Joseph Fisher, Jas. E. Beckstead, A. F. Dey, Frean Hummel, Wm. Mullen, Elgar Lasalle.

Taft Will Have 309.

New York, November 4.—Practically complete returns received up to a late hour to-night indicate that Wm. H. Taft, of Ohio, as president elect, will have a vote of 309 in the Electoral College. This is within sixteen votes of the forecast made by National Chairman Hitchcock, and 67 more than a majority out of the total electoral vote of 482.

Shot a Swordfish.

W. Wilmot, of Glenburnie, north of Kingston, a sixteen-year-old lad, was at the river watering his horses when he noticed a strange fish in the river. He promptly ran to his house, and obtaining a shot gun, returned with all possible haste to the river. The fish was still near the shore, and young Wilmot lost no time in shooting it. When recovered it proved to be a swordfish, four feet six inches in length, and with a sword fourteen inches long. It has been preserved, and will be stuffed. The puzzle is how it got up into fresh water so far.

David Hobbs, at one time a customs official for the C.P. R., who was sent to penitentiary for seven years for making false entries and defrauding the Government out of thousands of dollars, and who was recently released on ticket-of-leave, was run over by a C.P.R. train Saturday night at Montreal, and has since died at the Western Hospital.

D. E. Wilson Again Heard From.

D. E. Wilson, who was arrested at Brockton, Mass., by the American authorities last week, and taken to Cornwall by Provincial Detective H. Reburn, was before Police Magistrate Davis Monday and pleaded guilty to six charges of breaking into stores and stealing therefrom in the village of Chesterville, where for three or four months Wilson was employed in the branch of the Molsons Bank.

During the summer there were many petty burglaries in the village, but no one suspected the gentlemanly bank clerk till late in September when another bank clerk discovered that Wilson's trunk was full of pieces of cloth and a lot of gent's furnishings. When confronted by this evidence and the men he had robbed, Wilson threw up his hands and having restored the goods was allowed to leave town.

He went to Brockton Mass., but returned quietly on the night of Oct. 18, and broke into two stores, carrying off goods and some cash. He might never have been suspected had he not been seen and recognized getting on a train at Finch by C. R. Kavanagh manager of the Ottawa Bank of this place.

His reappearance coincident with the burglaries aroused suspicion and led to his arrest. He was committed for trial and will come before Judge O'Reilly some day this week.

Meet In Pembroke.

The Montreal Methodist conference will meet next June in Pembroke. At the last conference held six months ago in Quebec there was no invitation received and so the selection of the next place of meeting was left to the special conference committee of which Rev. J. E. Mavety, pastor of Bell Street Methodist church, Ottawa, is a member as chairman of the Ottawa district. The committee met in Montreal, when an invitation from Pembroke for 1909 was received and promptly accepted. Rev. F G. Lett, formerly of Ottawa, is pastor of the church in which the conference will be held.

Murray—Lavis.

A very quiet marriage ceremony took place at the Methodist parsonage, Morrisburg, yesterday, when Miss Emma Lavis, a popular young lady of this town and daughter of the late W. I. Lavis, was united in holy wedlock to Mr. Allan Joseph Murray, of Moncton, N. B. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Howitt at 11 o'clock, and the happy couple took their departure for Moncton on the afternoon train. The groom was formerly foreman in the foundry here, but recently returned to his native province.

The host of friends of the bride will regret her departure from their midst, but wish her long life and prosperity in her new home in the Maritime Province.—Leader.

Cheese Factory Burned.

The 'Royal' cheese factory at Summertown was destroyed by fire Thursday morning about 10 50 o'clock. Just how the fire started is a mystery. It is thought, however, that a coal dropped from the furnace and set fire to the floor. The building and the contents, including cheese were destroyed. The building, which was owned by H. A. McLaren, was insured in the Metropolitan. The stock of cheese, some 18 or 20 boxes was insured in the Royal.

Life Will be Shortened.

Those who fail to observe the fundamental rules of health, especially those who neglect constipation,—will have short lives. Costiveness ruins health, destroy's vitality, weakens the blood, causes dyspepsia, nervousness and insomnia. Why not use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and be cured. Take one or two pills before retiring and you'r well next morning. No gripe or pain, no headache and nausea when you use Dr. Hamilton's Pills,—they cure scientifically. Positively the best laxative known, 25c. at all dealers.

Veteran Voter in Russell County.

The unusual interest taken in the recent federal election is resulting in tales of very old voters casting their ballots. Russell county had a veteran who, after refraining from exercising his franchise since he became blind twelve years ago, was driven to the poll in Clarence township to vote for his compatriot, the Liberal candidate, Hon. Charles Murphy. This is Mr. James Nolan, aged ninety-five years, but hale and hearty yet with the exception that his sight is gone. He settled in Russell County in 1847, and has exercised the franchise about as long as any resident there.

An Old Resident Dead.

One of the oldest and most widely respected residents of the Ottawa Valley passed away on Oct. 24 in the person of Mr. John Bayne was one of a large family that came to Bytown (now Ottawa,) in 1827, he being at that time but six months old. His native place was Perth Scotland, and his father was the late George Bayne, a member of the ancient Bayne family of Tulloch, and a relative of the famous Rev. Dr. John Bayne of Galt, Ont. Mr. Payne was engaged in agricultural pursuits in Nepean Township, near Ottawa, until about fifteen years ago, when he retired to Kemptville, living quietly and happily, surrounded by members of his family and hosts of friends attached to him by reason of his strong character, his cheerful and lovable disposition, and his unaffected sincerity. Mr. Bayne was a member of the Presbyterian Church, a life long Liberal, and a constant reader of the 'Witness' from its first issue. There remains to mourn him his widow (Margaret Dunlop, of Ayr. Scotland), four sons and three daughters The sons are Messrs. D. M. Bayne, of Pembroke. The late Jas. R. Bayne, of Montreal, was also a son. The daughters are Mrs. W. Upton and Mrs. J. H. Moffat, of Ottawa, and Miss Elizabeth, at home. A young daughter (Carrie) died some years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Bayne had but recently celebrated their golden wedding, and there seemed to be yet many years. He enjoyed perfect health through all his eighty years, but he was attacked with pneumonia a week before his death, and never rallied. Thus there passed another veteran. His memory is fragrant. He rests from his labors and his works follow him.

Toronto will put fire escapes on its city hall.

Fire At Pembroke.

Over half of the business section of Pembroke was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is estimated at $500,000, Insurance $240,000.

A Peculiar Fatality.

Cyril Gallipeau, of Smith's Falls died at the hospital there on Saturday, the result of a mysterious accident which he met with on Tuesday. With his brother Elisha he was engaged in cutting wood on James Maitlands farm. They had partaken of their dinner in the woods and had sat down on a log to light their pipes. A few moments later both were unconscious. About three o'clock Elisha recovered and saw his brother sitting on a log some distance away, but neither could tell what happened. They called for help and a short time later were brought to town. They became delirious and from that Cyril never rallied. His brother has almost recovered but is suffering from several bruises on the body. It is supposed that a heavy branch was blown from the tree near where the men were sitting and struck them both at once, the inquiry inflicted on Cyril Gallipeau proving fatal.

HAYS SAYS THREE YEARS

Time of the Completion of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

A despatch from Montreal says: In an interview on Friday night, Mr. Chas. M. Hays, who has just returned from a trip over the G. T. P., said that he did not expect any conditions would arise to prevent the G. T. P. being finished by December, 1911. He stated that trains would be running from Port Arthur to Edmonton next spring. Another hundred miles will shortly be given out east of the present 110 miles on the coast section and 200 miles more west of Wolf Creek, leaving only 400 miles of a gap yet to be contracted for.

Speaking of Prince Rupert, Mr. Hays said he had just arranged with the British Columbia Government to spend $200,000 at that place. Mr. Hays denied any possible friction between the Grand Trunk and the G. T. P. He said the Grand Trunk could not back out of their agreement with the G.T.P. and would not if they could. Speaking of branch lines, he said the G.T.P. would be built to both Vancouver in the west and to Montreal in the east, as it was impossible to ignore them in any scheme of railroad building.

LAD SHOT BY COMPANION.

The Latter Tripped and Rifle was Discharged.

A despatch from Guelph says: An accident occurred at 3.30 on Friday afternoon, a short distance from the city, which resulted in the almost instant death of James Conolly, aged 18, an employe of Taylor-Forbes Co. The young man, with two younger companions, were out for an afternoon's shooting and when near Trainor's Cut, the scene of several railroad accidents, they decided to take a short cut. Connolly went up the embankment and sat down, and one of the boys, named Scarlett, went towards him, but in doing so tripped. In falling the rifle was discharged and the 22-bullet lodged in Conolly's head, going in just over the right eye. One of the boys ran for help to a nearby farmer, but before anyone else could reach him Conolly was dead. Conolly's parents recently retired from farming to live in Guelph.

GIRL'S PITIFUL DEATH.

Afraid of Being Sent Away, She Goes to the Fields to Die.

A despatch from Belleville says: A girl named Edith Nicholls, who had been brought to this country by a girls' home, has been living near Madoc with a farmer named Willard Rupert and his family. The family told the girl they were going to send her back to the home, and she became despondent. She left the house and was not seen again till, a few days later, her dead body was found in one of the fields. The jury brought in a verdict of death from exposure. No blame was attached to anybody.

HON. MR. GREENWAY DEAD.

Appointed to Railway Commission Six Weeks Ago.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Hon. Thomas Greenway, ex-Premier of Manitoba, and member for Lisgar in the last House, died on Friday morning at the Windsor Hotel here. Hon. Mr. Greenway six weeks ago was appointed a railway commissioner for Canada. He arrived at Ottawa on Oct. 9, but never sat on the board, a severe attack of asthma confining him to his room since then. Asthma and heart trouble led to his final collapse on Friday morning. His remains were sent West for interment in Crystal City, Manitoba.

MAIL BAGS AND DRIVER GONE

Mysterious Disappearance in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: Mail bags containing some $1,500 have disappeared. Driver Lecavalier is also missing. He was employed by W. Heelan, the mail contractor, driving a mail wagon from the post-office to the railway stations. On Friday night he was at work as usual, but he has disappeared. The mail wagon was found at a street corner.

