RATIFICATION HERE TO FOLLOW ACTION OF SENATE IN U. S.

Ottawa, Jan. 10—If the United States Senate followed President Roosevelt's suggestion and ratified the St. Lawrence waterways scheme, the treaty would come before the Canadian Parliament this session for similar action. The understanding has been that Canadian ratification would be withheld until Washington had dealt with the treaty.

Engineers estimate it would take seven years to complete the seaway after the treaty had been ratified, although some of the power developed might be turned on earlier than that. The section more particularly covered by the treaty would be what is known as the international section, that portion of the St. Lawrence River from Prescott to Cornwall, Ont., where one bank is Canadian and the other American.

It has been estimated that the entire project would cost the United States $243,000,000 and Canada $233,274,000. Canada has already spent $128,000,000 on the Welland Canal, which is included in the $233-274,000, as the expenditures made by United States in St. Mary's River are included in its total.

United States would bear most of the expenses of the international section, while Canada would bear the expenditures necessary in the Beauharnois and Lachine sections. The international section would develop 2,000,000 horsepower of electric energy, half going to each country. The Canadian half would be handed over to the Province of Ontario, which would bear part of the cost of the Hydro development.

WATERWAY DEBATE WILL OPEN TODAY

Washington, Jan. 11—Senate debate on the St. Lawrence seaway treaty will open on Friday. The Chamber made the pact its unfinished business late today.

It was definitely learned today that no pressure will be brought to bear by the Administration in favor of ratification until the situation develops. The treaty is now supported in the Senate by President Roosevelt's message of yesterday, and upon that the Administration rests for the time being.

It is pointed out that, if the debate is extended, achievement of a vote may be prevented by one or two of the expected diehards staging a filibuster.

However, the President has definitely and openly declared himself for the treaty, supporting his advocacy with a complete analysis by the Department of War, the Department of Commerce, the Federal Power Commission and the Power Authority of the State of New York.

W. M. S. MEETING

The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of the United Church was held at 3 o'clock Thursday in Mrs. B.L. Carr's attractive home, with the President, Miss J. Smith, in the chair. The meeting was opened by the singing of that rousing hymn, "Wonderful Story of Love". Prayer was offered by Mrs. Reddick. Mrs E. McLean read the minutes. Mrs. Wiggins gave the scripture lesson. Mrs. Merrill had some very interesting correspondence which was read and discussed. It was moved and seconded that we show our appreciation, in some tangible way, of the late Mrs. Henderson of Ottawa, former president of Montreal-Ottawa Conference branch, who was ever ready to assist any W.M.S., and was known and loved by so many. It was also planned that we would secure a missionary for Easter Thank Offering. Mrs. Nash gave a short talk on Temperance. The reports of the different department were given by their secretaries. Mrs. Carr gave a reading, "Angela's Missionary Box," in her amusing and captivating style. Mrs. Merrill gave the study chapter, "Can China Support her Millions?" in a very condensed and concise form leaving the thought that it is impossible to compromise between the church of Christ and the idolatry of wealth, putting Christ and His cause first, worshipping Him only. The meeting closed with Missionary Benediction.

A social half-hour followed the meeting, and refreshments were served by the hostess.

MRS. CHAS. S. SHAVER

There passed away after a brief illness, at Nipawan, Sask. on Dec. 24th, Catherine Shaver, in her 82nd year.

Deceased, whose maiden name was Catharine Vanallen, was born in the township of Williasburg, and received her education at the Morrisburg High and Model Schools, after which she taught school for a number of years. She was possessed of a retired and unassuming nature and was a devoted Christian, seldom being absent from the house of prayer, circumstances and health permitting She was much loved by those with whom she came in contact.

She leaves to mourn: two daughters, Mrs. W.W. Lake (Anna), of Nipawan, Sask., with whom she resided, and Mrs. Lillian Hare, Iroquois. Her husband, Chas. Shaver, and youngest daughter, Hattie, predeceased her.

CANADIENS 6; TIGERS 4

That the Morrisburg Tigers are one of the best, if not the best team in the St. Lawrence League was clarly shown in the game played against Cornwall Canadiens in the local arena last Wednesday. Although the Canadiens won the decision 6-4, their team as a whole was inferior to that of the Tigers. Their victory was due, in a great measure to two former members of the Morrisburg Maroons, Dextras and Cameron.

Robinson, of Morrisburg, started on the right foot, when he came in fast to take his own rebound and bat it past McLaren. Cornwall tried hard to even the score, but Hodgins was unbeatable in the Morrisburg net. Morrisburg almost scored again, when Dextras of Cornwall took a penalty, and practically every member of the Tigers had at least one shot at McLaren.

In the second period, three goals were netted, all by Cornwall, coming from the sticks of Cameron, Marotte and Bonneville.

The third period opened with the score 3-1 for Cornwall. "Decky" boosted it to 4-1 shortly after the start. Two quick goals by Robinson, who played his best game of the season, put the Tigers within striking distance of the Canucks. With five forwards on the ice, they were bombarding the Cornwall net, when Dextras broke away, with only O'-Malley and Hodgins to stop him. Stickhandling past Mike, he beat Hodgins with a nice shot. This put the Frenchmen two up, with the score 5-3. Tigers, trying desperately to even it up, held Cornwall inside the blue line, peppering McLaren from all angles. But Cornwall broke away again, Latour scoring. Three goals down, but still game as ever, the Tigers, right from the face off, rushed the play back to the Cornwall end. Cornwall almost caught them again, but this attack was broken up by McCallum, who came back fast, took the puck at his own blue line, and went right through the Cornwall team, to flip the disc past McLaren. Tigers were still pegging vicious drives at the Canadien net when the game ended.

On the home team, McCallum and Robinson stood out for their brilliant display of hockey, while John Cross was a steady and relentless bulwark on defence, to thwart the best Canadian forwards. The pick of the Cornwall team were Cameron, Dextras and Bonneville. Good work was also done by Contant, who received his amateur card back only a few days ago.

The teams:

Tigers—Goal, Rodgins, defense, Cross and Lapierre; centre, McCallum; wings, Robinson and James; subs, H. Smith, G. Smith, O'Malley and Miller.

Cornwall—Goal, McLaren, defense, Tailfere and Page; centre, Dextras; wings, Cameron and Marotte; subs, Contant, Latour, St. Denis, Bonneville.

Referee: Bill O'Hara, Ottawa.
Judge of Play—Gordon Smith.

The management and players appreciate the increased attendance at this game.

MRS. C. S. WEAGANT

The funeral of Mrs. Charles S. Weagant, whose death occurred on Thursday January 4th, was held in Trinity Memorial Church, Riverside, at 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, the service being conducted by Reverend Sidney B. Holmes.

The late Mrs. Weagant, who was born in Hoasic, was in her 91st year. She was the former Elizabeth Baker, a daughter of the late James and Laney Baker. Sixty-five years ago she married Charles Weagant of Morrisburg, who predeceased her 23 years ago. After her marriage she moved to her home east of Morrisburg, where she resided until the time of her death.

Surviving members of the family are three daughters, Miss Annabel at home, Mrs. L.C. O'Shaughnessy and Mrs. Fred A. Nash of Morrisburg; two sisters, Mrs. Albert Weagant of Morrisburg and Mrs. George Dillen of Kitchener; also five grandchildren and five great grandchildren.

STRANGE ABSENCE by ALLYN SLOAN

SYNOPSIS.

Jean Graham and her brother Euan stay on the Riviera with Geoffrey Winton and his wife Doreen, who leads Euan on to gamble at the Casino. Jean coaxes him to go to Paris. On the road to Paris Jean finds a string of pearls in Euan's pocket. He snatches the case from her and the car crashes. The accident is discovered by Jerry Grant whom Jean had met. Jerry takes her back to his hostess, Helen Gorst. Upon learning of Euan's disappearance Doreen behaves in a strange manner. M. Rivaux, French inspector, investigates the case. Geoffrey Winton tells Helen that his wife's pearls are missing. Rivaux confronts Jean with this as the reason for Euan's disappearance. Jean visits Euan's friend, de Laurier, whom she dislikes, and learns that Euan was in debt to him.

CHAPTER XII.

So dazed as scarcely to know what she was doing, the girl moved away from de Laurier and not looking where she was going, fell into a young man who was passing.

"I beg your—Jean!" he broke off and stared in amazement.

"Jerry!" She laughed unsteadily and for an instant leaned against him. "You—you startled me."

"I didn't expect to see you here."

"No, I—" She broke off, then offered rather lamely: "I'm just going home."

"But, my dear, you're as white as a sheet." His voice was tense with concern. "Let me get you a cocktail."

"No thank you, Jerry. I—I'm going home."

"Well, let me take you. I've got my car."

He piloted her through the swing door and out into the sunshine, but not until they were in the car did they speak.

"Jean, I thought you were going to rest this afternoon?" He watched her curiously as rather nervously she looked away.

"I—I was. But I had to see Baron de Laurier about something."

"Oh?" His tone was coldly surprised, and jealousy gave him a painful jab. Instead of uttering the words of comfort he had intended to, he remarked:

"You don't look as if he has done you much good."

But Jean was too upset and engrossed with her own fear to be aware of Grant's very marked criticism, and murmured vaguely:

"I'm all right, thanks."

Meanwhile Dan Washburn was waiting for Grant at the Hotel de Paris. "Oh shucks!" he grumbled, going over to a chair and sitting down. "Jerry's never on time now that he's fallen for that girl."

He began to gaze at the people passing in and out of the doors. Women in lovely light dresses, and men in grey or white flannels, all of them on pleasure bent. Then his eyes came to rest on an elderly man who sat drinking some horrible looking yellow syrop at a table not far from the door. In appearance he was a mild little man with a drooping grey moustache and one remaining lock of hair, which he wore draped to the best advantage over the shiny dome of his otherwise bald head. One would have suspected him of being a father, perhaps a grandfather of many children, but not a detective, famous in his day and until recently a member of the Paris Surete. With a smile of recognition Washburn got up and went over to him.

"Say, Mr. Perichon, I didn't expect to see you in a wicked place like Monte Carlo," he laughed, holding out his hand.

Peeichon glanced up and chuckled.

"Um. So you know the old fellow again?"

