Editor Of Farm Journal Addresses Rotary On "The Dairy Industry In Canada"

Bryan White, editor of the Ottawa Farm Journal addressed the regular meeting of the Chesterville Rotary Club last Monday evening. Present as guests of the club were H. E. Durant and Howard Kittle of the Boyne, and E. Whiessiel of Chesterville. The speaker was introduced by C. Allison Graham. Vice-President Howard Fulton was in the chair due to the illness of President F. M. Cass.

Mr. White opened his talk by stating that the dairy industry represented $700,000,000 in the economy of Canada. It is of greater value in matter of dollars and cents than any other business in this country. It is greater than the motor industry, mining, pulp and paper, etc.

In reviewing the present depression in the dairy industry, Mr. White drew the listeners' attention to several points. In spite of half the world being underfed and in urgent need of essential food products such as milk, the lack of dollars hinders the free flow of goods to the needful areas. Manufactured milk is piling up in the processors' warehouses as a result of the falling off of the export market. Another cause is to be found in the great expansion of the dairy industry during the war years. The industry met every demand made on it during those difficult times and it has not yet made a complete readjustment to the changed conditions. Margarine was the last and most important item mentioned as a cause of the difficulties.

In Canada today, one person out of every six, gains a livelihood from some part of the dairy industry. The depression in dairy prices this year will mean $70,000,000 less money to spend in the country.

In discussing the margarine question, Mr. White was very forceful in his review of the situation. He made it quite clear from the outset that, in his opinion, margarine was one of the major factors in forcing down dairy prices in Canada today. Canada is the only country in the world where 50% of the dairy industry is engaged in the manufacture of butter. The speaker pointed out that all other countries control the sale of margarine very closely. This is done in several ways, one of the main ways being the sale of high-priced butter on the world markets to allow for the sale of a cheaper substitute at home. Mr. White thought it most unfair that the public is so short sighted in the matter of food prices. "The cry is always for cheap food," he said. "But there is little outcry when everything else spirals ever higher in price."

Margarine is manufactured from imported oils that must be paid for with scarce American dollars. Margarine sales are reaching or passing those of butter in the stores now and the profits, that are many times larger than the spread on butter, go to a few large companies who are already engaged in the soap and oil business.

Mr. White summed up his talk by expressing the belief that the sale of margarine in Canada will have a disastrous effect in Canada this year. Over 430,000 families will be influenced, he believed, and all to save immediate dollars that will in turn lose to the consumer a vastly greater sum.

The thanks of the club were expressed by H. K. Graham.

ELLACOTT—ARBUCKLE

Very Rev. Dr. J. W. Woodside officiated at the marriage of Miss Dorothy Margaret Arbuckle, daughter of Mrs. Frank Arbuckle and the late Mr. Arbuckle, of Ottawa, to M. Herbert Louis Ellacott, son of Rev. J. A. L. Ellacott and the late Mrs. Ellacott, formerly rector of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, Chesterville, which took place Saturday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock in the Chalmers United church, Ottawa. The wedding music was played by Mr. W. Coulson, with Mr. B. Christianson as soloist. The church was decorated with seasonal flowers.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Garnet Arbuckle, and attended by her sister, Mrs. Henry Mains, as matron-of-honour, and by her cousin, Miss Dawn Lambert, as flower girl. Mr. R. O'Neil was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Earl Ellacott and Mr. Henry Mains.

A floor-length gown of ivory slipper satin was chosen by the bride. It was designed with a net shoulder yoke trimmed with beaded embroidery, a fitted bodice, and a full skirt with a short beaded peplum. Her fingertip veil of embroidered silk net, which had been worn by her mother at her wedding, was held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses and maiden-hair fern.

Following a reception held at the Wayside Inn, Mr. and Mrs. Ellacott left on a wedding trip to the Laurentians, Rochester, N.Y., and the Niagara district. For travelling, the bride wore a three-piece grey gabardine suite with navy blue accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Ottawa.

Love Call Arrives Tuesday Cam's Colt Causes Commotion

Love Song A was born Tuesday morning at 4 o'clock. She is a fine mare colt sired by Peter Song out of Love Call.

When Cam Thompson thought of raising a colt from his eight year old racing mare, Love Call, who has a record of 2.00, he cast about for a blood line that would promise speed and looks. In his search he found Hanover Shoe Farms, 50 miles south of Harrisburg, Pa., and Peter Song at stud there seemed the answer. His mare was shipped down and the new colt is a result.

The little filly is nearly black without any distinctive marks except the gangling beauty of a new colt. Her proud owner is hopeful that those long uncertain legs will make the 2-year old record of her mother seem slow.

VANSAVAGE—COSGROVE

The marriage of Miss Jean Cosgrove, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Cosgrove of Springfield, N.J., and Walter VanSavage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. COLLIE DOG MAKING GOOD AT CATCHING FOXES

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fitzgerald are quite proud of their three-year-old collie dog which during the past two years has brought home four foxes, the latest being caught on Wednesday morning. Last year the collie brought home a fine full grown fox and the latest catch was also a fine animal.

It is not often that dogs go out on their own and return home with a nice fur neck-piece for the lady of the house.—Kemptville Advance.

The meeting, sponsored by the Stormont Liberal Association, was presided over by Albert Lavigne of Cornwall, president of the association.

