Midget Hockey News

On Thursday evening, the small crowd who turned out to see the midget hockey team play against the Cardinal midgets, were unanimous in declaring that it was one of the best games to be played here all winter.

Although the local team lost a 5-4 decision, they carried most of the play after the first period. Their goal ie was in fine form, and beat the Morrisburg snipers time after time.

A return match will be played in Cardinal on Tuesday the 11th.

On Thursday evening the midgets will play hosts to the Prescott team at the local arena between the hours of 7 and 8. These youngsters, if given encouragement now, will be the hockey stars of the future. They are playing fine hockey and developing into a real good team. However, they are still not getting the support from the local people that they merit. If you are interested in helping these future citizens. Try to be at their next home game.

Mrs. Henry Whitteker

It is with deepest sympathy that we express our sincere regrets in the passing of Mrs. Henry Whitteker, a highly esteemed resident of Williamsburg, which occurred at the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital, Brockville on Sunday afternoon following an emergency operation. Mrs. Whitteker had only been ill a few days and entered the hospital on Saturday afternoon.

Possessed of a very kind and pleasing disposition, Mrs. Whitteker made many true friends and her unexpected death came as a shock to her family and friends.

Mrs. Whitteker was born near Dunbar in April 1884 and was in her 63rd year. She was the daughter of the late Lemuel Dillabough and his wife, Rebecca Elliott, her maiden name being Emily Florence Dillabough. On January 10, 1912 she was married to Henry Whitteker of Williamsburg and came to reside at the farm home here where she continued to reside until her death.

Mrs. Whitteker is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Dalton Robinson of Winchester Springs, and Mrs. Gerald Adams of Vars. Also surviving are three grandchildren; three sisters, Mrs. Henry Barkley of Williamsburg, Mrs. Aden Casselman of Winchester Springs and Mrs. Charles Harper of Ottawa; and one brother, Mr. William Dillabough of Elma. Two sisters and a brother predeceased her.

The funeral which was largely attended, was held from her residence on Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock to St. Peter's Lutheran Church Williamsburg, where the service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Geo. Innes, who spoke words of comfort to the bereaved family. The hymns used were "Asleep in Jesus", "When Our Heads are Bowed with Woe", "Peace Perfect Peace" and during the service the choir sang "It Is Not Far".

The pall bearers were nephews of the deceased— Hugh Barkley, Graham Casselman, Clifford Casselman, Percy Casselman, Aden McIntosh, Jimmie Sargent, Russell Ault and Victor Riddell.

The remains were placed in the vault for interment in the spring in Williamsburg cemetery.

Many floral tributes were received, all beautiful, speaking their silent message of love and sympathy.

CHRONICLES OF GINGER FARM

By Gwendoline P. Clarke

Familiarity breeds contempt — so the old saying tells us, and it may be true — but of one thing I am sure — familiarity does breed indifference.

We hear so much about various things — the housing shortage, juvenile delinquency, inflation and subsequent depression, the inadequacy of old age pensions and rehabilitation problems. But do we realize the seriousness of what we hear? I am afraid few of us do. We listen to the radio, hear instances of this and that, as told by the announcer, and for a minute or two it registers and we say "Oh, isn't that dreadful?" or, "That is just too bad—why doesn't the government do something about it?" Poor old government—either Federa or Provincial—what would we do without it for a scape-goat? And then we go on with our work, our book, or our card game, and the incident is forgotten.

* * *

Take the farm labour shortage. We know it exists but I am afraid both town and country people alike just shrug their shoulders. Town people because they don't know what hardships result as the direct outcome of a labour shortage, and farm people because they are always hopefully expecting that something will turn up and that somehow or other they will get by! And, be it said to their credit, they generally do. But when the unforeseen occurs, then they are really up against it. As you know we had a sample of that when Partner fell on the ice. What we would have done without Bob to take over the chores I actually don't know.

* * *

But last week I came across a much worse incident. Our telephone "trouble-man" — who also runs a farm—was out working on the lines after that terrible ice storm, and as might be expected, he fell. No bones were broken and it was not thought he was seriously hurt. But complications set in and now he is in hospital. His wife is left without any help on the farm and there are cows to milk and young cattle to look after. Perhaps that doesn't sound too much but let me tell those who don't know, that cattle must be fed and stables cleaned, and forking hay out of the mow and pushing a loaded wheelbarrow out of the stable is work far beyond the average woman's strength. Yet that is what the farmer's wife is up against unless she can get help. Imagine all that work and worry in addition to her natural anxiety over her hubsand's condition — and not a man to be found anywhere! Even our local "Rep" apparently has far more applications for help than men to fill the jobs.

* * *

Very often some such instance as I have given you proves to be the straw that breaks the camel's back; the climax to a fight against almost impossible odds. And the next thing we know another farm is up for sale.

Maybe that sounds like a gloomy picture of agriculture. Maybe — but yet through the gloom I see a glimmer of light. It may be just a hunch but I certainly have a feeling there is a great future for agriculture—how soon and to what extent I wouldn't like to hazard a guess, but yet I have a hunch it is coming and I think it will come about through those who are not farming, becoming farm-conscious, with a better realization of the work that is required before eggs are put on the market, milk into bottles and meat in the butcher's window. This realization may, in turn, be the result of an acute short supply of farm products — the aftermath of farm labour shortage.

Wouldn't it be a grand idea if there were a compulsory land army which required that every able-bodied youth should serve for one year on some kind of farm, board free but wages paid by the government. Then, at the end of the year, if he showed any liking for, and had any aptitude for farm work, he could hire out at current wages. That, my dear friends, would really wake 'em up. That would definitely put an end to any indifference to farm problems once and for all.

