Rotary Club Hears Talk On Milk Production Problems By C. Allison Graham

The regular meeting of the Chesterville Rotary Club, held last Monday evening in the Library of the Community Hall was addressed by Mr. C. Allison Graham of Chesterville. Present as a guest of the club was Mr. Max Haley of Ottawa, a one-time resident of Chesterville.

The business session of the meeting was taken up with an extensive discussion concerning the projected Blood Bank that the club is sponsoring in the Ottawa Civic Hospital. It is hoped to be able to get enough volunteers to give donations of blood to the Bank so that Chesterville and community will have a sufficient credit of stored blood on hand to supply community needs at little cost when the emergency arises.

The speaker of the evening was introduced by George Barkley. Mr. Graham took as his topic, "Milk: Some Problems in Its Production and Distribution." He opened his address with a short discussion of the types of dairy production to be found in Canada to-day. Basicly these are four. They include the fluid milk producers who supply milk for fresh milk consumption, the suppliers to, the concentrated milk plants, the cheese producers, and the largest of all, the butter producers. The speaker explored the position of the various groups in the light of supply and demand and one of the conclusions reached was that decreased milk production could be directly traced to the desire of many farmers to find means of income other than from production that will entail less labour costs.

Mr. Graham gave a short resume of the oleo-margarine question from the producers' point of view. He pointed out that merely to say that we had sufficient vegetable oil production in Canada to supply makers of oleo was not exactly what it appeared to be Oil production as it is now can hardly keep up to the demand for shortening and soap and allied products let alone margarine. If the oil producers turned all their production into oleo the soap and shortening business would be rather hard-put for supplies. The oleo question has many troublesome facets, but it is well to remember that the dairy industry in Canada represents many millions of dollars and to disrupt that will have a depressing effect on the whole economy.

Mr. Graham concluded his address with a description of the structure and functions of the milk producers' associations and their functions in the farmers' behalf.

P. J. Gilroy thanked the speaker on behalf of the club.

Williamsburg Church Marks Anniversary

Sunday marked the 82nd anniversary of Williamsburg United Church. Rev. Dr. J. I. MacKay, of Montreal, was speaker at both the morning and evening services.

Despite rain and a visibly miserable day, a large congregation was in attendance at both the morning and evening services.

Soloists were Donald McIntosh, of The First United Church, Ottawa, and Mrs. D. M. Long, of Shawinigan Falls. Special musical selections were provided by the church choir, with organ accompaniment by Mrs. Maeford Merkley. Rev. Gerald Fee, pastor of Williamsburg United Church, was unable to be present at the celebration, having been called to supply at North Augusta, and Algonquin United Churches.

On Monday evening, the Ladies' Aid Society sponsored an anniversary concert, featuring the American Negro lyric soprano, Mrs. Isabelle Collins, of Jersey City, NJ., assisted by Miss Lyla Mae Smith, dramatist, also of Jersey City, and Mrs. D. Hugh Thompson of Williamsburg, pianist.

Dunbar Presbyterian Church Celebrates 75th Anniversary

The seventy-fifth anniversary services of the Dunbar Presbyterian Church were held on Sunday, October 24. The day was fine and a large number of people from the charge and from other points attended the services.

The minister, Rev. W. H. Heustin, B.A., conducted the services and the music and choir were under the direction of Mrs. Charles Marselis. Members of the Ladies' Aid had decorated the church with chrysanthemums, ferns and potted plants and it was a day of much blessing for the members of the congregation and all who attended the services.

The Moderator of the General Assembly, the Right Reverend C. Ritchie Bell, B.A., B.D. of MacVicar Memorial Church, Montreal, was present at the morning service as guest speaker. He read the New Testament Scriptures and offered prayer. In 1928 he had served the congregation of Chesterville and Dunbar as a student minister, and before the service at Dunbar paid a visit to the Sunday School at St. Andrew's, Chesterville, bringing a blessing to all those present. The Moderator told the people that a flood of memories crowded in upon his mind as he recalled the days spent among them, sharing their sorrows and their joys. In the name of Christ and on behalf of all the members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada he greeted the people.

