A Narrow Escape.

On Saturday morning last Mr. Cornelius Cross had a narrow escape from death. The fog that morning was intense, and he was driving a team and leading another horse, and on his way from his own home to the white crossing, a freight train went past and of course thought no other train would be along for some time. Just before he came to the crossing he heard the local and when he was on it he could see the front of the engine, and in an instant it all occurred. His team went through the gate at a rapid pace and could not be stopped before they went quite a distance. He escaped injury, but the horse he was leading was thrown about 80 feet, and mangled to pieces.

A naturalist says that every time a farmer shoots a hawk he throws a $50 bill into the fire, for though the bird takes an occasional chicken, it destroys at least a thousand rats, mice and moles every year. No bird that flies is of more benefit to the farmer.

The practice of sending children for the mail is one which should be stopped. Generally four or five from one family get pulling and hauling around the wicket with about as many more from another family and those who do expect and get any mail have to wait until about thirty to fifty children have filed out of the office. Then sometimes important letters or registers are lost, and the blame not placed where it properly belongs. It is becoming a nuisance here, and the sooner the kids are prevented from "going for the mail," the better for all parties concerned.

Situations for Students.

Not the least important advantage afforded students of that efficient and progressive school of business, the Wills Business College, of Ottawa, is the powerful influence it is able to exert in securing good situations for graduates. Probably no other man in Central Canada has had success in this important matter equal to that which has crowned the efforts of the energetic principal of this great school. A large army of successful young men and women in all parts of this broad Dominion and in many of the States bear glowing testimony to the value of the training they received under his faithful direction, and a large proportion of them owe their position directly to him. It pays to atend a large and influential school.

Rennick—Cook.

One of the prettiest of early autumn weddings took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Cook, at high noon on Wednesday, Sept. 26th, when their daughter, Mary Lillian, was married to Earle J. Rennick of Winchester. The impressive ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Howitt, about sixty guests being present, including immediate relatives and a few special friends.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was beautifully gowned in cream nun's veiling with over lace waist. The flower girl, little Miss Blanche Vanallen, wore a frock of white silk.

The popularity of the young couple was attested in some measure by the admirable array of beautiful and valuable presents. The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome gold watch.

After partaking of the excellent menu provided in the dining room, a pleasant time was spent, during which the young couple received the heartfelt wishes of their friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Rennick left on the 4 train for Montreal and other eastern cities, bearing with them the best wishes of everyone.—Morrisburg Herald.

THE CRIMINAL'S CONFESSION

OR, SYBIL BERNER'S VINDICATION

CHAPTER XXV.

A week after Lyon Berners went away Captain Pendleton resigned his commission in the army, placed the management of his estate in the hands of Lawyer Sheridan, and, accompanied by Miss Pendleton, left the neighborhood for Baltimore, whence he sailed for Liverpool.

After this departure the secret of Sybil's escape was known but to two persons in the valley—to Mr. Sheridan, whose very profession made him reticent, and to Miss Tabby, who would have died rather than have divulged it.

Mr. Sheridan managed the manor, Miss Tabby kept the house, and both guarded the secret.

But great was the wonder and wild were the conjectures among the people of the valley on the subjects of Sybil's mysterious disappearance, Lyon's sudden voyage, and Clement and Beatrix Pendleton's eccentric conduct in following him.

Opinions were as various as characters.

Some came near the truth in expressing their belief that Sybil had been rescued on the night of the flood, secreted for a while in the neighborhood, and then "spirited" away by her friends; that she was safe in some foreign country, and that her husband and her two friends had gone to join her.

Others whispered that Sybil had been drowned in the flood; that Lyon Berners, finding himself a widower, had proposed for Beatrix Pendleton, with whom he had always been in love, and that he had been accepted by her; that they had been anxious to marry immediately, but ashamed to do so, so soon after the tragic death of Sybil, and in her own neighborhood; and so they had gone abroad to be united, and to spend the first year of their wedded lives.

These and many other speculations were rife among the neighbors, and the "Hallow Eve mystery," deepened by recent events, formed the subject of conversation of never-flagging interest at at every country fireside that winter.

In the midst of all this, Miss Tabby Winterose lived her quiet, dull, whimpering life at Black Hall, carefully keeping the house, waited on by Aunt Mopsa, guarded by Joe, and solaced by little Cromartie, who had been left in her care.

Dilly, Sybil's own maid, had been taken abroad by Miss Pendleton, which fact gave additional scandal to the gossips.

"The impudence of her!" they said, "to take the late Mrs. Berners' very maid, before she even had fairly married the widower."

All this, when it came to Miss Tabby's ears, made that faithful, but desponding, soul, whimper all the more.

Miss Tabby had but few recreations at Black Hall. Going to church every Sunday in the old carryall, with little Cro' by her side and Joe on the box, was her "most chiefest."

Then, once a month or so, she went to take tea with her parents and sister; or she walked over to spend an afternoon at the cottage occupied by Robert Munson, who had married Rachel, the pretty daughter of that Norfolk innkeeper who had been Lyon's and Sybil's host at the time of their second flight.

And sometimes Miss Tabby had both these families up at Black Hall, to pass a day with her.

But, wherever Miss Tabby went, she always took little Cro'; and whoever came to the house had to make much of the child, or get little favor from his "aunty."

As for Joe, Robert Munson, and other of Sybil's devoted friends, they felt in their secret hearts, that Sybil was safe in foreign parts, and that her husband and friends had gone to join her; but, as no one had actually imparted this intelligence to them, they never talked over the subject except among themselves.

Thus passed the winter; but, with the opening of the spring, an event occurred that for a while even superseded the "Hallow Eve mystery," in the fever of curiosity and interest it excited in the valley.

The great Dubarry manor, so long held in abeyance, was claimed!—claimed by a gentleman in right of his wife—claimed by no less a person than Mr. Horace Blondelle, once the husband and after the widower of that beautiful Rosa Blondelle, who had been so mysteriously murdered at Black Hall, and now the bridegroom of Gentiliska, the great-granddaughter and only lineal descendant and heiress of Philip Dubarry and Gentiliska, his wife.

During the investigation of this claim, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Blondelle occupied a handsome suite of apartments at the Blackville Hotel, and made themselves very popular by the elegant little dinners and suppers they gave, and the like of which had never before been seen in that plain village.

When their case came on for a hearing, there was but little opposition to the claimants, whose legal right to the manor was soon proved by the documents they held in their possession, and firmly established.

When the case was decided in their favor, Mr. Horace Blondelle rented the Pendleton Park, which had been to let ever since the departure of its owner.

And in that well-furnished mansion on that well-cultivated plantation, he settled down, with his pretty young bride, to the respectable life of a country gentleman.

His residence in the neighborhood gave quite an impetus to the local business.

The very first thing that he did, after his setlement at Pendleton Park, was to advertise, through the columns of the Blackville Banner, that he intended to rebuild the Dubarry mansion, and was ready to employ the necessary artisans at liberal wages.

This gave great satisfaction to the laboring classes, who were half their time pining in idleness, and the other half working at famine prices.

But such a "reconstruction" was a gigantic undertaking. There was a wilderness to be cleared, a desert to be reclaimed, a mansion to be rebuilt, and a chapel to be restored.

All the carpenters, stone-cutters, bricklayers, plasters, painters and glaziers, upholsteres and decorators, as well as ornamental gardeners and agricultural laborers that could be found, were at once employed at generous wages.

And the work went on merrily, and the people blessed Horace Blondelle.

But during the progress of the work a discovery was made that changed the whole plan of the proprietor's life.

In the course of clearing the grounds, the workmen found a spring, whose water was so particularly nasty that they at once suspected it to possess curative qualities of the greatest value, and so reported it to the proprietor.

Horace Blondelle invited the local medical faculty to taste the waters of the spring, and their report was so favorable that he bottled up a gallon of it, and sent it to an eminent chemist of New York, to be analyzed.

In due time the analysis was returned. The water of the spring, it showed, was strongly impregnated with a half dozen, more or less, of the most nauseous minerals known to the pharmaceutists, and therefore was of the highest medicinal virtue.

The recent discovery of this invaluable spring on the home grounds, together with the long-known existence of the magnificent cavern, or chain of caverns, in the adjacent mountains, determined Mr. Horace Blondelle to alter his whole scheme—to abandon the role of country gentleman, which a very short experience proved to be too "slow" for his "fast" tastes, and to adopt that of the proprietor of a great watering place and summer resort.

And so, instead of rebuilding the family mansion, he built a large hotel on the Dubarry manor, and instead of restoring the chapel, he erected a pavilion over the spring.

This was not only at the time a very popular measure, but it eventually proved a very great success.

That summer and autumn saw other changes in the valley.