Honourable Minister of Agriculture, please take note.

Co-operation

When all sections of the community realize that we cannot live off each other, but that prosperity is based on a co-operative economy in which all contribute in accordance with their ability and resources, then there is no reason why good times should not continue. Grasp and greed can lead only to grief.

TEEN-TOWN TOPICS

By BARRY MURKAR

We remind you here that next Friday, February 14th, is St. Valentine's Day. Slip out and get the gal friend a nice heart before they are all gone. We don't make as much of this day as we used to, but it doesn't hurt to let someone know you are thinking of them. We don't suggest this, but if you're broke, call the gal and read her a verse or two of something sentimental . . . If anyone is listening in, they'll enjoy it too.

* * *

THIS 'N THAT—In going over the dial lately, we have found that several radio stations across the province are giving "air-time" to the teeners; the most recent being CFOR of Orillia. The teeners of Orillia opened their first program by having the Mayor, F. C. Yeo, say a few words for the future citizens. The gang up there are trying hard to get a permanent hall and club rooms and are letting everyone far and wide know about it via the ether. They write, produce and direct their own fifteen minute show, called Teen Town Time. Congratulations gang.

CHML of Hamilton gives the young people of that area time for discussion each week that is drawing current interest from young and old. We heard one of these broadcasts a few weeks ago and the thought-provoking arguments set up by these teeners made me stop and think.

In the eastern section, Kingston and Oshawa are giving time to teen shows. Last week CKDO of Oshawa had a guest pianist as well as their regular teener news of the district. They apparently have reporters that dig up the social stuff through the week, write it, and then present it on the program. Nice work, too.

Joe Crysdale of Toronto's CKEY of course has listeners all over the place when he comes on with Club 580 each day at 4 p.m. Many out-of-town teeners get down for this show and we frequently hear of visitors from different parts of the province. We think Joe is doing a great job for the young people and we know they appreciate it.

I mention these shows just to illustrate that we young uns aren't being ignored by the oldsters. They must feel that we have something on the ball, or we wouldn't be receiving these privileges.

* * *

While on the subject of radio, we note that Eddie Allen of the CBC Happy Gang was recently picked as the nation's favorite singer. We remember Eddie as a boy when he used to go out with a group of young men from the Fred Victor Mission of Toronto, singing and playing his accordion——we'd say he's hitting on all four.

A dance band, well known to high school hops across the province, is that of Bobby Gimby—also of the Happy Gang. A former member of the Mart Kenney outfit, he formed his own group and has been climbing ever since. We hear, that between now and the summer, he will have played at high schools all across the province—which is proof enough of his popularity with the young fry.

* * *

We have been hearing a great deal about the fan clubs that some of the teen gangs have. How about letting us hear about yours? This idea of fan clubs isn't new——but it seems to be ever growing in popularity,. Remember this is your column and you are invited to make use of it.

With the current rise in restaurant foods, dining after a show for even a snack is going to hit the old pot pretty hard. We have always enjoyed a snack in the kitchen after a night out — especially the girl friend's—and now will appreciate it even more.

* * *

When we started writing the column today and tossing in a little of this 'n that, we wondered where it would end. There is one item that we would like to draw to your attention, and that is the new book, "Your Manners Are Showing" by Betty Betz. Written in a style you will understand, it gives the many do's and don'ts that we younger generation should keep in mind. You'll enjoy this book and at the same time find it helpful, so keep it in mind.

* * *

I think I'll go home now and learn the words to the new song, "Open The Door, Richard!" before I go nuts. If I hear it once more today, there will be no more Teen Town Topics, at least not as written by your truly.

Sugar Saving

Apples do require some sugar but the home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture have devised recipes for dishes which taste good and use a minimum amount of sugar. None of the desserts require more than ½ cup of sugar for six servings. This includes a number of excellent apple recipes.

Ginger Apple Upside-Down Cake

3 tablespoons butter
⅓ cup brown sugar
3 apples
¼ cup shortening
3 tablespoons white sugar
1 egg
⅓ cup molasses
1 cup pastry OR
1 cup less 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon soda
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
⅓ cup boiling water

Melt the three tablespoons butter in baking dish. Add brown sugar and cook together for two or three minutes. Pare and core apples. Cut each apple in half to make two thick rings. Arrange rings of apples in butter and sugar mixture. Cream shortening and sugar together. Add well-beaten egg and molasses. Beat thoroughly. Sift dry ingredients and add to mixture. Lastly add boiling water, mixing quickly. Pour over apples in baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 deg. F. approximately 40 minutes or until done. Six servings.

Butterscotch Apple Pie

¼ cup brown sugar
6-8 medium apples
3 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons shortening (half butter)
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 deep, uncooked 9-inch pie shell

Sprinkle the ¼ cup brown sugar over the bottom of the uncooked pie shell. Peel apples and slice thinly, fill the pie shell, heaping apples slightly in the centre. Cream the three tablespoons brown sugar with the shortening and the flour until well blended. Crumble the mixture over the top of the apples. Pour the milk into the pie and bake in a hot oven, 400 deg. F. until top is brown and apples are tender, about 45 minutes Cool and serve. Makes 1 deep 9-inch pie.

Spiced Farina Pudding

¼ cup farina
¼ cup sugar
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 tablespoon cornstarch
4 cups milk
1 cup apples, sliced in ¼ inch pieces

Mix farina, sugar, salt, cinnamon and cornstarch. Add milk and cook, stirring constantly, until the mixture thickens, about five minutes. Place over hot water. Beat well with rotary egg beater. Add apple and continue cooking 30 minutes, uncovered, stirring gently two or three times during cooking. Serve hot or cold with top milk or cream. The pudding is quite firm when cold. Six servings.