Hon. L. B. Pearson, minister of External Affairs, spoke in support of Hon. Mr. Chevrier and told the gathering that in the ranks of the cabinet ministers "there is no one respected more for his energy and ability in getting things done than Mr. Chevrier."

The name of Mr. Chevrier was the only one submitted to the meeting. He was nominated by F. B. Brownbridge of Cornwall, former MLA for Stormont county, and seconded by J. H. Aube of Moose Creek, in nominating Mr. Chevrier, the former MLA spoke of the fine record of the member from Stormont. "We can look with pride at having him as our member," said Mr. Brownbridge. He touched on Mr. Chevrier's record as Canada's chief delegate to the United Nations meeting in Paris last year, saying he carried out his duties with credit to Canada.

Various reports were read including the president's report, treasurer's report, and district secretaries' reports.

NEW TYPE OF FARMERS

Recently, 36 young men were graduated from the two year course at the Agricultural College at Guelph. Practically all—33 to be exact—went back to the farm, in most cases their own. In fact, according to reliable sources, more agricultural college graduates on a per capita basis are going back to farms in Canada than in any other country.

In the light of the worrisome problem of how to keep the boy on the farm, these facts are most encouraging indeed. They not only forecast a brighter future for Canadian agriculture, but can help make Canada one of the world's most progressive food producing nations.

Some oldtimers may regard this return of the college-bred boy to the farm with derision. Even some parents who paid for their son's education will rebel when the youngster suggests a revision of time-tried farming practicts. "You can't plow a field with a diploma" is an expression too often heard in several sections of the country.

Such an attitude is non-sensical. There is much behind that diploma. There are years of intense classroom study; practical work on the best experimental farms on the continent; scientific research in laboratories. Yes, a diploma can plow, can sow and, most important, can reap.

The public spirited scientifically trained farmer may well become the leader in his community by helping solve the problems of his less informed neighbors. If he fails to share his knowledge, he may as well have not gone to school.

OUR RICH UNCLE
By Joseph Lister Rutledge

The hardest thing for anyone to realize is that there are no benefits without costs. We've come to think of government as a rich uncle who can be touched for these benefits whenever we happen to think of them. If someone argues that governments have no money of their own, we merely change the point of attack. "Maybe not," we say, "but they can get money by taxing the rich. But "the rich" are just another facet of the rich uncle idea. Maybe once they were fairly rich, these uncles, but that was in the days when we all kept what we earned or received, and when we were content to look after our own security, our own babies and our own old age. Everyone had independent ideas then. The rich got richer, and we all did fairly well.

But let us take a current look at these rich folk from whom the government is to collect for all the securities we think up, because of our curious belief that we get them "for free." Let's include among the rich everyone with an income up to $10,000. There were just 20,462 of them in all Canada in 1946, and they had a combined income of $366 millions. Averaged down that made them $18,000 a year men. But that isn't quite true either for of the $366 million the government had already taken $152 millions in income tax.

So, one thing becomes quite apparent. If you took from these so-called wealthy persons every cent they have left and let them starve or migrate, you still wouldn't have enough to pay the baby bonus alone, not even for one year, and dear knows where you'd find the money for it the second year. So, if you insist on being provided with so many securities you once provided for yourself, you'll have to be your own rich uncle.

Now, what are your resources? The figures say that after you had paid your taxes in 1947 you had 68 cents left out of every dollar you earned. Every time you want more of something for nothing, it means more taxes. But also every time you distribute bonus money the amount of money in circulation is increased, but there are no more goods. You want your share, and try to get it. That demand sends prices up. So, even the security you've provided isn't enough. That's the vicious circle you're in.

Just suppose that instead of demanding so much, you asked and secured lower taxes. You might even keep 90 cents out of your dollar instead of 68 cents. Then as an average worker, earning the average wage of all workers in Canada, you would retain out of your yearly earnings $500 more than you do now, enough to look after quite a bit of security without sending prices soaring. And that, it seems to us, is a better "rich uncle" than any other we are likely to discover.

MY WEEK
By
R. J. DEACHMAN

It was election day, June 23, 1896, the year Sir Wilfrid Laurier came to power. There was more excitement at that election than any other I have since witnessed, perhaps I was then more easily impressed.

We were putting a stone foundation under the barn that summer and one of the masons suggested that he would lay the corner stone, while my father would make a few remarks on the auspicious occasion. The men hollowed out a place in the wall and in it went the Toronto Globe, the Seaforth Expositor and the Gorrie Vidette. To this my father added a 25c piece, a remarkably generous act for a Scot, but he thought that future generations, when the walls crumbled, might wish to see the type of money used in the age in which we lived.

In the fall of 1935, thirty-nine years later, I attended a fall fair in the Village of Gorrie, an elderly man, walking slowly, came up and asked me if I knew him. "Yes," I said, "your name is Dick Clegg, you built the stone wall under our barn in 1896." "Well," he said "when your father turned his back that day I swiped that 25c piece and that night, in Gorrie, we bought 5 glasses of beer with it. We didn't like the result of the election but the beer helped us to wash it down." Father would have loved that story but he will never know what happened to his 'two bits'.

