Trooper Mulloy Given Second Chance for Land

Ottawa, Feb. 15.—An order in Council has been passed giving Prof. Lorne Mulloy of Queen's University, "the blind trooper," another chance to pick out two adjoining quarter sections of land in the Prairie Provinces under the South African volunteer bounty act. Trooper Mulloy lost his original certificate entitling him to land or scrip, and he has now been given special permission to select his land some time during the present year, or to accept from the Government one dollar per acre instead.

German Fleet Coming Out

Once more rumor is rife that the German navy, at present peacefully interned in Kiel Harbor, is getting ready for a raid in the North Sea. Last week there was great play made with a statement that the German ships were armed with seventeen-inch guns which would blow the British dreadnoughts out of the water before they had a chance to retaliate. Personally, we are willing to lay very long odds that the German navy will never come out. We are of opinion that the end of the war will still see it calmly rusting in the secluded waters of the Kiel Canal, and that the very last thing Tirpitz contemplates is an act of felo de se such as a raid on the British fleet would undoubtedly amount to. The German high sea fleet is not likely to be seen out of sight of land by this generation.

History of Parliament Buildings

In 1859, on May 7th, a competition for plans and designs for the Parliament and Public Department Buildings" was opened to the public. The broad term Government Buildings was evidently not in use then. The structures specified were the three occupying such picturesque eminence on Parliament Hill, the first prize for the design was two hundred and fifty pounds, and the second one hundred pounds. Mr. Thomas Fuller was the successful contestant for the Parliament Building, which today is a mass of charred ruins and icicles. He was an Englishman with quite a reputation for Italian-Gothic architecture and that style of public building being very much in vogue at the time, took precedence above the others. In 1860, on September 1st, King Edward, the then Prince of Wales, laid the corner stone and the actual building commenced.

LEAGUE DAY

'League Day" in the Methodist church was indeed a red letter day in her history Mrs. Harry Armstrong and Mrs. Arthur Nash, the Literary and Social Vice Presidents, carefully planned the work which was carried out so enthusiastically and successfully. All Members of the League wore a red badge and at 4 p. m. on Monday February 14th, assembled at the church, and from there went out by threes, and by six o'clock had called upon every Methodist home in Morrisburg. Mr McLatchie and Mr Lee Duvall canvassed Mariatown. The friends in the Robertson vicinity and those living North and East of the village all contributed generously. At six o'clock a splendid Soldier's supper was served to all members of the league and to all desirous of uniting with this society. At 7.30 o'clock a choice inspiring programme was rendered. Twelve names were added to our already flourishing league. Mr Tinkiss, a returned soldier who some years ago attended our Collegiate Institute and who was an active member of the League, gave us an excellent address; Mr F. H. Broder sent us a letter, which was read to the League; it was full of good things. "Blest be the tie" and "God save the King" were sung with a sincerity and enthusiasm characterisric of our young people. Old members and younger ones were all agreed that this is one of the greatest events in history of our League The amount the League asked for was $50.00, the amount received was $65 00

The Executive of the League take this opportunity of thanking all who in any way assisted in making this event so successful.

Euchre and Dance Grand Success

Casselman's Hall was well filled on Wednesday evening by the large crowd that attended the annual euchre and dance in aid of St. Mary's Church. While the tables were being arranged, Mr. Wilfrid Quenneville entertained those present with a number of selections on his Columbia Grafonola. Euchre continued until 11 p.m. The beautiful and valuable prizes donated by Mrs. G. W. Cook were much admired and caused keen rivalry among the players. The following proved to be the lucky ones: Mrs. Barcley, Miss Clare Somers, Mrs. A. J. Wood, Mrs. Allan Lane, Roy Casselman, Bruce Wood, Bugler Drummond and H. Colligan. During the intermission between cards and dance, a dainty lunch was served by the members of the Altar Society. Excellent music was furnished by Mrs. Martin and Miss C. Somers, and all who remained for the dancing report a splendid time. Many attended from outside points. The receipts amounted to $53. The whole entertainment was arranged and managed by Mr. Leo Bronstetter ably and cheerfully assisted by the members of the congregation in general.

German Canadians Loyal Says Sir Sam

"There can be no more telling or significant answer to those who question the loyalty of our German-Canadian fellow-citizens than five names in the casualty list received by cable to-night," said Sir Sam Hughes this evening. "Lieutenant C. T. Hertzberg, of the 5th Battalion, is reported dangerously wounded, and four German-Canadian privates were wounded in today's engagements on the western front. These men hail from Saskatchewan, but some good people would have them fighting with Germany instead of against her. No class of Canadians has done more gallant or effective fighting against the Huns than those of German origin."

RED CROSS

At the Red Cross meeting last Friday afternoon we had the pleasure of listening to the war experiences of Sergeant Ivan Tinkess who is home on sick leave after being wounded many times and being buried underground from shell fire. He opened his address with a bright little story; told of his enlistment and trip to England, also to France, and of how little the Canadians were thought of at first and were kept back until their patience was exhausted. He gave a most graphic account of the battle of Ypres, where the first gas attack occurred and the terrible effects on the soldiers who were coming from the battle front as the Canadians were going up. The Canadians were sent in as a sort of stop-gap and to the surprise of everyone saved the day, but with terrible loss of our men as we all know. He also told of a bayonet charge at the battle of Festubert which roused the fighting blood of all present. It was at the battle of Givenchy that he was wounded and suffered so severely from being buried under ground from shell fire. He was sent to England to a hospital where he underwent a number of operations and was several months in hospital. He gave unstinted praise to the Red Cross for the work they are doing. At the end of his address he said he would be happy to answer any questions and was immediately "under fire" again. The women eagerly availed themselves of this opportunity and asked all sorts of questions, principally relating to the comfort of the men at the front. A great many interesting photos and mementos that he brought home with him were exhibited, also a flag from the "Peace" meeting in London which was broken up by the soldiers and turned into a patriotic meeting under the cry of 'Peace after Victory.' As he happened to be "one of those present" his account was very amusing and raised a hearty laugh.

The ladies begged Sergeant Tinkess to accept the collection for the afternoon as a slight memento of the occasion and were delighted when he also accepted a pair of home-knitted socks.

A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the Sergeant by the Rev. Hugh Cameron, seconded by Mrs. MacArthur after which every one sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Through an oversight Mrs. Dr. Jamieson was not mentioned last week as one of the very efficient hostesses who served tea after the address.

Correspondence

Editor, The Leader:

"I notice that "Fair Play" has again erupted, but divesting his effusion of his reiterated assertions, and stripping it of its abuse, ridicule and scurrility—which he evidently imagines to be argument—there is about as much substance in it, as there was of bread in Falstoff's meal—"a half-penny's worth of bread to an intolerable deal of sack."

"Fair Play" does not seem to be aware that there are many prohibitionists in favor of some measure of compensation as well as many others like my friend "Prohibitionist," who are strongly opposed to it. Hence "Fair Play's mistake.

"The petitioners very wisely left the question of compensation in obeyance to be dealt with later by the Government and Legislature in whose province it naturally belongs. The petition simply asks for prohibition.

"'Fair Play' charged that the petition and every signer of it was asking the Legislature to pass prohibition without provision for compensation, and that to sign it was morally wrong. I challenged him to point out one clause in the petition to bear out that charge. It will be noticed that with all his flourish of trumpets, he has not met my challenge, but "assumes"—that is the word he uses—assumes that because the petition says nothing about compensation, therefore it is opposed to compensation! Shade of the immortal Locke! Such logic! Why if 'Fair Play' were to go before our District Judge and evolve such an argument, he would be laughed out of Court.

"I repeat my challenge. Let "Fair Play" meet it like a man, or like a man, retract. Ridicule, and silly attempts at wit don't count, and will not require notice.

"One Who Signed the Petition."

Echoes from the Local Option Canvass

Editor, Leader:

"After reading last Friday's Leader, including the spirited letter (Pardon me "Fair Play," no fun intended) from your correspondent "Fair Play," I took the pains to look up, in the last two issues of your paper, the previous correspondence of "Fair Play," "Prohibitionist" and "One Who Signed the Petition."

"Though holding intemperance (of all kinds) in disfavor, it was impossible to resist a feeling of amusement at the tempest arising from a considerationa of the effect of possible future legislation resulting from a canvass, the success of which was by no means yet assured, especially as I (for one), a rate payer of polling division No. 9, Riverside, have not even had the petition presented to me. In fact it was only by chance that I heard of its having been circulated the previous week.

"I can cite the case of at least two other families in the district that were overlooked including in all eight voters. This makes a positive loss to the temperance cause of at least four votes, also of one more than probably favorable, even though the remaining three might be open to question.

"One Who Was Not Given a Chance to Sign the Petition."

Library Tea

The Women's Institute held a food sale and afternoon tea last Saturday afternoon in aid of the Library. The Institute tries to give fifty dollars annually toward the expense of the Reading Room and used this means to raise the amount the Library Board very kindly offered the use of the rooms for the afternoon. All the ladies of the town gave very hearty support and a number of our townsmen attended. It was the most successful tea ever held by the Institute, almost $45 being realized.

The Institute heartily thanks the Board for the use of the rooms and also the Librarian, Mr. Eastman, who was untiring in his efforts to assist the ladies.

CHAPTER XXV.

Our very simplest undertakings seldom if ever develop along the lines we fondly believe they will. As a matter of fact, oftener than not they surprise and upset us by originating the most unforeseen and exasperating complications; hidden snares for our confident feet, unsuspected deadfalls for our sanguine heads; and in the end turn out in a way quite contrary to what we had all along expected they would.

Here I had been for weeks bending every mental and physical energy to the unravelling of a tangle of mystery, in which I had become involved without choice or initiative of my own and now, when the snarl was about to fall apart and disclose all the underlying motives and causes, I contemplated the impending process with utter indifference.

I came to myself in a perfectly satisfied frame of mind. Lois was safe and unharmed; her arms clasped my neck tightly; she was holding my head to her warm bosom. And I could feel her heart beating with excess of the emotions which my first comprehending look read in her lovely face bending so close above me; the keenest distress and anxiety—marvel of marvels! — a passionate, eager love that yearned over me and cried out to the love for her that was in my own heart.