"Of course I know you." The American laughed and sat down. "Gee, I'll never forget the story you told me that night at the Tribunte dinner in Paris.

M. Perichon nodded.

"It was a good one! And you, what are you doing?"

"At the moment I am waiting for a friend, Jerry Grant. He was to have met me here—"

"Ah, the tall young man with blue eyes?" Perichon waved his hand at the door. "He is gone with a lady. You will have a long wait."

"He left me a message, but say—" Washburn looked at him curiously. "How did you know it was Jerry and that he'd gone with a girl?"

The Frenchman settled back into his chair with a little wriggle of satisfaction.

"All my life I have watched. Now I miss nothing. I see a pretty girl, une Anglaise, she is talking with a Frenchman. They say goodby, she turns and tumbles into a tall young man with blue eyes who is in love with her. She is toute a fait emue, he is delighted but curious. They go out together. Aha, I say to myself there is a story. It is perhaps only a pretty story, but I think—not!"

The last word came sharply with a snap, and looking up, Washburn saw a keen but distant look in the Frenchman's eye as if he was thinking of something a long way off.

Suddenly the younger man leaned forward and asked: "M. Perichon, are you here on business or for a holiday?"

"Neither. I no longer have any business, so how can I have holiday?"

"Oh? You've retired?"

"Retired?" The Frenchman smiled. "From the Surete, yes. Now I seek for another occupation." He glanced humorously out of the corner of his eyes at Washburn. "Ah, you think I am too old to begin again? You say to yourself 'Papa Perichon'—or perhaps you call me Grandpere—has one foot in the grave!"

The American laughed embarrassedly. He had forgotten the detective's almost uncanny ability to read thought. "Why, no—" he began.

The Frenchman interrupted him, however.

"Yes, yes, I know. You say to yourself Papa Perichon has retired, he is on the shelf. Pah! I tell you—Ah, here is your friend."

It was characteristic that Perichon saw Grant first, but Washburn leaped up and caught his arm.

"Jerry! I'd like to have you meet Mr. Perichon of the Paris Surete."

The men bowed and Grant sat down. He wanted to get Washburn alone but could not immediately detach him.

"I was telling Mr. l'Americain that in life it is never well to retire. One leaves one's work, but one takes up another or else one dies. You remember that Moses was over eighty when he began his career; had he retired at seventy he would never have had one. It is never time to stop thinking." Suddenly he addressed Grant: "You are worrying about something, Monsieur?"

Grant half smiled and moved uncomfortably.

"About the English young lady?" A slight pause. "You do not like it that she speaks with the Baron de Laurier?"

"Gee, that's lightning deduction for you," exclaimed Washburn admiringly.

Grant also was astounded, but did not quite know what to say. He had heard of Perichon of the Surete of course, but he wondered what he was doing in Monte Carlo. Had he by any chance been called in by the Wintons?

"You do not trust me?" asked Perichon. "You do not like what I say to you? You are afraid of me?" He chuckled. "Well, I will put you out of your misery. I am here to amuse myself, to find some new work."

Relieved, Grant thought rapidly. Supposing that Perichon would help him to find Euan Graham? He could not discover less than the local Surete, and Grant was becoming terribly anxious about this new business of the pearls.

"M. Perichon," he began, "I suppose you read about the disappearance of Euan Graham?"

The Frenchman nodded: "My colleague, M. Rivaux, has told me much about it."

This put Grant out and he said rather sharply: "I don't think he has much to tell."

Perichon glanced at him amusedly and sighed: "Ah, la pauvre police!"

"But, seriously sir, what's your idea about the business?" Washburn broke in.

The ex-detective shrugged his shoulders and sipped his yellow drink with evident enjoyment.

"This syrop is excellent," he said, wiping his moustache very thoroughly with his handkerchief.

Then Jerry Grant came to a decision. "Look here, M. Perichon, won't you help us?" he asked very earnestly.

The whole expression of the Frenchman's face changed, lighting up and becoming alert, but he said: "Me, I have retired."

"Oh, I know. But we're in the devil of a mess and it would be jolly good of you if you'd come in and help."

Perichon's green-brown eyes scanned the Englishman's face a moment before he remarked: "You are very fond of Mlle. Graham, eh?"

Grant's ears became scarlet and he moved uncomfortably, stammering: "I—I—"

"Sure he is," Washburn interrupted. "He thinks of her all day and talks of her in his sleep."

"Oho! It's serious," the older man smiled.

"Well, sir, I hope that Miss Graham will become my wife some day, so you see I—I do care rather. Of course no one in their senses could connect her with it, even if she did see the pearls last, or her brother for a—"

Perichon's eyes flashed. "Pearls? That is new."

Grant explained, and gave an outline of the inquisition Jean had been obliged to undergo that morning, adding that it was his opinion that M. Rivaux suspected her of being connected with the theft.

Perichon nodded his head and took several short sips of his canary colored syrop. Grant and Washburn watched him hopefully, wondering what all his deliberations were about. It was some while before he spoke, then he sat up suddenly and put his glass down.

"Bien. I will help you."

Grant thanked him.

"You ask me to help you, but supposing I say that I think Mlle. Graham is guilty or implicated?"

"I'll say she's not. Why, you've only got to look at her!"

Perichon smiled. "Yes, I did look at her. When I have spoken to Mees Graham I will tell you. There are so many reasons why people do things, Monsieur; not always because they are evil. Sometimes for love, for honor. Who knows?"

Shrtly after Grant and Washburn took their departure.

The Good-Night Kiss

Mrs. Nestor Noel

Have you ever heard mothers say: "As you were naughty to-day I will not kiss you good night?"

Some mothers do say this. The little child who probably has forgotten how she was naughty may cry herself to sleep and thus lose much of the good which a night's rest should bring.

Why keep up an unpleasantness with a child over night? The child might have been suffering from some childish indisposition. There is always a reason for a child's naughtiness. Perhaps we have been feeding her too highly concentrated food. Perhaps we have upset her during a meal. Perhaps some playmate annoyed her. There are so many possible reasons. We, ourselves, may be one of them! Were we feeling our best? Some days we overlook a great deal more than we do on other days.

Whosesoever the fault, bedtime should be a time of peace, a time when Mother forgets the little hurts and grievances of the day. Quickly the child who feels your loving confidence will resolve never to offend again. This is a chance to show your understanding, that wonderful understanding about which mothers boast!

To dwell on an injury inflicted by a friend is bad enough; to harbor ill will because of the peccadilloes of a little child is cruel. It is bad for the child's health, bad or its temper, bad for its character. Mothers should forgive and forget.

I have heard some say: "Of course I have forgiven my little girl, but she must be taught to remember.' If so, try some other time than bedtime for reminding her.

To-morrow will be a new beginning. You do not want your child to be burdened with the wrongs of yesterday or to-day.

Do we like to sleep under a heavy cloud, ourselves? Do you remember ever crying yourself to sleep? If so, never subject your child to the same misery. It is a real tragedy to a child to have to go to sleep without a mother's good-night kiss.—Issued by the National Kindergarten Association, 8 West 40th Street, New York City. These articles are appearing weekly in our columns.

Evening Make Up Should be Flattering

Evenng make-up should be flattening. A light, inconspicuous, easy-to-apply make-up is perfectly all right for the street, but it will look like nothing at all under artificial lights. Then you need a little more color and a bit of eye make-up which you wouldn't ordinarily use on the street or in the office.

Have a good light over your dressing table and stand so that it shines on your face while you are making up.

Clean your face and neck with cleansing cream and skin tonic before you get into your bath. If your skin feels at all dry, put on a nourishing cream and leave it on until you step out of the tub. Be sure and remove every trace of it before you use a foundation lotion.

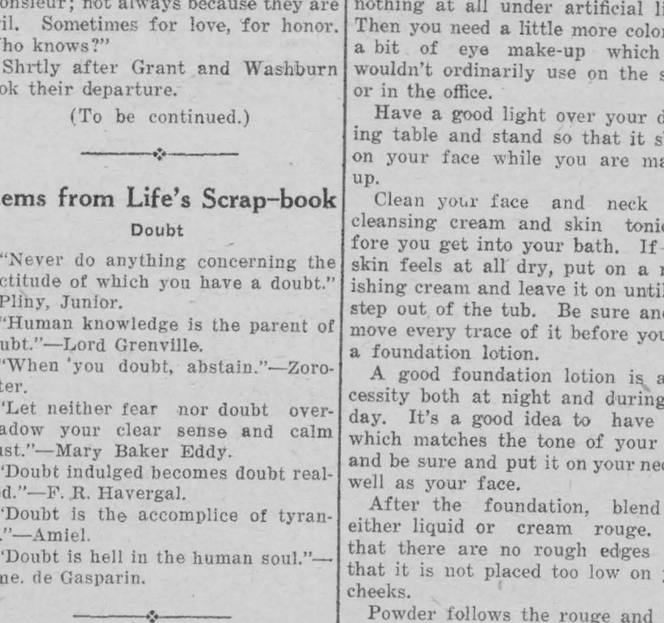

A good foundation lotion is a necessity both at night and during the day. It's a good idea to have one which matches the tone of your skin and be sure and put it on your neck as well as your face.

After the foundation, blend on either liquid or cream rouge. See that there are no rough edges and that it is not placed too low on your cheeks.

Powder follows the rouge and then an eye-shadow. Be careful not to get powder on your eye-lids. Brush your brows and lashes after you have powdered. Eye shadow should not extend out on the cheek bones.

Mascara and eyebrow pencil, if you use them, are the next to the last steps. Lipstick is the final one.

We have verified the cash and securities at Head Office at the close of the Bank's fiscal year, and during the year we counted the cash and examined the securities at several of the important branches.

We have obtained all the information and explanations that we have required, and in our opinion the transactions of the Bank, which have come under our notice, have been within the powers of the Bank. The above statement is in our opinion properly drawn up so as to disclose the true condition of the Bank as at 30th November, 1933, and it is as shown by the books of the Bank after giving effect to the transfer by the Directors of $15,000,000 from Reserve Fund to reimburse the inner reserves of the Bank and to provide reserves which they consider adequate for future contingencies.

Claims Newsprint Production Had Origin at Phelpston

That the first newsprint manufactured from pulpwood had its origin at Phelpston, Simcoe County, is the claim of a correspondent writing on the Homemakers' Page of a recent issue of The Globe.

