Mother of four dies in tragic house fire

by Chris Zabel
 Press staff

WINCHESTER — A fund has been set up at the Winchester branch of the Royal Bank to benefit the family of Jo-Anne Chaloux. The 43-year-old mother of four died in a fire which destroyed her family home.

The Winchester Fire Department arrived at the house on Webb Road at 2:40 pm last Friday (Sept. 27). Chief Dan Kelly said that when his department arrived, flames were already venting out the main-floor windows. The wood-frame house was completely destroyed when the fire was extinguished 12 hours later.

Firefighters knew on Friday that Chaloux was unaccounted for and possibly hadn't escaped the house. Her body was recovered Saturday in a search of the home's remains.

She was found in an upstairs bedroom. The cause of the fire, which began in another upstairs bedroom, is still under investigation.

Fire investigator Chris Williams, who was in Winchester on Monday, said it's likely Chaloux had no chance to escape. "More than 70 per cent of people die in the first five minutes of a fire," he said.

The blaze has left Chaloux's husband Robert and their three children who lived at home — Heather, 13, Colin, 15 and Jennifer, 18 — with almost only the clothes they were wearing on Friday. Their other daughter is Candice, 22.

Chaloux's sister, Patti-Anne Scrivens, described her as a very kind mother and aunt. The morning before the fire, Chaloux phoned a nephew in Elma to wish him a happy birthday. She also volunteered for the Dundas County Foodbank.

Since the tragedy, community members have been donating food to the family, as well as equally necessary items such as school supplies. "People have been very generous," said Scrivens. Donations can be directed to the Chaloux Family Trust Fund and be made at any Royal Bank branch.

Vision campaign tops $10 million

WINCHESTER — The Winchester District Memorial Hospital Foundation is pleased to announce that an important milestone has been reached in the Renewing the Vision Campaign: $10 million has been collected and pledged to date.

The campaign was recently given a huge boost by the $1 million gift made by Dr. Howard Justus.

The grand total is actually well over the $10-million-mark. The annual WDMH Foundation golf tournament raised $20,000 on Sept. 14 at Cedar Glen in Williamsburg.

"The campaign is doing very well, but we're not done yet," said foundation chair Dwayne Holmes. "Door-to-door canvassers in most areas are just now getting started and these donations are very important for the campaign to reach the $12 million goal."

The canvassing campaign has volunteers currently finishing in Chesterville and part way through Russell. Winchester will be the next village to be canvassed. Residents of Morrisburg and Iroquois can expect their opportunity to donate in November.

Anyone wishing to contact the WDMH Foundation Office to make a donation or to speak about the hospital's plans for renovation can call toll-free at 877-774-5105.

Volley for Cancer smashes previous record

MORRISBURG — Once again, Volley for Cancer has topped all previous yearly donations to the Canadian Cancer Society. This year the one-day August volleyball tournament raised $43,000. The total, beating last year's $35,000, was announced at the McIntosh Inn on Sept. 26.

This summer there were nearly 800 participants in the volleyball, horseshoe, golf and dart events Carl and Ruby Van Allen held at their Williamsburg farm. Estimated visitor attendance was over 300. Support for the event came from over 700 businesses and individuals.

Volley for Cancer is now in its seventh year and is held each August to coincide with the time of Carl's mother's death: Goldie Van Allen, who died of cancer in 1993.

"Volley for Cancer has a unique aspect — everyone involved is a volunteer," said Carl. He praised the work of young people who volunteered, painting picnic tables and cleaning up after the event. Carl also describes where many of the prizes come from: "We don't really request things, but it seems to fall in place."

Kevin Spencer, new this year as a Volley for Cancer board member, described his experience of volunteering with the event. Spencer himself overcame cancer several years ago, and said it meant a lot for him to be invited to help organize the event. "I've been able to help people in the community who helped me," he said.

In seven years, Volley for Cancer has donated $160,000 to the Canadian Cancer Society. To throw the limelight on the Volley for Cancer volunteers, Carl declined appearing in this year's photo with the cheque.

Report dead birds

West Nile Virus risk period winding down, but not over

CORNWALL — Cooler weather is helping reduce the risk of West Nile Virus locally, but residents shouldn't let their guard down just yet, according to local public health officials. Residents can still report crows dead from no obvious cause.

"Testing dead birds for the West Nile Virus is winding down, but vigilance is not. Public health and safety is not a seasonal concern — it's a year-round priority," said Dr. Robert Bourdeau, medical officer of health.

To report a dead bird sighting contact the EOHO 1-800-267-7120 and ask for Health Line.

"The contribution of Ottawa's residents and communities in these workshops will help us construct the city's plans for the coming years," said Ned Lathrop, general manager of development services, in a printed statement.

"We value the participation of our residents in these workshops, and look forward to an ongoing dialogue on the future direction of our city."

According to information provided by the city, "Ottawa 20/20 is the city's initiative to manage the growth and change it will experience over the next two decades. The sessions are an opportunity for Ottawa residents to express their ideas, ask questions and gain information on Ottawa 20/20, and to give their views on approaches the city may take to help achieve its vision for Ottawa in the year 2020."

Several topics will be discussed at these meetings, including: increased traffic, green space, arts and heritage and access to the "basics."

Feedback collected from these workshops will be used to develop the city's official plan, as well as the Human Services Plan, Arts and Heritage Plan, Economic Strategy and Corporate Strategic Plan.

Workshop material is now available at all client service centres, public libraries and online, at ottawa2020.com.

Library officially opened

by Chris Zabel
Press staff

WINCHESTER — "I couldn't fit this number of people in before," said head librarian Gail Storring, at the official ribbon cutting on the grand re-opening occasion. "The new sign went up last week." Winchester's library branch was swamped with visitors to officially open the new location on St. Lawrence Street on Tues., Sept. 24.

Storring praised the new facility for its spaciousness, and the brightness of its second-storey windows. The Winchester location moved from Albert Street to the former North Dundas Township building after a week-long move in June. Now a township sign shows its presence on the village's main north/south route. Behind the desk, patrons will find either Storring, or librarian Ivory Lauzon.

Although the Winchester branch has consistently been third in circulation in the United Counties, behind Morrisburg and Alexandria, it had been for years the second smallest of the 19 SD&G branches.

The most significant addition in the renovation project is the doubling of public computer work stations. With four online computers available for use at the new location, Storring said she is busier than when she had two. "Don't get me wrong, I enjoy it," she said Tuesday night.

The library was packed for the ribbon cutting with municipal politicians and SD&G library board members, although they were outnumbered by interested library patrons. Before cutting the ribbon on the new facility, North Dundas mayor Claude Cousineau noted that Winchester's is the third township library to be renovated in recent years, following South Mountain and Chesterville.

Library renovations were funded by North Dundas Township and the United Counties upper-tier municipality. Additional funds were donated through a local drive.

"The number of borrowers have certainly increased over the summer," said Storring, praising the attractive powers of the new location since it first opened its doors in the summer. Being located now directly across from Winchester Public School has also changed the library routine. "I always know when school is out, because the place fills up," she said.

OPP Memorial Service

Gunned-down officer officially remembered 45 years after death

by Gerrit Bosma

MORRISBURG -- Tears ran down the faces of Ronald Pitt Jr. and his wife Andrena, as the memory of his slain father was honored.

From Scotland to Morrisburg, 45 years after Constable Ronald Pitt Sr. was shot by car thieves, his son was back to witness his father receive the recognition he rightfully deserved.

"To the community of Morrisburg, I can't thank you enough," an emotional Pitt Jr., 52, said during the OPP Memorial Service for his father on Sept. 27 at the South Dundas Justice Building.

"For my father who is not going to be forgotten, I thank you again from the bottom of my heart."

About 80 people attended the memorial service for Ronald Pitt Sr. who died as the result of two gunshot wounds he received while trying to apprehend two car thieves, while alone on the night of Aug. 24, 1957.

Pitt, paralyzed from the waist down, died 30 days later in Montreal hospital. He had only been with the Morrisburg Police Force for six weeks, but many fond memories of Pitt were spoke of at the service.

In April, the Stormont, Dundas & Glengarry (SD&G) OPP reopened the unsolved murder, and later were able to find the victim's son and widow, Margaret, now 76, in Girvan, Scotland.

On a dark and rainy day, an RCMP Color Guard began the service by marching into the tent set up on the front lawn of the Justice Building.

Along with many officers and detectives from the SD&G OPP, MP Bob Kilger, MPP, John Cleary and South Dundas mayor Johnny Whitaker, addressed those gathered in attendance.

Words of reflection and prayer came from SD&G Chaplain, Rev. Ian J. McAvoy, who asked the memorial service be seen not as a closing, but an opening for a successful case for justice for the Pitt family.

Sr. Constable Morgan Hill was responsible for bringing the unsolved case of Const. Pitt's murderer to light again and is adamant for success. Detective John Ralko has also been assigned to the case.

"It's a special moment for me, in particular I have followed this a long time," Hill said.

"I have been here 35 years, and to meet with Ronald at the airport and to see his emotion here today, and the fact we haven't forgotten his dad and the contribution he made, gives me new resolve to carry on and dig a little deeper and dig a little harder. Hopefully at the end of the trial we will bring this to a successful conclusion."

Hill feels inspired to solve it.

"I am motivated every time I work on it, but this service gives the case new impetus," Hill said.

"So hopefully this will motivate some members of the community. I'm sure there is information out there. And maybe this will motivate somebody out there to call me at the office. If they want to use Crime Stoppers that's a good avenue if they don't want to be identified. But any information we get no matter how minor we, will investigate."

Hill says he expects Pitt Jr. is much like his father and he wishes he could have met Constable Pitt.

"From the information we got, he was a policeman's policeman, he cared about the community and was out there in the middle of the night all by himself just doing his job," Hill said.

"He ended up paying the price and that is very unfortunate."

Hill said the OPP is going to do all it can to solve this 45-year-old murder case and are optimistic after receiving three phone calls of information since attention of the case hit the newspapers.

Ronald Pitt Jr., obviously overwhelmed with all the attention and the degrees of feelings he experienced, said he was pleased such recognition was given to his late father.

With a plaque honoring his father in Morrisburg, Pitt is content his father won't be forgotten, and because of this says there is some closure.

He heard about an article on his father in his local newspaper in Scotland and says talk with Hill of the SD&G OPP blossomed from there.

"It has got to this stage here now and I am quite pleased at the memorial service and how the police handled it," Pitt said.

"What it may tell us about the case, even to be looking at it after all these years, is some task. And hopefully there may be a chance to get the people who have done it after all these years."

When asked how he felt about his father's murderer still being at large, Pitt replied, "Let's put it this way, if the men did the crime they should do the time."

The circumstances and memorial open old wounds for Pitt and he was nervous, but at the same the Scotsman says he was happy, proud and full of various emotions.

Pitt says his 76-year-old mother was quite pleased her son had the chance to make the trip to Morrisburg and is disappointed her health kept her from coming as well.

Unable to ever deal with the death of his father, Pitt's brother Ian committed suicide at age 17.

Pitt says in some ways he thought his father's tragedy was forgotten, but in other ways he didn't. For this he's thankful the OPP has reopened his father's case and shed light on his life.

