guests this week of Mr and Mrs Ernest Allison.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

Last weekend there were six deaths in the Ottawa area. One person was killed when a gun went off accidentally. No doubt, as the song says, "He didn't know the gun was loaded." Two people were drowned in Big Rideau Lake and three were killed in highway accidents. Half the fatalities were traffic accidents.

The statistics on traffic accidents are staggering. Of course I can't remember them. The only one I can ever recall is that if all the people who go to sleep in church were laid end to end they'd be a lot more comfortable. Seriously though it seems there are more and more accidents on our roads every year — every holiday week-end.

About two weeks ago I was among those who listened as an Ontario Provincial Policeman talked at Elma W.I. on traffic accidents. He told us what his department is doing in an effort to lessen the number of highway deaths and accidents. And they are really interested in saving lives and limbs not just in imposing fines and confiscating licenses.

They have a huge map of Eastern Ontario at O.P.P. headquarters in Cornwall. Whenever an accident occurs the spot is marked with a coloured pin. Different coloured pins show different types of accident. Soon a pattern forms. They find that there have been several incidents at a certain corner, for example, so some officers are sent out there to investigate. Perhaps the corner is poorly engineered. Perhaps it can't be taken safely except at a very low speed. So they recommend it be improved.

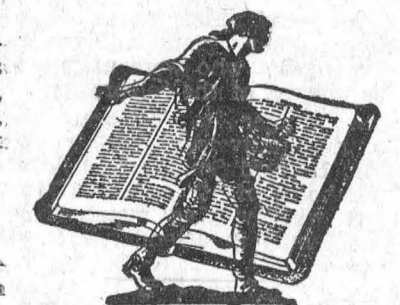

If a series of accidents occur on a straight highway the boys in blue take out their radar equipment to check on speeds. The few who get caught may serve as a warning to others. Cruisers patrolling the roads serve as a deterrent to those with heavy feet too.

But people are funny. They seem to take particular delight in out-witting the cops. There is a sort of sign language of the road to warn approaching motorists of a radar speed-trap. Drivers who wouldn't dream of driving at dangerous speeds themselves will warn those who do.

The Department of Transport is doing its best to teach safety on our roads. You must have seen the huge trailer at Chesterville Fair with its seat belt exhibit, its vision-testing equipment, etc. The idea was to offer a few safety hints to passersby. The Ontario Government has another idea now. They're con-

TODAY . . .

Among the illustrious names of Canadian men and women, the old province of Canada, which we know as the Maritime Provinces, has provided no inconsiderable list.

An important event in the history of the Maritimes was the formation of a Bible Society in 1818 which now, as part of the Canadian Bible Society, under the distinguished presidency of Mr Harvey R. Doane, C.A., aids greatly in the distribution of the Scriptures.

Two men, a century apart, distinguished themselves in the field of translation. In 1853, the Rev Silas Round translated some portions of the New Testament into the Micmac language for the Indians of Nova Scotia.

In 1953, a native New Brunswicker, and graduate of Acadia University, Wolfville, N.S., Rev Perry B. Allaby, began the translation of the Acts into the Sora tongue. This is the language of a tribe living about half-way between Madras and Calcutta in India, where Mr Allaby served under the Canadian Baptist Mission Board. Mr Allaby's work was a continuation of a translation of the Gospel of John and the Book of Proverbs by Miss Ann Munroe, a missionary from Fort William.

Mr Allaby's wife, the former Edith McNaughton, of Grand Manan Island, N.B., produced 500 mimeographed copies of the Acts from stencils written in long-hand. Matthew, Luke, Romans, I and II Corinthians were produced on a typewriter modified to write the special symbols of the Sora tongue, and copies were mimeographed.

While on furlough in Nova Scotia in 1960, Mr Allaby completed the New Testament translation which, after approval by the Indian Translations Committee, was published by the Bri-sidering testing drivers every two or three years and refusing licenses to those who cannot qualify. It would be a splendid way to help ease the unemployment for it would require hundreds to administer such a scheme and test individual drivers. But it would do little to solve the problems.

It might weed out a few older licenses whose eyesight is failing or whose rheumatism is a real handicap. But these cause very few accidents. These drivers know their limitations. They might get the odd woman driver who doesn't know what to do at a four way stop because she only drives on the back concessions once a month to get to W.I.

They wouldn't get the dare-devils, the speeders and the impaired. These would pass a driving test with flying colours. They know the rules. They can handle a car. They're expert drivers. If they weren't they'd have been dead years ago.