New Shipbuilding

British shipyards, experiencing their greatest boom since 1922, had 1,937,062 gross tons of new merchant shipping under construction at the end of December. Lloyd's register of shipping said recently.

The British total amounted to more than half the 3,678,481 gross tons on the ways throughout the world, except for Russia, Poland and ex-enemy states whose figures were not reported.

The United States stood second but far behind, the authoritative report showed, with 326,753 tons under construction.

Pity Poor Indian

One of the two Indian skeletons found last autumn during the excavations at the ancient Indian village of Cahiague near Warminster had two lower jaw bones, says the Midland Press-Herald. This mysterious fact was explained when the skeleton was found to that of a woman. That at least is the solution offered by Prof. T. J. McIlwraith of the Royal Ontario Museum who was in charge of the digging. Pity the poor Huron who had that dame for a squaw!

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER II: Rocky Bjorkland, McCale's employee and friend, decides to do some investigating. He finds that the bride is heiress to twenty million dollars and that the dashing and popular bridegroom appears to have plenty of money also.

CHAPTER III

McCale shrugged. "Plenty if I wanted to let it run away with me." He turned to Ann. "Did you line up the Bigelows for me?"

"With no trouble at all. The reference books, newspaper files, and Who's Who are practically inhabited by them. Here is the main outline." She took some typewrittenn sheets out of a manila envelope and started to hand it to McCale.

"Read it off," he said. "Rocky might as well have the information, too."

"Well," she began, "the Perkinses and the Bigelows go right back—long before the Tea Party—if that's the sort of thing you want."

"Skip that. Bring us up to date."

"Okay. The money all comes from cotton mills in Lowell, and clipper ships and the Oriental trade before that. The Perkinses and the Bigelows intermarried, and so on. Adelaide Bigelow, our client, and her brother, Joel, are and were, respectively, the last of the line. Adelaide never married. Joel married twice. His first wife is dead. Is that clear?"

"Perfectly."

"Joel's second wife, Sybil, is apparently not of the royal purple. Her family only seems to go back a generation or two. She was a widow when he married her. She's a lot younger than he, too."

* * *

"He was seventy when he died, five years ago, and she was forty-three then. She had two children by her first marriage, a son, Stephen, and a daughter, Victoria. Their name was Bennett, but he adopted them, and they changed to the Bigelow surname."

"Then Veronica, the bride, is a daughter of this second marriage?"

"No. The first Mrs. Begelow died in childbirth — that is, in giving birth to Veronica. The old gentleman married Sybil Bennett three years after. Am I bawling this up?"

"No, indeed. It's very clear. Go on."

"There's not much more. Stephen was married two years ago. He's an airplane designer at present. He marries a girl from St. Louis — Swedish descent, but social and all that. A Karen Cristofen. Not much fuss around here about it."

"What's that?" He picked up a folded square of paper that had fluttered from her lap to the floor.

"Oh, I nearly forgot that. It's a rotogravure cut of Veronica Bigelow from the Sunday Herald of a few weeks ago."

* * *

McCale unfolded it and spread it flat on the top of his desk. The likeness of a very pretty girl looked up at him.

"That really doesn't do her justice, I should say," mused Ann. "I understand she has gorgeous red hair and a beautiful figure."

"Well, we shall se," said Duke, handing it back to her. "Tuck it away with the rest of the data and transcribe Rocky's notes for a file on Vallaincourt. I'm due at the ancestral mansion for tea with Miss Adelaide at five—or thereabouts. You and Ann hold the fort here. I'll call you.

The Bigelow house was on that mound of Beacon street that slopes gently to Charles street and the Gardens.

Adelaide Bigelow was waiting for McCale in the drawing room on the second floor. A butler, old and quiet and unobtrusive, had answered his knock and led him through a dim hallway, preceding him up dark, thickly carpeted stairs.

The room was at the front of the house. Heavy red draperies at the wide high windows were already drawn. Frail Miss Bigelow stood in its exact centre, small and patrician, against the background of a huge black marble mantel.

"Please do smoke," Miss Adelaide said in her soft, troubled voice. "This room is rather overpowering, isn't it? It has never been changed since the days of my grandparents. It takes the children to cheer it up. They should be along soon. There was a rehearsal at the church this afternoon." She sighed.

He was obsessed with the thought that although her voice was calm, unhurried, there was something empty anad trembling in her.

He said slowly, his voice low, "Perhaps you have something to tell me before the others arrive."

She looked up quickly, one fist tightly clenched in her lap. "Oh, no."

* * *

"Damnation," thought McCale. "What is the matter with this woman? Or is it me? Am I getting out of practice? I can usually catch something significant in my own subtle way, but this baffles me. I'll stake my life that there is something seriously wrong in this room, in this house. Something is going to happen."

She rose and walked past him to the door, her dress rustling like dry leaves. "I want you to see the wedding gifts," was all she said, closing the door of her mind sharply in his face.

A quick black anger flared up in him. His impulse was to stalk from the house, but reason held him, reason and the disturbing unrest that had remained in his brain and nerves ever since her visit to his office that morning. He followed her downstairs.

Heavy double doors intricately carved in designs of fruit opened off the lower hall into an immense dining room. Table and sideboards were loaded with silver, lamps, expensive glassware; rare, beautiful, odd, pretentious gifts for the bride and groom.

* * *

McCale walked around the display slowly, nodding at Miss Bigelow's remarks: "Very valuable; an heirloom; priceless," and so on. He was ready to grant the necessity of protection for this collection, was beginning to push away the odd hunch he had been playing all day, when he felt, rather than saw, a sudden change in his client.