In an emotional time of mourning and remembrance all the activity has been quite a whirlwind for Pitt. However, he hopes such media attention may help open leads in the investigation into his father's murder.

"One good thing which may come out of all this attention is that it may jog someone's memory from way back then," Pitt said.

"Many may be old, but what may be insignificant to them may be important to the police."

Hay West crusade receives 500 bales from county farms

by Chris Zabel
Press staff

WINCHESTER — Over the weekend, six tractor-trailer loads of hay from Dundas County were shipped to the Hay West rail yard in Smiths Falls. Thanks to the local effort, about 500 large bales of surplus hay will be in drought areas of Alberta and Saskatchewan, probably by the end of the week.

The hauling capacity was all donated by businesses in the county. "A lot of people have done a lot of work, and people were kind-hearted enough to get this moving," said Keith Durant, a Chesterville farmer who has been key in organizing the transport of the hay.

Since August, Dundas producers have had an abundance of hay that many farms have wanted to donate to the Hay West campaign. The sticking point was how to move it to Smiths Falls where it could be fumigated and designated to railcars.

Durant said that a push for available truck-space last week was successful in moving the bulk of the local hay that has already been registered with Hay West. "I've got to do a little more calling around," he said, estimating that a few more truck loads would finish moving out the local supply.

At the Hay West office in Smiths Falls, there are currently 636 railcars in the system, over 300 of which have already reached the western provinces with hay. Pierre Brodeur, executive director at the office, said there are approximately 60 cars left to be designated with registered hay loads.

There have been 70 tractor-trailer loads of hay that have already left before the weather turns too cold for fumigation. In the western provinces, a group called Say Hay has raised enough money to finance these cars. "We're hoping, if the rail companies can shove aside a little bureaucracy, we could fill the cars and move them out tomorrow," said Brodeur.

China dolls on display at fall Institute meeting

by Norma Duncan

WINCHESTER—Carol Barwell, a well known Winchester creator of hand crafted porcelain dolls, was the special guest at the first fall meeting of the Winchester Women's Institute.

Convenor Margaret Johnston introduced the doll-maker who displayed five beautiful dolls, each dressed in handmade clothes to suit their personality; no two dolls were alike. She described doll-making and the various craft fairs she attends where the dolls are sold.

Ethelwyn Carkner thanked the special guest and presented her with a gift. Donna Crook assisted in the presentation.

President Ileen Robinson welcomed visitors and members to the meeting with an autumn poem.

Secretary Vivian Fawcett read the June minutes, rollcall was answered by naming a local business. Correspondence and thank you notes were read and cards reported by Olive Summers.

Treasurer Marjorie Shadbolt had the summer report, then took up a collection in place of holding a bake sale. Members also approved a donation of $200 to WDMH "Renewing the Vision".

Pearl Carkner read a brief history of the organization's 84-year history.

Jessie Ball read a story about a little girl and the importance of the dolls.

The tables were decorated in a fall theme and a delicious lunch was served during the social time.

Everyone is welcome to attend the meetings!

Senior band trip to England planned

MAPLE RIDGE — The senior concert band at NDDHS is going to England. In the most ambitious trip the band has ever undertaken, the group plans to spend 10 days in Dudley, north of Birmingham, over this year's March break.

To begin helping to defray the cost of the trip, the North Dundas District High School music department is organizing a fundraising concert for Wed., Oct. 9.

The concert will feature the senior concert band. "We've been working like devils to get material practiced for the show," said band director Greg Prest.

The concert will also feature the Nepean Concert Band. This is an adult band, made up mainly of people with formal musical training, but jobs outside of performing.

"They're one of the most highly respected community bands in Canada," explained Prest.

The concert will feature a variety of music. The NDDHS band will be performing the theme from Hockey Night in Canada, as well as Night on Bald Mountain by Modest Mussorgsky. The two bands will be performing together on some pieces, including the theme from James Bond.

Next Wednesday's concert will begin at 8 p.m. at NDDHS. Tickets are available at the door, as well as at Winchester Video and Seaway Valley Pharmacy in Chesterville. The price is $8 for adults and $4 for students.

Couple keeping track of Dundas duck population

by Susan Demaray

MORRISBURG — At the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary Annual Waterfowl Day, hosted by the Friends of the Sanctuary on Sunday (Sept. 29), children and adults got a chance to see conservation at work.

Wild duck banding happens at the sanctuary from Sept. 1 to the end of October every year, seven days a week, and visitors are welcome to come and watch any time. But during Waterfowl Day, hundreds of visitors get to have a first-hand look, and sometimes even a hands-on experience, in this conservation activity.

Karen Rupert is the contract bander with the Ministry of Natural Resources who works at the sanctuary. Her husband, Gary Rupert, worked as the bander at the sanctuary from 1986 to 2000 and she used to come along to help out. When Gary moved on to a full-time position with MNR as a conservation officer, Karen took over the sanctuary's banding work.

"It's lots of fun," she says. Demonstrating to children how duck banding works is one of her favourite parts of the job. "We usually have about 800 kids come through here with school groups and cubs," she says. "But anybody can come down to watch. I'm usually here from 9 am to 12 noon every day."

Wild duck banding is an important part of bird conservation, Gary says. Banding helps conservation officials track migratory patterns and population density. Each duck banded at the conservatory is registered with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service in Washington, D.C., where all data on ducks and other migratory birds in North America is gathered.

Each band has three pieces of information: the address in Washington where hunters or people who find dead birds can send the band; a "social insurance number" which identifies the bird to the Washington lab; and a 1-800 number that people can call to report the band number to wildlife officials.

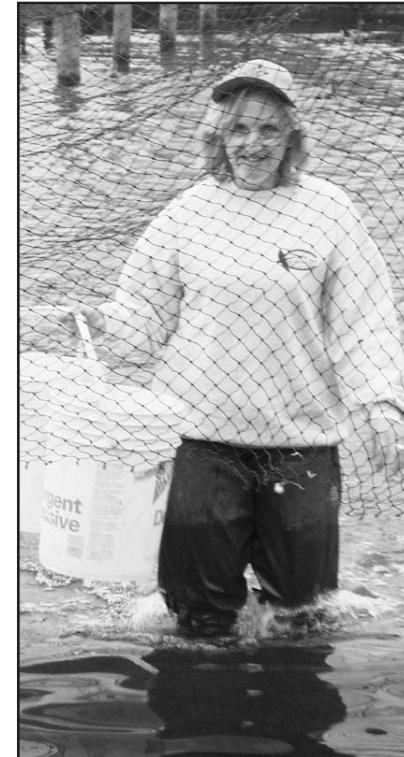

Each time a duck is banded at the sanctuary, information about the bird's sex, age, breed, and location where banded is sent to the Washington centre. But that's only one piece in the puzzle of tracking duck migration, Gary says.

"Only when they're shot and killed and the hunter calls (or mails) in the information to D.C. does the information become useful," he says. Only when bands are reported does the lab in Washington know where the bird ended up.

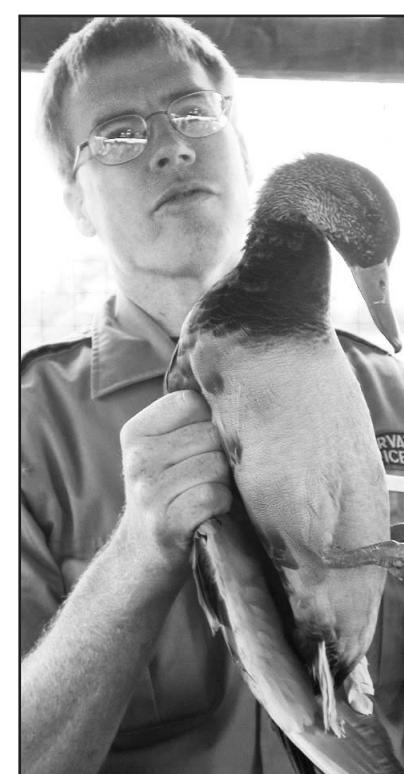

The average lifespan of a duck is only one to two years, as ducks have many predators. Mink, raccoons, foxes, hawks and skunks and humans are ducks' most common enemies. Snapping turtles also pose a threat to ducks, especially young birds, says Gary.

"Every once in a while you'll find a one-legged duck," he says. "When you see this you usually figure they've probably lost a leg to a snapping turtle."

Although most ducks don't live past two years of age, some ducks

Karen Rupert, the Sanctuary's contract bander, wades through the duck trap with buckets of corn to lure the ducks in.

can live well into their teens, Gary says. The oldest duck on record lived into its mid-twenties.

The information gathered by Washington also helps conservation officials to set hunting limits and hunting seasons. If they discover there is a large number of ducks settling in a certain area, they can then increase the number of ducks a hunting license allows a hunter to shoot, Gary says.

Most of the ducks trapped at the sanctuary are Mallard ducks. Gary says 80 per cent of all birds banded there are mallard ducks. Mallards are identified by an iridescent blue feather pattern on their wings.

Other ducks trapped at the sanctuary include black ducks (a cousin of the mallard), wood ducks, green-wing teal ducks and blue-wing teal ducks. Sometimes other breeds of duck like pintail and redhead ducks will also be found.

Usually male and female ducks can be identified by the feather patterns in their wings. Also, male ducks are usually the more colorful of the two, since they are responsible for attracting the mate; and the females, who look after the eggs and the nest, are less colorful because they need to blend into their surroundings.

Ducks don't mate for life like geese do. Once a male duck has left his mate to look after a full nest, he's off to look for another female to mate with. Male mallards will mate with as many female ducks as they can in a season, so the more colourful the duck, the better chance he has of producing a lot of offspring. "The best looking guy gets the most girls," says Gary.

There's one other feature that distinguishes female ducks from their male counterparts. Female ducks are the ones who quack. "She's the one looking after the young, so she's the one who has to give the warning call," Gary says.

Karen lures ducks into the trap at the sanctuary by feeding them corn. She uses about 100 pounds of corn each day, and the sanctuary goes through about 2.5 to three tonnes of corn in a banding season. "They're well fed ducks," says Gary.

Because of this, Karen says she finds many ducks keep coming back day after day just for the corn. On Saturday during one of the Rupert's demonstrations to visitors at Waterfowl day, Gary held up a bird he'd released just 45 minutes before. "We have many repeat customers," he says.

The entrance to the trap is large so the ducks can get in, but it narrows and won't let the ducks out. Once they are caught, they are herded through a passage into holding cages where Karen can then identify them and band them. The ducks are then released back into the wild of the conservatory.

When handling ducks, they should always be held by the wings, Gary says. That way they can't scratch with their claws or hit a handler with their wings.

The children on hand seemed delighted with the chance they had to hold the birds while they were banded, and then being able to release them back into the wild. Bob Bissonnette from Cornwall brought his sons Chad, 3, and six-year-old Kyle to Waterfowl day so the boys could have a first-hand experience with wildlife. Both boys had a chance to hold and release ducks. Chad said his favorite part was "letting the duck go." Kyle said he liked to hold the duck, "but it was wiggling around, so I let it go."

Duck banding demonstrations are an annual part of Waterfowl Day because it's one of the many things that the sanctuary does to help preserve and protect wildlife, says Dallas Buchan, president of the Friends of the Sanctuary and one of the organizers of the event.