They wouldn't get the lazy driver who double-parks. Or the roadhog who demands that he be first across an intersection. They couldn't sort out the fellow with such complete disregard for other people that he will try driving while drinking. They'd never find the envious driver who can't stand to be passed by a bigger or better car. Or the man who gets mad when another driver makes a small error. They wouldn't find the proud driver who gets a great sense of power when he's behind the wheel and wants to rule the road.

No, frequent driving tests wouldn't sort out the dangerous drivers. They're mechanically perfect. It is their mental attitudes that are wrong.

It takes hundreds of nuts to hold a car together but one nut behind the wheel can scatter it all over the road. What we need are ways of educating or eliminating the "nuts" behind the wheels of cars.

Many new cars are finished with lacquers, I read recently but for a permanent finish liquor is best.

"The drinking driver, one with three or four drinks in him, is the greatest hazard on the road," a Toronto lawyer said not long ago.

When we can find a way to get rid of the "nuts" behind the wheels of cars and those drivers who choose beverages stronger than Nescafe then our highways will be safer for us all. And it's high time they were.

PERENNIAL BORDERS NEED ATTENTION NOW

September is the time to take a critical look at the perennial border in your garden, says John A. Weall, O.A.C. horticulturist.

Check the planting to see if any of the plants need re-arrangement or division. Check the colour, height and time of bloom. Make a plan for any new arrangement you may want.

Before you start transplanting plants, know which plants can be moved and which should not be moved. Peonies are deep-rooted and don't take well to change. Other plants that don't like to be moved are babies-breath and anemones.

Plants that spread quickly should be divided and transplanted. Bergamot, helonium, Michaelmas daisies, iris and phlox are included in this group. Mr Weall feels that hollyhocks, lupins, columbines, and delphiniums all need new stock — the practice of division is not too successful.

These are the rules for dividing plants: First, choose a dull day. Next, be sure you have a workable plan. Then make the holes for the new plants. Lift out the old clump and divide it into three or four sections, being careful not to expose the roots to the air for too long. Plant the divisions in their new position as soon as they are divided.

Immediately after planting the plants well and continue this thorough watering two weeks. Replant as early as possible in September, so the plants will have time to firmly rooted before winter.

BARREL MAKING TAUGHT IN SCOTLAND

An old craft that is unlikely to die out while whisky is still drunk is that of coopering, or the making of barrels, for there is no finer method of maturing whisky than in barrels made of wood. In a recent edition of the BBC General Overseas Service program "Scottish Magazine," Andy Cowan-Martin described a visit he had paid to Scotland's first school for teaching the trade at a big cooperage in Glasgow.

It would take five years, he said, before the young trainees could be classified as skilled coopers, who today earn a high wage. During the first three years they would learn the basic handicraft, following the various processes from the time when the wood, white American oak in prime condition, was delivered.

"First the shaping of the staves, then the steaming to get the barrel bend on them, then the hooping and drying out. If the barrels are to hold whisky the insides will be slightly charred because this helps the whisky to mature. After that a certain amount of sherry will be poured into the barrels and will be forced into the wood by compressed air. Sherry also helps whisky to mature in the barrel. Compressed air to force the sherry deep into the wood is a comparatively new method, which gets a barrel ready to hold whisky in a matter of days. The old way was to leave the sherry soak in, and this took several weeks."

After three years the learners graduate to making barrels alongside a master cooper for a further two years, learning among other things that a cooper wastes nothing. "The wood cuttings are made into bungs for the barrels; the chips are used to cure fish by smoking and the sawdust is burned to smoke them."

THE OLDEST NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD

The Stationery Office in London, or to give it its full name, Her Majesty's Stationery Office, is the largest publisher in the world. A. H. MacDonald gave an idea of the vast range of its work when he spoke in the BBC's Caribbean Service recently about the travelling exhibitions which are touring the West Indies, In-

Because of the tremendous interest in Upper Canada Village, it has been decided that the Village will remain open through Thanksgiving to October 10.

Effective after September 17, all major buildings, with staff in attendance, will be open from 9:30 a.m. until 5 p.m. daily. It has been arranged that Willard's and the snack bar will be operating.

Because of the attendance at this time of year, it has been found necessary to restrict some services, and reduce the admission fee to $1 for adults, children under 16, free.

It is anticipated that by extending the closing date, more than 200,000 people will have visited this historic village and that well over a million persons will, by then, have visited the parks under the jurisdiction of the commission.

dia and West Germany.