First old Mr. Winterose, the overseer of the Black Valley manor, died a calm and Christian death.

Young Robert Munson succeeded him in office.

Next, Lawyer Sheridan received an appointment from the President as consul at a certain English seaport; and, no doubt with the consent of the proprietors, he transferred the management of the Black Valley manor to old Lawyer Closeby, of Blackville. And then, with his sister, he went abroad.

Then, on the thirty-first of October of that year, old Mrs. Winterose and her eldest daughter, Libby, received an order to remove from their cottage and take up their residence with Miss Tabby at Black Hall.

The next spring Mr. and Mrs. Horace Blondelle removed to the "Dubarry Hotel," at the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs," as the place was now christened, and there they commenced preparations for the summer campaign.

Mr. Horace Blondelle was much too "sharp" not to understand the importance of advertising. He advertised very largely in the newspapers, and he also employed agents to distribute beautiful little illustrated books, descriptive of the various attractions of the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs," the salubrious and delightful climate, the sublime and beautiful scenery, the home comforts of the hotel, and the healing powers of the water.

All these were so successfully set forth that even in the first season the house was so well filled with guests that the proprietor determined that, before another season should roll around, he would build a hundred or so of cottages to accommodate the great accession of visitors he had every reason to expect.

Another brisk season of work blessed the poor people of the place. And by the next summer a hundred and fifty white cottages were here and there on the rocks, in the woods, by the streams, or in the glens around the great hotel; and the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs" grew to look like a thriving village on the mountains.

The profits justified the expenditures; that second summer the place was crowded with visitors; and the lonely and quiet neighborhood of the Black Valley became, for the time, as populous and as noisy as is now Niagara or Newport.

In fact, from the advent of Mr. Horace Blondelle, and the inauguration of the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs," the whole character of the place was changed.

All summer, from the first of June to the first of September, it would be a scene of fashion, gayety, confusion and excitement.

But all the winter, from the first of October until the first of June, it is happily true that it would return to its aboriginal solitude and stillness.

Mr. Horace Blondelle was making money very fast indeed.

The life suited him. Many people called him a gambler and a blackleg, and said that he fleeced his guests in more ways than one.

The haughtiest among the old aristocratic families cut him, not because he was a gambler—for, oh dear! it too often happened that their own fathers, brothers, husbands, or sons were gamblers—but because he kept a hotel and took in money!

Notwithstanding this exclusion from companionship with certain families, Mr. Horace Blondelle led a very gay, happy and prosperous life.

We see and grieve over this sort of thing very frequently in the course of our lives. We fret that the wicked man should "flourish like a green bay tree," and we forget that the time must come when he will be cut down and cast into the fire.

That time was surely coming for Mr. Horace Blondelle.

Meanwhile he "flourished."

The third season of the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs" was even more sucessful than its forerunners had been.

People were possessed with a furor for the nasty waters, and flocked by thousands to the neighborhood.

But the autumn of that year was marked by other events of more importance to this story.

First, in the opening of the fall term of the Blackville Academy for young gentlemen, Lawyer Closeby came to Black Hall, armed with the authority of Mr. Lyon Berners, and straightway took little Cromarty, now a lad of seven years of age, out of the hands of Miss Tabby, and placed him in those of Dr. and Mrs. Smith, dominie and matron of the academy, for education.

Miss Tabby mourned over the partial loss of her favorite, but was consoled on the very next Hallow Eve, when a beautiful babe was left at her door.

And now that years have passed, we approach the time when the great Hallow Eve mystery was destined to be a mystery no more.

CHAPTER XXVI.

Time does but deepen the gloom that hangs over an old mansion where a heinous crime has been committed, an awful tragedy enacted.

As the years darkened over the Black Hall, the house fell to be regarded as a place haunted and accursed.

But as there is a certain weird attraction in the horrible, the old Black Hall came to be the greatest object of morbid interest in the neighborhood, greater even than the magnificent caverns, or the miraculous springs.

The crows of visitors who came down to the "Dubarry White Sulphur Springs" every summer, after tasting the waters of the spring and exploring the beauties of the caverns, invariably drove down the banks of the Black River, to where it broadened into the Black Lake, from whose dark borders arose the sombre wood that shadowed the mountain's side, and from whose obscure depths loomed up the gloomy structure now known as Black Hall, the deserted home of the haughty Berners, the haunted and accursed mansion.

Here, on the murky borders of the lake, the visitors would draw up their carriages, to sit and gaze upon the fatal edifice, and listen to the story of that awful Hallow Eve, when the fiery-hearted young wife was driven by jealousy to desperation, and her fair young rival was murdered in her chamber.

"And on every Hallow Eve," their informant would continue—"on every Hallow Eve, at midnight deep, the spirit of the murdered guest might be seen flying through the house pursued by the spirit of the vengeful wife."

Visitors never penetrated into the wood that surrounded and nearly concealed the mansion, much less ventured near that mansion itself.

The place was guarded by three old women, they were told, weird as Macbeth's witches, and who discouraged all approach to their abode.

So solitary and deserted were the house and its inmates that every path leading through the forest towards its doors was overgrown and obliterated, except one—a little narrow bridle path leading from the house through the woods, and out upon the Blackville road. This was kept open by the weekly rides of old Joe, who went every saturday to the village to lay in the groceries for the use of the family; by the three old women, who, seated on their safe old horses, went in solemn procession every Sunday to church; by the young Cromartie, who came trotting on his fiery steed once a month to visit his old friends; and by old Lawyer Closeby, who came ambling on his sedate cob every quarter-day to inspect the premises and pay the people.

No other passengers but these ever disturbed the stillness of the forest path; no other forms than these ever darkened the doors of Black Hall. A gloomy place to live in! gloomy enough for the three quiet old women—too gloomy for the bright young girl who was growing up to womanhood under its shadows.

And never was the place darker, drearier, or more depressing in its aspect than on a certain Hallow E'en, some fifteen years or more after the disappearance of Sybil Berners and the self-expatriation of her devoted friends.

All day long the sky had been overcast by low, dark leaden-hued clouds; the rain had fallen in dull drizzle, and when the veiled sun sank beneath the horizon the darkness of night was added to the darkness of clouds.

A dismal night! dismal without, and even more dismal within.

The three old guardians of the premises lived in the left wing of the house, which corresponded exactly with the right wing, once occupied on the first floor by the unfortunate Rosa Blondelle, with her child and nurse, and on the second floor by Sybil Berners and her maid.

The old women had chosen the left wing, partly because it had always been occupied by Miss Tabby, who used the lower floor for housekeeper's room and storeroom, and the second floor as a bedchamber and linen closet, but chiefly because it was the furthest removed from the right wing, the scene of the murder, and now the rumored resort of ghosts.

On this dismal but eventful Hallow Eve of which I now write, the three old women, their early tea over, were gathered round the fire in the lower room of this left wing.

It was a long, low room, with a broad fireplace in the lower end. It was furnished in very plain country style. The walls were colored with a red ochre wash somewhat duller than paint. The windows had blinds made of cheap, flowered wallpaper. The floor was covered with a plaid woollen carpet, the work of old Mrs. Winterose's wheel and loom. A corner cupboard, with glass doors, through which could be seen rows of blue delf dishes and piles of white teacups and saucers, occupied the corner on the right of the fireplace; the old-fashioned, coffin-like, tall, eight-day clock stood in the corner on the left-hand side. Flag-bottomed wooden chairs flanked the walls. At the upper end of the room stood an old-time chest of drawers. On the right-hand corner of this end a door opened upon a flight of stairs leading to the floor above. On the left-hand corner a door opened into a back room, with a little porch, vine-covered.

There was a large spinning wheel near the stair door, and at it the young ward of Mrs. Winterose stood spinning.

Before the fire stood a plain deal-table, and on it a brass candlestick but a dim light to the three old ladies but a dim light to the tree old ladies who sat before the dull, smouldering, green wood fire and worked. Old Mrs. Winterose occupied her armchair, between the end of the table and the fire-side, near the corner cupboard. She was carding rolls of white wool for the spinner.

Mrs. Libby sat at the other end of the table, reeling off blue yarn from broaches that had just been drawn off the spindle.

Miss Tabby was squeezed into the chimney corner next her sister, knitting a grey stocking.

There was a deep silence, broken only by the sighing of the wind through the leafless trees without, the pattering of the rain against the windows, the whirr of the spinning-wheel at the foot of the stairs, the simmering of the green logs that refused to blaze, and the audible snivelling of Miss Tabby.

The silence grew so oppressive that Miss Tabby, like the child in the Quaker meeting, felt that she must speak, or sob, or suffocate.