"Duck banding is a North American activity," Buchan says. "Animals don't know boundaries." The Friends of the Sanctuary, a non-profit, volunteer-run organization works to keep the sanctuary going. The group helps to run educational programming and helps fund maintenance projects around the park.

All money raised at Waterfowl Day goes to the Friends to be used in the park, to help educate people about the park and to help build an appreciation of nature, Buchan says.

"We want to teach them that you're a part of nature, it's not something you own," she says. It's also important to help people realize that if they don't use and support conservation areas like the sanctuary, they might not exist much longer. "You have to show interest in things like this or they won't be around," Buchan says.

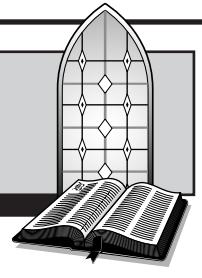

Attendance on Sunday for the event was high, as people packed the silent auction and vendor's tents and crowded around to watch presentations by the Little Ray's Travelling Reptile Show and Falcon Environmental's Fantastic Free-flying Bird of Prey show.

"The turnout's been great," Buchan said. "The visitors love it."

And hundreds of people wandered by the duck banding trap to watch what the Ruperts were doing. There's still time to watch wild duck banding going on at the sanctuary. "October's the better month for ducks," Karen says. "Anybody can come down and watch."

The Hand of the Master

Modern technology has been used to discover amazing things not visible to the naked eye. Electron microscopes can find previously unseen bacteria. The Hubble Space Telescope is revealing distant, almost invisible stars. Infra-red technology now enables art historians to see the sketch of a master under the painting of an apprentice. News articles recently reported that a new infra-red viewing technique has revealed the outline of a sketch by Raphael under a painting attributed to one of his best pupils, Giulio Romano.

In Renaissance art studios it was not uncommon for a master artist to have many apprentices who assisted in the studio by cleaning brushes, preparing pigment, applying the under-painting and running errands in return for learning their master's techniques. In the case of Raphael, who died at the young age of 37, many of his unfinished commissioned paintings were completed by his apprentices. This has made authentication of his many paintings a challenge; but, now art experts have a new way of determining the truth using the new technology.

The books of the Bible have been examined, translated and analysed over the centuries. Sometimes the experts have made astonishing announcements and produced books of interesting speculation about the origins and authors of each of the books.

Sometimes the expert opinions conflict. This can be confusing, but believers don't need modern technology to know that the work of our Master is behind every word of the Gospels. It was His life, ministry, death and resurrection that inspired His followers to record the history and philosophy of Jesus Christ. Our Master's teachings also live through the Epistles written by early Christians which have continued to inspire, convince and encourage people of faith throughout the ages.

Although individualism and innovation are highly prized in western society, Christian believers strive to emulate the life of Jesus Christ. It isn't an easy task. Just like the artist's apprentices of long ago, our efforts don't match the artistry and perfection of our Master, and yet He continues to inspire and encourage our attempts.

He believes in our potential and forgives our clumsy mistakes. If we are faithful disciples throughout our lives, others will be able to see in all we do the loving guidance of our Master, Jesus Christ.

New things to do at the library

The local library is now officially reopened on St. Lawrence Street in the old North Dundas Township building. Diagonally south of Mac's, the grand-reopening ribbon was cut on the new Winchester Library last Tuesday (Sept. 24).

There are some new things you can do at the library now that it's three times larger than before, and really nice. A great new feature is that now it's got great curb-appeal. There's a fantastic new sign out front that lights up when it's open at night: SD&G Library Winchester Branch. The library shares space with the Ontario Provincial Police SD&G, which is another municipal facility that needs clear identification.

The library used to be located at the Winchester Lions' Hall. No one's going to argue that the Lions don't have some nice facilities, but their spare room was literally cramping the library. It's equally true that the North Dundas Township staff was similarly constricted before their office was moved to the former Hydro building. Today, library patrons are benefitting.

Another obvious benefit is that the branch's public online capacity has doubled. There are now four computer workstations available for use during library hours. Head librarian Gail Storring reports that demand for the computer time has increased so much that she's had to start scheduling time-slots.

The new library is great for a number of reasons. You can't argue with location. The facility has really only moved about four blocks; but for some reason, four computers are busier now than before when there were two. And, because it's in the old township building, now its architecture is vested with a great deal of municipal authority.

Considering atmosphere, much of the mood in your better libraries is created by the rows of shelves. The Winchester library now has rows of shelves. The ideal library allows privacy; large collections of books take up so much space as to allow for quiet private nooks. The new branch is now so roomy that the reference section is completely separated from the children's section.

MOVIE REFERENCES

Some of the best characteristics associated with libraries have been described in movies. The Gun in Betty Lou's Handbag (1992) stars Penelope Ann Miller as a repressed librarian who finds passion for life when she becomes involved in a crime. Party Girl (1995) has Parker Posey convincing as a young New York party-slut who learns organization in her life, when an aunt gives her a job in the local library branch.

No butts – girls need mascara

Will someone please tell me, what is it about putting on mascara that makes people want to help poke out my eye?

I don't think it's intentional, but for some reason every time I try to apply mascara to my lashes in the morning, there is somebody ready to slap me playfully on the butt or jump on my shoulders.

Okay, so it's a cat that jumps on my shoulders, not a person. But the slap on the butt invariably comes from DH (Distracting Husband), and usually at an inconvenient time.

Mascara, as female readers will attest to, is one of those essential feminine items. I could possibly go so far as to suggest that it is as important as lipstick.

And we all know that, despite — or because of — mascara's importance, it can ruin your entire day.

First of all, mascara is the messiest of cosmetics to apply. One false move and you're either blinded for life, or have a big black splotch across your face.

And don't even think of sneezing, as I have done many times in the past. This can set your morning routine back a good 10 minutes, having to wipe the black smudge off before it dries on your face.

Now, there is also the small matter of the Mascara Position. Girls, we know what that entails, and it's not pretty.

First, you have to lean in close to the mirror. In most cases, that means leaning across the bathroom countertop, in essence sticking your bottom out in a smackable position. (I believe this is my problem with the aforementioned smacks on the butt.)

Next, you have to screw your face into such a position that you can hold your eye open in order to swipe the mascara wand onto your lashes, thus making yourself presentable for the day. What did women ever do before mascara was invented? I shudder to think.

Third, you have to have a very steady hand, in order to not miss swiping your lashes and instead hit the area around your eye. And it's a very good idea to not stick the wand directly into the eye. I think that piece of information should be included on the tube, for first-time users.

Now the problem comes when you are in this compromising position. DH likes to give me a firm swat on the behind when he passes behind me in the bathroom in the morning. Normally, I don't mind such an affectionate gesture from him.

But when you get that swat while you're in the middle of pointing a lethal wand at your eyeball, you will inevitably find yourself with a big black line from the corner of your eye to the middle of your forehead. Or across your nose, depending on your technique.

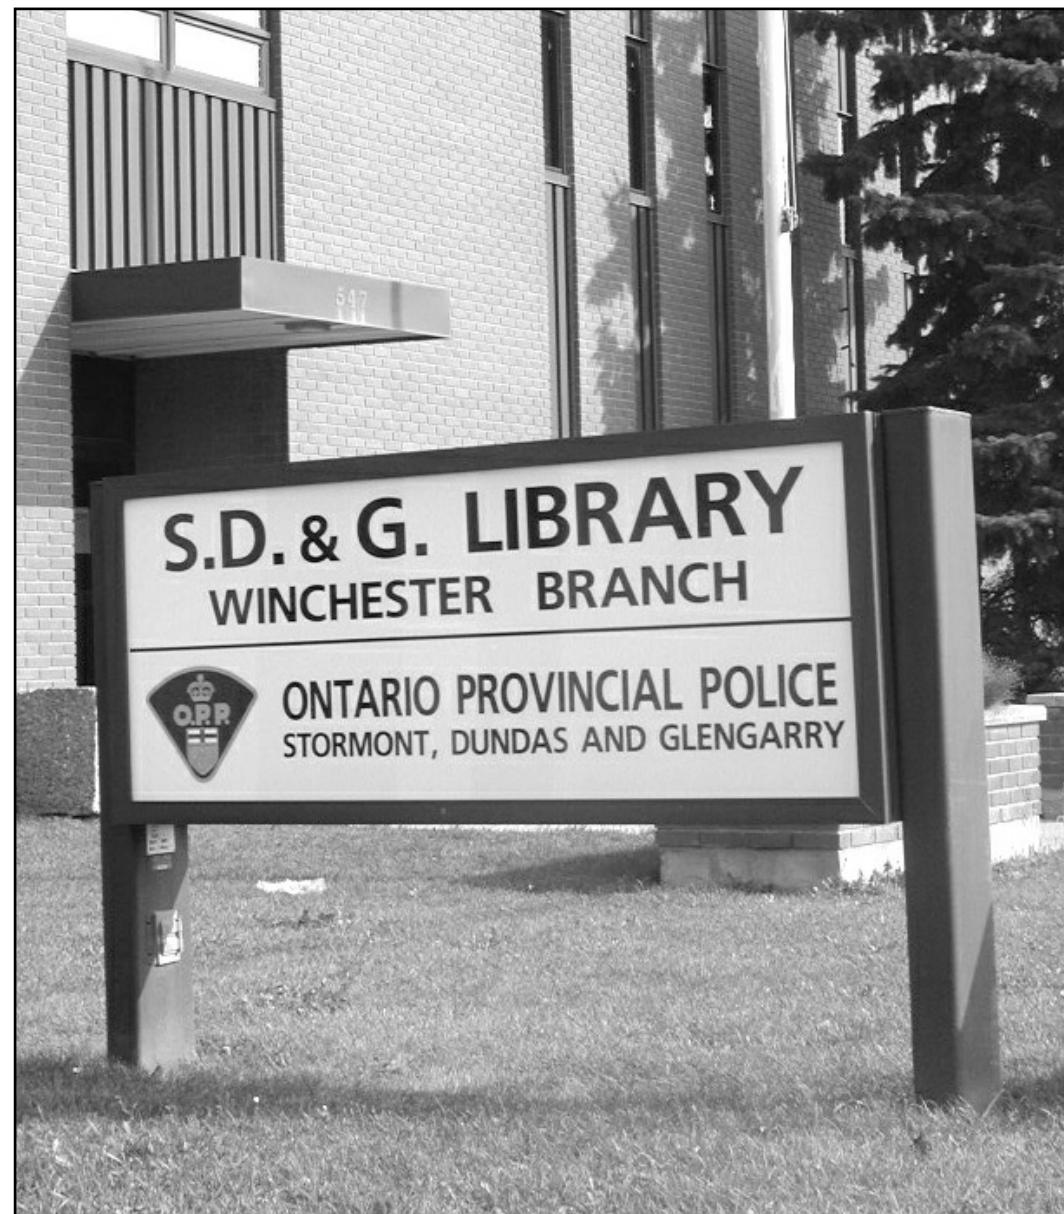

While this is unwelcome behavior first thing in the morning — BC (Before Coffee) — there is something much worse.

As I've mentioned, for the time being, I am stationed in my parents' home. And that means dealing with their psychotic feline family member who actually runs the joint.

You want to apply makeup? You ask Phoebe first. She might have other plans for you. Let me tell you, there is nothing worse than applying mascara and unwittingly becoming a target.

