L.I.P. GRANT STILL UNDER CONSIDERATION

Could This Little Fellow Get Rabies?

Although the cute little fellow has undying confidence in his master and would hurt no one, he could by a cruel stroke of fate, become the carrier of a deadly disease.

Although according to Department of Agriculture officials at Kemptville there has been no noticeable upswing in the incidence of Rabies in either Grenville or the United Counties, the tale is much grimer in the Ottawa-Carleton region.

The Kemptville spokesman did say that there have been reports of rabid foxes being sighted in the Oxford Mills and Hallville area but no steps have been taken to set up anti-rabies vaccine clinics.

Osgoode Township Reeve Dr. W.A. Taylor, however, expressed some concern and it was learned Tuesday that a clinic will be set up at the Township garage, Metcalfe on the evening of Tuesday , March 21st, between the hours of 7:00 and 9:00.

Since February and March are the most dangerous months for spread of the disease in foxes, dogs often become victims. For this reason dog owners should not allow dogs to run at large even in the rural areas and parents are urged to warn children not to come in contact with strange animals.

The pup above, should he have the misfortune to come in contact with a rabid animal, could immediately become infected, and in turn pass the dreaded disease on to children.

Although both time and funds are running out for those areas hopeful of receiving financial help from the Federal government's Local Incentive Grants Programme, there may be still hope for Winchester.

An application from the Fund Raising Committee forwarded by the local municipal office, for a grant of approximately $27,000 for work on the Community Centre, Ski Hill and Park is still under consideration, according to a spokesman at the office of the Hon. Lucien Lamoureux, M.P. for the riding of Stormont-Dundas who was in conversation with the Press at 5:00 Tuesday afternoon.

The application which was originally forwarded to Toronto received the immediate attention of Grenville-Dundas M.P.P. Don Irvine who hastened procedure at that level and it is understood the Federal office at Toronto gave it's stamp of approval and forwarded the necessary information to Ottawa.

The time element may have been an important factor in the decision to turn down the application after it had reached the final step, and government officials also announced at that time the allotted funds had been exhausted.

Winchester Fund Raising Committee officials, as well as others, realizing that through the efforts of The Hon. Mr. Lamoureux several other area municipalities had been more successful, immediately contacted the Speaker's office requesting reconsideration.

"Our committee", said Basil Dawley, chairman of the fund-raising committee, "had applied for the grant for use in completing the community centre, the ski hill, and the parking area, and when no funds were received we called Mr. Lamoureux".

"Our Honourable Member," Mr. Dawley concluded, "assured us he would do his utmost to bring the application to a successful conclusion". Mr. Dawley pointed out that, if approved, the grant would benefit workers in Winchester Township, Mountain Township and the Village of Winchester.

The Federal Government had initially made $150 million available for the program and it is understood approximately 13,000 applications were received which, if all funded, would have required contributions in excess of $400 million.

Other Areas

It has been noted that through the efforts of Mr. Lamoureux, Morrisburg, Iroquois, Chesterville and Finch have been successful, along with many others, and despite the late date local residents are hopeful their Member will be able to have Winchester's request reconsidered and, if not all, at least a part of the required grant approved.

$51,000 To Chesterville

Finch Village, did not receive the amount requested but Chesterville, on the other hand, was successful in obtaining $51,000 to assist construction of the new community centre.

The grant awarded to Finch was for $16,660 while both Morrisburg and Iroquois also received assistance.

Osgoode Township Council had requested approximately $35,000 but they, too, were turned down.

In conversation with Grenville-Carleton M.P. Gordon Blair on Tuesday morning the press was assured he was also doing his utmost to have the Osgoode Township request reconsidered.

This grant was destined to assist construction of the new Community Centre at Metcalfe which is replacing the one destroyed by fire in January 1971.

Heroine Has Sons In Winchester

Journal Columnist Dave Brown printed the following in his column recently:

HEROINE: A miniature collie named Mitzie didn't like the actions of two large dogs prowling around Metcalfe Saturday. The six-year-old dog was owned by the Lynden McEwen family, and that day was out with the family's two small boys, aged five and seven. Mitzie decided the two bigger dogs had to be pushed back, or fought off. They killed her, but ignored the boys. That night the owners of the two larger dogs had them destroyed.

Mr. Brown might be interested to learn that Mitzie's two sons are family pets here in Winchester.

One is owned by the Jack Gibson family and the other by neighbours, the Ormond MacConnell family.

Module Home Factory Nears Completion

The factory that will, when completed, turn out a home a day is rapidly nearing completion and will most likely meet the May deadline.

The company is planning to market the homes with the help of building contractors, which its parent company, Dutch Sash and Door Co. Ltd. has been serving for the past twenty years.

The thought behind this is that Dutch Sash and Door Co. has provided a service to builders in supplying them with window units, cabinets and etc. for many years and is now going a step further in supplying the builder with the complete home.

Adriann Heuff, president and owner of Dutch Sash and Door Co. is also president of the new subsiduary of which Toby Koyman is General Manager.

Canadians Need "People Diplomacy"

ASSISTANT TO STATE SECRETARY TELLS CANADIAN CLUB

Norman K. Rebin, an assistant to the Secretary of State, the Honourable Robert Stanbury, told members of Morrisburg and District Canadian Club that the real break-through in international affairs is not by high level means such as recent talks between Canada and Russia, or China and United States, but by people diplomacy illustrated by the Chinese ping pong team, and by people of one country actually getting together and visiting people of the other.

The occasion was the annual meeting and final dinner meeting for the year and was staged at Morrisburg Civic Centre last Wednesday.

"Canadians are held in high esteem in other countries", the speaker said, "but Canadian friendliness at home is a myth and we, in our own country, are reluctant to involve ourselves as friends, or even meet international residents of Canada".

Mr. Rebin, a graduate, of the Universities of Saskatchewan, Dalhousie and Stockholm, Sweden, is a communications expert and worked with the Saskatchewan government in its Provincial Youth Agency prior to joining the Canadian Foreign Service. He served as officer in charge of the Immigration Service in India and surrounding countries before returning to Ottawa.

"Before Canada can establish a foreign policy", he concluded, "Canadians must know and decide what they are and what they want to be".

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Charles Farlinger, area farmer, was elected president of the club for the coming year.