The Moderator spoke from the words of Jesus as found in St. Matthew 21:13 "It is written, My House shall be called the house of prayer." The theme of the sermon was "The Real Glory of the Church". He spoke of four things: the spirituality of the church's worship. "You can build houses, schools and churches but until you put God at the centre, they have no meaning," he said. To inspire vision, calling men to God and to look up is the glory of the church. Thirdly, the glory of the church is in the endeavour to evangelize the world. "The idea of one world is nothing new, it is as old as the Bible. It is God's world, one world and it always has been one. We live and die together," he remarked.

To develop Christian character, the Moderator stressed, was the glory of the church. "Her glory is in the char-

BOYS' WORK BOARD NEWS

The Dundas-Grenville Boys' Work Board seeks to interest boys all over this area in its broad programme. It is intended to serve interdenominationally all boys in its four-fold emphasis on wholesome living, based on Luke 2:52 "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favour with God and man."

New groups have been formed at Winchester, Mountain and South Mountain, and it is the desire of the Board to have more and more boys share in this splendid work.

One of the most interesting and most important of the projects sponsored by the Boys' Work Board is the OLDER BOYS' PARLIAMENT. This year the twenty-eight Parliament Sessions will be held from December 27 - 31.

Rev. J. B. Adams, South Mountain, has been appointed by the Ontario Boys' Work Board as the Returning Officer for the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament for the constituencies of Dundas and Grenville. Nominations will close on November 1st, and it is to be hoped that there will be an enthusiastic, keen-eyed group of eager candidates ready to contest the seats. These boys may be chosen from active groups, or active Sunday School class teachers, in the ages of 16-21.

Two Seriously Hurt In Car Collision During Fog

Three persons were injured, two seriously, when an automobile driven by Elzie Johnston, of Winchester, piled into the rear of another car as both vehicles were travelling north on fog-shrouded Highway 31, four miles north of Williamsburg, early Tuesday morning.

Mr. Johnston suffered rib injuries and multiple bruises. His brother, Edwin, of Brinston, also in the front seat, was thrown against the front windshield by the impact, and suffered deep throat gashes from the shattered glass. He was taken to Ottawa Civic Hospital in a Dixon ambulance.

Horace MacGregor, driver of the second car, escaped with only minor bruises, although his automobile was thrown out of control and skidded 150 feet into the east ditch. The rear of his car was so badly smashed that he was pinned between the seat cushions and steering-wheel. He was alone in the vehicle.

Deamage to the automobiles was estimated at $1,000.

Police believed that Mr. MacGregor was proceeding at a slow rate of speed because of the thick fog that limited visibility to about 120 feet. Mr. Johnston apparently overhauled the MacGregor car before he realized it was ahead of him.

MORE THAN STEAM SHOVELS NEEDED

(Toronto Globe and Mail)

Former Provincial Planning Minister Porter's recent statement to the effect that conservation authorities had been formed in no less than eleven Ontario watershed districts is encouraging indeed. While this reflects administrative progress, what makes such actions particularly significant is that under the Conservation Authoritits Act it is not the Government but the communities directly concerned which take organizational Action. Queen's Park provides the legislative venicle. It offers its facilities for the necessary surveying and planning. It sets aside money to assist in the work. But the decision to proceed is left entirely to the people of each area. This is "grass roots" planning at its best.

The eleven authorities are spread across Southern Ontario from Lake Huron to its eastern end. They are: the Humber, Don and Etobicoke, in the Toronto aera; the Ganaraska, Napanee, Upper Thames, Grand Moira, South Nation, Ausables and Big Creek. Virtually all these watersheds are periodically subject to heavy floods, many are badly eroded and in each case conservation measures are required in some degree of urgency. Work in a few has progressed to a considerable extent. In others it has scarcely begun. The important thing is that no time be lost; that not just the responsible authorities but the residents themselves, individually and collectively, learn and practice conservation. As Mr. Porter said in London, Ontario:

> Any program of conservation cannot be effective if carried out only on a few acres of land. All forces must be united to halt the large scale devastation of natural resources, the mining out of soil, the wanton damage to forests, the wholesale destruction of bird life, which are setting up a chain of reactions threatening the very foundation of civilization.