There I am, mascara wand positioned precariously close to my cornea, when I simultaneously blacken my eye and suffer what must be close to a heart attack, as I feel the claws dig suddenly into my back as Phoebe lands on my shoulder to get a better view of the morning routine.

Morning coffee before applying makeup has never been so important.

Olympic victory this year? Multiply that by eight times, and crank up the pressure by about 10 times, and you've got a hint of what it felt like.

I wish someone had done a study of Canadian productivity in those three hours of Sept. 28, 1972. Our gross national product must have dropped to Antarctic levels. It was probably the most crime-free three hours in Canadian history.

There was certainly little education going on. My high school was virtually shut down, the only sound heard throughout the halls was Foster Hewitt's aging voice, as he mangled Russian (and a few Canadian) names. The pandemonium that ensued when St. Paul scored the winning goal with 34 seconds left resulted in an extra bonus — school was cancelled for the rest of the day. Heck, I remember hugging a guy I didn't even like.

When the euphoria wore off, and the deadening tedium of a regular NHL season began, Canadians went back to doing what we do best — questioning our abilities. The only thing missing was a royal commission.

But all that came later. On Sept. 28, 1972, we were just deliriously happy. There will never be another moment like it. Sorry, young 'uns. Next time, try being born at the right time.

Maurice Tougas is a multiple-award winning columnist and journalist with more than 20 years experience. He has worked for the Edmonton Examiner, the Edmonton Journal, the Canadian Press and the Red Deer Advocate. He lives in Edmonton with his wife and three sons, aged 17, 15 and 11.

'The Goal' that will live forever

Gather 'round, young 'uns. This old codger is about to take a ramble down memory lane, back to a time when Canada's self-image nearly shattered like Plexiglass.

I'm not talking about something as trivial as a world war. (Note: I am exaggerating for humor's sake. Veterans need not write in to complain.) I am referring to the Canada-Russia hockey series of 1972, the single most exhilarating, nightmarish and thrilling moment in Canadian history. (Another note: I am NOT exaggerating.)

This week marks the 30th anniversary of the day a previously obscure NHL journeyman named Paul Henderson became Canada's greatest sports hero — then and forever — by scoring The Goal.

The Goal is to Canadians as the Kennedy assassination is to Americans, a "where were you?" moment we like to share. The Americans have their grainy 8 mm Zapruder film from Nov. 22, 1963, replayed so frequently it has lost its shock value. We have the fuzzy TV picture of Sept. 28, 1972, which has been shown more often than an old Star Trek episode. But it still has the power to give me goosebumps.

Young readers — and I'm making the huge assumption that there are young readers out there — may wonder what all the fuss is about. With every current NHL team sporting guys named Boris or Alexei, the idea of Russians being mortal enemies seems absurd, maybe even silly. But believe me, kids, the Russians in 1972 were pure evil in cheap skates. Phil Esposito, another series hero, has said he would have killed to win that series, and he was dead serious. That pretty well sums up the way Canadians felt. If you asked the average Canadian in September 1972 if it was OK to kill a Russian player to win the series, the response would have been "Well, it seems a little extreme ... but maybe just one."

Canada, as we are all painfully aware, is a modest, self-effacing country, except in our beer commercials. If Canada was a stand-up comedian, we'd be Bob Newhart. But only in hockey could Canada be called arrogant, and we were Don Cherry-esque in our arrogance in '72. Sure, we were getting our butts kicked by the Russkies in the Olympics and the worlds, but that was because we sent squads of puny amateurs who could only make an NHL team by volunteering to be pawns. Our pros would eviscerate the Commie swine, and send them back to Minsk in pine boxes.

The Russian arrival here did nothing to dissuade that viewpoint. Their equipment was cheap, their uniforms appeared moth-eaten, their skates were held together by electrical tape, they used tractor catalogues for shin pads. They even had lousy haircuts. Oh, how we mocked.

Our pros showed up for training camp the way all pro athletes used to show up, with bodies by Molson. Fat, complacent, overconfident. Not the key elements to a winning team.

The first game, a 7-3 shellacking, is better forgotten, but I can't. It is seared into my memory. The other games all have their moments of gloom and glory. A courageous victory in Toronto. A let-them-off-the-hook tie in Winnipeg. A shattering loss in Vancouver. Game five in Moscow, and a big lead gassed. One-goal wins in six and seven to tie the series. All leading to game eight.

I can't adequately describe the tension felt across the country. Every game was like having a vice applied to your temples, squeezed tighter with each passing minute. Remember the excitement of Canada's

Metcalfe Public School students are enjoying the fruits of a schoolyard greening project which had trees planted over the summer and flat rocks placed to act as benches. # The greening of Metcalfe Public: A few trees make all the difference to playground

by Chris Zabel
Press staff

METCALFE — The addition of new trees and several field stones for sitting have generated a remarkable response among students in the playground at Metcalfe Public School. These well planned additions represent the first phase of a greening project at the school.

Students, staff and parent volunteers celebrated their first step toward a more natural learning environment with a Tree Tea held on Sept. 20. The additions to the schoolyard were made over the summer, and the benefits of the project are just beginning to take root.

Last year, Metcalfe Public School raised nearly $9,000 to begin boosting the natural content of the playground. One of the sources of funding was a student club, the Nature Nuts, which raised $160 with a bake sale.

Greening committee president Sarah Godoy, a parent volunteer, explained that a survey gave the students a chance to tell the committee how their facilities could be improved. More trees was a nearly unanimous point. "And all the older kids said we just want a place where we can sit," said Godoy.

With the average park bench costing roughly $500, the greening committee looked for alternatives. Large flat rocks seemed to fit the needs the students described, and they also tied in with the idea of introducing green (natural) material.

Visitors to the Tree Tea were led around the grounds by student guides to view the improvements. Sasha Godoy explained how the rock benches are very popular at recess. He said there is always a rush among students to be first in the yard to secure a rock for themselves and their friends. Sitting on one of the rocks through recess is a sought-after privilege.

There were seven trees planted in the summer, all of which are doing well. A great deal of thought went into the species selected: green mountain sugar maple, patmore green ash, red oak, summit green ash, deborah Norway maple and skyline honey locust.

Over the past month while the playground has been in use, students have discovered an unplanned synergy in the combination of trees and seating stones. One stone with new trees to the east and west is shady at both morning and afternoon recess.

The new trees and seats are on either side of the soccer field. The next phase of the greening project will have the assistance of the City of Ottawa which will plant more trees between the schoolyard and the street behind the school.

Funding for the first phase of the project came from a number of groups in the community including the Metcalfe Women's Institute. Major grants were given by the City of Ottawa and the Toronto Dominion Friends of the Environment Foundation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fire Prevention Week is next week

The Editor:

Once again, Fire Prevention Week is close upon us and the members of your volunteer fire department would like to take this opportunity to remind all residents the importance of some life-saving points.

The need to check your smoke detectors on a regular basis and to change the batteries twice a year had been proven to save lives.

Every residence should have an escape plan and a meeting place so that family members can account for their whereabouts in the event of a fire. The escape plan should be practiced twice a year so that all family members are familiar with their escape routes and meeting place.

On Wed., Oct. 9 at 7 pm, fire departments across North America will be sounding their sirens in an effort to remind people to practice their Great Escape and to gather at their meeting place.

If anyone has any questions or concerns about smoke detectors or the making of an escape plan, please do not hesitate to contact any member of your fire department.

Tony Fraser, Captain,

Winchester Fire Department

Area Lions lead the charge for Oct. 20 TOCC Care-a-thon

METCALFE — Later this fall, the Township of Osgoode Care Centre will be opening the doors to its 30-bed expansion and renovation project. The total project is budgeted to cost over $5.2 million and will provide the community, facility residents and their families with a wide range of benefits.

The challenge that the TOCC faces is raising $1.5 million to offset expansion and building upgrade costs. To date, a little over $1 million has been raised through government contributions, fundraising efforts by local service clubs, a kick-off gala dinner and auction last fall, corporate and individual donations.

To help meet this challenge the fundraising committee is looking for support of the local community through the Care-a-thon. On Oct. 20, starting at 1 pm, residents are invited to come out and walk, run, bike or skate for the TOCC and help build an even better dream. Five and 10-kilometre circuits will be set up in the following four locations:

— in Osgoode Village, at the community centre;

— at the Greely Community Centre;

— at Metcalfe's Old Town Hall;

— in Russell at the Mother Teresa Catholic Elementary School.

Pledge forms can be picked up through any local Lions Club member, or by contacting the Township of Osgoode Care Centre at 821-1034 ext. 10.

The local Lions Clubs are once again organizing the event on behalf of the TOCC. Last year approximately $30,000 was raised through the Care-a-thon. This Oct. 20, the Lions hope to significantly increase that amount. To help highlight their commitment, the following profiles of four Lions have been prepared.

JIM DEVENNY — OSGOODE

Jim Devenny has been with the Osgoode and District Lions Club since 1995. He is a past-president and is involved in all club activities. He has served on the Osgoode Winter Carnival Committee, organized the Club's involvement at the Metcalfe Fair and is a prominent member of the local sports fraternity. He was recently the recipient of the prestigious Order of Osgoode award.

Devenny says he is up to the challenge of the "awesome" Care Centre Care-a-thon on Oct. 20. People have been heard to say that anyone with a vehicle like Devenny's must really enjoy walking. Devenny himself says, "Don't drive any further than you feel like walking back." His great ability to pick questionable vehicles has given Devenny an excellent training program for the Care-a-thon.

But the real question is, can he raise more money in pledges than the successful Osgoode Lions of last year? Bets are on that the village of Osgoode will rise to the occasion.

PAUL ELFORD — GREELY

Paul Elford is the rookie Lion representative, having just been in Lions since 1999. He has been an extremely active member of the Greely Lions Club, serving as secretary, and he is on the 2002-03 executive. Like most Lions, Elford is extremely active in community affairs, including being a member of the Greely Players and the Choral Society (okay, we've established that he can sing the talk but can he walk the walk?). Yep, he can walk. He recently participated in the Labatt's 24-hour Cancer Relay, Terry Fox runs and is an active and participating on numerous committees. O'Reilly is the Russell representative but the club is still having a difficult time convincing him to walk. He would prefer to leave the strenuous stuff to fellow Lion Jim Sullivan. O'Reilly is a key member of the Care-A-Thon organizing committee. The fact that Russell was the top money producer in last year's Care-a-thon is largely due to his efforts.

Not only was Russell number one, but O'Reilly was also the number one individual collector. It will be tough to repeat but don't bet against him. He has strong club support and a well organized group working with him. "I know that Russell is the best and most generous community," said O'Reilly.

JERRY ROSS — METCALFE

Jerry Ross has been a dedicated and loyal Lion for more than 16 years. He is a former president of the Metcalfe Lions Club and has held virtually every executive position and chaired or participated in numerous committees. He has held many district cabinet positions, including zone chairman and region chairman. He is a recipient of the Melvin Jones award — it doesn't get any higher than that!

In anticipation of the Care-a-thon challenge, Ross has been adhering to a rigorous training schedule since May — cutting the grass. He has rearranged some physical contours and claims he will complete the course in record time (someone should tell him that the record is about 40 minutes — not hours).