Other officers elected at the meeting were Doug Grenkie, secretary and Glen Keyes, treasurer. Directors and Associate Directors are Doug McGillis, Harve Johnston, Allen Farlinger, Peter MacEwen, Robert Mott and Gordon Thom from Morrisburg; Fred Cass, Leroy Boyd, and George Elliott, Winchester, Fay Shaver, Dick Finnigan and Emmerson Johnston, Chesterville; Lorne Mellan, Dwight Gilmer, and David Berry, South Mountain; Glen MacGregor, Morewood, Harry Holmes, Grant Couglar, Ray MacPherson, Winchester Springs; Elburn McIntosh and Ross Wingard, Williamsburg; Don Shaver and Merle Wells, Ingleside; Tom Allison, Inkerman; Jim Locke, Dixon's Corners; Clare Van Allen, Carl Simms, and Harry McNeil, Mountain, Don Robertson and John McCaslin, Matilda Frant; Harry Gilmer, Iroquois; George Fowler and Dave Hyde, Cardinal; Jack Faulkner and Fred Casselman, Riverside Heights.

Dr. George Fisher retiring president of the club thanked the members for their support during the year. Robert Howald of Morrisburg presented the nominating committee's report.

Education Minister Announces Provincial Grant Structure

Thomas L. Wells Minister of Education, has announced the release of the General Legislative Grant and Apportionment Regulations for 1972. These Regulations provide the formula for the calculation of grants to School Boards which operate elementary and secondary schools within the Provincial education system, and also set out the method of apportioning a board's local tax requirement among the municipalities supporting that board.

The Minister reminded trustees that this is the final year that school boards will be authorized to spend even limited amounts beyond the Departmental ceilings. All boards must adhere to the announced ceilings in preparing their 1973 budgets.

Mr. Wells said he expects that a significant number of municipalities will enjoy a decrease in their education mill rates and that many others will have the same mill rate as in 1971. He said that the decrease will result from a combination of increased Provincial grant support and the per pupil expenditure ceilings announced by the Department in November. At that time, the ceilings were established for a two-year period which, Mr. Wells said, will enable boards to undertake better long range budget planning.

In announcing the grants, the Minister summarized a number of important features of the new Regulations as follows:

a) A 25% increase in grants for French instruction of pupils in Kindergarten to Grade 8.

b) A revised and simplified method of calculating a muncipality's share of the school budget, based solely on provincial equalized assessment.

c) A subsidy provision to protect ratepayers in a municipality from mill rate increases of more than 1/2 a mill on equalized assessment.

d) An opportunity for boards which have not yet completed their programs to achieve equality of educational opportunity throughout their jurisdiction to make further progress in this regard.

Mr. Wells indicated that he considers the new Regulations to be fair and equitable and, while requiring further belt tightening on the part of some boards, would enable all to provide a satisfactory level of service.

Unemployment Problems Get Attention

An anxious mother of two walked into the Claimants Assistance Programme office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission. She was having trouble finding employment and had received an invitation to drop in and chat. The CAP guidance officer sat down with her and they discussed her problem.

The CAP guidance officer helped the mother organize a job search plan and arranged an appointment for her with a Manpower counsellor. To relieve the pressure of immediate money problems the officer referred her to the Consumer's Debt Counselling service. The mother's previous work experience had been nursing but she had never received her nursing certificate.

'TIS THE DAY WHEN ALL ARE IRISH

This is the week when every good Irishman plans a celebration and everyone else joins to assure success of the project.

Good old St. Patrick must be plenty riled at the goings-on that presently shake the very foundations of his Emerald Isle but most likely bigotry and malice will be forgotten on the 17th and the Irish will dance their traditional jigs on streets of green.

Closer to home there'll be singing and merriment and just maybe an occasional quaff of potent Irish brew to mark the great day.

100 CLUB

Winchester 100 Club, for example, has planned their March meeting with emphasis on the Green with three fine Irishmen in charge of programming.

As usual members will meet at Henderson Hall and it's a safe bet Centurians Walter (Patrick) MacDonald, Raymond (Michael) Earl and Jack (Sean) Hatcher will be wearin' green, waving shillelaghs and crooning Irish lullabys.

Irishmen, generally speaking, don't look for an excuse to celebrate such an important occasion, but having a birthday helps soothe a guilty conscience the following day.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY BIRTHDAYS

The Press is pleased to extend Birthday Greetings to the following who will reach another milestone on St. Patrick's Day:

Jay Quart, Maxville Manor; Mrs. Arnold Dukelow, Mrs. Robert Vice, Ron Freeland, Ray Larsen, Don Casselman, Bill Hitsman, Howard Merkley, Mrs. Bertha Barkley, Dorothy Willard, all of Winchester; Frank Acres, Marilyn Linton, Vernon; Mrs. Carson Hill, Kenmore; Robert McMenomy, Inkerman; Dean Keyes, Arnold Shaver, South Mountain; Mrs. Harold Merkley, Mrs. Annie Johnson, Chesterville; Mrs. Sarah Scharf, Metcalfe; Mrs. Ralph Wilkie, Mrs. Richard Dixon, R.N., Ottawa; Randy Albert Charlie Patrick Provost, Edwards; Brock Harper, Beamsville; Ruth Hamilton Calgary, Alberta (formerly of Russell); Eugene Scott, and Harold E. Merkley both of Winchester.

Congratulations too, to Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Stobo who will celebrate the 10th anniversary of their marriage on March 17th. Mrs. Stobo was the former Deanna Dawson.

And with all sincerity to readers near and far the familiar old Irish greeting: "May ye be half an hour in Heaven before the devil knows you're there".

St. Mary's Parish Council Plans Future Events

St. Mary's Parish Council, Morrisburg, monthly meeting was held on March 7th and a review of past events and future projects was made. The Council was delighted with the results of the Wine and Cheese Party. The concensus was that, based on the success of this social, many more such events should be part of the parish life.

The lenten programme sponsored by the council is well under way. An attempt at dialogue homily was made and although many were snowed in that Sunday, the response was good. Further such discussions will take place again soon. The weekly home masses are proving to be experiences of true community for all who attend.

The Lecture Series began with a lecture on abortion by a team from Action Life, Ottawa, followed the next week by a filmstrip and discussion on "Vatican 2 and You." The next week Carl Ward gave a very informative talk on youth and certainly made the not so youthful present re-evaluate their role as exemplars for today's youth.