We get irritated now and then at the things the Russians do. We do not like their claims to the invention of all the great things of earth. Take it from them they invented the plow, the flying machine, the electric light, the telephone, the telegraph, the binder, coca-cola, buttermilk, hamburgers and the cold war. Now, of course, the leaders of Russia know better. They are not trying to impress us with the idea that they were first in all these things. They were not. It is impossible that they could be. In the past, education, in Russia, was confined to the favored few. There wasn't a chance that they could lead in these things. Despotism, whether under a czar or a communist, crushes not only freedom of expression but freedom of thought. It leaves men not only hopeless but gullible.

But that same condition enables the Russian leaders of today to publish these stories in Russia and the Russian people will believe them. If they have any doubts they had better keep their mouths shut. After all they are babes in the world, naughty youngsters at that, but we must not let ourselves be annoyed at these childish things. The inventions I have mentioned are of value only as they are used. It would be interesting to know how many telephones there are in Russia. The chances are that millions in Russia have never even used a telephone—perhaps never heard of one.

I heard two business men talking the other day about the productivity of labor in Canada and the United States. The problem kept turning up in my mind and early this morning, before most people were out of bed, I dug up some facts. The figures I am using are from American sources and are for 1939. Before the war production, per worker, amounted to $7,300. The Canadian figures for the same year gave us $6,533, roughly 10% less. I would not place too much emphasis on these figures, the difference does not necessarily register the comparative efficiency of the workers in the two countries. It would need a great deal more investigation than I have been able to give it up to the present. The difference might have been due to size of factories or products produced. Many other factors might accentuate the variation in the two countries. Anyway the figures are pre-war. Progress in Canada has been quite substantial since that date.

Here's an interesting one. In many British factories they have time off for tea in the afternoon. I do not know if the custom is general. Sometime ago I saw a chart of production and there was a half hour in the afternoon in which production was arrested while the workers took tea. It may be that they worked harder afterwards. The loss of time may have been made up—the tea may have been worth the price but production in Britain is normally lower per unit of labor than in either Canada or the United States. It is not the machinery alone which accounts for the difference. Using exactly the same machines, production per man-hour was less in Great Britain than in the United States.

Egotist

A Welshman who was very proud of his bass voice was describing a wonderful dream he'd had.

"I was in a mighty choir," he said: "5,000 sopranos, 5,000 altos, 5,000 tenors – all singing together double forte."

"It must have been wonderful," said the listener. "But what about the basses?"

"That was it!" said the dreamer. "Suddenly the conductor stopped the choir and, turning to me, said 'Not quite so loud in the bass, please, Mr. Jones."

Embarrassing

"Who gave the bride away at the wedding?"

"Her little brother. When the bridegroom said 'I do' Willie yelled: 'Hurrah, Sis. you've got him at last'?"

Bishop Rock Light World's Loneliest

Few people are better fitted to speak about the Bishop Rock lighthouse than BBC commentator Edward Ward, who was marooned there for a month when he went to take part in the 1946 Christmas day world broadcast. In a BBC talk he described the Rock as one of the most desolate and exposed places on earth. It lies forty miles from the Cornish mainland and seven miles out from the Isles of Scilly. There are a lot of shark-toothed rocks nearby, so menacing that just over a hundred years ago Trinity House decided to build the first lighthouse there. This was an open structure of iron and a heavy storm carried it away. Two years later the present lighthouse was begun. The first stone was laid a foot below the level of low spring tides, and the bottom stones dovetailed into the rock itself. A massive granite base, thirty feet high, was build solid, except for storage tanks holding a thousand gallons of drinking water. The lighthouse itself was built in the Scillies of curved granite blocks cut so that they locked together. These stones were all numbered and then brought in boats to the rock. The builders could work only in short spells and in favourable weather. They could not live seven miles away in the Scillies or afloat because no ship could exist indefinitely in the heavy swells surging round the rock. They were based on a rocky islet nearby, and remained there for six years. In three years the lighthouse was finished, a thin column rising 120 feet from the sea, and two years later its light first shone. But in 1881 the keepers reported that the tower had shaken badly during a storm. Engineers went back to the rock, started by enlarging the granite base and then put on an "overcoat" of granite blocks. They added three storeys to make the tower 165 feet high with walls nine feet thick at entrance door level.

The keepers are there for two months at a stretch and longer if the weather is too rough for relief to be sent. There are eight storeys in their lighthouse. Charges and detonators for fog signals are kept on the magazine floor, 1500 gallons of paraffin, to keep the lantern going for nearly six months, are in the oil stores. The circular kitchen has its door and cupboards built on a curve and the cooking stove fits flush against the wall. All the keepers cook well and there is fierce rivalry as to which does best. They supply all their own stores and have Trinity House iron rations for emergency use. The relief boat brings fresh food, but this does not last long and for the most part the keepers have to rely on tinned food. There is always someone asleep in the bedroom as a twenty-four hour watch has to be manned but the Bishop Rock is the only lighthouse to have a sitting-room for its keepers. From the radio room they keep in touch with civilisation and it is a regular Sunday morning practice to call the Wolf Rock, Lizard, Eddystone or other lighthouses to pass the time of day and exchange gossip. The eighth and last storey holds the lantern and the light, when magnified by the great lens, develops about half a million candle power and can be seen twenty miles away, if the weather is good. If it is thick fog signals are fired at five minute intervals. "I wonder," said Ward, "how many people when they hear about south-westerly gales raging in the Channel, think of those lighthouse keepers miles from anywhere, with their relief maybe long overdue and with supplies running short? They deserve a thought and none more than the three men who man the Bishop Rock."