What cared I then for the diamond, or for Lao Wing Fu? And what cared I whether James Strang told his story and showered riches upon my dearly beloved, or carried them with him back to Johore?

I cared not a whit. They were crowded completely out of my thoughts.

Every interest and concern that the world had to offer had grown stale and sordid by comparison with the rushing stream of happiness and contentment that swept over me. But such blissful intervals, alas! have a painful, disappointing way of abandoning one at the supreme moment of ectasy; they are elusory, fleeting, like matin vapors in the sun.

As soon as Lois perceived that I was in possession of my senses and looking up into her heavenly eyes with all the burning ardor that possessed me, she underwent a change. It was too inconspicuous to be defined, but not to be mistaken; an instinctive shrinking away from me that made me instantly sit up and take quick notice of the rest of my surroundings.

We were in the tonneau of one of the automobiles, which, it was manifest, had not moved, and the instant I looked over I saw Struber walking rapidly toward us. Lois instinctively applied herself to the arrangement of her hair, which hung about her face and upon her shoulders in enchanting confusion.

In a second Struber would be upon us. I reached up impulsively and caught one of her hands. I crushed the back of it to my lips and laid the soft palm upon my cheek.

"My darling!" I breathed at her ear (Struber was now within a yard or two of us), "I can almost forgive our enemies for all the trouble they have inflicted upon us because it has brought this wonderful revelation of love."

She had no time to reply, and, now that was withdrawn farther away from me, it was too dark to see her face distinctly. But I knew that she was not resentful.

She gently disengaged her hand, just as the detective hailed us.

"Oi-yoi!" he cried, grinning at me. "So yuh've come out of it — what? Soon as you flickered Miss Fox came to an' said she'd look after yuh. Farlin' Strang an' me's been pretty busy."

"I never quite lost myself," Lois slyly informed him in a subdued voice. "I knew what was happening. When Mr. Ferris—when I felt that I could be of some use I recovered myself quickly enough!"

She knew, then! I had by now gotten the night's happenings in true perspective, and I recalled everything right up to the moment when my keyed-up nerves could stand no more and something snapped; when everything went suddenly black and Farlin and Strang and Struber plunged at me to relieve me of my precious burden. She knew! She was not insensible of those burning kisses, nor the tumultuous outrush of my newly kindled passion. And she had rallied and ministered to me when I broke down under the terrible thought that she was dead.

Well, if this officious man would only take himself away I would tell her again, and yet again. It would make sure that she knew. I would leave no room for doubt to ever creep into her mind respecting the depth of my devotion, the height of my adoration—

"O' course he had his get-away fixed, just like we'd said; but we nailed that fritzer Dave Maguire, and his mother, the beauty doctor, an'—"

"What in thunder are you taking about?" I broke in, all at once realizing that Struber had been talking ever since he had come up to us. He stopped and looked queerly from me to Lois. With a short laugh he then moved toward the open forward door.

"Reckon the sooner I get you two back to town the better it'll be for yuh. This sure has been one boisterous night for people what ain't used to boisterous nights . . . Giddap!" he yelled happily as he threw over the starter switch.

While the big machine gathered headway, he said to us across his shoulder: "Harry an' Strang 'll come along in another car. Harry's a auto shark' y' know, an' he'll have the tires fixed in no time. Gosh! It's a wonder yuh had anything left but the air in the tires. Autos ain't made for chasin' mountain goats or climbin' trees. Harry 'll bring in the prisoners."

"Prisoners?" I eachoed. "Who?"

"Yep—three o' them. Madame Carcassi, her crooked son, Dave, an' one Chink who gave promise of respondin' to third-degree treatment."

The car now demanded his entire attention and for the present a period was put to further enlightment from him.

I turned to Lois, and again was overcome with a rapturous sense of her nearness. The night could not hide her fresh, pure beauty; for every line of her dear face, every shifting light in her fine gray eyes, every bewitching trick of expression, was as clear to me as if it had been broad day. But by and by I grew conscious of a chill, if she were purposely holding herself aloof, and by degrees my buoyancy and exaltation oozed away, leaving me uncomfortable, miserable. I was racked with impatience because Struber's now unwelcome presence put a restriction upon unguarded exchanges of sentiment and tenderness.

Presently she began speaking in her office tone.

"The only hurt I suffered was to my feelings, Mr. Ferris, and to my nerves, so please don't worry about me. Besides, I got rid of the tattoo-fark."

"Please begin at the beginning," I begged, "else I shall never get it straight. I've been so frantic all night, so torn with dread and anxiety over you—Oh, Lois, Lois!" Of a sudden I leaned toward her and lowered my voice to a whisper. "My darling, beautiful girl! When the realization burst upon me that I loved you; when I could only see you in fancy being dragged to God alone knows what hideous fate, I thought I would lose my senses utterly."

She caught her breath in a short gasp and freed her hands, which once more I had imprisoned in mine.

"Please do n't, Mr. Ferris," she said gently. "I—I — oh. you are hurting me more than you have any idea of!"

There was a genuine ring of suffering in her voice that worried and puzzled me. There was no present opportunity to force an explanation. Had that glorious love-light in her eyes been only a vagary of my disordered brain? I could not believe it to be so; yet the warmth of my enthusiasm was being deliberately chilled.

"Please don't, Mr. Ferris," she me," she was saying, "until I can explain."

"But, Lois—my darling—"

"Don't—oh, don't!" Her voice, low and strained, quivered with repressed emotion. Really, really you must not talk so. Do wait, please. Let me tell you about to-night — about what happened."

My riddle-tortured brain refused to cope with this situation. I could not persist, and so I listened.

"When the note came I hadn't the slightest suspicion that I was not to meet you. When we met the man they call Maguire, and he climbed in with the chauffeur, I was just a bit dubious, but I didn't really suspect that anything was wrong. I was confident that soon I would be with you and Mr. Struber and Mr. Strang.

"My escort—Mr. Maguire — must have had his orders, for he didn't utter a word all the time we were together except to give me a few necessary directions. His conduct certainly caused me no uneasiness, for he was sullen, gruff and ill-humored, as if the responsibility of squiring me was positively distasteful to him. Whenever curiosity got the better of me and I tried to question him he would answer with a grunt and at last he lost patience and counseled me to 'hold by horses,' telling me I should learn everything presently from somebody who knew. I've had more cheerful companions.

"We got out in the road where a horse and buggy stood waiting off in a lane. The horse was hitched to a wire fence. The automobile left us, turning and going back to town, I suppose, and my escort and I got into the buggy. The horse was headed down the lane, and in a few minutes we came to a cluster of frame shacks.

"We stopped. Everything was dark and silent, and for a second I experienced a twinge of apprehension, an inclination to draw back before it was too late. But just then a door opened, letting out an oblong of dim light, and when I recognized Lao Wing Fu on the threshold I was reassured; I naturally concluded that he was one of your party.

"Well, an hour or more must have elapsed before I was dillusioned. It is hard for me to give you a definite conception of just why I became so terrified—for I was, at the last, in an awful panic of terror." She laughed in an embarrassed way that told me more than her words did: she was not easily frightened. "But that was when I broke away from them and ran—ran blindly, wildly out into the night—"

"And into my outstretched arm," I finished for her. "I was waiting for you. I had heard your cry for help."

For just an instant one small hand was laid upon my arm, and after a quack warm pressure was withdrawn I heard a sound like a sob. But Lois immediately took up the thread of her recital, her voice quivering with indignation.

"Oh, that horrible, horrible creature! When she touched me I thought I would die with terror and disgust!"

"Yes. But this was after Lao Wing Fu and I had talked. You must understand that outwardly he was a constant model of courtesy and politeness. Behind that courtesy, though, he was ruthless and cruel. He had made his plans, and as far as he was able he meant to carry them out, regardless of me or my feelings, or anybody else's. If my life had been an obstacle I'm confident he would not have hesitated an instant over taking it; but he would have apodigized for the inconvenience and discomfort he was putting me to."

"The scoundrel!" I exclaimed. "And I had hoped before this to enjoy the memory of having wrung his neck! What were his plans?"

"He wanted, first of all, the ring; next, the diamond. Then he gave me to understand that before I left him I must submit to having my tatoomark obliterated."

"So that's where the Carcassi woman comes in. Lao, with all his cunning, chooses poor tools to further his schemes. I wonder," I added, "if he really believed that any decent or refined American girl could be persuaded by that blowsy woman to submit to her alleged treatments? Faugh!"

"I can see," Lois said reflectively, "where a Chinaman of even his power and influence would be at a disadvantage in dealing with white people. There's no common level upon which they can come together and opportunities to advance his schemes are correspondingly limited. White men or women who would lend themselves to his purposes would have to be low indeed to do so. I suspect he has some hold over the Carcassi woman or her son."

"I wouldn't be surprised if you're right," I agreed. "But go on about Lao."

"His ultimatums were in the nature of a climax to a story he started to tell me. But his evening's program suffered an interruption that threw everything into disorder; it turned out so differently from what he must have planned—when he learned that you and the officers were coming, I suppose — that I got no very clear idea of what he was telling me.

"You know, I was supposed to be waiting for you and Mr. Strang; I was principally occupied in wondering why you didn't come. I was growing nervous over the delay, and Lao got only a divided attention."

The extraordinary aspects of this adventure that she was recounting so simply, and with a restraint that was habitual with her, filled me with amazement and admiration.

SIR BRYAN MAHON.

A Fine, Dashing Soldier of Fifty-three With Good Record.

A Mahout is a person who, by the aid of a small sharp spike, controls an apparently unwieldy and unintelligent bulk, and it may be that this fine soldier earned this sobriquet in the service for a somewhat similar attribute. General Sir Bryan Mahon, who is in command of the British forces in Saloniki, is called by that name in the army.