"You all know that newsprint is manufactured from pulpwood (spruce), but this is not an old process. In the early part of 1875, A. J. Phelps of the N. & A. J. Phelps Lumber Company, operating a large mill at Phelpston, Flos Township, County of Simcoe, received from John Riordan, who owned and operated the Lincoln Paper Mills at Merritton, an order for one carload (8,000 feet) of spruce for experimental purposes. The late Matthew Lawson Jr. and William J. Patton, who now resides in Hamilton, felled the trees and cut them into logs. As the G.T.R. would not carry round timber, the logs were taken to the mill, where slabs were sawed off, after which they were hauled to Barrie, loaded and shipped on the old Northern Railway to Toronto and transhipped from there to Merritton on the Grand Trunk.

"Experiments proved that spruce could be bleached and manufactured into newsprint, and that was the first carload of spruce (or any wood) used for the purpose. Since then it has been found that poplar, basswood and other woods can also be used. Prior to 1875, pine (sawdust and shavings) were used with rags, felt, rope, etc., in the manufacture of wrapping paper, which was not like the fine quality papers used for this purpose nowadays.

"In the book", "Pioneers of Simcoe County", "you may read of A. J. Phelps, but you'll not read of the carload of spruce, I got the story from my father, W. J. Patton, who is still hale and hearty, although November 20 marked the seventy-eighth milestone of his life's journey."

Heating Plant

Mad summers of a million years ago
Are bringing me the mildness of this room;
I tend the radiator as a groom
Might watch a dinosaur, immense and slow,
At work. In flame-lit chambers far below
Black oil and coal from some earth-hidden tomb
Are giving up the sun-strength locked in gloom,
From lost and splendid summers none may know.

The wind and rain are battering outside
While here I sit, securely walled and glassed,
And warmed by long-gone summers golden-skied
And dead. The buried years are dim and vast,
And though I hunt the future in my pride
Both brain and body feed upon the past.

Road Accidents in Britain

In the first nine months of the past year, the number of persons killed in road accidents in England and Wales was 4,688; the number of persons injured was 151,396. During the whole of the Boer War our total loss "killed in action" was 5,774; total wounded, 20,811.

Woman's World

Consider These Points

Personal daintiness is one of the first requisites of immaculate grooming.

Consider your whole body and your clothes, as well as your face and figure, when you plan a winter beauty routine. Woollen frocks and steam heated rooms cause quite a lot of excess perspiration and you should bear that in mind constantly. Allow enough time for a daily bath, of course, and plan to use a good deodorant under your arms at least twice a week.

Woollen clothes need to be dry-cleaned frequently, and they should be aired thoroughly several times between cleanings. Hang them in the sun, wrong side out, and leave them for a few hours.

Be sure that each dress has shields in it. This is important no matter how persistently you use deodorants. Remember to clean the shields each time you clean the dress, and it's not a bad idea to clean shields oftener than that. Dip them in a little household ammonia and hang them in the sun to dry.

Fur collars need attention, too. You can't keep your neck clean if you wear the same fur collar all winter without cleaning it at least once every two weeks. A rough bath towel and a bit of cleaning fluid will clean any fur collar and won't hurt the fur a bit.

Neck scarfs, either wool or silk ones, should be washed or dry cleaned often. In other words, be just as fastidious about your outer garments as you are about the lingerie which you wear next to your skin.

To Preserve Hose

Always wash new stockings before wearing them. The heat of the foot acting upon the unwashed silk may cause it to ladder at once. This first washing strengthens the stockings greatly.

Two Well-Balanced Interesting Menus

Nowadays our menus reveal a tendency to drift away from the old-fashioned heavy meals with their hearty meats and rich desserts. Our menus are made with attention to a balanced diet and our choice of foods is not limited to season.

The following dinner menus are balanced:

Menu No. 1

Braised calf's liver, stuffed baked tomatoes, Parker House rolls, jellied cabbage-salad, peach up-side-down cake, milk, coffee.

Braise the liver with carrots and onions.

The tomatoes are stuffed with a mixture of cooked macaroni, tomato pulp and cheese. The combination provides a pleasing contrast with the rather highly seasoned liver.

A prepared lemon or pineapple jelly powder may be used with the cabbage for the salad. Threads of green and red sweet peppers add color if scattered through the mould.

Fresh or canned peaches are used for the dessert.

Menu No. 2

Stewed chicken in rice border, creamed onions, tomato and lettuce salad, mint ice cream with chocolate sauce, crisp cookies, milk, coffee.

Tender young chickens are disjointed and simmered gently until tender. One cup of chicken stock is combined with 1 cup cream and the liquid is thickened with 1 tablespoon flour rubbed to a smooth paste with 1 tablespoon butter. This is brought to the boiling point and poured over the chicken arranged in a border of steamed rice.

Cut head lettuce in slices and arrange with alternating slices of peeled tomatoes. Serve with French dressing.

To make the mint ice cream crush peppermint stick candy and add to any plain ice cream recipe, omitting the sugar. Use one-half pound candy to a quart of ice cream.

Use small onions and simmer them uncovered until tender. Then add to a well seasoned white sauce. Tiny onions left whole and served this way are very inviting.

Caramelized Onions

With a winter of the old-fashioned variety, solid, good food is called for, and what better than the appetizing health-giving onion. Try this recipe. It is sure to be a success with every member of the family:

Peel small onions, prick with tines of fork at top and bottom, parboil until nearly done. Drain, place in frying pan, dot and sprinkle with equal measures of butter and sugar. Cook slowly, turning the onions often until each one is carmelized.

Hot Potato Salad

To make hot potato salad you will want some medium-size potatoes, which should be boiled in their skins in the ordinary way.

When cooked, peel and let them get cool; then, with a sharp knife, cut them in thin and even slices.

This salad is served in the dish in which it is cooked.

Brush the bottom slightly with salad oil before putting in the potatoes; chop very finely some parsley, chives, or the green part of some spring onions; sprinkle them with seasoning and a pinch of sugar over the potatoes.

Mix some best salad oil with Tarragon and wine vinegar; heat it, and when almost at boiling point, pour it over the potatoes.

Cover the dish with a greased paper and put it in a moderate oven until the potatoes are really hot.

Should you make this salad in the winter, chopped celery in place of the onion is a delightful flavor.

The amount of oil and so on you will need depends upon how many potatoes you have. The vinegar is used in equal proportions of both kinds.

A Heart Dinner

What can we have for dinner that is nourishing, appetizing, and won't necessitate any left-overs? This is a question that often arises. A stuffed heart is the answer.

Wash the heart in warm salted water, then gently boil for one hour.

Make a forcemeat with four tablespoons breadcrumbs, two tablespoons shredded suet, a dessertspoon mixed herbs, a small chopped onion, salt and pepper. Bind together with a beaten egg.

Stuff the heart with the forcemeat, stitch the opening, and rub over with seasoned flour. Place the heart in a baking tin, smear with dripping, then bake in a moderate oven for ¾ hour, keeping it well basted.

An Economical Sponge Cake

If you feel you would like a change in cakes from the rich Christmas fare here is a sponge cake that is delicate and white yet is simply made from only three eggs.

Hot Milk Sponge Cake

Measure 1 cup sifted cake flour. Add 1 teaspoon baking powder and sift together three times. Beat three eggs until very thick and light and nearly white. Add 1 cup sugar, gradually, beating constantly. Add 2 teaspoons lemon juice. Fold in flour, alternately with 6 tablespoons hot milk, mixing quickly until batter is smooth. Bake at once in ungreased tube pan in moderate oven (380 deg. F.) 15 minutes. Remove from oven and invert pan for 1 hour or until cold.

Denver Firemen Told To Stop Giving Blood

Denver.—The Denver Fire Department is losing too much blood, Chief Healy says, and he has moved to stop it. More than one hundred firemen, accordings to reports, have given blood to hospital patients within a short period.

Chief Healy is not opposed to the practice in principle, but he points out that some of the men have been so generous as to endanger their health. He maintains that the first duty of a fireman is to keep himself in the best possible condition to fight fires and consequently has ordered no more transfusions, at least for the time being.

Cottages at Low Rent By Mass Production

How cottages could be provided for agricultural workers at a small rental per week, including rates, was explained by W. Harding Thompson, London, England. The cottage has three bedrooms, a living room with cooking range, scullery-warehouse with bath, larder and shed. The rent might be made even lower by mass production and reducing the height of rooms from eight to seven feet three inches.

Polite Robbers Enjoy Breakfast

Tie Up Callers and Regale Themselves with Coffee

New York.—This is a tale of a strange "bandit" breakfast party which lasted an hour and a half. Three polite bandits had just tied the last knots in the twine which firmly bound Mrs. Ramona Santos, her 22-year-old daughter, and four men, friends of the family, in Mrs. Santos' apartment in this city, when someone knocked at the door. Hastily pocketing the $200 in cash and the wrist watch they had taken from the group, one of the robbers opened the door and thrust his revolver under the nose of a laundry man.

The latter dropped his bundle of clean wash and submitted while the bandits tied his arms and legs gently but firmly. They had just deposited him with the six other victims when there came another knock at the door. Happily the men welcomed a grocer, tied him up, too, and unwrapped the comestibles he had brought.

"Ha, coffee," said one of the men, sniffing joyfully as he seized a percolator and made for the stove. There was another knock. This time it was a fruit vendor, and he took his place, bound, with other members of the uncomfortable group in the corner. Some oranges and grapefruit he had brought were peeled and sliced. The coffee was poured, steaming, into three cups. The radio was turned on. Breakfast was ready.

While the men were chatting pleasantly over their coffee and cigarettes, Miss Santos managed to inform them that the wrist watch they had taken was a gift from her dead father. It was returned, with apologies. Then, wiping the fruit juice from their fingers and the coffee from their lips, the bandits bade their victims adieu and departed. Several minutes later Mrs. Santos wriggled fre and sounded an alarm.

If You Were Married to Mendelssohn's Tune

New York.—Walter Damrosch, the conductor, is looking for husbands and wives who were married the greatest number of years ago to the strains of Mendelssohn's famous wedding march.

The four record-holding couples will be his guests at the Mendelssohn celebration here January 17, the proceeds of which will be given to unemployed musicians.