Church News

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

The services at Morewood United Church were conducted on Sunday by the minister, Rev. W. J. Copsey, B.A. "In every home, Jesus" was the theme of the morning service with every Department of the Sunday School represented in the service. The Beginners by Dwayne Swerdfeger, Brenda Dyer, Bobbie LaSalle, Betty Smirle, Byran Allison, Katherine Steinburg, Barbara Wagner, John Allison. For the Primary: Dale Hutchison, Arden Ball, Marylin Steinburg, Ann LaSalle, Carol Pennie, Carolyn Swerdfeger. For the Juniors: Gary Hutchison, Wayne Ball, Joan Allison, Shirley Steinburg, Dorothy Barnett, Alice LaSalle, Marlene Swerdfeger. For the Seniors: Shirley Faulkner. For the teachers: Mrs. Ruth Copsey.

Children received for Baptism were: Nancy Carol, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millen Smirle, and Melvin Brent, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Moore. The mothers of the race have been an inspiration to their offspring and behind many a great man's achievement was the inspiration of his mother, e.g. Moses, the Law Giver and Deliverer back of whom was Jockebed, his mother; Samuel, prophet, high priest and judge, back of whom was Hannah, his mother, who dedicated him with the words "For this child I prayed, and the Lord hath given me my petition, therefore also I have lent him to the Lord, as long as he liveth he shall be lent to the Lord." Timothy, fellow helper of Paul, whose mother Eunice taught him the scriptures from his youth up. Jesus, whose mother Mary endured the fellowship of his suffering and of whom it is said "A sword shall pass through thy own soul that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed." John Wesley, whose mother Susannah gave inspiration that helped to make him the apostle of the evangelical revival of the eighteenth century. Ended Anyway

"So that's the end of our romance," he sighed, having explained that he had lost all his money.

"Darling, I love you just the same," she said. "I shall always love you, even if I never see you again."

Feminine Logic

When the traffic officer waved Mrs. Tucker to the side of the road and attempted to give her a ticket for speeding, he was met with a lengthy and indignant harangue.

When the lady finally took the summons her temper was something less than serene.

Fifteen minutes later the same officer overhauled her again—for more speeding.

"I didn't think you could do it," he observed; "but this time you got her up to 75. Quite a little speed demon, aren't you?"

"Well, why shouldn't I be?" retorted Mrs. Tucker. "After that delay you caused me back there, haven't I a right to make up for lost time?"

"Go ahead, lady," the officer croaked.

Obeyed

An Eastern potentate, who wanted to know how many men were afraid of their wives, sent for all his married subjects and commanded those who always obeyed their wives to stand on one side.

Seeing, to his surprise, that a very small man was the only one who did not do so, he asked him why such a puny individual as himself had a mind of his own.

"When I left home, Your Majesty," explained the man, "I promised my wife I would not go in any crowd."

MARY GRANNAN is a children's radio personality with fans six to sixty and from coast to coast. Just Mary and Maggie Muggins, two of her program-creations, have become institutions of national renown. They were started for little CBC listeners, but turned out to have a much wider appeal. In fact, it was soon apparent that hosts of "large" listeners are big in age only. "Just Mary" Grannan is seen in this picture with some of her young admirers among the hundreds who turned up at a recent autographing party given in Toronto to introduce her latest book—"Happy Playtime". Two of her weekly CBC programs are heard on the Trans-Canada network. They are Just Mary at 1.15 p.m. Sundays and Maggie Muggins at 5.30 Wednesdays. The third, called Sarah and Peter, is heard on CJBC (Toronto) at 10.30 a.m. Saturdays.

Pastures For Growing Birds

During the recent war and almost up to the present time, emphasis has been upon quantity production. A guaranteed market for surpluses at a good price permitted even relatively inefficient producers of poultry products to thrive. What the future may hold for markets and prices is uncertain. Should a buoyant tone persist almost indefinitely, maximum production with minimum outlay will still be good business. If the market declines, the emphasis must undoubtedly swing to more efficient production, says H. S. Gutteridge, Dominion Poultry Husbandman.

Feed is the largest outlay in poultry raising. On the average, 50 - 60 per cent of the cost of raising stock and 60 - 70 per cent of that for laying birds, is for feed. The maximum production of body weight or eggs, on the minimum intake of feed, should therefore be the most efficient phase of the poultry enterprise. Feed costs can be lowered in several ways. Well balanced rations can be fed so that the bird can make maximum growth, or egg production the greatest yield per unit of feed, by using as high a proportion of home-grown grains as possible, or by providing good pasture which will reduce the consumption of more costly feeds.

Estimates of the possible saving in feed through the provision of good pasture for growing birds are as high as 20 per cent. Maximum feed efficiency is probably obtained with high protein feeds which give very rapid growth, as for example, 4 pound broilers in twelve weeks on 12 pounds of feed. Whether such rapid growth is a good thing for pullets is open to question, however. The idea that pullets which are expected to stand the strain of heavy egg production for a full laying year should be grown relatively slowly, and not confined but on good range and pasture, may be sound.