Sir Bryan Mahon is only 53, and is therefore, one of the "young" generals. He has been a cavalryman all his service, and first went into the 8th Hussars when he was 23. He was not long in obtaining his baptism of fire, as things went in those piping times of peace, for when the Khalifa first began to proclaim himself as the reincarnation of the prophet's first lieutenant, he went to Egypt. This was in 1896.

In the Dongola show he got a D.S.O., and in the fighting that followed higher up the Blue Nile, Atbara, Omdurman, and Khartoum, where K.

General Mahon.

finally brought the Khalifa to book, he got a first brevet lieutenant-colonelcy and later on a brevet colonelcy and the Order of the Fourth Class of the Osmanieh. Lord Kitchener has always known what a good man Sir Bryan is, and so when the South African war broke out he was safe for a command. He got a cavalry brigade, and after Cronje had been smashed at Paardeberg and Sir John French had galloped his cavalry's tails off in that melodramatic expedition to Kimberley, Sir Bryan set out to drive the Dutchmen away from Mafeking. "B.-P." and his gallant friends in the little Transvaal town were hard pressed and on short commons when "The Mahout" turned up to relieve the pressure.

When in India, to which land he went back after South Africa, Sir Bryan commanded the 8th Lucknow Division.

Parenthetically, "The Mahout" is a very fine bridge player and a tremendous consumer of cigarettes, and if anyone in our army is ever going to smoke one in the Yildiz Kiosk it will be he.

PRACTICAL FARMING

What a 100 Acre Farm Should Produce.

Previous to receiving your letter I had read the article in your December 31st issue, and I would offer the following criticisms of the conditions of affairs on this one hundred acre farm. Perhaps you will not agree with me in every point, but I certainly think that, with the limited knowledge which I have regarding this proposition, the criticisms are justified, writes Mr. E. S. Archibald, Dominion Animal Husbandman in Canadian Farmer.

A hundred acre farm of good character soil should be producing a great deal more than this hundred acres mentioned. In looking over the statement one finds that the live stock kept amounts to only 4 horses, 7 milch cows, 12 head of young cows, 15 pigs of all ages, and 20 ewes; yet in the accounts one notices items for the purchase of hay, 5 or 6 tons; straw, 1 to 2 tons, and chop for cattle and pig feed amounting to over $70, with a total for feed purchased of $177.26. A hundred acre farm should produce average crops approximately as follows:—

10 acres of corn ensilage....150 tons
5 acres of potatoes and turnips and mangels, say 900 bushels of potatoes and 1,200 bushels of turnips and mangels.
5 acres of peas .....100 bushels
5 acres of wheat .....200 bushels
15 acres of oats or mixed oats and barley 900 bushels.
20 acres of hay .....40 tons
16 acres of rough land and bush.
20 acres of pasture.
4 acres of building sites, roadways, lawn, orchard, etc.

This is a rough calculation which, of course, would be varied depending upon the layout of the farm, the character of the soil, and the character of farming carried on. Many hundred acre farms in Western Ontario produce a great deal more than above estimated. This foodstuff would be sufficient to feed at least twice the number of live stock maintained thereon.

Either the hundred acre farm mentioned is very poorly farmed or the soil must be in a very poor state of fertility, and needs very radical steps in improvement. A hundred acre farm which is not capable of providing hay, grain, and other feeds for the small number of live stock carried thereon could not be profitable.

One notices in looking over the statement that two men are maintained on this farm, and considering the feeds raised there is far from sufficient labor to keep two men busy, especially during the winter months, with the small number of live stock which is being kept. Aside from this, one notices the special charges for cleaning well, sawing wood, and the like, which might be easily done by these men.

Again, one notices such items as $30 for the grazing of cattle. If this hundred acre farm cannot produce 35 tons of hay and provide sufficient pasture for the 7 milch cows and 12 head of young stock, it must be most unprofitable. Again one notices that four 2-year-olds should have weighed at least 1,000 pounds each, which means that they were sold at only 5 cents per pound live weight. Probably they were worth no more, but had they been properly finished they might easily have sold for two to three cents more per pound live weight. The ridiculous part of the meat question is that the four 2-year-old steers did not produce as much income as was expended in the household for the butcher bills.

Again, the seven cows produced approximately 9 gallons of cream and 46 pounds of butter per cow, or a total of approximately 75 pounds of butter per cow. The cow which does not produce 300 pounds of butter per annum on a hundred acre farm valued at $100 per acre is a losing proposition.

Generally speaking, this hundred acre farm is not producing either in field crops or in manufactured products, namely, beef, pork, and dairy products, one-quarter of the amount which it should. However, in this statement one notices that improvements in the fields, etc., if such were made, are not credited; also that improvements in the stock, if such were made, are not credited. One also notices that the twenty ewes have produced no income either in lamb, mutton or wood.

Generally speaking, the following suggestions for the immediate improvement of conditions might be made:—

1. To increase the production of the farm two, three or four times, as soon as possible, by a good system of rotation, better tillage method, and probably better selection of crops, together with manuring, etc. Details of this phase of the work may be had free upon application to the Field Husbandry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

2. To increase the production of the live stock on the farm. If these cows cannot produce, by the best commercial feeding methods, more than they did during the past year, they had better be sold immediately and replaced by cows which can show a profit. If the feeding methods are faulty, these should be improved immediately so that the cows may have an opportunity to prove their worth. This also applies to the handling of the pigs and the sheep.

3. The cash incomes from this farm must be increased two or three times. The present income is out of all proportion to the necessary expenditures and also to the large amount of labor which is being maintained. There is sufficient labor on this farm to produce a cash income from the stock and also from the fields of at least five times the present income. Generally speaking, the expenditures seem to be very fair for a farm of this size, especially where improvements are being made, with the exception of the items for the purchase of feeds and for the grazing of stock, which certainly appear unnecessary, considering the limited stock maintained.

AFTER MEALS

GERMANY WILL WAGE WAR WITHOUT MERCY OR QUARTER

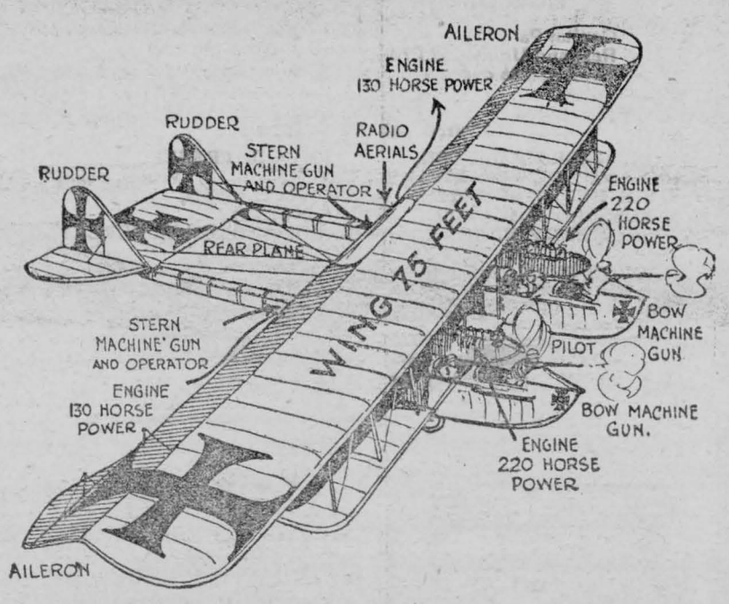

Primeval State of Civilization Will be Restored, Man Will Face Man With Wolflike Ferocity

A despatch from London says: German newspapers which reached here Wednesday publish long extracts from the speech made by Maximilian Harden, editor of the Zukunft, at a public meeting in Berlin on February 5. He is quoted as saying:

"We are yet unconvinced that we are fighting with our backs to the wall. As soon as we reach this conclusion, there will be war without mercy or quarter. The primeval state of civilization will be restored. Man will face man with wolf-like ferocity.

"If the world insists upon despising the Germans, then the word 'Europe' will lose all its sense and meaning. Europe can still be rescued. It is only the attidute of our enemies which conjures up the menace of destruction. If the rescue, however, is attempted at the expense of the German empire, then let the world not deceive itself for a moment into thinking there will be any means whatever —let the world think what it pleases—which the German people will not joyfully turn against its foes."

THE NEW FOKKER IRONCLAD

Germany's Dreadnought of the air, the Fokker bi-plane, with its twin bullet-proof bodies, its powerful engines, its four machine guns, and its great, spreading framework and wings. They will carry 27 men. Their one drawback is that their altitude limit is about 6,000 feet, wherefore British aviators do not fear them.

HOLLAND IS A WAREHOUSE FOR SUPPLIES FOR GERMANY

Dutch Cities Swarm With German Merchants, Agents and Spies, Trading Freely

A despatch from London says: The Daily Mail recently sent an investigator to Holland, as it had previously sent one to Scandinavia, to ascertain the effect of the British blockade.

This investigator contributed a three-column article to the Daily Mail on Monday morning, the gist of which is that the correspondent, after patient and careful enquiry, has come to the conclusion that Holland is being used by the Germans as a warehouse from which goods are taken daily to the German factories, cities and troops.

He asserts that the Netherlands Overseas Trust, established under a pledge to control the imports so that Holland would import only for her own needs has been a failure.

"The Dutch cities," he says, "are swarming with German merchants, agents and spies, trading freely. Dutch commerce is inextricably entangled with German interests and German capital."

The correspondent supports his contentions by statistics and other evidence.

RUSSIANS HURL NEW ONSLAUGHT

Promises to Extend to the General Initiative Along the Whole Line.

A despatch from Petrograd says: Although a general revival of activity is officially reported along the entire Russian front the only developments of more than local and temporary importance are the Russian avdance in the Stripa region, south-east of Isebroff, where the Russians succeeded in capturing heights commanding the district in which runs the main railway line between the Chodorov and Stry rivers, and the occupation by the Russians of the heights east of Tchemerine.

The progress in the latter district, which is between Rovno and Lutsk, is another sign of the resumption of the Russian offensive, which came to an abrupt halt a month ago, when the Germans apparently succeeded in erecting such firm fortifications that further attempts at an advance on the part of the Russians became a waste of energy and ammunition.