The march was brought to the United States shortly after Mendelssohn composed it in 1833, and its popularity was so immediate that for many years no wedding was complete without it.

Damrosch has written words to the march which will be sung by a chorus of 1,200 voices. The celebration is to take place in Madison Square Garden.

Modest Package Worth $500,000

Wrapped in Brown Paper the Famous Codex Sinaiticus Arrives at British Museum

London.—A moderate-sized brown paper parcel taken by motor car to the British Museum recently represented a half million dollar purchase by the British Government of the Codex Sinaiticus, fourth-century Bible manuscript.

Bibliophiles say that in getting the manuscript from the Soviet Government for $500,000 the British Government got a bargain. Not only that, but Russia has agreed to spend the purchase price in England for machinery and the like.

Originally the Soviet asked a total of $2,500,000 for the Codex, called the most valuable manuscript in the world's history.

Arrived Christmas

Conveyed to England by special courier, who arrived Christmas Eve, the manuscript remained in the strong vaults over the holidays and after a formal receipt was given the Soviet representatives the British intermediary, a noted book dealer, guarded by detectives, took the parcel by car to the Museum where a queue of several hundred awaited its arrival.

The crowd was allowed to enter the board room and witness the presentation to Sir George Hill, director of the British Museum. Unwrapped, the parcel was revealed in a tin box of red and gold, the manuscript itself being carefully shrouded in cotton wool. Dr. Bell, keeper of manuscripts, later made an inspection to see that none of the pages were missing.

Placed on View

The Codex was then placed on general view in a special case in the entrance hall, which already contained the 14th century copy of the Pentateuch in Hebrew.

As the British Museum went into the deal with the British Government on a 50-50 basis, it has to raise $250,000 by public subscription. The subscriptions are already flocking in. One old lady in Scotland sent a half-a-Crown, 60 cents, which she said hoped would pay for a single letter in the Codex.

The Codex, discovered in the middle of the 19th century on Mount Sinai, came into possession of the Soviet authorities from the relics of Tsar Alexander.

Britain Faces New Year With Renewed Optimism

Financial Prestige Restored; Buoyant Industrial Recovery Under Way—Dole Fund Again Solvent—Unemployment Falling

London.—Great Britain faces the New Year in the quiet confidence of notable achievement.

Scarcely more than two years ago she stood perilously near the edge of a financial abyss. Ready money was moving rapidly to foreign fields, British credit was falling. The "dole" fund was running into debt to the tune of a million pounds a week. There were those, even, who predicted London had forever lost her preeminence in finance, that war and the aftermath of war had dealt such a blow that recovery was well-night impossible.

Since those tragic days Great Britain has quietly set the world an example which foreign nations are now breathlessly endeavoring to emulate. Always slow to act, she acted with startling thoroughness. With ruthless axe and tax she re-established her fiance. Her bankrupt dole fund is now operating with a balance on hand Favorable balances have already reduced by nearly three millions the fund's old debt of £115,000,000. Included in the unemployment bill now before Parliament is an amortization scheme to wipe out the remainder by fixed payment from the fund within a maximum of 40 years.

FINANCES REFORMED.

With extraordinary success she carried through the most extensive scheme of debt conversion known to financial history. She abandoned her traditional free-trade policy. She left gold; and the reaction echoed round the Seven Seas. At Ottawa, she concluded trade agreements with other nations of the British Commonwealth. With foreign countries, she made agreements in endeavor to break through the bounds of rigid economic nationalisms. She has embarked on a five-year slum clearance plan. By schemes of marketing and control she is endeavoring to restore her agriculture to a paying basis.

INDUSTRY RECOVERING.

Her credit is now restored, month by month her unemployment is falling. At the peak, insured unemployed totalled 2,851,000. They now stand at approximately 2,280,000. The Board of Trade index figure shows that industrial production is back to 96.7 per cent. of what it was in 1924. In the quarterly period, July-September, 1932, it was down to 87.3.

Britain is out of the morass. But she has still far to travel before she attains the highlands of prosperity.

New problems arise.

COMPETITION GROWING.

Under the impulse of cheap labor and depreciated currency, Japan is breaking into British trade even in the Crown colonies. Britain's great shipping is suffering from the competition of foreign shipping assisted by state subsidies. Less and less cargo is being brought to Britain herself in British ships, and more and more in foreign ships, said Alexander Shaw, chairman, at the annual meeting of the P. and O. "and as from year to year, the tonnage of British ships entering British ports declines, the tonnage of foreign ships entering British ports increases...."

SHIPPING IN DIFFICULTIES.

For the first ten months of the year the net tonnage of British ships entering at and clearing from United Kingdom ports with cargo, compared with 1931, has been reduced by more than 6,000,000 tons. The tonnage of foreign vessels entering at and clearing from British ports on the other hand has gone up by over 3,700,000 tons. Compared with the same period last year the figures are: British shipping down 1,460,000 tons; foreign shipping up 2,290,000 tons.

The Council of the Chamber of Shipping has forwarded to the Government a report of the shipping committee, recommending temporary subsidies for tram ships in service or laid up. The object is to equalize advantages of foreign competition due to subsidies, depreciated currencies and lower wage costs.

Belgian Army Officers See Test of Helicopter

Brussels.—A machine for vertical flying successfully maintained itself for nine minutes and fifty-eight seconds in a recent demonstration before high ranking civil and military air officials.

It is the work of Nicolas Florine, a young engineer of Russian descent, who is a naturalized Belgian. He has been financed by the Belgian fund for national research.

The helicopter, which looks like the skeleton of a giant insect, has two four-bladed propellers rotated by a 200-horsepower engine. The machine weighs about one ton.

Poison Antidote Given By Blowgun Warrior

Windhoek, Namaqualand. — The secret of the poison antitdote of African bushmen is expected to be learned as a result of the wounding of a policeman's horse.

Bushmen blew poisoned arrows at police who tried to arrest them for stealing cattle near Epukiro. The wounded horse was saved by the antidote taken from a captured bushman.

A magistrate of Gobabis was wounded some time ago by one of these arrows and died in agony because no antidote was available.

Old-Fashioned Girl Had More Intellect Than Modern Sister

Boston.—A real "old fashioned girl" of the old stone age, who was smarter than her modern sister, if you can judge by brain capacity, gave a new idea of the origin of the human race today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

She was a true "Minerva" of 10,000 years ago and an Amazon as well. Her brain capacity was 1,430 cubic centimetres as against 1,300 for the average young woman of today and 1,450 for the modern man, and though only 20 years old she stood nearly six feet tall, better than the average for modern girls of the same age.

Study of this and other skeletons of the old stone age shows that new measurements of the many bones of ancient man now in museums may greatly clarify the mystery of the origin of the present human race said Prof. Gerhardt von Bonin of the University of Ilinois. Out of the old stone age, presumably, came the modern human race.

Coiffure Tournament Held in London

A thrilling race between 25 of the world's finest hairdressers to evolve an exquisite coiffure from a straight head of hair was witnessed at the international hairdressing tournament to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the Societe du Progres de la Coiffeur a Londres (London).

The competitors included both men and women. Great Britain was represented by 12 competitors and other countries represented were France, Germany, Spain and Austria. Each was equipped only with marcel irons, a pair of scissors and comb.

When the umpire gave the word "go" the hairdresser set to work on his model, and within an hour exactly—his allotted time—produced heads of hair which would make any girl green with envy.

According to one expert, the styles for the coming season will be based upon the Alexandra Curl and the Edwardian Roll. A very long shingle will still prevail, hair being long at the neck to form curls.

MUTT AND JEFF— By BUD FISHER

The Conversation of Two Lovers.

News and Information For The Busy Farmer.

Mulching Strawberries

In many districts it is the practice to mulch strawberry plantations with rye straw which, as it is harvested early, is very free from weed seeds and this is a very important feature where it is the custom to take future crops from the plantation. If manure is used, care should be exercised in order that none will come in contact with the crown of the plant. Mulch as soon as the ground is frozen hard enough to carry a wagon, for much damage may be caused by alternate freezing and thawing.

Order Fertilizer Early

Plants as mhuch as animals require food. Winter is a good time to plan the summer diet for crops. Manure supplemented with superphosphate is a splendid ration for most crops. Twenty-two years of experimental work at Dominion Experimental Farms have shown that yields may be maintained by using commercial fertilizers alone. If manure is scarce, therefore, use commercial fertilizers. Decide on the kind and amount needed, then order early, so as to have it on hand when growth starts in the Spring.

Winter Housing of Sheep

Sheep do not require expensive and warm buildings. They do, however, appreciate a dry, roomy shed well protected against winds, well ventilated and free from draught. Do not crowd them in one pen. Twenty to twenty-five ewes do best together. Furthermore, a sheep requires from twelve to fifteen square feet of floor space, and one foot of feeding space. Doors should be of good width, to allow free access to and from the pens. Narrow doors are often the cause of abortion. Pregnant ewes need a yard to exercise in. Force them to walk by feeding hay outside in good weather

Winter Hog Feeding

Winter hog feeding requires different methods from those ordinarily found successful in summer. Stunting and crippling are common during the winter, and result largely from an over-supply of heavy feeds as well as from a lack of some of the vital elements. Lack of sunshine and exercise may also be contributory causes. Control measures to forestall these winter feeding difficulties are as follows: Use a variety of feeds in the ration including milk or tankage; provide alfalfa or clover hay or roots in small quantities; do not feed too heavily; allow young animals to exercise outdoors in mild weather; all stock should have comfortable sleeping quarters which are dry and free from draughts.

Simple Methods for Treating Milking Machine Tubes

The simplest and cheapest method of controlling contamination from milking machine rubber parts consists in using a weak lye solution (0.4 to 0.5 per cent) to keep the tubes sterilized between milkings. This is particularly designed for farms lacking an adequate supply of hot water. After a cold water suction rinse, immediately following milking, the tubes are hung in a simple wooden rack, filled with lye solution, and left till the next milking.