Ross is a fun guy but on the serious side, it is true that he has been a strong supporter of the Township of Osgoode Care Centre since its inception, when it was only a dream. Now he asks for the support of his community in his quest to support the drive to make the Care Centre a better dream.

Students compete for job of 'Taz'

NDDHS Notes

by Kathryn Leyenaar

Rory Clement, Courtney Barkley, Jennie Simpson and Sharon Corkery made up the girls squad.

What was unique about this tournament was that once all high schools arrived, team members were split up and placed in another team of either all guys or all girls. This kept everyone in line with their scoring, and at the same time, allowed everyone to meet students from various schools. At the end of the tournament, points were recalculated by school and totalled. The North Dundas guys finished in eighth place out of 13 teams, while the girls placed fourth out of six teams.

Courtney Barkley finished with the second lowest gross score in the girls division and was given a trophy at the end of the day. Kurtis Barkley, shooting an 86, ended up fourth out of six teams.

having the best score on the boys team. Way to go Dundas! Thanks so much to Mr. Bougie who was the girls' coach.

This week is officially "Foster Child Week" here at North Dundas. Through Foster Parents Plan, we are sponsoring Jean Carlos, a young boy from the Dominican Republic. We are running a competition between the guys and girls to see who can bring in the most cash to help this cause. Donated pennies earn points, but if any other form of cash is donated (nickels, quarters, etc.), that amount is taken away from the other group.

For example, if I donated a dime, 10 pennies would be subtracted from the boys team. We are excited to see how much money students will bring in! Teachers will also have the chance to participate this Friday when they have the option of "dressing down for the foster child." This allows teachers to wear jeans or running shoes at the cost of donating to a charity. This week the proceeds will be donated to the foster child. It's hard to believe that we will soon be gearing up for the different events for October!

Williamsburg basks in harvest's spotlight

by Susan Demaray

WILLIAMSBURG — Sunshine and warm fall temperatures greeted participants at Williamsburg's 11th Annual Harvest Festival on Saturday (Sept. 28).

Festival events were held throughout the day, starting at 7 a.m. with the IOOF Pancake Breakfast. Contest judging was held during the morning at various locations around the village. Prizes for the heaviest potato and carrot, best decorated or carved pumpkin, largest sunflower face and zucchini and best children's costumes, as well as other categories, were awarded.

Amanda Lalonde, 9, won first prize in the best children's costume contest for her scarecrow outfit that she and her mom made. "Every year we try to do as many fall activities (as we can)," Amanda said, when asked why she decided to enter a costume. She said her favourite part of the Harvest festival is getting to see the parade, and this year, her favourite part was that she got to be on a float in the parade.

Bill Smith from LMS Motor Sales hosted the Best Decorated or Carved Pumpkin contest. They had three entries this year, which was much less than last year's 15 he said, which made the contest easy to judge, he joked. "There are three prizes, and three pumpkins," he said.

At the park numerous activities, displays, and demonstrations could be found. Life of Reiley Petting Zoo brought animals for the children to feed. Pony rides were held, and children could get their faces painted. A craft show and sale was held under the bright yellow tent. There was a magic show to entertain visitors, and a model train display with numerous small trains whizzing around the tracks.

Ross Walker from Ingleside built the train display he calls Grandpa's Fantasy Land, and travels with it to various events throughout the year. It's the only mobile model train show in Canada. "There's something about trains that attracts people," said Martha Walker, Ross' wife and touring companion. "It's been a great hit."

The highlight of the festival was the noon parade. People crowded the street to watch the more than 50 floats and antique cars drive by. Cubs and Scouts rode by on their bicycles decorated in fall colours and leaves. Miniature horses from The Other Place delighted children as they walked past and This 'Ole Heart and his Country Comrades entertained the crowd by singing country tunes while they road past on their float.

RESULTS

Winning the heaviest potato contest was Kyle Merkley with a 664-gram entry. Travis Merkley was second and Nicky Merkley third. The heaviest carrot contest was won by Donna Casselman with 856-gram carrot. Carl Barkley was second and Dale Casselman third.

The largest sunflower face was produced by Tim Garlough. Cody

This 'Ole Heart and his Country Comrades entertain the crowd with country music as their float passes by during the parade.

MacDonald was second and Norma McIntosh third. The largest zucchini was entered by James and Mallory Liboiron. Larry Schell was second and Avery Cory Douglas-Kirland was third.

In the harvest centrepiece competition, children's division, Kristen McMillan was first, Kendra and Katie Buter second and Trevor Brown third. In the adults class, Edna Eldridge was first, Brenda Scott second and Spencer Brown third. First place in the corn cob creations competition went to Kyle and Travis Merkley.

In the most unique vegetable class Kurtis Merkley was first, Crystal Merkley second and Corey Ault third. In the best decorated/carved pumpkin contest, Kristen McMillan was first, Ryan Lalonde second and Amanda Lalonde third.

In the best children's costume, under five, Mary Murphy was first, Jacob Byvelds was second and Katie Buter third. In apple pie judging, Flo Merkley was first, Ashley Shawongonabe was second and Kendra Sullivan third.

In the horseshoe tournament, Leo Hebert and Tony Antione were first, Allan Doherty and Denzil Tusaw were second, and Marcil Montroy and Gerard Houde third.

First place winners in the various age categories for the decorated pole contest were Kristen McMillan, Jackie Van Hoof, Kelly Van Hoof and April Richmire. In the harvest-themed door contest, Dana McMillan was first, Debbie Disheau was second and Sheila Crowder third.

In the decorated house contest, Julie Mitchell was first, Laurie Van Hoof second, and Rob and Tabatha Casselman third. In the decorated bale contest, Bonnie Richmire was first, Jordan McNulty second and Nicole Disheau third. # Press compares apples to apples

by Gerrit Bosma
Press Staff

WINCHESTER — While walking in a field in Dundela, John McIntosh never could have imagined what would come of his discovery.

More than 100 years ago McIntosh brought to the world what is now properly called the McIntosh apple.

This past season, apple orchards in the South and North Dundas area were hurt by cold weather with frost during blooming, and then hot conditions of drought in August.

Growers at Mountain, Dentz and Smyth Orchards all said their volume of apples was down this year. Yet, all three orchards still have plenty of apples and of all varieties for sale at their local stands.

Besides the ever-popular McIntosh apple, many consumers are unaware of the numerous varieties of apples available in the area. Smyth Orchards alone grow 54 strains of the juicy fruit.

With every apple comes a unique taste, color and feel. Some are good for cooking or ciders, while others are enjoyable for plain eating. Whether your preference is sweet, tart, crunchy or soft, there is an apple for you.

Winchester Press staff recently indulged in a dozen unique types of apples in an exquisite apple tasting venture. Such a taste test is much more than simply comparing apples to apples.

Here are the results:

Farm update

an Old Russet and a Sweet Creamy. For those of you with a sweet tooth, this apple will please you. This predominantly white-flesh apple may be unfamiliar to the usual apple taste, but is a treat. Although sweet, it also has a slight sour taste.

HONEY GOLD

Tastes similar to a pear and is quite sweet. The flesh is more yellowish and the texture is soft, but still has some crunch to it. May be good in a fruit salad.

HONEY CRISP

Fresh for this time of year, this apple has a crisp firm texture, yellowish flesh and lots of juice in it. The apple is sweet, but has a slight tart flavor. The Honey Crisp has its best growth in cold climates.

Honey Gold

ATLAS

Suitable both for cooking and eating off the tree this treat has a sharp tangy flavor. The Atlas is an old apple, usually grown in a more established orchard. This apple also ripens quickly, though its white flesh stays white for some time.

MCINTOSH

This classic is where many of these apples all began, the reason why the McIntosh has forever been a popular choice amongst Canadians. Unlike any other apple, the McIntosh's familiar sweet/sour blended taste appeals to many. The apple is not too hard, but does have a crisp to it.

ROYAL GALA

A distinctive taste, this royal treat is sweet, sweet, sweet. This heart-shaped apple is crisp, hard and is known to be good in salads with its firm fine texture. By biting into this apple, it's not hard to decipher it's related to the Delicious family.

LOBO

Developed in 1930 by using a McIntosh and open-pollination of an apple unknown, the Lobo is an extremely sweet and juicy apple. Although full of juice, the Lobo is low in acid. With a white flesh and soft in texture, you could say the Lobo is a middle-of-the-road apple or "road apple", potentially appealing to many apple fans.

SPARTAN

A cross between a McIntosh and a Yellow Newton, the Spartan has a juicy white flesh, and its firm texture keeps its freshness. The Spartan is a good cooking apple and is tart, but not too strong.

Spartan

PAULA RED

This apple is quite soft in texture and is easily peeled. It has a hard core in the middle and has a noticeable sweet taste.

Paula Red

CRAB APPLE

Sour and bitter taste, but excellent for cooking and making jelly.

WINE SAP

Was first cultivated in New Jersey in 1880 and about 30 strands now exist. This apple is nice and crisp but not too tart. Has some sweetness and doesn't have much white in flesh. This apple has been said to have an old-fashioned flavor.

CORTLAND

Known as an excellent cooking apple and for making tasty cider. The apple has extremely white flesh and is slow to brown. For those who enjoy a hard apple, this one is crisp and firm. The taste is tangy and only a little tart. The Cortland also holds its shape well, and for those with weaker stomachs, it is also low in acid.

Double whammy: Frost, drought hampers area orchards

by Gerrit Bosma
Press Staff

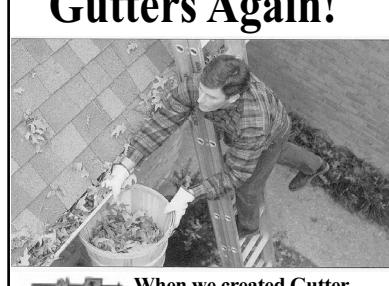

WINCHESTER — Mother Nature wasn't kind to apple orchards this year.

In the South and North Dundas region, apple orchards are a significant player in the agriculture industry. Yet, the past two seasons' weather hasn't co-operated with the apple growers.

Apple producers at Mountain, Dentz and Smyth Orchards all agreed they were hurt by a double impact of cold weather and frost in June and then a drought with hot conditions in August.

All agreed their volumes were down, and though they have big apples for sale, there are not as many.

Shelley and Phil Lyall operate Mountain Orchards in Mountain. Shelley Lyall said their volume decreased by 40 per cent this year.

"The frost in June inhibits pollination and then we got hit with a double whammy with the drought in August," Lyall said.

"We were lucky to get some good weather during some critical days before harvest, or the apples would have been a lot smaller."

Mountain Orchards used to have 50 acres and 12 varieties of apples and now they have 25 acres and six various kinds of apples.

For this reason, the Lyalls have become involved in other businesses to make a living and have expanded their orchard to include a straw-jump, nature trail and two corn mazes for youth.

With the weather not helping, she said they have no choice but to ask for a competitive price for their fresh apples.

Paul Dentz of Dentz Orchards and Berry Farm says while he still has lots of big apples for sale, his volume and size took a hit this year as well.

While harvest is going well, he says the rain didn't come soon enough.

"A number of people have got out of the apple business because it is tougher to make a living."

Along with the popular McIntosh, Dentz also has Spartan and Empire apples ready now in the fall harvest.

