Lions' Attendance Increases

Lions Club members increased their attendance at the regular bi-monthly dinner meeting with 82 per cent attendance recorded. The club was host to nine members of the 4-H Tractor Club, along with the club leader Harold Millar, Brinston, and the County's Assistant Agricultural Representative, Raymond Smith, Morrisburg.

The 4-H Club is partially sponsored by the Lions Club, in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture.

President K. Kirkby welcomed the guests to the dinner meeting and called on Harold Millar to introduce the 4-H club members. One of the members, Alex Scott, later voiced the club's appreciation to the Lions for their sponsorship.

The meeting was one of the most lively the members have enjoyed, with Tail Twister, Ernest Jackson stirring up enough infractions to "fine" most members. Several Lions brought guests with them, who were introduced to the membership.

Raymond Smith, guest speaker for the evening, gave the audience an idea of the problems facing farmers in Dundas County, pointing out the high percentage of milk cows per capita in the County and the drainage problems facing many areas. The speaker was introduced by the president and thanked by Lion, Harry Gilmer.

Jack Saver thanked the ladies of the United Church Senior W.A. who catered. Draw winners were W. E. Fitzsimmons, Ronald Fader and John Jones.

At a directors' meeting following the dinner, the club voted $25.00 towards the C.N.I.B. campaign.

Several members are to attend a Lions Zone meeting at Cornwall Wednesday night and a meeting of the District Board, Crippled Children's Society, at Alexandria on Thursday night.

Students in the various grades first wrote the essay and the best of these, 33 in all, were handed to the judges for final decision. Prizes consisted of Bibles, $5.00 dictionaries and $4.00 dictionaries.

The contest was directed by Rev. Wm. Sutherland, chairman of the Legion's special education committee.

Reach Agreement Landscaping Controversial "Point Iroquois"

On November 7, 1885, a group of bearded, frock-coated, beaver-hatted, Canadian Pacific officers and directors, surrounded by railway engineers and trackworkers, gathered in the chilly mist of Eagle Pass at Craigellachie, British Columbia, to watch the driving of the spike that completed Canada's first transcontinental railway. Historians say that Lord Strathcona's hammer-taps were literally heard around the world, since the linking of the rails at Craigellachie fulfilled the terms of Confederation, making Canada at last truly a nation "from sea unto sea". In Montreal, N.R. Crump, president of today's Canadian Pacific, commenting on the 75th anniversary of the event, said: "While on this historic occasion we pay homage to the great figures of the past—the men who built Canada's first transcontinental railway—it should not be forgotten that it was their vision of the future which laid the economic foundations of nationhood and also established the basis of the world-wide transportation enterprise of Canadian Pacific today". Canadian Pacific has grown in the seven and a half decades since Craigellachie into an integrated transportation system of 85,000 route miles serving Canada and the world by land, sea and air.

Washrooms, Signs, In Plans

Several weeks of negotiations between Iroquois and Matilda Township Councils and by Mrs. Jean Casselman, M.P., with the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority resulted in an agreement to do further work on Point Iroquois. The Authority agreed to smooth the unsightly appearance of the mounds of earth on The Point, apply top soil and plant grass and groupings of shrubs to improve the general appearance of the whole area.

The work will be done over a period of years, with each stage to be completed in full each year.

The meeting was held last Wednesday afternoon in the Iroquois Council Chambers.

Attending from the Matilda Council were Reeve M. Zeron, Councillors W. Cooper, D. Merkley, J. Milligan, J. Wells and Clerk Mrs. D. Locke; from Seaway Authority, President Mr. R. J. Rankin, Mr. Burnside, Mr. T. McCaffroy and two other representatives; Mrs. Jean Casselman M.P. Grenville-Dundas; from the Iroquois Council Reeve L. C. Davis and Councillors B. J. Saver, H. A. Gilmer, A. E. Kirby and C. H. VanCamp.

Reeve L.C. Da[illegible] over the meeting, which was held to arrive at an agreement with the Seaway Authority regarding work to be done at Iroquois Point.

Assurance was given by representatives of the Seaway Authority that the mounds of earth north of the "Point" road would be reduced, but not removed or graded to the level of the road. The incline will be sharper then on the south side of the road.

