Dairyman's Death.

Mr. Joseph Scott, of the firm of J. Scott and Son, died at his residence, the Hillbrook Dairy Farm, in the Township of Augusta, at 4 o'clock Saturday morning. Mr. Scott was a prominent dairyman and farmer. He was treasurer of the Township of Augusta, also president of the Grenville Patron's Mutual Fire Insurance Co. He was a prominent Orangeman and a staunch Conservative in politics.

Hockey Club Organized.

A well attended meeting was held Monday evening in the office of A. A. Logan to organize the Morrisburg Hockey Club for the coming season.

The following officers were elected:—A. A. Logan, Hon. President; C. B. Graham, Hon. Vice-Pres.; G. D. Meikle, Hon. Vice-Pres.; J. W. Allison, Hon. Vice-Pres.; Arthur Flynn, Pres.; Fred Meikle, Vice-Pres.; Harry Denesha, Sec.-Treas.; Chas. Marsh, Manager; J. P. Gormley, F. R. Chalmers and G. L. Brown, Managing Committee.

Listen For The Bronchial "Whoee".

It means that disease will soon attack the lungs. Wheezing is distressing to the sufferer and annoying to his friends. Noting half so certain. In bronchitis and throat trouble as "Catarrh" or "Whoee"; it gives instant relief and cures even the worst cases. Bronchitis fairly flies under the magic influence of Catarrh. Whoee never returns. Other remedies may relieve, but "Catarrh" cures bronchitis, catarrh, and throat trouble for all time to come. Sold everywhere.

Stewart-Moss.

Mr. James McArthur Stewart, of Wales, and Miss Mary Moss, youngest daughter of Mr. Samuel Moss, Moulinette were quietly married at the residence of the bride's father, on Tuesday of last week in the presence of only a few intimate friends. The bride was assisted by Miss Elma Smith, of Montreal; Mr. R. D. Moss, the bride's brother, officiated as groomsmen. Rev. Mr. Coburn, of Luddenburg performed the marriage ceremony. The bride was one of Moulinette's popular young ladies, and received a large number of presents as a token of the good will of her many friends. The happy couple drove to Cornwall, and took the International Limited for New Brunswick; a number accompanied them to the station. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart will live at Wales.

Cattle Doing Well.

Last June Mr. J. G. Clark of Woodville sold some Ayrshire cattle to a Japanese visitor. The purchaser, a private breeder in Japan, and Mr. K. Kozu by name has just written to report that the cattle are doing well upon his farm in Shijamara, Kiasaku, Japan. The letter which is dated 30th of September, thanks Mr. Clark for his kindness while Mr. Kozu was in Canada and states that the Ayrshires stood the voyage across the Pacific well. The chief gratification of the writer, however, was in the fact that the inspectors at Yokohama passed the herd without exception as free from tuberculosis or other disease. Mr. Kozu describes the wonder and admiration the cattle caused among government officers and private breeders at Yokohama and gives a report of their well doing now at his own farm. He hopes to give Mr. Clark an equally good report of them later.

Objects to $5 Slander Verdict.

A $5 slander verdict is the subject of an appeal in the Divisional Court over which Chief Justice Falconbridge presides. John S. McCullum, M. D., of Smith's Falls is the defendant, who attempts to unburden himself of this grievous load. Hirman a Crate, of Smith's Falls, who combines a coal and wood with a general dry-goods business is the person whose reputation the jury found had been besmirched to this extent.

The doctor was the merchant's land lord, and thence, doubtless, sprang the antipathy. In 1902 Mr. Crate was town assessor, and the defendant is alleged to have stated publicly and in a loud voice: "He tried tax me out of town." The doctor owns a business block, and according to his story, the assessor raised the taxes on all the property, with the exception of the part in which he conducted his own dry-goods business. This part remained undisturbed because these taxes under the lease were paid by the merchant himself.

Mr. Crate sued for $1,000, and the jury gave him $5, and the judge gave him costs. Dr. McCullum sees many reasons why he should not pay.

License Commissioners Meet.

A meeting of the License board for the county was held at Winchester on Oct 30th. The principal business was the issuing of Licenses for the last half of the License year. The usual number was granted except in Chesterville, where John Foster received a license which makes three hotels in that place for the next six months. The reason of this is that at the June meeting of the board it was decided to cancel Flynn's License at the end of the first six months, and a License was granted to Foster in place of the one cancelled. It is now found that owing to the neglect of previous officials and the careless way in which their records were left, that doubt arises as to the power of the Board, and on the Department advice his License was extended another six months. —Com.

A Trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas Free. How such a statement would interest every sufferer from Rheumatism, yet the far-famed Hot Springs of Arkansas do not cure over 40 per cent. of the cases under its jurisdiction. Tuck's Rheumatic Bone Oil never fails to cure even the most advanced cases of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Etc., and is a much less costly experiment than the trip to Arkansas. Its method of procedure is slow and scientific. It drives the Uric acid from the joint and allays inflammation. As its name indicates, it penetrates to the bone or joint, the seat of the disease and effects a speedy cure. S. M. Barnes, ex Mayor of Smith's Falls, writes:—"I have used your Rheumatic Bone Oil in my house since 1888 and can testify that it does cure Rheumatism." This is the unsolicited testimony of a man who was of sufficient standing in the town in which he lived to be elected its Mayor. It is a sample of hundreds of other testimonials to the good results from the use of Tuck's Oil for rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, headache, toothache, sprains, bruises, etc. Ask your medicine dealer for it or send 50c. for a trial bottle to The Tuck Bone Oil Co., Limited, Smith's Falls. For sale by F. J. Badley.

Attempt To Blow Up Structure Near Brockville.

An attempt was made to blow up what is known as the Jones Creek Bridge, nine miles west of Brockville. Two sticks of dynamite were placed against the stone abutments at either end of the bridge, and exploded. The stone work was almost completely shattered, but the board work was but lightly damaged.

A short time ago an attempt was made to burn the bridge. The structure stands over the mouth of what is known as Jones' Creek, a stream entering the St. Lawrence, and was built a couple of years ago, partly by private subscription and partly by municipal grant.

An Old Resident Passes Away.

We sincerely regret to record in this issue the death of Mr. Thomas Carlyle, at "Beaver Meadow", the family homestead.

On Saturday evening the 28th of Oct. 1905, at his own fireside, conversing with his eldest daughter, he was suddenly seized with apoplexy, and rapidly becoming unconscious, so remained till early Monday morning, when he died.

On the 13th of January, 1836, Mr. Carlyle was born in the Parish of Half Morton, Dumfriesshire, Scotland, and his parents came to this country when the subject of this sketch was but four years of age. Had he lived until the coming January he would have reached the limit of the span allotted to man for active and efficient work and belonged to the generation of those who laid the foundations of this prosperous section of the County of Dundas.

Having married in 1858 Nancy Thom a daughter of the late James Thom, (and who predeceased him by ten years last May) about two years subsequently he had settled on his late farm, which was then wilderness and water. He drained and hewed out for himself and his dear ones the beautiful farm which is now the site of happy homes. If the present generation meet with equal faith courage, cheerfulness and honesty, the burdens and obligations of their day, a bright future for our country will be assured.

To Mr. Carlyle and his wife were born four sons and seven daughters all of whom survive him.

Of unobtrusive disposition, prudent, independent, of strong convictions, broad views, generous sympathies and a big heart, Mr. Carlyle contributed an appreciable share to the social and moral progress of his countryside and endeared himself to a very large portion of the community who will miss and mourn him.

Mr. Thomas Carlyle is the third brother who has died within the last twelve months, leaving one only surviving member of his generation, Mr. Matthew Carlyle now of Richmond, P. Q.

He was a Liberal Conservative in politics, and a member and the Senior Elder of the Presbyterian Church in Chesterville.

The funeral takes place this afternoon.

Evidence Not Credible.

Judge Anglin awarded E. Lamarche, of L'Orignal, $375 in his suit against J. Roy. The claim arose out of some injury caused to plaintiff's property through a fire started by defendant and his son. The judge characterized Lamarche's claim as greatly exaggerated and the evidence as unbelievable.

Mr. Wm. Campbell of Cannanore, this week sold to Mr. Wm. Byers of the same place, a Cabinet Grand Gerhard Heintzman Piano. It is a beauty and was made especially for the exhibition held at Toronto.

Mrs. John Rickard, mother of Mr. William Rickard, ex M. P. P., died at Bowmanville.

The opening of the new Public school in Athens has been fixed to take place early in December, and Premier Whitney and Hon. Dr. Pyne have been invited by the citizens of the village to take part in the exercises. It is stated they will accept the invitation.

The Archbishop Remembered.

Before leaving for the Eternal City the priests assembled at the Episcopal Palace, Kingston and presented him with a purse containing $2,000 in gold. Accepting it, His Grace thanked them most for their affectionate loyalty. In his absence he felt the diocese would be wisely administered by his representative, Vicar General Masterson, and that his priests would be in his regard what they had been in his own—"Faithful priests of God."

Terrible Back Pains.

They fairly agonize your life. Some thing powerful and penetrating is needed. Doctors know of nothing so swift to relieve as Nerviline a strong, penetrating liniment made to cure just such pains as yours. Nerviline is very concentrated, about four times more powerful than ordinary liniments. In the worst cases Polson's Nerviline is extraordinarily good. All muscular pain flees before it. Nearly fifty years in use—a good recommendation, surely.

WHY SKIS WERE INVENTED.

The origin of the ski, which may roughly be described as a snow-shoe
so long that the sole extends far beyond the toe and heel, was purely practical. It was designed to make communication possible between village, or town and town, in northern Europe, after a heavy fall of snow.
The skate can only be used on ice,
but the ski is available wherever there is plenty of snow to traverse.
A forward movement of the lower part of the body gives you a start,
and you then slip along, without raising your feet from the ground,
so that the track forms two parallel lines. Even uphill good progress can be made, aided by a long stick, or a stick in either hand. Of late years ski-ing has become quite a popular sport at the best winter resorts.

A BAD SPELL.

Mr. Daniels was what is humorously known in his profession as a
"valet" to a bricklayer, and it is said that as a hod-carrier he would be hard to beat. Recently, however, he was absent from his work, an unusual occurrence with him.
His absence was explained later in the day by a weather-worn note,
which contained these fateful words:
"Sur i as got thee mumps bill daniels."
On the following day he was at work as usual.
"How are you this morning, Billy?"
queried the foreman.
"Better, thank ye," said Bill; "but the rheumatics is still on me."
"Rheumatics?" said his surprised superior. "Why, you said you had mumps!"
"That's all right, sir," explained
Bill; "but you see, there wasn't a single soul in the house as could spell rheumatics!"

TIPPU TIP'S POLICY.