Paul Beckstead, proprietor of Smyth's Apple Orchard, looks after 54 varieties of apples. He says the frost in June during the blossom season put a real pinch on growth.

"I had 25 to 30 per cent of an average crop," said Beckstead, a 35-year veteran in the industry.

"Now I have no shortage of apples to sell locally, but not enough to send away as produce."

All the apple growers agreed there is no control over the situation of being at the mercy of the elements.

HECKSTON — The Grenville County Plowmen's Association held its 83rd annual plowing match on Saturday (Sept. 28). The Sloan Farm on South Gower Drive, north of Heckston hosted the event, where about 35 participants plowed in six different classes.

"It's been going great," said Barry Thompson, this year's president of the Grenville County Plowmen's Association. "We have great support in this township."

After heavy rains the day before the event, Thompson said he was worried about what the weather would be like, but Saturday's sunny skies and warm temperatures made for an excellent day in the fields.

"The weather's co-operated," he said. "We're lucky."

Those on the plows seemed to be enjoying the day. "It's one of the rare disciplines where you work with the earth," said Jean-Marc Dessaint, who came from Sarsfield to compete in the match.

He said he has loved to plow ever since his father taught him how at about age 6. "As soon as my feet could reach the pedals, he got me on the plow," Dessaint said.

Lyal McDermid of Berwick said that the good weather and a love of plowing brought him to the event. "It's the sport of it," he said. "It's just a challenge."

For observers, there were some side events to keep them entertained between plowing classes. Horse and buggy rides were provided and there was an oxen-plowing demonstration.

Irwin McCargar from Mountain brought his oxen Buck and Bright to the plowing match, and for a donation to the Diabetic Association, visitors to the match could plow with them. It was the oxen's first attempt at plowing, and McCargar said it went going fairly well.

RESULTS

The junior match, held on Friday, was won by Ronnie Maitland of Jasper. The horses, jointer plows class was won by Gabriel LeCavalier of Hammond. The tractors, two furrow plows class was won by Doug Stinson of North Gower.

The utility two-hour class was won by Ron Stinson of North Gower. The 20 years and younger class was won by Morgan Stinson of North Gower. The 4-H Grenville class was won by Ronnie Maitland of Jasper.

The antique tractors and plows class was won by Peter Myers of Portland. The Queen of the Furrow plowing class was won by Angie Willoughby of Smiths Falls. The VIP class was won by Bob Runciman, MPP of Leeds-Grenville.

SPECIALS

The Harold Scott Memorial for best plowed land went to Doug Stinson. The Robert Grue Special for best crown in the horses, jointer class went to Gabriel LeCavalier, who also won the Ron Cooke Special for best finish in the same class.

Smail delivers Hawks first win of season

Number five

Winchester rookie forward Darren Trenholm (#10) celebrated his St. Lawrence Division-leading fifth goal at 5:52 of the second period of Friday night's game. Trenholm cashed in two shots in period two and Hawks' captain Shawn Smail bagged the winner with 37.4 seconds left on the clock as Winchester edged the Char-Lan Rebels 5-4.

Press Photo — Van Bridger

WINCHESTER — Captain Shawn Smail fulfilled his leadership role to perfection in Friday night's 5-4 victory over the visiting Char-Lan Rebels.

Smail jumped on loose puck and broke up-ice. He chose a direct path to the opposition's net, flashed around the last Rebels' defender and snapped the tie-breaking shot through Steve Lacelle's feet. When the puck hit the back of the net the clock stopped with 37.4 seconds on it. The Winchester captain had given his squad its first win of the 2002-2003 Rideau-St. Lawrence Jr. "B" Hockey League season.

But the 5-4 score wasn't quite secure at that point. Char-Lan gained control of the play right off the ensuing face off and swarmed the Hawks net. Thanks to some spectacular work by veteran goaltender Gregg Griffith and a couple of off-target shots by the Rebels, the Hawks were able to celebrate the 5-4 win.

According to Hawks head coach Dave Corkery Griffith was sizzling hot Sunday afternoon in Alexandria. "Gregg played his best game in three years. Unfortunately he wasn't rewarded with the win. He was right on the money and the only shot that beat him had eyes. He had no chance."

Winchester's modest one-game win string was snapped by the home town Alexandria Glens who blanked the Hawks 2-0. With four games in the books, the Hawks hold a 1-3-0 (fifth-place) record.

Kemptville (4-0-0), Alexandria (2-0-1), Char-Lan (2-2-0) and Morrisburg (2-1-1) stand ahead of the Hawks. Akwesasne (0-3-0) holds down sixth.

The Glens took a 1-0 lead on Steven Owens' powerplay goal with three seconds left in the first period. Jeff Lobb iced the 2-0 decision slapping one into the empty net with 27 seconds on the clock. Simon-Pierre Lamoureux registered the shutout.

"We just couldn't generate any offence. Defensively we are very happy with the team's play," said Corkery.

He explained that some of his skaters aren't playing very smart hockey and are taking bad penalties. He cited Sunday's game in Alexandria as an example. Shawn Smail was injured blocking a shot and had to leave the game. Colin Bowie and Dave Gallant then got tossed leaving Hawks with a player from each line out of the game — which he said completely destroyed any chemistry the offence might have had going.

"We have to play disciplined hockey. Stay out of the box because we don't have the fire power the other teams do. So, we have to play tight, cautious hockey. We have to make our breaks and then bury them," said the coach.

Corkery said he isn't completely disengaged by the weekend's result noting a split is better than no points. "The bright spot was our defensive play. But we also have to consider we haven't had one practice as a team yet. We as coaches haven't been able to sell any offensive system to the guys. We will work on that this week. We played very well five-on-four and created some opportunities five-on-five. Bottom line — stay on the ice."

The coach said the Hawks could certainly use a goal scorer, or two. But he and his staff aren't planning any immediate changes. "We will be patient."

THIS WEEK

Winchester's offence will have to be clicking this weekend as they host the high-scoring Morrisburg Lions Friday night (Oct. 4 at 8:15 pm) and then travel to Cornwall Island to take on the winless and hungry Akwesasne Wolves on Saturday (Oct. 5).

Corkery reported that his captain,

Shawn Smail, may not be available this weekend due to that injury suffered in Alexandria. "It's day-to-day for Shawn. Hopefully he will be ready."

HAWKS 5 - REBELS 4

"We got up 3-0 on Char-Lan and the guys seemed to think they were an offensive powerhouse and forgot about playing defence. What happens? They (Char-Lan) scored two goals in 11 seconds and it was a 3-2 game. Same thing in the third period. We had a 4-2 lead and Char-Lan tied it up. Thank God for our defence and Shawn scoring that goal. The team has to stay focused and play 60 minutes," said the coach.

Trevor Helliker (PPG from Smail and Andrei Katchmar at 13:22) put the Hawks up 1-0 in period one. Rookie Darren Trenholm then opened up a 3-0 gap popping in his fourth and fifth goals of the season. Katchmar assisted on the first at 11:08 and then worked with Smail on the second at 5:52.

Char-Lan closed to within a goal as Pat Johnson scored at 4:08 and Derek Duval at 3:57.

Rookie defender Trent McBain blasted in a Trenholm feed at 10:46 of the final session to make it a 4-2 contest. Once again the Rebels rallied. Steve Jarvo closed it to 4-3 at 9:22 and Danny Lafave tied it up at four scoring with 3:24 left on the clock.

Shawn Smail's unassisted breakaway tally clinched the 5-4 win with 37.4 seconds showing on the clock.

Winchester drew nine and the Rebels four minor penalties.

Winchester's top scorers after four games: #10 Darren Trenholm 5-2-7 (first in St. Lawrence Division); #18 Shawn Smail 3-3-6 (tied for second place); #8 Colin Bowie 1-2-3; #23 Andrei Katchmar 0-3-3; #22 Trevor Helliker 1-1-2; #16 Nic Sylvestri 0-2-2.

Kennedy, Pinch, Fawcett among top runners at Kingston meet

MAPLE RIDGE — Preparation for the second cross-country competition of the 2002 season is under way. The NDDHS Devils hit the trails last week in an invitation meet in Kingston and compiled some solid results.

Chad Kennedy, in his first high school competition, led all North Dundas runners placing 6th in the midget boys division. Terra Fawcett was 10th in the junior girls race while another first-year midget, Amanda Pinch came in 18th.

Overall, North Dundas' Junior Devils earned fourth-place status in the junior girls bracket. Fawcett led the way with her 10th place finish. Bailey Lewis was 23rd, Stephanie Byvelds 27th, Ainsley Glassford 27th and Kaley Cochrane 33rd.

Devils coach Julie Green reported the meet attracted at least 100 runners in each division and provided a high level of competition for her runners.

"It was a huge meet. It showed how the sport has rebounded. Two years ago there wasn't any cross country. Last year the turnout was low but this year the response was enormous," she said.

The North Dundas junior girls finished fourth with 91 points. East Northumberland won it with 33 points. Perth was second with 60 and TISS third with 61 points.

"Last year our junior girls went to OFSAA so I know they can run with anyone. We had one girl drop out of Thursday's (Sept. 26) because she got sick during the race. Another girl had a lot of difficulty breathing and couldn't get her pace. We were sick and injured but still finished very well," explained the coach.

Green reported at one point during the race four of the junior girls were in the top 12 and it looked as if they may taste victory. However the field then got spread out and so did the Devils.

The coach was impressed with the overall showing of her 15-member team, but in particular the efforts turned in by first-year runners Chad Kennedy and Amanda Pinch. She noted Kennedy was nipped at the wire and just edged out of a fifth-place finish while Pinch improved her positioning from 50th to 18th.

Kevin Guthier finished 63rd in the junior boys run and Devon Carruthers 25th in the senior boys division.

Green reported some surprising results in the senior girls 5.3 km run. Stacey Little and Ashleigh Craig, competing in cross country for the first time, registered 29th and 54th place finishes. Lindsey DeJong came in 32nd.

Sandy Row installs golf simulators

New winter golfing destination: South Mountain

SOUTH MOUNTAIN — Your winter golfing destination — South Mountain, Ontario.

Out of the question? Golfing in eastern Ontario during the winter months — impossible.

Not so — before the snow flies this winter those die-hard golfers who pine for the click of their club striking the ball will be able to satisfy their thirst for the sport they love right in South Mountain.

Thanks to the progressive thinking of Merv Coons, Sandy Row Golf Course will be able to offer year-round golfing. Coons, who has been sole owner of the nine-hole facility since 1998, is in the process of installing two Golf-o-Max simulators.

Coons, 60, retired after 26 years in the bulk milk transportation business in June and was looking to expand and diversify his operation. "Once golf finishes in December we ran the restaurant, but that wasn't a money-making proposition. Hopefully these simulators will attract enough people to make both the golf and the restaurant pay."

"It had better work these machines are worth $58,000 each, lease to own," he added.

Not only will golfers be able to swing their clubs during the winter, playing on a long list of famous courses, they will be able to practice their driving as well as putting skills during cold wet spring conditions as witnessed in Friday.

"June was miserable. Thank God the rest of the summer was nice. Even if people just want to practice in the spring before the weather is nice they will be able to come out, play and stay for lunch or a beer," he suggested.