Mangels for Poultry

The chief value of roots as a poultry feed lies in the fact that they can be stored during the winter months, and fed over the period during which fresh green feeds are not available. They should not be considered in any way as a complete substitute for fresh green feeds, chiefly because they are quite deficient in vitamin content. The anti-neuritic and anti-scorbutic vitamins are present in only the slighest traces, while the anti-rachitic vitamin is entirely lacking. In comparison, fresh clover, one of the most commonly used green feeds, contains all three in abundance. The chief function of mangels and roots is in general the supplying of succulence to the ration. It has been found that by using mangels and supplementing with a regular dose of Epsom salts, laying birds will come through the winter in fairly good shape.

The Principle of Grading

Grading is based on the principle that it is sound business to classify live stock, live stock products, and other Canadian commodities in such a way that the consumer will be able to recognize and purchase quality products and that the producer will be enabled to obtain a higher price. Experience has proved the value of this theory. The identification of top quality beef under red and blue ribbon bands, the grading of poultry, the segregation of eggs and fruit into quality grades which are known to practically every Canadian consumer, and other grading activities have been a tremendous incentive to quality production with resultant benefit to producers. Grading has not only served to create better prices for quality products, but has also brought about a substantial increase in consumption. Atthe same time, through grading Canadian products maintain their high level of excellence in the markets of the world. In this way, the new regulations which are soon to be put in force with reference to the grading of bacon for export to the British market will solidify Canada's premier position as an Empire source of food products.

Home Cleaning of Small Vegetable Seeds

Thresh out the seed by placing the plants in a strong, closely woven cotton sack. Light flailing with a stick will liberate the seed from pods or heads.

Lettuce and carrot seeds should be rubbed out by hand, using a pair of strong leather mitts.

A coarse sieve will remove the straw and chaff. Place the seed and chaff on a fine sieve; a quick, downward, side movement, repeated several times, will remove the chaff and light seed. Only the large, plump seed should be kept. Hand picking will improve the sample.

Home Grown Grains for the Laying Flock

The following ration for laying pullets, composed mostly of home grown grains, is recommended by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms: Mash—2 parts of ground wheat, 1 part of ground oats, 1 part ground barley or corn, half part of ground beef and fish scrap, 2 per cent. bone meal, 2 per cent. cod liver oil, and 1 per cent. salt; scratch grain—2 parts of wheat, 1 part oats, 1 part corn or buckwheat, 1 part barley. This ration may be varied according to what grains the farmer has available.

Canadian Grains Won

The superior development attained by northern-grown grain is nowhere demonstrated more convincingly than at the International Hay and Grain Show held in Chicago. At the Show last December, Canadian exhibits again carried off the lion's share of the Championship awards in the following classes, viz: Hard Red Spring Wheat, Durum Wheat, Medium Late White Oats (region 1) Early Oats (region 1) Trebi Barley, Two-rowed Barley, Rye Flax, Soya Beans (region 1 and 2) Large Field Peas, Small Field Peas, O.A.C. Field Peas, Alsike Clover, Timothy, Alfalfa (Western section) and Navy Beans. In the Hard Red Spring Wheat class, Canadian entries were awarded the first 39 prizes.

In the Soya Bean class for region 1 and 2, the first six prize winners were all from Ontario, an indication of the progress made by this province in the production of this crop. In the exhibits of Alfalfa Seed for the "East", the eight winning samples from Canada were from Ontario. Seven of these were among the first 13 prize-winning lots and included the 2nd, 4th and 7th.

In the class for Alsike seed, Ontario growers again demonstrated the place of this Province as a leading producer of high-class Alsike seed, 14 of the 20 prizes offered being won by Ontario. The championship in this class went to an exhibit shown by Elson Richert of Fisherville, Ont.

The splendid showing made by Canadian grain and small seed at theInternational Show proves that Canada continues to produce grain of superior quality which is able to face the keenest competition in the world and win major awards with comparative ease.

RATIFICATION OF WATERWAY PACT ASKED BY ROOSEVELT

Washington, Jan. 10—The fate of the St. Lawrence Waterway Treaty lay in the hands of the United States Senate tonight.

President Roosevelt today sent a strong message to the Senate, saying: "Broad national reasons lead me without hesitation to advocate the treaty," and Senator Wagner (Democrat, New York), presented a minority report vigorously opposing ratification.

Opposition Weakened.

A canvass of leading Senators indicated that the President's message was of such strength as tc make it doubtful whether the Opposition could muster the necessary 33 votes to defeat the treaty.

Points in Mr. Roosevelt's message were:

"I call your attention to the simple fact, that Canada alone can, if desired, build locks at the Lachine Rapids and at the international sector, and thus provide a seaway wholly within Canadian control."

"I want to make it very clear that this great international highway for shipping is, without question going to be completed in the near future, and that this completion should be carried out by both nations instead of one."

The President further said commerce and transportation will be greatly benefitted, and that local fears of economic harm to special localities or to special interests are grossly exaggerated. He was convinced the building of the seaway would not injure the railways, nor interfere with the proper use of the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers for navigation. He was satisfied the treaty contained adequate provision for the needs of the Chicago drainage district.

Other Power Areas.

With respect to power, he had already advocated three great power areas in the United States—the Tennessee Valley plants in the southeast, the Boulder Dam in the southwest the Columbia river project in the northwest.

"The St. Lawrence development in the northeast calls for action," he said. "This river is the source of incomparably cheap power."

The President again pointed out that power in the international section of the St. Lawrence could not be developed without a treaty with Canada, whereas Canada could develop a huge block of power within Canadian territory.

The effect of this message, coming on top of Senator Wagner's statement wherein he inveighed against the navigation project as opposed to the philosophy of the recovery program, the imposition of costs upon the United States public "two or three times as great as the savings conferred upon those who would use the waterway," but advocated a new treaty for power development alone, was admittedly to shift some negative votes to the affirmative side. It was suggested in the lobbies that, where the treaty be brought to an immediate vote, there would be a chance of its passing.

"Stands Chance Now."

Senator Joseph Robinson, leader of the Democratic forces for ratification, told the Canadian Press the question would be brought before the Senate as soon as the Administration was ready, which will be when certain proposals Mr. Roosevelt has to make have been printed and distributed.

Insofar as the Administration is concerned, it may be confidently said the White House considers any other than the direct line of shipment from the Head of the Lakes to the Atlantic as contrary to economic principle and against nature. This is reflected in the view which Mr. Roosevelt's message to the Senate takes.

"I have not stressed the fact that the starting of this work will put thousands of unemployed to work. I have preferred to stress the great future advantages to our country and especially the fact that all of us should view this treaty in the light of the benefits which it confers on the people of the United States as a whole," he said.

It may also be said the Administration is satisfied to the point of emphasis that the treaty makes ample provision for the needs of the Chicago Drainage Canal, even going so far as to hold that the water of the Great Lakes watershed is the mutual property of Canada and the United States, and abstraction cannot be made in justice without a treaty.

Mr. and Mrs Chester McDermott and daughters Ruby and Joyce, of Glen Stewart, took tea with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Robinson.

Mrs. Stanley Thorpe and son Murray have arrived home after spending a few days with friends in Trenton.

Those who spent Saturday eve with Mr and Mrs. Roy Robinson were: Mr and Mrs. Arnold Fader and son Clifford of Hanesville; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Warren and daughter Ethel, of Glen Stewart; Chester McDermott of Glen Stewart.

We wonder if it is the rink business that takes Arnold Kirker to Brinston so regularly, or if it is other attractions?

Visitors at Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kirker's on Wednesday evening of this week were: Mr and Mrs. Roy Robinson, also Mr. France and Geo. Wickwire.

We are sorry to learn of James Keck losing one of his horses recently.

CANADA'S HONOR

All through the months and years when Canada's dollar was below ours, sometimes even twenty cents or more lower, Canada met every obligation to American investors with the equivalent of gold. With the exception of the City of Calgary, in Alberta, neither the Dominion Government nor any of its Provinces, nor a single town or city ever asked for any consideration. If, for instance, a Canadian city had $1,000,000 worth of bonds mature in this country when the Canadian dollar was twenty cents lower than ours, it dug up without a whimper or a word of complaint $1,200,000 of its people's money and paid like men. Canadian honor considered no other course. Today when Canadian money is worth more than ours, instead of throwing our dollars back in our faces, they are actually paying their coupons in Canadian funds, so that holders in the United States are getting a premium. What a contrast to the way our Government is treating foreign investors in our bonds! It deliberately flaunts its promises to pay in gold and doesn't do as Canada did, give the equivalent of gold, but instead hands them a dollar worth sixty cents. We have heard since childhood about the honor of the Anglo-Saxon. But it appears to depend in a great measure on where the Anglo-Saxon lives. Why should it be so much different on one side of the border than on the other? We take off our hats to our Canadian cousins. They have shown us how banks can be run without a depositor losing a cent, and now they are showing us what we once knew—the value of national honor in money transaction.—Malden (Mass.) Evening News.

HON. DR. J. D. MONTEITH

Death claimed the second Ontario Cabinet Minister within two weeks when Hon. Dr. J.D. Monteith died at his home at Stratford Monday night. He was Minister of Public Works and Labor in the Cabinet of Premier George S. Henry. He was 68 years of age.

Dr. Monteith suffered a paralytic stroke while attending the funeral of Andrew Malcolm, prominent manufacturer, who was buried in Listowel, December 28. Mr. Malcolm was the brother of Hon. James Malcolm, former Liberal Minister of Trade and Commerce.

On New Year's eve, Hon. E.A. Dunlop, provincial treasurer, died in Toronto, while Dr. Monteith was fighting for his life at his Stratford home.

CANADA.

Clean and Fast.

Hockey can be both "hectic" and "exciting," however, without being foul. The sooner sport publicists in both the United States and Canada desist from fostering the illusion that hockey is a savage and sanguinary game, the better for professional hockey. The truth is that it can be the cleanest as well as the fastest game in the world.—Ottawa Citizen.

Timber Problem.

It is reported from Orangeville that in two years 469,000 trees have been planted in the Dufferin County forest reserve. If such practical work were carried on throughout the Dominion its timber problem would be solved in another generation or so.—Toronto Globe.

Sign of Improvement.

It does look as if the depression is being discouraged. In Canada for the fourth successive month, sales of new automobiles at retail in October show a gain over the corresponding month in 1932. The number increased 22.4 per cent., while their value increased 19 per cent. The number of trucks and buses sold showed a gain of 20.4 per cent., while their value increased 50.9 per cent.—Brandon Sun.