The late Hamed ben-Mohammed, or "Tippu Tip," as he was called, not only in Europe but by his African subjects, used to surprise Livingstone, Cameron, Stanley and other explorers
by his exhibition of Arabic court-liness in the midst of the hostile African wilds. Wiser than his son, Sefu, who tried to adapt the progress of the Belgians, he adapted himself to circumstances, retired to private life and spent the last fifteen years of his life at Zanzibar in the enjoyment of his wealth.

"Pa, what's a tip?" "A tip, my son, is a small sum of money which you give a man because you're afraid he won't like not being paid
for something you didn't ask him
to do."

FORTUNES IN OLD STAMPS

HUGE PRICES ARE PAID FOR SOME OF THEM.

One Collection Valued at $1,000,
000—Prince of Wales a Philatelist.

Few people outside the ranks of ardent philatelists have any idea of the enormous growth of the postage-stamp collecting craze during recent years. It is a story full of romance, the financial side of which bristles with figures representing huge fortunes sunk in the tiny scraps of paper which speed the world's correspondence, says the London Express.

Both as a hobby and as a business
stamp-collecting has reached proportions which give it a very important place among mundane pursuits. There are many private collections worth from £2,000 to £200,000, and the capital sunk in the stamp traffic is estimated to be well over £1,000,000.

The financial importance of the trade is illustrated by Stanley Gibbons, Limited, which, by its amalgamation last February with the firm of Glendining, Limited, has a capital of over £117,000. It was the auctioneering department of this firm which sold Mr. Smith-Pyland's small private collection a few days ago for about £2,500, a price which was considered to be very good for an auction sale, especially as the collection offered contained comparatively few great rarities.

But even here there were one or two prices obtained for particular stamps which at once show the keenness of the collector and the business importance of the traffic.
For instance, a Saxony stamp of 1851, with an error of paper, realized £56; a penny red and blue British Central Africa stamp sold for £47; and a penny blue Cape of Good Hope for £38.

Very often far higher prices than
these are obtained for single stamps, though it may be a long time before a stamp realizes anything like the £1,450 paid by the Prince of Wales last year for a twopenny blue Mauritius.

THE PRINCE'S SPECIALTY.

The Prince of Wales is well known to be a very enthusiastic philatelist; but it is not common knowledge that he is a specialist, collecting only the stamps of Great Britain and her colonies. His stamps are worth many thousands of pounds. As president of the Philatelic Society of London, the Prince is regarded as one of the most cultured followers of the science of stamps, and has cleared up several doubtful points through information gathered in his philatelic researches
during his colonial tour.

Two of his sons, Prince Edward and Prince George, have already caught the stamp fascination. Prince Edward is specially interested in the Prince Edward Island stamps, of which he owns a complete set.

Recently a philatelic journal asked its readers their chief reasons for collecting stamps, offering a prize for the best reply. A large majority gave "as an investment" as their first answer, and it is indeed true that postage stamps are not only a safe, but also a highly profitable investment.

Experts say that British Colonial stamps are the best from the investor's point of view, especially those of colonies which have small populations, and therefore print comparatively few stamps.

TEN PER CENT.

It is stated to be only a moderate estimate that the earning value of stamps is ten per cent. As instances of this earning value may be mentioned the 10s. Lagos, which was sold in 1903 for 12s. 6d., and is now worth £4, and the £1 Southern Nigeria, whose market price three years ago was 25s., but is now £8.

Mr. W. Hughes Hughes' collection, made during thirty-seven years, at a cost altogether of only £69, was sold for £3,000. Another collection, that of the late Mr. Pauwels, of Torquay, which originally cost £360, was sold, after lying on one side for twenty-seven years, for £4,000.

No collection of valuables occupies such a little space as postage stamps. The small strong-room at one representative firm's headquarters contains more than £75,000 worth of stamps pasted into stock books and numbered. Some of these stock books, of which there are 180, are worth over £2,000. The Newfoundland stamps alone in this department are valued at £1,569
14s. 6d.

There are 40,000 names of customers in all parts of the world on the books of the firm, the Prince of Wales, with a standing order for all new colonial issues, being among the most important. For these customers about 12,000 catalogues of British and 10,000 of foreign stamps are prepared annually. The stamps sold in a year run into millions, and the albums to at least 30,000.

RARE STAMPS.

Rare stamps, such as some of the Sandwich Islands, Mauritius, and Australian issues, valued at about £500 each, are constantly coming into the market, and are never kept for more than a week.

As collectors are increasing annually, especially in the public schools, and prices and takings are always rising, the traffic generally must be considered to be in a very flourishing condition.

But one does not wonder at this when it is stated that many wealthy collectors spend from £1,000 to £10,000 a year on their hobby, and that one—M. Philippe la Renotiere, of Paris, the greatest collector in the world—has spent £200,000 since 1870. His stamps are worth nearly £800,000, and his annual expenditure with one firm alone averages from £3,000 to £4,000. He employs two secretaries, one to look after his stamps, and the other the postcards, envelopes and wrappers.

Mr. H. J. Duven, of New York, has a collection valued at £80,000;
Mr. W. B. Avery, of Birmingham,
owns stamps worth £50,000; Mr.
M. P. Castle, vice-president of the Philatelic Society, sold his stamps
five years ago for £30,000; and several American collectors have stamps worth from £30,000 to £50,000.

FOREIGN COLLECTORS.

In Russia the most important collector is Mr. F. Breitfuss, of St.
Petersburg, who has been collecting for forty-five years, and is said to possess the third finest collection in the world. Italy's most famous collector is Prince Doria Pamphili and philatelic place of honor in Germany is occupied by Herr Martin Schroeder,
the Leipzig merchant.

The Earl of Crawford and Bal-carres is an example of a collector who, once smitten with the fascination of stamps, has pursued the hobby with such keenness that in a very few years he has become possessed of one of the most magnificent collections of its kind in the world. He started collecting comparatively recently, specializing on the stamps of the British Empire,
the United States, and the Italian States, and his remarkable collection is all the more interesting from the fact that it is based on historical lines.

TRAVEL ON THE OCEAN.

Devices That Have Made Accidents
Almost Unknown.

In the presence of the fearful loss of life in accidents on our railways, it is increasing safety of travel by sea,
says the Scientific American. Year after year passes by without any of the important passenger steamers that cross the Atlantic, or other oceans on which passenger travel is heavy, meeting with an accident that causes risk of life or limb to the passengers. The mail steamers coming that of the best railway schedule and it takes the very fiercest of Atlantic mid-winter gales to interfere seriously with this punctuality. The secret of this security is to be found both in the structure of the ship itself, and in the marvellously inventious devices which science and invention have placed at the service of the navigator to guide him in the more perilous phases of his duty.

The submarine signalling is a close rival to wireless telegraphy in the great increase that it has made in the safety of travel on the sea. One receiver is placed on each side of the ship, with separate wires from each,
and by the use of telephones the officer is able to hear a bell that is being struck at a point many miles distant from the ship, and determine its direction. The officer of the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse states that on the last trip over, when the ship was four miles distant from the mouth of the River Weser he plainly made out the signals conveyed from the lightship there. Furthermore, as the vessel neared Nantucket, and when she was about four miles distant from the lightship, he heard through the telephone the signal
"666." This consists of six strokes of the bell, a pause and then six more strokes of the bell, which is the Nantucket lightship code signal. At about the same distance from Fire
Island light and from Sandy Hook Lightship the respective signals were distinctly audible. The value of this device in preventing collision between approaching ships is evident.

SHOT A BUTTERFLY.

In the British Museum is a rare butterfly, which was obtained in a most unusual way. Probably no other butterfly in any collection in the world was taken in the same manner. On the steamship boat Sydney, New South Wales, several men were amusing themselves by shooting at a mark with a revolver.
Just as one man was about to shoot
he noticed a remarkably large butterfly fluttering toward the ship. When it hovered above the deck he fired and actually managed to hit it. The insect fell to the deck, considerably mangled. The creature was so beautiful, even in its mutilated condition,
that the pieces were carefully collected, and finally they reached a British entomologist, who found that it was a specimen of an entirely new species,
never before seen by the scientific world.

ARE WOMEN UNDERPAID

DO THEY EQUAL MEN IN DO-ING WORK?

Where They Come in Competition
Their Work is Not So Good.

Should women receive the same salaries for doing the same work as men?

This is a vexed question much discussed among women who have to work for their living, says a writer in Pearson's Weekly.

But do women ever do the same work as men—and do it as efficiently?

Outside the more essentially feminine occupations, such as nursing and dressmaking, I make bold to say they do not. And even in these occupations they command less wages
when in competition with men. Why?
Because they cannot do the same work.

When a big, powerful man lies delirious his friends say, "It's no use;
the work's too much for any woman. We shall have to get a male nurse in."

Of course, a male nurse's sheer strength may account for a great deal of that. But what is it that the society dame, when she wants something special in a hurry, rush off to Paris and place an order with a male costumier for one of his exquisite creations?

Is that superior strength? No, it is superior ability. And that, too, as an intruder in woman's own particular domain.

ARE NOT RESPONSIBLE.

In offices women may be quicker
and neater than men in certain departments of work. They may type-write quicker, for instance, and do ledger-work as quickly and more neatly. But be angry with them, or suggest that they should take a bit of responsibility, and you see the woman in them at once.

The duties a woman can perform
in an office or a shop are limited.
She can do a few things. A man is expected to do all things.

Barmen and waiters have a way of slashing through their work that no woman ever had—publican or restaurant keeper will tell you that.
And did you ever see a shop girl
leap the counter as a shopman does,
or bang goods about generally in the hearty business manner a shop-man has?

A woman will do this sort of work prettily and conscientiously, but she won't do as much of it, or keep at it as long.

If a man came along and admitted that he was only able to do his work in woman-fashion no employer would think of giving him a penny
more than woman's wages.

There is another important point with regard to these wages which may be no logical argument, but it is nevertheless, a great social and moral fact.

COSTS LESS TO LIVE.

It costs women less to live than
men.

They eat less and they dress on less. If a woman is a boarder, she expects to pay some cents less a week than a man.

It might also be added that men spend more on themselves—on amusements and so forth.

"Selfish things," I hear the ladies mutter. "Yes, they do."

Yes; but to some extent it is this very expenditure which tends to make them the active, virile creatures they are—able to tackle difficulties and take command of things
where the usual woman would stand by helpless.

If all men were helpless it would be a poor lookout for the women.

Then, again, when a woman is out with a man on pleasure bent—at theatres or elsewhere—the man is expected to "stand" all "exes."

If men's salaries were brought down to the level of women's, and their living expenses continued to be greater, they would have precious little to spare for taking women to theatres—much less marrying them
and keeping them.

"But we don't want their wages brought down," the complaining ladies say. "We only want ours
levelled up."

WOULD DISPLACE WOMEN.