The series continued on Wednesday, March 15th, with a panel of speakers from Cornwall discussing Communications in Family Life.

A Penance service will be celebrated on Sunday, March 19th with a social hour to follow, and on Tuesday, March 21st a film entitled "Search" will conclude with a Hunger Meal on Sunday, March 26th at St. Mary's School at 12:00 noon. A film entitled Free to Grow will be shown at the conclusion of the meal. The Parish Council invites everyone in the area to participate in this experience of hunger and poverty.

Lands & Forests Clean Up Time

Winter - not just a period of intense cold and snow, but also high unemployment. Throughout Eastern Ontario, 260 men who might otherwise be out of work, are busily engaged in forestry, recreation and wildlife winter works projects for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, Kemptville Distrct.

The workers won't be the only ones to benefit from the projects. The crews are improving hundreds of acres of forest and opening up new recreational areas complete with facilities for the public enjoyment.

Six provincial parks in the District are having their forest improved. Many diseased elms are being removed. Other forest operations are directed at improving the aesthetics of the recreation areas.

Two hundred and fifty acres of Limerick Forest have undergone sanitation cutting, 150 acres have been carefully hand-cleaned of undesirable brush, diseased and injured trees and 3000 cedar posts, pickets and fence rails have been harvested. The problem is different in the Greenbelt Forest. Here the sanitation operation includes removing old fences and leftovers of farm buildings that have fallen down. This forest is unique in other ways. Because it is at the backdoor of the city suburbs, fire prevention is a major concern. Therefore, crews have been cutting fireguards to separate the city from the forest.

In Prescott and Russell Counties more than 500 acres of the 26,000 acre Larose Forest have been improved. Some areas have been hand-cleaned to release young growth from weeds and undesirable brush, while other stands have been thinned to spur growth of the remaining trees. Pruning, another tending operation, is being done elsewhere to produce trees with long, relatively knot-free boles, excellent for quality lumber purposes.

Improvement cutting is also underway in the District's public hunting areas. The popular Gananoque Provincial Hunting Area is undergoing a habitat improvement operation. The Winchester Hunting Area, still being developed, is being upgraded as a wildlife habitat.

Perhaps the improved stands that people will notice most will be the ones surrounding the score of picnic sites being enlarged or developed throughout agreement forests in Eastern Ontario. Four of the five sites at Larose Forest have been enlarged and the stands thinned and cleared of brush. Three or more of these picnic spots, where people can sit among the trees and enjoy a leisurely outdoor meal, are being developed.

The parks and picnic areas have also created the need for construction of site facilities. In the Rideau River park workshop and in a rented schoolhouse at Bonville, near Cornwall, two work groups are sawing, painting and hammering together more than 40 outdoor comfort stations. These rustic looking structures are screened and finished in rough lumber, panelled inside and stained in a rich brown so they blend into the woods.

Housekeeping projects are always a part of winter works programs. Park offices at Rideau River, Silver Lake, Fitzroy and Murphy's Point are being refinished inside, painted and trimmed. Interior remodelling includes building and installing new counters and re-tiling office floors.

Today, management and conservation of natural resources are not only the focus of government attention but of a new public awareness. Several of the winter projects reflect this wide-spread interest in natural environment education.

This winter, the Junior Ranger camp at Larose was redecorated and up-graded to insure the boys have as productive and enjoyable a stay as possible this summer. In Lanark, a spanking new ranger camp has been built on a pine covered hill overlooking Park Lake in northern Dalhousie Township. The new camp will include a cookery, foreman's quarters and two bunkhouses. This isolated location has also been opened with the construction of new roads and a sturdy wooden bridge over the stream between Park and Wood Lakes.

In Limerick Forest, more offices and space for lectures on forest management and wildlife for visiting school children were needed. Personnel at Limerick have been using a schoolhouse that dates back to 1876 for office space. This charming old building will not be destroyed, but will become the heart of a modern-looking new forest headquarters which will include a large meeting room that will become a classroom for outdoor education.

Larose Forest, already a busy crossroads for school nature outings, has added two new nature trails to existing picnic sites.

The Upper Canada Bird Migratory Sanctuary, which contains a goose flock managed by the Department for the St. Lawrence Parks Commission will also get a new addition. A new corn crib is being built to help feed and trap for banding, an ever increasing number of geese. Up to 8300 birds were counted on one day last fall.

All the projects are important and vital for recreation, resource management and conservation. But, instead of having to put off some of these projects for lack of time, money or manpower, the Department can do today's work and some of tomorrow's today.

Rural Shopping Centre

ENGLISH'S CLOTHING BARN GOES MODERN

Alex English and his wife Mary operate a shopping centre on Highway 31, half way between Morrisburg and Williamsburg.

Taken at face value such a statement may appear rather commonplace, but those who take time to visit the renovated complex are in for a pleasant surprise.

Mr. and Mrs. English have succeeded in giving their business that modern look while at the same time retaining enough of the small country store atmosphere to make shopping an exciting atmosphere.

For a stranger, first indication of the strictly rural setting is the familiar mail box with 'English' neatly printed on the side. What appears, from the outside, to be a rather large country home actually houses a wide variety of merchandise in an area covering some 1600 square feet of floor space.

"ENGLISH FAMILY SHOPPING CENTRE" is printed in bold letters on the side of the building, but on entering, one's eyes immediately focus on the welcome sign painted in 'play bill' lettering.

"WELCOME TO THE BARN" it reads, and to clearly indicate that the business is geared for both sexes, the sign is flanked by two smaller ones reading 'KING' and 'QUEEN'.

There are other signs as well directing customers to the various departments. For example: 'CALF PEN', 'FILLIES PASTURE', MEN'S BOX STALL', and 'HEIFER AND COLT DEPARTMENT'.

Mr. English points immediately to yet another.

"That one is very important", he says, "since many customers felt we were going out of the grocery business, but this is not so". The Sign he refers to leaves little doubt, and states curtly 'FEED BIN'.

Thirty-five years ago Blake Barkley operated a small store at this location and it was not for another eight years that the name 'English' appeared.

Alex's father, Len, bought the business at that time, and although ailing health plagued both he and his wife the friendly merchants endeared themselves to the entire community, and served the area till 1961 when the present owners assumed control.

Alex, who is well known to all in the sports fraternity, was born in Saskatchewan and his pretty wife, Mary, also proudly boasts of being a 'westerner'.