An interesting comparison can be made between growth and feed consumption with birds reared on range at Ottawa, others grown rapidly on an up-to-date broiler ration. The fast-grown birds weighed 6 pounds at 20 weeks, and the range reared at 26 weeks. For each pound of weight up to six pounds, the feed required was only slightly more, and at some weights was actually less, for the birds on range, in spite of the additional six weeks required to bring these birds to a 6 pound weight. The only possible explanation is that considerably more feed was required with range birds, but it was obtained from the pasture. With good pasture it was possible to almost equal at less expense, the gains made with more costly rations, even allowing for the value of pasture consumed. Actual restriction of feed intake to force even greater consumption of pasture has been advocated, but just what the limits of such a program may be is not yet known.

The value of pasture range from the standpoint of sanitation and control of disease is important. A bulletin "Pasture for Poultry" is available from the Information Service, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, which deals fully with the subjects and gives suggestions for suitable annual and perennial pastures as well as cultural practices, for 22 agricultural areas throughout Canada.

You Have Cooperated Well Ontario Employers —

And it looks now as if most of the undergraduates from Ontario universities needing summer employment will be able to find it by the end of the school year.

The situation with regard to permanent jobs for graduates is also promising.

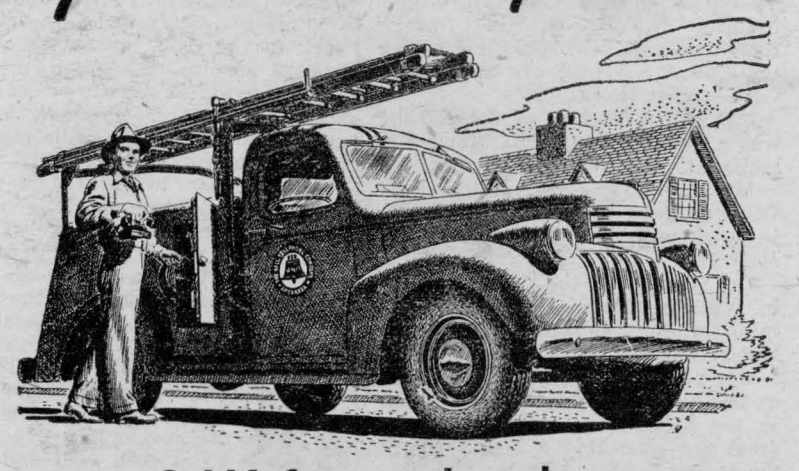

However, MORE summer opportunities STILL are needed for undergraduates and permanent openings for graduates, especially for "Arts graduates" whose training has not fitted them for any particular industry, but who will react quickly to an employer's advantage after brief training on the job.

Through the "clearance system" of the National Employment Service, the Executive and Professional Liaison Officer at your local office can locate a graduate or undergraduate from almost any course you can name, either from within the province or neighbouring provinces.

2,446 Green trucks and cars bring more and better Telephone Service

IN THE PAST twelve months these familiar green trucks and cars have travelled over 20 million miles to help provide you with good telephone service and to help in the big expansion and improvement program which is making service better and more useful all the time.

Constantly improving service means that today, few things give you so much real value at such low cost as your telephone.

Like everything else, cars and trucks have gone up in price, 30% in three years! Yet, up to now, despite higher costs on all sides, there has been no increase in the basic telephone rates established 22 years ago.

To-day's expansion program is breaking all records, but there are still orders we haven't been able to fill. We will keep right on working and building to make your telephone service a bigger bargain than ever — to continue to provide more and better service at the lowest possible cost.

Memorial Hospital Auxiliary Reports For April

The monthly meeting of the District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary met in the Winchester Town Hall on Thursday, May 5th, at 8 o'clock. The president, Mrs. C. R. Robinson, presided.

After the singing of O Canada, the secretary, Mrs. George Elliott, read the minutes of the last meeting.

Owing to a rainy evening the following units were represented: Cass Bridge and Summer's; Chesterville, Inkerman, Mountain Ridge and Mulloy's; Annables and Melvins; Mountain and Winchester.

Excellent reports were given by these units and considerable money handed in.

Cass Bridge and Summers, that very industrious little unit, has a beautiful quilt on display in Elliott's store.

The Ways and Means Committee sponsored a Rummage Sale on Saturday, May 7th, and on Saturday next is holding a Birthday Party from 3 to 5 o'clock and 8 to 9 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. A. Rowat.

In the absence of the treasurer, Miss Nora Elliott, who is ill, Mrs. George Elliott read the treasurer's report. She reported that the auxiliary had a balance on hand of over $1500. and a membership of 830.

The water softener unit is being installed. The auxiliary besides paying for the unit has decided to pay for installing it.

At the request of the president, the secretary read again at this meeting the rules and regulations and after a short discussion they were adopted.

It was decided to have one hundred copies of the rules and regulations printed.

The meeting was closed with the singing of the National Anthem with Mrs. Howard Fetterly at the piano.

Here Endeth the First Lesson

"Boss," said young Smithers, "I'm getting married next week, and I'd like to have a raise."

"So you don't think two can live as cheaply as one, eh?" his employer rejoined. "You want some more money to defray living expenses?"

"No, it's not that," explained the prospective bridegroom. "I'm making enough now for us to live on."

"Really?" said the boss. "Then why do you want a raise?"

Young Smithers grinned sheepishly. "Well, it's this way," he ventured. "In an unguarded moment I told Mary how much I get, so I'd like a little more for my own use that she doesn't know about."