Yes, here's the rub. If they were all levelled up employers would want only men. This alone is argument sufficient to show that women will never command the same wages as men. Employers get women for cheapness.

Of course, there are exceptions to every rule, and it seems a pity exceptional women can't have exceptional wages. But even when these "exceptional" cases are reckoned up,
it will seldom be found that the lady
is really the equal of a first-class man in the same line of business.

She will be more liable to illness,
and will generally be glad to have a man around to whom she can appeal in case of emergency.

As a rule the only way women can command equal remuneration with men is where they shoot up by their own abilities above petty considerations of weekly wages, and competition with weekly-wages men. A big actress, singer, or authoress can command her price like any man—
and deserves it.

NOT QUITE SO BAD.

When he came up the hallway she plucked something from his manly shoulder.

"See," she cried, "a strange hair!
You are a base deceiver."

He shuddered and turned pale.
"Yes," she continued in a cold voice, "you have allowed some boot-black to brush you down instead of waiting for my loving hands to manipulate the brush. Oh, George, you do not love me any more! I can tell it is a strange bristle!"

With a great feeling of relief he told her that she might brush off his coat forever.

CUTS ATLANTIC RECORDS

IN THE GOOD OLD DAYS AND
THE NEW.

Passages of Early Days Are Long
Outclassed—Virginian's Great Feat.

If any evidence were needed to prove that these are go-ahead times
it has been furnished by the new turbine steamer Virginian, of the Allan line, which has so recently knocked a whole day off the Atlantic record—reaching Cape Race, in Newfoundland, four days and six hours after leaving Mobile, in Ireland, says London Tit Bits. One cannot help wondering what our good forefathers
of two or three generations ago
would have said if they had been told that many a child then living would be able to cross the Atlantic in a few hours over four days.

Why, it was the talk and wonder of the world when, in 1819, the good ship Savannah, 350 tons, fitted with an auxiliary paddle steam engine—the first of all ocean-going steamships—made the passage from New York to Liverpool in twenty-six days. In those days of steam navigation it was stated as a thing to marvel at that "some steamboats actually voyaged from Glasgow to Inverary, partly through a strong sea, performing the journey of 110 miles
in sixty hours, and touching at stopping places with almost the regularity of a stage coach. No serious accident has yet occurred and if the boilers of cast iron should give way,
a piece of cloth is firmly wedged
into the hole and the vessel proceeds without any danger to the passengers."

OLD RECORD BREAKERS.

But the Savannah was not destined to hold the supremacy of the Atlantic for after she had led the way so gallantly two other vessels put her performance quite into the shade.
One of them was the Sirius, a Cork packet boat of 703 tons and 27

Marian Mayfield

Or, The Strange Disappearance

CHAPTER XIII.

This was but one of many such meetings, Thurston growing more and more infatuated each time, while Marian scarcely tried to hide the pleasure which his society gave her.

One day when riding through the forest he met Marian returning from the village and on foot. She was radiant with health and beauty, and blushing and smiling with joy as she met him. A little basket hung upon her arm. To dismount and join her, to take the basket from her arm, and to look in her face and declare in broken exclamations his delight at seeing her, were the words and the work of an instant.

"And whither away this morning, fairest Marian?" he inquired, when unrebuked he had pressed her hand to his lips, and drawn it through his arm.

"I have been to the village, and am now going home," said the maiden.

"It is a long walk through the forest."

"Yes; but my pony has cast a shoe and lamed himself slightly, and I fear I shall have to dismount with my services for a few days."

"Thank God!" fervently ejaculated Thurston to himself.

"But it is beautiful weather, and I enjoy walking," said the young girl.

"Marian—dearest Marian, will you let me attend you home? The walk is lonely, and it may not be quite safe for a fair woman to take it unattended."

"I have no fear of interruption," said Marian.

"Yet you will not refuse to let me attend you? Do not, Marian!" he pleaded, earnestly, fervently, clasping her hand, and pouring the whole strength of his soul in the gaze that he fastened on her face.

"I thank you; but you were riding the other way."

"It was merely an idle saunter, to help to kill the time between this and Sunday, dearest girl. Now, rest you, my queen! my queen! upon this mossy rock, as on a throne, while I ride forward and leave my horse. I will be with you again in fifteen minutes; in the meantime here is something for you to look at," he said, drawing from his pocket an elegant little volume bound in purple and gold, and laying it in her lap. He then smiled, sprang into his saddle, bowed, and galloped away, leaving Marian to examine her book. It was a London copy of Spenser's Fairy Queen, superbly illustrated, one of the rarest books to be found in the whole country at that day. On the fly-leaf the name of Marian was written, in the hand of Thurston.

Some minutes passed in the pleasing examination of the volume; and Marian was still turning the leaves with unalloyed pleasure—pleasure in the gift, and pleasure in the giver—when Thurston, even before the appointed time, suddenly rejoined her.

"So absorbed in Spenser that you did not even hear or see me!" said the young man, half reproachfully.

"I was indeed far gone in Fairy Land! Oh, I thank you so much for your beautiful present! It is indeed a treasure. I shall prize it greatly," said Marian, in unfeigned delight.

"Do you know that Fairy Land is not obsolete, dearest Marian?" he said, fixing his eyes upon her charming face with an ardor and earnestness that caused hers to sink.

"Come," she said, in a low voice, and rising from the rock; "let us leave this place and go forward."

They walked on, speaking softly of many things—of the vision of Spenser, of the beautiful autumnal weather, of anything except the one interest that now occupied both hearts. The fear of startling her bashful trust, and banishing those bewitching glances that sometimes lightened on his face, made him cautious, and restrained his eagerness; while excessive consciousness kept her cheeks dyed with blushes, and her nerves vibrating sweet, wild music, like the strings of some aeolian harp when swept by the swift south wind.

He determined, during the walk, to plead his love, and ascertain his fate. Alas! but how approach the subject when, at every ardent glance or tone, her face, her heart, shrank and closed up, like the leaves of the sensitive plant.

So they rambled on, discovering new beauties in nature; now it would be merely an oak leaf of rare richness of coloring; now some tiny insect with finished elegance of form; now a piece of the dried branch of a tree that Thurston picked up, to bid her note the delicately blending shades in its gray hue, or the curves and lines of grace in its twisted form—the beauty of its slow return to dust; and now perhaps it would be the mingled colors in the heaps of dried leaves drifted at the foot of some great tree.

And then from the minute loveliness of nature's sweet, small things, their eyes would wander to the great glory of the autumnal sky, or the variegated array of the gorgeous forest.

Thurston knew a beautiful glade, not far distant, to the left of their path, from which there was a very fine view that he wished to show his companion. And he led Marian thither by a little moss-bordered, descending path.

It was a natural opening in the forest, from which, down a still, descending vista, between the trees, could be seen the distant bay, and the open country near it, all glowing under a refulgent sky, and hazy with the golden mist of Indian Summer. Before them the upper branches of the nearest trees formed a natural arch—the picture.

Marian stood and gazed upon the wondrous beauty of the scene with soft, steady eyes, with lips breathlessly severed, in perfect silence and growing emotion.

"This pleases you," said Thurston. She nodded, without removing her gaze.

"You find it charming?"

She nodded again, and smiled.

"You were never here before?"

"Never."

"Marian, you are a lover of nature."

"I do not know," she said, softly, "whether it be love, or worship, or both; but some pictures spell-bind me. I stand amidst a scene like this, enchanted, until my soul has absorbed as much of its beauty and glory and wisdom as it can absorb. As the Ancient Mariner held with his 'glittering eye' the wedding guest, so such a picture holds me enthralled until I have heard the story and learned the lesson it has to tell and teach me. Did you ever, in the midst of nature's liberal ministrations, feel your spirit absorbing, assimilating, growing? Or is it only a fantastic notion of mine that beauty is the food of soul?"

She turned her eloquent eyes full upon him.

He forgot his prudence, forgot her claims, forgot everything, and caught and strained her to his bosom, pressing passionate kisses upon her lips, and the next instant he was kneeling at her feet, imploring her to forgive him—to hear him.

Marian stood with her face bowed and hidden in her hands; but above the tips of her fingers, her forehead, crimsoned, might be seen. One half her auburn hair had escaped and rippled down in glittering disorder. And so she stood a few moments. But soon, removing her hands and turning away, she said, in a troubled tone:

"Rise. Never kneel to any creature; that homage is due the Creator alone. Oh, rise!"

"First pardon me—first hear me, beloved girl."

"Oh, rise—rise, I beg you! I cannot bear to see a man on his knees, except in prayer to God!" she said, walking away.

He sprang up and followed her, took her hand, and, with gentle compulsion, made her sit down upon a bank; and then he sank beside her, exclaiming eagerly, vehemently, yet in a low, half-smothered tone:

"Marian, I love you! I never spoke these words to woman before, for I never loved before. Marian, the first moment that I saw you I loved you, without knowing what new life it was that had kindled in my nature. I have loved you more and more every day! I love you more than words can tell or heart conceive! I only live in your presence! Marian! not one word or glance for me? Oh, speak!"

"Turn your dear face toward me," he said, putting his hand around her head. "Speak to me, Marian, for I adore—I worship you!"

"I do not deserve to be loved in that way. I do not wish it, for it is wrong—idolatrious," she said, in a low, trembling voice.

"Oh! what do you mean? Is the love upon which my life seems to hang so offensive to you? Say, Marian! Oh! you are compassionate by nature; how can you keep me in the torture of suspense?"

"I do not keep you so."

"You will let me love you?"

Marian slipped her hand in his; that was her reply.

"You will love me?"

For an answer she gently pressed his fingers. He pressed her hand to his heart, to his lips, covering it with kisses.

"Yet, oh! speak to me, dearest; let me hear from your lips that you love me—a little—but better than I deserve. Will you? Say, Marian! Speak, dearest girl!"

"I cannot tell you now," she said, in a low, thrilling tone. "I am disturbed; I wish to grow quiet; and I must go home. Let us return."

One more passionate kiss of the hand he clasped, and then he helped her to her feet, drew her arm within his own, and led her up the moss-covered rocks that formed the natural steps of the ascent that led to the homeward path.

They were now near the verge of the forest, which, when they reached, Marian drew her arm from his, and, extending her hand, said:

"This is the place our roads part."

"But you will let me attend you home?"

"No; it would make the return walk too long."

"That can be no consideration. I beg you will let me go with you, Marian."

"No; it would not be convenient to Edith to-day," said Marian, quickly drawing her hand from his detaining grasp, waving him adieu, and walking swiftly away across the meadow.

Thurston gazed after her, strongly tempted to follow her; yet withal admitting that it was best that she had declined his escort to the cottage, and thanking Heaven that the opportunity would again be afforded to take an "incidental" stroll with her, as she should walk to church on Sunday morning; and so, forming the resolution to haunt the forest-path from seven o'clock that next Sabbath morning until he should see her, Thurston hurried home.