"Hallow Eve again," she sighed; "it have come around once more since that awful night, which I shall never be rid on seeing it before me—no, not if I live to be as old as Methuselah! And, oh, what gloomy weather! How the wind do moan and the rain do pour' round the old house! Just like heaving sighs and steaming tears! And as for me, I never feel like nothing but sighs and tears myself whenever this most doleful night comes round again."

And, suiting the action to the word, the speaker drew a deep breath and wiped her eyes.

"Tabby, you're always a whimpering. When 'tain't about one thing, 'tis about another. Seems to me a woman of your age, turned fifty, ought to have more sense!" sharply commented old Mrs. Winterose, as she took a roll of wool from her card and placed it softly on a pile of others that lay upon the table.

"I can't help of it, mother. I can't, indeed. Whenever this most doleful night do come around again, I feel that low-sperreted I don't know what to do. And it is just such a night as that night was. Everything so miserable outside and in. The wind moaning and the rain drizzling out there, and in here the fire not burning, but just smouldering and smoking as if it was low-sperreted, too!" sighed Miss Tabby.

John—"Was Mabel offended when you called on her with your face unshaven?" Jim—"Yes; she said she felt it very much."

SEVEN YEARS' WALK.

Man of Seventy-eight Trying to Cover 60,000 Miles.

Mark All, the old man of 78 who is attempting to walk 60,000 miles in seven years, called at the London Express office recently, after tramping during the day from Canterbury, a distance of 56 miles.

All, who started his task on August 6, 1900, has been promised $2,500 if he completes it. Up to the present he has walked 51,750 miles.

His travels have been by no means devoid of incident. He has been lost in snowdrifts five times, he was struck down by lightning at Marseilles, and stoned and shot at in Germany. All wears a Union Jack tied round his arm, and to it he attributes his ill-treatment in Germany.

He has not got on so well since he lost his bulldog Business three years ago. The dog walked 21,000 miles with him, and the old man felt his loss keenly. "I lost my best friend when Business died," he said simply. "I carried him a day before I could bring myself to bury him. That was in Marseilles."

All has earned $875 at his trade in various places while on his walk, and has also received $225 in gifts. He has worn out 39 pairs of boots.

He has toured the British Isles seven times, and has also been through France, Spain, Portugal, Holland, Switzerland, Italy and Germany, whither he returns after three days' rest in London. He hopes to be allowed to walk through Russia.

FOOLING HIM.

Casey—"Ye're a har-d worruker, Dooley. How many hods o' morther have yez carried up that ladder th' day?"

Dooley—"Whist, man! I'm foolin' th' boss. I've carried this same hodful up an' down all day, an' he thinks I'm worrukin'!"

AN ACCIDENT.

Bystander—Come, cheer up, old man. You may not be so badly hurt after all.

Victim—How can I tell how badly hurt I am until after I have seen my lawyer.

Many a man loses out in trying to take a short cut to success.

The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to natural strength. That's why Scott's Emulsion deals with the throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

SOME STRANGE CLOTHES

WOODEN COATS, GLASS DRESSES, AND PAPER WAISTCOATS.

Peter Gruber Possesses an Entire Suit Made of Rattlesnake Skins.

Herr Schaet, a native of Baale, Switzerland, has just taken out a patent for paper waistcoats, which he will be able to place upon the market at four cents each. These garments, which can be folded into a sufficiently small compass to enable them to be put into an ordinary waistcoat pocket, are, it is said, much warmer than the everyday article, in place of which they can be worn.

Glass has on more than one occasion been employed in dressmaking. Miss Ellene Jaqua, of Brooklyn, N.Y., possesses a dress made of spun glass, while some years back a M. Pierre Buse might have been seen walking the streets of the Belgian capital wearing a green coat woven from the finest threads of glass. His hat, too, was made of green glass, and he wore earthenware sabots. The other portions of his costume were of green silk.

Many kinds of skin are common enough for purposes of dress, but that of the rattlesnake is alone effected by Peter Gruber, of Rochester, New York, who possesses an entire suit made of this material. In its manufacture 125 skins were used, and the effect is heightened by the skilful blending of the skins of the four kinds of snake—black, brown, yellow and grey. The buttons consist of rattlesnakes' heads. Mr. Gruber's hat and stick are also covered with the same material.

BOOKS BOUND WITH HUMAN SKIN

are rare, but the possession of Signor Goffredo is surely unique. It consists of a coat made from the tanned hides of criminals and others, which this eccentric gentleman has been at no inconsiderable trouble and expense to collect. No fewer than fifty-seven bodies have contributed to this gruesome garment, whereof, that the whole may be in keeping, the buttons, carved to represent death's heads, are cut from human bones.

Madagascar can boast of a factory where the experiment of making spiders' silk is being tried, so that ere long dresses of that material may be common. They are not that yet, but one at least is in existence. This, which is owned by the daughter of a New York millionaire, employed thirty-six skilful silk-workers in its manufacture from many thousand webs. Its somewhat sombre hue is relieved by a quantity of jewels, gems to the value of $12,000 scintillating on the bodice alone.

A FRENCH COLLECTOR

possesses a small square made from the hair of Margaret, Countess of Lennox, mother of Lord Darnley, which is valued at $6,000. The dress owned by Frau Weisse, of Berlin, though, of course, not so valuable, is composed of like material, being made entirely of women's hair, which, at no little cost, was purchased from peasants who, for a consideration, were ready to part with their luxuriant locks to gratify the eccentricity of an open-handed lady.

Mrs. Edwards, an American actress, possesses a dress valued at $15,000, which was given to her on her marriage by an Indian Rajah. It is made of beetle-wings, whereof over 15,000 of a lovely irridescent green were employed ere the gown was ready for its fair wearer. Many wealthy women have, it is said, endeavored to procure a duplicate, with, however, no success, as the rarity of the beetle has hitherto precluded the accomplishment of their desire.

Among the effects of Herr Binder, who died some years back at Munich, was a curious coat made of none above an inch in diameter, fastened together by gold and silver wire. Not only is the garment curious, but it is a veritable work of art, for cuttings from almost every known tree were used in its construction, and the variously-colored woods have been made to blend with no little taste.

Very stiff and uncomfortable must this coat have been to wear, but less so, perhaps—being of a lighter material—than a similar garment made in the early eighties to the order of a Brazilian who had such a liking for gold that he, on special occasions, wore a coat made of pl[illegible] this precious metal. The oldest magistrate in the Empire has just died. Captain Edward Dumaresq was made a J.P. in Tasmania in 1828—that is, two years before William IV. came to the throne. He had reached the great old age of 104.

The King of Siam has a bodyguard composed of 400 female warriors. At the age of thirteen they enter the Royal service and remain in it until they are twenty-five, when they pass into the reserve. Their weapon is the lance, and they are splendidly trained in the use of it.

Queen Alexandra enjoys the distinction of being the only Sovereign in modern times to wear the leek as a floral emblem at a State function. The wild leek, which flourishes profusely on the coast of Glamorgan, has been regarded as the national emblem of Wales, and it was as such that Queen Alexandra wore it at a Drawing Room which she held some years ago on St. David's Day.

One of the hobbies of the King of the Belgians is building. King Leopold, who spends almost as much time out of his country as he does in it, has several residences which he seldom or never visits, yet he is constantly adding to them. He has a fine palace in Brussels, but when within his own domains he prefers to spend his time in the country. His Majesty is the richest monarch in Europe so far as real estate is concerned.

Despite his years, which number sixty-two, Sir Charles Dilke is one of the most active members of the House of Commons. An enthusiastic sculler, he goes through a course of training every year. Canon Benham officiated at the ceremony, and in order to correctly give the bride's names during the service he had taken the precaution to write them down on a slip of paper, to which he referred.

Sir Evelyn Wood has said that one of his narrowest escapes happened to him in the Crimea. He was climbing over a parapet, when a private soldier forced his way in front of him, and turned round savagely when his officer, who was much exhausted, caught hold of the butt of his rifle in order to pull himself up. At that moment the man was pierced through the heart by a bullet from the Russian lines, while Wood, whose place he had taken, remained unhurt.

Lord Aberdeen's sons, the Hon. Dudley and the Hon. Archie Gordon, have strongly developed mechanical aptitudes and worked for a time as ordinary apprentices in one of the big shipbuilding yards at Aberdeen, being treated in exactly the same way and leading the same hard, healthy life as the other lads. Doubtless they have inherited their taste in this matter from their father, who is one of the most expert amateur locomotive engine-drivers in the three kingdoms.

BLOOD TROUBLES.

Cured Through the Rich, Red Blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Actually Make.