The friendly couple have two equally friendly sons, Pat, 22 and Len, 20. Both are students at St. Lawrence College where Pat is studying to be a chemical engineer and Len, Assessing.

Mrs. English smiles as she recalls her early experience as a merchant in eastern Ontario.

"The first customer", she remembers, "asked for two things I had never heard of - a pan of bread and tanglefoot".

This writer recommends a visit to the unique business establishment. There is no obligation to buy and brousing might well prove a rewarding experience.

"We cater to the 14 to 40 age group", says Mr. English, but one has to be slightly over the '40' mark to remember the days when the oxen yoke hanging from the ceiling was used by early settlers. Many other reminders of bygone years dot the premises-whiffletrees, dairy cans and even the once familiar cracker barrel.

"We don't want to forget the beautiful past", says the owner, "But we know we must cater to the present and my wife loves teenagers."

"Plan to visit us soon", says Mrs. English, "once you've seen our place we think you'll come back".

We think you will too.

Snake Island Curlers Make A Comeback

A rink, playing under the 'Snake Island' banner with veteran skip Jack Rowan calling the shots picked up 'One-Game' awards at the Metcalfe Invitational bonspiel last Saturday.

The mythical 'Snake Island' club came into being some years ago when some members of Metcalfe and District Lions Club began entering district spiels wearing their emblem, the bronzed snake.

Founding president Lee Nolan once described the club as being "the only open-air, artificial ice rink in the world using the sun's rays to generate power."

Through the years the club membership remained at 'four' and included curlers of the calibre of Archie Sayant, Mitch Owens, Bill Porteous, Archie Stewart and Jim Rowan.

Only one former member appeared for Saturday's game, Jim Rowan who played second. Joe Rowan was at third position and Ed Rowan lead.

Bowling Scores

Only four points separated the two top bowlers in the South Mountain League last week.

Glen Hess totalled 707 on singles of 204, 241 and 262 while second place finisher Denzil Allen had 703.

Others passing the '600' mark were:

Lyle Simzer, 655; Donna Burley, 655; Gord Richardson, 652; Cliff Ace, 623; Kevin Boyd 609; Charley Burley, 608.

The CAP officer put her in touch with the Registered Nurses Association to obtain it. They discussed and resolved transportation and baby-sitting problems.

The mother now had several new avenues open to her and she left the office with a new feeling of confidence.

This is just one example of the new humanized approach to unemployment problems by the U.I.C. The Claimants Assistance Programme was introduced last June under the Unemploymet Insurance Act. People who have filed claims for unemployment insurance are invited by letter to use the Programme's resources.

The key to the program's success is the personal level on which it operates. The interviews are designed to bolster the individual's confidence, and are strictly confidential. No information is divulged to U.I.C. officers or to other branches of the Commission.

The main task of the Claimants Assistance Programme is to help unemployed people reenter the labour field, but this is only the beginning. CAP helps unemployed people adjust to their situation and shows them how to best go about job-hunting. It refers people with problems which might be an obstacle to finding employment to the social agency best suited to solving that problem.

The CAP officer also investigates the applicant's natural talents, interests and hobbies, as well as skills acquired in previous employment. His job search then is not restricted to his last type of employment, and he is able to recognize and utilize his innate abilities.

If his skills or aptitudes are not in demand in the immediate area, the Programme officer informs him and provides information to help him decide whether to move or seek another type of employment.

Interviews with CAP guidance officers usually occur after being on claim with the Unemployment Insurance Commission at least six weeks.

At the interview, the person is given a portfolio which contains four booklets showing how to go about finding a job. The book lets contain information on how to prepare a resume, where to receive re-training, key sources of employment, ways of becoming self-employed, and a daily guide to organizing a job search. They also explain how to create a favourable impression by phone, letter and in person.

The Winchester area is served by the Ottawa office at 360 Lisgar, Street.

Renovations Being Carried Out At Cornwall Court House

The Honourable Fern Guindon, Minister of Labou and M.P.P. for Stormont, has been advised by the Honourable James W. Snow, Minister of Public Works, that the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry have now been authorized to carry out renovations to the law library in the Court House of Corwall.

The project is estimated to cost approximately $12,800, and the Province will reimburse the Counties for all actual expenditures.

The work represents part of the continuing Administration of Justice programme, following 1968 legislation whereby the Province assumed financial responsibility for work carried out by the counties and municipalities to replace and renovate existing outmoded facilities.

The library renovations consist of new shelving, suspended ceiling with fluorescent lighting, carpeting and redecoration. Completion is expected by mid-April.

Seaway Spartans Set Impressive Record

-By Delbert Jones-

Congratulations are in order for the Seaway Spartan hockey team and coach Mr. Crober. This newly formed club has been defeated in only one contest this year.

Area teams proved to be no competition in the Morrisburg tournament when the Spartan's romped to 3 straight victories over their opponents.

In their latest outing last Saturday (March 11) in the thirteen team Maxville tournament, Seaway defeated North Stormont 5-1, Brockville Collegiate Institute 3-0, (Goalie Don McNairn picking up the only shut-out of the day) and then defeated Maxville 5-2.

In the final game Seaway's luck ran out when they lost to Gloucester 3-1. The Spartans however were tournament finalists and received crests for their efforts.

During the four games Danny Cassell counted four markers, Chuck Lawlor three, David Hess three, Ernie Duvall 2, and Allan Hare one.

All members of the Seaway Spartans hockey team wish to express their appreciation to all who have assisted the team. Special thanks to Mr. Gerry Crober, an outstanding coach, and the Pioneer Hotel Williamsburg, which assisted by paying a large portion of the cost of the sweaters.

Sun Oil Gives Big Boost To Olympic Team

Sun Oil Company Limited is throwing its full promotional support behind Canada's Olympic endeavors.

While aiming to boost gasoline sales and increase public interest in the 1972 Summer Olympics Sunoco is launching a major fund-raising drive on behalf of the Canadian Olympic Association.

Over a 17-week period Sunoco will give away a series of 21 unique Canadian Olympic medallions to motorists (one with each $3.00 purchase of gasoline). Each medallion bears the official Canadian Olympic Association crest on one side, and the official symbol of one of the 21 Summer Olympic events on the other.