A quiver rippled over her frail shoulders. Her hands, fluttered helplessly as she came to a sudden frozen stop. They had reached the far end of the table. He heard her gasp and looked down to see the strangest gift of all.

It was a model, to scale, of a small modernistic house, set in miniature landscaped grounds. Complete with casement windows, sun deck, glass-walled patio, it was an architect's dream of the plus ultra in a civilized dwelling place. There was even a tiny roadster on the curved highway, a swimming pool in the rear, a statue in the small, geometrically plotted garden. The model had evidently been on display somewhere, for an engraved card attached to one corner of the base read:

* * *

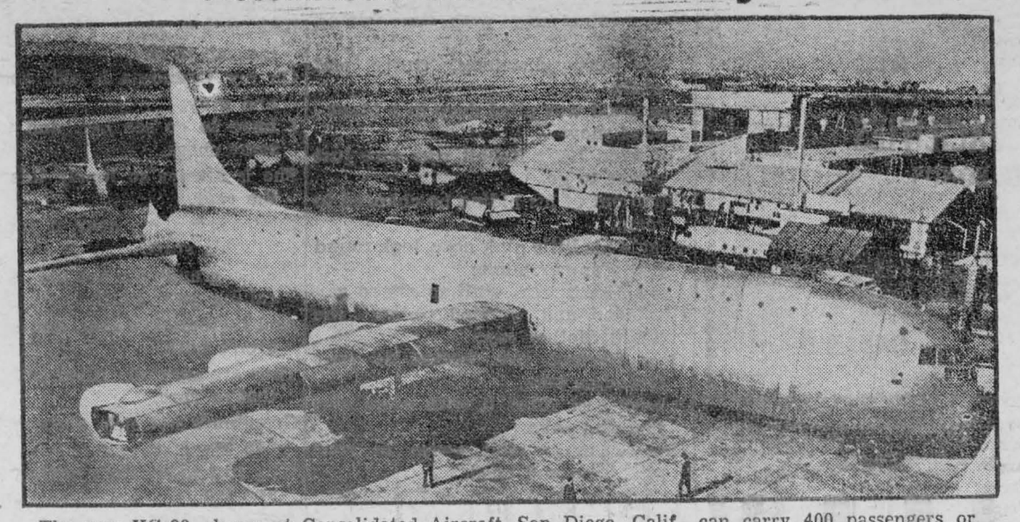

Model of 1942 House—The Nest
Crystal Cove, Nahant
Architect——Christopher Storm

Beside McCale, Miss Bigelow swayed. Her face blanched. With eyes half-closed, she reached for and held up in her trembling fingers a long legal envelope that had been lying beside the model. From it, she took a folded document, opened it slowly. Over her shoulder, Duke saw it was a deed, ceding the property and buildings of Christopher Storm at Crystal Cove, Nahant, Massachusetts, to Curtin Vallaincourt.

Sunday School Lesson

Jesus, the Bread of Life

John 6:25-35, 56-58.

Golden Text.—I am that Bread of of Life.—John 6:48.

The Multitude Gathers

It was the time of the Passover, about the middle of April and many persons were on the way to Jerusalem to observe it. Late in the afternoon the great multitude around Jesus was increasing and among the disciples alarm was felt for their foodless, shelterless crowd. Jesus demanded that they be fed.

It was ascertained that a boy had a very small amount of provisions, five barley loaves and two small fishes, only a boy's meal; yet there were more than five thousand persons to be fed!

The Multitude Is Fed

At Jesus' bidding the multitude was arranged in an orderly manner. They were divided by the disciples into companies of fifty and a hundred and commanded to sit down upon the abundant grass. As to the precise moment the miracle was wrought, it is supposed that Jesus broke the bread partially and that the disciples carried on the process as they gave to each one his portion, the bread meanwhile increasing as they continued to break and distribute it. So the hunger of everyone was satisfied and the fragments remaining were conserved by the provident Christ.

The impression made by the miracle was deep, widespread and wholesome. At once the people identified Jesus with the prophet predicted by Moses, meaning the Messiah.

The Bread of Life

The next day at Capernaum Jesus met many of these people and spoke to them about the Bread of Life. He declared that He is the Bread of Life, which means that He is the true and only sustenance and nourishment of the soul.

Jesus drew a sharp contrast between the physical and the spiritual: the father ate of the manna and it was life to them as they wandered in the wilderness, but eventually they died. This "true Bread" which is from Heaven gives the spiritual life which has no end.

"Godmothers"

Expansion of social services in Britain and increased attention to child care have so broadened the scope of the Women's Voluntary Services that they will be converted to a permanent peacetime organization.

Under the chairmanship of Lady Reading, this million-strong army of women gave magnificent service to their country during the war.

It has been decided to set up a corps of "godmothers" to look after neglected children and it is hoped eventually to provide a "godmother" for every child in every institution in Britain.

They will take personal interest in the children, invite them to their homes, and generally give them personal attention and love to compensate for loss of their mothers.

Rubble And Trouble

If they started now to remove the bricks, stones and other rubble from the streets in Essen, Germany, and 1,000 tons were moved daily, it would take 15 years to clear the city. That is the condition of many German communities. The people live wherever they can lay their heads. Their existence is on a par with the animals.

Some Good Tips For Housekeeper

There are so many tips to good housekeeping, the new homemaker will no doubt welcome a few at a time.

When something you are cooking happens to scorch set the pan into cold water at once. This will take away the scorched taste and is well worth trying.

Strained honey that has been on hand awhile sometimes becomes hard and sugary. It can be returned to its original condition by setting the container in a pan of hot water and heating it for a short time.

A deliciously different confection can be made by stuffing dates with nut meats and then rolling the dates in shredded coconut.