Thousands of women suffer from headaches, backaches, dizziness, languor and nervousness. Few realize that their misery all comes from the bad state of their blood. They take one thing for their head, and another for their stomach, a third for their nerves. And yet all the while it is simply their blood that is the cause of all their trouble. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure all these and other blood troubles because they actually make new rich, red blood. Mrs. J. H. McArthur, St Thomas, Ont., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done me a world of good. For about eighteen months I was a constant sufferer. I was terribly run down and the least exertion left me fagged out. I slept badly at night and this further weakened me, and finally I had to give up housekeeping and go boarding as I was quite unable to do any housework. I took doctor's medicine but it was of little or no benefit. One day a neighbor told me how much benefit she had derived from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and advised me to try them. I sent and got three boxes, and by the time I had used them I could feel a change for the better. Then I got four boxes more, and before they were all gone my health was fully restored. To see me now one would not think I had ever been sick for a day, and I can honestly say I owe my renewed health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest cure there is for the weakness and backaches and sideaches of anaemia; all the distress of indigestion; all the pains and aches of rheumatism, sciatica and neuralgia, and the weakness and ill health that follows any disturbance of regularity in the blood supply. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50c a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MOST REMARKABLE FEAT

A PEDESTRIAN WHO WALKED 100 MILES IN A DAY.

A Wonderful Performance by Mr. Edward Weston at the Age of 68.

To walk at the age of sixty-eight, a distance of over a hunrded miles within twenty-four hours is a feat of which anyone might be proud, and it is not to be wondered at, therefore, that to-day Mr. Edward Payson Weston, the only man of his age who ever accomplished it, is a happy man. Mr. Weston's little trip was from the City Hall, Philadelphia, to the City Hall, New York, a distance of 106 miles, which he completed in the remarkable time of twenty-three hours and thirty-three minutes. Just forty-three years ago the veteran pedestrian performed a similar feat, but, though a young man at the time, he took exactly twenty-three minutes longer in accomplishing his task, and this in spite of the fact that the two city halls were some four miles closer together then than they are to-day.

Mr. Weston left Philadelphia City Hall at five minutes past twelve on a recent Wednesday, determined, if possible, to break his record of forty-three years ago. He wore knickerbockers, a white shirt, golf stockings, and a pair of strong leather walking shoes. His hat was the identical narrow brimmed straw which he has worn in all his pedestrian feats, while the light cane he carried was the one which has accompanied him in his record-breaking tramps during the last half-century. In a carriage, following the pedestrian were three Philadelphian doctors.

In his long tramp Mr. Weston took the same route that he did in 1863, walking to New Brunswick, N. J., a distance of sixty-five miles without a single stop. There he slept for thirty minutes, and then took the road to Newark, where he arrived at 9.14 p.m. From there he went to Jersey City, where the Pennsylvania Railroad had a ferry-boat at the slip awaiting his arrival. As soon as the old man made his appearance he was hurried on board, and the ferry was off in record time. Mr. Weston reached Cortland Street, New York, at 11.12 p.m., and immediately proceeded to the City Hall by way of Greenwich and Vesey Streets and Park Row. He only stopped a moment at the City Hall, for his goal was Fifth Avenue Hotel, which he had made up his mind to reach before midnight—accomplishing his object with a good margin

At the Fifth Avenue Hotel there was such a tremendous crowd that the popular hero could scarcely make his way into the hostelry. From the ferry, however, he had been accompanied by several policemen, mounted and on foot, and these guardians of the peace and order soon forced a way for the tired pedestrian, who was escorted to his bedroom by his physicians and a few friends There he was subjected to a medical examination, after which he took a salt water bath and went to bed.

The following morning Mr. Weston rose at his accustomed hour—eight o'clock—and soon afterwards was seen by the writer, to whom he gave a few particulars regarding his latest feat. Mr. Weston is a tall, athletic-looking man, in spite of his sixty-eight years, and there was no trace of fatigue apparent in his cheerful countenance as he sat in the vestibule of the Fifth Avenue Hotel and talked about his pedestrian feats past and present.

"I felt so fresh at the end of my last trip," he said, "that I believe I could do the same journey with a night's rest. The most trying part of the trip was during the middle of the day, when the sun was beating on my head and almost making me fear a stroke. But it soon passed, and the cool of the evening greatly revived me. In places the roads were very rough and the walking heavy, but I kept up a good average of four and a half miles an hour, and soon after I started I felt sure I should beat my record of 1863. The doctors who followed me in the carriage were afraid that I might succumb, and were constantly pulling up alongside to have a look at me; but, bless you, I outwalked three pairs of horses, and sometimes they had to trot to keep up with me"—and the veteran gave a hearty laugh.

"The only diet I took on the journey," continued the pedestrian, "consisted of eggs and milk, and I consumed quarts of that refreshing beverage. You know I am a teetotaller, and I think it is due in a measure to my absteminous habits that I was able to accomplish the long journey with a minimum amount of fatigue. The only discomfort I felt was when the constant walking created a few water blisters on the soles of my feet, but they have already healed up, and I feel as right as rain. I took my food while I walked, but when I arrived at the City Hotel, in New Brunswick, I threw myself on a bed which had been made for me on the floor, took a short nap, and then drank a refreshing cup of tea. When I left the hotel I felt as though I could accomplish twice the distance I had in front of me..

"The longest walk I ever accomplished was in 1879, when I walked 5,000 miles in 100 consecutive days. This was an average of fifty miles a day, and I assure you it is not easy to keep it up for more than fourteen weeks. But I did it, and, though at the end I was glad to take a long rest, the walking did not distress me very much. In 1874 I accomplished a very satisfactory bit of walking—better even than my journey yesterday—viz., 115 miles in twenty-four hours. Seven years before that I walked from Portland, Me., to Chicago, Ill., about 1,500 miles in twenty-five days. In 1874 I walked 500 miles in six days, and five years later I won the Astley belt from the English pedestrian by walking 550 miles in six days.

"I have always been fond of walking and I think it is the finest exercise in the world. A good long walk is better than a month in a gymnasium, and I believe it is a good deal due to lack of this kind of exercise that consumption and other kindred ills are so rampant. A man who takes daily walks in the country cannot fall a victim to any pulmonary disease, and if medical men would only preach this gospel, I believe thousands of valuable lives might be saved. I do not remember when I had a day's illness, and my good health I ascribe entirely to my fondness for walking. Although I am nearing the alloted span of life, I feel as lively as a school boy, and if I live to seventy I intend trying to beat my hundred-mile record—and I think I'll do it."

On his graduation from Wesleyan he was appointed University Scholar in English at Columbia University, where he spent a year in graduate study. He joined the staff of the World's Work at that magazine's beginning and was its Managing Editor for three years. Two years ago he went abroad as foreign editorial representative of The American Magazine and The Outing Magazine. He has meanwhile contributed to many of the leading monthlies here and abroad. He is twenty-eight years old. At present he holds an important editorial position with The Outing Publishing Company; he is a church soloist in a well-known New York choir; and he is vice-president of a Connecticut manufacturing concern which he helped to reorganize a few years ago. THE HUNT OF BIG GAME.

The northern part of the Province of Ontario is the mecca for the sportsman and hunter. Deer and moose abound in the several districts that are reached by the Grand Trunk Railway System including "Muskoka," "Lake of Bays," "Maganetawan River," "Lake Nipissing," "French River," "Temagami," "Georgian Bay," and several points on the Ottawa Division between Scotia Jct. and Algonquin Park. Last year nearly 12,000 deer and 300 moose were taken out of this territory and from reports received this year, the supply is as great as ever. All hunting districts easy of access. Full particulars in "Haunts of Fish and Game," an illustrated publication giving all information, game laws, etc., sent free, on application to G. T. Bell, General Passenger Agent, Montreal.

Office Boy—"Want to see the guv'nor? What name shall I say?" Visitor—"Herr Schweitzsalsburghausen." Office Boy—"Oh, I shan't have time to pronounce all that. I'm leaving at the end of the week."

No one need fear cholera or any summer complaint if they have a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial ready for use. It corrects all looseness of the bowels promptly and causes a healthy and natural action. This is a medicine adapted for the young and old, rich and poor and is rapidly becoming the most popular medicine for cholera, dysentery, etc., in the market.

"I wish I was half as beautiful as Miss Brown," remarked the fair Edith to Mr. Green. "Well, you are, you know," replied Green thoughtlessly. Then he wondered why she suddenly rose and left him.

Death Comes to All.—But it need not come prematurely if proper precautions are taken. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," and to have prevention at hand and allow a disease to work its will is wickedness. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil not only allays pains when applied externally, but will prevent lung troubles resulting from colds and coughs. Try it and be convinced.

Mother (to little daughter)—"I am surprised Ethel, that you should talk so impertinently to your father. I'm sure you never heard me talk that way to him." Ethel—"Well, you choosed him, and I didn't."