It is considered significant that a new and more formidable Russian offensive is being launched against the same positions, and with initial successes. This is explained by most of the military obserers as due to the new power and effectiveness of the Russian artillery, which recently has shown marked improvement on all fronts.

The Germans, evidently surprised by the fierceness of the new Russian onslaught, which promises to extend to a general initiative along the whole line, have been forced at several points in Galicia to retire to their second line of defence.

The Czar has arrived at the front.

ZEPPELIN REPRISALS WOULD BE A CALAMITY

A despatch from London says: The Lord High Chancellor, Baron Buckmaster, speaking on Saturday night at Keighley, strongly condemned the suggested reprisals for Zeppelin raids. He said: "There could be no greater tragedy in the black tragedy of this time, than when we had conquered the Germans, we should have moulded ourselves and our behavior upon the very model we set out to break. This is not merely a war of armies, but of ideals."

FRANCE CERTAIN WAR WILL END THIS YEAR

A despatch from Bordeaux says: The French Line steamer Rochambeau arrived here on Thursday. Among her passengers was Maurice Damour, head of the French commercial mission which recently visited the United States to organize trade relations between France and that country. A tour will be made by M. Damour to the principal industrial and commercial centres of France to prepare for a visit to them by an American and Canadian delegation of business men next Spring.

KING'S PROCLAMATION GOES TO BACHELORS

Machinery for Enforcement of Conscription Set in Motion.

A despatch from London says: Governmental machinery for the enforcement of the conscription act was set in motion on Wednesday. The King's proclamation calling upon all eligible bachelors between the ages of 20 and 30 years to report for service, beginning March 3, was placed in the mails. In London alone 40,000 copies of the proclamation were distributed. Simultaneously large posters with final recruiting appeals appeared in Trafalgar Square and other prominent places in the city. They read: "Will you march too, or wait until March two?" The day was marked by a lessening of activity among the recruiting sergeants. The big Strand recruiting offices near Charing Cross were closed at noon.

CALGARY WILL HAVE NO GERMAN EMPLOYED

Big Restaurants Wrecked by Mob of Soldiers

A despatch from Calgary, Alta., says: A mob of several hundred soldiers completely wrecked the White Lunch Restaurant on Eighth Avenue east on Thursday nighft, following up the work of destruction by wrecking the premises of the same concern on Ninth Avenue. A rumor that the manager had dismissed returned soldiers who had been hired as waiters, and had replaced them with Germans was responsible for the attack. The place was owned by the White Lunch Company, and F. H. Naegel is the manager. Mr. Naegel denied that he had dismissed any returned soldiers, or that he had hired any Germans, but said that he had occasion to dismiss a man who had a long time been a soldier, but was not now with the overseas forces.

EXPECTS BIG INFLUX OF AMERICAN SETTLERS

Persident Scott Confident of Success in Combating Anti-Immigration.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Hon. Walter Scott, Premier of Saskatchewan, was in Ottawa on Thursday en route to Regina, after attending a conference of Canadian Immigration agents at Chicago. Premier Scott says that the measures taken to combat the recent publicity campaign in the States against immigration to Canada on account of fears of conscripion, etc., would undoubtedly be successful. He was confident that next spring would see a big influx of the most desirable class of American settlers to the Canadian west.

BUYING FAT AND WOOL IN SWITZERLAND

A despatch from London says: A despatch to the Morning Post from Berne says: "German agents, especially women, are buying large quantities of fat and wool in Switzerland preparatory to asking the Government to allow their exportation, which is now forbidden. It is suggested that Switzerland's refusal to acquiesce would cause Germany to decline to allow Switzerland to receive coal, sugar and soda from Germany."

Britain to Use the Distilleries for the Manufacture of Munitions

A despatch from London says: The Daily Chronicle of Monday states that the Government will immediately requisition all the large whiskey distilleries in the country for use as munitions factories. The Chronicle adds that the Government intends to prohibit the importation of barley for distilling purposes.

All Single Men in Britain called to the Colors

A despatch from London says: The Central News is authority for a report that all single men are to be called on to enlist next week. A Royal proclamation shortly to be issued notifying all single men to attest, the Central News states, attributes the unexpected speedy summons to the many recent consultations betwen the Minister of Munitions and the War office.

COSSACKS CAPTURE BIG ENEMY OFFICIALS

A despatch from Petrograd says: A despatch from Teheran says that Assim Bey, Turkish Ambassador to Persian, has been captured by a patrol of Cossacks near Keredj. Three companions, who were taken prisoners at the same time as the Ambassador, have proved to be the Austrian military attache and two Austrian prisoners-of-war who had escaped from the Russians some time ago.

AMBULANC RECEIVED FROM ILLINOIS SOCIETY

A despatch from Ottawa says: A large, well apointed ambulance given by the British Empire Association of Illinois to the British Red Cross Society reached Ottawa, on Wednesday, and at noon on Thursday was formally handed over to the society, represented by H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught. The presentation was made on behalf of the Illinois association by John Crerar, of Chicago.

CALGARY TROOPS ATTACK HOTEL

Demolish the Bar of One House In Belief That German Was Owner.

A despatch from Calgary, Alta. says: Another riotous outbreak on the part of soldiers belonging to the garrison here occurred on Thursday night and for two hours the authorities, police and militia were powerless to cope with the mob. Riverside Hotel, a two-storey brick and frame structure in the Riverside district, north of the Bow River, was attacked by a crowd of about 500 soldiers and civilians and thoroughly wrecked. The windows were smashed, frames and all, and most of the furniture pitched out into the snow, where is was broken to bits by the shouting crowd. The bar was raided and the stock passed around among the rioters, who speedily grew to about 2,000 strong, at least half being civilians, and under the influence of the liquor orgy of wild destruction followed. The building was reduced to a mere shell.

ARMED VESSELS ARE WARSHIPS

U-Boat Commanders Are Notified to "Treat Them Accordingly."

A despatch from Washington says: Germany and Austria have formally notified the United States that beginning March 1 commanders of their submarines will consider armed merchant ships of the Entente allies to be warships, and will treat them accordingly.

Under such instructions commanders would be at liberty to sink without warning any armed vessel, whether passenger or freight carrying.

The notifications were presented orally to Secretary Lansing by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, and Baron Erich Zwiedinek, charge of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy here. Notes from their Governments are to follow.

GERMAN TROOPS POUR INTO TURK TERRITORY

A despatch from London says: There has been a large influx of German troops into Turkey, according to a Bucharest despatch to The Times. About 25,000 Germans arrived last week at Rustchuk, Bulgaria, and proceeded to Shumla, which is fifty-five miles west of Varna, and, it is understood, will continue their journey to Turkey.

MAY USE PRISONERS ON ROAD CONSTRUCTION

A despatch from Quebec says: It was learned on Thursday on good authority at the Parliament that negotiations are going on to employ alien enemies interned in Canada on the improvements to the roads leading to the Valcartier camp.

ON THE VERGE OF STARVATION

Indisputable Evidence That the Germans Are Suffering for Want of Food.

A despatch from London says: While the German newspapers are telling of the Kaiser and his armies marching on from victory and are relating daily new exploits calculated to stir the people to enthusiasm, the fact that Germany actually is on the verge of starvation is becoming daily more apparent. This conclusion is not founded on the statements of alleged "neutrals," whose impressions necessarily are biased, but is based on reports of the actual conditions as related by the German press.

The theory is advanced that the Berlin Government encourages the publication of alarming reports on the food situation with a view to misleading the enemy. This is obviously absurd. The German press is filled not only with reports of a most serious food crisis, but with advertisements of substitutes for missing articles of diet and the feverish activities of scientists seeking to discover new foodstuffs.

SKODA ARMS FACTORY SERIOUSLY DAMAGED

Publication of News of Disaster Not Permitted in Austria.

A despatch from Bucharest to the Balkan Agency at Paris, which was delayed for five days, states that the damage of the Skoda armament factory in Bohemia was more serious than at first announced. Roumanian official circles, the despatch adds, have received confirmation from Vienna of the destruction of all the cannon which were in course of manufacture, as well as all the plans and drawings in the draughting offices. The dead number nearly 300, and several hundred were injured by the explosion which caused the disaster, and which is said to have been the work of criminals, who employed melinite for the purpose. The despatch adds that the Austrian military censorship has prohibited the publication of news of the disaster in Austria-Hungary.

ITALY IS INVITING WAR WITH GERMANY

A despatch from Rome says: Almost coincident with the arrival of Premier Briand of France in Rome an absolute prohibition of the introduction of German imports into Italy has been proclaimed. It is evident that the decree, which is unmistakably a hostile act, was made purposely with the object of provoking Germany to a declaration of war. The most prominent statesmen and members of Parliament in Italy openly predict a declaration of war on Germany which will be no longer delayed, because it is now indispensable to clear up the situation, both with respect to allies and enemies.

OVER 240,000 TROOPS HAVE BEEN RAISED IN THE DOMINION

Figures for January Show an Average of One Thousand Men a Day

A despatch from Ottawa says: Recruiting figures for January show an average of practically 1,000 men per day for the full month. Commanding officers of each division say that the men are enlisting now at a most satisfactory rate. The continued keeping up of the flow of men to the colors is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that up to the end of last year Canada had already enlisted about 210,000 men. The total number recruited to date, including officers, is now over the 240,000 mark. So the total number the 1st military District (London) has contributed a little over 20,000 men, the 2nd District (Toronto) about 54,000 men, the 3rd District (Kingston) a little over 25,000 men, the 4th District (Montreal) about 22,500, the 5th District (Quebec) about 5,500, the 6th District (Maritime Provinces) nearly 23,000, the 10th Military District (Manitoba and Saskatchewan) about 46,500, the 11th District (Alberta) about 23,000, and the 13th District (British Columbia and the Yukon) nearly 23,000.

During January the Toronto District recruited over 8,000 men, the Maritime Provinces about 2,000, Western Ontario about 4,000, Eastern Ontario about 3,000, Quebec about 2,000, Maritime Provinces about 2,000, Manitoba and Saskatchewan over 5,000, Alberta 3,000, and British Columbia nearly 2,000.