The overall plan is to smooth the unsightly appearance and soften the general contour; then apply top soil, seed and plant groupings of shrubs.

Members of the two councils present, suggested that since money was not available to complete the works in one operation, that it be divided so that whatever portion was undertaken, could be fully completed, then the next portion started the following year, with the work to start immediately west of what is locally known as the "Queen's Road."

Complicating the operation is the Ontario Hydro property within this area. The Seaway Authority requested the Iroquois Council to meet with Ontario Hydro and make an arrangement with them to asume their proportion of the cost of the operation, since the removal of trees is necessary from the Whittle Orchard, along with fill in hollows, etc.

If Ontario Hydro complies and assumes their percentage of cost, the whole area will be landscaped over a period of years; thus eliminating an unsightly scar left from seaway excavations.

It was also confirmed that the Seaway Authority would construct wash rooms and erect road signs designating the route to the Iroquois Dam and Locks.

The Council were informed that the Seaway Authority was awaiting permission from the Department of Highways to erect these road signs.

Assurance was given that work on this project would commence as soon as weather permitted in the Spring of 1961.

The event is planned to coincide with Education Week being observed in the province. In the public school the children were shown films as an educational "extra" to mark the special week.

First County Safety Council Banquet

The first banquet of the Dundas County Farm Safety Council, on November 2nd, was a very successful event. Brinston Community Hall was filled to capacity and a splendid turkey dinner was served by the ladies of Matilda Women's Institute.

The banquet was held in appreciation of the services of the farm accident reporters in the recent accident survey. Reporters attended as guests of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Murray K. Rowe, Department of Transport, Ottawa, the guest speaker, was introduced by Mrs. Harry Allison, Chesterville. To think about safety, stated Mr. Rowe, is not enough unless the thinking is followed up by definite action. He cautioned farmers to be particularly cautious when entering roadways with tractors. When a car and tractor are involved in an accident, the chance of death or serious injury is 18 times as great for the tractor driver than it is for the car driver.

Mr. Byron Martin, President of the Dundas County Farm Safety Council was chairman of the banquet programme and gave a brief outline of the activities of the Safety Council. 5,000 safety book covers and 1,000 pamphlets have been distributed to school children, 1,000 Ride Alone stickers for tractors and 2,000 hazard tags were given to 4-H members. Every farm family has been mail a bulletin on accidents and safety in Dundas County. In addition monthly advertisements are placed in five papers.

E. K. Pearson, Agricultural Representative, expressed the thanks of the Ontario Department of Agriculture to reporters, and to sponsors. He expressed particular appreciation to the Dundas Federation of Agriculture for their aid.

During the evening some very enjoyable musical numbers were provided by Mrs. Donald Cross, Chesterville and George and Lyle Barkley, Iroquois. The programme concluded with a movie called ,Magic Highway U.S.A. showing means of travel from early days to far into the future.

Hunters Go Forth

Hunters are going forth this week on an annual trek to prove their superiority over deer and bear; armed with weapons and loaded with food.

Many hunting parties start out as happy as a Sunday School picnic — and many end in tragedy.

It has been said many, many times before but it can bear repeating—"Be Careful" and be sure that what you're aiming your gun at, is not another human happy hunter.

The same bullet that brings down a deer can do the same thing to a man —only the consequences are much more extreme.

Remember Them Today

They gave their lives that others might live.

In two World Wars and the Korean conflict and serving their country and the free world, men of Canada, and women of Canada, have given their lives in the service of their country and fellow man.

Today, in the disquieting atmosphere of an unsettled world, the 11th of November, 1960, brings with it memories of these Canadians who laid down their lives. It brings back to mind the fact that there are still thousands of men and women suffering the pains of war, many of them permanently hospitalized, many deprived of limbs and healthy bodies. We not only remember the dead, we must recall the unselfish acts of those who came back from war; those who will carry until death the scars of battle and those who came home unscathed.