Sunoco will kick-off its Olympic Game promotion with a $20,000 donation to the Canadian Olympic Fund. The company will then sell collecters' cases for the medallions for $2.99 -- with a 50-cent donation going to the Canadian Olympic Association for each case sold.

In addition to providing support for our amateur athletes and Olympic Teams, Sunoco is running a contest to enable ten entrants to win an expenses-paid trip for two to the 1972 Summer Olympics in Munich.

Sunoco worked on the development of the heavy metal medallions in close co-operation with officials of the Olympic Trust of Canada.

While colourful mounting cards will be available free from Sunoco dealers, the company hopes to raise a substantial sum for the Olympic Trust Fund over and above its initial $20,000 donation, from the sale of deluxe collector cases. Made of steel, these high quality cases have a simulated leather cover, and open up to display the medallions on a soft green background with gold imprinting.

Each purchaser of a case will receive an official, personalized certificate acknowledging his or her support of the Canadian Olympic Team.

In addition, trips for two to Munich will be awarded every two weeks, with the first draw March 29 and the final draw on July 12.

According to W.G. Cline, Manager, retail marketing services, the Sunoco Olympic Game promotion is the largest in the company's history. While extensive advertising and point-of-sale material is planned on behalf of Sunoco's 1,200 dealers in Ontario and Quebec, the commercial element has been completely eliminated in the design of the medallions and cases. Cline predicts they will become collectors' items.

WHAT IS RABIES? disease takes two forms

According to Dr. W.A. Taylor, Reeve of Osgoode Township, there are approximately 65 known cases of Rabies in the Ottawa-Carleton area. "And", says the Veterinarian, "these are only the ones we know of."

In an effort to better educate readers concerning the gravity of the situation the following is a condensed version of a brocheur prepared by The Canada Department of Agriculture, Health of Animals Branch.

Rabies is a contagious disease that is caused by a virus, an organism so small that it can be viewed only with an electron microscope. When the virus is introduced into animal tissues, it multiplies and causes a nervous disorder which usually ends in death. Dogs, foxes, skunks and wolves are most susceptible however the disease can affect all mammals, including man.

Symptoms

In dogs there are two forms of the disease: the furious and the paralytic. The former is usually referred to as the acute form and the latter is called "dumb rabies".

In the furious form there is frequently a period of depression when the disposition of the animal shows a marked change. Its behaviour pattern is often reversed. A friendly animal may become quarrelsome, hide in dark places, resent attention and snap if touched. On the other hand a shy or snarly dog may become exceptionally friendly and seek companionship. During this period of change, the voice becomes hoarse and the appetite lessens. An animal will frequently have a perverted appetite and eat foreign objects such as wood and stone. There follows a stage when the animal is in a highly nervous or excitable state. Its eyes become starey, and it barks and bites at imaginary objects. It appears to be afraid and attempts to run away from imagined danger. It is in this stage that an infected animal may break out of enclosures or run away from home. It will travel great distances, usually keeping up a dog trot without cessation, biting and fighting as it goes along.

Saliva drools from the partly open mouth. There may be intervals of exhaustion or even of convulsions. Generally, complete paralysis sets in and the animal's legs cease to function. Death follows a period of unconsciousness, or a violent convulsion, and usually occurs in from four to seven days after the appearance of symptoms.

In dumb rabies, symptoms of viciousness are less noticeable than in the acute form, but otherwise the course of the disease is practically the same.

The large animals, such as cattle and horses, undergo a change of disposition, but in general they are not so aggressive as smaller ones and, in particular, do not seek other animals to attack. Horses, however, will bite and kick violently. Cattle often stay away from the herd and assume a strained position, with back arched. There is a marked decrease in milk production. The animals bawl continuously and salivate profusely, with mouths partly open, suggesting the presence of foreign bodies in their throats. All these symptoms are not always observed, nor do they necessarily occur in the sequence given here.

Rabies is generally considered fatal in all species. However, it is now known that bats are an exception to this general rule. Bats may excrete the virus of rabies in their saliva for considerable periods of time and still remain apparently healthy. In other words, they may act as symptomatic carriers of the disease. In the light of this finding, bites inflicted by bats should be considered as dangerous until proved other wise by laboratory examination and appropriate prophylactic measures should be taken immediately.

How Transmitted

One of the chief difficulties in preventing the spread of rabies is that an animal may not be visibly ill for days or even months after it contracts the disease. It can, however, pass the virus on to other animals and to man four or five days before symptoms appear. At this stage of the disease, rabid animals have the virus in their saliva. It is the virulent saliva that usually carries infection from one animal to another.

Rabies is usually transmitted when a rabid animal that is excreting virus in its saliva bites another animal or man. The disease may also develop when virulent saliva contaiminates open wounds or abrased mucus membranes. It is important, therefore, when handling an animal that has been bitten by a wild animal or a rabid dog, to not let its saliva touch your skin. To be dangerous, the virus must find its way into damaged tissue. It causes no harm to an undamaged alimentary tract or to unbroken skin.

Animals whose natural instinct it is to bite as a means of defence are the most dangerous. Because of this, dogs, skunks, foxes, wolves and coyotes are the animals that generally spread the disease. When these animals are infected they often become extremely aggressive and wander long distances, snapping at whatever comes in their way.

Season of the year and climate have no direct effect on the spread of rabies. However, the disease tends to be more prevalent in winter than in other seasons.

The meeting opened with the singing of "O Master Let Me Walk With Thee".

Mrs. Keeler gave a fine devotional using passages of Scripture interspersed with verses from the hymn "Jesus Calls Us".

A very interesting letter was read from Phyllis Brunton telling of her work in Bolivia.

A special collection was taken for "White Cross", also articles of sewing are almost completed and ready for shipment.

Blame Injuries, Player Losses

HAWKS GO DOWN IN THREE STRAIGHT GAMES

-By Gary Tysick-

Winchester Hawks reached the end of the St. Lawrence League play-off trail on Sunday, when they bowed 5-2 to Alexandria Glens in Alexandria. The Glens took the best-of-five series in straight games by scores of 4-2, 7-4 and 5-2.

The shorthanded Hawks gave it a good try and at times looked like they might extend the series. but following Friday's 7-4 loss in Kemptville and the circumstances surrounding the game, it was apparent that Winchester just did not have the horses.

Already riddled with injuries, the Hawks learned just before the game Friday night that two of their top goal scorers had left the team for greener pastures. Jacques Landry and Bill Moran decided it was more profitable to play for some other team and failed to show up. They missed Sunday's contest also.