Last year the Stationery Office published over 5,000 titles, and in addition its presses turn out such things as insurance stamps, passports, and about 70,000,000 postal orders a month.

"The Stationery Office also prints and publishes 'The London Gazette,' the oldest newspaper in the world," Mr. MacDonald said. "It was founded in 1665 to carry official announcements when King Charles II and his Court, because of the Great Plague of London, had moved for a year to Oxford. In the following year, 1666, the 'London Gazette' printed the only contemporary record of the Great Fire which destroyed half of London."

"Since then, the 'London Gazette' has appeared without a break for almost three hundred years and at one historic period in its career was the most important newspaper in Britain. Nowadays, in rather a different form, it makes its appearance twice a week, still the medium for official announcements and legal notices."

J. R. Schwerdtfeger

He was a son of the late Aaron Schwerdtfeger and his wife, Lynn Froats, of Williamsburg Township. Forty years ago he married Mildred Edwards, who survives. He also leaves two sons, Lyle, on the home farm, and Carl, Morrisburg, and two grandchildren.

Mr. Schwerdtfeger farmed all his adult life at Williamsburg Township, where he was born and received his education. Two years ago he retired and he and Mrs. Schwerdtfeger took up residence at Morrisburg with their son, Carl. He was a lifetime member of the Lutheran Church. He was a wide reader, he knew his Bible from cover to cover, and in his earlier days had been a keen fisherman.

The funeral was held Sunday from his residence to St. Paul's Lutheran Church, with Rev. F. L. Howald officiating.

Burial was in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Pall bearers were Chas. Hummel, Walter Bowman, Graham Schwerdtfeger and Kenneth Tupper, Morrisburg, and Clifford Tupper and Milton Carkner, of Williamsburg Township.

Relatives were present from Ajax, New Jersey and Ogdensburg.

The many floral tributes and messages of sympathy testified to the esteem in which Mr. Schwerdtfeger was held.

ATOM BOMB TEST FALL-OUT

Recent atom bomb testing raises once again the question of radio-active fall-out and the danger to the public health. From information received it appears that the fall-out from recent tests will be similar in distribution and intensity to that experienced previously.

The amount of radiation from fall-out is expected to be again very slight when compared to the radiation we receive daily from natural sources such as that from the sun. We are now better prepared and better equipped to carry out tests and measure the amount of hazard involved.

Our new Radiation Protection Laboratory will be carrying out tests several times weekly in various areas of this province.

The results of these tests will be added to the results of tests done by the Federal authorities, and thus this Province will be receiving more facts than was previously possible.

From time to time statements will be issued and the public certainly will be informed of any abnormal or unexpected hazard. Exceptional findings are not expected, but a pattern of frequent testing will be maintained in accordance with our "radiation protection" policy. We are now very well equipped to assess any hazard to which our people may be exposed. Our new Laboratory with its skilled staff is already functioning, even though it is yet too early for us to experience maximum effects of recent bomb explosions.

Our main course of action should remain as it has been. We urge all those concerned to see that exposure to controllable radiation is kept to minimum. Unnecessary X-ray exposure should be avoided, but necessary X-ray examinations should not be feared.

Pasture your brood sows and gilts on surplus fall pasture providing it has plenty of legumes in it. So suggests Prof. R. P. Forshaw, OAC swine researcher. Although this is a sound recommendation any time, you'll save more this year due to the present high price of feed grain.

BENT RIM, WHEEL CAN RUIN TIRE

The life of an automobile tire can be considerably shortened and danger to the car and its occupants increased by a bent or dented wheel or rim. Adding to this peril is the fact that rim and wheel damage is not easily noticed. The Canadian Highway Safety Council joins with the Rubber Association of Canada to urge motorists to make regular inspections of rims and wheels. It takes but a few minutes and could save a life.

The vital importance of a car wheel, the contact between car's smooth surface.

and road, is evident. A bent wheel wobbles as it turns, twists and wrings the rubber and wears the tire unevenly. This will destroy the tire. Wheels can be bent by driving in ruts, swerving heavily against curbs, or in accidents.

Driving against a curb can bend a rim. The tire's bead moves a little at every turn of the wheel and in time the tire will chafe through and fail at the point. Rust can pit a rim where the tire fits on, causing leaks with tubeless tires. Rusted rims should be cleaned and polished to remove the scale and restore wheel, the contact between car's smooth surface.

STORING SANDPAPER

A convenient way to store a working supply of sandpaper is on an inexpensive clip board.

Held face down by the clip, the paper stays quite flat, and it is possible to leaf through it in search of the grade needed at the moment. The clip board can be hung in a handy place.