And how was it with Marian? She hastened to the cottage, laid off her bonnet and shawl, and set herself at work as diligently as usual; but a higher bloom glowed on her cheek, a softer, brighter light beamed in her eye, a warmer, sweeter smile hovered around her lips, a deeper, richer tone thrilled in her voice.

On Sunday morning the lovers "chanced" to meet again—for so Thurston would still have had it appear as he permitted Marian to overtake him in the forest on her way to the Sunday-school.

She was blooming and beautiful as the morning itself as she approached. He turned with a radiant smile to greet her.

"Welcome! thrice welcome, dearest one! Your coming is more joyous than that of day. Welcome, my own, dear Marian! May I now call you mine? Have I read that angel-smile aright? Is it the blessed herald of a happy answer to my prayer?" he whispered, as he took her hand and passed his arm around her head and brought it down upon his bosom.

"Speak, my Marian! Speak, my beloved! Are you my own, as I am yours?"

Her answer was so low-toned that he had to bend his head down close to her lips to hear her murmur:

"I love you dearly. But I love you too well to ruin your prospects. You must not bind yourself to me just yet, dear Thurston," and meekly and gently she sought to slip from his embrace.

But he slid his arm around her lightly, bending his head and whispering eagerly:

"What mean you, Marian? Your words are incomprehensible."

"Dear Thurston," she answered, in a tremulous and thrilling voice, "I have known your grandfather long by report, and I am well aware of his character and disposition and habits. But only yesterday I chanced to learn from one who was well informed that old Mr. Wilcoxen had sworn to make you his heir only upon condition of your finding a bride of equal or superior fortunes. If now you were to engage yourself to me, your grandfather would disinherit you, I love you too well," she murmured very low, "to ruin your fortunes. You must not bind yourself to me just now, Thurston."

And this loving, frank and generous creature was the woman, he thought, whose good name he would have periled in a clandestine courtship in preference to losing his inheritance by an open betrothal. A stab of compunction pierced his bosom; he felt that he loved her more than ever, but passion was stronger than affection, stronger than conscience, stronger than anything in nature, except pride and ambition. He lightened his clasp about her waist—he bent and whispered:

"Beloved Marian, is it to bind me only that you hesitate?"

"Only that," she answered, softly.

"Now hear me, Marian. I swear before Heaven, and in the sight—that as I have never loved woman before you—that as I love you only of all women—I will be faithful to you while I live upon this earth! as your husband, if you will accept me, as your exclusive lover, whether you will or not! I hold myself pledged to you as long as we both shall live! There, Marian! I am bound to you as tight as vows can bind! I am pledged to you whether you accept my pledge or not. You cannot even release, for I am pledged to Heaven as well. There, Marian, you see I am bound, while you only are free. Come! be generous! You have said that you loved me! Pledge yourself to me in like manner. We are both young, dear Marian, and we can wait. Only let me have my promise to be my wife—only let me have that blessed assurance for the future, and I can endure the present. Speak, dear Marian."

"Your grandfather—"

"He has no grudge against you, personally, sweet girl; he knows nothing, suspects nothing of my preferences—how should he? No, dearest girl—his notion that I must have a moneyed bride is the merest whim of dotage; we must forgive the whims of ninety-five. That great age also avails for us a short engagement and a speedy union!"

"Oh! never let us dream of that! It would be sinful, and draw down upon us the displeasure of Heaven. Long may the old man yet live to prepare for a better life."

"Amen; so be it; God forbid that I should grudge the aged patriarch his few remaining days upon earth—days, too, upon which his soul's immortal welfare may depend," said Thurston. "But, dearest girl, it is more difficult to get a reply from you than from a prime minister. Answer now, once for all, sweet girl! since I am forever bound to you; will you pledge yourself to become my own dear wife?"

"Yes," whispered Marian, very lowly.

"And will you," he asked, gathering her form closer to his bosom, "will you redeem that pledge when I demand it?"

"Yes," she murmured sweetly, "so that it is not to harm you, or bring you into trouble or poverty; for that I would not consent to do!"

"God bless you, you are an angel! Oh! Marian! I find it in my heart to sigh because I am so unworthy of you!"

"And this was spoken most sincerely."

"You think too well of me, I fear—I fear for the consequences."

"Why, dearest Marian?"

"Oh, I fear that when you know me better you may love me less," she answered, in a trembling voice.

"Why should I?"

"Oh! because your love may have been attracted by ideal qualities, with which you yourself have invested me; and when your eyes are opened you may love me less."

"May my soul forever perish the day that I cease to love you!" said Thurston, passionately pressing her to his heart, and sealing his fearful oath upon her pure brow and guileless lips. "And now, beloved! this compact is sealed! Our fates are united! Henceforth nothing shall disperse us!"

They were now drawing near the village.

Marian suddenly stopped.

"Dear Thurston," she said, "if you are seen waiting upon me to church do you know what the people will say? They will say that Marian has a new admirer in Mr. Wilcoxen—and that will reach your grandfather's ears, and give you trouble."

"Stay! one moment, beautiful Marian! When shall we meet again?"

"When Heaven wills."

"And when will that be, fairest?"

"I do not know; but do not visit me at the cottage, dear Thurston, it would be indiscreet."

A HEARTLESS FAMILY.

There had been a severe thunderstorm in the night, and old Mrs. Topham had, for a wonder, slept through it. Usually she rose, lighted her lamp, dressed herself, and sat down in a chair whose legs were set in glass tumbler.

Instead of being grateful that she had not been aware of the storm, the old lady was filled with wrath when she heard of it the next morning.

"I declare, I should think I was boarding 'stead of living among my own folks!" she said. "Wan't there one of my children nor grandchildren that thought enough o' me to wake me? There I might have been struck by lightning in my sleep and never known what killed me!"

A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Uncle Eeastus, the village plasterer and white-washer, who married and buried four wives, was about to acquire a fifth. He went to the house of the Presbyterian minister, a venerable man who had officiated at several of his previous weddings, to make arrangements to be married there the following evening.

"Of course I shall be glad to marry you to your new wife. Uncle 'Rastus," said the minister. "This will be the third or fourth time for me, won't it? How does it happen, uncle, that you never have a colored preacher tie the knot for you?"

"Well, sah," he answered, "I's kind o' got in de habit o' gittin' a white man to do my marryin', an' I reckon I'll allus do it. I's terrible sot in my ways, Mistah Pa'ker."

About the Farm

GERM DISEASES AND SWINE.

Hog cholera and swine plague are the chief germ diseases that afflict swine, writes Prof. Thomas Shaw. It would be correct to say of the first that it causes greater loss to swine growers than all other swine diseases put together. It is a veritable scourge to the swine industry. In a single season in some of the corn states the losses run far into the millions, although the germ is known and although it is known how it does its work. It has been found impossible to eradicate it entirely owing to a lack of vigilance and unity of action on the part of swine growers. It has been made a source of constant study by the best veterinary talent in the land during recent years, and yet no entirely practicable method has been found by which the animal may be made proof against the disease. The man who discovers this will be deserving of the best honor that his country can bestow.

Hog cholera is in a marked degree a disease that affects the bowels, but of course other organs are also affected. The bowels become ulcerated to a considerable extent. In some cases, dark blood-stained spots appear in the large intestine and in some instances clots of blood. The ulcers in the living membrane of the large intestine are very numerous and the lungs frequently show evidences of pneumonia.

Among the external indications are a deep red or purple tint of the skin on those parts of the body where the hair is thin, as on the flanks or inside of the forelegs. The animals become very stupid and refuse food. In some instances the disease works very rapidly. In less than 24 hours from the manifestation of the first symptoms, the animal attacked will be dead. In other instances the disease works so slowly that the animal will linger for months before the indications of sure recovery become apparent. Such animals, however, should be slaughtered as they are not worth very much subsequently, as a rule, and during the whole time that they are affected they are a source from which disease germs may be scattered.

DEGREES OF VIRULENCE.

The disease differs greatly in its virulence. Some seasons it is much more severe than others, and the same is true of the difference in action in different herds. Sometimes only a part of the animals are affected, in other instances scarcely an animal escapes attack or lives.

Sometimes the losses are not nearly so serious. Generally, however, they are serious. These differences arise from two causes. The first is the difference in condition in the animals at the time of the attack. The second is the difference in the nature of the germ. It has been noticed, first, that swine fed largely on pasture, field roots and nitrogenous foods are much less subject to the disease than those fed almost entirely on corn and that with the latter the disease is much more violent.

It has been noticed that in seasons where fresh corn is fed with much freedom the disease is usually more virulent than at other times. It is thus very evident that there is some relation between stamina or the opposite and also certain kinds of feeding and virulence in the disease. But there is probably even a greater difference in the character of the germ. According to Reynolds there are no fewer than six varieties of the hog cholera bacillus and these differ in the degrees of their virulence.

The germs come through various sources. They may be carried by streams to which the infected swine have access, or in which the dead carcasses have been thrown. They may be carried on the feet of dogs or pigeons or other birds that may have come in contact with them. They are carried on the boots or shoes of men. They are brought by swine which have come in contact with them in cars. In fact, they would seem to be like the pestilence that walks in darkness. They come as it were without anyone knowing how, but without anyone knowing, however, they come, they come as a germ.

When the disease appears the well animals should at once be separated from the sick. If possible they should have the run of a large field to lessen the chances of infection. They should be kept on a moderate diet of food reasonably succulent. Those that die should be promptly buried or burned, not less than 3 or 4 feet, so that no animal can uncover them. Those badly affected should be slaughtered unless they recover speedily. It is apparently useless to give treatment, although some think differently. It is a singularly fatal disease under some conditions and a troublesome one in any case, hence no pains should be spared in guarding against the infection.

SWINE PLAGUE.

Swine plague is much like hog cholera in its symptoms, and though less common is about equally fatal when it appears. Among the early symptoms of both diseases are the high color of skin already referred to. The hair becomes harsh, the eyes sunken and frequently watery, and the locomotion of the hind legs weak and irregular. After a time the skin of the ears becomes much inflamed and sometimes sloughs off. In swine plague, however, coughing and heavy breathing are much more marked than in hog cholera. The centre of the disease in swine plague is rather in the lungs, while in hog cholera it is in the bowels. The treatment for both is much the same.

There is another kind of cholera, according to Reynolds, which can hardly be called a germ disease, in the sense in which the two diseases discussed above are germ diseases. It arises from an uncleaned and ill-cared for swill barrel. Germs develop, it may be, under certain conditions of weather which cause some disturbance of the digestion in some or in all the hogs to which it is fed.

Hog cholera germs may live for three and even four months, hence if swine are to be brought into the old quarters within a shorter period, thorough disinfection must be given. Corrosive sublimate dissolved in water in the proportion of 15 grains to each quart of water will answer well. Whitewash will also answer, made by using water that contains 4 per cent. pure carbolic acid.