DEER TIES UP "800" MILL.

Frightened Doe Leaped Into the Steel Rollers.

A despatch from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., says: A frightened deer dashed into the rolling mill at the plant of the Algoma Steel Company on Monday and leaped into the rolls, which were turning out steel rails. As a result 1,000 men were idle several hours. A buck and a doe emerged from the river near the plant and wandered about the yards. When a yard engine came steaming by, the buck deserted his companion and plunged into the river again, but the doe, trembling with fear, dashed in the direction of the mill. Rushing along the tracks and leaping over the heads of the startled workmen, she landed on the steaming rolls and was so badly injured that she had to be killed. The doe was one of the finest specimens ever seen in the north country.

BY FIRE AND WATER.

George Corley Meets Shocking Death Near Winnipeg.

A despatch from Winnipeg says: George Corley, employed as stationary engineer on the National Transcontinental work east of here, met a horrible death on Friday morning. He was at work in the water tank when his clothes caught fire from gasoline, and he evidently jumped into the water in an effort to extinguish the flames, and was drowned.

STEAMER TELEGRAM BURNED.

Crew of the Vessel Take to Boats and Land Safely.

A despatch from Owen Sound says: The steamer Telegram, a small ship, about 125 feet long, engaged principally in fishing traffic on Georgian Bay and Lake Huron, caught fire and burned to the water's edge, one mile off Rattle Snake Harbor, on Monday. The crew, numbering 12 men, and one passenger, took to the boats and were safely landed.

FATAL ENDING TO DUCK HUNT

Blenheim Man Drowned by Upsetting of Boat.

A despatch from Chatham says: Sidney Burke, of Blenheim, was drowned at Erieau at noon on Monday. Mr. Burke, with a party from Blenheim, went to the Eau to enjoy a day's duck shooting. He got separated from his companions and was seated in a small rowboat, when a gust of wind upset it. The Eau was very rough and he was unable to hang on to the boat. He was not noticed by his companions until it was too late.

Two Hamilton hotelmen were fined $60 each for selling liquor on election day. Those who bought were fined $10 each.

Car Shops Idle Since Spring Will Open Again.

A despatch from Johnstown, Pa., says: The car shops of the Cambria Steel Co., which have been idle since last Spring, it is announced, on Thursday resumed work with a full complement of 1,500 men. Orders from the Harriman lines, it is said, are sufficient to run the plant until the first of the year at least.

ITALIAN MURDERS FRIEND

The Men Had Been Playing a Game in Railway Yards.

A despatch from Ingersoll, Ont., says: A quarrel between two Italian navvies in the employ of the C. P. R. led to murder on Sunday afternoon. During the excitement which followed the crime the murderer made his escape. The tragedy occurred shortly after four o'clock, in the C. P. R. yards, where a number of Italians had assembled, and were amusing themselves by playing some game, similar to "duck on the rock," for money. The victim of the tragedy is Pardy Constantine, a married man, 28 years old, who had intended leaving in the course of a week to join his family in Italy. It is alleged that M. Ponzi was his assailant, and Ponzi's flight is taken as evidence of his guilt.

The other Italians have shown little or no disposition to aid the police, the bulk of the information obtained coming from a twin brother of the murdered man, and three local boys who witnessed the killing. Constantine was struck over the left temple with a huge stone, and he dropped in his tracks, dying before a doctor arrived. As soon as Constantine fell Ponzi rushed to the car he had been occupying, snatched his coat, and made his escape. Ponzi is described as being 28 or 30 years of age, 5 feet 11 inches in height, and wearing a dark brown or black coat, blue overalls, faded, and a soft felt hat.

KING'S MESSAGE TO INDIA.

His Majesty Promises Extension of Self-Government.

A despatch from London says: On the occasion of the 50th anniversary of Great Britain's control of the direct government of India, Queen Victoria having been proclaimed empress throughout India on Nov. 1, 1858, King Edward Sunday issued a long message to the princes and people of India, which the viceroy, the Earl of Minto, read at the durbar at Jodhpur on Monday. The message dwells upon the peaceful progress of the empire under a beneficent administration, pays warm tribute to the loyalty of the Indian subjects and troops, announces amnesty for prisoners and a further gradual extension of the principle of representative institutions in the direction of equality in citizenship, and a greater share by the Indians in legislation and the government.

FELL FROM BRIDGE.

Terrible Fate of Herbert Knight, a Brantford Youth.

A despatch from Brantford says: Herbert Knight, aged fifteen, son of John Knight, Eagle avenue, was killed on Wednesday morning by falling from a T., H. & B. Railway bridge over the Grand River. The youth was proceeding to the Brantford Screw Works, where he was employed, and in going over the bridge accidentally tripped over the rail in stepping to one side and fell over the structure. He struck on the stone abutment ten feet below, and then fell to the river twenty-five feet lower. The water was very shallow, and he was dashed to death on the rock bottom, his skull being fractured and neck broken. There will be no inquest.

ASSAULTED A TEACHER.

Mr. Johnston, of Guelph, Struck by Pupil's Brother.

A despatch from Guelph says: As the result of a note regarding the attendance of his daughter, Dan Thompson and his son, William, on Thursday afternoon went to St. George's ward school and after the teacher, Mr. Johnston, had been summoned from the room, a scuffle commenced and the master was struck heavily in the face by young Thompson. An attack upon a teacher in this way is a serious offence and Thompson will have to face the Magistrate.

ONEIDA FARMER'S LOSS.

Mr. Patrick Fagan's Barns Burned in Oneida.

A despatch from Cayuga says: The barns and outbuildings of Patrick Fagan, a farmer in the township of Oneida, were destroyed by fire on Wednesday morning. Everything was lost, but no horses or cattle had been stabled. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin, and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of Bruce Lonsdale, who has been recently employed by Mr. Fagan, but it is said they had some quarrel and Lonsdale left. It is said that he has been recently seen in the neighborhood. Lonsdale is a young man, 23 years of age, one eye gone, height about 5 feet 7 inches and one low shoulder.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGED.

Fourteen-year-old Boy Shot a Companion Accidentally.

A despatch from Fredericton, N. B., says: A fourteen-year-old boy named Chester Urquhart of Covered Bridge, parish of Stanley, is in jail here, charged with causing the death of another boy named Geo. Clary at that place on Oct. 16. The two boys were out shooting together and the rifle which Urquhart was carrying was discharged, the bullet striking Clary in the neck, inflicting a wound, from the effects of which he died in twenty minutes. Coroner Wainwright of Stanley held an inquest, and the jury after hearing the evidence declared that Clary's death was due to culpable negligence in the part of Urquhart. Urquhart claims that the shooting was accidental.

102 ACCIDENTS FATAL.

154 Work People Seriously Injured During September.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Industrial accidents occurring to 256 individual work people in Canada during the month of September, 1908, were reported to the Department of Labor. Of these 102 were fatal, and 154 resulted in serious injuries. In addition, two fatal accidents were reported as having taken place prior to the beginning of the month, information not having been received by the department before September, 1908, was 13 less than in the previous month, and 6 more than in October, 1907.

IMMIGRANTS DEPORTED.

Government Careful About Admitting People Now.

A despatch from Ottawa says: During the first nine months of this year the immigration department has deported 1,011 immigrants as being undesirable citizens. During the same period 1,266 people have been refused entry from the United States. These figures indicate the close supervision now being exercised by the department over the new arrivals in the country, and it is said that no country has ever received a better class of immigrants than the 120,000 who settled in Canada this year. Immigration for the year has now practically stopped.

THREE MEN WERE RUN DOWN

Passing Freight Train Prevented Them Hearing Electric Car Coming Behind.

A despatch from Windsor says: Three lives were blotted out in an instant when one of the big suburban cars on the W. E. & L. S. Electric Railway ran down three men walking on the tracks near Pelton station shortly before midnight on Friday. The dead are: Walter Gilhula, James Battersby and Francis Battersby. The night was dark and the noise of an approaching car was drowned out by the heavy freight train passing on the Michigan Central tracks close by.

The three men had been attending a Hallowe'en dance given by William C. Donaldson. James Battersby was keeper of a tower at the point where the Pere Marquette Railroad tracks and the Michigan Central intersect, and was trying to reach his tower in time to let down the gates for an approaching train, the rumble of which drowned the noise of the electric train coming behind the men, and without knowing that the car was bearing down on them the two Battersbys and Gilhula were struck.

The motorman discerned the men ahead for about forty yards before they were struck. He rang his gong and sounded the pneumatic whistle in the usual manner, but the signals apparently were unheard and in a moment the swiftly moving car had overtaken the little party and ground out their lives beneath the wheels. The head of Gilhula was severed from the body. No blame is attached to the crew of the suburban car. The three victims of the accident were all well-known young men residing in Sandwich West. The Battersby boys were cousins. All were unmarried.

TYPHOID FEVER APPALLING

Health Department Reports 100 Cases in Kenora Hospital.

A despatch from Toronto says: Outbreaks of typhoid are once more reported from the lumber camps, where the lack of sanitary facilities and the lack of protection of water supplies, makes the disease almost inevitable.

Dr. Bell of the provincial health department reports 100 cases in Kenora hospitals, and the contractors' hospitals in connection with railway construction camps are filled up. He describes the conditions as appalling in the Rainy River District, though there are nine hospitals in 200 miles with doctors and nurses.

The men, generally foreigners, refuse to go to hospital when taken sick, and after sleeping out in an attempt to get to civilization, usually become hopeless cases.

The carelessness about the protection of water supply from sewage and poisonous garbage Dr. Bell considers the main cause of the prevalence of the disease.

A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

The Trouble Yields to the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Ask any doctor and he will tell you that rheumatism is rooted in the blood; that nothing can cure it that does not reach the blood. It is sheer waste of money and time to try to cure rheumatism with liniments and lotions that only go skin deep. You can speedily cure rheumatism with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, drive out the poisonous acid and loosen the stiffened, aching joints. Among the thousands of rheumatic sufferers cured by Dr. Williams, Pink Pills is Mr. W. A. Taylor, Newcastle, N. B., who says:—For a number of years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism which was seated in my shoulders and knee joints. I tried liniments and blistering, but with no effect. In fact the trouble was getting worse, and my knee joints grew so stiff that they would snap if I stooped, and I could scarcely straighten up. Altogether I was a terrible sufferer, and nothing I did or took gave me any relief until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took the Pills steadily for a couple of months and every vestige of the trouble disappeared. That was two years ago, and as I have had no return of the trouble I feel safe in assuming that the cure is permanent."