The Greater Peril.

A game of checkers so excited four Apache Indians that a fight followed which ended in four deaths. The authorities had better keep this tribe in ignorance of contract bridge—Edmonton Journal.

A Good Paper.

A good town paper is not the product of chance. It is the growth of time, brains, energy, devotion and, essentially, the loyal support of the community it serves.—Renfrew Mercury.

Rights of the Citizen.

Perhaps it is this thing—determination to preserve the rights of the citizen—that makes British law and justice things apart. Justice in Britain is not merely an agency to punish wrong-doers; it is something to unhold liberty; the thing that Macaulay had in mind when he spoke of "law sustained by liberty, and liberty sustained by law." It is a tradition which we here in Canada may always follow to our gain.—Ottawa Journal.

And Toronto a Centennial.

When writing your friends don't neglect to remind them that Port Arthur will have a semi-centennial celebration next year—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

No 'Hopper Boundary.

Grasshoppers know no international boundary, a factor which is increasingly important with the knowledge that a trend from comparatively harmless types to types of a migratory nature is in evidence. Indeed, much of the area found infested in Western Canada this fall was populated by 'hoppers which flew in from unknown sources—Winnipeg Free Press.

Billboard Restrictions.

A news despatch from Quebec states that Hon. J. E. Perrault, Minister of Roads and Mines, has concluded negotiations with national commercial and advertising companies to the effect that at the beginning of next year billboards will no longer be placed close to provincial highways. This is a safety step that might well be taken in Ontario. The billboard distracts the attention of some speeding motorists on country highways and thereby causes traffic accidents.

Diphetheria Prevention.

Results at Ottawa confirm the evidence from other cities, where energetic immunization programs have been carried out, as to the possibility by this means not merely of ending diphtheria epidemics in a community but eventually stamping it out. It has been proved beyond question that the toxoid treatment both prevents diphtheria and saves lives where the disease has got a foothold. There is no longer any reason to fear this former dread disease which took in the past a heavy toll of lives and caused untold suffering and sorrow. All parents should feel it a duty to see that their children get this simply-administered, inexpensive protection.—Kingston Whig-Standard.

A Nice Piece of Work.

Mrs. John Horne, Jr., of Port Colborne, grew weary of the number of times a burglar was making his way into her home. On one occasion the burglar had secured $4 in cash and some rings. At other times he had come, and Mrs. Horne was certain he always entered by a cellar window.

Mrs. Horne was ready to receive him when he came again. She turned out the lights, took up her stand in the cellar and had with her as companion and adviser the family rolling pin. The burglar came. He entered the window and Mrs. Horne went into action. The burglar was knocked out cold. Then the police came and took him away.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Current Business.

More widespread employment, even overtime operations in some trades, renewed interest in construction, a larger share in the world wheat trade and an increase in exports of basic commodities, including animal products, metals and newsprint, are the features of recent developments in Canadian economy. A considerable improvement in Canada's position in relation to the international balance of payments is foreshadowed by her more favorable showing on merchandise account.—Monthly Letter of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Daughters of Canada.

Marie Dressler, the Canadian-born screen star, though 62 years of age, has staged a great comeback and is today the most popular screen actress in the United States. May Pickford, America's sweetheart, is also a Canadian, as is Norma Shearer. Canadians are justly proud of the foremost place taken in the entertainment world by daughters of the Dominion.

THE EMPIRE.

A Tercentenary.

At Cowes, in the Isle of Wight, England, there was celebrated the tercentenary of the sailing from Cowes on November 22, 1633, of the little ships, the Ark and the Dove carrying the first British settlers to Maryland, U.S.A. A bronze plaque, presented by the Ark and Dove Society in Maryland, was then unveiled; it was handed over by Lord Fairfax, a descendant of one of the first British settlers in the American state.—Inverness Review.

The Housing Problem.

The number of houses required is still colossal, and a recent estimate in a responsible quarter has put the figure at 1,400,000. The Census figures of 1931 show clearly that houses in some such numbers will be wanted if overcrowding is to be ended; an overcrowding is not merely a feature of existing slums but the most potent cause of future slums. Even if it were true that at some time in the distant future this deficiency would be made good without any further development of housing policy, the Government would be well advised to do something to advance this happy time, provided always that a new effort did not inflict indirect and counterbalancing disadvantages upon the poor whom it is destined to benefit.—London Times.

Close Budgeting.

A committee of the British Medical Association has created something in the nature of a sensation by declaring that the average man doing moderate muscular work can be fed for 5s. 10d. (about $1.40) per week. The committee is not content with a generalization, but makes a detailed statement of the various articles of food in the dietary. . . It is all very well to say that the dietary provides an average of 3,386 calories per day, but how is the two-ounce egg to be distributed, how many meals will the one-half pound of liver, or minced meat, or bacon or corned beef provide for a hungry man? The distribution of the one and three-quarter pint of milk over a full week is somewhat of a problem in warm weather when supplies have to be bought daily if they are to be reasonably fresh. Practical caterers providing for large numbers of men might keep to the cost as an average, but the individual kept to a scientific diet would soon become a man with a grievance against the world.—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Standards of Living.

Japan is taking our markets, is taking even our business of carrying these goods. Japan's millowners prosper; Japan's shipowners reap the harvest of the waters. How is it done? Because the Japanese workers live more cheaply. Could we? Undoubtedly. The British Medical Association is telling you that any healthy man can live on 5s. 10½d. a week. Maybe he can, especially if he starts the week healthy and well nourished. It might not be so good, say, with two years' unemployment as the prelude. Most of the world could live a little worse than it does. The question is: Why should it? World rulers everywhere are cutting down production, while hungry citizens go short. The priests of Baal who cut themselves with knives did not commit more folly.—London Daily Express.

THE UNITED STATES

The Land Looking Up.

So much publicity is given to farm mortgage foreclosures and farm distress that there is an impression that farm land no longer has value. This is, of course, absurd. There are farmers who are living and paying debts off, and thousands of farmers who are free from debt. Food is being produced and producers are making ends meet even under the adverse circumstances of the last few years. Moreover, there are persons who are looking for farms, with the money to buy them. Land is basic. It either comes back or a country perishes, and there is no body who anticipates the downfall of the United States.—Topeko Daily Capital.

"Think I'll hop along to the sunny southland," say some fed up with Toronto's cold weather. But maybe they'll change their minds when they see this picture of Californians digging out their car after a 56-inch snowfall.

102 New Ships by 1939 Asked for U.S. Navy

Washington. — The United States navy is planning to ask congressional authorization for an ambitious ship construction and replacement program designed to establish the service on treaty parity basis by 1939.

Under present plans, Congress will be asked to approve two resolutions, one to authorize building the navy to the strength allowed by the London naval treaty or any other arms agreement to which the United States might become a party, the other to authorize the President to maintain the fleet at that strength.

Under the navys present idea, the fleet would be brought to treaty strength by 1939. To bring it to full strength, 102 ships must be constructed, or approximately 20 ships for each fiscal year. The program for next year would call for two heavy destroyers or destroyer leaders, 12 destroyers, one cruiser carrying eight-inch guns, two cruisers carrying six-inch guns and six submarines. This would leave the navy with the following new construction and replacement to be built by 1939: 24 submarines, 51 destroyers, three cruisers carrying six-inch guns and one aircraft carrier of 15,200 tons.

The total cost of the treaty strength program, including equipment and airplanes, is roughly estimated at $516,000,000, or approximately $100,000,000 a year.

To man such a fleet with an 85 per cent. complement, enlisted strength, would be increased from the present 79,200 to about 100,000 and marine strength from 15,200 to about 20,000.

With the $238,000,000 turned over to it by President Roosevelt from public works funds and $46,000,000 of regular appropriations, the navy is now building or has contracted for 54 ships.

The ultimate purpose of the navy's program is to eliminate the present method of authorization for a considerable quantity of vessels in one category and then having them 15 or 20 years hence all become average at the same time.

Partridges Enter City to Get Food

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.—Hungarian partridge—hundreds of them—are on welfare relief in the Soo.

Citizens are responding to the plea of the Game, Fish and Forest Association to feed the birds. Snow has been removed from extensive lots and food, donated by citizens, is being thrown daily to them. Several hundreds of the birds, driven by hunger from the woods, recently invaded the city.

Plane Nearly Crashes On Buckingham Palace

London, Eng.—Crowds watching the ever-popular ceremony of the changing of the guard at Buckingham Palace were startled recently when an airplane passed, apparently only a few feet above the roof of the palace.

The plane, which was in trouble, made a forced landing in Hyde Park, a short distance away. Its occupants were uninjured.

The King and Queen, who were in residence at the palace, made inquiries.

An eye-witness said the plane swerved sharply to avoid crashing into a flagstaff. "It looked for a moment that he could not avoid hitting some part of the palace, but by a great effort he managed to get the plane away," the eye-witness said.

Some of the women in the crowd screamed.

Tear Gas Causes Panic At War Demonstration

Bucharest. — The drastic methods pursued by an army officer at his lecture on gas and air defense in the Village of Csikcsicso recently caused a panic among the audience.

To demonstrate the effect of tear gas and the methods of defense against it, the colonel released the contents of a tear-gas bomb. The audience, consisting mainly of women and children, taking it for poisonous gas, jumped up from their seats and rushed to the exits. In the ensuing panic all window panes were smashed and a number of persons seriously wounded. Three children who were trampled under foot are not expected to recover.

Cattle Rustlers Aided By Women in Southwest

Pueblo, Col.—Southwest peace officers are looking for the queen of cattle rustlers. A cattle rustling ring that has operated in Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico and Oklahoma is believed to be directed by a woman who has several men and women in her employ.

The women obtain jobs as cooks on ranches and study brands, pastures and round-ups. This information goes to the higher-up and one night a fleet of trucks carries away livestock. The cook leaves soon for another job.

The stolen cattle are taken to the Denver, Wichita or Oklahoma City market and sold before the owner can report his loss.

Names Eighteen Men Who Understand Money

New York.—Eleven college professors, two bankers, and five foreign authorities were listed last week as "the persons in the world who understand the real meaning of money," by Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale.