WHAT IS IT

Colette and Daniel Dubois of Boucherville, Que. discovered the Full Swing Golf simulator in San Diego, California in 1993. They then did a study to determine the market potential of an indoor golf centre featuring the Full Swing Golf simulators. The results prompted them to purchase four machines and they opened their first Golf-o-Maxi business in 1993. The rest they say is history.

The simulators are housed in a 12'6" wide x 10' high x 10 deep booth. Golfers use their own clubs and golf balls. Their target is a specially designed screen on which graphics for as many as 52 courses are projected. Pebble Beach, St. Andrews, Kapalua, Banff Springs and Bay Hill are some of the courses offered. Shots are tracked by a patented dual-tracking system which cycles in excess of two million infra-red beams per second to accurately monitor ball flight within an inch.

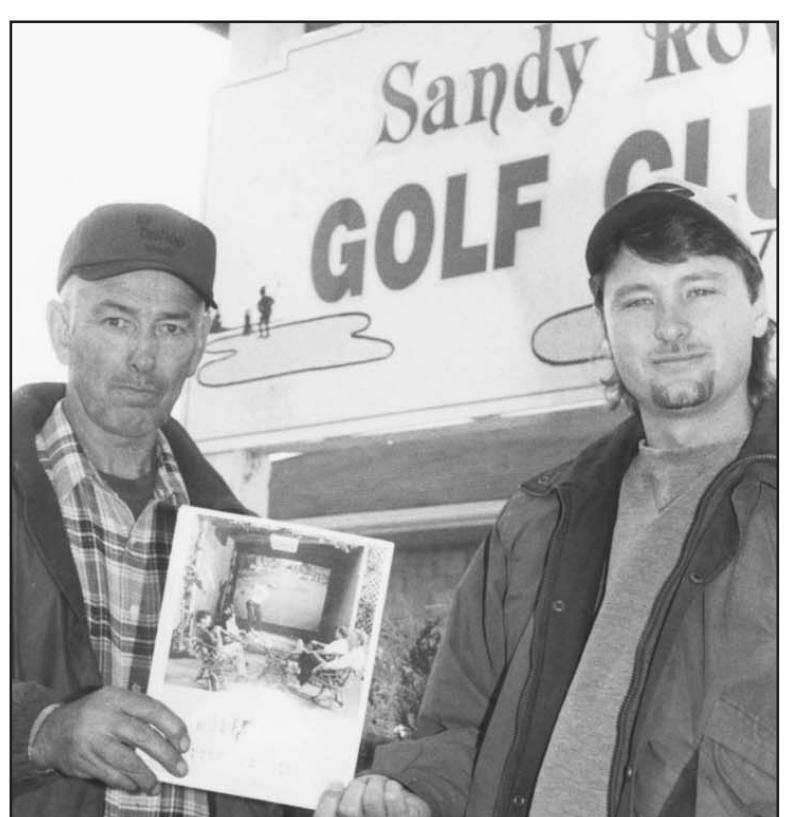

Players set the course and conditions on a custom touch computer control console. A custom hitting mat can simulate hitting from a tee, deep rough, medium rough and even sandy surfaces.

Facing the screen and a preferred course the golfer tees off and plays each hole as any regular game. The realistic quality has been described as exceptional and the distances accurate regardless of which club is used and results even reflect solid contact versus a missed hit.

After each shot statistical information is displayed on the screen. The player is informed of the distance of their shot and the distance remaining to the hole. If the ball ends up in the water or out of bounds the computer automatically adds the appropriate penalty strokes and positions the ball for the next shot. The scene on the screen changes to provide a view of the next shot to be played. It is the challenge of a real golf game.

"It can be every bit as frustrating as the outdoors game," laughed Coons. "But that's part of the fun of the game."

Coons noted one appealing factor to playing indoor golf, especially for seniors, is the absence of walking. "You hit the ball, sit down and let the next guy hit."

Looking to the future

Sandy Row Golf Course owner Merv Coons (left) and his son Cory hold the booklet on the Golf-o-Max simulator currently being installed at their nine-hole facility. Coons hopes golfers will use the two machines during the winter and when bad weather hits.

Press Photos — Van Bridger

He also says the simulators can be used for giving golf lessons, clinics, leagues and team tournaments.

With time now to turn his full attention to the family business Coons hopes many of the 300 members who call Sandy Row their golfing home will continue to visit.

"Boy, I hope it works. I would really hate to have to find another job at this time of life," he grinned. "I really enjoy it here. There is nothing like being out here at 5:30 am. It is so peaceful. You have to be happy at what you are doing and I am, especially with the kids Shelley - daughter and son Cory being part of it."

For more information on the remainder of the outdoor and the fast-approaching indoor season call Sandy Row Golf Course and Restaurant at 989-2588.

Fire Prevention Week

October 6-12, 2002

'Team Up for Fire Safety' is the official theme of Fire Prevention Week 2002, and touches on three safety lessons: installing and testing home smoke alarms, practising home escape plans and hunting for home hazards.

Three Steps to a Safer Home

Have you ever asked yourself, "Is my home and family safe from fire?" Sadly, for the 101 people who died in residential fires in Ontario last year, the answer was probably "no". According to statistics from the Office of the Fire Marshal, 85% of all fire deaths occur in the home where people feel most safe and secure.

"No one should ever die in a fire," said Ontario Fire Marshal Bernard Moyle. "The vast majority of fires can be prevented with good fire safety practices and a little common sense."

The Fire Marshal urges everyone to take responsibility for fire safety in their own home by following these three simple steps:

Hunt for home hazards to prevent fires from happening in the first place. Search out dangers such as matches and lighters left within the reach of children, carelessly discarded cigarettes, objects too close to space heaters, and extension cords used as permanent wiring.

Install smoke alarms on every level of your home and outside all sleeping areas. Test your alarms at least once a month and replace the batteries every year, or when the low-battery warning chirps.

Develop and practice a home escape plan with your entire family. Everyone in the household must know at least two ways out in the event of a fire. Choose a safe meeting place outside and call the fire department from a neighbour's home.

These three steps are among the fire safety messages being promoted by fire departments throughout North America during Fire Prevention Week, October 6-12, 2002. This year's theme, Team Up for Fire Safety, encourages the entire community to rally around the cause of fire safety and prevent needless tragedies in the home.

Fire Prevention Week may last only seven days, but fire safety in your home should be a year-long event!

Rockets take team trophies

IROQUOIS — Inkerman Public School coach Peter McIntosh recruited 70 runners and reported some amazing results following the 2002 Iroquois Locks invitational cross-country meet.

Slater Koekkoek earned a gold medal, winning the Novice Boys event. teammate Stewart McKelvie finished second. Jessica Van Winden was third in the Novice Girls division. Two more members of the Rockets, Andrea Ceelen and Kathryn Smith, shared second-place honors.

The Rockets returned from Iroquois carrying the Pee Wee Girls, Novice Boys and Novice Girls team trophies. The Pee Wee bracket is for Grade 4 students while Grade 3 and under compete in the Novice division. There were also Junior (Grades 5 and 6) and Senior (Grades 7 and 8) races held.

The course was laid out along the Iroquois canal. Athletes from Grades 2, 3 and 4 ran 1.6 km while the older runners covered a distance of 2.3 km. "The kids trained and then took part in a qualifying meet right here at the school. It was amazing; 19 Grade 2 kids tried out and 15 qualified for the Dundas meet," explained McIntosh.

Meet convener, Clayton Barkley of Dixon's Corners Public School, reported the 14-school competition attracted 780 runners from an area stretching from Brockville to Osnabruck.

Merkley nets winning goal Jets knock off Canadians

OTTAWA — Defenceman Marshall Merkley pulled the trigger on the winning goal as the Metcalfe Jets knocked off the South Ottawa Canadians right in their own building.

Metcalfe coach/GM Rob Raistrick said prior to the 2002-2003 Metro/Valley Junior "B" Hockey League opener on Tues., Sept. 24, that a victory in Ottawa was paramount for the Jets.

"It was a great start. That was the game I was worried about. Both teams played like it was mid-season," noted the Jets' coach.

But the 5-4 win over South Ottawa wasn't the only win Raistrick was able to report on. The Jets went to Carleton Place on Sunday (Sept. 29) and crowned the Kings 4-2 to improve to 2-0-0.

The coach said rookie goaltender Ian Dams played a solid game against the Kings and Jason Vajda keyed the offence.

Raistrick said his team will not get the feel for home ice for some time yet. The ice will not be restored to the Larry Robinson Arena, following the Metcalfe Fair, in time for the Jets' scheduled opener on Fri., Oct. 11.

"They said they won't have the ice ready for Oct. 11 and I'm not sure when we will open. Maybe on that Sunday (Oct. 13 vs. Buckingham)," he said. "But the way we are playing on the road maybe we will stay on the road."

This week Metcalfe visits the Ottawa West Golden Knights (Thurs., Oct. 3) before travelling to Renfrew to take on the Timberwolves on Friday (Oct. 4).

"I will probably make one or two changes. Just fine tuning. We have to work on team defence. Offence is no problem for us," added the coach.

JETS 5 - SOUTH 4

Sparked by the two-goal efforts of Marshall Merkley and captain Mike Santerre, the Jets nipped the Canadians in Ottawa on Sept. 24.

Metcalfe took a 3-2 lead in the second after a scoreless first stanza. The Canadians ripped in three goals in the first three minutes of the final frame and created a 4-4 tie. Marshall Merkley pinched in from the point and cracked in a Chad Kuffner rebound with 14:36 left on the clock to decide the issue.

Rogan Butler got the start and posted the win blocking 27 shots.

Mike Santerre bagged Metcalfe's first two goals connecting from Jon Finney and Matt Blanchard at 19:44 and from Finney and Kuffner at 13:04. Merkley scored from Stephane Ethier at 4:14 of the second to make it 3-1. In the final frame Ethier scored from Jason Vajda and Mike Cerilli and Merkley won it with help provided by Kuffner.

Paddy Grant, Luc Nault, Corey Thornborn, Bryan Rweckwald and Frank Dostie counted the Canadians' goals. South Ottawa drew seven and Metcalfe six minor penalties.

JETS 4 - KINGS 2

Ian Dams took his turn in the Metcalfe goaltending rotation and back-stopped the Jets to a 4-2 victory over the Kings in Carleton Place on Sunday (Sept. 29).

The home team blasted in their two goals in the first five minutes of the match but couldn't muster another tally against Dams.

Jon Finney (from Santerre and Ethier at 9:55) cut the Jets deficit to 2-1 and Stephane Boudreault (from Vajda and Kuffner at 2:05) tied it up 2-2.

Ethier took a feed from Ben Carrriere and buried what would prove to be the winning goal with 9:04 left in period two. Vajda iced the verdict finishing off a play created by Santerre at 11:48 of period three.

Jr. Devils hang on to win opener 3-2

CORNWALL — Four games into the 2002 SD&G boys high school soccer campaign and North Dundas District High School's two squads have a single win to report.

Junior Devils coach Ian Wilson's team split their matches, losing 2-1 to the SJSS Panthers and defeating the Tagwi Warriors 3-2. The same afternoon (Tues., Sept. 24) Kevin Bell's seniors absorbed a pair of losses dropping close one-goal decisions to St. Joe's (3-2) and Tagwi (2-1).