Nine-tenths of the common ailments that afflict humanity are due to bad blood, and as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood, that is the reason they cure so many different troubles, such as anaemia, indigestion, rheumatism, eczema, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, paralysis and the ailments of girlhood and womanhood with all their distressing headaches, backaches and irregularities. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SPIRIT OF PHOTOGRAPHS.

Rector of Stockton, Warwickshire, Exhibits Them.

Archdeacon Colley, rector of Stockton, Warwickshire, England, at the close of a sermon on spiritualism at Manchester the other night exhibited a series of what he called spirit photographs.

One of them taken in March last outside his residence, showed the archdeacon's mother, who died fifty years ago, and his father, who died in 1891, aged 81. The mother was never photographed during life, but her likeness had been recognized by hundreds in Leamington.

In the second photograph, taken half a minute afterward, the father and mother had changed places, and the archdeacon deduces from this a double parental blessing on what he calls his anti-Sadducee work.

"Seventeen years in the higher life," said the archdeacon, "appear to work [illegible] making my father in the spirit photograph look somewhat younger than [illegible] negative I took of him three years before he departed this life."

Another print shown looked, as the archdeacon said, like a psychic fog, but in the midst of the black blotch could be clearly deciphered some archaic Greek characters, and around them in ten concentric lines some microscopical writing which, the archdeacon said, contained a message from a friend who had been dead for twenty-five years. The Greek characters, interpreted recently by Sir Oliver Lodge, were a quotation from St. Luke, chapter 17, 4th and 5th verses, but seven words were missing.

"This photograph, or rather, psychograph, was taken," said the archdeacon, "without a camera. I went to a friend's house and took out three plates and put them into envelopes. I initialed them, sealed them, and retained possession of them in my hands, and no soul touched them. I took one plate between the palms of my hands, my friend clasped my hands and a lady placed her hands above and below his. My friend then went into a trance. In a short time he said: 'They are writing.'"

ALBATROSS TOOK NEWS

TOLD OF THE SERIOUS PLIGHT OF SOME CASTAWAYS.

Sending of Birds by Shipwrecked Sailor Recalls Story of Tragedy.

The story of the rescue of twenty-two starving French sailors from Antipodes Island says that they tried every day to notify the world of their distress by releasing albatrosses with messages tied to their necks telling of the serious plight of the castaways.

The idea of using albatrosses as message carriers was undoubtedly suggested to the men by a remarkable incident which occurred nearly twenty-one years ago and is known to all mariners. On September 22, 1887, a dead albatross was found on the beach at Freemantle, Western Australia, around whose neck was fastened a bit of metal, on which had been scratched in French:

"Thirteen shipwrecked men took refuge upon the Crozet Islands on August 4, 1887."

The news was cabled around the world by Governor Robinson of Western Australia, and the French Minister of Marine at once ordered the transport Meurthe to leave Madagascar for the Crozets to search for the castaways.

NEVER HEARD OF SINCE.

The Meurthe returned from her search to Madagascar on January 6, 1888. She found no human beings on the Crozets, but abundant evidence that one of the four islands had recently been occupied, and under a heap of stones was a sheet of paper on which was written in French with lead pencil the details of the wreck of the ship Tamaris, of Bordeaux, with thirteen men in the crew. The crew had lived on the island for nine months, and, their food being exhausted, they were about to set out for Possession Island.

This island is eighty miles from Cochous. The Meurthe at once went there and also to East Island, but found nothing, and the castaways have never been heard of since. It was quite certain that they were lost in the perilous passage to Possession Island.

These poor fellows never dreamed that eight days before they set out the bird they sent over the waters had finished its wonderful flight and told the world of the unhappy situation. The winged messenger had made a journey of over 2,000 miles with few chances to rest on the way. Naturalists and sailors have told us much of the albatross's remarkable powers and endurance on the wing, but no testimony to this fact will outlive the story of the bird that was the means of letting the world know that poor castaways in the waste of southern waters sorely needed succor.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS A BOON TO CHILDREN

A medicine that will keep babies and young children plump and good natured, with a clear eye and rosy skin is a blessing not only to the little ones but to mothers as well. Baby's Own Tablets is just such a medicine. They cure all the minor ailments of children and make them eat well, sleep well and play well. They are used exclusively in thousands of homes when a child medicine is needed. Mrs. G. Collins, Hirkella, Man., says: —"Baby's Own Tablets are the most satisfactory medicine I have ever used for ills of young children. They are as good as a doctor in the home." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A FISH STORY.

An old fisherman, while fishing one day, was surprised at hearing a voice, and on looking up he saw that his visitor was a stranger, and this was the conversation:

Stranger—How's luck, old man?

Fisherman—Well, pretty fair; I caught 47 yesterday and seventeen to-day so far.

Stranger—Do you know who I am?

Fisherman—Don't believe I do.

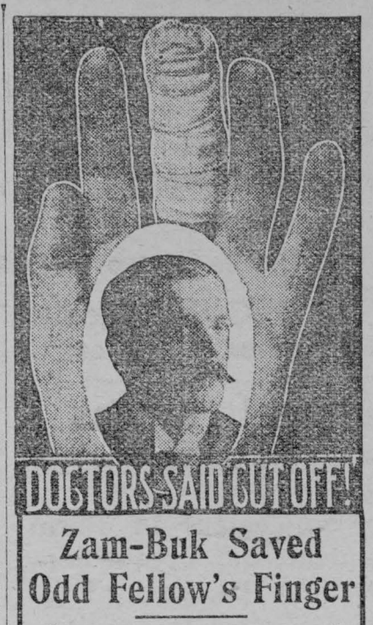

Stranger—Well, I am the game warden.

Fisherman—Mr. Game Warden, do you know who I am?

Game Warden—No.

Fisherman—Well, I am the biggest liar in the country.

DOCTORS SAID CUT OFF!

Zam-Buk Saved Odd Fellow's Finger

"The only thing I can do now is to take the finger completely off. It cannot otherwise be cured." So said one of the leading doctors of Toronto to Mr. W. C. Edwards, P.D.C.R.A.O.F., P.G.M.I.O.O.F., the well-known Friendly Society leader, of Peter Street, Toronto. Zam-Buk proved otherwise. Mr. Edwards cut his finger badly and blood poisoning followed. He says:

"The blood poisoning spread up my hand and arm and caused me terrible agony. After two months' treatment the doctor said there was no cure, and amputation would have to take place if I intended to save the arm. My hand at that time was all swollen up and discolored, and I had to carry it in a sling. I left that doctor and consulted another. After a few weeks' treatment he also told me that operation would be necessary. That night I bathed the wound and put on some Zam-Buk. I got a little sleep for the first time for many nights. In the morning the wound began to bleed instead of the foul discharging as in the past. This was a healthy sign so I went on with the Zam-Buk. Well, to cut a long story short, in a few days I put away the sling and in a few weeks the finger was healed completely. To-day that finger is as sound as a bell and I owe it to Zam-Buk. I spent over $20 in doctor's fees and yet Zam-Buk, at such a trifling cost, saved me from amputation."

Zam-Buk cures eczema, ulcers, cold sores, chapped places, cuts, burns, bruises and all skin injuries and diseases. Also cures piles. All druggists and stores 50c a box, or post free Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price.

THE PERISCOPE.

Under this name Commandant Soulie de Cenac of the French Legion of Honor has designed a pincenez, or eye-glass, which enables the wearer to see at the same time on all sides, and even behind. This is ingenuously effected by means of reflections. At the same time the glasses are so constructed as to correct myopia, and other errors of vision. A use for the instrument that the inventor did not think of has been revealed to him by deaf persons employing it. They say that it increases their safety by enabling them to perceive the approach of dangers of which their ears give them no warning.

KING'S SNUB TO SCOTLAND.

Revenges Himself for Slight When Prince of Wales.

King Edward passed through Edinburgh the other day on his way to Balmoral Castle, his residence in the Highlands. When his train arrived at the station the Lord Provost and the Corporation were waiting to pay their respects.

But when the King was informed that the representatives of the citizens of his Scottish capital wished to pay him homage he sent word that he could not see them. They could see him through a window, though, calmly smoking a cigar in his royal saloon car and reading a newspaper.

The Scottish officials left the railway station in high dudgeon and their indignation was intensified on hearing that at the next stopping place the King got out of the train, received the local representatives and kissed a little girl who presented him with a bouquet.

The cause of the King's affront to Edinburgh was bitterly canvassed, and it was finally explained by a statement that forty years ago, when he came here as the Prince of Wales, shortly after his appearance in the celebrated Mordaunt divorce suit—at which, gossips loved to say, "he perjured himself like a gentleman"—he was hooted in the streets. He then swore that when he ascended the throne he would be revenged on Edinburgh and Scotland.

The rebuff to the Edinburgh city fathers is only a small part of his revenge. His selecting the title of Edward VII. of Great Britain is considered a deliberate insult to Scottish pride, for he rightfully is only Edward I. of Scotland, and his title falsely implies that Scotland always has been subject to England.

Moreover, he has altered the order of precedence, giving English peers precedence over Scottish peers even in Scotland.

THROW AWAY ALL YOUR FEARS

BACKACHE, GRAVEL AND RHEUMATISM VANISH BEFORE DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Proved Once Again in the Case of Mrs. Fred. Krieger, Who Suffered From the Worst Forms of Kidney Disease.

Palmer Rapids, Ont., Nov. 2. (Special).—The thousands of Canadians who live in daily terror of those terrible forms of Kidney Disease known as Backache, Gravel and Rheumatism, will be deeply interested in the story of Mrs. Fred Krieger, of this place.

"I was for years a great sufferer from Kidney Disease, Gravel, Rheumatism and Backache," Mrs. Krieger states. "It all started through a cold, but I got so my head ached, I was nervous, my limbs were heavy, I had a dragging sensation across my loins, and I was totally unfit to do anything.

"Reading about wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to buy some. After using a few I found they were doing me good and this encouraged me to continue their use. Eight boxes made me well.