A—I visited my native place last week. Thought I would show my old schoolfellows how prosperous I had been since I left home."

B—"Did they seem to appreciate your rise in the world?" A—"Well, I should say so. Almost every man I met wanted to borrow a dollar."

Mr. Bull—"What on earth's the use of a sign-post like this?"

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

The three were talking when the overlying strata gave way, precipitating about 200 tons of coarse gravel onto them burying them completely. This nutritive tonic is guaranteed to strengthen all women and children. Weak organs get new force, vital energy is generated. Muscle and fat are added, healthy color is restored, and the blood fairly tingles with new found life.

Read the evidence of Jno Carter, of 424 King Street East Toronto, who says:

"After a severe attack of Grippe my health was almost shattered. I suffered constantly from nervousness and dyspepsia. At night I would wake with terrible palpitation and heart pains. Work became a great effort. At ten in the morning I was so tired and weak I could hardly work another minute.

"Then came a bad attack of rheumatism, which laid me up in bed. I could scarcely lift the weight of a pound, and to stoop or bend was impossible. My druggist recommended Ferrozone, and he knew what he was talking about, for it rebuilt my strength, gave me abundant appetite, better blood, and new nerve energy. The rheumatism has disappeared. I weigh more, feel refreshed and vigorous, and am able to work ten hours a day. Ferrozone did it all."

You will be startled, toned and strengthened for all time to come with Ferrozone. Get the genuine in 50c, boxes or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or N. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

SENATOR FULFORD'S WILL.

Estate Valued At $4,820,019—Brockville Hospital Handsomely Remembered.

Brockville, October 31.—The will of Senator Fulford, who died at Newton, Mass., on October 15, as the result of an auto car collision, was entered today for probate in the Surrogate Court at this place. The estate is valued at $4,820,019. Of this amount, $74,610 is in real estate: a low estimate of his home "Fulford Place" and his fine business block on King street. The balance of the estate is estimated as follows: Bonds and debentures, $1,907,578; stocks, $2,633,727; mortgages, $26,820; Insurance, $100,000; promissory notes, $15,000; household furniture and other personal effects, $58,500.

The chief provisions are as follows: The executors, the Toronto general Trust Corporation, are given full power to manage and control the whole estate. They are authorized to keep the investments as they stand at the time of taking them over, and have full power to reinvest the same from time to time. They are directed to continue the business of G. T. Fulford & Co. by converting it into a joint stock company, as soon as possible. They have full powers regarding the organizing of such company and subsequent control so long as they keep the controlling interest in the state. The income from the business is to be treated as capital from year to year and added to testators private investments. A period of accumulation of ten years is provided for, at which time 10 per cent of the total amount of the estate, so long as the 10 per cent of the total amount of the estate, so long as the 10 per cent does not exceed $400,000 in all shall be set apart out of the personal estate to be paid to the Brockville General Hospital, for the purpose of establishing a home for indigent Protestant old women residents Canada, provision being made for the board of the inmates by an endowment fund. The sum of $25,000 is also left direct to the Brockville General Hospital and the will further provides that in default, finally of all descendants that the estate shall revert to the hospital. The widow is given the use of "Fulford's Place" and all contents together with $25,000 per annum during her life. Each of the daughters are to receive $12,000 a year until the age of 25, and each shall be provided with a house if she shall so desire, not exceeding in cost $50,000, and to be settled on them and their children. Although the will was drawn before the birth of George Taylor Fulford, jr., it provides that Fulford Place shall be settled on him together with $10,000 per annum for his maintenance in perpetuity so far as the law allows, and in case he should die without issue, then the property goes to the daughters in succession of age. As each child attains the age of 25 years, he or she, is to receive one-third of ninety per cent of the income of the estate, exclusive of the income from the business and at the end of 10 years, one-third of income of the estate after all annuities are paid. On the death of any of the children without leaving issue, their share shall revert to the estate, and should any child die leaving children such children will be entitled to his or her share in the capital of the estate. Several minor annuities and bequests are made to near relatives. The following receive sums of from $1,000 to $5,000 each: H. B. Fulford Chicago; Wm. H. McNish, Charles McNish, G. P. McFish, Lyn, Ontario, nephews; Harris, Scherer, cousin, and George Fulford, grandson, of Chenecady Capt. Mallette, of the Senator's steam yacht, gets $50 per month during his life. Those who figure in the will for annuities of $50 and $75 per month, are his two sisters, Mrs. E. L. Hitchcock, Brockville, and one brother, J. H. Fulford, of this town. A. C. Hardy, son-in-law is to receive $50,000 as a loan should he desire to go into business, and the same amount is to be loaned to George A. Sheriff, New York, in case he should desire to go to business. Mr. Sheriff is a prospective son-in-law. Mrs. A. C. Hardy, the eldest daughter, is left "Thorneton Cliff," the property adjoining "Fulford Place," at present occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hardy.

The will is dated February 12, 1902, and has two codicils, one of November 19, 1902 a second of October 13, 1905, the latter being in Newton, Mass., two days before his death. In the last codicil an annuity of $10,000 per annum was made to Mrs. Fulford for the maintenance of the "Magedoma" Senator Fulford's yacht, which shall also be paid to the son, should he desire to keep her in commission in later years. Will payment to the senator's children are to be with out power of anticipation.

The executors have filed with the succession duties office at Toronto a bond $500,000 to secure payment of the duties but this does not intimate what the amount will be, which can only be determined when the full details of valuation are gone into by the department.

On the 25th anniversary of Senator Fulford's marriage, which occurred early this year he made a donation of $10,000 to be applied towards the erection of a home for the nursing staff of the Brockville General Hospital.

STORY OF CRIME BY BOY BURGLAR.

Caught Near Montreal After Escape From Jail.

Montreal, Oct. 27.—There was a man hunt in Rouville County, Quebec, yesterday. For seventy-two hours a score or more of provincial officers were beating the woods surrounding Beloeil Mountain trying to capture Albert Benoit and Rudolph Goyette, two of the most remarkable boy burglars that have ever been known in the criminal annals of America. A little after 10 yesterday success crowned the efforts of the authorities, and the two evildoers were captured. The two boys escaped from the St. Hyacinthe Jail on Monday evening.

Benoit who is a boy 17 years old, in a confession told a remarkable story. His story:

"I had always been a great reader of dime novels and sensational novels pertaining to burglars and highwaymen, and the conviction gradually grew on me that if the business was properly conducted it would be a very profitable one with great rewards in it and little chance of capture, and I was for months waiting an opportunity to go into it.

"This year I went home and worked for a while, but I got so little pay and so very little fun out of it, with so much hard labor, that I made up my mind that it was time to start out as a burglar. I travelled all the way down the River St. Lawrence as far as Trois Pistoles. Sometimes I had a partner and sometimes I had not.

"My start in my new business was most successful. I had a big time in Trois Pistoles, as well as in St. Jean, Port Joli, Levis, Three Rivers, and a few other places. I made about three or four hauls a week, and managed to get together about $6,000 worth of jewelry and other valuable things, which I gradually shipped up to St. Hyacinthe with the intention of selling it when opportunity offered to some of the people in Montreal who deal in stolen property.

"I had one great disappointment in Three Rivers because I could not break in a safe which contained a large amount of jewelry, but I have not yet gotten up that high in my business, although that will soon come no doubt.

"I know that if I go to the penitentiary I will come out a good deal worse than when I went in. I will meet a great many first-class burglars and highwaymen and thieves, and I will learn a great many more wrinkles about my business than I know now.

"I have never killed anyone yet, because there has never been any occasion for doing so, no one has ever interfered with my liberty in such a way that I could use a gun on them, but I would not hesitate in the least to shoot anyone that would do so if the opportunity were given me.

"I do not think I will ever be hanged, I think that even if I am sentenced to death at some future date that I shall always have the chance of putting a bullet in myself or escaping the scaffold in some other way.

"The way in which we were caught was funny, I was partners then with Goyette, and we had made it a rule to commit at least two burglaries a week. We figured out that there must be a lot of money and valuables in some of the convents, and thought it would be a good thing to go through them, so we started out at the Convent of the Precious Blood. We got in all right but there was very little money or anything of value to be found in the lower storey, so we mounted up higher and I suppose we were not careful enough and the noise we made woke up some of the nuns.

"We got out of prison on Monday evening by pulling a hook out of the wall and prying out of a wooden ceiling. Through that we climbed up into the ward above, which had been left unlocked, as it contained no prisoners. Then we walked down to the flat below and waited until some voices which we heard in the sheriff's office was hushed. We then went to the sheriff's office on the main floor, opened one of the windows, and walked out."

The Latest and Best Medicine for Women

Medicine has made great strides during the past few years. Doctors do not prescribe the same remedies now they did twenty-five years ago. There is something better. Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women are vastly better than the remedies put on the market then, which contain none of the medical discoveries since that time.

Good, perhaps, in their day, they are now superseded in the march of medical science by something better.

Many of the most effective ingredients in Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets had not been discovered twenty-five years ago. Some of them were not discovered ten years ago.

Yet the world's best physicians are now using them in diseases of women. There is no other preparation in which they can be obtained except these tablets. That is why we term Dr. Hugo's remedy "The twentieth century preparation for women." It is up-to-date. Women cannot afford to ignore these recently discovered ingredients, which science has made possible for their relief.

It is an incontrovertible fact that these tablets, embracing as they do, all the latest and best in medicine, will change weak and diseased organs (no matter which they may be) into strong and healthy organs, when the tired feeling, nervousness, and irritability, which come from a run-down condition, will disappear.

They will take away the backache, constipation, and dragging-down pains which are symptoms of a run-down condition or some serious disorder. They will cure all menstruation or uterine troubles even when chronic. In a word, they make healthy women.

Don't think you can never be a strong, healthy woman until after you have tried these tablets. One box will prove that you can. Improvement is noticed the first week.

ONE THING AT A TIME.

Robert Jaggsby's countenance was not at any time remarkable for indications of intellectual brilliance, but now, as he stood before the camera for the purpose of "being took," his expression was so inane that even the polite photographer was moved to protest.

"You'll excuse me," he remarked, "but do you want this photograph for a beauty competition or an advertisement for a new rat poison? Because, if it's for any other purpose you'd better try to look a trifle more pleasant."

"That's just the trouble," exclaimed Robert, "you see, I've the misfortune to be a trifle handy, and I'm trying to hold my knees so that I won't show. When I smile I forget about my knees, and when I pay attention to my knees I forget to smile."

Wife—"Well, if the husbands of other women don't give them any more to put in their purses than you give me to put in mine, the thief would starve to death."

A WOMAN'S HEALTH.

Depends Upon the Richness and Regularity of Her Blood.