"We dominated St. Joe's, but couldn't put the ball in the net and lost 2-0. We hit two goal posts and a couple of shots just wide. They did very well considering half of the team are first-year players," explained Wilson.

The coach reported the Devils were the better team in their second encounter and prevailed by a 3-2 count. The Devils rumbled into a 3-0 lead on Tagwi, gave up two goals in the final 10 minutes but held on for the one-goal victory.

Tyler Johnson, Jason Cattiere and Armin Kargar netted the goals and keeper Jeremy Lemieux posted the win.

SENIOR DEVILS

With their MVP and first-string keeper Alex Dyer taking part in the SD&G golf tournament, unavailable for duty, the Senior Devils conscripted Junior keeper Jason Lemieux for their match with St. Joe's.

A witness to the match Wilson reported a classic soccer game was played. A game featuring sharp passing plays and excellent positional play by both sides. "It was an amazing game. Perhaps North Dundas deserved a better result. Jeremy (Lemieux) was a little nervous playing in a senior game but did a good job."

Mike Berends and Devon Hakvoort counted the North Dundas markers while Brad Flipsen bagged all three of the Panthers' goals.

Dyer was able to join the Devils for the Tagwi match and back the Devils to a solid first half. Fatigue seemed to set in as the Warriors rallied for a 2-1 victory. Derek Vingerhoeds was the lone North Dundas played to put the ball in the back of the opposition's net.

COMING UP

The Devils will open their home season today (Wed., Oct. 2) when they play host to the Char-Lan Crusaders, Seaway Spartans and Glengarry Gaels. On Thurs., Oct. 10 North Dundas and Seaway will host teams representing La Citadelle/SLHS and CCVS/GVSS.

Pee Wee 'AA' Kings split games

CORNWALL — The Rideau St Lawrence Kings "AA" Minor Pee-Wee's opened their 2002-2003 ODMHA season splitting a pair of games.

On Saturday (Sept. 21) Tommy Allen blocked 46 shots but the Kings were still whitewashed 6-0 by the Ottawa Sting. On Sunday (Sept. 22) the Kings downed Seaway Valley in Cornwall 6-1. Kyle Pattemore led the way putting a pair of goals, while Jay Keller, Brett Jackson, Scott Sommers and Doug Utting rounded out the scoring. Justin Seguin played a solid game between the pipes.

On Sat., Sept. 28, the Kings played Nepean and dropped a 5-1 decision. Michael Skakum scored the lone goal for the Kings, with the assist going to Jay Keller.

The next day (Sept. 29) the Kings travelled to Ottawa and played Cumberland to a 1-1 draw. They opened the scoring in the first period with four seconds remaining. Michael Skakum was the goal scorer with Marc Roy getting the assist. That goal stood up until 6:28 in the third period when Cumberland tied the game. Both goaltenders played shut-out hockey the rest of the way. Justin Seguin was solid in the Kings' goal.

Kings next action is 8:00 pm in Kanata, Thurs. Oct. 4.

Patriotes dismantle Devils

CORNWALL — Prior to their opening game of the 2002 SD&G girls high school basketball campaign, North Dundas coaches Jevon Groves and Peter Onstien knew they would face steep odds trying to knock off the powerful ESLC Patriotes in their own gymnasium.

As it turned out, those odds were insurmountable. The powerful Senior Patriots, defending SD&G and EOSSAA "AA" champions, are looking to return to the provincial championship again this year, in spite of losing three top players. Last year they won two games at OFSAA before being eliminated in the quarter-final round.

La Citadelle ran up a 32-3 half-time lead on the Senior Devils and cruised to a 64-23 victory. Isabelle Ainslie's 16 points topped the Pats scoring parade. North Dundas received eight-point efforts from Danielle Quesnel and Emily Vingerhoeds.

North Dundas' Junior Devils didn't fare much better having to absorb a 57-5 loss.

NDHS athletic director Ian Wilson noted that country school such as North Dundas just can't compete against programs like ESLC who dominate basketball and volleyball because they play those sports on a year-round basis. "Most of their teams play together for five years, summer and winter. We have to put a team together in a couple of weeks. Each year we know which schools will be the strongest."

Because of ESLC's student population, the Pats are designated as "A" division team and only have to get passed Tagwi and Char-Lan to qualify for EOSSAA. St. Joe's is a "AAA" rated school and CCVS a "AAAA" school, meaning they will have to go out of SD&G to qualify for provincial playoff status.

With a population of 950, NDDHS is ranked as a "AA" school, which considerably thins the field of opponents standing between the Devils and a trip to EOSSAA.

The Devils opened their home season yesterday (Tues., Oct. 1) hosting "AAAA" SSVC/SLHS. Next week (Tues., Oct. 8) the "AA" Spartans from Seaway District High will pay a visit to North Dundas.

Seaway Spartans girls team finishes third in golf tourney

CORNWALL — Amanda Annable, playing for the Seaway District High School Spartans, carded the winning low gross score of the day and topped the day to earn status as the top golfer in the girls division of the 2002 Stormont Dundas and Glengarry high school golf tournament.

Annable carded a 50 over nine holes to take the title. She also teamed up with Meagan Whitteker who shot a 60 and Joanna Gilmer turned in an 80 as the Spartans finished second in the girls rankings. The Glengarry Gaels topped the team standings used a pair of low gross 57 scores to capture the team title. The Char-Lan Crusaders finished third with a 67 being their lowest total.

Convenor Doug Wereley reported the numbers for this year's event were up as was the level of competition. He also noted most SD&G schools entered teams and the field included 48 boys and 18 girls who played Cornwall Golf and Country Club course. He said it is a fun day but also competitive day and gives the competitors to take part in a sport they can play the rest of their lives.

The Vankleek Hill Collegiate Institute Cougars turned in the top score of 336 in the boys division. Jordan Burwash's 78 was tops on the championship squad.

Lead by Nicholas Timmers, who carded the boy's low gross title with an 18-hole total of 75, the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers finished second to the Cougars. Stephane Quenneville shot a 77 and led his La Citadelle Patriot's into third place at 347.

NORTH DUNDAS

NDHS sent seven players to the event. Alex Dyer, Colin Shane, Kurtis Barkley and Rory Clement formed the boys squad while Courtney Barkley, Jennie Simpson and Sharon Corkery composed the girls entry. Ray Bougie coached the teams.

Paced by Courtney Barkley, who turned in the second low gross score of the day, the North Dundas girls finished fourth of six schools. Kurtis Barkley carded the Devils best score, an 86, and helped the boys to an eighth-place finish in a field of 13 schools.

Tryouts

Winchester Public School teacher-coach Gerry McBain supervised several intra-squad matches during the process of selecting a team for the 2002 Dundas County junior boys soccer championship. The girls tournament will be hosted by WPS and the boys event by Morrisburg Public. Both competitions are slated for Wed., Oct. 16.

The Inkerman Public School Rockets ran away with "B" Division honors earning 73 points. Algonquin (58), St. Joseph's - Prescott (54), Dixon's Corners (37), Morrisburg (36), St. Mary's - Morrisburg (36) and St. Mary's - Chesterville (36) rounded out the standings.

Atom Kings suffer early losses

MAXVILLE — An 8-2 loss to the Seaway Valley Rapids in Maxville stretched the Rideau St. Lawrence "AA" Atom Kings losing string to two games. The 2002-2003 ODMHA campaign began with a 6-3 setback at the hands of the Ottawa Valley Titans.

Goalies Tyler Gallinger and Michael Lalonde anchor the Kings defence. Other members of the team include Jayson Harmer, Russell Hinch, Ryan Vincent, Eric Morotti, Cameron Armstrong, Jordan Moran, Lance Hodgson, Ronald Harrison, Cody Johnson, Curtis Van Allen, Josh Pitt, Michael McGahey, Derek Froats, and Lee Charlebois. The coach is Mike Vincent and his assistant is Ritchie Pitt. Mike Moran is the trainer and Kelly Vincent the manager.

The Atom Kings warmed up with a few exhibition games and then began the season on Sept. 21 against the Ottawa Valley Titans. The start of the first period was exciting with a Titans goal being answered by Kings' Cody Johnson who scored from Jayson Harmer. Unfortunately, the Titans managed to pot a pair before the second. Early in the second, Lance Hodgson passed off to Ryan Vincent who counted his team's second tally.

Titans 8

Third period got off with a good start with Jayson Harmer (from Johnson and Ron Harrison) putting another shot behind the Titans netminder. Goalie Michael Lalonde took the heat well and came up with some solid glove saves. Game ended 6-3 for the Titans.

The next day saw the Kings meet Seaway Valley Rapids in Maxville. The Rapids started strong and pumped in four goals. The Kings hung in there and managed to put one past the Seaway goalie with only a couple minutes left in the second. Cody Johnson was right where he should be when Derek Froats and Jayson Harmer set up the play. The Kings squeezed another goal through a strong Rapids defence when Josh Pitt assisted by Ryan Vincent connected. Goalie Tyler Gallinger worked between the pipes. Final score, 8-2 for the Rapids.

Keeping Health In Mind

"Keeping Health In Mind" is a monthly newspaper column made possible with the help of the Lannin Business Centre, the Winchester Press and the clinical staff of Tri-County Mental Health Services, a community program of the Cornwall General Hospital.

Emotional Well being - Challenge and Outcomes

Last year at this time we talked about coping with the emotional reactions to the terrorist tragedy in the United States. The research supported that the natural recovery would be strong and that the psychological outcome for most communities (Staab, Foa and Friedman) would be resilience of the human spirit and not mental health problems. How have we coped emotionally with the disaster? Dr. William C. Menninger suggests that "seven yardsticks" can be used to measure emotional well being as we experience day-to-day life and are confronted by situations that affect our emotional health.

FACE REALITY: Face and accept the world we live in. Learn to accept frustration with grace and a sense of security to tolerate delays in gaining satisfaction. This implies having the ability to avoid taking flight or fighting when faced with difficult realities and making compromises.

ADAPT TO CHANGE: Daily life brings new experiences, opportunities and challenges that require adaptation. The nature of our world is change. To grow and mature throughout life stages – from birth to life's end – we are required to change, adjust and adapt.

CONTROL ANXIETIES: When conflict arises between reality and our perception, tension and anxiety result. Anxiety is part of the human condition and can be understood and strategies used to reduce and control it.

GIVE OF YOURSELF: Consider how you can contribute giving of your time and energy to others.

CONSIDER OTHERS: Getting along with others requires the ability and maturity to give and the capacity to relate to others with sincerity, honesty, fairness and dependability.

CURB HOSTILITY: Emotion can cause destructive and aggressive impulses. Hostile energy can be directed into creative and constructive acts.

LEARN TO CARE: The most important standard is having the capacity to love – caring. It is the ideal from which true happiness comes. Love is the neutralizing agent for hate.

The events of last September 11, 2001, challenged our capacity to cope and continue on with daily life. As individuals we were forced to face the realities of the tragedy and adapt to the changes it imposed. We learned to control our anxieties and we gave to each other and our communities. We took others into consideration and were witness to what uncurbed hostility can produce. We demonstrated the capacity to love and care beyond our communities demonstrating that through adversity, emotional well being can be strengthened and resilience endures.