As the years slip on, it appears that the "cold war" has not in the least thawed; what the 60's will bring is anyone's guess. Yet we must look forward; reminisce of by-gone years we may but we cannot live those years over. Our foremost thoughts and aspirations should dwell on what we can do with the years ahead. It is at a time such as Remembrance Day that we can reflect on our past mistakes and promise ourselves to do our utmost to help make this a better world in which to live. We owe this, and much more, to those who served us to the death, and we owe it to the living not to forget what they have done for us and see that their every need is met and they are not wanting.

Services will be held here on Sunday, November 13th, and it is to be desired that every person, young or old, take the time to display their gratitude in remembrance by their participation.

When Sunday Was Sabbath

A newspaper story relating to the Harmsworth motorboat trophy race noted that one of the conditions in the awards was that there be no contest on a Sunday. The trophy was originally awarded by the then Sir Alfred Harmsworth, who became Lord Northcliffe, and is an interesting throwback to the days when Sunday was the Sabbath.

Today Sunday apparently is the day when any secular activity is approved by the majority of the public. It is a day for the washing of cars, although most people are on a five-day week and have Saturdays for such chores if they wish.

In Fergus, a Scottish community in Ontario, it was a sin sixty years ago, if not now, for anyone to ride a bicycle on the Sabbath. Reading was permitted, but frivolous things, such as a Victorian novel, were frowned upon.

Recently a front-seat passenger with big-city taxidriver was informed that the driver preferred to work on Sundays and have another day off because on Sunday there was "nothing to do." When the passenger suggested mildly that there were church services, some of them interesting, a look of astonishment spread over the driver's face and if he had not been expert in his work, he probably would have run the car over the curb.

The blue Sunday of a couple of generations ago was undoubtedly too severe, but the secularism of today is to be deplored also. There ought to be a middle ground where people who wish a quiet Sunday can have it without listening to the power mowers in the suburbs or having their eyes offended by a display of the family wash in the city or country. ## Good News On "Point"

A front page story this week outlines the details of plans for long-disputed Point Iroquois. There now is an indication that The Point may be restored in some measure to a more appealing sight.

Iroquois' interest in The Point, is of course, as much alive as that of the Township of Matilda, in whose boundaries it appears. The Village of Iroquois, as a whole, benefits considerably from tourist traffic and a more pleasant attraction on The Point will definitely add to the tourists' interest in our area. This in turn may lead others to visit here. Most monies spent in the area by tourists will benefit Iroquois more than it will Matilda, and hence the strong interest here.

Matilda Council, however, look upon The Point much as we do—not only for the monetary gains but from the beauty which such an area can provide. In addition, this same beauty can be an attraction generally, towards people wanting to live in the area. In its own way The Point is an attraction which cannot be disputed.

There have been many letters and hot words pass over the table before the Seaway Authority made any definite commitment and the work of many people went into bringing out the final result.

Iroquois and Matilda Councils and Mrs. Jean Casselman, M.P., along with an understanding and symathetic interest by Mr. R. J. Rankin, Seaway Authority President, brought about a plan agreeable to the people of this area. It is a long-range plan and one which, we anticipate, will bring the residents of this area a little closer to the new "Point Iroquois". We cannot recapture the tranquility that was once The Point, but it is good to see that some aspect of the old is still with us.

Any time now that poor road super in Matilda will be getting his regular Fall calls about this road repair and that. Spring and Fall brings its headaches to the rural roads departments and it's a sure bet this area is no different from any other. Maybe they'll nick-name him "Pot Hole Pete", given half a chance. It's all in fun anyway.

You've probably heard that old joke about a couple of fellows looking up in the air (at nothing) and pretty soon they had quite a few others doing the same thing, while they walked off laughing. We pulled a pretty good variation of the same thing not long ago. A friend called us to tell us that the "northern lights" were beautiful. There was a good TV show on but we called a few neighbours and had them go out to look for us, so that we could see the end of the program.

This Santa Claus deal coming up for the youngsters on December 10th seems to be working into quite an event. It could be that the day will be a real success and carry on year after year. These are the kind of things our town needs. We hope, too, that parents in Matilda and the surrounding townships and villages will bring their youngsters into the community to see Santa come swooping in by helicopter.