A woman needs a blood medicine regularly just because she is a woman. From maturity to middle life the health and happiness of every woman depends upon her blood, its richness and its regularity. If her blood is poor and watery, she is weak and languid, pale and nervous. If her blood is irregular she suffers untold torture from headaches, backaches and sideaches, and other unspeakable distress which only women know. Some women have grown to expect this suffering at regular intervals, and bear it in hopeless silence. But they would escape the greater part of it if they took a box or two of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills each time to help them over the critical period. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually make new blood. They help a woman just when nature makes the greatest demand upon her blood supply. They have done this for thousands of women throughout Canada—why shouldn't they do that much for you? Mrs. James Candy, 25 Edith avenue, Toronto, says: "I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a medicine that should be taken regularly by every woman in the land. I suffered greatly from those ailments that only a woman knows. I had backaches and headaches, and a weary bearing down pain. I was very irregular, and was often forced to go to bed for two or three days at a time. I tried many medicines, but got nothing to help me until I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and they have given me new health and relief from pain, and made me regular. I cannot say how thankful I am for what the medicine has done for me, and I would urge all women who suffer as I did to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest cure in all the wide world for all the weakness and backaches of anaemia, all the heaviness and distressing pains of neuralgia, rheumatism, lumbago and sciatica, and all the other ills that come from poor, weak, watery blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new blood with every dose, and thus strikes right at the root of nearly every disease that afflicts humanity. But remember that the "just as good medicines" that some druggists offer never cured anyone or anything. Insist upon the genuine pills with the full name Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People on the wrapper around every box. If in doubt send to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the pills will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50.

WISDOM'S WHISPERS.

Some men have the art of keeping quiet without creating the impression they are in ill-temper.

A woman thinks a man never should be too much absorbed in his own affairs to be attentive to her.

Men play cards as though their entire reputation were at stake in the result of the game.

Women usually regard an apology from another woman as only an excuse to repeat the cause therefore.

Men dislike ever so much being accused of having anything in the way of personal vanity.

Women manage to work up the idea that their opinions are at all times worthy of the most careful consideration.

Men sometimes create serious complications through a disposition to make frivolous remarks intended to be funny.

A woman becomes exceedingly irritable when she thinks a shopkeeper is not giving her orders exclusive attention.

It is easy for a man to convince himself he knows how to settle effectively a bothersome woman.

Magistrate (sternly):—"Didn't I tell you the last time you were here I never wanted you to come before me again?" Prisoner—"Yes, sir; but I couldn't make the policeman believe it."

Sunlight Soap is better than other soaps, but is best when used in the Sunlight way.

ROYAL LOVE SCENES.

Some Pretty Scenes of Historic Wooings.

Royal courtships are usually very cut-and-dried affairs. It is therefore delightful to find in some of them even the slightest trace of the romantic.

It is seldom a king has the hardihood to oppose his ministers in the choice of a wife. Yet the father of the present King of Spain did so, and that, too, at a time when Spain was in a very unsettled state. His ministers took an early opportunity to suggest marriage to Alfonso XII. The young king declared himself willing, and named his cousin Mercedes, daughter of the Duke of Montpensier, as the lady he intended to marry.

The Ministers were horrified; the King's relatives were furious. The reason was that Montpensier's money and ambition had helped the revolution which dethroned Alfonso's mother, Isabella II. But the King and Mercedes had fallen in love with each other, and all protests were in vain. But, alas! in six short months Mercedes was in her tomb, leaving Alfonso a broken-hearted widower.

Perhaps the most romantic Royal wooing was that of the late Empress of Austria. Francis Joseph went to stay with Duke Maximilian of Bavaria, to celebrate his betrothal with the Duke's eldest daughter, Helene. Soon after his arrival, the young Emperor was walking in the park, when he met Helene's younger sister, Elizabeth. She greeted him with: "God guard you, cousin!" and impulsively flung her arms round his neck.

The Emperor promptly fell deeply in love with her. His mother gave a ball, to which Elizabeth was invited; but, not having made her debut at Court, she had to decline. The Emperor, however, made his own attendance conditional on Elizabeth's presence, and insisted that the Princess should be there. Between the dances he showed her an album, containing pictures of Austrians in their National costumes.

"They are my subjects," he told her. "Say one word, and you shall rule them, too."

The reply was satisfactory. But the Duke was furious at the affront put upon Princess Helene, and high words passed. At last however, he reluctantly gave his consent.

NOTHING.

What is a brook without water? What is a bar without booze? What is a war without slaughter? What is a horse without shoes? What is a babe without dimples? What is a pen without ink? What is a quack without simples? What is a bank without chink? What is a dance without mince? What is a store without bins? What is a hug without kisses? And what is a girl without pins?

PRUDENT MOTHERS.

The prudent mother will never give her child a sleeping draught, soothing medicine or opiate of any kind except by order of a competent doctor who has seen the child. All soothing medicines and sleeping draughts contain deadly poison, an overdose will kill a child, and they never do good as they only stupefy and do not cure. Sleeplessness in little ones usually comes from teething troubles or derangements of the stomach or bowels, that can be speedily cured by Baby's Own Tablets. And the mother should remember that this is the only medicine for children that gives a solemn guarantee that there is not a particle of opiate or harmful drug in its composition.

Mrs. Scott, Bradwardine, Man., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for diarrhoea, teething troubles and constipation, and find them just the thing to make little ones well and keep them well." Sold by all druggists or by mail at 25 cents by writing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MUST NOT BE DIGNIFIED.

Vivacious Smiles Make for More Popularity.

The grave, statuesque beauty has disappeared from the photographer's show cases in London, and vivacious damsels wearing most bewitching smiles reign in her stead says a London paper.

A couple of seasons ago smiling was almost prohibited by the code of proprieties, which only recognized the soulful, pensive style of feminine loveliness. But with the sudden rage for lightness and brightness the smile has recaptured old power, and dignity and solemnity are consequently at a discount. Every one is assiduously cultivating a most delightful smile.

The studio of the fashionable photographer has become an art gallery of laughing faces suggestive of drollery advertisements.

Another pictorial barometer to fashions in feminine expression is the picture postcard, the makers of which have found that smiling leaviness is far and away the favorite with the public. The three most popular postcard beauties this season are Miss Marie Studholme, Miss Gertrude Miller and Miss Ellaline Terriss, all of whom show most captivating smiles in their photographs.

"Smile and be healthy," is the latest society dictum, and the less conservative among the medical advisers are strongly recommending smiling as an alternative to tonics and drugs.

"There is no doubt about it," observed a West End physician, "that laughter is most beneficial to health."

"There are physiological reasons why smiling is beneficial, which may be readily comprehended by the lay mind. For one thing it accelerates the circulation, and so aids digestion. It relieves the brain by quickening the movement of the blood through the veins and vessels. Moreover, even an artificial smile produces a considerable increase of vital activity, because it heightens nervous stimulation."

WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR H. M. SPEARS.

Thought he Would have to Stop Work but the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy Made Him Strong and Active.

Antigonish, N.S., Oct. 30.—(Special).—Mr. H. M. Spears, a well-known farmer living near here, is shouting the praises of Dodd's Kidney Pills. "When I came to Nova Scotia about six years ago," says Mr. Spears, "I was so troubled with backache I began to think I could not attend to business. However, I got a box of Dodd's Kidney Pills and was able to attend to work."

"I had not taken enough to root the Kidney disease out entirely however and the following winter I was troubled with pains in my back and limbs. Then I got more of Dodd's Kidney Pills and after using three boxes all my pains and lameness left me."

"I can't say too much in favor of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They put me in a way to attend to business after two doctors had failed. I was a cheese-maker for years, but now I am a farmer with a good strong back. Lameness is the first symptom of Kidney Disease. Cure it with Dodd's Kidney Pills and you will never have Bright's Disease."

"That naval cadet is popular with the girls, isn't he?" Yes, he's a regular sea lion."

There can be a difference of opinion on most subjects, but there is only one opinion as the reliability of Mother Spears' Worm Exterminator. It is safe, sure and effectual.

She—"You will love me always?" He—"Passionately, my darling."

She—"And you will never cease to love me?"

He—"Never, my darling."

She—"And you will save your money?"

He—"Every penny."

She—"And you will never speak harshly to me?"

He—"Never."

She—"And you will give up all your bad habits?"

He—"Every one of them."

She—"And you will be amiable with mamma?"

He—"Yes."

She—"And just what papa wants you to do?"

He—"Yes."

She—"And just what I want you to do?"

He—"Of course."

She—"Well, I will be yours; but I fear I am making an awful mistake."

Mrs. McCall—"I do wish I could get a good maid." Mrs. Vandine—"You might interview mine. I think she'd be delighted to go to you." Mrs. McCall—"But why don't you keep her?" Mrs. Vandine—"Oh, she won't stay! She says she wants a place where she won't have so many dresses and hats to take care of."

Biliousness Burdens Life.—The bilious man is never a companionable man because his ailment renders him morose and gloomy. The complaint is not so dangerous as it is disagreeable. Yet no one need suffer from it who can procure Parment's Vegetable Pills. By regulating the liver and obviating the effects of bile in the stomach they restore men to cheerfulness and full vigor of action.

Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets.

—Medical science by accident discovered the potency of the pineapple as a panacea for stomach troubles. The immense percentage of vegetable pepsin contained in the fruit makes it an almost indispensable remedy in cases of dyspepsia and indigestion. THE DOCTOR WAS SOFTENED.

A city physician, who is described as possessing a "hair-trigger" temper, although he does not suspect it, tells of one of the many experiences which try his patience; but this one touched his sympathies too.

It isn't often that I get out of patience, said the doctor, but yesterday I was tried beyond endurance; worried by the senseless talk of women who make a fad of being invalids, and worried still worse over the case of a woman who has been smiling at death for months. Just as I thought my evening's work was over a stranger insisted on seeing me. She was young and elegantly dressed, and carried a covered basket on her arm.

"I want you to see Toby," she said. "He has such a cough." Here she opened the basket and took out an ordinary black and white cat. "I took off his collar to have it mended, and I'm afraid he took cold, poor dear. Can't you help him?"

I was angry all through. "I am not a cat doctor, madam," I said. I was going to ask her why she didn't find something better to take up her time than a cat, but she evidently didn't see that I was out of patience.

"But couldn't you do something for him?" she went on. "We're so fond of him. He was our little girl's pet, the very last thing she ever spoke about before she died, and we prize it for her sake."

Yes, I did. I treated that cat, and I'm proud to say I cured him.

People Will Drink Coffee When It "Does Such Things."

"I began to use Postum because the old kind of coffee had so poisoned my whole system that I was on the point of breaking down, and the doctor warned me that I must quit it."

My chief ailment was nervousness and heart trouble. Any unexpected noise would cause me the most painful palpitation, make me faint and weak.