One mother warms her baby's vegetable soup, or strained vegetables, in custard cups put into a small pan of hot water for a few minutes. This saves pan washing since the baby can be fed from the cup in which the food is warmed. Custard cups also keep the food warm.

Use soy bean cracker crumbs in scalloped dishes, such as macaroni and cheese. They improve the flavor and add extra food value.

Chicken for use in salad is improved in flavor if it is left standing in the broth for an hour or more. A little chicken stock added to the salad dressing makes the salad still more tasty.

If you want something new and tasty, slice a banana into the batter of spice cake. It changes the flavor pleasantly.

Parsley will stay green for a long time if it is washed in cold water and put into a jar with a tight lid. Keep in the refrigerator.

Save the spicy liquid from pickles and add it to the vinegar when pickling beets.

Japanese Quit Hideout

Japanese stragglers who had been hiding in the jungles and mountains on Bataan peninsula since March of 1945, have surrendered to Filipino military police.

How Can I?

By Anne Ashley

Q. How can I prevent moisture from forming on the eyeglasses when going from a cold into a warm atmosphere?

A. Try moistening the tips of the fingers, rubbing them over the lens, then polishing as usual, and see if it doesn't prevent this trouble.

Q. How can I make cream mayonnaise dressing?

A. Add one cup of cream, beaten until stiff, to the mayonnaise dressing. Serve immediately, or place in the refrigerator for a few hours.

Q. How can I drive a nail into a place where it is difficult to hold it with the fingers?

A. Thrust it through a little strip of paper and hold the ends of the paper while driving.

Q. How can I air the feathers in pillows easily?

A. When making feather pillows, make a slip of strong mosquito netting for the feathers. Slip this into the ticking and fasten the ends with clasps. The feathers can be removed easily for airing, and the ticking for washing.

Q. How can I prevent hangnails?

A. If pushing back the cuticle causes hangnails, massage it with a good cuticle cream or vaseline to soften it. Then push the cuticle back gently, using an orange stick with cotton wrapped around it.

"Pea Soup" Fog

A fog has been called "a cloud in the wrong place." It is composed of microscopic water particles. A block of fog three feet wide, six feet high and 100 feet long contains less than one-seventh of a glass of water. Last week, for twenty-seven hours straight, fog tied up eighteen ships and 456 scheduled airplane plights in the New York area. A record (eighty-four hours) was set in January, 1935.

It's All in the Mind

When black pepper practically disappeared and white pepper became hard to get, many cafes served shakers with small holes. One restaurant operator plugged the holes entirely. Diners would shake the white pepper container. Nine out of ten, he said, thought they had peppered their meat and were content.—Pathfinder.

A VALENTINE JINGLE

One winters day with sun shining bright,
Trees were glistening, frosty and white.
The wood was piled deep in a blanket of snow—
Not even Bre'r Rabbit was sure just where to go,
When out of his hiding he chanced to roam,
Wiggle his little pink nose, look round and scamper home;
A maiden in red, with spirits so gay
Illusioned and worried when she heard Mother say:
Now Darling, this basket to your Grandma take,
I have just filled it with some nice jam and cake.
Now wrap yourself warm in your new cape and hood,
And hurry right home, is that understood?
So play had to be postponed until another day,
As Red Riding Hood hastened her mother to obey.
Now the big bad Wolf decided that morning,
He would go for a stroll as the air was always so fresh at dawn
He brushed his long fur until it shone.
Looked very dashing, hung his cane over his arm;
He groomed his whiskers from a tree
Placed there for the winter by a hard working bee.
Qiute pleased as he looked at himself not once but thrice
In the mirror outside of clear crystal ice.
He puffed out his chest, filled his lungs with fresh air,
Down the long wooded path he looked for a hare,
Or any such victim, either friend or foe,
As Mr. Wolf's meat coupons were getting quite low.
All of a sudden he gave a broad smile
Not far down the path in a quaint charming style.
Came little Red Riding Hood tripping along,
So happy and care-free, on her lips a song,
Good Morning, your highness, said the wolf low and meek,
Pray don't get me wrong, it's your company I seek.
May I carry your basket? You're tired, I'm sure.
You're so small and fragile, such a big burden to endure.
Once again he bowed, and tipping his hat,
Pray, where are you going, if I may ask you that?
Red Riding Hood stammered and hurried to say,
Oh my Grandma is old, and feeble and grey.
I have to go see her, and take her some cheer.
She is always so lonely this time of the year.
You're crazy, my dear, if you believe all this stuff,
You're grandma's not old, she's just calling your bluff.
And furthermore dear, her cupboards aren't bare
They are carefully filled with goodies that're rare.
Grandma's not sick, she's as spry as can be,
Why just today she's having a bridge and tea.
And if you'll lend me an ear, a secret to hear,
I'll tell you something that might sound queer.
She's giving me coupons 38 and 9—
If I'll consent to be her Valentine.

EMERGENCY MONEY AVAILABLE THROUGH B of M LOANS

Low Cost Personal Loans-Repayable in Instalments - A Boon in Time and Sickness

"A friend of mine told me the other night that there was always lurking in his mind the fear that an emergency sickness in his family would find him embarrassingly short of ready cash," Charles Wood, manager of the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, remarked recently. "I was very glad to be able to tell him," Mr. Wood added, "that the B of M has a low cost personal loan plan which can be of tremendous assistance in emergencies of this kind".

Under this plan you may borrow money at the rate of 27 cents per month for each $100 obtained, repayable in twelve monthly instalments. The loan itself, which can be more or less than $100, may be repaid in monthly instalments over a longer or shorter period. The cost is proportionately the same.