On some persons the impact of these words will tbe negligible. But the income of nearly every Canadian is depndent upon the continued availability of natural products. As they are used they must, wherever possible, be replaced. In those areas where the trees and grass have been stripped, the swamps drained and the water tables lowered, there will have to be wholesale restoration.

The farmer, whose once-rich acreage has declined to marginal land because of the profligate habits of himself and his forefathers, knows this. The resident of the small town in Eastern Ontario need only look about him at the crumbling ruins of once-humming sawmills to see what the wastage of our forests has meant to him. The obvious moral before all of us in the southern part of the Province is at this moment the strict rationing of our electricity. A shortage has been turned into a crisis by the fact that the water necessary to turn the generators is far below the levels of years past. Yet ample water from Nature's reservoirs went rushing down these rivers just a few months ago.

Conservation is not merely great capital works—the building of dams and the creation of irrigation works. It is just as much individual action—contour plowing to stop erosion, the intelligent use of farm woodlots, the careful distribution of grazing cattle, scientific cropping of forests, and so on. Conservation is more than governments pouring concrete and digging ditches; much more than municipal councils passing resolutions. It is a lot of little things all working in harmony. It is intelligence.

REVOLUTIONARY NEW STEEL PROCESS

It was announced recently that the British Iron and Steel Research Association has succeeded in developing a new method which is claimed to be a world lead in the sphere of steel technology. It has been known for about 170 years by scientists in the steel laboratories that oxygen can be used to produce higher temperatures more efficiently, but it was not until now that British scientists, after long years of research, succeeded in putting this theory fully into practice. The advantages claimed for the new British method are, among others, the increase of output by 50 per cent, the making of higher quality steel, and the use of a greater percentage of scrap.

NOVEL METHOD USED FOR OPENING A NEW COAL MINE IN BRITAIN

Mining engineers in Britain are freezing a section of the earth's surface to a depth of over 400 feet. This is a preparatory step to opening a new coalmine near Nottingham which is expected to yield 1,000,000 tons a year. This novel technique is necessary because the shaft of the mine must pass through a strata of porous sandstone. Normal methods of excavation would entail pumping away more than 1,000 gallons of water an hour which would seep into the workings from the nearby underground watershed. A ring of pipes has been laid down around the spot where the shaft is to be sunk. These pass through and under a strata of sandstone. Brine solution chilled to 37 degrees below freezing is circulating through them continuously. This will cause a collar of ice to form in about eight weeks' time. A natural barrier will thus be created within which the normal work eof sinking the mine shaft can proceed.

RATS DESTROY FOOD AND MENACE HEALTH

Among the things that nobody knows, is how many rats there are in the world. But it has often been assumed that the number is at least equal to the human population. Canada has a population of 13 million, which means there are probably a similar number of these rodents acting as destroyers of food and property, and presenting a serious problem to public health authorities across the Dominion.

The common brown or Norway rat in addition to being a prolific breeder probably eats, as an adult, about an ounce of food a day. While it is true that rats eat much that is unfit for human use, they also eat practicaltly anything used as food by human beings and by livestock—except hay. They also contaminate food and make it unfit for human consumption with consequent loss to producers.

The extermination of rats is complicated by the fact that most of the suitable poison baits used in their destruction are also injurious to other animals and to humans. If reasonable precautions are observed, however poison baits can be used to good effect.

One of the best methods of avoiding damage from rats is to make buildings rat-proof. Concrete is one of the best materials as foundations and around spaces where drain and other pipes lead out of a building. Doors should be bound at their base with sheet-metal, and ventilators and basement windows should be covered with wire-netting.