"I have been able to do my own work ever since and to-day I am completely cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me health and I feel like a new woman."

If you keep your Kidneys strong and healthy you can never have Backache, Rheumatism or Gravel. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to make the Kidneys strong and well.

It is only necessary to read the testimonials to be convinced that Holloway's Corn Cure is unequalled for the removal of corns, warts, etc. It is a complete extinguisher.

Johnny, aged four, went into a near-by grocer's shop and asked for a box of canary seed. "Is it for your mother?" asked the grocer. "No, of course not," replied the little fellow; "it's for the bird."

It Lays a Stilling Hand on Pain. —For pains in the points and limbs and for rheumatic pains, neuralgia and lumbago, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is without a peer. Well rubbed in, the skin absorbs it and it quickly and permanently relieves the affected part. Its value lies in its magic property of removing pain from the body, and for that good quality it is prized.

Latimer—Whiteside.

A very pretty wedding took place at Bank Street Presbyterian Church, Ottawa on Thursday at high noon. The contracting parties were Miss Ida L Whiteside, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Whiteside, of Metcalfe, and Mr. S. S. Latimer, of the same place. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Stuart A. Woods, B A., of Metcalfe. The bride who was given away by her brother-in law, Dr. C. Morrow, was prettily dressed in cream net over taffeta trimmed with insertion, and carried an elegant boquet of white chrysanthemums. As the bride entered the church Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by Miss Nettie Blair, of Metcalfe. Miss Dorothy Kyle, niece of the bride, acted in the capacity of flower girl. After the ceremony the wedding party returned to the Russell House and there participated in the wedding dinner. The bride was the recipient of may beautiful gifts, which speak of the high esteem in which she was held. The groom's gift to the bride was a dainty necklace of pearls and emeralds.

Mr. and Mrs. Latimer left by the evening train to enjoy their honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec.

SAVE THIS, ANYWAY.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it·

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and the system all uric acid and foul, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

The sugar beet crop in Kent, Ont., has been unusually good.

Evra day I see her, too,
Pass by dees peanutta stan'.
Once ees tal me smarta man:
"Eef a girl ees smile at you,
Wavin' deesa way her han',
Dat'sa mean she love you true."

Oh, my leetla lady dear,
Lasta time you passa here
An' you smile upon me so,
Eet ees mak' me feel so queer!
Why ees dat, I lika know?

I een love weeth Mag McCue.
Ah, so sweeta 'Merican!
I would know w'at I should do
Eef she was Eetalian.
But ees hard to ondrastan'
Eef she really love me true
W'en she smile an' wave her han'
Lika lasta night she do.

Oh, my leetla lady dear,
Nexta time you passa here
Would you mak' me glad an' proud?
Don'ta wave your han' so queer.
Pleassa, don'ta smile so loud.

Her Only Thought.

Fair Tourist—Oh, George, the branch is breaking, and you have the return tickets in your pocket! Hurry up and give me them before you go!

Why He Wept.

During a fashionable wedding ceremony one of the old family servants was observed to be weeping as though his heart would break.

"Well, well!" exclaimed a bystander. "It is so picturesque to see old servants weeping at a grand wedding. I suppose you are weeping because you hate to see the bride leave the old mansion?"

The old servant brushed his eyes with his sleeve. "'Tain't that, sir," he sobbed, "b-but the blooming duke that's won her borrowed 50 cents from me to get some clean collars, and when I asked for it all I got was a good booting. 'Nough to make anybody cry."—Chicago News.

Gritty's Ambition.

"Der is one time," yawned Gritty George as he helped himself to strawberry shortcake, "when I'd really like to be president."

"Ah, what a noble ambition!" responded the housewife. "And when is that?"

"Why, when he takes his vacation, mum!"—Detroit Tribune.

The Truth About It.

"Stimson told me the other day that Grimley is awfully close."

"Yes, Grimley told me that Stimson tried to borrow a couple of hundred from him the other day, and he could not let him have it because Stimson's brother held him up the day before and took all the ready cash he could command."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Usual Travel Talk.

"Bliggins is going abroad."

"Is he?" said the man of languid interest.

"He should have something to tell when he returns."

"Perhaps. But the chances are he will do what everybody else does—merely praise the scenery and abuse the hotels."—Pittsburg Post.

Rights Respected.

"You will admit that even a man who disagrees with you is entitled to his opinions."

"Of course he's entitled to them," answered Sirius Barker. "That's why I insist on his keeping his opinions to himself instead of carelessly scattering them around."—Washington Star.

A Profitable Business.

"I hear Miss Curlylocks made $10,000 in letters?"

"So she did."

"Why, I never heard before she was anything of a literary personage."

"Neither is she. They were the letters in her breach of promise suit."—Baltimore American.

Distressing.

"Ah, yes," related the foreign nobleman as he rubbed his hands. "When ze beautiful girl found that her father had selected me as her future husband she was a picture."

"What, a picture of distress?" asked the sensible American girl.—Chicago News.

Her Husband's Grouch.

"A wife can do much to make a home happy," said the visitor.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Torkins, "but it is a pity she can't exert an influence that will enable the home ball club to win all the games."—Washington Star.

Only Then.

"Little boy, do you ever swear?"

"No, ma'am, 'ceptin' when it's necessary and I gotta do it."

"When is it necessary to swear?"

"W'en de empire calls ye out on two strikes an' a ball."—Chicago Tribune.

A cheese factory at South Indion, owned by J. D. McPhail, of Russell, was destroyed by fire on Friday along with the contents. The fire was caused by a spark from the boiler. The building was insured for $1,000, and the contents for $400. The latter was in the Dominion Company, and D. Monroe of Cornwall, adjusted the claim on Monday.

The Financial Post moved before the Master-in-Chambers at Toronto yesterday morning for security for costs in the action of R. A. Pringle, ex-M.P., of Cornwall, who is suing The Post for libel for an article published by them, which, he claims, charged him with attacking banks, and wrongful appropriation of money to his own use. The defendants deny the latter allegation, and say they did not charge Pringle with crime, and that they should therefore have security for costs.

Mrs. G. N. Stewart, of Deloraine, Man., died on Monday afternoon, Oct. 19, of pneumonia, after a brief illness. She was a daughter of the late Josephine Rose, of Iroquois. Her mother Mrs. Rose, resides at Sault Ste Marie, Ont., besides whom she leaves a husband and four children, also three brothers and three sisters, viz; Mrs F. D. McNaughton, Finch; Mrs. Samuel Smyth, Dundela; Miss Nellie Rose, Port Arthur; Thos. and John Rose, of Saskatchewan; and James A. Rose, of Iroquois. The latter visited her recently, and is still in the West. W. A. Stewart, Cornwall, Superintendent of Canals, is a brother of deceased's husband.

FAMOUS PEOPLE

BY FANNIE M. LOTHROP

SIR THOMAS SHAUCHNESSY

President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad.

To be the guiding spirit of a great railway company, with a firm hand on the lever of a thousand phases of the work, requires long, practical, thorough experience, splendid executive ability in choosing and handling men, and a quick mind to decide vital issues on the moment if need be. Sir Thomas G. Shaughnessy has these essentials and more; he is a tireless worker, a man of energy and enthusiasm, a keen common sense that cuts Gordian knots of difficulty with ease, and a prodigious memory that is always ready on the instant.

He was born in Milwaukee, Wis., of Irish parentage in 1853, and after taking the usual course in the public schools had a little supplementary smoothing down and polishing in a business college, and was then ready at sixteen to begin the battle of life. He entered the kindergarten of railroading in his first position in the purchasing department of the Milwaukee and St. Paul road, and it was not long before it was recognized that he had a good business head firmly set on his broad shoulders; and with constant purpose and undaunted determination he worked his way, never looking at the clock nor stinting his efforts, until in 1879, at the age of twenty-six, he was general store-keeper of the road.

In 1882, Sir William Van Horne, another alumnus of this railroad which was a splendid college of training and experience, resigned from the Milwaukee and St. Paul to assume the management of the Canadian Pacific. He had been keeping close tally on Mr. Shaughnessy's work; he realized his possibilities and was confident that the young man was broad-guage enough to be equal to larger opportunities, and took him to Canada as general purchasing agent. Two years later he won, by his ability, the post of assistant general manager, later becoming assistant to the President and in 1891 was made Vice-President and elected a director, and in 1898 when Sir William Van Horne retired from the presidency, the opportunity of his life, the climax of the rosiest dreams of his ambition came to Mr. Shaughnessy when he was made President—the kindly autocrat of the Canadian Pacific.

In October, 1901, his old folks at home in Milwaukee were roused from sleep one night by a messenger with a telegram. In trembling fear his father opened the envelope and with wonder and delight read aloud these words from one of the great railway kings of the western hemisphere: "You may be gratified to know that His Majesty has conferred on me the honor of knighthood. One owes a great deal to a good father and mother. T. G. Shaughnessy."

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1905, by W. C. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture

WOMAN ARE YOU WEAK READ BELOW.

One woman in three is struggling against weakness.

Are you one of the weak ones?

Not exactly rich, but oh, how miserable!

You discharge your daily duties, but who can measure the burden, the trial?

Talk of bravery, where find a finer spirit than among half-sick women, fighting, struggling to do their duty against terrible odds—and they never give up until they drop.

If you could put a drop of blood under the microscope the causes would be revealed. You would find the blood thin and watery, red cells far too few, the carrier of life very greatly reduced in vitality, and this means slow death.

Ferrozone cures weakness by fortifying both appetite and digestion, and making plenty of blood.

Ferrozone cures weakness by supplying [illegible] the body the constituents it requires for restoring tired organs.

It gives vim, vigor and endurance.

Ferrozone is a tissue builder.

It adds force to all the vital functions—the stamach, liver kidneys.

Ferrozone gives sound sleep, sound digestion, promotes perfect removal of all the body wastes.

Ferrozone makes the body glow with health.

Any weak, pale or sickly woman that Ferrozone won't cure—why she must be hopeless. Wonderful power in ferrozone, wonderful cures it makes, and this you can prove by trying it. Sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

FINCH.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Casselman, Mariatown, on Wednesday, Oct. 21, when their daughter, Mrs. Keys was united in marriage to Aden Casselman of Finch. Only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties were present. The pleasing ceremony was performed by Rev. Hugh Cameron, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Morrisburg, at 11 o'clock. After the nuptial vows all sat down to a sumptuous repast. The young people will reside in Finch—Morrisburg Laader.