Two Large German Banks Fail

A despatch from Geneva says: The Gazette de Lausanne reports two of the largest banks in South Germany have gone into liquidation, with total liabilities of $125,000,000. Thousands of depositors, the paper says, were ruined.

Serbian Army Numbers 76,000

A despatch from London says: The Athens correspondent of the Daily Mail reports that the Serbian Legation has received an official telegram stating that there are 64,000 Serbian troops at Corfu and 3,800 at Salonica The statement says that the Serbian army totals 76,000 men newly equipped and armed. Transportation of men from Albania still continues and there will shortly be 80,000 Serbians at Corfu.

Britain to Feed Cameroon Refugees

A despatch from Paris says: The Spanish Government is sending a regiment of marines to Spanish Guinea to guard the 900 Germans and 14,000 German coloial troops who took refuge there when driven out of the German colony of Cameroon by the British pursuit, according to a Havas despatch from Cadiz on Wednesday. The Germans will be brought to Spain. The British steamer Cataluna is taking on board a cargo of food for the hungry fugitives.

AMERICAN PREPAREDNESS

(Ottawa Citizen.)

Discussing President Wilson's campaign for preparedness the Montreal Mail says:

"What Mr. Wilson has found out presumably, is that the United States cannot do business in the European diplomatic market until she has credit at the Bank of Force. He may be expected to advance convincing arguments in behalf of his policy. Opposed to him is a strange mass of hostile sentiment and sentimentality, stirred up by such miscreants as Bryan and Ford. The progress of his campaign will be watched with keen interest by all, and with no little sympathy by those who desire to see the United States ready to take action according to the promptings of her best traditions of liberty and freedom."

It is better disinterestedly to observe the game of American domestic politics than to extend either sympathy or advice to the parties concerned. The American preparedness campaign is a complicated affair to the outsider. President Wilson, an avowed peace man, agreed to huge additional expenditures for army and navy purposes because evidently of pressure within his own party. Col. Roosevelt, the Republican dark horse, who originated the preparedness campaign, was evidently taken aback at the prompt acceptance of his proposals by the party in power, but resolved not to have his thunder stolen so neatly and therefore launched into more advanced program that does not even stop at conscription. In the meantime there is strong opposition to the president within his own party, and on the whole the matter threatens to cause some political earthquakes.

It is interesting to observe, however, that various constructions are placed upon the president's action by different political elements. The strongest Republican state in the union is Pennsylvania, and in a long article in the Philadelphia Ledger a few days ago ex-Governor Pennypacker unburdened himself of the following in regard to the benefits of preparedness:

"We have been loud in our condemnation of Germany for making preparations during the last 40 years for her defense, Mr. Wilson has wisely recommended to Congress that in America we follow her example and do precisely the same thing. If the British win in this war they will tighten their hold on the seas, where they even now threaten New York and our whole coast. The Cossack will be in Constantinople and perhaps in Berlin, and the Japanese, their ally, who they have agreed must be satisfied before peace is made, will be crossing the Pacific. What good will all this do to America, even though Schwab, du Pont and Morgan are more wealthy?

"If the Germans win, then in all probability, Canada, with the Great Lakes, the St. Lawrence River and the Manitoba wheat fields, which the British wrenched from us in the Democratic days of Polk, will enter the union of the States. Canada will be unable to protect herself in any other way, and can do no otherwise. What Charles Carroll tried to accomplish during the Revolution and would have succeeded in doing, had it not been for the Canadian dislike of the Puritans of New England, will have been realized and the hope of Washington and the patriots who founded the Government be fulfilled."

The ex-governor is one of the strong personalities in the party which may nominate Col. Roosevelt in the coming Chicago convention. He is a political power in Pennsylvania, and it is not unreasonable to assume that he is not alone in his ideas of the uses to which preparedness in the United States might be profitably employed.

Flirting With Death

("Oklahoma Times" in "Motor-Boat" Magazine)

"Flirting with Death" was the unofficial title of an impromptu lecture delivered by Fire Chief Ross Brooks of Oklahoma, before several city hall officials in Commissioner Highley's office Monday, in relation to what Chief Brooks considers the most fatal combination possible in the automobile world—that of straining gasoline through chamois skins.

"It is a strange fact that no one motorist in a dozen knows that he is literally taking his life in his hands when he pours his gasoline through a funnel in which he has placed a chamois skin to act as a strainer,'' said the chief. "Statistics of fire departments in many cities show that an overwhelming per cent of auto fires are caused by the apparently trivial cause."

Chief Brooks declared that the reason of the destruction to life and property so often resulting from the straining of gasoline was due to the fact that gasoline passing through the chamois, which a careless motion may generate into a spark, causing a frightful explosion which has several times occurred in the midst of a party of motorists, and the cause of which has until recently remained a mystery.

"So long as the funnel fits tightly into the mouth of the tank there is no danger," declares chief which keeps the electricity from gathering into a dangerous amount in the funnel. But when the funnel is held in the hand, or is sep- Brooks. "That carries a ground erated from the conductor, in this case the metal tank, it becomes charged with one of the most powerful and deadly agents in the world—electricity, In many cases the motorist goes on his way, not knowing that he brushed elbows with death. For unless a ground is formed as the gasoline filters through the chamois, a spark will inevitably leap from the funnel to the nearest point of contact with the tank. Passing ground is formed as the gasoline filters a jump spark, on the same principle as lightning and must inevitably result when the funnel is used without coming into actual contact with the tank. Many persons have been burned and scarred for life, and several have been killed, through ignorance of the electrical phenomenon.

"Formerly somebody was supposed to have inadvertently struck a match, when these sudden explosions occurred, but now investigation shows that the true reason is due to the fatal oversight of using the chamois skin in a suspended funnel.

"The moral of the whole thing is, never, under any circumstances put gasoline through a chamois skin. The danger always exists, for electricity is a peculiar agent and it is an impossibility to know when the funnel being used so innocently by the ignorant motorist has received its maximum capacity of the statical current."

Correspondence

CHRONICLES II

(Chap. 2)

1—And it came to pass that in the town of Grubsirrom an unfenced town of the plain, that many people of feeling hearts and goodly intentions joined together in a band to help the sick of their Brethren.

2—Now each of those who wished and was certified to have a good moral character were taken in the circle of friendo and each contributing certain shekels t the fund.

3—These shekels were to be put aside for the purpose of distributing them to the sick to aid them in procuring medicines and other things that were needed

4—And as years passed by many were helped and a number came from the East and from the West and joined the band of friends.

5—And after a time some of the younger men thought more of eating and smoking than they did of their sick brethren.

6—Then they gathered together and said "come to and let us make an Image and name our band", so they named their band "The Infernal Order of Fleecers".

7—And they formed an Image of the beast and set it up before them, and the beast had two faces, one looking before and the other looking to the rear and they called his name Janius.

8—Now the next thing that they strove after was to get possession of the talents that was laid away for charitable purposes.

9—So they got control of the money and had quite a few feasts and rolls of nicotine to smoke and make merry with the shekels that others provided.

10—Now when they could not use up all the rolls of nicotine in the evening they put some in their pockets to smoke the next day.

11—Now if any of the Brethren took sick or was afflicted in any manner, he was, according to their manner of doctrine, to notify one of the scribes that did writing for the beast and his followers.

12—And the scribes were to visit the sick and see if such were the case and I suppose tell the Physician what was the sickness and what he should do for the patient.

A CALL FROM THE FRONT

A hero who has spent the past seven months in Flanders writes to the young men of Canada:

Boys, we're going to win out.

But I'll give you a straight tip, fellows—we must have more men.

Man for man—we can beat them, but we haven't man for man--yet.

And the thing that sticks in my mind is how on earth some physically fit young men can be walking around in civilian's clothes and letting us do their share, as well as our own. I don't want to preach, but ask your self the question:

Am I doing my share in this--Canada's fight for freedoom? Then if your conscience answers you as I believe it will—come down now and join the 154th (Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry) Batt., Lieut. Col. Macdonald, O. C. 600 men wanted before the close of the current month. The 154 Battalion is getting a superior class of young men who will maintain the esprit de corps of this fine Batt. of ohums and acquaintances. Come on boys join the 154th and prepare for your free trip to Germany. Call at the nearest recruiting station, enroll your name and receive your suit of khaki. In doing so you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are performing your bit for King & Country.

Recruiting Stations are now established at the following points--- Cornwall, Alexandria, Finch, Vankleek Hill, Hawkesbury, Maxville, Williamstown, Lancaster, Morrisburg, South Mountain, Iroquois, Winchester, and Chesterville.

I OWE MY HEALTH

To Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Washington Park, Ill.—"I am the mother of four children and have suffered with female trouble, backache, nervous spells and the blues. My children's loud talking and romping would make me so nervous I could just tear everything to pieces and I would ache all over and feel so sick that I would not want anyone to talk to me at times. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills restored me to health and I want to thank you for the good they have done me. I have had quite a bit of trouble and worry but it does not affect my youthful looks. My friends say 'Why do you look so young and well?' I owe it all to the Lydia E. Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. ROBT. STOPIEL, Moore Avenue, Washington Park, Illinois.

We wish every woman who suffers from female troubles, nervousness, backache or the blues could see the letters written by women made well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

About the House

Useful Hints and General Information for the Busy Housewife

Some Tried Recipes.

Bread Sauce.—Rub through colander one teacup bread crumbs. To one-half pint cold milk add small onion and four allspice. Boil eight minutes. Take out onion and spice, add bread crumbs and one tablespoon butter. Beat well and serve hot with chicken.

Frizzled Beef.—Melt one tablespoon butter, add one-half pound dried beef. Cook five minutes, add one-half cup stock, a few drops onion juice, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two eggs well beaten. Cook two minutes and serve.

Cheese Dreams.—Cut twelve thin slices of bread and remove crusts. Cut in halves, cover with a thin slice of cheese. Sprinkle with salt, paprika and cayenne. Cover with another slice of bread and saute on both sides in butter. These are more easily prepared small than large.