A parade to go along with the day is coming along well, we hear, and any who wish to enter a float on the Christmas theme, should contact George Jackson, parade chairman, at OL 2-4405.

The floats need not be too elaborate. . . .after all, all that anyone is concerned with, is having a good time. . . . youngsters and parents alike.

The Ontario Safety League reminds hunters that they are the guests of the farmer or landowner over whose fields and forests they hunt. Get the consent of the owner before starting to hunt. Take care not to break down fences, trample crops or injure stock. Thoughtless and inconsiderate hunters are responsible for "No Hunting" signs.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

It made my blood boil to see Tronto critics picking on Marlene Dietrich when that lovely creature graced Hogtown recently with her theatrical presence. They made the brillant discovery that Marlene can't sing, and annoyed her with puerile questions about being a grandmother.

Of course she can't sing and never could. But she can make the skin crawl on the back of your neck with that husky snarl. And grandmother or not, there is more sex appeal in one long look from above those haunting cheekbones, one twist of that heartbroken smile, than in all your strutting, hip-wigling pouter pigeons of half her age.

Perhaps I'm a little warped on the subject of Miss Dietrich. She was the first women in my life, the first member of the opposite sex who made me realize there was more than one sex. I was ten years old at the time.

Don't tell me you can't fall in love at ten. Perhaps that is the only age at which your love is completely selfless, utterly pure and absolutely undemanding. I didn't even expect her to marry me. I knew she wouldn't marry any ten-year-old kid. All I wanted to do was think about her and nurse my pain to myself.

It happened at a movie. I was a young devil for going to matinees. In those days they had them twice a week, after school, as well as the usual Saturday show.

I had been threatened with everything from the children's aid to the reformatory; I had been licked several times; my mother had given personal orders to the theatre manager that I was not to be allowed in, and still I went to the matinee every time I could find enough empty bottles to raise the price. I'd arrive home about 6.40 p.m., my inner glow from the movie a buttress against the outer glow I would have shortly on my butt.

At any rate, I fell for Dietrich in a movie called Morocco, about the Foreign Legion, in which she appeared with Gary Cooper. I didn't realize it at the time, but Miss Dietrich had the role of a women of ill repute. I thought she just worked in this bar, maybe as a singer or something.

She sang, in that whiskey tenor of hers, and I was enchanted. She smiled, that rueful, knowing smile, and I turned to molasses. She winked, that naughty wink, and I twisted my hands until my fingers cracked. She smoked with that mysterious elegance, and my heart leaped painfully within me.

I thought I would burst with pride and devotion when the picture ended with her forsaking her job at the casino to follow Gary into the desert. The last shot showed her, barefoot in the sand, dragging a goat as she struck off after the Legion, with the other women camp-followers. I can't describe the gallantry with which she threw back her hair and gave a splendid, brave smile as the desert wind struck in her face. Nor can I convey the misery with which I realized she thought so much of that big jerk, Cooper.

For about three months, I was literraly sick with love. My mother thought I had some disease, because I wouldn't eat. She was convinced of it when I stopped going to matinees. How can a boy of 10 tell his mother he is desperately in love with a movie actress?

Oh, I had a good many affairs after that. There was a neighbor girl who used to catch me and kiss me heartily every time we played Run Sheep, Run. That ended when she pushed me out of a haymow one day, just for fun, and I broke my ankle. Then there was a brief episode with the French teacher when I was in high school. This came to a climax when I kissed her up in an apple tree, one gladsome day in spring. I thought I'd never get out of that apple tree.

And there was a Brazillian girl I met at college. She couldn't speak any English. By the time I'd taught her the language and she could say "park bench" and "kiss me, daddy" with the best of them, I'd missed so many lectures I handn't a hope of passing my year, so I patriotically joined the air force.

There were lots of girls after that: in England, France, Belgium. Some of these affairs were sweet, some bitter. I even asked one of them to marry me, but I was too late. She'd just accepted a proposal from another Canadian who had a big country place in Canada. It was big, and it was in the country: 200 acres of stone and swamp in norther Ontario.