Smells of London

Stanley Davies, a Londoner born, gave a talk in the BBC's Overseas Service about the smells of London. A keen memory for smells of all kinds is essential, he maintains, to a true knowledge of London, its history and traditions. To the countryman the smell of hay is an ordinary, annual occurrence. To Mr. Davies it recalls the Mayfair of his boyhood, when he gazed with awe on splendid horses and glittering carriages, with liveried coachmen and footmen who cracked jokes with ostlers in the mews, which had the many good smells of hay, straw, harness and fresh manure. "Sometimes," he said, "when I wander around the byways between Bond Street and Park Lane I can consciously recall the scent of hay, and how it pleased and satisfied a boy who had not yet seen hay in a field."

He knew the smell of Billingsgate Fish Market long before he had ever savoured fresh fish at the seaside. "It is difficult to describe a characteristic smell," he said, "but I know that Billingsgate has one, and it is different from that of Hull, Grimsby, Hastings or Brixham. Bermondsey has, or had, a local ozone derived from its tanneries. In my recollection it is unique. Other tannery districts in other parts of England have registered a much less virulent impression." Of Bow and Stratford in the East he had other strong memories, of the factories which were ventilated by the process of eruding vapours which to him seemed peculiarly poisonous. "That was a smell, or series of smells," he said, "not simply capable of attacking the olfactory nerves but of wounding them."

He then turned to the pleasanter aromas of the West End of London and said that in Jermyn Street he always recalls a particular smell, a blend of odours—in which perfume predominates. "Blindfolded, on a hot day," he said, "I should know without a doubt whether or not I was standing about half way along the south side of Jermyn Street. The scent is unforgettable."

Within a quarter of a mile of Westminster lies a street which, to him, is inseparable from the smell of fresh milk. It is possibly a remembered smell rather than a real one and harks back to the Welsh dairyman's shop he used to know there which had at its back "a farmyard, with sheds, muckheap, and cows whose milk was delivered every day to customers who lived in blissful ignorance of Tuberculin Testing, Pasteurisation, and so on. Is it just imagination, or can I still enjoy the savour of that milk as I walk along Marsham Street?"

Mr. Davies was critical of the people, especially the creative writers, who declare that they must have an atmosphere to suit their temperament, and said that they should not make use of the word without due consideration for their noses' reaction.

"If you must have an atmosphere which is not altogether physical but certainly concerns the sense of smell, then go to Fleet Street," he said. "Physically the principal smell is of printing machines and paper, of lead and ink. Yet everyone who is proud to say that he 'is in print,' (and even exalted editors share this pride) has an affection for the smells of the print shop. I have known a man return after a long sojourn abroad to walk up from the Embankment and deliberately inhale at the open window of a composing room. He was satisfied, then, that he was home at last—and this before taking his first pint."

Mr. Davies concluded by saying, "No poet, to my knowledge, has written about the smells of London, but to my mind they are as real and as enduring as the sights of London town."

NEW DRUG CURES TSETSE FLY SCOURGE

The discovery of Antrycide, new Imperial Chemical Industries drug which protects animals from the attacks of tsetse fly, will open up some 4,500,000 square miles of East and West Africa for the raising of cattle.

The pest is still encroaching over vast areas of Uganda, Kenya, the Sudan and Nigeria. Not only has cattle rearing been impossible in affected areas but agricultural production as a whole has suffered from the prevention of properly-balanced farming and the consequent loss of soil fertility. Now, in the worst areas, Antrycide has cured all the forms of tsetse-carried diseases encountered. Sufficient Antrycide to treat two million animals will be made available for the governments of Sudan, Kenya and Uganda during 1949.

Picture shows: Injecting cattle. Antrycide injections both cure and give protection from the tsetse-borne diseases.

His Trade

The minister of the Old Kirk asked a Scotch fisherman if he knew the First Commandment.

"Aye, but that's a teaser," said the fisherman.

"Well, do you know the Second Commandment?" asked the minister.

"You've got me again," replied the fisherman; "but can you tell me this—how many hooks are on my fishing line?"

The minister was unable to answer.

"Well, minister," said the fisherman, "it's like this: Every man tae his trade."

HANDS IN TRAINING...FOR ONTARIO

Learning to Work With Copper and Brass

IN Ontario the wheels of industry turn for the benefit of every single one of us. Our lathes, dynamos, drill presses, farm combines, tractors, business machines, etc. are producing goods and services which earn dollars. These dollars provide food, clothing, medical care and other necessities which contribute to our security and high standard of living. Every single one of us, therefore, has a very personal interest in the flow of a steady supply of trained workers to industrial plants. These workers will operate machines which are important to our way of life.

We should appreciate, then, the co-operative efforts of government, industry and labour in the field of employee training. In schools and in factories our workers, young and old, are given the opportunity to develop new and specific skills in every field of business and industrial activity. For instance, every effort on the part of workers to become proficient in the art of shaping and moulding copper and brass, will mean greater industrial progress—will help to make Ontario a finer place in which to live and work.

THE BREWING INDUSTRY (ONTARIO)

Our Way of Life Rewards Trained Hands

Ontario workers know they can earn more, have executive responsibility and enjoy a higher standard of living in direct ratio to the skills they acquire and the way they make use of them. That's always true in a free economy—that's why our competitive system will continue to make Canada great and a great place in which to live.

Forestry Field Day At Limerick Forest

The Forestry Field Day at Limerick Forest was a great success in the opinion of those who attended it on May 4th.