"I had heard of Postum and began to drink it when I left off the old coffee. It began to help me just as soon as the old effects of the other kind of coffee passed away. It did not stimulate me for a while, and then leave me weak and nervous as coffee used to do. Instead of that it built up my strength and supplied a constant vigor to my system which I can always rely on. It enables me to do the biggest kind of a day's work without getting tired. All the heart trouble, etc., has passed away."

"I give it freely to all my children, from the youngest to the oldest, and it keeps them all healthy and hearty." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

MARK'S GRATITUDE.

Amongst the many stories that are told in connection with Mark Twain there is one that is little known, but which deserves a place with the best.

When the famous humorist was married to Miss Langdon, a beautiful house in Buffalo was given as a wedding present to the newly-wedded pair by the bride's father. But every bit of information concerning the gift had been kept an entire secret from the lucky bridegroom until at last he was being shown through the brilliantly-lighted house, mysteriously filled with kinsmen and friends. Then the young wife divulged the important secret.

"It's ours," said she, looking up delightedly into her husband's face. "It's yours and mine—a present from father."

The announcement was such that for a moment or two Mark Twain was entirely overcome by the feelings which had thus been stirred within him. All eyes were turned curiously in his direction, and then, when he had partly regained control, he replied. His eyes were wet with tears and his voice was choking with emotion, but his thoughts expressed themselves humorously even then. "Mr. Langdon," said he, "when-ever you are in Buffalo, if it's twice a year, you come right up here and bring your bag along with you. You may stay overnight if you want to. It shan't cost you a cent."

ASKED FOR HELP.

It is perhaps natural that little children should expect their small supplications to be answered literally. We can sympathize with the small boy over his sums, who said to his governess in a puzzled, half-indignant voice: "I can't do my sums, I can't; and I did ask God to help me, and He's made three mistakes already."

CZAR SURRENDERS POWER

Emperor Nicholas Grants a Constitution to His Subjects

St. Petersburg, Oct. 30.—Following is the text of the Imperial manifesto, under which liberty is granted to the Russian people:—"We, Nicholas the II., by the grace of God, Emperor and autocrat of all the Russias Grand Duke of Finland, etc., declare to all our faithful subjects that the troubles and agitation in our capitals and in numerous other places fill our heart with excessive pain and sorrow.

"The happiness of the Russian Sovereign is indissolubly bound up with the happiness of our people, and the sorrow of our people is the sorrow of the Sovereign.

MENACE THE EMPIRE.

"From the present disorders may arise great national disruption. They menace the integrity and unity of our empire.

"The supreme duty imposed upon us by our sovereign office requires us to efface ourself, and to use all the force and reason at our command to hasten in securing the unity and co-ordination of the power of the central Government, and to assure the success of the measures for pacification in all circles of public life which are essential to the well-being of our people.

"We, therefore, direct our Government to carry out our inflexible will in the following manner:—

GRANTS CIVIC LIBERTY.

"(1) To extend to the population the immutable foundations of civic liberty, based on the real inviolability of person, freedom of conscience, speech, union, and association.

"(1) Without suspending the already ordered elections to the State Duma, to invite to participation in the Duma, so far as the limited time before the convocation of the Duma will permit, those classes of the population now completely deprived of electoral rights, leaving the ultimate development of the principle of the electoral right in general to the newly-established legislative order of things.

DUMA MUST APPROVE LAWS.

"(3) To establish as an unchangeable rule that no law shall be enforceable without the approval of the State Duma, and that it shall be possible for the elected of the people to exercise real participation in the supervision of the legality of the acts of the authorities appointed by us.

NO INTERFERENCE.

"The Government should abstain from any interference with elections to the Duma, and keep in view my sincere desire for the realization of my ukase of December 25, 1904. It must maintain the prestige of the Duma and confidence in its labors, and in no way resist its decisions, so long as they are not inconsistent with Russia's historic greatness.

"It is necessary to respect the ideals of the great majority of society, and not the echoes of noisy groups and factions, too often unstable. It is especially important to secure the reform of the Council of the Empire on an electoral principle.

APPEALS FOR SUPPORT.

"We appeal to all faithful sons of Russia to remember their duty towards the fatherland, to aid in terminating these unprecedented troubles, and to apply all their forces in co-operation with us to the restoration of calm and peace upon our natal soil.

"Given at Peterhof, October 30th, in the eleventh year of our reign.

"(Signed) Nicholas."

HALIFAX IN DANGER.

Flames Near Dynamite Caused a Panic.

A Halifax despatch says: The spectacular blaze which broke out on George's Island, the Imperial fortress in Halifax harbor, caused a thrill of excitement in the city. The island is directly opposite the citadel, and is within a quarter of a mile of the important docks and a large section of the south end residential district. The fire broke out about 8 o'clock on Friday night, and rapidly assumed the proportions of a conflagration. The island is studded with fortifications, except a small level space on the eastern side where were the living quarters of the artillery, the storehouse and repairing shops of the submarine mining corps of the Royal Engineers. There the fire broke out, and as the fire-fighting apparatus on the island was of little power it soon gained headway. The night was calm, and the great blaze lighted up the whole harbor and caused so great a reflection that thousands of people were drawn to the waterfront. Harbor tugs were rushed to the island and hundreds of bluejackets from Prince Louis' cruiser squadron hurried to the scene in steam launches. The tugs did great work, and after an hour's exertions the flames were subdued.

Thousands of pounds of gun cotton used by submarine miners, are stored underground on the island, and considerable anxiety was felt lest a concussion would cause it to ignite. Happily no accident occurred. George's Island is one of the strongest fortresses, and commands entirely the inner harbor. This is the first loss suffered by the Imperial authorities since the great citadel fire seven years ago.

The origin of the fire is unknown. The property loss is not large, but it is believed a quantity of platinum was destroyed, which may swell the total to fifty thousand dollars.

TWO SCALDED FATALLY.

Accident on the Cable Steamer Tyrian.

A Halifax despatch says: The Government cable steamer Tyrian arrived at Sydney on Saturday night with the news of a fatal explosion that occurred on board the steamer while off Cape North early Saturday morning. A plug in one of the boiler tubes blew out, filling the engine and boiler-rooms with steam and gas. Fireman Patrick Purcell and Trimmer Patrick McGrath were engaged in cleaning out the fire at the time of the blow-out, and before leaping to the deck were horribly scalded.

After consuming about seven hours in making temporary repairs to the boiler, Capt. O'Leary headed the steamer for Sydney at full speed. Purcell succumbed while the steamer was coming into dock, and McGrath died on Sunday morning. Purcell was 60 years of age, and McGrath 40. Both were Halifax men.

NEW CROP ESTIMATE.

Several Million Bushels Below First Forecast.

A Winnipeg despatch says:—Frank O. Fowler, secretary of the North-West Grain Dealers' Association, has issued the following revised estimate of the 1905 crop of Manitoba and the Territories. The figures are compiled from 700 reports received from all points in the West. It will be noted that Mr. Fowler now estimates this year's yield of wheat at 86,810,400 bushels, as compared with his estimate made last month of slightly over 91,000,000 bushels.

Grain.	Acres.	Yield.	Total.
Wheat	4,019,000	21.6	86,810,400
Oats	1,423,000	46.6	66,311,800
Barley	433,800	31	13,447,800
Flax	34,900	13.7	478,130

There had been much market-don Oct. 21 of this year as follows:—

Inspected to date	15,515,000
In store at country points	10,712,000
In transit, not inspected	1,000,000
Total	27,231,000

BOOS A MODERN RAFFLES.

Was Popular With the Maids and Matrons of Middleton.

A Middletown, N. Y., despatch says:—By the confession of Charles Boos, until a few days ago superintendent of the Walkhill Transit Company's lines in Orange county, a spectacular police mystery has been solved. He admitted to the police on Tuesday that it was he who had robbed one of the largest department stores in the city, besides several residences, in the last few months.

Boos is regarded as a modern social highwayman. He drew a large salary as superintendent of the big transit corporation and lived in good style in apartments on one of the best streets in the city. He was popular in society, and some of the designing mothers looked upon the jolly bachelor with a large income as one of the "catches."

But all the time Boos was making himself popular among the maids and matrons of Middletown he was playing the role of a Raffles. He was always in the latest fashion, and, in fact, was something of a dandy in appearance. Throughout the day, so long as he held his place as head of the transit company, he was apparently one of the busiest men in town. He had no time for anything but his work, and seemed an exemplary man of business.

Great was the amazement of all Middletown when it became known last Friday that Boos had been arrested and hustled away to the county jail at Goshen. The charge against him was made by officials of the transit company, by which he had been employed. It was discovered that the superintendent had stolen a large quantity of copper wire from the company and sold it to a junk dealer.

The amazement was still greater when it was found that Boos had hidden in his fine apartments a lot of plunder for which the police had long been looking.

GOODS AND CASH STOLEN.

Six-Hundred-Dollar Robbery at St. Octave, Que.

A St. Octave de Motis, Que., despatch says:—The store owned by J. B. Bergeron was broken into on Tuesday night. Goods to the amount of $300 and $300 in cash were taken away. In the cash taken was an American hundred-dollar bill. The police have been informed, and are endeavoring to locate the robbers. A reward of one hundred dollars is offered by Mr. Bergeron for their arrest, or for any information leading thereto.

LONDON'S VAST DEBT.

Has Increased from $87,500,000 in 1889 to $222,500,000.

A London despatch says:—The chairman of the London County Council, in his annual financial statement on Tuesday compared the operations of 1904-05 with those of the first year of the Council's existence, and showed that in 1889 the Council took over a net debt of $87,500,000, while at the end of March, 1905, the debt amounted to $222,500,000. In 1889-90 the Council's expenditure was $17,500,000. In 1904-05 the expenditure was $80,000,000.

WILL WORK ALL WINTER

Transcontinental Surveyors to be Busy in New Brunswick.

An Ottawa despatch says:—The location survey work on the New Brunswick section of the National Transcontinental Railway is expected to keep the surveyors at work throughout the winter. The reports from parties working between Quebec and Winnipeg are reaching the commission in satisfactory numbers. It is expected the whole of the parties will have reported, and that the commission will be in a position to recommend a route some time in November.

WE SELL TOO MUCH BUTTER

And Irish Producers Are Making Complaints.

A London despatch says:—The large imports of butter from the colonies seems to be causing some concern to Irish producers. A despatch to The Freeman's Journal states that the Canadian exports since the end of June were 1,750 tons more than in the corresponding period of 1904, and 5,175 tons above 1903. Irish producers are agitating for their representatives in Great Britain to protect them against adulterated butter.

BEAR AND LION IN ACCORD.

Entente Between Britain and Russia a Fact.

A despatch from Paris says: The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Temps describes an audience that the British Ambassador had on Tuesday with the Czar as extraordinary, and says it has caused much comment. It is believed that it was connected with the projected Anglo-Russian understanding, which seems to be inevitable since the failure of the scheme for a Russo-German alliance.