The prominent economist, in reply to a request of the Consumers Guild of America, listed the following professors:

Harry G. Brown, University of Missouri; G. F. Warren and F. E. Pearson, Cornell University; J. Harvey Rogers, Yale; Willford I. King, New York University; John R. Commons, University of Wisconsin; Dr. Warren N. Persons, New York City; Edwin W. Kemmerer, Princeton; Cyril James, University of Pennsylvania; John H. Williams, Harvard, and Jacob Winer, University of Chicago.

The bankers include Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, and George Le Blanc, former Equitable Trust Company official.

Among the foreign academic monetary economists there are Keynes, of England; Cassell, of Sweden; Frisch, of Norway; Van Schulze Gavernitz, of Germany, and among bankers, Reginald McKenna, of Englad, Fisher added.

Professor Warren, named in the American group, is the present monetary adviser to President Roosevelt. Conspicuously absent from the list were Professor O. M. W. Sprague, recently resigned Treasury adviser, Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, of Cleveland, widely-known as an authority, and Fisher himself.

E. C. Riegel, president of the Guild, disclosed that a list of 15 questions pertaining to money would be mailed to the 18 authorities named, and that from the replies a symposium would be compiled and mailed to all members of Congress.

Dominion and Provinces May Confer January 17

Ottawa.—Indications are that the Dominion - Provincial Conference, scheduled for Jan. 11, will be postponed to Jan. 17, to meet the wishes of Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec. Premiers of all the provinces were queried as to the stability of the later date, and all but one had replied agreeing to the change.

Request for the later date was made by Premier Taschereau because the Quebec Legislature will assemble on Jan. 9 and no large delegation of ministers could be spared to come to Ottawa so soon after the opening of the House.

Grumbling Ontario Residents View This!

Here's what happened when Old Sol turned his rays on Washington state mountains, pouring thousands of tons of water into small streams which flooded Tacoma and many other cities. Nine lives were lost.

Highway Lighting

Ontario possesses about 3,000 miles of King's highways, about 1,200 miles of which are heavily traveled, writes the Electrical News and Engineering. For instance, the highway joining Windsor and Montreal is used continually both summer and winter by private and commercial licensed vehicles, and particularly by tourists. What a splendid contribution to safety to commerce, and to Canada's tourist trade, it would be if this main highway were adequately illuminated.

At the present time the many municipalities en route light about 75 miles, but there still remain unlighted about 475 miles between Windsor and the Ontario-Quebec border. A superficial survey would show that, owing to the advantageous existing facilities along this route, the capital cost of installing complete lighting would be around $700,000, and the total annual charges, including interest, depreciation, maintenance, power and lamp renewals would be only $200,000 per annum.

Would not this investment pay for itself? The Quebec authorities would soon light their 50 miles from the boundary to Montreal, the municipalities would improve their lighting, and this highway would then become one of the most traveled and safest highways on this continent.

London Preparing In Event Gas Attack

London.—Lord Moynihan and other great doctors and surgeons have been asked by the Home Office to help in the task of creating an organization to protect the civil population from poison gas attacks.

A series of conferences has recently been held in London between these medical experts, Home Office officials, representatives of the War Office and others.

At these meetings the protection of civilians from hostile gas bombing by means of respirators was discussed.

The Home Office so far has not yet made any decision as to whether it will encourage the purchase of gas masks by civilians.

The protection of the civil population from air attacks is not, of course, the only subject which government officials are considering.

Plans are being drawn up for the removal of various national "nerve centres" from London in case of an emergency.

Whitehall is now considered too "vulnerable" for the Admiralty, War Office or Air Ministry when "the next war" occurs.

Snowball Bridge Rolls Up Charity Funds

Berlin.—"Snowball Bridge" for charity has become all the rage in Berlin.

To raise funds for the Nazi winter relief work, Baroness Von Ueurath wife of the German Minister of Foreign Affairs, invited 700 guests, including the whole diplomatic corps, to a bridge party, each guest paying one mark (about 25 cents) into the fund.

Each guest moreover undertook to give another bridge party, large or small, on the same terms; the guests at these to keep up the chain. Thus the Nazi campaign conducted under the slogan "no German shall suffer hunger or cold this is winter" promises to be a success.

Ontario to Preserve Early Architecture

Toronto.—The recording of early buildings and lands, and the preservation of the early architecture of the province are the aims of the recently inaugurated Architectural Conservancy of Ontario. The Lieutenant Governor was named honorary president and Mr. H. S. Southam president.

Many buildings erected early in the history of Ontario have a high degree of architectural merit, said Mr. Southam. Most of them were built by the United Empire Loyalists, and many were even luxurious. The association proposes to try and have the old Fort Henry at Kingston restored, the work to be done as an unemployment relief project.

Latest 1933 Diseases Were Suffered by Ancients

St. Louis.—There are "very few diseases which men have today that the ancient men did not have," Dr. Howard A. McCordock of the Washington University School of Medicine told the members of the St. Louis Medical Society.

"From time to time we run across a disease that is supposed to be a new malady," Dr. McCordock said. "We are prone to believe that many degenerative diseases are the result of the artificial life of the present day. A study of mummies, however, quickly convinces us that there are very few chronic diseases that ancient man did not have.

"Mummies of ancient Egypt show chronic arthritis, decayed teeth, tuberculosis and other maladies.

"There is the case of the Egyptian woman with coal dust in her lungs."

Investigations are in progress by the Dominion Department of Agriculture to learn the most efficient and least inexpensive methods of seeding and harvesting crops.

An Old Portuguese Custom

I have just glanced at an illustrated guide book which I picked up in Libson and find this very interesting description:

"Situated on extreme west of Europe, Portugal is a small but a fine country, having an explendid climate due to its mildness, either in Spring, Autumn of Winter; it was specially destined for this by nature which endowed it with some of the finest and most charming regions of the world."

In the foreword, the book says:

"May this Guide become a valuable cicerone to innumerous strangers who are always received with all kindness by Portugal and its good people."

I believe that I was the first tour organizer to ever take a party into Portugal from America—it was a notable experience and I assure you that the two statements quoted are true in every detail (the quaint spelling of English words only adds to the piquancy) and we found beauty and kindness everywhere.

The first place of importace visited was Vianna do Castello, at the northern extremity of the oblong piece jutting into the map of Spain—the old country of Portugal. Coming south on the coast-line railway we reached Oporto, next in importance to Libson, the capital. I have already explained the situation of this place in another article.

Our party was a curiosity; tourists were rarely encountered and the people were certainly not camera-shy. At least, I only encountered one exception. I was walking down a steep street towards the docks one afternoon, when I saw a brightly dressed peasant woman—red kerchief on her head, large gold rings in her ears and an orange and red scarf on her shoulders—carrying a tray full of live owls on her arm. I wanted a picture of her and tried to entice her into the sunshine, but she hugged the shadows and I was forced to desist. But, I thought, "she may be around when I am returning." I had just gone on a few yards when I heard some loud words behind me and, glancing around, I saw a policeman loudly berating her for her lack of courtesy to a stranger. He called me back, made her stand in the centre of the road, and I thus succeeded in getting a fine picture of both of them.

Oporto is a mixture of the modern and the primitive; yokes of the long horned, cream coloured oxen, drawing solid wheeled carts along the cobbled streets; motor cars dashing at high speed along the narrow thoroughfares, in utter disregard of pedestrians; bare-footed peasant women balancing trays and baskets on their heads. I saw one woman carrying a sofa and two chairs in this manner; tram cars; soldiers on horseback; donkeys with side panniers filled with merchandise; street corner lemonade booths; hucksters; fish-women jostling their fashionably dressed sisters. Not a cosmopolitan city exactly, although vessels from many ports were in the harbour.

The merchants of Oporto dress their shops at closing time in a manner I had never seen elsewhere. The druggist will have the floor of his store arranged in such a way as to display his commodities to the best advantage. Starting at the back of the store, the articles are carefully placed until, when the proprietor is ready to close and lock the door, the whole floor space is as attractive as a display window. Likewise shoe merchants, clothing stores, hardware dealers and other lines of retail trade follow this system and, the lights of the store being left lighted, the effect is unique and effective.

Concerts, bull fights (when held in the evening), the theatre and other forms of amusement commence about 10.30 or 11 o'clock. It would be an almost unheard-of thing to start an entertainment say, at 8 o'clock. One night a companion and I were strolling around when, coming into a large square, we saw a building to which ladies and gentlement in evening dress were thronging. I remarked to my associate, "I woder what is going on here," when to my surprise a voice from the curb answered me in English, "This is St. John's Theatre, sir." I went in the direction of the voice and came to where a young man was standing. I thanked him and enquired as to the occasion for the gathering. He told me that it was a fete in honor of St. Anthony and on behalf of the hospitals; that all the elite of Oporto would be present and that the entertainment would be under the patronage of the Bishop. He said, "You are Canadians" This remark surprised me and I answered, "You are pretty quick; why did you not take us to be Americans?" He said, "Oh, I know differently; you see, I was in Toronto two years ago." Imagine this in Oporto! On further enquiry I learned that he had been a chauffeur in New York for a Mr. O'Neill, who made frequent visits to Toronto and has a summer place not far from North Bay. The chauffeur had returned to Portugal and was now in the service of the Bishop of Oporto.

After a little conversation, our new friend asked us whether we would like to see the theatre; he would enquire from his cousin, who was secretary to the Bishop. We gladly accepted his offer and were escorted to the foyer of the theatre, where he left us, returning in a few moments with a tall handsome priest dressed in a long black cassock, who, gravely but courteously, welcomed us to Oporto and asked if he could serve us. On my remark as to his very excellent English he laughed and said, "Well, I should be able to speak good English. I lived in Fall River, Massachusetts, for 17 years." He asked us if we would like to see the performance, and when I demurred, saying that we were not dressed for the occasion, he waived the objection aside and made arrangement with the manager of the house for our accommodation in front seats in the dress circle.

It was a gala night, tiers of boxes filled with fashionably dressed people, an orchestra playing in the pit and, when the curtain went up the centre of the stage, a group of dignitaries, civil, military and religious, with the Bishop in a crimson habit occupying the centre position as chairman.