The event was organized by the Junior Farmers of Oxford and Augusta Townships with the co-operation of the Departments of Agriculture and Lands and Forests. Parents brought their children equipped with shovels and pails so that each could learn tree planting by actually doing it. Each school was assigned two rows to plant and Kemptville Public School, represented by ninety pupils, was given a whole field. After some instruction on planting, the children set to work and finished their assignment by noon. The basket lunches were produced, supplemented by hundreds of ice cream servings.

Mr. A. M. Barr, Director of Boys and Girls Club Work, Department of Agriculture, gave a short address, in which he stressed the value of tree planting and woodlot conservation. "Although we have a high percentage of forest land, the area of forest is far too low. Better woodlot management must be practised, if we are to have stable agricultural conditions. The woodlot is an essential part of the farm and we want to see that our boys and girls know how to manage them", Mr. Barr said. He outlined the functioning of the new Forestry Club for boys and girls, two of which have been set up already in Eastern Ontario. Mr. Barr was amazed at the great interest shown in forestry by farmers who formerly were not greatly interested in woodlot management.

Mr. Carl Reilly, Chairman of the Reforestation Committee of Leeds and Grenville Counties Council welcomed the visitors to the property. "We have just been playing at reforestation up to the present. We want to get into it in a big way now, so if anyone has land to sell near this county forest, send him to see me," he said.

Mr. W. A. Andrews, Deputy Reeve of Oxford, said "Boys and girls, plant trees. They are the finest memorial you can leave. Plant them now and plant them at home, this year and every year. Plant trees and leave the county finer than you found it.

H. W. Knight, Inspector of Public Schools, expressed his delight with the project and urged that Junior Farmers organize in other townships.

In the absence of Mr. Wilfred Weir, Warden of the Counties Council, his deputy, Mr. Hanna welcomed the group on behalf of the Counties Council.

After the short speeches the boys and girls demonstrated the pack fire pumps by soaking one another in a mock battle, and the power pump gave a welcome wetting to those who wanted a shower.

The Lowther tree planting machine, pulled by Mr. Elmer Cooper's tractor, demonstrated planting at high speed. The top rate reached was 43 per minute.

The party drove through a section of the forest, and viewed plantations of ages varying from one to ten years. The big blowsand hill pleased the youngsters, who rolled down the steep sides.

"This is the best day I've ever had with my pupils", said Mr. Ken Burchill, a teacher from Kemptville. "They have learned more in the open air today then they could in a week inside. Besides that we've had more fun than I've had in years. We should do this every year."

TREE DISTRIBUTION

All free trees which are being supplied for planting in this district should be in the hands of the planters this week. As there was a very heavy demand, very few people are receiving the full quantity demanded, but it is hoped that the supply in 1950 will meet the demand. The quantity produced will certainly be increased, but it is impossible to predict the demand. Intending planters would do well to request advice now from the Zone Foresters, and order trees early.

Planting on the county forests is well under way.

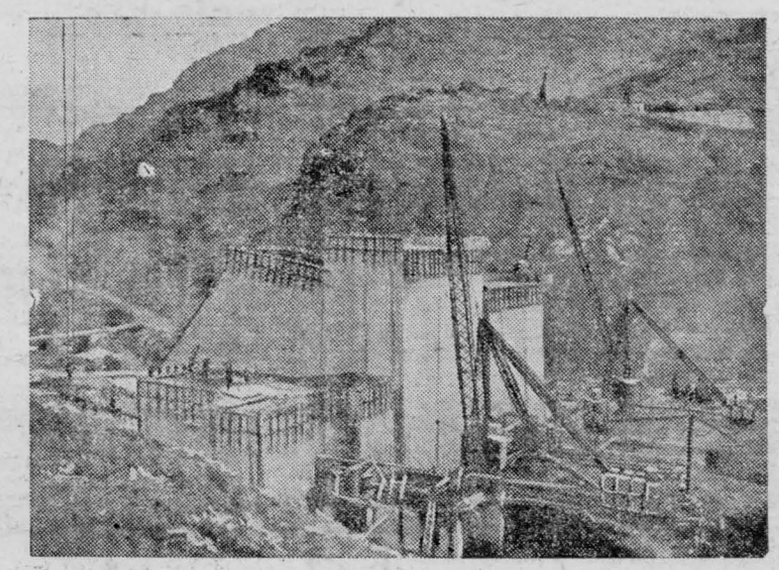

In Larose Forest, south of Bourget a gang of 60 men have been working for two weeks and a new mechanical planter, the Lowther has been doing good work. The land has been wet, so that only a track tractor could be used, but conditions have improved, and now a rubber-tired tractor can also work, so that both tree planters can be used. Approximately half of the 525,000 trees supplied have now been planted, all in Clarence Township.

In Limerick Forest, west of Kemptville, 60,000 trees are being planted, mostly to fill in scattered areas and fail spots. As addtional land is acquired, a more ambitious planting schedule will be set up.

Approximately 10,000 trees are being planted in the new Dundas County Forest property, just east of the road from Chesterville to Morewood, where a Forestry Field Day is being held at 2:00 p.m., Friday, May 13th.

Another Forestry Field Day will be held on the Stormont County Forest land six miles northeast of Finch, also sponsored by the Counties Council, and backed by the Federation of Agriculture, the Junior Farmers, Boards of Trade, Junior Chamber of Commerce, School Inspectors and others.

When advertising stops—forgetting begins.