A Sure Cure for Headache.—Bilious headache, to which women are more subject than men, becomes so acute in some subjects that they are utterly prostrated. The stomach refuses food, and there is a constant and distressing effort to free the stomach from bile which has become unduly secreted there. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are a speedy alternative, and in neutralizing the effects of the intruding bile relieves the pressure of the nerves which cause the headache. Try them.

DID NOT IMPRESS HIM.

A practical joker recently made his first trip to Niagara Falls, and a guide that he hired was trying to impress him with their magnitude.

"Grand!" suggested the guide.

"Grand," acquieseed the tourist stolidly

He seemed to be interested, but not at all impressed.

"Millions of gallons a minute," explained the guide.

"How many a day?" asked the tourist.

"Oh, billions and billions," said the guide.

The other looked across and down and up, as if gauging the flow, and then turned away disinterestedly.

"Runs all night, too, I suppose," he remarked nonchalantly.

The guide never recovered.

ACCOUNTED FOR.

"But," said the merchant to the applicant, "you don't furnish any reference from your last place." "You needn't worry about that," replied the man with the close-cropped head and prison pallor, "I wouldn't be here now if it hadn't been for my good behavior in my last place."

To Those of Sedentary Occupation.—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find in Parmelee's Vegetable Pills a restorative without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap considering their excellence.

"Tobacco smoking," said the traveller, "is so common in Holland, that it is impossible to distinguish one person from another in a room full of smokers." "But supposing you want to speak to someone present, how are you to find it out?" "Ah, in such cases a waiter is sent round with a pair of bellows, with which he blows away the smoke from the face of every person until the right one is found."

For Family Colds

A reliable cough and cold cure should be always in the house ready for use the moment the first symptoms appear.

It is always easier, cheaper and better to check a cold in the very beginning.

It is safer, too.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure, the Lung Tonic, has been tested for thirty-three years, and tens of thousands of homes in Canada and the United States to-day are never without it.

A dealer writes: "Shiloh's Consumption Cure is without doubt the best remedy for Coughs and Colds on the market. Once used, my customers will buy no other.—L. Elsley, Nassagaweya, Ont."

If it were anything but the best would this be so? Try it in your own family. If it does not cure, you get back all it cost you. We take all the chances. Neither you nor your dealer can lose. Isn't that fair? 25c. is the price. All dealers in medicine sell 503

Yes. 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

Dr. Hugo's Health Tablets for Women
Make Healthy Women.

Upon being taken into the stomach, the various ingredients are absorbed by the blood, and then find their way to every organ and tissue.
Some reach the uterine system. These allay inflammation, stop all drains on the system and make women regular.
Some strengthen the stomach. They help digestion and increase the appetite.
Others act on the bowels. They cure constipation.
Other ingredients stimulate the liver and kidneys in carrying off impurities from the system.
Others reach the nerves. These tone up the nervous system and supply vital energy, thereby curing the nervousness, irritability, and melancholy, to which so many women are subject.
The full effect of all the medicaments in the tablets is to arouse the entire female system to renewed life and vigor.
Improvement is noticed the first week.

THE PICNIC A SUCCESS

The Picnic, Bazaar and Concert Proved Very Satisfactory.

MR. R. L. BORDEN WELL RECEIVED.

A Large Crowd of People were Present From all Sections of the Country and all Seemed to Enjoy the Sport.

The long looked for picnic, bazaar and concert, has come and gone, and with it goes the good wishes of the dam construction committee, who are financially helped to a great extent, although we are at present unable to say how much.

The weather was all that could be desired, and although a large crowd was expected, it was not up to the expectations of the committee in charge.

Coming by way of the O. & N. Y., Mr. R. L. Borden was met at Finch, and driven to town in the morning, where he was the guest of Mr. O. D. Casselman, About 10.30 the band formed in procession and marched to the residence of Mr. Casselman, and from there Mr. Borden was escorted to the driving park. Upon arriving there a number of the prominent men of the district were invited to seats on the stand erected for that purpose, and in a short time, Mr. L. A. Zufelt, reeve of the town, and acting chairman, called on Mr. Borden to address the gathering.

In coming forward Mr. Borden received a warm welcome and after a few remarks he retired, thinking that it would be better for him to address the gathering after dinner.

The next speaker was the well known member in the House of Commons for Dundas county, Mr. Andrew Broder, and in his pleasing way and manner, he talked to the gathering for about an hour, after which the gathering were invited to dinner, which was in waiting on the grounds, and to which a large number seemed to thoroughly enjoy. There was plenty to eat, put up tastily, and the only drawback was you had to stand to satisfy your inner wants.

After dinner, the speakers, together with the invited guests, again took their seats on the stand, and Mr. R. L. Borden was called on to address the assemblage. Although he did not speak long, he talked candidly and nicely to the people, and we are sure left a good impression on their minds, at least Mr. John Edgerton says so. His visit here brought with it no political color, and of course, was not tampered with at all, but we are sure that a large number of people would be pleased to hear Mr. Borden on a political platform.

After the speaker took his seat, Mr. W. B. Lawson, in his usual capable manner, rose in the crowd and moved a vote of thanks to Mr. Borden, which was seconded by Mr. James Casselman. and a hearty clap of hands extended the speaker.

At the completion of this part of the program, the sports commenced.

During the afternoon Mr. Jno. McAvoy auctioned off donations to the dam, which netted quite a sum of money.

In the evening a concert was held in Foster's Hall, at which a large crowd was present, the hall being inadequate for the occasion. The talent was mostly of a local nature, but a number of outsiders took part, among them being Messrs. S. W. Boyd and Beggs, and Miss Kate Irving of Winchester, and Mr. A. E. Whitcher of Carleton Place.

The outsiders were well received and kindly responded to encores. Also our home talent were well received.

Much interest was centered in the drawing contest for a cutter, a watch and a silver tea pot. The tickets were sold for the nominal sum of 25c., and we presume a large number were got rid of at that price. The result was made known at Foster's hall in the eveniug, and the following held the lucky numbers:—

Cutter—Mr. W. J. McCart, Avonmore,
Gold Watch—Jas. Clement, Dunbar.
Silver Tea Pot—Sandy Beckstead, Williamsburg.

The following is the result of the speeding contests:—

2.15 class—Purse $75.00.

Best Carriage Horse—1st John P. Burns, 2nd Frank Parker.

100 yds. Foot Race—C. Williams 1st, Lorne Hutt 2nd.

¼ mile Foot Race—1st Tom Merkley, 2nd Lorne Hutt.

On the Bean Contests Mr. Vene Robinson guessed 2225, out of a possible 2241, and secured a pair of boots; and Mr. F. W. Merkley was the successful guesser, and secured a pair of boots on one of the bean contests.

The committees in charge deserve every credit for the manner in which they conducted the proceedings of the day.

The Late Robert Styles.

Early on Sunday morning, Sept. 23rd. 1906, there passed out of this life one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of the Township of Williamsburg, Mr. Robert Styles, who for many years has lived with his son, James Styles of Riverside. Mr. Styles was in his 85th year, and up to a few months ago enjoyed the best of health, but during the past four or five months he failed so rapidly that his death was expected long before the end came.

The late Mr. Styles was a staunch Conservative in politics and in religion a consistent member of the Church of England. Although Mr. Styles has not been actively engaged in business for many years, and so was not known very well among the younger class of people, still the very large gathering that assembled to attend his funeral service in Trinity Church on Tuesday afternoon testified in the high esteem in which he was held by the whole community.

Two sons, James and George Styles, both of Riverside, mourn the loss of a good father, but they may find comfort in the knowledge that their father was respected by all who knew him.

Dr. Savignac Captured.

Ottawa, Oct. 2—Dr. J. Savignac, who a week ago put two bullets in his wife and her mother, was brought in Saturday night and lodged in jail to answer the charge of attempted murder. Detectives Dick and Ryan, of Ottawa, secured him Saturday at 6 o'clock in a farm house three miles from Beauharnois and had him handcuffed before he could make use of two revolvers which he pulled. He had $136 in his possession. The two women are out of danger. Savignac appears to be in good condition after his week on the road.

Newspaper Law.

1—A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law), when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office and state the reason for it not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2—If any person order his paper discontinued he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount, whether the paper is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until payment is made.

3—Any person who takes a paper from the postoffice, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed for it or not, is responsible for the pay.

4—If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publishers continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it out of the post office. The process is upon the ground that a man must pay for that he uses.

JACOB GOULD SCHURMAN
The President of Cornell University

When Jacob Gould Schurman was a boy on his father's backwoods farm on Prince Edward Island, where he was born in 1854, educational advantages were scant in quality and costly in time and energy. Books were few, the one newspaper that connected the family with the outside world was but a provincial weekly, and the district school was taught by one teacher who gave the staple things of education, with no fancy dishes of the modern class.