Mr. Wood, or his accountant, Mr. Whyte, will be very glad to discuss this plan with you in detail any time you care to drop in and see them. You will find that the Bank is anxious to make loans that will help you with your problems, and that, when you ask for a loan at the B of M, you do not ask a favour.

CONTROL THE VOLUME OF YOUR RADIO

Radio is a wonder of the modern world. It provides entertainment and information untiringly, twenty-four hours a day. Its volume can be lowered to a whisper or raised to fill a hall by the touch of a finger. That's a fact that we sometimes forget—but one that our neighbors will thank us to remember! So keep your radio under control—in the interests of the community—and of "Good Citizenship"!

You can help this public service effort. Make a note of some of the little things which, in your opinion, contribute to Good Citizenship.

JUST IN FUN

Absent "T"

The perfect pun is said to have had its origin in the House of Commons An Irishman made a Statement which called from an English opponent the cry, "Treason!"

The Irishman replied: "I would have the honorable gentleman know that what is treason in England becomes reason in Ireland—because of the absentee"

Took a Stroll

A henpecked husband reached the end of his patience and, after a final row with his wife, took his bowler hat from the peg in the hall and said, "I'm going."

Three years later he returned and his wife demanded, "Where on earth have you been?"

"Out," he replied, and hung his hat on the same peg.

Be Reasonable

Guest: "Look here! How long must I wait for the half portion of duck I ordered?"

Waiter: "Till somebody orders the other half. We can't go out and kill half a duck."

The Best Way

Fitznook: "How do you find business, sir?"

Mr. Hustle: "I go out and look for it, sir!"

Exciting

After a successful business career, Robinson retired to lead the life of a country gentleman.

One of their new neighbors, calling on Mrs. Robinson, remarked:

"I hear your husband has taken up hunting. Do you approve of that?"

"I don't know about approving," said the sportsman's wife, "but it makes life more exciting. We never know which to expect home first—my husband or the horse."

No Secrets

A bombastic man met his henpecked friend, whose face suggested a recent accident

"How did this happen?" his friend asked.

"My wife . . ."

"Your wife? Ah, evidently you have not acquired the secret of married bliss. I never have a row with my wife. I have no secrets from her."

"Neither have I!" the other sighed. "That's the trouble. I only thought I had!"

Fifty-Fifty

Dunninger, who likes to be known as "the master mentalist" called on Blackstone, who doesn't mind being known as a plain magician. When Dunninger arrived, he found the magician ransacking the bedroom for a white tie.

"You're the great mind reader," Blackstone finally exploded. "Suppose you tell me where I put that tie."

Dunninger concentrated.

"It's in that box," he said.

Blackstone hurriedly went through the box, found the tie which he held up scornfully. "You are a fine mind reader," he said. "It's black."

Dunninger shrugged.

"If you're any kind of magician," he answered, "you can change it into a white one."

HE'S A "HUSKY"

He's a Husky, member of the last medieval guild to survive in modern Paris. Huskies carry produce to and from the Central Market, and, in their floppy, wide-brimmed hats (to keep moisture from fish crates etc., from running down their necks) and blue blouses they are tourist attractions. The man above is toting a crate of approximately 1000 eggs. For membership Huskies require literacy, morality, ability to carry 400-pound load 65 yards without a struggle. They are petitioning for civil servant status.

"HIRING FAIR" IN ENGLAND

In the city of Carlisle in England a novel fair is held about twice a year. It is called a hiring fair and as such has been operating for many years. Farm laborers who want to work crowd High Street and wait for an offer from a farmer in need of help. Many generations of farm workers have stood on the stone steps of the statue in the middle of the High Street waiting for an offer.

By BILLY ROSE
Sedgewick, Alta.
Canadian Curling Champion, 1946.

This is one of a series by outstanding Canadian curlers relating what they consider their "most thrilling moment" in competition for the Macdonald's Brier Tankard, representing the Canadian single rink curling title.

While there are many thrilling incidents I recall during the course of the 1946 Brier at Saskatoon, two of the 1946 Brier at Saskatoon, one stands out in my memory very vividly.

The "thriller" occurred in the first game my rink played against Howard Palmer and his Calgary Club rink in the Provincial finals at Edmonton. Howard Palmer is a wonderful curler and a swell fellow to boot. We had met in two previous British Consol finals and Howard had had much the best of it, winning both.

In this year's final Howard was three up going home in the first game of a best of three series. When I went to throw my last rock he was lying in front of my lead rock and it would take a very accurate shot to displace his without losing my back rock or rolling out myself. I was lucky enough to get the right "Broom" and weight, making the shot to lay three and tie the game, forcing an extra end. In the extra end my rink sewed things up so tight that neither Howard or myself could do very much about it when our turns came to shoot.

The making of this shot, was naturally quite a thrill to me and no doubt to the hundreds of spectators, but I believe that the making of that shot also provided added inspiration to the other members of my rink to such an extent that they went into the second and what proved to be the final game with plenty of confidence and this game was not so close. It is also quite possible that this shot coming as it did when the game seemed over, had somewhat of an adverse effect on the playing of the Calgary boys in the second game.

All Consumers

Tucked away behind the big news of the week was a little item from Oshawa a few days ago stating that members of a C.I.O. steelworkers' union there had decided to clip their own hair, now that the price of haircuts had gone up a bit. What is so striking about the news is that it places one set of workers against another set of workers, and proves so clearly that every worker is, above all, a consumer.

—St. Catharines Standard.

"Victory" Wins Another Victory

H.M.S. Victory has proved a durable as well as a famous ship. Built in 1765, she is not only some thirty years older than the Constellation, dean of American warships, but is eleven years senior to the United States itself. She has survived storm and shot, the simple iron projectiles from French and Spanish guns and the bombs that Nazi airmen rained down on Portsmouth, says the New York Herald Tribune. And now it appears that this victorious symbol will be victorious again—over beetles.