Then, of course, and I know you think I'm just putting this in for self-protection, and how right you are, there was the BIG love of my life when I met the Old Battleaxe and started hewing my way through the domestic jungle. Since then the only other girl I've kissed, except the odd one on New Year's Eve, has been my wife's daughter.

I guess, all told, I've been in love about 12 to 20 times. But it never again had the impact of that first, swooning, searing sickness over Dietrich. And that's why, Marlene, if the crude remarks of those Toronto critics bothered you feel free to call me. My ardor may have cooled and I may not be quite as pure as I was 30 years ago, and you may have become a grandmother in the meantime, but by George, you're still the most beautiful, glamorous, mysterious woman I ever fell in love with. I wish you were MY grandmother.

'Drink strong enough, sir?"

If you have visitors in your home, write them down and send them in to The Post.

Canning, A French Invention

Natural ice as a preservative has been in use for hundreds of year, but the first modern means of preserving food, canning, dates from the early 1800's. The Book of Knowledge names Francois Appart, a French chemist, as the inventor.

Mongolian Conquest short-Lived

When the hordes of mounted warriors from Mongolia poured across Asia and as far as Central Europe in the 13th Century, their empire included more territory than any other the world has known. But, as the Book of Knowledge points out, this vast empire collapsed nearly as suddenly as it had arisen, falling to pieces early in the 14th Century.

Canada's Highest Peaks

The three highest mountains in Canada are all in Yukon Territory. The Book of Knowledge lists them as Mount Logan, 19,850 feet; Mount St. Elias, 18,008 feet; and Mount Lucania, Buffalo Bill Once A Mail Carrier 17,150 feet.

The famous Pony Express, a private enterprise formed to carry mail overland to California, was active about 100 years ago. But completion of the telegraph diminshed the need for the service. The Book of Knowledge mentions that it began with over 400 horses and 75 riders, amongst whom was "Buffalo Bill", Colonel Willam F. Cody.

Imperial Woodpecker

A Woodpecker common in and around Venezuala is the Bonaparte woodpecker. According to the Book of Knowledge it was named after Napoleon's nephew, Lucien Bonaparte, who was a famous students of birds.

Suggest OPP Notify Farmers When Fence Down From Accident

A resolution requesting that Provincial Police be required to notify the farmer immediately when a fence on his property is broken as a result of a highway acident, was passed at the October meeting of the Dundas Farm Safety Council. The members felt that such action would make it possible for the farmer to move his cattle to another pasture thus preventing them from escaping through the broken fence and being responsible for another accident.

The Council met in the Community Hall at Brinston. The meeting was chaired by Mr. Byron Martin assisted by the secretary, Mr. E. K. Pearson.

The resgnation of Miss Ruth Harper, who represented Mountain Township, was read and accepted. Council members expressed their regrets that Miss Harper is in ill health at the present time.

Plans were made for the delegates—Mrs. Graham Wells, Ray Brown, Mrs. H. Allison, Mr. Allan Farlinger and Mr. B. Martin, to attend the Zone Convention at Kemptville.

In addition to making final plans for the Safety Banquet, each director was asked to come to the next directors' meeting with a list of road hazards existing in his community or county.

If Grade A Medium are selling for less than this, they are the better buy. If one-quarter of the price of Grade A Large is subtracted from list price and Grade A Small are selling for less, they are the better buy.

Shanly Community Saddened In Passing of Royal M. Froom

ROYAL MILTON FROOM

Shanly community was saddened this past week by the passing, on Tuesday, Nov.1, of Royal Froom, in a Brockville Hospital, where he had been a patient for the past three months. He was in his 76th year.

Mr. Froom was born in Shanly, son of the late Albert Froom and Adeline Weston, and had lived in Shanly all his life.

In 1908 he married Muriel Murdock, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clark Murdock.

He received his education at the local schools, and followed the occupation of farmer.

Of a quiet unassuming nature, Mr. Froom brought each new personality he met into his ever widening circle of friends, who were deeply sorrowed on learning of his passing.

He was an elder of the United Church, a regular attendant at church and Sunday school, a valued member of the choir for nearly sixty years and a member of the former double male quartette.

The funeral service was held on Friday, Nov. 4, at 2 p.m., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Arnold Pitt, with the student minister, Mr. Keith Whitney, officiating.