Traps are effective if there are not many rats and if in a house where the use of poison bait would be undesirable. It is a good plan to cover the traps with a piece of cheesecloth or scatter sawdust around as this helps to make them less obvious.

A "Scotch" Miracle

Jock and Mac had both been seriously wounded in their legs, and after months of careful attention in a British hospital they eventually reached the stage when they could hobble painfully along on crutches.

One day they decided to go down to the village inn for a drink; but they only had a shilling between them, so they asked the landlord how much a drink apiece would cost.

"Forget it, boys," he answered. "You fought for me and my country so here's a bottle of Scotch take it over to the corner and enjoy yourselves."

Soon the bottle was empty, and they decided to return to the hospital. On the way back Jock suddenly stopped and said:

"Mac, we're in for a row from the M.O. if he spots us."

"What for?" queried Mac.

"Why, mon," replied Jock, "we've left our crutches behind."

Peg o' My Heart!

In the kitchen of the Meek household the little woman was busy with pots and pans, while in the parlor the "Lord and Master" of the establishment held subdued converse with his neighbor, Mr. Thompson.

"I thought your wife's name was Susan," observed Mr. Thompson, "Why do you call her Peggy?"

"Oh," replied Meek, "Peggy's a little pet name I have for her."

He leaned forward and dropped his voice almost to a whisper. "You see Peggy is short for Pegasus; Pegasus was an immortal steed; and an immortal steed is an everlasting nag!"

And then in a louder voice. "Yes, Peggy, I'm coming right away!"

SAFETY FIRST

Here's a safety tip when putting furnace or stove pipes in position. After fitting the lengths securely together, take a piece of white chalk and make a circle around the place where the slightly expanded ends of each length fit over the previous section. If the lengths of pipe start pulling away from each other, the chalk mark will show this movement.

If this small safety tip is adopted, a casual glance at the pipes at any time will show whether the sections are parting company, or whether all is "safe and sure."

There is danger in poorly fitting stove or furnace pipes. Escaping coal gas is probable; a disastrous fire may even be in the making.

Beekeepers Present Pipe To C B. Gooderham

Beekeepers of the district presented C. B. Gooderham with a pipe as a mark of appreciation for his 32 years service as Dominion apiarist at last week's Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Beekeeper's Association meeting in the arena hall, Mille Roches. Mr. Gooderham plans to retire soon, and addressed the beekeepers in an official capacity for the last time.

Bryce McNaughton, president, welcomed the beekeepers, and introduced Mr. Gooderman as the first speaker. The Dominion chief described the work of the Federal Department of Agriculture in bee research, and reviewed the growth of the industry during his term of service. He mentioned specially the change of emphasis from honey production to pollination, now just beginning to attract attention.

Among projects under way at Ottawa, he referred to the two queen system and early division of colonies, which had nearly doubled yields under ideal conditions, though not yet fully tried out in this part of the country. He urged careful experimentation on the treatment of foulbrood with sulpha drugs under the care of the provincial authorities. He was cautiously optimistic about the development of a cure for the bee disease which kills so many colonies. Methods of wintering are being tried out at the Experimental Farm, and tests of spray materials for fruit trees. DDT was found not dangerous to bees, but the newer parathion spray is a deadly poison to them.

Ernest McPhail, representative of the association at the fall fairs, reported on his work. He said that in spite of a late start, some prizes had been given and an earlier start will be made next year.

Shows Pictures

P. W. Burke, from the Agricultural College at Guelph, showed a series of pictures on beekeeping subjects, including interior and exterior views of some of Ontario's best honey houses, and of bees being moved to new ranges in Northern Ontario. He commented that it was unwise to spend too much on buildings for beekeeping enterprises, since it was sometimes necessary to move from one district to another. Bees taken north this summer varied greatly in the crop gathered—some men did well by the move, other yards were hard hit by the drought. He also explained the advertising program, soon to begin.