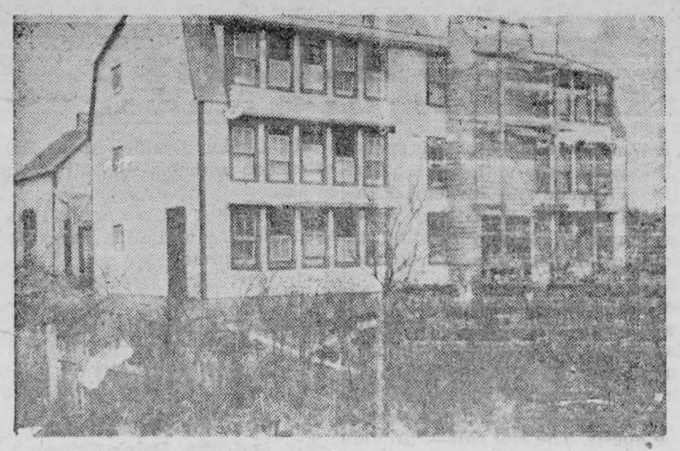

The borer beetles were first reported sapping the Victory's heart of oak in 1930, and the campaign against them began. It was not as spectacular as Trafalgar, when the Victory led a British squadron into action and flew Nelson's famous signal, nor did it have the same significance for history. But if it had been lost it would have been just as fatal to the Victory as if the gunners of Admiral Villeneuve's fleet had been more accurate in their fire at Trafalgar. Fortunately, D.D.T. came to the rescue; the insecticide was blown into holes bored in the timbers, and last year, it is reported, some 60,000 beetles a day succumbed. Now there is reason to believe that "the Victory has at least fifty years of service left in her," which would bring her to the ripe age of 231 years.

Maybe there is a moral here; a victory which sustains the shock of battle must fight its hardest campaign against insidious insects. Unfortunately, there is no scientific formula for insecticide to safeguard a victory of the spirit — indeed, it is rather difficult to get any general agreement as to what is worth saving and how to detect the insects. But the effort is worth making if the victory was worth winning.

Fast Camera

A super-camera which can take a picture, develop it and throw it on a screen in 15 seconds automatically, is reported from the U.S., according to The Financial Post. Designed secretly during the war, it takes photographs at 1/10,000-second speed on special 16 mm. film. A container squirts chemicals, preheated to 140 degrees F., on the film; and a vacuum process handles the rest of the job in nine seconds flat.

BACK-SAVER

Hugh McEachern of Afton, N.S., believes in saving his back. Since adding a third deck to his poultry house he has installed an elevator by which feed goes up and he and the eggs come down.

VOICE OF THE PRESS

Getting Skinned

Some mink coats are said to have dropped 35 per cent in price to only $4,000. Even a that a lot of the lads that buy them are getting just as much skinned as the mink.

—Owen Sound Sun-Times.

Shirtless Laundries

The shirt situation must be hopeless. A hold up of a Chinese laundry in Winnipeg did not reveal one man's shirt.

Straining at Gnats

We probably shall never get over our inferiority complex in respect to scientific matters. Despite all the elaborate explanations we have read, we still cannot understand why it is necessary to use a twenty-ton machine to break an atom, the smallest particle of matter known.

Portal-To-Portal

Asked why he wanted two bucks for a 15-minute snow-shovelling job, the high school boy said there was a front door and a back door, thus making it portal-to-portal.

Can't Be Too Bad

Some wheat-growers and politicians are making a fuss about the British-Canadian wheat contract. But it can't be such a bad thing, for the apple-growers of Nova Scotia are asking Canada to make a similar deal with apples.

A whiskey made of aviation gas by Jap bootleggers is pronounced a failure. It is better so. A jet-propelled drunk would be more than the highway traffic could bear.

Deserves Medal

A 90-year-old Toronto man should get that city's "Man of the Year" accolade. He hasn't missed casting a ballot in any civic, provincial or federal election since he was 21, and that was in 1877.

But They Don't Know

Already an unusually large number of multiple births have been recorded this new year. If babies knew what a tough world this is now, they wouldn't be flocking to it in droves.

—Kitchener Record.

Small Courtesies

We do not suggest that youngsters should be trained to call their elders Sir and Ma'am, or instructed in any elaborate code of etiquette, says the Ottawa Journal. It is a pity, though, that a boy should grow into a youth, and the youth into a man, without having come to an instinctive knowledge and use of the small courtesies which do so much to smooth the rough edges of our crowded lives. The lad who forces his way first into a tram and sits while women stand is not to be blamed too much—he doesn't know any better. But somebody is to blame for a duty neglected.

Know Your Hockey Stars

By ED FITKIN

Heads don't come any harder than the one owned by Joe Klukay, rookie left-winger of the Toronto Maple Leafs. Young Mr. Klukay has proved this on at least two occasions in the past; twice in amateur ranks crashing head-on into goalposts, being rendered hors de combat temporarily and then coming back each time to score the winning goal.

* * *

The rawboned winger, a graduate of Pittsburgh Hornets, was born at Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 6, 1922, is an inch shy of the 6-foot mark and weighs 180. He gained his hockey schooling in the Soo, playing two seasons with the Junior "B" team of that city and helping them to the Northern O.H.A. championship in 1941-42.

* * *

A standout with Stratford's Junior "A" team in 1942-43, Klukay turned pro with the Leafs before the season ended and managed to squeeze into the Stanley Cup finals against Detroit as a temporary replacement for Sweeney Schriner.