A Pretty True Picture.

(Inland Printer.)

It is the business of the newspaper man to boom the town for all it is worth month after month, and then to see $10 worth of printing go out of town because 10 cents can be saved by so doing. It is the business of the newspaper to give every local enterprise enthusiastic and frequent "send off" and then catch the mischief because he failed to record the fact that some prominent citizen has had his delivery wagon painted. To subscribe liberally to every public, charitable and church enterprise, and then be called prejudiced and mean spirited because a column is not devoted to that particular affair. Do you wonder there are so many cranks in the newspaper business? It is bound to make either a crank or a philosopher out of a man.

At Bob's lake nets worth over $200 were seized.

BERWICK.

Mrs. Hugh MacMillan was visited by her sister from Russell a few days last week.

Miss Maggie MacInnes called on Miss Gracie MacMillan lately.

Mrs Stanley Mattice and son Willard have been visiting her sister in the States for the past week.

Mr. McQueen, who had a slight attack of fever is convalescent.

Walter Swadfigure had a ploughing bee on Tuesday and a good amount of work was done.

Miss May Barclay visited her sister, Mrs. Charles Meldrum on Tuesday and Wednesday last week.

Donald McPherson had a logging bee at A. Casselman's on Tuesday, and a good crowd were present.

W. Spottin was busy last week hauling gravel for the packing house which is being built at Crysler.

The revival meetings which are being held in Berwick have been extended for another week. A convention was held in the church on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, and a very large crowd was present.

A very quiet wedding took place on Wednesday, 21st, when Mr. Aden Casselman, of this hamlet, was united in marriage to Mrs. Keys, of Morrisburg. Everybody joins in wishing the young couple a long and prosperous life.

A party was held at Mr. Clinton Casselman's on Tuesday evening. A crowd of the young people gathered in and spent a very enjonable evening.

A meeting of the township council was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday.

The rain which fell on Sunday and Monday was much needed, and it is to be hoped we will get more as the water supply is very low and the ground very dry.

The thank offering meeting in the Presbyterian church, Crysler was well attended, and a very able address given by the speaker.

A gloom was cast over this vicinity on Monday afternoon by the death of Mr. Geo. Forsythe. Mr. Forsythe who was an elderly man, had been ailing for some time, and on Friday took a fatal paralytic stroke. The remains were buried Wednesday at two o'clock.

Mr. John MacLean has rented his farm to his brother, D. H. MacLean, and is moving to the first concession of Finch This vicinity loses one of its very respectable citizens, and he will be greatly missed in this section.

John D. MacInnes and his daughter Barbara met with an accident on Tuesday while coming to the village. The horse became frightened and both were pitched out against a barb wire fence. They were cut a little, but nothing very serious done.

Mrs. George Ouderkirk visited Mrs. Charles Meldrum Tuesday.

Beware of Substitutes.

Greedy dealers endeavor to pan off a substitute for Putman's Corn Extractor. Insist on "Putman's" only—it cures corns and warts thoroughly The imitation may fail.

Address and Presentation.

On the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 27th, a large number of neighbors and friends of Mr. John Hughes, of Cannamore, met at his home to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Hughes and family, prior to their leaving for Ottawa, where they are to reside in the future. They have been residents of Cannamore for a goodly number of years and have been kind friends and accommodating neighbors. In business, as a merchant, he has been successful financially and otherwise, hence we feel lonely in having to say good-bye to these friends. In spite of our sorrow we felt we could not but show our appreciation in some tangible way, when Mr. and Mrs. Hughes were asked to come forward, and two beautiful Morris chairs were presented by Mr James McConnell and Mr. J. H. Loughridge, and the following address was read by Mr. Wm. Campbell:

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Hughes,—

We, who have so long been your friends, neighbors and fellow-workers in the extension of church work, in general, in this place, have learned with deep regret that you have disposed of your business, and are about to leave our midst.

We realize that in your removal we are sustaining an irreparable loss, and a painful break is to be made in our ranks as a church, where you have been always ready and willing to help with promptness and zeal, to every call of duty, and sometimes at a great sacrifice on your own part, yet for the glory of God.

For so many years your presence has been helpful and now to see your place vacant will mean an aching void to many and when your voice is heard no more in song, we feel that those who have been under your able training for so long in the choir, will miss the great benefit they have derived, and as the poet says, "only when the sweet voiced bird has flown will we prize the music." And dear Mrs. Hughes, we, who are your associates in the W. M. S. will miss your able assistance. We rarely found your place vacant, and since the organization of the society until recently, you have ably filled the very important office of treasurer. We regret that the links which have bound us together as co-workers, must so soon be severed by your departure from us. In this, our loss, will mean a gain to some other missionary society.

During the long years, Mr. and Mrs. Haghes, that we have been privileged to be associated as neighbors and friends, we have found you true in all matters secular and sacred.

Your invariable kindness and helpfulness, your earnestness and zeal, combined with an ever cheering spirit, have not only endeared you to all, but have been efficacious in directing and leading many in the better way, and we have truly found you most valuable guides and friends.

As neighbors we shall miss you sorely; in affliction and sorrow you have sympathized and helped us, in prosperity and happiness you have rejoiced with us.

In our social and religious relations, and in our homes, you have ever showed yourselves faithful Christian friends. We deeply deplore the loss of your kindly counsel and companionship, and we assure you that in your new home, you and your estimable family will have the best wishes and earnest prayers of us all for your continued prosperity and happiness. We know that wherever you go your Christian service will still be given to the cause of the Master whom we all serve.

We have gathered here in your home for a pleasant social time, though mingled with sadness at the thought that no more will our present host and hostess welcome us where we so often loved to come and enjoy your hospitality. We feel that you are leaving us, but we shall cherish pleasant memories of your unfailing courtesy to us all, as friends and neighbors. With a slight change we might appropriately adopt a sentiment of Tennyson's:

"We sometimes hold it half a sin,
To put in words the pride we feel;
For words, in nature, half reveal
And half conceal, the soul within."

Now, dear Mr. and Mrs. Hughes, we believe as you leave us and go to another part of God's vineyard, that you will take up the work wherever you are, that you have laid down here, and the love characterizing all your labors will be exhibited, and we hope and pray that our loving Heavenly Father will still continue to pour out his richest blessings upon you and that your declining years may be the very brightest and best of your life, and that your going from us may be for your good and God's glory.

We, as friends, neighbors, and coworkers, beg your acceptance of these chairs, as a small token of our affection and regard, lovingly offered in remembrance of our happy connection so soon to be severed.

Our thoughts go with you; yours we know remain with us, and though separated in body we shall be united in the bonds of the spirit.

Signed on behalf of neighbors and friends.

After the address, Mr. Hughes made a very sympathetic and appreciative reply. He said in part: Kind friends: I feel at a loss to find words to express my feeling of gratitude for your kindness in this beautiful gift and also in the many kind words of this excellent address, he said they had hoped to steal, as it were, away, quietly, but he was glad to have so many of his friends and neighbors again at his old home. Mr. Hughes spoke of how he came to Cannamore 37 years ago to teach school, and got his wife here and started their first home, and has now come to leave; and he said he had been guided he felt, by the hand of Providence in the sale of his business and property, and said he, on behalf of Mrs. Hughes and myself, I am sure we shall enjoy rocking in these chairs side by side in our new home, to which we go, and we shall never forget the old friends and associations of Cannamore, and your kindness to us this evening, as well as on former occasions. At the close of Mr. Hughes' remarks the company joined in singing "God be be with you till we meet again," after which cake, sandwiches and coffee was served by the ladies.

Thus a very pleasant and yet sad evening was brought to a close by singing a few familiar hymns, in which Mr. Hughes joined, and then we said goodbye to our host and hostess, with best wishes for prosperity in their new home.

Love Kept Its Faith;

Or, The Girl With the Nut Brown Hair and Dreamy Eyes.

CHAPTER II.—(Cont'd).

It was a happy circumstance for the noble band of prophets that they were not of the company gathered in Jacob Graham's sitting-room, else they must surely have gone forth into the "Valley of Humiliation," never to return. One by one the characters of those who had not been appropriated for purposes of nautical nomenclature were passed in review, and one by one they were mercilessly sacrificed.

"Jeremiah, indeed!" Will Cottier wrathfully exclaimed in response to Cap'n Dan's next suggestion. "An' who d'ye think's going to sail aboard a ship wi' sec a name on it. I've nivver known any good come of giving ayder ship or bairn a name that had anything doobtful aboot it, an' I'd as soon sail wi' a crew o' howling darvishes as on a craft called Jeremiah. I'll admit that his heart was soond and his intentions all right, but his methods were most objectionable. Why, bless my soul, lads, he was for ever greeting, greeting, greeting, till he couldn't pass the top o' the morn widoot dropping a tear ower it. None o' your Jeremiahs for me."

"Well, how would Job do?"

A snort of contempt from Sandy Macpherson, a canny Scot from Kirkcudbright, just across the Solway.

"An' if ye canna find a mair appropriate name than Job the ship 'ill be better widoot ane, I'm thinking. I'm willing tae confess that the puir man hed his qualities and was able to hold his ain at an argument, but considering all the circumstances, whatever success he hed as a prophet, he was an undeeniable failure as a man. Ah do like a man wi' a bit o' pluck, an' Job was an awfu' puir speirited creature. It was all very well for him to sit amang his bits o' pots an' duds so content like and argify, an' exhort, an' present his seemilees; bit the occasion demanded stronger measures, an' if he'd hed a bit of the right nature he'd have up from his muck-heap an' laid amang his three meeserable friends wi' baith his twa fists an' ivvery yon o' his ten toes. Ye'll remember, Cap'n Dan, when we were on the Amphion together, an' them blackguardly niggers put aboard us in the Caribbean Sea, we didn't hang ower the quarter an' exhort them on the sin of piracy and the beauty of a honest life, we just jammed oor two carronades full o' slugs and peppered the beggars, and in my opeenion, that's what Job should hev done. He'd have been better advised to have resarved his preachin' for a more seasonable occasion."