The most useful selection of sandpaper grades for normal work around the house is No. 1 for rough work, 1-0 for speedy sanding that leaves a fairly smooth surface, 3-0 for semi-final smoothing, and 6-0 for the finest work.

BUILD TRAP DOORS FOR HAY, STRAW CHUTES

Recently, an eastern Ontario paper carried this column heading, Fall is fatal to local boy."

This lad of fifteen was not a steeplejack, up a hundred feet; he didn't fall forty feet off a barn roof. All he did was run along a threshing floor and fall through an open hay chute to the concrete floor, a mere nine feet below.

Do we need any further proof, that these hay and straw holes are dangerous? Spending half an hour to build a safe trapdoor to cover YOUR hay chute could save the life of YOUR son, or one of his playmates, suggests Hal Wright, safety specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Why not follow the advice of one of the old proverbs — a stitch in time saves nine.

Community effort all-out in barbecue planning proceeds for rink

The next couple of weeks will be busy ones for a group of village organizations. Sparkplugged by Chesterville Rotary president Carl Merkley, the biggest barbecue ever staged here will take place on Sunday evening, Oct. 1. Frying chickens will tantalize the taste and beans will add the filler up at the Fair grounds with good Nescafe to wash it all down. All proceeds will go towards the upkeep and operation of the village skating rink this coming winter at Community Park.

The Rotary Club, Legion, IOOF, Chamber of Commerce and several other organizations will underwrite and staff the big affair. It is planned to have a ball tournament in the afternoon starting at 2 p.m. Three local teams will compete for the Mel Baker Trophy. By 4 p.m. the smoking hot chickens will be tender and delicious and taste just right in the cool Fall air. Ticket sellers are out in force already and there is no limit on the number any once person can buy. One price, $1.25, will give the buyer a real meal, cooked locally, with all profit to a winter's fun.

The meal will be served from 4 to 8 or until everyone is fed. The ball games are free. Remember the date: Sunday afternoon, Oct. 1.

That ancient fowl

It is hard to imagine what man would do without that commonest of all birds—the domestic fowl, or chicken. It is kept in every part of the globe, except in extremely cold climates, and there are some thirty million in Britain alone—rather less or more according to season.

In a recent broadcast in BBC's "Birds in Britain" program heard regularly by home listeners, ornithologists James Fisher and Derek Goodwin discussed the history of this important species which has been domesticated since ancient times.

Julius Caesar, for instance, recorded that he found it in Britain when he invaded it, although the Ancient Britons kept their domestic fowls for pleasure and did not think it right to eat them. This may have been because they kept them for the sport of cock-fighting, which was highly popular over large areas of the world for long periods, or because of some taboo connected with the fact that they were used for religious sacrifice. They were mentioned, too, by the Greek writers Theognis and Aristophanes, writing between 400 and 500 years before the Christian era. They were brought into Greece from Persia, and presumably came to Persia from farther east. They probably were brought to China from Northern India or the India-Malay area about 1400 B.C.

Goodwin pointed out that in fact this valuable bird has no name, for "fowl" means simply "bird," and "chicken" originally meant a half-grown, or three-quarter-grown bird of the species. As might be expected, it has made many appearances in English literature.

The crowing clock in particular caught the imagination of many poets, and one of the earliest and most vivid mentions is in the "Nun's Priest's Tale" in Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales." "There is a beautifully accurate, almost feather for feather, description of a domestic cock," said Goodwin, "obviously like the old Jungle Fowl type, and in the same poem there is a most delightful description of the courtship and feeding of the domestic fowl—how the cock flies down from the beam in the morning and scratches about in the yard; every time he finds a grain of corn he calls and the hens run to him. There are also in everyday speech quite a number of sayings which have reference to cock-fighting—for example, 'to show the white feather' or 'to come up to scratch'." Apart from its use as a sacrifice—in ancient times—for sport, as food and a supplier of feathers, the chicken had in modern times been used a great deal for scientific experimentation into genetics.

PAINTING BRICK

Paint will not only brighten up dull brickwork but scientific tests have demonstrated that it makes the inside of the building cooler and dryer by preventing moisture seepage.

If the brick is in good condition, however, a clear waterproof coating should be used instead of paint. It will give the same protection but permit the original appearance of the brick to show.

BAD DAY

Bryan Ellis was fined £10 for careless driving at Sherness, Eng., and fell down the steps as he left the court dock. Led away to have a head cut treated, he said: "This just isn't my day."