When Jacob was thirteen he had to become self-supporting, and secured a clerkship of the general utility type in a country store at thirty dollars a year and his board and washing. In his second year he received sixty dollars, and with this coming of wealth came a longing for a better education.

In two years he had saved eighty dollars and with this as a bulwark against starvation he attended the village high school, studied voraciously day and night and entered a competitive examination for a scholarship at Prince of Wales College at Charlottetown, on the island. He won the scholarship of sixty dollars and went to the college. Then after a year of teaching he went to Acadia College, where his appetite for prize-winning became insatiable. He won a scholarship of $500 a year for three years offered by the University of London, followed by his winning the traveling fellowship of the Hibbert Society, and other prizes, scholarships and similar rewards, with predestined certainty and monotonous iteration.

He studied in London, Paris, Edinburgh, Berlin, Göttingen, and half a dozen other cities, and when six or seven nations had given him all they could supply but not nearly all he could absorb, he returned to Canada as professor in one of the colleges.

In 1885, Andrew D. White recommended him to Cornell, and the year following, at the age of thirty-two, he became head of the Department of Philosophy; in 1891 was made Dean of the Sage School of Philosophy, and in 1892 he received the degree of Doctor of Laws from Edinburgh University and became President of Cornell, being the only man even considered for a moment for the position.

Dr. Schurman is remarkable as a lecturer, broad and liberal as a teacher, searching for truth with his students rather than giving them his opinions as finalities; sincere and thorough as an investigator; clear, eloquent and effective as an orator; simple and direct as an author; and as a man, popular, magnetic, sympathetic, sterling and broad-gauge.

Entered according to Act of the Parliament of Canada, in the year 1904, by W. C. Mack, at the Department of Agriculture.

Asylum Inmate Suicides.

Brockville, Ont., Sept. 28—J. McDonnell, an inmate of Brockville asylum for several years, committed suicide to-day. He was considered harmless and was always allowed considerable liberty. While left alone for a while to day he stood his bed up on end, twisted a sheet and made a noose at one end, fastening the other end to his bed and deliberately hanged himself.

NEWINGTON.

A very pretty wedding took place on Wednesday, Sept. 19, at the residence of the bride's brother, John Johnson of Newington, when Miss Christina Elizabeth Johnson was joined in wedlock to Josiah W. Rutley, also of this place. The nuptial knot was tied by Rev. S. D. Hague. The bride, who was prettily gowned in pure white silk, was attended by her cousin, Miss Dora Hoople of Newington, who was also dressed in white. J. Johnson acted as best man. After the ceremony, and a dainty wedding repast, the young couple left for South Indian, Crysler and other neighboring points on their wedding trip. The bride's travelling suit was of brown silk, with hat to match. Mr. and Mrs. Rutley have the best wishes of a host of friends for a happy and prosperous future. The bride received many handsome and valuable presents.

AVONMORE.

A very pleasant event took place at the home of Hugh A. Campbell, Elm Street, on Tuesday, Sept. 25, when his daughter, Miss Annie May Campbell, was married to Duncan J. Cameron, son of the late Donald Cameron of Lodi. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Lachlan Beaton of Moose Creek, in the presence of immediate friends. The bride wore a dress of white silk, trimmed with silk chantily, and her travelling suit was of navy blue cloth, trimmed with white silk braid. Mr. and Mrs. Cameron left on the evening train for Ottawa. The best wishes of a host of friends go with them for a happy future.

Fred Coulen Killed at North Bay.

North Bay, Sept. 29—A sad accident occured at the Union station last night, in which Mr. Fred Coulen lost his life. The unfortunate man was a fireman on the Grand Trunk engine which was to take out the Toronto express, leaving here at 8.50 p.m. The engine had been coupled to the train, and after the coupling was made it appears that the engineer tried the air brakes, and some coupling between the train and locomotive gave way. The fireman got down to fix it, and in doing so he caught his head between the bumpers. At that moment the engine moved slightly, and the fireman's head was crushed, killing him instantly. His remains were taken to Eganville, Ont.

MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER

Died of Consumption, but this Linden lady used Psychine and is strong and well

"My mother, brother and sister died of consumption," says Ella M. Cove, of Linden, N.S., "and I myself suffered for two years from a distressing cough and weak lungs. I suppose I inherited a tendency in this direction?

"But thank God I used Psychine and it built me right up. My lungs are now strong. I enjoy splendid health, and I owe it all to Psychine."

Consumption, whether hereditary or contracted, cannot stand before Psychine. Psychine kills the germ, no matter how it attacks the lungs. Psychine builds up the body and makes it strong and able to resist disease. Psychine is an aid to digestion and a maker of pure, rich blood. The greatest giver of general health is

The Largest Jack Manufacturer in the World Writes about

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

DOOMED BY TERRORISTS

List of Those Against Whom Death Sentences Have Been Passed.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says: Nearly every minister, courtier and army officer whose name was even indirectly connected with the repressions and punitive actions of the last year is now under sentence of death at the hands of the Terrorists.

After M. Stolypin, who heads the list and whose life is not worth an hour's purchase, the most important condemned man is General Alexis Ignatieff, the leader of the so-called "Camarilla" or "Star Chamber," which, though it has no official status, meets regularly and forces its counsels upon the Czar.

Ignatieff is a nephew of the Count Ignatieff, popularly known as "The Father of Lies," who negotiated the San Stefano treaty. Alexis Ignatieff is a ferocious reactionary and anti-Semite. His name immediately comes up whenever dictatorship is suggested.

Next in importance is M. Durnovo, late Minister of the Interior. He lived in Interlaken under the name of Miller, with the result that an innocent Frenchman named Muller was shot dead by a woman Terrorist. Durnovo is corrupt, uneducated and brutal. He is the inventor of "punitive expeditions" against discontented centres of population.

Gen. Rennenkampf became known during the late war with Japan, where he commanded the Cossacks without the least success. His offence is that he led a punitive expedition along the Siberian Railway, shooting people without trial wholesale. He took innocent women and even school girls as hostages in his "armored train," and threatened to shoot them if any attempt was made against his safety. The armored train consisted of a saloon and four prison vans, which were packed full of men and women of all classes, from the curator of Tomsk University downward.

Gen Meller—Zakomelsky has also received a death sentence for offences similar to Rennenkamf. At Khilka he shot eleven men and boys without trial or enquiry.

Governor Kurloff of Minsk, has been sentenced for organizing massacres of Jews.

GIRL SHOT WARDERS.

Lukheria Trostoff, a girl of 18 years, escaped last week from Kazan City Prison, after killing three warders and wounding a fourth. Mlle. Trostoff's associates outside the jail made a tunel under the street over three feet in diameter, and finally worked their way to the floor of the girl's cell. When, at night, she attempted to escape, the roof of the tunel fell in, leaving a gap in the roadway. Warned from outside, the warder on duty rushed into the cell, and not seeing the prisoner, fired all the shots of his revolver into the tunnel. When the six bullets were spent, Mlle Trostoff, covered with earth, emerged from the tunnel and shot the warder through the head. Two other prison officials who came in without lights she also shot dead, putting a bullet into the leg of a fourth, and escaped into the town.

DISARMED THE POLICE.

Grave agrarian disorders have broken out in the province of Viatka, the centre of disturbances being the important district of Malbuish, with a population of over 100,000, where the inhabitants of seventy villages are reported to have joined in the uprising, have disarmed and expelled the police, and are pillaging and destroying the residences of the land-owners and devastating the country. Details are difficult to obtain, but it is rumored at Viatka that the administrative police chiefs in the Malbuish district and eight of their subordinates have been killed. The excesses began September 20, with a riot over the enrollment of army reserves for their autumn services.

Disorders have also broken out in the adjoining district at Chistopol, in Kazan province.

POISON FOR POLICE.

A despatch from Moscow says: A man engaged a policeman in conversation on Tuesday, and gave him a pear. After eating it the policeman became dangerously ill, poison having been inserted in the fruit.

An unsuccessful attempt was made at Helsingfors on Tuesday to blow up the police reserve barracks. One man was slightly injured. There is no clue to the criminals.

DISORDERS ARE RIFE.

A despatch from St. Petersburg says. Further disquieting information regarding the agrarian situation comes from the Provinces of Saratov and Tambov and the lower Volga region, where serious disorders are anticipated when the recruiting season opens in October. The populations of many communes have adopted formal resolutions discarding the authority of the police and clergy, the rural police are resigning in great numbers, land owners are disposing of their estates at any sacrifice and land values have dropped from $80 to $18 per acre. Details of the uprising at Malmuish, Viataka Province, are difficult to obtain, but the peasantry of the Village of Knagorodsk have disarmed the police and proclaimed autonomy.