Jacob was about to offer a defence of the patient prophet, but Cap'n Dan, quivering with excitement at the mention of his own exploit, excitedly cried—

"Right you are, Sandy, right you are. Never saw it in that light before. That's just what Job should have done, put a charge of slugs into them. Any son of a sea cook can talk, but it takes a man to shoot. That settles it, we'll have no Jobs in our fleet."

This, with a nod of approval by the rest of the company, convinced Jacob that Job, like Jeremiah, had suffered defeat. Jonah, meekly introduced by Kit Henderson, was received in silence, as one beneath contempt; and Sam Hodgson, whose Biblical knowledge was certainly deficient beyond excuse, was inquiring, "What sort of a chap this here Deuteronomy was," when the sitting-room door was opened, and Bella Mackitterick flounced into the room and grimly surveyed the scene.

"An' seah ye've nut done blethering' yit?" she remarked, after an uncomfortable pause; "weel, oot ye git, ivvery yan o' ye. It's time these two bairns," indicating David and David's father, "were i' bed."

"Oh, but, Bella, it's not settled yet," David pleadingly interposed.

"What's nut settled, laddie?"

"The name of the new ship."

"Oh, isn't it? Weel, we'll settle it, then. It's a shame to waste a whole neet ower t' job. Which o't prophets hesn't passed muster this time?"

"Oh," David replied, "Jeremiah cried too much, and Job hadn't enough pluck, and——"

"Hes Habakkuk been discussed?"

"No, but——"

"Weel, then, Habakkuk be it. It's a grand mouthful for ye, isn't it?"

"Capital, Bella, capital," Cap'n Dan, who stood in everlasting fear of the housekeeper, hastened to assure her.

"Ay, I thowt ye'd like it," this with obvious irony. "Noo gang yer way o't lot on ye."

Silently, the grizzled mariners who had dared the frowns of a hundred tempests, uprose at the bidding of the woman, filed from the room and out through the garden into the road.

"It tak's a woman to settle a business o' that sort," she remarked as the door closed behind them.

"Ay, but you wouldn't have found a name so easily if it had been a babbies' ye were looking for," Jacob dryly responded.

Bella was silent, which shows that a man should never abandon hope of the last word. The triumph may be his providing he lives long enough.

CHAPTER III.

The whole of the eight letters had been outlined on the Habakkuk's name-board, but not yet painted in, when the first note of the call was sounded. Swiftly it travelled from Darron's wooded banks to the windswept heights of Rose Hill, whence one might look down into Routendale's cup full of houses, ironworks, shipyard, coal mine, and harbor, all so tightly wedged in that the more one looked the more one wondered however the packing had been accomplished, and here it beat upon the ears of Cap'n Dan, at work in his garden, and made him drop his spade and hurried him along the Illerdale Road as fast as his stumpy legs would carry him.

As a rule when Dan called upon his friend, and since Jacob's wife went home he had called about every second day, there was a boisterous welcome awaiting him, but today the spell of a brooding silence lay upon the place, and when David appeared there was no rush nor shout, but only a tip-toed advance through the hall and a whispered greeting.

"Dads not so well, Davie?" the little skipper observed inquiringly.

David shook his head, and at that moment Bella appeared on the scene, her grave face graver than ever, and to her Cap'n Dan addressed himself.

"What is it, Bella?" he asked, and for her comfort hastily added, "Nothing to worry about, I'll be bound; only a bit of cold, or a touch of colic, or siatic, or something like that; you'll see we'll have him up to-morrow. Have you had 'Dag' in to see him?"

"Ay, he's upstairs now."

"An' what's he say?"

"Oh, 'Dags' flayed that he's getten new moany."

Cap'n Dan's face lengthened, and David, who was watching him, felt shivery.

"Ay, an'—oh, David, my laddie, just run doonstairs and tell Janet to see aboot gettin' a bite o' summat for hersel', she mun be aboot clammed—weel, ah was gane to say that he's gitting worse fast an' keeps ramblin' in his heid noo——"

"That's bad."

"Ay, an' ah dreamt three neets back I'd lost a tooth——"

"No, no."

"Ay, bit ah did; an' last neet that daft cock that Tom Jenkinson keeps began to crow just after midnight an' kept it up for hofe an 'oor."

Cap'n Dan's foreboding of disaster deepened. The delirium, though ominous, he regarded as capable of medical explanation, and might lend itself to treatment, but the secret of the lost tooth and nocturnal cock crowing lay behind a veil which human eyes might not pierce.

"How has it happened?" he inquired after an uncomfortable pause.

Bella's eyes flashed, and from her lips there rolled a torrent of indignant speech.

"Hoo hes it happened?" she cried. "It's happened becose he canna abide to let God dui His oan wark in His oan way, an' in His oan time, bit he maun gang oot intil t' storm to see as He was getting it done.

"What is't ye want to know? Is'e warrant ye ken as much as mesel'. You ken his ways. While t' storm was on tudder neet he was as uneasy as a cat wid a gale in its tail, prowling aw ower t' hoose, an' nivver biding still a minute. Ivvery noo an' then he'd slip up till his room, an' weel I ken he was off to pray for his sailor lads—a varra proper thing to do—bit when it comes to rampagin' off till t' shore to see wedder your prayers bin answered, wey, it's fair sinfu', that's what it is. Why canna he say his bit prayer an' then sit doon wid his pipe quiet and peaceful like and leave t' rest till Him as med t' watters. If fwolk boddered me t' same as some on 'em bodder Him ah'd skelp their lugs for 'em—ah've neah patience wid aw this wrastlin' Jacob business. Why canna fwolk tak' their religion quietly, instead o' bletherin' an' worryin' seah much aboot it. An' noo——"

Bella's voice broke and she hurried away, whilst Dan slowly mounted the stairs to the room wherein his friend lay waiting for Death; and Dagleish the brusque, hard of speech, but in his heart and touch tender as a woman, wrestled for Life.

"Hoo are you, Dan?" his greeting was always familiar and knew no distinction of rank. "You're just the man I want. Come here and lend a hand. Aye, that's it, just keep your grip on that."

This was one of "oald Dag's" characteristics. In a crisis it was not sufficient that he should direct, not always enough that with his own eyes he should see the work done, he must do it himself. So in silence, fi save for an odd word of instruction from the doctor, the two men toiled, toiled until human hands and human hearts could do no more. When the doctor withdrew, Cap'n Dan followed him into the hall with a question on his lips, and when the door closed the question had been answered, and Dan's heart was as heavy as lead.

Therafter the days came charged with an anxiety so deep that their passing was scarcely noted, days wherein love forgot itself once more and lived and worked and prayed only for the other one, the white-haired man upon the bed; and down in the cottages planted along the beck side women, from whom the sea had wrestled their own, went their round with red-rimmed eyes; and down in the harbor, where the ships lay, men with black beards and nut-brown faces, walked the deck in silence, in their hearts thoughts that the lips declined to utter. At the end of all the waiting, the light of joy glistened in the eyes of those who had wept and the black beards twitched in a new-born ecstasy because of the word that was passed along, telling of a crisis safely passed, disease that had suffered defeat.

From that day little David ceased to watch the faces of those about him, and retired into out of way corners of the rambling old house and went back to the rigging of the ships that his father's sailors had carved for him, and even Bella renewed her bustle and began her plans for the grand cleaning to be made when "t' maister got aboot again," but Cap'n Dan kept his eyes upon Dagleish, and experienced no surprise when, a week after Jacob was supposed to have turned the corner, the doctor with a jerk of the head invited him out of the room.

On the lower landing, where the gorgeous butterflies from far-scattered lands hung in their mahogany cases, the two men faced each other and Dan looked at the doctor, and the doctor nodded his head, and though no word was spoken, Dan understood.

"It's his years, Dan," Dagleish at length explained. "You see, when a man's touched sixty he's living on his capital, and what Jacob's gone through has just used up all he had left, burnt up the vitality that would have kept him going for another ten years or so."

"And how long——?"

"A week or two at most, Dan."

"Poor little Davie—he'd better be told, Jacob, I mean."

"I'm glad you think so, Dan. It's a thing I never hide except for special reasons, there's nearly always such a lot to put straight at the end."

A few words more, and the two men parted, Dagleish to his rounds, Dan to return to the sick room charged with the hardest task to which his life had called him. For a full hour he struggled for words, tender words, words without jagged edges to cut and wound, words that would carry as little of shock as might be, and in the end he found it possible to do without any of them; for when he bent over the bed and took one of the withered hands in his own and huskily began his revelation, he discovered that his friend knew all about it, and instead of playing the comforter, Dan himself was being consoled.

"You mustn't worry about me, Dan," Jacob assured him; "you mustn't, it's quite right."

"And you don't mind—so much, Jacob?"

"I mind—about—my laddie—but—but—goodness and mercy have followed me all the days of my life—and I'm not going to grumble at the end. What right have I to rebel because He Who sent me here and has kept me so long, has now invited me to one of His mansions."

To such a man as this Death ever turns a kindly face, the future may be full of mystery, but it is golden-tinted mystery; Faith and a clean life wipe out all the dread so that the only pain is that of parting, and the only anxiety for the loved ones who must be left behind.

(To be Continued.)

The farmer needs a business education in buying and selling. Farmers pay too high prices on many classes of goods, and often are not wise in finding a market for their produce. There is no necessity of selling butter to the huckster at ten cents a pound while the consumer, but a few miles away, is paying 25 cents for the same article. Neither is it necessary for the farmer to pay from 40 to 60 per cent. more than the manufacturer receives for his farm implements. These large margins are a relic of the days of long credit, and the cash-paying farmer ought not to pay them, and need not if he will post himself on the cost and buy as near headquarters as possible.

THE "OLD SOMERSET" DEAL

At the back of Pitt Street, in Sydney, New South Wales, there once stood a large block of business offices, which for these purposes we will call Grenville House, though that is not the correct name. A few years back they were demolished in the course of some public improvements.

One doorway in Grenville House was completely surrounded by brass plates containing such legends as "The Blue Point Diamond Co., Ltd."; "The Never Never Concessions, Ltd."; "The Tintaroo Exploration Co., Ltd." Altogether there must have been nearly twenty of these brass plates, and in a corner of each were the words, "Sydney Agent—Mr. B. Wenter."