Combining the absence of these two with the injured Bill Byers, Tom Patterson and Bob Volks, the Hawks went into the second game of the series minus five regulars.

Alexandria were never headed on Friday night as they led 3-1 after the first period, 4-2 after the second and they outscored Winchester 3-2 in the final twenty minutes for the 7-4 win. Hawk scorers were Keith McRoberts, Dave Van Bridger, Bob McLintock and Rae Armstrong.

The Hawks utilized three midget players in Sunday's game, but the Glens eventually wore them down and wrapped up the victory and the series in the third period. Bob McClintock and Lester Carkner scored the Winchester goals with Dave Van Bridger picking up both assists.

BLUELINE BITS . . .

Bill Byers did don the blades for a shift or two on Friday night and he played again on Sunday in an effort to bolster his mates. With the shape his ankles are in, it was a wonder he got the skates on. That takes spunk.

Bob Volks on crutches at the game following a snowmobile mishap and Tom Patterson still on the mend following his accident . . . but at least they were there.

It's too bad that Landry and Moran decided to pull out on their team mates when they were needed most . . . too bad in more ways than one. Besides the bad taste it leaves in the mouth, it also eliminates both these lads from any team awards and both were in the running for some honours. It also means that both may face CAHA and ODHA suspensions. If one reads Rule K27B of the Official CAHA Hockey Handbook they will see that these two players may be liable to suspension for a period of not less than two years. This is quite a price to pay, especially if it was only worth twenty bucks.

Whether the Winchester executive will push for the suspensions is not known. They probably would not accomplish anything of real value by doing so. It might be wiser to forget the whole issue and let the two lads go their way. They let the Hawks down badly and they know it and every last man on the Hawk roster knows it too, but the people they let down the worst was themselves.

Hawks Fought Gamely

Winchester 'Hawks' were eliminated last weekend when they dropped two successive games to the fired-up Alexandria Glens.

Despite the fact the team was forced to play short-handed for the last two games, the boys made a gallant attempt to remain in contention.

The accompanying photo was taken at Kemptville arena last Friday night only seconds after a hard drive by team captain Dave Van Bridger was deflected by the Glens netminder and an alert defenceman clears the puck.

Hawks management, is already looking forward to another season when, with the new rink facilities available, they feel confident their boys will be strong contenders.

In other play-off action Morrisburg 'Lions', who earlier in the season had been favoured to take the league championship, were overpowered by Prescott Saints. The Saints are presently engaged in a semi-final series with Alexandria.

At time of writing the Cardinal-Spencerville series is all tied up and a mid-week game will determine which team will meet Metcalfe 'Jets' on Thursday night at Embrun.

Duncan's Goals Help Loyalists To Playoffs

-By Lynne O'Brien-

Jack Duncan was on a scoring rampage scoring 9 goals in 2 games against Lanark Merchants as the Morrisburg Loyalists won 9-2 and 12-5 in the O.D.H.A. Intermediate 'B' playdowns. 3rd game of the best of 5 series will be played in Morrisburg, FRIDAY, MARCH 17th, 8:30 p.m.

Thursday night, Duncan scored 4 of his goals, with Fred Harper adding a hat trick, singles by John Hutton and Rick Rushford. Scorers for the Merchants were Bob and John Renwick. 11 minors were handed out, 8 to Lanark.

Sunday afternoon, Lanark scored the first 2 goals with the Loyalists tieing the game before the end of the first period. Lanark came back in the second with 2 fast goals to take a 4-2 lead, then the Loyalists came alive and pumped in 6 unanswered goals to lead 8-4 at the end of the 2nd. In the 3rd, Loyalists took a 10-4 lead before Lanark scored their final goal.

Loyalists scorers were: Duncan 5; John Hutton 3; Big Doug Casselman 2; and singles by Bill Dillabough and Ron Alguire. Lanark scorers were: Jim Nolan 3, Ben Purdy and Dan Steenburg. 14 minors were handed out, 6 to Lanark.

Come out Friday night and see if Duncan can keep up his scoring.

Metcalfe And Kemptville Bantam Series Tied 1-1

Metcalfe Bantam hockey team, last year's league champs. are presently engaged in another league final with Kemptville and hope to hold the trophy for another season.

Two games were played last weekend and each club came up with a win. In Saturday's outing Metcalfe earned a convincing 5 to 2 victory. Doug Hicks and Brad Sullivan put Metcalfe up two in the first period and the lead was extended in the second frame when Moe Robinson added number three and Brad Sullivan scored his second of the game.

Kemptville's Mather and Smith fired home two fast markers in the third period but Metcalfe's Shouldice put the game out of reach minutes later.

John Mears and Carl McRoberts each picked up assists.

SUNDAY GAME

Kemptville evened the series on Sunday with a 5 to 3 win. Metcalfe opened the scoring when Brad Sullivan picked up a Moe Robinson pass but the lead was short-lived. Hess evened the scored before the period ended and Kemptville moved one up early in the second on a goal by Gummerson. Sullivan teamed up with McRoberts to again tie the game and then, with his third goal of the game, put Metcalfe once more in the lead.

Late in the second period Graham tied the score and the third period was Kemptville's when Hess scored what proved to be the winner and Gummerson added an insurance marker.

Play in the best-of-five series continues this weekend.

Town Going To The Dogs?

Judging from continuous complaints concerning dogs that molest women and children on our village streets, it seems high time some definite measures were taken to enforce the law in this regard.

Oh yes, there are laws, and we have an elected council whose sworn duty it is to enforce such regulations, but unfortunately they seem to feel there is no need to make a move at the present time.

Maybe someone should remind council of the old story concerning the farmer who locked the stable door after someone had stolen his horse. There is an almost cruel parallel here, and one cannot help but wonder how our elected officials would feel putting teeth in the law after some child had been seriously injured.

The danger is greater magnified by the present, almost epidemic proportions of the rabies outbreak, and hopefully our council is making doubly sure all pets receive anti-rabies vaccine.

There is still another angle deserving of immediate attention. Complaints are being heard daily from residents concerning barking dogs that disturb the tranquillity of the night.

Being a dog owner, and one who has often noted the trust and faith in the eyes of the friendly beast, it is difficult to understand why so many Winchester residents appear to "own" dogs but refuse to give them a "home." Surely none would question the right to own a dog, but by the same token owners should remember they have an obligation to friends—an obligation to keep dogs at home.