Left to mourn his passing besides his wife are two daughters, Mrs. Gordon Gilmer (Hilda) and Mrs. Arnold Pitt (Dorothy), both of Shanly; three grandsons, Carl Gilmer, of Kingston; Keith Gilmer, of Kemptville, and Wayne Pitt, of Shanly and three great-grandsons and one greatgranddaughter. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Rufus Froom, of Ottawa, and one brother, Edgerton Froom, of Kemptville, besides nieces and nephews.

The numerous floral tributes, W.M.S. and Bible Society donations gave mute evidence of the high esteem in which he was held.

The pallbearers were Braynard Holmes, J. Wolthousin, Charlie Thorpe, H. B. Johston, J. Wallace and T. C. Reilly.

Interment was in Shanly cemetery.

Minutes of the 1959 meeting were read and several official appointments were made. It was decided that the next and final Rally would be held in Winchester in 1961.

Mrs. William Forward, delegate to the School for Church Women, held in Stanstead, Que., in her very interesting report mentioned it was the most largely attended one since organized.

Mrs. K. Henderson, Prebyterial Literature Secretary, introduced several new books which were available. The offering was received and dedicated by members of the Elma Society.

Mrs. H. VanAllen, Branch president, outlined the events of the year as discussed at the Dominion Board meeting held in Toronto in May, and was most appreciative of having been a Commissioner at the General Council of the United Church held in Edmonton in September with 377 persons attending. Mrs. VanAllan was very informative concerning the new organization, "The United Church Women," which will originate in January 1962.

Mrs. H. Adams, Presbyterial vice president, brought greetings and fittingly closed the morning session. Dinner was served in the church hall by the members of the Morewood W. M. S.

"Growth" was the theme chosen for the afternoon worship service by Mrs. Eldon Fennell and Miss Ellice Smith of Winchester.

The highlights of the afternoon session was the very interesting address given by the guest speaker, Miss H. Baxter, a retired missionary teacher from 38 years of active service in India. Attired in a sari, she described the customs of the people and related many personal experiences. Miss Baxter was introduced by Mrs. VanAllen and thanked by Mrs. W. S. L. Merrill.

Members of the Chesterville Auxiliary received the offering and Mrs. Hyndman McMillan reported for the Courtesy Committee.

The closing thoughts based on the Scripture verse "Put off thy shoes from thy feet, for the place whereon thou standest is holy ground," were given by Mrs. H. Adams, who closed the meeting with the Benediction.

Library News

The young people are the lucky ones this week. Nine new books have arrived, all juvenile.

Although "Nine Miles High, Two Miles Deep" by Alan Honour would be of special interest to boys in their teens, it is the kind of book all ages may enjoy. It is the true story of Augusta and Jean Felix Picard, their experiments in the stratosphere and the adaptation of the same principles to exploration beneath the ocean. Illustrated with line drawings and actual photographs of stratospheric balloons and the bathyscape used in their adventures it is alluring as well as informative.

"Madeleine Takes Command" by Ethel C. Brill is the true and thrilling story of Madeleine de Vercheres and her two brothers, who, with a garrison of only seven people defended their home fort against the Indians.

"Ride With the Sun" contains Folk tales and stories from all countries of the United Nations.

"Danny Dunn on the Ocean Floor" is a hilarious but very scientific and dangerous adventure on the ocean floor. As with all the earlier Danny Dunn stories boys and girls will laugh as they learn with Danny Dunn.

For those a little younger are five delightful well-illustrated story books: "The Kangaroo in the Attic," "The Elephant and the Flea", "A Garden We Planted Together", "The Trees on the Road to Turntown", and "God Loves You", a collection of favorite stories and prayers by Catharine Marshall, author of "A Man Called Peter".

HOW NORMAL ARE YOU?

To find out how things are with most people, psychologist and sociologists have been conducting countless surveys and studies. A scientific yardstick in this week's Star Weekly shows how closely your ideas and attitudes agree with those of most people around you. For instance, do you hate work? If you do, don't worry say the experts. It's normal to be unenthusiastic about irksome chores and tedious jobs, but if you're allergic to work that's something else again.