Cheese Custard.—Melt two tablespoons butter; add one teaspoonful each of salt, mustard and paprika. Add two cupfuls cheese, one-half cupful soft bread crumbs, and one cupful milk. Cook five minutes. Add two eggs well beaten; when thoroughly blended pour on to bread toasted on one side.

Bacon and Chicken Livers.—Cut six chicken livers in slices. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add an equal amount of sliced bacon. Cook together until livers are tender. Pour on two tablespoonsful flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, one cupful stock or tomato. Season with Worcestershire and serve hot on toast.

Oatmeal Pudding.—1 breakfast-of medium oatmeal, ¼ lb. beef suet, 1 small Spanish onion (or a large mild ordinary one), a seasoning of salt and pepper. Mix the meal and minced suet in a bowl and add the onion finely chopped. Mix and stir well; add the seasoning, and put into a greased mould. Covered with buttered paper, and steam for 3 hours, or a little longer. The water in the outer vessel must be kept boiling all the time.

Grated Noodles for Soup.—Beat one egg with teaspoon of water. Add a little salt, then work in enough flour to make stiff dough. Set aside for a while, then begin to grate on coarse grater. When inner part of dough is reached let stand again to dry. When all the noodles are grated let them dry on sheet of paper, and when ready to cook drop well separated into boiling soup. Cook ten to fifteen minutes.

Beef and Rice Croquettes.—Mince the remainder of roast beef fine, putting it through a machine three times if you have one. Mix the meat with an equal measure of freshly cooked rice, and season well with salt, pepper and mushroom catchup. Add a few chopped mushrooms. Shape in oval croquettes, roll in bread crumbs, then in egg and crumbs, then in egg and crumbs, and fry brown.

Improved Corned Beef.—When boiling corned beef mix together one tablespoonful of malt vinegar, one teaspoonful of tarragon vinegar, one teaspoonful of relish, a little made mustard, a dessertspoonful of brown sugar, and a few allspice. When the sugar is melted stir all into the water in which the beef is to be boiled, adding at the same time an onion stuck with one clove. The meat should be served cold.

Apple Tapioca.—Cook a cupful of tapioca—sprinkle it in boiling water—until it is clear and thick. Sweeten to taste and flavor with lemon juice. Grease a pudding dish and spread the tapioca in layers alternately with sliced apples. Cover with a little milk in which some nutmeg has been shaken and bake in a slow oven. The white of an egg beaten up with sugar and used in place of the milk is slightly more expensive, but is, of course, more nourishing and makes an attractive finish to the dish. The cores and skins of the apples can be used to make a little jelly.

Tips for Housewives.

The time taken to produce good flavor in food is well spent.

A letter sealed with the white of an egg cannot be steamed open.

When boiled frosting has been cooked too long, add a piece of butter to soften.

A little powdered pumice stone will clean enameled ware better than anything else.

Mattresses should be sunned as often as possible. This makes them sweet and free from germs.

To iron embroidery the iron should be applied on the wrong side, and a thick ironing blanket used.

System is a great time and money saver in the home; haphazard methods are wasteful in every direction.

To retain the color and flavor of peas when boiling them, add a lettuce leaf and a tablespoonful of sugar.

Ink stains on handkerchiefs, etc., may often be soaked out in milk, but the sooner they are dealt with the better.

A little molasses or sugar added to the griddle cake batter is a decided help in browning the cakes well.

When there is a tendency for a pitcher to drip, try rubbing ever so little butter under the edge of the lip.

There is nothing more satisfactory for use in brightening a mirror than a piece of soft flannel dipped in camphor.

In place of a funnel of paper insert one or two short lengths of macaroni in the top crust of a berry or other juicy pie.

Lemon juice and salt is an excellent medium for cleaning bone knife handles. Apply the lemon juice first and then the salt.

Tarnished articles of brass when washed in the water in which potatoes have been boiled will be as bright as new.

Mother of pearl buttons and ornaments will be considerably brightened if rubbed over with a cloth moistened with olive oil.

Sometimes four families in a neighborhood can purchase a barrel of apples and divide it among them with advantage to all four purses.

Coffee made in a pot that is not thoroughly clean will always have a rank, murry taste, no matter how fine the quality of the coffee.

When you boil potatoes, boil enough for two or three meals. Serve them the first time in their jackets, and afterwards fried or creamed.

When using spoons for measuring dry ingredients, take as much above the bowl of the spoon as you have in it. This constitutes a spoonful.

When weighing molasses for cooking purposes, well flour the scale and the molasses will run off quite easily without leaving any stickiness behind.

To clean pudding pans put the little ones in the big ones, turn upside down in the dishpan and set the stove to steam. They will clean in 10 minutes.

To sweeten a sour cask that has held pickles, vinegar or wine, wash it with lime water, or throw in hot charcoal and ashes. Add water and let the cask soak.

Never use a coarse or rough cleansing agent on paint of any sort. Whiting roughens the surface, but the rougher cleansing agents destroy the varnished or painted surface.

The Fashions

A Word on Hats for Spring

Fur is still the smart trimming for all garments, and it promises to remain in favor well into the spring. There is already a hint here and there, however, that designers and manufacturers are tentatively reaching out for an attractive successor. In one of the smart shops the other morning, a most attractive afternoon dress was displayed; it was made in Russian effect, was very simple, and sparingly ornamented, the only trimming in fact, being bands of ostrich in the same shade of blue as the dress, edging the high-standing collar, the cuffs and the lower edge of the blouse peplum. The effect was pleasing and perfectly appropriate for the warmer weather.

Drop Shoulder Frock—Band-Trimmed Skirt

Trimmings for Spring Hats

Whether ostrich as trimming for hats will be favored to any great degree, is still a question; that it will be used considerably, as in the past season or two, for fancies, odd little stick ups, balls, rosettes, and similar effects on the chic small hats which are being introduced as first models for spring, has already been confirmed. Many hand-made hats are being shown this season. The new braids are mostly shiny; glace effects will predominate, although one sees some effective dull-finished hemps and tagals. A new glace braid from Paris resembles nothing so much as the scales of a fish, and it is appropriately named "fish-scale" straw. Some flowers will be used on the new hats, and quantities of ribbon. The new colors in millinery are, generally speaking, black, which is quite as strong as ever, geranium-pink, absinthe, polished-gold, mintgreen, and baby chick; the last a charmingly suggestive title.

Among the attractive millinery notions being displayed in the shops, and worn at the southern resorts, are sets consisting of hat, handbag and collarette and fashioned of faille, or the new soft luster satins. One of the most attractive of these is developed in the new Callot color, a soft shade of pinkish lavender. The hat is very simple, a medium sailor turned up sharply on the left side, having no contrasting trimming; the bag is of the same soft luster satin as the hat, and the collarette, also of silk, is corded about an inch apart, and finished with long ribbon ends for tying. These sets are being made up in many colors and are usually effective as a finishing touch on an afternoon frock of silk, or one of the sheer cottons.

6981—6951

Illustrating the Cape-Collar

Fashions in Handbags

Now that so much attention is being given to details, and in consequence we are all presenting a better groomed appearance than ever before, the handbag is being shown considerable attention. Once upon a time it was considered for its useful qualities alone. Now it lends an added touch of color or richness to tailored suit and afternoon frock, and its appropriateness for both must be considered. The voluminous bag of soft morocco and like soft leathers in dark colorings, the black patent leather bag, lined with bright red or creamed-colored moire silk, and the envelope purses, also lined with bright silks, are good form with tailored suits. There are some attractive novelty striped leathers also being used with dark tailored suits very effectively. Antique brocades, Japanese embroideries, and dyed laces are fashioned into effective and artistic bags for the afternoon gown.

Several of the newest fashion features are illustrated in the afternoon frocks illustrating this letter; the cape-collar is one, the drop-shoulder and attractive sleeve is another. The band-trimmed skirt is new and effective, and the full-pointed tunic is smart and becoming.

Patterns can be obtained at your local McCall Dealer, or from The McCall Company, Department "W", 70 Bond Street, Toronto, Ontario.

WATCHDOGS GUARD FRENCH TRENCHES.

The French military dogs, valuable heretofore in assisting in the search for wounded soldiers, are now being put to a still more useful work. After being properly trained they mount the French parapets and trenches and give timely warning of the approach of the enemy. The photograph shows one of these military dogs being trained for his work.

VISIONS ON THE BATTLEFIELD

ANGELS WERE SEEN AT MONS AND YPRES.

Categorical Accounts of Angelic Hosts Appearing at Battles in Flanders.

The story of the appearance of angels at the battle of Mons which appears to have had its genesis in a purely imaginative description by a newspaper writer of the old english bowmen coming to the help of their countrymen has travelled the length of precise statement and direct evidence.

In the small religious paper "Confidence," published in Sunderland, England, testimony is given by "Private J. Easy" as follows: Our officers prepared us to fight a rearguard action ..... When the main body had left us we settled ourselves down to our fate and every man fought bravely.

Marvellous Manifestation.

"On, on, came those grey coats in thousands and when at last we could hold no longer against such odds, the most marvellous thing happened. Suddenly, from the nowhere, placing themselves between us and the enemy, appeared a line of white angelic forms. Immediately every gun was still. White, bare-headed and making strange movements—beyond this barracade of angels not one German could be seen. By their aid we were able to retire. The next day we found the remainder of our brigade."

Angelic Forms.

The following were some of the questions submitted to Pte. Easy and his answers:

"Can you describe the angel forms as to color, size, number and the length of this line of angels?"

"They were a pretty white in color; bigger than the average man; four or five in number; they reached across the street."

"Did you look back when retiring and did you still see them? How long did they remain there? Did they follow you?"

"They did not follow us. We looked back twice. The first time they were still there. The second time they were gone as suddenly as they appeared."

Faced the Enemy.

"Were their faces toward you or toward the enemy?"

"They had their faces toward the enemy."

"Had they swords in their hands? Did they move their arms?"

"I did not see anything in their hands. They did not move their arms backward and forwards."

"Did you see their faces or hair?"

"I did not see their faces or hair."