The entertainment proceeded; Portuguese music and folk dancing by beautiful girls in every costume of the country. In addition to these were speeches. The first speaker was a very dignified gentleman—a prominent doctor—who spoke at length on the purpose to which the evening was devoted. Judging from the interest and applause he was an excellent speaker. On the table in front of him was a white handkerchief; in the midst of his impassioned oratory he would lift this handkerchief from the table, clear his throat and, without putting it near his mouth, spit into it. The action and the noise that accompanied it shocked and startled me; I looked around, nobody seemed to register any objection. I looked at my companion and we lauged quietly. A doctor, evidently a man of importance and breeding, to do a thing like that. Apparently it was the custom.

A day or so later I was having tea in the restaurant car of the train travelling to Lisbon. My companion was an Englishman who had lived in Portugal for years. I told him of the spitting episode and expressed my surprise, but he only laughed and said, "Oh, that is nothing, every morning we hear these people hawking and cleaning their throats and we English remark, "Listen to the Portuguese National Anthem."

Next week's "impression" will take you to Southern Italy—not far from Naples.

Are you looking for something different in the way of entertainment for your church, society, club or institute?

Light's Speed

Pasadena, Calif.—The speed of light is placed at 299,774 milometres, or 186,271 miles per second, in a new estimate made here. Dr. Walter S. Adams, Director of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson Observatory, said, in announcing the new figure, that it was not absolute, but that the final computation which will be completed in about six months, would not vary much more than two kilometres from it.

Royal Bank Annual Statement Shows Strong Liquid Position

Liquid Assets At $362,471,645 Are Equal To 55.76 Per Cent. Of Liabilities To The Public—Total Assets At End of Year Were $729,260,476 — Gratifying Increase Of Over $18,000,000 In Canadian Savings And In Demand Deposits — Many Businesses Evidently Showing Large Turnover.

The Annual Statement of The Royal Bank of Canada covering the fiscal year which ended November 30th last should afford satisfaction to the public, as well as to shareholders. The statement discloses a very strong position, with an increase in liquid assets to a total of $362,471,645, equal to 55.76% of liabilities to the public. It is understood that a particularly interesting feature of the year was an increase in Canadian Savings and Demand Deposits. A lower volume of commercial loans and increase in the portfolio of Government bonds is in line with expectations in view of the reduced demand for banking accommodation. The necessity for investing larger amounts in Government bonds is one of the causes contributing to a reduction in earnings, but after making full allowance for all bad and doubtful debts and providing for cost of management, profits were amply sufficient to cover the payment of dividends and the usual appropriations, leaving $216,650 as a further contribution to profit and loss account. The unsettled state from which business is now emerging, has emphasized the usefulness of strong inner reserves. The directors' recognition of this fact is evidenced by a transfer of $15,000,000 from Reserve Fund to reimburse the inner reserves of the bank, and to provide reserves which they consider adequate for future contingencies. This action is in line with adjustments which have been made by many of the leading and most powerful banks in all parts of the world, and will be regarded as a prudent and constructive move. The published Reserve Fund is maintained at the substantial figure of $20,000,000 and $1,383,604 is carried forward to the credit of profit and loss account.

Strong Liquid Position.

Total assets shown by the Statement for the fiscal year which ended November 30th last are $729,260,476; liquid assets of $362,471,645 aggregate 55.76% of liabilities to the public; cash and bank balances total $157,699,215, equal to 24.26% of public liabilities.

The total of $106,850,615 invested in Dominion and Provincial Government securities represents an increase of $17,401,771 compared with the previous year. A small decrease is shown in Canadian municipal securities and British Foreign and Colonial public securities.

While certain lines of business are less active than a year ago, other industries have experienced a keen demand for their products in recent months, with the result that inventories have been brought down to abnormally low figures. Both these factors have contributed to reduce the need for banking accommodation, and this is reflected in a decrease of $44,442,954 in loans and discounts. Commercial loans now stand at $316,119,392 against $360,562,286. Call loans in Canada and abroad were reduced by $3,598,571 during the twelve months' period.

Canadian Deposits Increase

A feature of the Bank's year was an increase of $18,610,694 in Canadian demand and savings deposits. As Canadian demand deposits represent in the main the working balances of business and farming customers, the substantial upward move in these figures is of particular interest as an indication of increased commercial and industrial activity.

Shareholders will be interested in seeing that despite the lower level of interest rates which particularly affected the return from liquid assets maintained at reserve centres, profits for the year were $3,901,649. This amount fully covered dividend requirements of $2,975,000, contribution to Officers' Pension Fund, $200,000; appropriation for bank premises, $200,000; reserve for Dominion Government taxes, $310,000, and left $216,650 to be added to profit and loss account, making a total of $1,383,604 to be carried forward to the next fiscal year.

The Annual General Meeting of the shareholders will be held at the Head Office of the Bank in Montreal on Thursday, January 11th.

Pretty Princess Has Birthday

Youngest Yaughter of Italy's Royal Family is Vivacious, Beautiful and Accomplished

Rome. — Princess Maria, pretty youngest daughter of the reigning house of Italy, celebrated her 19th birthday recently in a season marking her first round of participation in public affairs.

The young Princess was deluged with good wishes and presents as she passed the day with her parents, King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena.

Late this fall Princess Maria began to assume the responsibilities of the only remaining daughter of the King residing in Rome. She appeared at several public ceremonies. Previously her appearances at the opera, benefits and other functions were under the chaperonage of the Queen or of elder married sisters.

Reports of Princess Maria imminent engagement have been recurrent this year as in the past. Her name has been linked most persistently with that of Archduke Otto, pretender to the throne of Hungary; and the Infante Juan son of former King Alfonso of Spain and heir-pretender to the Spanish throne.

The Princess is blithe and vivacious in temperament, and beautiful in the classic Italian brunette way. She dances well, swims and skiis, and follows the Italian tradition in her fondness for music.

Maria's older sisters are Princess Mafalda, wife of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's warm adherent, Prince Philip of Hesse; Queen Joanna of Bulgaria; and Princess Yolanda, wife of Count Calvi Di Bergolo of Turin.

Her brother, Umberto, Prince of Piedmont and heir to the throne, lives in the Royal Palace at Naples, where he is in charge of the army corps.

Maintain Cheese Volume

There is a real danger to the Canadian export cheese trade in permitting the volume of cheese to decline further. Some dealers in the United Kingdom even now question the advisability of dealing in Canadian cheese in view of the limited quantity available, and the relatively short time during which they are available. —Dominion Dairy Commissioner.

Genius may be swifter than perseverence, but the latter wins in the long run.

SPORTS REVIEW

St. Clair McCabe, Staff-writer, Dominion Sports Illustrated

According to press despatches, the Boston-Leaf hockey game the other night was just an ordinary match. It was altogether a different brand of hockey than that which was played when these two teams clashed several weeks ago. There was no ill-feeling among the players nor was the crowd antagonistic. The attendance was the smallest of the year, being only three thousand, while the last time the teams met it was the largest.

The Canadian tennis championship was again won by an invader from the United States. John Munroe, of San Francisco, defeated Walter Martin of Toronto in five sets at Vancouver. Martin was the only Canadian to show impressive form at the Dominion meet.

Jack Lovelock, of Oxford, who represented New Zealand in the 1932 Olympic Games, and set a world record for the mile of 4.07 at Princeton in 1933, may never run again owing to an unsuccessful operation on the cartilage of the knee.

It will be recalled that he ran at Hamilton in the Hamilton O. C. Oxford-Cambridge meet, winning the mile. England depends a great deal on his services for the 1934 British Empire Games.

Canadian sailing dinghies, the superiority of which was proven in three matches between England and Canada last summer, are achieving world-wide popularity. The races, which were carried on in days of almost flat calm and on days of very rough weather, showed the general seaworthiness of the little lap-streak vessel, which was first constructed in and around Toronto. Sailors from Britain and the U.S.A. are now placing orders with local builders.

CAST OFF UGLY FAT

Woman Loses 28 lbs. in 3 Months

"Three months ago," a woman writes, "I was persuaded to try Kruschen Salts to reduce my weight, which was 222 lbs. I had tried other things, but all to no avail. Now I know that Kruschen Salts are different. In three weeks I lost 5 lbs., and I felt five years younger. I really must say I feel a different woman. I have now lost 28 lbs. to date."—(Mrs.) S. G. B.

If you are overweight take one half-teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning. There will be no rapid or alarming loss of weight, but just a steady decrease of that flabby fat which is as unhealthy as it is unsightly. Kruschen is a scientific blend of six mineral salts found in the waters of those European spas that have been used by generations of overstout people to reduce weight.

OFFICIAL CROP REPORT.

The dry bean acreage this year is placed at 52,300 acres, with an average of 14.9 bushels per acre, giving an estimated total production of 779,300 bushels against a five-year average production of 1,027,000 bushels. The bean crop was very spotty and the yield extremely variable. The price being received by growers is considerably more than last year and in spite of a much smaller crop, financial returns will be larger than last year.

Sugar beets are yielding better than weather conditions early in the season indicated. The acreage shows some reduction from last year, being 33,300 in 1932 and 31,900 this year. Production in 1932 was estimated at 333,000 tons and in 1933 at 319,000 tons, with an acreage yield of 10 tons per acre both years. The average sugar content approximates 17 per cent. this year, compared with 14.7 per cent. last year, and as a result the yield of sugar will be greater than in 1932, although the total tonnage of beets is less.

While the move of the Imperial Oil Co. in placing on the market today a "below-cost" gasoline is intended to meet certain competitive conditions—and incidentally to provide Ontario users with gas at from three to five cents a gallon below the previous figure for standard makes—it is not the beginning of a "price war". Officials of the company had no comment to make regarding the nature of this competition, except that a gasoline had been marketed for some time past at a price which made this "below-cost" policy necessary as a protection not only to the company and employees, but also to hundreds of Imperial dealers with heavy and permanent investments in the form of expensive filling stations and other equipment.

THANKS

The Morrisburg "Tigers" and their Executive wish to express their appreciation to the fans for their splendid turnout at Wednesday's game at the local arena.

The Cornwall "Canadiens" are a fast team, and the fans, surely, were not disappointed in the brand of hockey exhibited.

Follow the team if at all possible—it's only eight miles away—it helps. You've seen the "Tigers" in action, and when they can hold the "Canadiens" as they have, what will they do with the rest?

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating"—follow the boys.

Again, we sincerely thank the fans and appeal to you to "give us a helping hand".