STOESSEL LEAVES ARMY.

Information was given on Thursday that Lieut.-Gen. Stoessel, who commanded the Russian forces at Port Arthur, on Thursday submitted his resignation from the army. It is understood that it will be accepted. The resignation is said to have been due to the initiative of Emperor Nicholas, who expressed his aversion to any further discussion of the subject in open court.

ANOTHER PLOT AT PETERHOFF.

A despatch to the London Times from St. Petersburg says that another plot has been discovered at Peterhoff against the life of the Czar. A mysterious lady was conveyed by a strong escort to the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul on Wednesday night.

SUNK IN OTTAWA RIVER.

Three Persons were Drowned on the Steamer Maud.

A despatch from Montreal says: Three lives were lost by a collision between the steamers Maud and Ottawan opposite Hudson, on the Ottawa River, about 3.30 on Thursday morning. The dead are:—Maggie Benson of Oka, stewardess; B. Pawtry of Levis, engineer, and a passenger named Barrett of Montebello. The Maud was so badly damaged that she sank within a few minutes after the accident occurred. An idea may be formed of how quickly the water engulfed her from the fact that the engineer came up on deck to see what had happened, and then hurried back to get some personal effects. He was not seen again. Barrett also appeared on the deck, but he rushed below to loosen a horse, and was caught. The stewardess mistook her way in the darkness and fell into a hole caused by the wreckage, and met a terrible fate, going headlong into the midst of the livestock.

The Maud was owned by the Ottawa Navigation Company and the Ottawan by the Ottawa Forwarding Company. The former was coming down the river and the latter going up. Apparently a misunderstanding arose over the signals for passing, so the two steamers came together with sufficient force to cut a hole into the Maud several feet deep near the hatchway. Twenty-five passengers were aboard the Maud, but with the exception of Barrett all were safely transferred to the Ottawan. The cargo consisted of 8 horses, 30 cattle, 150 sheep and 200 chickens, all of which were lost. The river where the accident occurred widens out into what is called the Lake of Two Mountains. The Maud had been engaged in the Ottawa River trade for twenty-five years. She is valued at $10,000, and will probably be a complete loss.

$100,000 FIRE AT MONTREAL.

Wipes Out Fourteen Buildings in Suburb of the City.

A despatch from Montreal says: A fire which broke out early on Wednesday afternoon destroyed 14 buildings, either partly or wholly, in St. Louis de Mile End, a northern suburb of Montreal, and rendered some 30 families homeless. The loss is estimated at about $100,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire started in a small house occupied by A. Madame Belanger. Some children were playing in the yard shortly before, and it is supposed they may have started the fire accidentally. The flames spread to some wooden sheds and to a stable in the vicinity, and by this time had made such headway that the local firemen were unable to cope with it, and the Montreal brigade responded to a call for assistance. Both brigades worked all afternoon before the fire was put under control. A woman 85 years of age was rescued from one of the burning houses.

SALVATION ARMY SETTLERS.

Officials Confer With Premier Regarding Immigration Work.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Col. Lamb, Commissioner Coombes and Brigadier Howell, of the Salvation Army, have arrived in Ottawa to confer with Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Minister of the Interior in reference to the extension of the Army's emigration work in Great Britain. Col. Lamb, who is the chief of the emigration department of the Army, has just returned from the North-West and British Columbia, where he examined localities suitable for the settlement of emigrants whom the Army expect to send to this country during the coming year.

EMBEZZLER BRICK CAUGHT.

Reported Capture of Manager of Wampole Company in Japan.

A despatch from Ottawa says: H. W. Brick, defaulting manager of the W. K. Wampole Company of Perth, Ontario, who disappeared on July 1st last, has, according to report, been arrested in Japan. The arrest is said to have been made by a detective employed by the Toronto General Trusts Co. He will be brought back for trial.

GROWTH OF 'PHONE SYSTEMS.

Three Hundred Applications Filed With Commission.

A despatch from Ottawa says: As indicating the growth of the telephone service in Canada, Capt. Cartwright, secretary of the Railway Commission, states that since the Act of last session placing telephones under the jurisdiction of the commission there have been no fewer than 300 applications filed for new lines, extensions, crossings and the like.

SIXTY VICTIMS OF RAINS.

Torrential Downpour Occasions Immense Damage in Spain.

A despatch from Madrid says: Enormous damage has been done in the Provinces of Tarragona and Valladolid by torrential rains. At the Village of Santa Maria the bodies of sixty drowned persons have been recovered. The village is in ruins and the survivors, in a starving condition and panic stricken, have fled to Murica. The rice crop in the Valencia district is devastated.

DR. SAVIGNAC CAPTURED.

Tried to Seize His Revolvers When Officers Ran Him Down.

A despatch from Ottawa says: Dr. J. A. Savignac, who attempted to murder his wife and mother-in-law on Monday night of last week, was arrested on Saturday evening by Detectives Dicks and Ryan, at Melocheville, in Beauharnois County, and is now in the Ottawa jail. Since Monday Savignac has been gradually working his way towards the United States frontier. Hearing on Friday that he had been seen around Coteau, the detectives immediately posted off to that point, where they arrived Friday evening. Enquiries led them to concluded that their man had gone east, and before daybreak on Saturday they were on the road towards River Beaudette, which is at the foot of the Soulanges Canal. At this point they ascertained that the man they wanted had been ferried across the river to Melocheville by a man named Henry Lalonde Lalonde was found, and for a consideration undertook to take the detectives across in the drenching rain. Lalonde did not know where Savignac had gone, but he directed the detectives to the house of a farmer named Arthur Hainault for information.

As soon as the kitchen door opened Dicks saw his man, quietly reading a newspaper. Dicks sprang at Savignac, and the latter tried to get at his revolvers, which were lying on the table. Fortunately he was too late, otherwise there might have been more bloodletting. There was a wild time in the kitchen, however, for five minutes as Savignac fought like a tiger to get away. The two detectives got a vehicle and drove with Savignac to Beauharnois, from which point a St. Lawrence and Adriondack train took them to Montreal. By 2 o'clock Sunday morning Savignac was behind the bars in Ottawa.

SHOT A DETECTIVE.

A Desperate Burglar Captured in Montreal.

A despatch from Montreal says: In a desperate attempt to escape from a store that he was robbing on Sunday morning. Robert Walker, a ticket-of-leave man from St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary, shot and seriously wounded Detective Le Huquet, and was himself knocked senseless by a blow from a pickaxe handle in the hands of Detective O'Keefe. His skull is fractured and he is not expected to recover. A companion who assisted him in the burglary escaped, and has not yet been captured. Both Detective and burglar had to be taken to the hospital in an ambulance. Walker and his companion had been seen loitering around the premises of the Starke Hardware Company near the waterfront, and as their purpose was suspected, a warning was sent to police headquarters. Detectives Le Huquet and O'Keefe were immediately sent out, and when they arrived at the Starke warehouse they found that a pane had been removed from a back window. Entering, they heard a conversation upstairs, and so waited below for the men to come down. Presently they came, and as they reached the bottom of the stairway Le Huquet stepped out, and, levelling a revolver, called on the burglars to hold up their hands. Walker replied with a shot. The first bullet struck Le Huquet's pistol arm at the elbow, disabling it. The second took effect in the right side of the neck, and the third in the left side. None of them is likely to prove fatal. O'Keefe was carrying a pick-axe handle, and he was a few paces away. Three shots were fired before he could strike a blow. His first stroke, however, sent Walker sprawling, and meantime the other burglar escaped. Walker is only nineteen years old. He has already served a considerable time in prison.

NO LET-UP TO IMMIGRATION.

During Past Six Months 100,000 Have Entered Canada.

A despatch from Montreal says: Immigration towards Canada continues heavy. On Friday no less than 2,250 immigrants passed through Montreal on their way West. They crossed the ocean in the Empress of Ireland, the Canada, the Tunisian, and the Montrose. Many of them were accompanied by their wives and children. The fact that immigration towards the Dominion continues with such unabated vigor comes as a surprise to both the steamship and railway officials. Nothing like it has been known before. During the past six months it is computed that fully 100,000 Britons and Europeans have taken up their residence in the Dominion. Of this number 60,000 have been taken to Western Canada over the C.P.R. Thousands have found homes in Ontario, Quebec, and the Maritime Provinces.

FATHER SAW SON DEAD.

Boy Killed By Train on Which Parent Was a Passenger.

A despatch from Moncton, N.B., says: Within a few yards of Memramcook station on Saturday night 13-year-old William Billiveau was run down and killed by a train on which his father was a passenger. The lad's father was the first to alight, and was horrified to find that the victim of the accident was his own son. The lad was driving to the station to meet his father, and did not see the approaching train.