"Did the Germans seem to see them?"

"We could not see anything beyond the angels."

"Was it broad daylight when you saw them? What sort of weather?

In Broad Daylight.

"It was a beautiful sunny afternoon in August."

"Did the other men who were near you see them also?"

"No one could help but see them, who was there."

"What did any of them say at the time or afterward?"

"I said when we were retiring that they were angels and no one contradicted me. It was often discussed afterwards."

"Are any of your comrades alive now? Do you correspond with any?"

"I cannot say whether they are alive or not. I do not correspond with any now."

"Did any officers you knew see the angelic forms?"

"No officers that I knew saw them."

"Were any men deeply impressed? Can you tell me about any individual case (name) who was affected greatly?"

"One man who got blown to pieces was very much afraid."

Regiments Engaged.

"What German and what British regiments were there?"

"Prussian Guards, Uhlans, and minor infantry regiments. On our side several Scotts, Notts, L. F.'s and K. L.'s."

"When and where were you wounded?"

"I was wounded on the Aisne, with a shrapnel, down the right side, arm and hand. A piece entered my finger which caused septic poisoning, and amputation was necessary, but this operation was not performed soon enough and it caused tetanus. I was in hospital a long time in Angers. Whilst suffering, I again saw a beautiful vision of these angels. I knew then that I was saved. It was evident that others in the hospital did not see them. When I got better Sister Gilford told me I had had a marvellous resurrection; and three had died in the same bed that I had been in, 'with the same complaint and not half so bad.'

"My home is in Lincolnshire. My age is twenty-five. I have got four years' service. My religion is C. of E. I am now in the 9th Lincs. My number is 9322. (He is at present at Brockley Camp, near Stafford.)"

Saw Angel Host.

J. G. Davies of the K. R. R. is a Welshman. He has also been seeing visions and he did not object to answer interrogatories regarding his experiences. "Near Ypres," he says, "the shells showered on us. I as a stretcher-bearer went down the trench to see if anyone was wounded, but stopped now and again to hear the men praying, so finding nothing to do I prayed myself and the trench was one line of prayer. After the shelling no one was wounded, but we all saw a host of angels and talked about them ..... Another time when in the trenches we heard a voice sounding through the air about nine o'clock at night. The moon was clear and I saw an angel flying with a trumpet in his mouth. Some were very much frightened, but I said: 'Cheer up. It is all for good to them that love the Lord.'"

Had Human Features.

He gives the following answers to the questions put in regard to his experiences:

"When did the angels appear?"

"As I can remember it was October 2nd when I saw the host of angels at St. Jean (Ypres)."

"How did they arrive?"

"They came from a very high distance and they lowered themselves to us within a visible sight, then they went upwards until we lost sight of them."

"Could you see them plainly?"

"I could see them quite plainly and they had faces of men and women."

"Which way were their faces turned?"

"They faced us and the enemy."

"What time was it in the day?"

"It was about 12.30 in the morning."

"What was the weather? Were shells bursting at he time?"

"It was not cloudy and the shelling had just ended."

"How did the men take it?"

Men Afaid.

"The men feared very much. Five have been killed since."

"How long did the vision last?"

"The sight of the host lasted for a quarter of an hour and they went upwards quickly."

"When did this vision of the angel with the trumpet take place?"

"At Labrick at nine o'clock, the 7th December."

"How far off did the angel appear to be?"

"The angel was about twenty yards away and I heard the voice which sounded like the rolling of the sea and it weakened away! then I heard the words were 'destruction.' destruction.' Then he vanished away from earth."

OLD ONTARIO IS GOOD ENOUGH FOR ME.

A lady in California, recently sent to Canada a very elaborately gotten up booklet, entitled, "California Is Good Enough For Me." A reply to the California poet follows:

I'e read your little pamphlet,
And I think it's simply great.
It is sure a splendid picture
Of your grand and glorious state,
And I hope kind fate will sanction
These wonders I may see,
But at present good old Ontario
Is good enough for me.

You talk about the rose banks
That in profusion grow
But have you ever frolicked
In a glorious bank of snow?
We have them here a-plenty,
And we have diamonds on our trees,
While our kiddies cheeks are crimson
From the kisses of the breeze.

Of course we love the summer,
And the golden-tinted fall—
But we're longing for the snowflakes
Oftimes, long before they fall.
Oh! the bracing, brillian winter
With it's jolly sports and glee—
It's part of old Ontario,
And it's good enough for me.

You talk about your farm lands,
And you think you head the class.
But I wish you'd glimpse our wheat fields,
And could taste our garden "sass."
You mention, too, your peaches,
Your luscious prunes and flowers,
But you cannot show a sample
That could put over ours.

Then you brag about the ocean—
Its dimentions seem to please—
But it's not one whit more lovely
Than our smiling inland seas.
We have beaches, hills and valleys
That are just as fair to see—
While the fruit of old Ontario
Is good enough for me.

You laud your prosperous cities,
And the handsome women there,
As though our northern climate
Didn't have them twice as fair.
Your Eden, 'neath Old Glory,
Is a splendid place to be,
But I'll keep old Britain's banner
A-waving over me.

Though your fruits were twice as luscious
And your sunsets twice as fine,
They couldn't touch the heartstrings
Like this old home of mine.
And when I've seen your wonders
In your haven by the sea—
I know dear old Ontario
Will be good enough for me.

Better at Figures.

Mother (to newly married daughter)—"You don't mean to say, Marie, that you have kept your grocery book three months and haven't balanced it yet?"

Marie—"Oh, no, mamma! I let the grocer balance it. He's so much better at figures than I am, and I know he's honest, for he always tells me that he has forgotten to charge something which should have been in."

A shopper considers the price, but a buyer considers the value.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method is Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old-fashioned method of treatin indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old-fashioned method was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form. The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to do nature's work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas,—are all steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood-builder, tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. Thousands of cases like the following prove how successful this treatment is:—Miss Amy Browning, Cornith, Ont., says:—"I have found such great benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I would be ungrateful if I did not publicaly say a good word in their favor. I was badly run down and my stomach was in a very bad condition. All food distressed me, and left me disinclined to eat. I suffered from nausea and dizziness and frequent sick headache, and this was further aggravated by pains in the back and sides. I was in this condition for several years, and although I had got medicine from several doctors it did not help me. Then I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began taking them. I am glad to say that they soon helped me, and now I am as well as ever; can eat all kinds of food with relish, and have not an ache or pain."

You can get these Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medi cine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DEARTH OF SERVANTS.

London Girls Forsake Domestic Work For Places Vacated by Men.

As these months of war time pass one cannot fail to notice how women in London are steadily giving up the domestic side of life, the sphere of work to which they are particularly well suited, and in ever increasing numbers are seeking employment along totally different lines, says a London letter.

The problems of domestic service become more acute every day. Wages are raised, every inducement is offered, but the women and girls deliberately shun such posts. The dearth of servants is a question that requires looking into, and one finds that on all sides girls are leaving good homes, where they are well paid, well fed and well housed, to take positions that, though apparently attractive, really entail far harder work and many disadvantages.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can dispense with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eyestrain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind, or nearly so, or who wear glasses might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late! Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy, strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. If your own druggist cannot fill this prescription, send $1 to the Valmas Drug Co., Toronto, for a complete Bon-Opto Home Treatment outfit—tablets and all.

POLITE PERSONALITIES.

Genial Gossip About Some Well-Known People.

General Smith-Dorian is called "Smithy" by his soldiers.

Prince Arthur of Connaught is named after the Duke of Wellington.

How many Cabinet Ministers have been down a coal-mine? At least, one. Mr. McKenna, when he was Home Secretary, descended one of the pits at the Atherton Collieries in order to inspect the arrangements for the safety and convenience of miners.

His mind still directed on war inventions, Sir Hiram Maxim, in his South London experimental workshop, is an interesting figure. Like all inventors, he has had a lot to put up with. Twenty years ago, when he began experimenting with flying-machines, people declared that his reputation was ruined for life, as he was essaying the impossible.

When Lord Haldane was at the War Office he was "chipped" about the number of recruits for the Regular Army, otherwise qualified, who were rejected for cause of defective teeth. His answer was that he would be sorry to undertake the daily care of the teeth of the Army. In the present war dentists are kept working seven days a week to get intending recruits' teeth right.

Vedrines, the amazing French Aviator, is achieving fine things against the Germans, and small wonder, for no passion is stronger in him than hatred of the Huns. This hatred is nothing new; he felt it long before the war. Once, when the world was at peace, Veldrines flew over German territory. "And," he says, "when I was a few kilometers up, I looked down upon Germany, and spat upon her—not once, but three times!"

Mr. Rudyard Kipling, is a great Imperialist, and often "talked Empire" with his old friends, Cecil Rhodes, in former days. He differed from his friend, however, in being an early riser, and one morning when he was staying at the South African magnate's house, he had to wait hungrily hour after hour for his morning meal. When Cecil Rhodes eventually got up, it was to find every tree in the garden plastered with the legend: "I—want—my—breakfast—Kipling."

STORMY WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustery weather which we have during February and March is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to over-heated, badly ventilated rooms and catch colds which racks their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NARROW ESCAPES.

Saved From Death in Baltic by a Cigarette Case.

"One bullet went clean through my pocket, struck my notebook, and stayed there. I have it still. It was my first hit, and so I have kept it as a souvenir." Thus wrote an officer from Flanders some time ago and the incident is typical of many occasions when men have been saved from death and disablement by some object they were carrying about their person.

Not very long ago, a private in the 4th East Yorkshire Regiment was saved from death by a cigarette case over his heart. The missile lodged in the inner cover of the case, and the cigarettes were badly damaged, but no other harm was done. A Lancashire soldier was also saved by a cigarette-tin and a penny in his breast pocket.

Bishop Taylor Smith tells how a captain in the Coldstreams was wounded by a shell. When he was examined the doctors found a Bible in his hip pocket. The piece of the shell had struck the Bible and gone through the pages. Had it not been for the Bible the officer's spine would have been shattered. Curiously enough, the missile had stopped at the ninety-first Psalm, and the officer's father, who had given him the Bible, had written a verse from that Psalm on the fly-leaf.