M. O. Benson, Ottawa bee supply manufacturer, and William Bryant, of the F. W. Jones Bee Supply Company, Bedford, Que., both spoke briefly and told the bee men that supplies were still somewhat scare and hard to get. Deliveries of raw materials continue to be slow.

Alex McLennan, secretary-treasurer, called Mr. Gooderham to the front of the room. He was presented with a pipe from the beekeepers by Ernest McPhail. In reply, he thanked the men for their gift and remarked that his co-workers over the years had played a great part in all he had done to advance beekeeping.

New officers were elected and James McLennan is president of the counties' Association, with G. E. Summers as vice-president. District directors are: Bryce McNaughton for Glengarry, who will also represent the Association at the Beekeepers convention in Toronto, November 10, 11 and 12; Heber Brooks for Stormont and Robert Coughler for Dundas.

Good advice doesn't cost you anything—except an occasional friend. —M. Walthall Jackson.

Dunbar Presbyterian Church

acter of her members in the several places where they dwell and work," he proclaimed. The anthem was "I will abide with thee" by Simpkins, the solo part being sung by Mr. Charles Marselis.

The Reverend Quincy A. McDowell, M.A., B.Th., minister of Maisonneuve Presbyterian Church in Montreal, since 1940, was the guest speaker at the evening service. A graduate of Grove City College in Pennsylvania, he holds two degrees from Princeton and has spent all his ministry in Canada, first at Caledonia, P.E.I., then at Sydney Mines, Nova Scotia, where he spent eleven years before coming to Montreal.

The text was from Acts 20:28 "The Church of God", and the sermon title, St. Paul's definition of the church. "The church is of Divin origin and destiny. Jesus Christ is the Divine architect. He said"Upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," the speaker said. He then spoke of the four striking figures mentioned in the Testament concerning the church. The church is called the Body of Christ, I Corintians 12:27. There i a vital connection between Christ and each member. And as the body of Christ it is the duty of the church to act for the Christ and to respond to His will.

Another figure of the church is a pillar, the pillar and ground of the truth. I Timothy 3:15. "In this regard the church's primary work is to teach and preach the truth," the speaker said quoting the words of the great commission as given by Jesus, Go Ye Therefore and Teach All Nations. "He is counting on you". There is also the figure of a temple, a habitation of God through the spirit. "A temple is a building set apart for God and for a holy service: a consecrated building. "We can be this only as we keep unspotted from the world," he said and "our influence for Christ is in direct proportion to our separateness from the world," he repeated. "Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people." I Peter 2:9

The Bride of Christ was the beautiful figure as he called it, mentioned in Revelation 21:9. "It shows the intimate relationship between the Head of the Church and her members, and that the motive of all that is done by the church and by a Christian is love. Because of the love of Christ suffering and dying for men, it is a joy to serve and to obey. Love is the only motive that pleases Christ. Love is the great thing as revealed in I Corinthians 13.

Mrs. Delbert Dillabough and Mr. Charles Marselis sang the duet in the anthem. "Cast thy bread upon the waters" by Simpkin. The 75th anniversary day will long be remembered in the Dunbar congregation for grace, mercy, truth, beauty and blessing received from God at the anniversary services.

Ducks and Drakes

By Walter J. Cross

A disappointed hunter wasn't entirely facetious the day he said: "I believe its about time somebody began investigating the love life of a duck." The year was 1930, and the dwindling flights of ducks and geese from the Canadian breeding grounds were giving hunters something to worry about.

Perhaps as a direct result of that remark somebody did begin to investigate.

Five years previously, 1925, James Ford Bell, of Minneapolis, made his first visit to the Delta Marsh. This huge tract of non-arable land, 36,000 acres of shallow pools, winding creeks and dense beds of aquatic plants, hugs the southern shore of Lake Manitoba and is one of the finest water-fowl places on the Canadian prairies.

In 1930, when the duck populations were racing toward extinction, Mr. Bell resolved to do something to halt this decline of wildlife. He built a duck hatchery, employed Edward Ward to operate it, and for a decade he released to the flights more ducks than were bagged on his marsh.