THE CHILDREN'S ALDERMAN.

He Is Elected Lord Mayor of London, England.

A despatch from London says: Sir William Treloar, Alderman of the City of London for the Ward of Farrington Without since 1892, was on Saturday elected Lord Mayor of London, in succession to Walter Vaughan Morgan. Sir William has been known as the "Children's Alderman," because of his many benefactions to the children of the slums. He was largely instrumental in securing the opening of the British Museum on Sundays.

GULF COAST DEVASTATED

Pensacola, Florida, Is a Mass of Wreckage.

A despatch from Louisville, Ky., says: The tropical hurricane which on Thursday churned the waters of the Gulf of Mexico, did much damage on the coast and far inland. Reports received do not indicate any loss of life, but the damage to property is enormous. All wire communication is seriously disarranged, and in some instances has resulted in cutting off cities completely. Numerous washouts have occurred, the interruption from this cause in one case extending thirty miles.

Pensacola, where the maximum velocity of the wind was probably felt, reports a property loss of $3,000,000.

New Orleans furnished numerous wild rumors during the day, but later reports from there indicate that, while there was considerable damage to property, there has been no loss of life. Wires between New Orleans and the Gulf are down, and it may be several days before anything can be heard from the territory between that city and the Gulf or from the shipping which is riding out the storm in the open gulf.

DAMAGE TO RAILWAYS HEAVY.

The damage to railroads is heavy. Reports to the officials of the Louisville and Nashville Road from the superintendent of the Mobile and Montgomery division indicated that the loss approximates $1,000,000.

At Pensacola the Louisville and Nashville grain elevator has been destroyed and the trackage to Escambia Bay is ruined. The railroad wharf at Pensacola is reported a total loss. Further reports indicate that the roadbed between Minette, Ala., and Mobile, a distance of 30 miles, has been washed away.

The Louisville and Nashville also suffered several washouts near New Orleans. The New Orleans and Northeastern reports its tracks under water at several places near New Orleans.

SHIPS LYING IN STREETS.

A despatch from Flomaton, Ala., says: A few refugees from Pensacola, Fla., fleeing from the fierce Gulf storm, which swept that city, have reached here. Among them is D. J. Ligon, a travelling man, of Atlanta, who tells graphically of the terrors endured by the Florida port. Ligon says:—"I have just reached this point from Pensacola, Florida, where I spent a horrible night of torture, passing through the terrific hurricane, which lasted for hours, and, to add to the horror of the night, fire broke out, sending sparks at great speed over the hotel. At 3 o'clock all the guests were awakened and ordered down. Tin roofs were flying in all directions. The rain came in sheets. Part of the town is under water. Ships suffered greatly. All wires are down and cars are not running. Windows by the wholesale were smashed, and thousands of trees are down for miles out of town, some falling on the wires and breaking the same in hundreds of places. The entire city is a mass of wreckage. Not a residence or business house in the city has escaped damage. Roofs are blown off, telegraph, telephone, and electric wires are a tangled mass. The water front is strewn with wreckage for miles on either side of the city, and vessels are piled on the wharves, or where the wharves were, in utter ruin.

"When I was getting out of the city I saw great ships lying in the streets of Pensacola. The water front is gone. Every wharf has been destroyed. Just before I left there was a report that fully 50 lives had been lost in the storm in the navy yard district, but it was impossible to verify the report. I myself saw, however, many women and children taken from second-storey windows of houses that were surrounded by water above the first floor. One can hardly describe the scenes in the principal streets. They are full of wreckage and locomotion is almost impossible."

MOBILE IN RUINS.

A despatch from Mobile, Alabama, via Meridian, Miss, says: This city is practically in ruins as a result of the Gulf storm which swept it Thursday night. Some 6,000 or 7,000 houses have been damaged or destrayed, and the loss is estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. There are no reliable figures to be had as to the loss of life. Three negroes are known to be dead, and there are rumors that fifty persons lost their lives, but as things are, these rumors cannot be verified. It is feared, however, that when all is known the loss of life will be heavy. The city has been placed under martial law and looters will be sumarily dealt with.

Every church in the city has suffered, though Christ Church and St. Francis Street Baptist Church suffered more than the others. The damage to Christ Church is estimated at $40,000, St. Francis Street Baptist Church at $10,000.

Mobile's shipping suffered more than anything else. Many of her river boats are now beached or sunken, all complete wrecks. Her docks and those of private corporations are fearfully torn up. The revenue cutter Alert has gone down in Mobile River. She was rammed by some unknown vessel and sank immediately. Her crew is believed to have all escaped.

The depth of water in the wholesale district, which includes the entire section of the city from Royal Street to the river, was seven feet.

AWFUL DEVASTATION.

During the hours between 6 p.m. Thursday and noon on Friday trees fell and roofs crashed by the hundreds through the streets, carried by the terrific wind. Thousands of pieces of tin roofing, cornices, shingles, in fact, all kinds of blinds, torn from their fastenings, slashed as if tissue. Many people were seriously injured and cut by the flying slate and tin roofing.

PROVISIONS ARE SCARCE.

In the city many people and much live stock were rescued after heroic efforts. Provisions are running low. Restaurants feed many, but have no supplies on hand. Ham and eggs constitute the food supply. These, too, will soon become exhausted. Wholesale houses lost many thousands of dollars from flood and willingly paid as high as $1.50 an hour for common labor. Even at this figure few men, white or black, would accept work.

The wind of Thursday was of longer duration and more tornado-like, twisting everything in its path, and more destruction than former storms of like nature that have visited Mobile.

The fruit trees and fall vegetable crops all over Southern Alabama and Mississippi are ruined. So, also, is the cotton, sugar-cane and other crops. One large Mississippi planter made the assertion on Friday that he would willingly accept $15 for his cotton crop and feel afterwards that he had gotten the best of the deal.

All along the lines of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad there were huge trees lying flat upon the ground with limbs torn off and twisted. The streams are all out of their banks, and for 25 miles north of Mobile, looking to the right of the railroad, one can see nothing but a solid sheet of water running swiftly toward Mobile. Many farmhouses are situated in this inundated section, and many people may have lost their lives.

TO ERADICATE DISEASE.

New Regulations Regarding Cattle in Sections of New Provinces.

A despatch from Ottawa says: An order-in-Council has been passed establishing new regulations with a view to eradicating mange in cattle in the infected districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan. These provide that all cattle from the district consigned to Winnipeg or points east must be accompanied by an official certificate of health and be inspected in Winnipeg. The same must accompany cattle bound west or south unless shipped thither for immediate slaughter.

AGRICULTURAL SAMPLES.

Hon. Frank Cochrane Receives Specimens for Abittibi.

A despatch from Toronto says: Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Lands, Forests and Mines, has received from Mr. Frank Moberley, of Abittibi, a number of samples of barley, wheat and native grass. The samples are very fine notwithstanding the fact that the season, according to the statements of the settlers, was the worst in years. In this district Hon. Nelson Monteith, Minister of Agriculture, has selected the site for the Government experimental station.

BANK MANAGER WAS KILLED.

Cut Down by Express While Crossing Rails at Dutton.

A desaptch from Dutton says: Mr. Harry Craig, manager of the Molson's Bank, Dutton, was instantly killed here on Friday evening at the Michigan Central Station while talking to Mr. Siston, a friend, who was waiting to board the "Wolverine" Express for St. Thomas. He was standing on the platform between the double tracks, and attempted to cross in front of the "Wolverine" as it came into the station. The engine struck him and threw him some distance. When picked up life was extinct.

BOARD OF HEALTH REPORT.

Diseases and Deaths From Contagion in August.

A despatch from Toronto says: The returns from 745 division registrars of the province give 2,570 deaths from all causes, representing a population of 2,091,183, which makes a death-rate of 14.2 in 1,000, and for the same month last year 2,200 deaths were reported from a population of 100,000 less. The table of contagious diseases shows the number of cases, smallpox being the same in August of last year, while scarlet fever has been somewhat more prevalent. The deaths from diphtheria dropped from 21 to 8. Typhoid caused 29 more deaths.

BANK CLERK MISSING.

Alleged Robbery of Twenty-five Thousand Dollars.

A despatch from Montreal says: A report has been sent to the police headquarters that a clerk of the head office of the Bank of British North America has not been at his post this week, and that his accounts show a shortage of $25,000. Supreme efforts are being made to keep the affair from the public, and so far nothing official can be obtained, either from the bank or the police, except the bare admission of the defalcation. The absent clerk's name is naturally used in this connection. It is supposed that he left, fearing exposure by the annual inspection.