If you feel that you are underpaid, that's quite normal, says The Star Weekly article. National surveys conducted by the Office of Public Opinion Research at Princeton show that over two-thirds of the people feel they aren't being paid as much as they should be.

Readers can compare their own attitudes with these and other questions and answers in this interesting Star Weekly feature article.

Posting of Private Lands Increasing In Eastern Ontario

The amount of private land posted against trespass in Southern Ontario is increasing every year. Until recently, this has not been a problem in Eastern Ontario, but for the past several years posting of private lands has been greatly accelerated.

Except for the posting against common trespass of properties near population centres, such as Ottawa, most properties have been posted by parties solely interested in deer hunting.

Land owners who hunt deer on their own land do some posting, but in some areas at least, a good deal of posting is done by deer hunting parties who approach land owners and obtain permission to place signs on their properties. In many such instances the land owner himself has no intention of posting his land and only gives permission to post because he knows the hunters or because his neighbour's lands are signed.

We have no quarrel with deer hunting groups who obtain permission to post property during the deer hunt. We would like to bring to the attention of our deer hunters, however, several aspects of this posting which appear rather unfair. One is the fact that most, if not all, "permissive" posting is done solely to protect deer hunting territory, and in this district the deer season runs for only 4, 6, or 12 days, depending on the area; -yet many no trespassing signs are put up in early September, and many remain up for the whole year! We wonder why land should be posted for long periods of time, when groups are only interested in protecting their deer hunting. Many deer hunters do not take the trouble to remove signs after the deer season even though they would permit rabbit, waterfowl or fox hunting.

Deer hunters, is it really fair to prevent legitimate partridge, woodcock, duck, rabbit and fox hunters, or the person who would like to walk in the woods, from enjoying themselves- - just so that you may have protection during your deer hunt?

Would it not be more reasonable to post properties the week-end before the deer season opens, and to remove your signs at the season's close?

We Canadians probably consider that we have as much or more freedom in our activities as people in any other country of the world; but have we? Take the family who wants to go for an enjoyable walk in the woods in October. In the settled areas of Ontario, this family may well be greeted by such signs as "Keep Out", "Trespassing Prohibited" or "Trespassers Will Be Prosecuted". In Sweden, however there are no prohibitive signs; a Swede may walk anywhere, or camp for 24 hours, anywhere in Sweden, as long as he does not interfere with the landowners's activities, or does not damage property. Qualified Swedish hunters may hunt anywhere, as long as they ask permission of the land owner.

Some Canadian land owners have posted their property against hunting because they either hunt themselves, or hunters have been inconsiderate of their hunting privileges. This type of posting will continue in intensity and hunters must realize that only through their consideration of the land owner's rights will hunting continue. Good farmer-hunter relationships must be maintained if this type of posting is to be kept at a minimum. Our deer hunters must also show some consideration for others; otherwise the second type of posting—by the hunters themselves - will effectively prevent the enjoyment of our countryside by a great many people.

4-H FORESTRY CLUB

The Kemptville District scored again when we secured a first and third prize in these well-represented trials at Guelph, Ontario, on October 21st, 1960. First place went to the Grenville County Club of Kemptville, coached by Alf Campbell, while the Almonte Club of Lanark County, dropped from first place last year, to third place this year, under the coaching of the writer. (Next year, it will be different!)

Although this was my first year at 4-H Forestry Club work, I realized the competitors had to be "on the ball". The instruction received during regular club meetings, plus the many tricks used by we foresters in indentifying the southern hardwoods, plus a lot of grilling, plus deep interest by the team, is the only formula to use.

A victory banquet was held on Friday evening at the Ontario Agricultural College, with well over five hundred in attendance. The winning teams were announced and presented with their respective trophies. The 4-H Forestry Club trophy, donated by the Ontario Conservation Council, was presented to the winning team by Professor D. V. Love, Vice-President of the Council.

This trophy is an entirely new and very appropriate memento made from woods from most of Ontario's trees. It symbolizes our objectives far better than brass and cold steel.

We will be glad to have one of our Club's names on it next year.