Then it occurred to him that his hatchery, operating under natural conditions, should yield not only ducks, but scientific knowledge about their habits. During his enquiries about men and methods he became acquainted with the American Wildlife Institute, and the upshot was that in 1938 H. Albert Hochbaum was sent to Delta.

For five years after his appointment the young naturalist, graduate in Ornithology at Cornell and Wildlife Management at Wisconsin, watched the waterfowl during courtship, nesting, brood-season, "vacation period", shooting season, and departure, recording and illustrating his observations. In 1943 the American Wildlife Institute published these observations in one of the most complete documents on the subject of wildfowl printed to date—The Canvassback on a Prairie Marsh.

Among duck-minded people the Canvasback has long been the "gold standard" against which all lesser fry are weighed and measured. The courtship tactics of the Canvasback, for instance, are conducted along similar lines by most of the dozen or more species of wild duck of North America.

"On some bright afternoon in late April," says Dr. Hochbaum, "sit beside one of the large bays at Delta when there is a gathering of Canvasbacks. Look them over with your glass. Some obviously are paired; drake and hen are never far apart, moving, feeding or loafing together. But here and there one will sight little, active bands of courting birds, each group made up of several drakes and a hen."

Drakes vie for the hen's favour by showing off in front of her. The drake will assume various distinctive postures, most common of which is the neck-stretch. "As one drake assumes this posture the others frequently join him in contest, each bird trying to outdo the other in reaching to the sky

"From time to time one of the drakes attempts to approach the hen, but she parries by rushing at him, or he is driven off by the other males. At times all of the males in unison attempt to approach the hen. When so pressed, usually she takes to the air with a party of males following. Twisting, darting over the marsh, the birds, flying in a close group, often crowd each other on sharp turns so that wings and bodies hit. With little break in speed the hen alights, diving at once, with all of the males following her under water. Soon the female bobs to the surface, moving until at last she can face the males to rush them as they approach."

From the time the ducks strike the breeding marshes until they gain whatever sanctuary is offered to them in their winter feeding grounds, they are subject to countless predatory factors which little by little are contributing to their extinction. As Hochbaum says, "At Delta, ducks find an ideal situation for nesting and for rearing the young. But here, even under sheltered conditions during mating and nesting, the ducks are far less numerous than they were ten years ago."

And why?

"Careless shooting, for one thing," Hochbaum answers crisply. "Hunters cripple and lose many birds when they shoot at ducks out of range, or when they hunt in dense cover without a dog. Studies have shown that on the average, the duck hunter loses one bird for every one he bags."

Another significant feature in the prospect of extinction which has been uncovered at the Delta Station is that the ratio between mature males and females for all species of ducks is grossly unbalanced—yet at birth, the ratio is almost fifty-fifty! Why is it that by the time the young ducklings are ready to mate, the drakes far exceed the number of hens? The answer to that question may well be the solution to the problem of extinction.

"We have uncovered some of the facts leading to an answer," says Hochbaum, "and despite the fact that foundations do not yet understand the importance —of wildlife research there is a growing interest in the field."

Hochbaum is not a sentimental conservationist. He is an ardent hunter himself and the only holiday he has taken in the past ten years is a few day's hunting over the Delta Marsh each autumn.

But Hochbaum's primary purpose is to sell the idea of wildlife research. "Most sportsmen and many administrators are afraid of the word," he says, "because they don't understand what it implies. For instance, as a result of agricultural research, domestic fowl can be made to increase or decrease their number simply by applying a few known scientific principles.

"The object of our work then," Hochbaum concludes, "is to make the topic of waterfowl management and conservation understandable to hunters so that there will be less danger of running out of ducks to hunt in years to come."

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

The services at Morewood United were conducted on Sunday by Rev. W. J. Copsey, B.A., who preached in the morning from John 3;19, "This is the condemnation that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil." The Great Redeemer, the Light of the World, has come that all people may have knowledge of God and His love for humanity; of man and his needs; of the world and its origin; of human conduct with the resulting reckoning and final judgment. Therefore let this light of truth shine into the heart that the darkness of sin be removed and the light of life illuminate the soul for ever. The anthem was "God Will Take Care of You."