DENYSE ANGE—Oddly enough, singer Denyse Ange owes her success partly to illness—a bout of laryngitis four years ago which resulted in her distinctive throaty voice. She's currently heard on CBC radio's "Camilleri and Company," Thursdays on the Trans-Canada network.

POTATO WART ENDANGERS EXPORT TRADE

Any Newfie will tell you that his province's potatoes are the best eating kind in the world. In fact, many mainlanders will back him up. Whatever the merits of such a proposition, mainlanders will have to go to Newfoundland to taste the home-grown spud—it cannot be exported from the island because of the presence of potato wart.

A ban against Newfoundland potatoes on this account has been in existence for many years but, this spring, federal and provincial agricultural authorities agreed to enforce more strictly the potato wart quarantine. Besides potatoes, the taking from the island of root plants—turnips, cabbages—plants with soil, and used bagging is forbidden because these are possible carriers of the dreaded potato wart organism. If the pest found its way into the famous potato-growing areas of the Maritimes, Canada would be in danger of losing its important potato seed export trade.

The authorities will continue washing down outgoing cars at St. John's, this port being on the Avalon peninsula where infestation is greatest. It is also proposed to introduce this service at Port au Basque, the point of ferry departure for North Sydney, N.S. Extra precautions were recommended at a recent meeting of the Central Potato Committee of Canada—not necessarily because the disease had become more widespread but because traffic between the island and mainland has greatly increased in recent years. The presence of more travellers and tourists calls for greater care against accidental breach of the quarantine.

Dr. C. W. Farstad, director of the Plant Protection Division of the Canada Department of Agriculture, said his department is extending aid and advice to the Newfoundland authorities in establishing more control over passenger and merchandise traffic to Nova Scotia, and the mainland from Newfoundland. Newfoundland, he said, grows some half a million bushels of potatoes of excellent quality but insufficient to meet the needs of the population. Potato wart makes a tuber unsightly and unmarketable but not altogether inedible. Newfoundlanders rightly regard potatoes as a staple crop of the island and they prefer the local product to imported potatoes. This was a major reason why eradication of potato wart through withdrawal of the crop had not even been considered.

Disinfecting the soil is costly and almost impractical on the island where growing plots are small and numerous. The potato wart organism is very durable and quarantine of an infested area in the United States has only recently been lifted after more than 30 years duration, said Dr. Farstad. Research workers are trying to develop resistant varieties.

4 cups hot seasoned mashed potatoes
1 1/2 cups grated cheese
6 tps. catsup
Dash of Worcestershire sauce
6 eggs
Salt and pepper
Dash garlic salt
Spread half the potatoes in a shallow baking dish. (You could use instant potatoes if you are in a hurry.) Sprinkle with 1 cup cheese. Add remaining potatoes. Make six depressions in potatoes; to each add 1 tsp. catsup and a dash of remaining seasonings. Slip an egg into each depression. Bake in a slow oven, 325 degrees, until eggs are done, about 1 1/2 hour. Sprinkle with 1/4 cup cheese and return to oven to melt cheese.

KEEPING POTATO QUALITY

Too much nitrogen and potash fertilizer may decrease the dry matter content of potatoes and thereby lower their table quality, states Dr D. C. MacKay of the Canada Department of Agriculture's research station at Kentville, N.S.

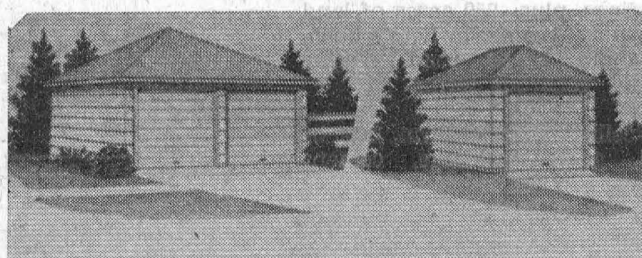

Rates of 160 pounds of actual nitrogen per acre did not seriously affect the dry-matter content of the tubers when the crop matured properly, Dr MacKay found in the three-year tests at Kentville. However, if the tops had to be killed, or the crop harvested before it matured, the dry matter in the tubers was considerably reduced. This he attributed to the heavy application of nitrogen.

Heavy applications of potash also reduce the dry-matter content, a condition aggravated by premature harvesting. It is important that only enough potash be applied to supply the needs of the crop as the effects of this fertilizer remain even at full maturity.

Phosphate fertilizers, on the other hand, have little effect on the dry-matter content of potatoes, said Dr MacKay.