If, however, dog owners fail to recognize their obligation, then council members must act. They have the authority, and by virtue of confidence placed in them by voters, the obligation to take whatever steps are necessary.

Our town is for people. Let's keep it from "going to the dogs."

Advertising Pays

Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, Waterloo, Ont., this month will begin its third annual advertising campaign based on the theme: Life Is A Mutual Affair.

The company will spend about $500,000 on the campaign — heaviest such outlay in its 102-year history. It will include television spots on both the English and French CBC networks and on the CTV network, and four-color ads in consumer magazines.

Although it is always difficult to prove that advertising is directly responsible for sales, The Financial Post says that Mutual is convinced the ad campaign has been an important factor in its sales boom over the past couple of years. New insurance sold in 1971 totalled $1,081 million, vs. sales of $811 million in 1970 and $761 million in 1969.

We've known the value of advertising for many long years, and business firms not yet convinced should take special note of Mutual Life's stand which is based on long experience.

"Dirty" Players Get The Laurels

Watching our high school hockey team in action the other day, I could not refrain from brooding about how the game has changed.

If what I was watching was "sport", and "schoolboy" sport at that, I guess it's time I was put out to pasture.

Oh, it was exciting, all right. That is, if you like to watch teenage boys trying to tear each others' arms off with deliberate hooks, remove each others' teeth with high sticks, and smash each others' brains out against the boards.

Throw in some deliberate slashing, tripping, kneeing, butt-ending and a couple of fights, and you have the picture of young Canada playing its national game.

Admittedly, the game is faster and more furious than ever. But furious is a word that does not belong in sport, unless you think professional boxing is a sport, which it is not, in my opinion.

In vain do the coaches of high school teams tell their charges to play hard but clean. The kids have watched too much pro hockey, where most of the fans, like spectators in a Roman arena, want blood, and the pros oblige.

The only thing that redeems the spectacle – and it is a spectacle, not a game – is the fact that there are usually one or two players on each team who still believe in skill rather than violence and who use their heads for something besides butting.

These are the players who emerge as the team leaders, even though some of the "wild men" may have more natural ability. These are the players who almost never get a penalty, who walk away from a stupid fight rather than look for one, who put some spark into the team when it is behind. A pleasure to watch.

And then there are the others. Kids who are pleasant and well-mannered off the ice, but go berserk the minute the first whistle blows.

One of them expressed his philosophy to me: "Yah. Yer sposeta drop yer stick when a fight starts, but yuh don't drop it till the other guy drops his." And, of course, if the other guy is following the same principle, there could be stick-swinging match.

Put four feet of hardwood in the hands of two young huskies, let them start swinging their clubs, and you have a situation more deadly than many of the duels of history, fought with lethal weapons.

It's about as quick a way as any to wind up with a smashed nose, a permanent scar, a concussion, a skull fracture, or one eye.

In my opinion, a great deal of the blame for the situation lies with the referees. They seem to be brainwashed into letting anything go, short of chopping a head off with a stick. The game is faster and more vulnerable because of his heavy padding. You took your shot, and if he stopped it, skated around him. Now, he comes out to stop a shot and is quite likely to get a mouthful of high stick. Result? The goalie starts playing dirty, to protect himself.

Maybe I'm just old-fashioned. But when I played team sports – football, hockey, baseball – there were one or two "dirty" players on each team. Caught in the act, they were penalized and ostracised.

Nowadays, you have to look hard to find one or two "clean" players on each team. And it's the "dirty" players who get the roars from the crowd. This is fact, and it's fact that is sobering, saddening and sickening.

The Mind Of Christ — LENTEN SERIES — His Betrayal

By Reverend Gordon C. Smyth

No mother would think of calling her son Judas, although it was once a noble name. Judas Iscariot ruined it for ever.

Gethsemane followed the Passover meal. Our Lord's prayer in that garden was interrupted by the sound of armed men approaching. In the forefront was none other than one of the twelve disciples. The temple police knew whom to arrest when he greeted his Master with a kiss.

Judas was through with his treachery, but it was not done with him. He was seized by remorse. He tried in vain to get the priests to take back the filthy lucre. He hung himself. He was evil enough to play the traitor, and yet good enough to be unable to live with the burden of foulest guilt.

The popular belief is that Judas Iscariot was a greedy man. But would such a person turn over one as important as Jesus for a mere thirty pieces of silver -- the market price of a slave? However, the action of Judas enhances the cynic's claim that every individual has his price. Moreover, at least some of the other disciples had been growing suspicious that he who was appointed treasurer by the Master was dipping into the common purse for his own ends.

Covetousness cannot be entirely ruled out. However, under the circumstances this explanation is too simple or superficial to explain the deterioration of the man's character to the point of such a collapse. Therefore, one has to consider the suggestion of jealousy. Judas felt that his office entitled him to a higher regard. It consumed him that he was never included in the inner circle with Peter, James and John.

Those who argue that bigotry was the fatal chink in his armor present a plausible case too. They maintain that Judas was a staunch conservative. He expected Jesus to lead a revolt against Rome and restore the glory of David's kingdom. The Dead Sea Scrolls, not to mention hints in the Gospels themselves, make it clear that this was one of the hopes of the times. Would betrayal force the Master into such action? Did disenchantment with our Lord's spiritual vision of the Kingdom of God convert a zealot into the traitor?

Still others conclude that the explanation has to be sought in the man's practicality. A dreamer would scarcely have been made treasurer of the band. Judas was a realist. He had to be on the winning side. Jesus was popular in Galilee, but Jerusalem was the seat of power. The "establishment" was now coiling and recoiling to strike. Why not supply the venom?

Surely nobody holds that Judas Iscariot was chosen for history's most select company to do what he did. That is pushing any lingering belief in predestination too far. And only a novice in the study of human nature would attribute behaviour to a single motive.

Greed! Who can doubt that a love of material possessions brings down civilizations? Jealous! Who can doubt the havoc it works in family relations? Bigotry! Who can doubt the ugly smear that it has made on the record of Christianity?

Practicality! Who can doubt its terrible drain on vitality, when legacies to churches are invested in bonds rather than in the Christian nurture of the rising generation, or when it is a wonderful thing for a neighbor's son to head for the ministry but unrealistic for one's own offspring?