The evening service featured the W.M.S. Slide Lecture setting forth some of the findings of the visit to India, China, Japan and Korea of the committee appointed for this visitation by the General Board of the United Church Missions and the Woman's Missionary Society. Thirty-five beautifully coloured slides set forth some of the features of the work of the missionary personal in teaching, healing and the multitude of social services rendered in the fields of the Overseas Missions.

Producing Hybrid Seed Corn

(Experimental Farms News)

The production of hybrid seed is a specialist's job. The plant breeder, whether in the employ of the Government or private companies, spends years in developing inbred lines, combining the inbreds in numerous ways to get the best hybrid combination and then testing the combinations under field condition. Only the best are put into production, says Dr. G. F. H. Buckley, Dominion Experimental Station, Harrow, Ont.

Once a hybrid is in production, the work is carried on in three distinct steps: (1) the maintenance and multiplication of the inbred lines, (2) the making of single-cross seed and (3) the making of double-cross seed. This can be illustrated best by outlining the seed production of Canada and Harvic hybrids.

The inbred lines, except the very earliest lines, necessary to produce Canada and Harvic hybrids are maintained and multiplied at the Dominion Experimental Station at Harrow. As natural isolation is not available all the ears must be covered with bags prior to the emergence of silk and pollination is done by hand. Bags are also placed over the tassels to gather pollen and also to protect the tassels from contamination by foreign pollen. After pollination the ears remain covered until harvested. When mature the ears are placed in the corn drier until the moisture in the kernels is reduced to about twelve per cent. The temperature in the drier must not exceed 110°F. or germination will be affected. After shelling, the inbred seed is forwarded to the Provincial Experimental Farm at Ridgetown.

At Ridgetown the single-crosses are made. The crossing fields are planted oeut, using one row of the inbred which is to be the male parent to three or four rows of the seed or female parent inbred. As the tassels appear, and before pollen is produced, the tassels are removed from the seed parent rows thus forcing the latter to be pollinated by the male parent rows. Therefore all seed produced on the seed rows is single-cross material. The seed is harvested, dried, graded and made ready for distribution to the hybrid seed producers.

The producers of Canada and Harvic hybrid seed obtain all their crossing stocks from the Provincial Experimental Farm at Ridgetown. The crossing fields are planted out in a similar manner to that of the single-crossing fields, though the proportion of male to female rows is usually one to four or two to six. As with the single-cross, the female parent in the double-crossing fields must be carefully detasselled. During the detasselling period the fields are inspected several times by Government seed inspectors to assure proper detasselling and satisfactory isolation. Seed from the female rows is harvested, dried, graded, bagged and inspected and sealed by Government seed inspectors. All hybrid seed is registered by the Canadian Seed Growers Association.

No Contest

A decrepit horse was being offered to the highest bidder. An old farmer watched as a young man in riding breeches bid for the animal. When the sale was completed, he turned to the young fellow.

"Tell me," he said, "what on earth are you going to do with that ang?"

"Oh," replied the cocky young sportsman, "I'm going to race him."

The farmer took a second look at the animal. "Well, you'll win," he said.

Her news and views of activities in the entertainment field, The Susan Fletcher Show, is heard from Vancouver on Mondays at 10-.30 p.m. on Dominion.

SINGING STARS BACK SUNDAY

Canadian radio welcomes another of its familiar favorites back to the air Sunday afternoon. Returning to its broadcast time of last year—5.00 to 5.30 p.m.—Singing Stars of Tomorrow begins its sixth season on stations of the CBC's Trans-Canada network.

Again this year, the program's familiar theme and the familiar voice of its announcer, Raymond Summers, will introduce new voices and new personalities to Canadian listeners. So far, applications have been received from two hundred and twenty-seven young singers across the Dominion who wish to compete for the scholarships awarded by the program's sponsor.