The Petit Parisien's St. Petersburg correspondent declares that an entente between Great Britain and Russia is an accomplished fact. He ascribes the success in bringing the understanding about to the efforts of M. Bonaparte, the French Ambassador to Russia, who worked hard against the German Ambassador's attempts to arrange a Russo-German alliance. The entente, according to the correspondent, is grounded on a most pacific basis, tending to the development of commercial relationships in the Far East and the maintenance of peace in Central Asia.

RED FLAG WAVING IN RUSSIA

Army Shows Signs of Willingness to Join Strikers

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the London Telegraph draws a sensational picture of the strike situation. He says, among other things that meetings are being held everywhere in the provinces, and that speeches are being made by anybody and everybody. Demands are being formulated which the Government would not grant if it could and could not if it would. Resolutions are being passed unanimously and enthusiastically to continue the strike until these demands are conceded. Downright frenzy, revolutionary frenzy, seems to have seized the entire people, who rush headlong as though literally possessed, and resolved to bring ruin on themselves, or else end the odious regime, which is dying too slowly. There are no people's tribunals at work, as in revolutionary France, but there are executions enough, which are carried out in ways that point to local vehemence. Every morning paper brings lists of officials, police, Cossacks, administrators, and even watchmen, whose lives have been suddenly snuffed out during the night by men who are unknown. Bombs, daggers, revolvers, and rifles figure in the lugubrious accounts, to which the public is rapidly growing accustomed. Revolutionary lynch law has thus usurped the place of official capital, which until some months ago freely disposed of the properties, the liberties, and sometimes the lives of peaceful citizens who were often more deserving of reward than punishment.

CARRYING OUT NEW PLANS. The fact is, the Social Democrats and Social Revolutionists, who are the best organized parties in the country, having matured new plans, are now carrying them out deliberately and successfully. They first got power over the universities and high schools, which are used as places of meeting for all malcontents without exception, just as the Jacobins' convent was employed by the French patriots. Sunday night hundreds of students at the Woman's University at Moscow held a meeting to decide whether to strike or to allow the establishment to continue work. After a long debate it was resolved by a small majority to permit the university to remain open, but as a centre of the revolutionary movement, where public meetings might be held and lectures delivered.

From all parts of the interior come reports of public meetings assembling spontaneously in the streets and other public places and approving the strike. Those attending conduct themselves with a degree of self-control that is uncommon in Russia. Referring to the holding up of the transportation of food, the correspondent describes the scarcity of meat in Moscow and St. Petersburg. He says it requires 12 trains daily to convey the cattle slaughtered for food in St. Petersburg. All these trains come from the south through Moscow, but since Sunday not one has arrived. Meat prices have already augmented over 50 per cent. Food cannot be distributed to the famine-stricken provinces. Everywhere troops are gathered, but scarcely ever in order disturbed. The spectacle bears eloquent witness to the self-restraint of a patient people in revolution.

THE POSITION IS GRAVE.

A despatch from Odessa says:—An interview on Sunday, General Kaulbars, commanding the troops here, admitted that the position was grave and threatening. Nevertheless he did not feel warranted in asking the authority to reimpose martial law. He said there were 28,000 troops in the city and 6,000 more were en route. His great fear was an anti-Jewish outbreak. If this should occur he would use his whole force to protect the attack. Referring to a Socialist meeting at which he, the civil governor, the chief of police, and other officials were condemned to death, he smiled amusedly, and said he had been used to that in Manchuria, where he had always been under sentence of death.

The civil governor, who was also interviewed, seemed to be anxious. He admitted that it was possible for anything to happen. He deplored Saturday's collision between the police and the boy and girl students, and declared that the police had exceeded their orders, but, he added, it should be remembered that the students were exceedingly provocative.

At a meeting attended by 225 doctors on Sunday, it was resolved to refuse to aid any soldier, Cossack, or military or civil official who is injured in fighting the people.

The city is greatly excited. Two hundred thousand people are on the streets, but the troops keep them moving. The employees of the street railway have refused to join the strike. As a result, a mob overturned 20 cars in Richelieu Street.

A number of students raided a gun-shop on Sunday. They had partly plundered the place when Cossacks arrived. In a scuffle that followed three students were wounded and a score arrested. The regular troops are acting in a moderate manner, but the Cossacks are provocatively brutal.

In a clash between troops and students on Sunday afternoon the soldiers, without warning, fired point blank into the crowd, killing 20 and wounding 60. It is stated that in another fight that occurred in a different part of the city seven were killed and 30 wounded. It is reported that the students are arming and organizing a retaliatory attack on the troops.

Reports from Kiev state that three regiments in the south-western part of the province have mutinied. Alarming reports are current here questioning the fidelity of three infantry battalions.

The British Consul is arranging to embark the English residents on ships in the harbor if necessary. All public resorts are closed.

Owing to the outbreak of street fighting on Sunday evening the Governor applied to St. Petersburg for permission to again declare martial law. No reply has yet been received.

Troops hold the streets in all directions. The fighting began at 5.30 o'clock. Workmen and students erected barricades, using street cars for the purpose.

Many of the men who were wounded by the Cossacks' fire were taken to drug stores for treatment.

CHAOS ON RAILWAYS.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: A train bringing English travelers arrived here on Sunday night. It left Lyddikhnen, on the German frontier, Thursday afternoon. The passengers state that the wayside stations were choked with stranded trains. No troops were guarding the tracks. Many stranded passengers were embarked en route. A train load of returning reservists was stranded near Dvinsk. The men were without food or money, and the passengers subscribed funds for them to get food with. The passengers with difficulty obtained a driver for their engine. They were obliged to heavily bribe an engineer.

A despatch from Kharkoff states that the refusal of the Governor to repress the strikers by force of arms has been rewarded by the abandonment of the strike except by the railway men. The town began to assume its normal condition yesterday.

At Kiev several Cossacks have been arrested for refusing to fire into the crowd during the recent disturbances.

INDEPENDENT GOVERNMENT.

A despatch from Moscow says: Many collisions between the demonstrators and troops have occurred here, following a proclamation of revolution. At a meeting of delegates from the different political parties it was decided to unite in the establishment of a government, and act independently of the Imperial authorities. Over a hundred persons have been wounded in the fighting.

A special session of the Town Council has been convoked. It will deliberate day and night.

CIVIL WAR IN MOSCOW?

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: Everything than can be learned here regarding the great railway strike indicates the continuous spread of the trouble and increased paralysis of trade. The distribution of food is practically suspended, and mail communication is generally suspended. Although there are many isolated riots and combats with the troops, the worst of which occurred at Kharkoff, there is apparently no general intention yet to convert the movement into an armed revolutionary uprising. Nevertheless, the situation is unquestionably serious, and threatens the most dangerous developments. Owing to the stoppage of the mails and the partial suspension of the telegraphs it is impossible to verify the many reports reaching the capital. The ugliest of these at present refer to Moscow, which is described as being isolated from the rest of the empire and as being held by the strikers. It is stated that the strikers ordered the post-office and telegraph employees to strike, and these, having their own grievances, are alleged to be complying.

The municipal employees are said to be wavering as to the course they will pursue. Officials are demanding that the railwaymen's grievances be redressed or they will join the movement forthwith. Another report asserts that a municipal strike has begun, and that the employees of the water works have quit work, causing the city to be without water. It is predicted that there will be a civil war in Moscow owing to the action of the shopkeepers, who, fearing ruin through the dislocation of trade are arming themselves against the strikers. The railway men in St. Petersburg are still working, but the question of striking is being discussed.

MURDER BY CHINAMAN.

The Victim a Boy Sent For His Father's Laundry.

A despatch from Sinaluita, N. W. T., says: A terrible tragedy was enacted here on Saturday night in which Stanley Ross, the twelve-year-old son of Charles Ross, was murdered by a Chinese laundryman when he went for his father's laundry. No particulars of the crime are obtainable, as the boy ran home and expired in the house without speaking a word. The murderer attempted suicide, and was afterwards found with his throat cut, but will recover. He struck the boy on the head with some blunt weapon, puncturing the skull.

Appeal to Government.

The report of the Plan of Work Committee, which had been under discussion several times throughout the convention was finally adopted. Many valuable recommendations were made. The report also embraced the following paragraph: "Whereas, the Government under which we were for many years living and working declined to fulfil its pledges, and the Government in power has given no promise; and, whereas the best way of stimulating and creating conviction is to engage in campaigns that have a definite and attainable goal; recommended, that we urge on our societies the prosecution of license reduction and local option contests, and a stringent effort to enforce the existing law. Further recommended, that we appeal to the Government to enact legislation that will permit of local option contests in wards and subdivisions wherever 25 p.c. of the electorate petition for a local option or license reduction campaign; that the vote be compulsory that as a majority petition of the electorate can establish a license, a 50 per cent. petition should revoke such license."

Mrs. S. R. Wright was re-elected editor of Tidings, and London was unanimously selected as the next place of meeting.

GIVEN 20 YEARS.

Luigi Carieri, Who Killed Guiseppe Belcastro At Arnprior.

Pembroke, Oct. 25.—Luigi Carieri, the Italian who stabbed and killed Guiseppe Belcastro another Italian at Arnprior on May 16th inst was today sentenced to 20 years imprisonment in the penitentiary. Mr. Justice Teetzel was on the bench.

The case created a great deal of interest, Mr. Metcalfe attended the trial as county crown attorney while Mr. A. E. Fripp, of Ottawa, acted as crown prosecutor. Mr. Fripp made out a strong case for the crown, contending that there had been motive and that there had been a premeditation of the deed as the prisoner had given an angry reply when spoken to by Mr. Fripp argued with strong legal ability.

The prisoner had an able counsel in T. W. McGarry, M. L. A., who contented strongly that there was no motive for murder. All the witness is for the defence testified that at this time of the murder the prisoner was drunk. It was shown that Luigi came into Joe Frank's house, where the murder took place, very drunk. He refused to sit at the table to supper.

The late Belcastro said to Carieri, "Why don't you come and eat?" to which he made an angry and resentful reply and reaching across the table stabbed Belcastro to the heart with a stiletto.

The addresses of the learned counsels were eloquently delivered. The jury brought in a verdict of manslaughter and Mr. Justice Teetzel passed sentence of 20 years in the penitentiary. As Carieri is somewhat about 50 years of age his term is almost equivalent to a life sentence. He is a small man, dark like all his race, with black hair turning grey very fast. The murdered man was scarcely more than a youth. His tragic ending was caused quite a sensation at the time it took place. It will be remembered that a band of laborers were gathered in a small frame house eating supper when Carieri came along and the events took place as given in the evidence. Being stabbed Belcastro rushed out of the house, threw up his hands and died with a holy invocation upon his lips.