Shaving-soap, tobacco-pouches, letter-cases and books of all descriptions have saved the lives of many soldiers, but the most extraordinary lifesaver was a mouth-organ which was smashed to pieces by a bullet as it rested in the left breast pocket of Private Keighley, a Canadian. It was found afterwards that the mouth-organ bore the legend, "Made in Germany."

For One-Armed War Veterans.

For the use of one-armed war veterans there has appeared on the market in London a combination knife and fork. The knife is at one end of the handle, so that the crippled soldier may cut his meat. At the other end of the handle is affixed the fork. The user merely turns the instrument around when he gets ready to convey the food to his mouth.

A POWERFUL LAMP.

Will Likely Be Used on the Battlefield of Europe.

Edison's latest lamp is perhaps a bit too bulky for use in the ordinary home, but it is calculated to be very popular on the battlefield of Europe, for it confesses to harboring 3,000,000 candle power.

Every known means has been employed by the warring nations to turn night into day. Skyrockets, floating white lights, flares and immense searchlights have been used to guard against surprise. In many cases the searchlights used were so bulky that they had to be transported on heavy wagons, together with large generators of electricity. The roads were not built to stand much heavy traffic and often the lights were lost when they became mired.

Edison has employed a small and simple carriage for the transporting of his lamp. It is supplied with electricity from his famous improved storage batteries. These batteries will give the lamp a greater power than that now boasted by any of the searchlights in use in the English and French armies. It is claimed that the new lamp is light enough to be carried aloft in an airship.

BITS ABOUT BEASTS

They All Have Their Own Little Peculiarities.

You think you know something about animals, eh? Well, let us put your knowledge to a few simple tests.

Frogs, to begin with. Can they breathe with their mouths shut? Certainly they can. As a matter of fact, they always do. If they kept their mouths open, they would suffocate.

Next, hares. When do they close their eyes? Answer, never. You see, they havn't any eyelids, so they can't But they have a thin membrane, which performs the service of eyelids when they are asleep.

Are pigs good swimmers? No—shocking bad! Their forelegs are the trouble, being set too closely under them for aquatic sports.

What is the color of a horse's eyebrows? That's a difficult one. Think hard, and then learn that a horse hasn't any eyebrows.

You may like to know, in addition, that turtles and tortoises have no teeth; that parrots, unlike the majority of birds, can move both mandibles of their beaks; and that fishes never masticate. They simply haven't time between breaths. But perhaps you know that the zic-zac is about the only kind of bird a crocodile does not relish for its supper.

Still It Was Fatal.

"What did your father die of?" the doctor asked an Atchison negro who was being examined for life insurance.

"Ah don't know, boss," he replied, "but it wasn't nothing serious."

A GOOD CHANGE.

A Change of Food Works Wonders.

Wrong food and drink cause a lot of trouble in this world. To change is first aid when a person is ill, particularly from stomach and nervous troubles. As an illustration: A lady was brought around to health again by leaving off coffee (Tea is just as injurious because it contains caffeine, the drug found in coffee) and some articles of food that did not agree with her.

She says:

"For a number of years I suffered with stomach and bowel trouble which kept getting worse until I was ill most of the time. About four years ago I left off coffee and began using Postum. My stomach and bowels improved right along, but I was so reduced in flesh and so nervous that the least thing would overcome me.

"Then I changed my food and began using Grape-Nuts in addition to Postum. I lived on these two principally for about a month. Day by day I gained in flesh and strength until the nervous trouble had disappeared. I feel that I owe my health to Postum and Grape-Nuts.

"Husband was troubled, for a long time, with occasional cramps, and slept badly. Finally I prevailed upon him to leave off coffee and take Postum. After he tried Postum for a few days he found that he could sleep and that his cramps disappeared. He never went back to coffee." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Postum comes in two forms:

Postum Cereal—the original form—must be well boiled. 15c and 25c packages.

Instant Postum—a soluble powder—dissolves quickly in a cup of hot water, and, with cream and sugar, makes a delicious beverage instantly. 30c and 50c tins.

Both kinds are equally delicious and cost about the same per cup.

"There's a Reason" for Postum.

—sold by Grocers.

They have tested it and found it best for youngsters, best for grown-ups—a food to work on, to play on, to think on. 55 FRENCH GENERALS KILLED.

List of Paris Notables on Honor Roll of Professional Men.

Tout Paris, which is a combined French Blue Book and directory, gives in its 1916 edition, just issued, a list of Paris notables who have "died for their country." In this list are names well known in politics, literature science, the arts, the bar and high officials and officers of the army. The roll call, as it is called, totals 3,084 persons, all of whose names are printed in bold-face type.

The honor list is based on information furnished by the families of the victims. It includes the names of 55 generals, 91 colonels and 155 lieutenant-colonels. Other professions listed are: Men of letters, 82; artists, 53; Catholic clergy, 28; Protestants, 3; architects, 20; actors and singers, 18; doctors, 13; Diplomatic Corps, 8; sculptors, 10; composers and musicians, 4; the Institute of France, 1; judges, 1; inspectors of finance, 7; notaries, 5; and brokers, 2. The select clubs of all kinds in Paris lost a total of 336, including a number of titled persons.

"Yes," said the young singer, complacently, "I had a great reception after my song last night. The audience shouted 'Fine! Fine!'"

"Good thing you didn't sing again." said the cynic.

"Why, what do you mean?"

"They would have yelled 'Imprisonment!' the next time."

Rubber Famine in Germany.

Rubber is worth more than its weight in gold to Germany. There is no other substance more in demand and harder to get. It is necessary in the manufacture of war munitions as well as in the thousand and one articles in everyday life. The fact that there are practically no rubber-tired vehicles now sows how great is the rubber famine in Germany.

HOW EXPLOSIVES KILL

Awful Effects of the French Shrapnel Shells.

It will be recalled that on the morrow of the battle of the Marne returned combatants related strange stories of the aspect of certain German unwounded corpses, says London Tit-Bits. Death as been so instantaneous that the bodies remained in a lifelike posture, some shouldering a rifle, others pipe in mouth. In a communication made to the Academy of Medicine, M. Rene Arnnoux asserts that the phenomena was due to the efficacy of the French explosives. Within a 15-yard radius of the point where the shell explodes the displacement of the air is so intense as to destroy the equilibrium of pressure on the interior and exterior of the human body. The gas contained in the blood is thus liberated, causes a distension of the blood vessels and arteries, and, ultimately bursting those organs, induces sudden death. This argument is confirmed by the state of the bodies, which often showed the heart and liver greatly distended and numerous internal hemorrhages.

When the Grave Yawned for Him

Sandy Goulette Took Dodd's Kidney Pills for Bright's Disease.

Now He Can De His Days Work As Well As He Could Ten Years Ago—Offers Proof Of His Statement.

Old Fort Bay, Labradore, Que.—Feb. 14th, (Special.)—Cured of Bright's Disease when the grave yawned before him, Sandy Goulette, an old settler here, wants all the world to know that he owes his life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was swollen out of shape from head to foot. I was so short of breath I could hardly speak," Mr. Goulette states. "The doctor could do nothing for me. The minister gave me the holy sacrament and a good old priest came and told me that I could not live much longer.

"I was sick all winter and in the spring. I telegraphed two hundred miles for two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills. I took three pills the night they came and I got relief before morning. I took Dodd's Kidney Pills and they cured me.

"If anyone doubts this statement they can write me and I will give them names of people who know me and who will vouch for me. I am able to do my day's work as well now as I could ten years ago."

Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure the Kidneys.

Persian Grain.

The great arid wastes of Persia would lead one to believe that the country does not produce sufficient grain to supply the needs of its population. Such, however, is not the case, and considerable quantities of grain are exported each year. The principal grains grown are wheat, barley and rice. Corn is planted in small quantities, but is only used for roasting ears. Oats and rye are seldom sown. Except along the Caspian coast Persian agriculture is dependent almost entirely on irrigation. The agricultural implements used in Persia are of the most primitive kind. Plows are made from forks of small tres with the addition of a share of iron. It is stated to be doubtful, however, whether the yield of grain would be greatly increased by using modern plows, as there is no sod and this crude implement seems to stir the soil fairly well.

Bradford's New Distinction.

Bradford, the famous centre of Britain's woolen industry, is quite elated over the discovery that in Bolling Hall, the famous mansion on the outskirts of the city that was recently turned into a municipal museum of antiquities, it possesses the ancestral home of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President of the United States. For Bradford is pretty certain that this will mean a rush of American visitors after the war is over, and trans-atlantic sightseers, as everybody knows, are a highly profitable commodity.

The Morrisburg Curling Club was represented at the Central Canada Curling Bonspiel, held in Ottawa last week, by the following members: Revs. Strike and Cameron, Messrs. C. Marsh, I. Hilliard, F. Chalmers, C. Weegar, S. P. Ryan, J. Meikle, J. McDonald, H. Armstrong, Dr. Gorrell and Dr. Davy. Other clubs represented at the bonspiel were Smiths Falls, Glebe, Ottawa, Rideau, Almonte, Pembroke and Arnprior. The ice was in excellent condition and the games were all keenly contested. Skip Davy, the local "masterpiece" made a reputation for Morrisburg when, with a well-balanced team, he opened out with Skip Cockburn, of the famous Pembroke team, the Governor-General's prize winners, and tied the score 11—11. A number of other fixtures were played in which the other skips made good showings. The locals speak very highly of the hospitality shown them by the clubs present, and particularly by the Glebe officials at whose clubhouse a sumptuous repast was served, after which a musical program and speeches were delivered. The next bonspiel will be held in the town of Renfrew.

People on their way to church Sunday evening were amazed to see what looked like an aeroplane in the western sky. It was the two most beautiful stars — Venus and Jupiter displaying their charms. If you have a good pair of opera glasses to focus on these planets you will easily distinguish Jupiter, the giant of the solar system, by his four moons each night revolving around him as "our" moon revolves around the earth.