In the course of its twenty-six weeks season that begins Sunday, Singing Stars of Tomorrow will continue last season's innovation of including young men as well as young women in its programs. Sixty-six of the applications on hand are from young men who have their eyes on the operatic or concert stage.

During the summer, audition teams have been touring the country from coast to coast, selecting the most promising talent from the young people who have asked to appear on Singing Stars.

The next phase of this selection or narrowing-down goes on during the fall and winter. Judges in Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver listen to each Sunday afternoon's broadcast to decide which contestants will appear in the semi-finals and finals that will wind up The Singing Stars of Tomorrow season next spring.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Hollowe'en—the night of frolic and fun. Mention it to Dad and he will reminisce for hours telling of his pranks in bygone days. (It took several neighbours to get the buggy off the shed roof and the big gate out of the tree). Junior will be on the loose too if you don't plan something for his crowd, and remember he is just a chip off the old block. It would be much cheaper to rollick indoors than to pay for damage downtown.

It's best to prepare favorite inexpensive casual dishes which the young crowd enjoys. Hamburgers, weiners and rolls, coleslaw in orange shells, baked beans in custard cups, pickles, gingerbread or doughnuts and malted milk shakes, or sweet apple cider, are good suggestions.

If it's a buffet supper for teenagers, a hot casserole of creamed chicken or salmon, a Hallowe'en salad, relish tray of carrot curls, celery, pickles, pumpkin tart and hot coffee will set everybody singing your praises.

A pumpkin Jack O'Lantern with lighted candles within and a frill of black crepe paper as a doily makes an easy centre. Or you may create a harvest scene on the buffet if you have an assortment of squash, gourds, egg plant, apples and autumn leaves.

The old favorite pastime of bobbing for apples in a tub of water or trying to bite an elusive one swinging in a doorway, is a good game. Toast marshmallows or popcorn while the charades are in progress.

HALLOWE'EN FRUIT CUP

Cut the top of orange like pumpkin shell in picket fashion; remove the pulp and cut into small pieces, reserving the juice. Combine orange with diced bananas, pieces of melon and sprinkle with fine sugar. Pile into orange shells and top with whipped cream.

SPICED CIDER

Stir 4 tbsps. brown sugar, 6 cloves, stick of cinnamon and 3 allspice into two quarts of sweet cider. Heat, then cool immediately and strain out the spice. Serve with warmed doughnuts.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J. C. says: Wax is loose around jars. What has caused this to happen?

Answer: Jam may have been stored in warm place. Or the jam jars may have been too hot when wax was put on. You may scrape off the surface; put on more melted paraffin and store in a cool place.

Mrs. T. B. asks:

CHICKEN BARBECUE SAUCE

2 green peppers, 1 red pepper, 4 small onions, 1 clove, ¼ cup salad oil, 4 cups tomatoes, 1 can tomato paste, 1 tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 1 tsp. paprika, ⅛ tsp. marjoram, ⅛ tsp. celery salt.

Trim the pepper, onions and garlic. Chop fine. Heat salad oil and cook in it the peppers, onions, and garlic until brown; then add remaining ingredients. Cook about 30 mins.

Mrs. J. T. asks: Why do baked apples burst?

Answer: The oven should not be too hot—350 degrees for about 35 minutes. Variety makes a difference too. Use spies, kings, greenings and wolfe.

Mrs. B. K. suggests: baking our gingerbread recipe in muffin tins to conserve electricity. Instead of 45 minutes at 375 degrees, bake 25 minutes at 375 degrees.

Mrs. T. L. asks: How to keep meringues light?

Answer: Beat 2 egg whites until frothy; add ½ tsp. cream of tartar and beat until whites stand up in a point as you lift out the beater. Gradually fold and sprinkle in two tbsps. of fine sugar.

IN MEMORIAM

CASSELMAN—In found and loving memory of a loving mother who passed away October 30th, 1948.

In depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memories we shall always keep.