To put it plainly, Mr. B. Wenter was the spider and these brass plates were portions of his web. This gentleman managed to make an excellent income by fraud and trickery, and yet always to evade the clutches of the law. His favorite occupation was to get hold of miners just down for a spree from "up country," with their pockets full of gold, and show them how to enjoy themselves. Much of their wealth was transferred to the pockets of their astute guide, and amongst those miners who knew him he possessed a gaudy name.

In those days the gold fever was at its height, and raw hands flocked into the Colony thinking that all they had to do was to buy a shovel and scoop up gold into heaps. These gentlemen were the joy of Mr. Wenter's heart; they were so trusting and so eager to make money that on Mr. Wenter's advice they spent it like water—water that flowed like a waterfall into Mr. Wenter's banking account.

Now it chanced one morning that an elderly man, who looked very ill at ease in a frock-coat suit, and who had plainly stamped on him that he was from up country — it chanced that this gentleman paused outside Grenville House, and began to study the names of the various business men who rented offices therein.

He meandered slowly along until he came to Mr. Wenter's door. He read through all the names on the brass plates with a certain amount of trouble, and appeared to be profoundly impressed. From a corner of his office, like the spider in a corner of his web, Mr. Wenter lurked, and surveyed his prospective victim with approval.

For some moments the new-comer hesitated, and then pushed open the office door. By now Mr. Wenter was at his table, scribbling away for dear life.

"Good morning, sir," said the client.

Mr. Wenter continued to write—evidently he was so engrossed that he did not hear the salutation.

"Good morning, sir," repeated the stranger, this time in a louder key. "I hope I am not troubling you." He made as though to withdraw, which brought Mr. Wenter very quickly to his feet.

"Good morning, good morning!" he cried. "Have you been waiting? I am exceedingly sorry, but I have got a big Government contract in hand, and it has kept me very busy."

"I've got a little property for sale," said Mr. Wenter's client. "It's a mine up beyond Limbula Creek. I've stuck at it for many years and saved a few thousand, and now I want to go to the old country to spend them. There's plenty of gold up at Old Somerset—that's the name of the mine, but it wants new machinery and capital. and I don't feel equal to the strain either on myself or my pocket. My name is Gregory — John Gregory. Here's the title-deeds and a map of the country." He pushed over a roll of papers to Wenter.

"H'm!" remarked Mr. Wenter. "I dare say I can find you a customer if the mine is worth anything—I must see it first, of course. My terms would be 2½ per cent. commission on the sale, and expenses. Have you any figure in mind?"

"I reckon the mine is worth twenty thousand," replied Mr. Gregory. "When it is worked properly it will be worth five times that sum."

"Well, I'll see what I can do, Mr. Gregory. But, as I said, I must go and see the mine."

"I am at your service any time this week," replied th mine-owner.

"Shall we say the day after to-morrow, then?"

"That will suit me," said Mr. Gregory. "There's a train to Limbula at nine o'clock. We shall get to the mine then at about twelve. Will that suit you?"

"Yes, I think I can manage it," replied Wenter, thoughtfully, though he knew he had no other engagement.

"Then I'll meet you under the station clock at ten minutes to nine," remarked Mr. Gregory, and took his leave.

"I wonder if there's anything to be made out of the deal?" muttered Wenter. "Anyway, I sha'n't lose anything by a trip to Limbula, even if I do nothing."

So at the appointed hour he met Mr. Gregory, and the two men travelled to Limbula. Here Mr. Gregory hired a rough cart and drove across to the Old Somerset Mine.

"Come along," he said, leading Wenter to the shaft.

'Lower away, Lily," he remarked to a black boy in charge of the windlass.

"Yes, boss," answered the boy, and presently the two men were down in the bowels of the mine.

Mr. Gregory led Wenter through various galleries, and the latter speedily saw that, as his client had said, the mine was full of valuable ore. He broke off lumps here and there, going well in, in order to see whether the ground had been salted. But it was very evident that the gold was in true vein and that there was nothing whatever suspicious about it.

"What does it pan out to the ton Mr. Gregory?" he asked.

"Roughly speaking, an ounce and a half to two ounces to the ton, so it is a good paying yield. Even now I've gone so far" — Mr. Gregory paused and looked round thoughtfully—"even now I am half inclined to buy the machinery and work the mine for another year.

"I wish I had your chance," said Wenter.

"You'd work it, would you?"

"Not me. If I had the money this will sell for I'd go straight across to the old country and enjoy myself for the rest of my days"

"Perhaps you're right," replied Gregory. I've roughed it pretty considerably all my life so far; it's about time I had a little comfort. Shall we go up now, or would you like to go round again?"

"No, thanks," Wenter replied; "I am quite satisfied. I'll do my best to make a deal for you."

"Right; I hope you will," Mr. Gregory remarked. Then he shouted up the shaft, "Hoist up, Lily

"You seem to have a good many hands on your mine," Mr. Wenter remarked, as they drove away.

"Oh. bless you, they're not all mine. There isn't enough work for me to keep many," Mr. Gregory answered.

When Wenter arrived at his office again he pondered considerably over the matter in question. Here was a mine teeming with gold, which only required capital to work it. Surely he could find someone to buy it at a good figure. There was every prospect of his making a heavy profit over the transaction.

"Let me see," he muttered, "Gregory wants twenty thousand for it. Supposing I get someone to offer twenty-five or thirty thousand for it, and then tell Gregory I can't find a customer, but that I'm willing to buy it myself and hold it until I can sell it again. I dare say he would take fifteen thousand if I offered to waive my commission and expenses. By gum!" he rubbed his hands and his flinty little eyes shone with glee. "By gum! that would be ten thousand pounds or more in my pocket for less than ten hours of my time."

He picked up the morning paper and saw that the next mail was due to arrive three days hence.

"Good!" he muttered. "I'll draw up a catchy advertisement."

He proceeded to write a paragraph pointing out the desirability of all people anxious to purchase mining properties coming to him. Then he strolled down to the newspaper office and made arrangements for it to appear for the rest of the week.

On Thursday the liner came in, and on Friday a gentleman called on Mr. Wenter. He was a tall, aristocratic-looking man, faultlessly dressed in the latest London fashion.

"Aw—I saw your — aw — advertisement," he said, speaking in that peculiar drawl which one associates with blue blood. "My name is Craven. I came over on the Denbigh Castle. I—aw—want to buy—aw—one of these mines." He handed Mr. Wenter a card.

"Yes, sir," said the agent. "I dare say I can fit you up. I've got a number of desirable mining properties on hand." As a matter of fact he had only got the Old Somerset Mine.

"You see—aw—I don't want to make a beastly splash. Funds are—aw—somewhat limited, doncher-know. Now just trot out some of these chaps. First of all, though, I don't—aw—want to be far away from Sydney. Not—aw—more than a hundred miles."

"Ah, that limits me," said Mr. Wenter, diplomatically. "Nearly all my properties are farther away than that. But I've got a first-class one up beyond Limbula; that's about seventy-five miles away."

"That's the ticket," remarked Mr. Craven. "Trot it out."

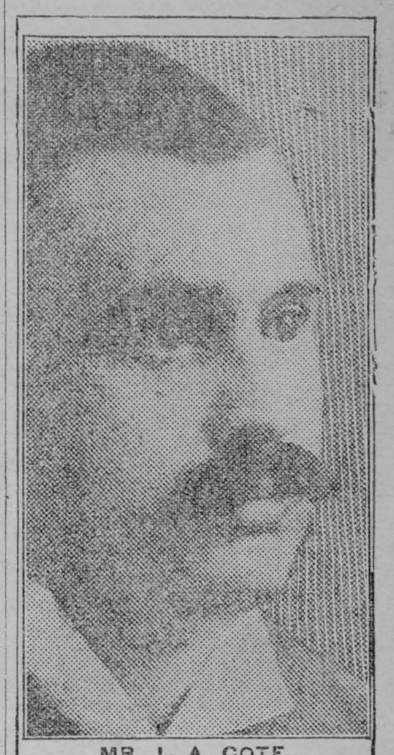

Then Mr. Wenter went into details. He enlarged enthusiastically on the Old Somerset Mine. His language was so eloquent that he completely carried away his listener.

"Aw—by Jove! that sounds deucedly ripping," cried Mr. Craven. "But you'll want—aw—more than I can go to for it, I expect."

"If you gave me some idea of what you could afford, I dare say I could meet you," said Mr. Wenter. "By the way, have you lunched? If not, will you lunch with me? These little matters are better arranged over a bottle of wine."

Mr. L. A. Cote, Assistant Manager Hotel Victoria, Quebec, Canada, writes a letter to the Peruna Drug Mfg. Co., given below:

MR. L. A. COTE.

AFTER USING PE-RU-NA I AM COMPLETELY CURED

Mr. L. A. Cote, Assistant Manager Hotel Victoria, Quebec, Can., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh for about eight years, and have tried many physicians or specialists for this sickness, and never obtained any relief. It was only after using your Peruna medicine that I began to get better. I have used ten bottles up till now, and am glad to say that I am completely cured. I am glad to let the public know it. A good thing is never too dear."

We have on file many testimonials like the one given here. Probably no other physician in the world has received such a volume of enthusiastic letters of thanks as Dr. Hartman for Peruna.

THE PROPER WAY TO MILK.

The operation which consists in milking, is as is well known, a "rational massage which has as its result the drawing from the cow's udder a far greater quantity of milk than that which it contained at the beginning of the operation. It is known, says a writer in the "Moniteur" that the udder of a good cow contains, before milking about 3¼ pints of milk already formed, but that if milking be well carried out no less than 2½ to 3¾ gallons may be secured. According to the experiments carried out by M. Lepontre, it is also known that the method of milking exercises considerable influence on the proportion of fatty matters contained in the milk.

The above authority has shown that this is due to the peripheral excitation of the nerves of secretion which, in their turn, by reflex action bring about far greater excitation of the granular cellules. If we consider the usual way of milking, which consists in milking two quarters at the same time, we find that the effect produced is not the same for the whole period of milking. The milk from the first two quarters generally contains more fatty matters than that of the last two, and the richness of the milk will be enhanced if the milking be done diagonally instead of laterally.