* * *

Klukay joined the RCNVR in April, 1943, and qualified as a Physical Training Instructor with the rank of Able Seaman. Joe played hockey with Toronto Navy in 1943-44 and the following season was a star with the H.M.C.S. Cornwallis team, Maritime service champions.

* * *

Throughout the 1945-46 season, Klukay played a starring role for the Pittsburgh Hornets in the American Hockey League. His rugged play and scoring punch netted him 26 goals and 23 assists for 49 points in 57 league games. In six playoff engagements, Joe bagged 4 goals and one assist.

Long Overdue

Improvement in rail travel, long overdue, are bound to come in 1947-48, with 2,800 lightweight, streamlined cars (equivalent to 400 fast trains) on order. They'll have such built-in comforts as filtered air, sound-deadening, balanced design for smoother ride, dome "vistas", bedrooms to replace uppers and lowers.

SPOTS OF SPORTS

By FRANK MANN HARRIS
("A Six Bit Critic")

It took him quite a spell to get around to it, but the President of the National Hockey Club has come up with something which should win the approval of hockey fans, with the exception of the wild-eyed bugs and bugettes to whom everything wearing the home team uniform is, ipso facto, a faultless hero, while any player sporting an enemy sweater is, automatically, a dirty villain. We refer to his instructions to the official scorers to tighten up considerably in the matter of awarding goals and — we hope and trust—assists as well.

* * *

For the "cheap assist" is, and always has been, just about the cheapest thing connected with big-league hockey. We could name —and so, no doubt, could you — more than one scoring star of the past, including some Trophy winners, whose principal aid toward fame and glory was less the speed and accuracy of their shooting than the big-heartedness of the home-club scorer. Some of the latter, back in the days when they were not limited to one assist per goal, used to scatter these credits around with all the freedom and liberality of a politician distributing the taxpayers' dough.

* * *

Boxing is the latest sport from which the ancient and fishlike aroma of an attempted "fix" comes wafting over the breeze, occasioning but little of the shocked surprise that was aroused by something similar in football. This is because what are technically known as "tank jobs" have long been considered an integral part of the fight game—and will probably continue to be until we get referees with authority enough, and courage enough, to declare all bets off the instant they have the slightest suspicion that everything is not strictly on the up-and-up in connection with a bout. And you are liable to strain your eyes if you keep looking fixedly for that day to arrive.

* * *

The late Lou Marsh was that sort of a ring official. More than once, in fact several times we saw him declare all betting off, for no reason that was apparent to most of the onlookers, but much to the consternation of the gambling gentry who were all set to make a nice clean-up by reason of the betting favorite taking a dive. But then, Referees of the Marsh type are scarce and hard to find; for he was not only absolute boss of any bout or game he handled, but also absolutely fearles and didn't intimidate worth a dime.

Personally, we have always been mildly interested in these "tankers" of the boxing ring; and some of the most convincing acting we have ever witnessed was not that of Forbes Robertson, Maude Adams, E. H. Sothern or other great ones of the stage, but put on by boxers who would lie there on the canvas, helpless and writhing in such apparent agony as would make your heart ache with sympathy; and then, a couple of minutes after the count of "TEN" had been pronounced, exhibit in the dressing-room an epidermis as free from wounds, bruises, scratches or contusions as that of a carefully-tended infant right after its bath.

* * *

But no doubt our attitude of interest, rather than anger or annoyance, towards these rapscallions—especially the artistic ones—is because the piece of really good advice we ever remember faithfully following is one given to us by an old-timer many years ago. It's advice that is just as sound today as it was then—"Don't ever bet on anything that can talk."

Weather Stations Set Up In Arctic

The Dominion government's decision to open ten new meteorological stations in the Canadian Arctic is timely. The Far North is one of the great "weather breeders" of the world; storms and cold air masses originating there affect the weather all over North America. Other nations have recognized its importance much more clearly than we have; more than 200 stations are maintained in the far northern regions of Europe and Siberia, as contrasted with only six in the Canadian and American sectors of the Arctic.

OTTAWA EXHIBITION TO BE HELD AUGUST 18th to 23rd

Five thousand prize lists covering twenty departments of operation for the Central Canada Exhibition will be in the hands of exhibitors before May 1st, according to H. H. McElroy, General Manager. The dates of the Exhibition are from August 18th to 23rd and the venue. Lansdowne Park, Ottawa.

A huge works programme of reconstruction and rehabilitation, with practical worth, and beauty going hand in hand, is now in full swing. Before the gates open on the first day of the 1947 exhibition, more than $400,000 will have been spent to provide a suitable memorial for the thousands of men who gave their lives for their country from the districts contiguous to Ottawa, as well as to be a dedication on the part of the Exhibition Directors and Management for the building up of a great era of prosperity and happiness on behalf of the people of Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec.

The residents of these areas have been generous supporters of the Exhibition in the past. With every section of fair activity greater than before, including a stellar programme of outstanding attractions, it is expected the support will be enhanced and increased.

One of the great 1947 features will be the advance ticket sale. This will find its way into every town, village and country district in the area served by the Exhibition. Splendid prizes have been arranged in conjunction with the sale, and the draw will be held on the last day of the Exhibition. Items include automobiles, refrigerators, chesterfield suites and other outstanding gifts. The Exhibition Association plans to make the event an annual one of the greatest importance to the patrons of the fair.

A wonderful time is promised for the huge throngs whcih are expected to attend the exhibition, which is now in its 72nd year of public service. The Ottawa Exhibition is where city and country meet, in deed and in fact. One cannot prosper without the other.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Mrs. Anna A. Price, who died, Feb. 4th, 1946.
Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast.
Within our home where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again
—Ever remembered by her daughters, Hilda and Edna, Sisters and Brother.