BRITAIN STEPS UP HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER

As part of British industry's vast programme of capital expansion, the North of Scotland Hydro-Electricity Board is doing everything in its power to complete the work now in progress on 12 of the 19 projects for which authority has been obtained. In Scotland 1,500,000,000 kw|hrs of electricity are already being generated annually, and it has been estimated that the water-power potential is 6,274,000,000 kw|hrs annually.

Picture shows: The growing dam of the Loch Sloy scheme in the mountains west of Loch Lomond. About 200,000 cubic yards of concrete will complete the dam, 1,200 feet long and 160 feet high, which will hold back 1,200 million cubic feet of water to power the four hydro-generators which will supply 130,000 kws. of electricity to the grid.

KINDNESS

By Andrew Chapman

I OFTEN wonder why people do not make more of the marvelous power there is in Kindness.

It is the greatest lever to move the hearts of men that the world has ever known—greater by far than anything that mere ingenuity can devise or subtlety suggest.

Kindness is the kingpin of success in life, it is the prime factor in overcoming friction and making the human machinery run smoothly.

If a man is your enemy you cannot disarm him in any other way so surely as by doing him a kind act.

The meanest brute that ever drew breath is not altogether insensible to the influence of kindness . . . Kindness makes the whole world akin.

It breaks down the barriers of distrust, deceit, envy, jealousy, hate and all their miserable train.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! When I was a youngster, it was fun to help plant potatoes because father let us take off our shoes and stockings and promised to buy us firecrackers if we kept at the job. Father reminded us continually all day, then mother scolded us all evening about dirty feet and the danger of firecrackers. Today we could sympathize with parents even though we were never such a problem as the modern youth!

We can't tell you how to "mind the children", but we can help you with gardening information:

1. Advice regarding crops, fertilizer and care of gardens will be available locally through government authorities.
2. How much you plant depends upon the amount you will use and the amount that can be stored.
3. The size of garden will limit vegetable crops that can be grown so those vegetables should be planted that have the highest nutritional value. Spinach, squash and carrots have high Vitamin A content while tomatoes, because they are a splendid source of Vitamin C, should also be grown.
4. We remind you of the early and late cabbages when you buy plants. The early ones are quite green throughout but cannot be stored and this also applies to the red varieties. The hard white kinds are easily stored for winter use.
5. Beware of thick sowing of seeds. It wastes seed and increases the labor of thinning. To mark rows of slow-germinating seeds as carrots and beets, plant an occasional radish seed in the row. This will grow quicker and act as a marker.
6. To extend the season of such crops as beans, peas and corn, two or three sowings may be made at intervals of 10 days to insure successive crops. This also applies to lettuce, carrot, beets and spinach.

Now while the gardening is in full swing you may require a list of quick-cooking dishes, so look over our list.

Appetizers: Orange juice with a squeezed mint leaf; canned consomme served with cress, quick potato soup with a minced leek.

Main Courses: Parboiled sausages, covered with a tin of tomato soup and baked; eggs broken into mashed-potato-lined baking dishes and cooked in oven; kippers poached in milk, fried fresh trout and French friend potatoes; cole slaw and cold meat; macaroni and cheese, spaghetti and meat balls.

Desserts: Sliced bananas with milk and maple syrup, coloured cream puddings, canned fruit, rhubarb pielets, and also crackers and cheese.

SUPPER DISH

¾ cup macaroni
½ tsp. salt
1 tin vegetable soup
2 apples
6 cups boiling water
4 pork sausages
½ tsp. summer savory
1 tbsp. butter

Cook macaroni in boiling water until tender, then drain. Cut sausages into inch pieces and combine all the ingredients together except apples. Pour into casserole greased with margarine. Place thick slices of apples on top. Cover and bake in electric oven of 350 degrees for 25 minutes. Six servings.

SPRING SALAD

1 cup shredded cabbage
3 green onions, minced
Minced cress
½ cup diced celery
¾ cup grated carrot
Salt and pepper
Mayonnaise or French dressing.

Toss ingredients together with dressing to moisten. Serve in a chilled bowl, lined with lettuce. Accompany by hard cooked eggs or cold meat.

RHUBARB PIELETS

Rhubarb for 1 pie shell
4 tbsps. cornstach
5 cups diced rhubarb
1 cup sugar

Line individual pie plates with pastry and add ¾ cup of the rhubarb-cornstarch-sugar mixture. Dot with butter. Sprinkle with a dash of nutmeg. Cover with rolled out paste, slit for escape of steam. Bake in electric oven of 425 degrees for 8 minutes. Lower temperature to 350 degress for 25 minutes. To prevent any filling that may boil over if oven is left too high for too long, place the pie plates on jelly roll pan.

THE SUGGESTION BOX

Mrs. K. C. says: When washing windows wipe them up and down on one side and crosswise on the other. If streaks show after polishing, it is easy to tell which side they are on.

Mrs. A. J. says: It's smart to purchase an extra roll of ceiling wallpaper to line drawers, and the clothes closet shelves.

Mrs. H. M. says: White spots on varnished furniture can usually be removed by rubbing lightly with essence of peppermint or spirits of camphor. this should be followed by an application of furniture polish.

Mrs. J. T. says: Soap scraps are valuable after they are too small to leave in the soap dish. Drop pieces into a jar and cover them with water. Using this soft soap solution makes perfumed suds for lingerie.