This phenomenon is at least singular, even if it be not incomprehensible, and it is explained by the fact that by milking diagonally excitation extends to all the nerves of the gland whilst, when the operation is done laterally, excitation is only produced on the side on which one operates. In every case the influence of the matter of milking on the proportion of fatty matters is demonstrated by the following experiment of M. Lepontre. The same cow was milked repeatedly and at the same time by two different persons, who changed sides with each milking, and the milk coming from each side was kept distinct. One of the persons who operated merely exerted alternate pressure on the teat, whilst the other operated by longitudinal massage. The milk produced by this latter process was more fatty than the other, the difference being between 45 and 55 per cent. The way in which the cows is milked has therefore a great influence on the quality of the milk, and this influence can only be explained by the excitation produced.

The milk obtained at the beginning of the operation, consisting in longitudinal massage, is not as fatty as that at the end of the process. Until now this phenomenon was explained by the fact that slightly prolonged milking ended by detaching the particles of butter adhering to the coatings of the lactiferous vessels. This, however, is not the opinion of M. Lepontre, for he observes that the operation is usually more vigorous at the end than at the beginning, and that consequently excitation must be stronger, and the reflex action greater on the mammillary tissues, thereby producing a lactiferous secretion richer in fatty matters.—Canadian Dairyman.

The Voodoo Queen

"PEERED THROUGH THE UNDERBRUSH"

MRS. LACERC gazed anxiously across the table at the colonel, who nervously toyed with the food before him.

"Aren't you feeling well?" she asked, solicitously. "You look worried."

"I beg your pardon," exclaimed the colonel, rousing himself from his reverie.

"The fact is," he added, frankly, "I am a bit worried. Until lately everything has gone well with my new project for the manufacture of paper bags from bagasse, the woody fiber of sugar cane. But now the darkies appear discontented—both those in the fields and the workers in the mill. Why, even old Uncle Toby, who is usually as open and cheerful as the day, is moping and sullen. The hands seem to think they deserve higher wages, although formerly they always were contented. I don't understand it."

LOUIS EXPLAINS

Louis and Marguerite listened to this conversation, of course, without saying a word. But when breakfast was over, and they were trudging toward the stables to have their ponies saddled for the usual morning canter, Louis gave expression to the thoughts which troubled them both.

"I knew something was the matter," he muttered. "And, do you know, I think it's all on account of that nice-looking darky girl they call 'Handsome Sue,' who came here to work about two weeks ago. Her people all believe she can do all sorts of wonderful magic through her voodoo charms. She has a great influence among them—an influence which I don't believe will make for any good.

"Did I tell you of what happened to me last week? I was paddling in the bayou toward Lake Pontchartrain. It was about eight miles from Pecan Grove, if you measure the distance as the crow flies, when I crew up under an overhanging cypress to rest a moment. All at once there came to me the sound of voices, mingled in a kind of chant. That started me investigating. I paddled along as quietly as I could. It seems that they had some one on the watch, for just as I was about to come in view of the group there was a silence, and when I scrambled up the bank I found a great number of footprints, but no one was there. Yet I'm sure when I was in the boat I heard among the voices that of 'Handsome Sue.'"

Marguerite nodded her head thoughtfully, as she replied, "Yes, there's something strange about that girl. I wish we knew more about her."

"I have it!" cried Louis. "Today, of course, is a holiday, being All Saints' Day. It's ten to one Sue is holding a meeting out there in the bayou. Suppose we take the two hounds, and pole down the stream in the little scow. We might be able to break up their jabbarree and do a good turn for father. Because if they believe he knows what's going on, I'll wager they won't be so anxious to hold their council again to plan mischief. Are you game?"

His sister recklessly whispered, "Yes," And soon the two were stealthily making their way toward the boat landing. Louis secured the two bloodhounds without being observed by any of the stablemen. They quickly cast off the painter. In a moment the turns of the bayou hid them from view.

A long voyage it was to their destination. After winding for a full hour through the tortuous byways of the Louisiana bayou, they came to the lagoon. Over this they poled; then past fields of cotton and rice and sugar cane and sweet potatoes; then again into the bayou, traveling silently along the gloomy watery paths, shaded by thickly growing pine and cypress. Turtles and snakes would splash off dead stumps of trees at the boat's approach. Beneath them catfish, drum, crappie, buffalo-fish and black bass disported themselves. But the adventurers were not to be tempted today. They were after greater prey.

"Aren't we almost there?" whispered Marguerite, when for hours they had steadily progressed away from Pecan Grove, in the direction of the lake.

"Almost," tersely responded Louis. Then he raised his hand.

"Did you hear that?" he asked in a low voice.

Marguerite nodded. From afar off there came the sound of a quavering chorus, rising and falling in mournful cadences. Afterward there was a minute of quiet, then came a succession of quick, savage yells that fell confusedly on the ear.

Louis again bent to his work of forcing the punt through the tangled brush, while Marguerite set about quieting the hounds, who had become exceedingly restless. At last they rounded the bank Louis had described that morning. No one had witnessed their approach.

"You stay in the boat with the dogs, while I reconnoiter," said the boy.

Carefully drawing himself up the slippery embankment, he sidled from one tree to another.

Meanwhile, his sister waited with growing impatience. It seemed a full hour had elapsed when the lad returned.

"Bring the dogs," he articulated with his mouth, though making no sound, and beckoning with his hand.

With the dogs held in leash, they traveled with little difficulty toward the open space among the trees, where the negroes were holding their voodoo meeting. There was no fear of being detected now, for the darkies were so hilarious that they could not have heard a cannon above the uproar.

Peering through the screen of bushes, the eyes of the two grew big and round. Upon a large box in the middle of a clearing stood "Handsome Sue," garbed in clothes and scarfs of brilliant colors in which red predominated. Round and round the box she writhed in a peculiar sort of dance, while about her in a great circle danced negro men and women with queer, jerky, convulsive movements.

THE NEGROES FLEE

Then, with a sign of warning to Marguerite, Louis released the dogs. Right into the center of the meeting ground dashed the two huge animals. One glance, and with cries of alarm and terror, every negro was in flight. So sudden was the disappearance that Marguerite and Louis could hardly believe their eyes. They recalled the dogs, who were about to pursue some of the negroes.

So excited were the boy and girl that they could hardly accomplish the journey back home quickly enough. And when they burst in upon their father, the colonel, you can imagine how interested he was in their story.

"You shouldn't have done it," he said, when the tale of their escapade was concluded. "Nevertheless, I'm glad, indeed, to learn of these doings among my hands. I believe I can now go about remedying my troubles in the proper way."

As a result of the children's discovery, 'Handsome Sue" was discharged on the morrow. She it was, no doubt, who had incited the darkies to make such unreasonable demands. There was a general murmur of protest and somewhat of defiance when Sue was told to depart. A few of the hands left with her, but the rest, now removed from the influence of the voodoo queen, soon became the capable workers they were formerly, and all discontent seemed to vanish.

Marguerite and Louis often recalled "Handsome Sue," and wondered whether she became the queen of another body of voodoo worshipers. Marguerite was just a teeny, weeny bit afraid that perhaps the "queen" might cast some horrible spell upon them, as was intimated by her old nurse. But Louis scoffed at the idea and declared he was ready to meet any number of vaudoux, and at any time, too.

COSTLY SHOOTING.

Expense of Entertaining the King is $50,000 a Week.

Shooting, while a capital sport in England, is not recommended for those whose purses are limited, especially if they have ambitions to be the hosts of royalty. That season just now in swing has cost several notable families in English society at least $50,000 apiece for the privilege of entertaining his majesty for a week with the guns. The majority of these families, however, consider the honor cheap at the price, and many of them are justified in doing so, for they owe to the King their social position in England.

Of course, the $50,000, which is the lowest estimate of the cost of entertaining his majesty is not all spent in the week when he is on the ground. As a matter of fact, the preliminaries account for the better part of the amount. Something like $25,000 is paid as rent for the moors and coverts and at least $5,000 for the mansion called the shooting-box. The moors generally extend to at least 20,000 acres and the modern hosts of English royalty would hardly dare to invite King Edward to anything smaller. Such an enormous piece of ground requires a dozen keepers costing $5,000 a year and the preservation of game, food, repairs and incidentals will acount for another $5,000. For the keep of the mansion itself an enormous figure is required, especially as a little army of servants is needed, frequently numbering as many as 35.

Then there is the question of the fellow-guests. The King is invariably consulted in this respect and in almost every case a full dozen are invited to meet and amuse his majesty. These dukes and lords and generals arrive in their motor-cars each with his own chauffeur, footman and valet, while each lady brings her own maid and private secretary, and many of them their own private hairdresser. The King and some of the dukes go so far as to bring with them their own favorite gun-leaders and royalty is always accompanied by its private butler. It is not overestimating to say that each guest averages five servants, and the host of a shooting party of a dozen guns would, therefore, not have to provide for twelve, but for 72 persons.

When the enormous cost of one of these royal shooting parties is taken into account, it is not surprising that the hosts of his majesty calculate that each brace of birds will cost him something like $50 and that to get the cost as low as that, the moors will have to be plentifully stocked and his guests crock shots.

All the blood in the body passes through the Kidneys every three minutes.

The kidneys filter the blood.

They work night and day to daily remove about 500 grains of impure matter. If they fail some part of this impure matter is left in the blood, bringing on pain in the back, headache, diziness, irregular heart, hot, dry skin, rheumatism, gravel, dropsy, deposits in the urine. Booth's Kidney Pills make the filtering right and overcome Kidney trouble. Hundreds of Dundas county residents have found this out.

Mrs. Bella Gray, of Queen at., Chesterville, Ont, says: "My back had been very tender and painful and there seemed to be a weakness across the kidneys. I would take cold very easily and suffer with dull, bearing down pains in my sides. I was unable to straighten myself up for many minutes and then with much suffering. I would tire very easily and was languid and without ambition. I learned of Booth's Kidney Pills through a friend and procuring them at Mr. Bolster's pharmacy I began their use. The one box of Booth's Kidney Pills toor the pains and weakness out of my back entirely. I have not had a return of any symptom since and have felt fine and like a new person. I could not help recommending Booth's Kidney Pills' Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The R. T Booth Co., Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont, sole Canadian agents.