Any way you endeavour to explain the betrayal of the Son of God, it should constrain us to look in the mirror. No religious environment is sufficient to make one religious. Judas had the best. He is the most thought-provoking argument for the proverb, "Keep your heart with all vigilance; for from it flow the springs of life."

The Seventh Column

Suppose criticizing the present educational trend immediately classes one as a "square," but come to think of it there may be a great need for "squares" in the administering bodies that suggest starting children to school at the age of "3". The starting age of "6" produced some of the most brilliant surgeons, statesmen, clergy, educators and legal minds in the history of man, and many were making major contributions to society while still in their early twenties. Kindergarten at ages 3 and 4, in the opinion of this corner, is ridiculous. Lessons learned at home during those years, provided of course mother has time for the most important task in her life, will prove much more valuable in preparing for the years ahead than any knowledge passed on by overpaid babysitters in modern day nurseries.

History will most likely record the '60's and '70's as the era when education lost its way. A Michigan educator recently listed the three cardinal sins in modern schooling as follows: (1) Pupils are not teaching each other; (2) Pupils are not teaching themselves; (3) Teachers don't know them. A retired school teacher recalls that he once taught in a school where there wasn't one of these sins. A school where the second-graders reached across the aisle to help the primer kids and the senior classes had to study on their own because the teacher had seven classes to divide his time. "Before I left that lovely place," he says, "I knew the smell of every kitchen in the area." Needless to say the reference is to one of the small schools that once dotted the Ontario countryside. Maybe it's time we started the long trek back.

Reading of the Ontario delegation now on a trade mission to China and noting that Jim MacDonald is along as one of two scientists requested by the Chinese government, immediately conjured up memories of a younger Jim and the Ormond softball team. "Fog patches" on the mind somewhat dim the picture but we vividly recall such names as Lynden McEwen, Tommy McLean, Ken Carkner, Glen Carkner, Gerry McLean, Roy Campbell, Roy Cummings and Rolly Barrigar. Remember, too, the ball park that also served as a cow pasture?

Remembering names from the past is always an interesting pastime and sets the mind to wondering how time has treated friends of yesteryear. Wonder, for example, how many remember the 1939 edition of 'THE CROSS PATCH." This was a nine-page bulletin published by a group engaged in a "Short Course," conducted by Carleton County Agricultural Representative W. M. Croskery and edited by Les McEvoy, Oren Stanley, Theresa Murray and Mildred Russell. A page was left for autographs and the following proudly penned their names: Muriel Cameron, Wilmer Boyce, Ruth Conlin, Wilmer Dalgleish, Bill Coombs, Aldorio Bourbonnais, Delmer Morrison, Gerald Morris, Hazel Harrison, Bill Casserly, Wilhelmina Creighton, Russell Fisher, Philip Turner, Wilbert Boyce, Nona Carkner, Ormond Craig, Ruth Stanley, Bill Mullins, John E. Boland, Forest Johnston, Dorothy Loney, Harold Cowan, Jimmie Rowan, and Harold Woods who signed twice. Have to conclude the course was invaluable after noting the following statement on page 4: "According to the statistics of J. Fraser of Kemptville Agricultural School, if an 8-pound baby was fed properly the right kind of laying mash, in 14 months it would weigh 200 pounds."

Grenville-Dundas M.P.P. Don Irvine appears to have the right idea. Having served on municipal council he is fully aware of the problems encountered by such councils when they seek guidance and assistance from the provincial government level. Becoming better acquainted with members of all municipal councils in the riding will tend to bridge the gap that separates the two governing bodies.

Our Irish brother-in-law (the scoundrel) sent this one along: Pat, on his way to mass one Sunday morning, suddenly realized he had two "bottles" in his jacket pocket. Reluctant to be noticed in church with the bulging loot he carefully hid them under the church steps. Following the final blessing he rushed out to retrieve his valued possessions but much to his consternation one bottle was gone. Now the Protestant church was a short way down the street and immediately Pat began, in a loud voice, to rather colourfully describe the "Protestant heathen" who lifted his medicinal compound. So boisterous did he become that the Priest emerged from his church and scolded his parishioner for using such vile language in the very shadow of the church. "And my dear man," said the venerable priest, "how can you be so sure it was one of the Protetant brethren who committed the dastardly deed." "Oh, I'm very sure," replied the irate Irishman, "if it had been one of our own he'd have taken both bottles."

Dundas Farm News

By W. D. Keys, Agricultural Representative

Many questions are being asked about the new tax laws and their effect on the farm business. Since the impact of the new laws will not occur at least until the 1972 tax year returns are filed, it is important to sort out the items that need consideration at this time.

VALUATION OF ASSETS

Valuation Day has been set as December 31, 1971. This means that an inventory of all assets on hand at that time should be listed and a market value attached. The valuation of real estate and basic herd livestock is perhaps most important. It is your responsibility to make this inventory and valuation.

In most cases, it will not be necessary to have costly appraisals made. The assistance of recognized persons such as real estate agents may be valuable in some cases.

The important thing is to prepare the list now, perhaps take some pictures and make some notations, and keep this information where it can be found later.

BASIC HERDS.

The new tax laws will make provision for a potential tax saving sometime in the future for those with basic herds. If you do not have a basic herd, you can still make application until April 30, 1972.

ESTATE TAX

This tax was eliminated December 31, 1971.

GIFT TAX

As a Federal tax, it was eliminated December 31, 1971; however, we now have an Ontario Gift Tax Law. Gifts up to $2,000 per year to any person are gift tax exempt (maximum $10,000). Gifts between husband and wife are exempt. In order to have any gift not added back into a person's estate for succession duties, the donor must outlive the gift by 15 years.

CAPITAL GAINS OR LOSSES

Capital assets when sold may be subject to a capital gains tax. If a capital gain is realized, one-half the gain will be taxed at the regular rate of personal income tax.

Personal residence and one acre of land are exempt of capital gain when sold. Farmers will be entitled to claim as an alternative, a $1,000 annual deduction against gains on his farm house and all his farm property if this is to his advantage.

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Seed, Feed and Forage Show will be held at North Dundas District High School on Wednesday and Thursday, March 22nd and 23rd. Speakers on Thursday will discuss the new tax laws and the new farm real estate assessment program. All interested farmers and their wives are invited to attend this special program.

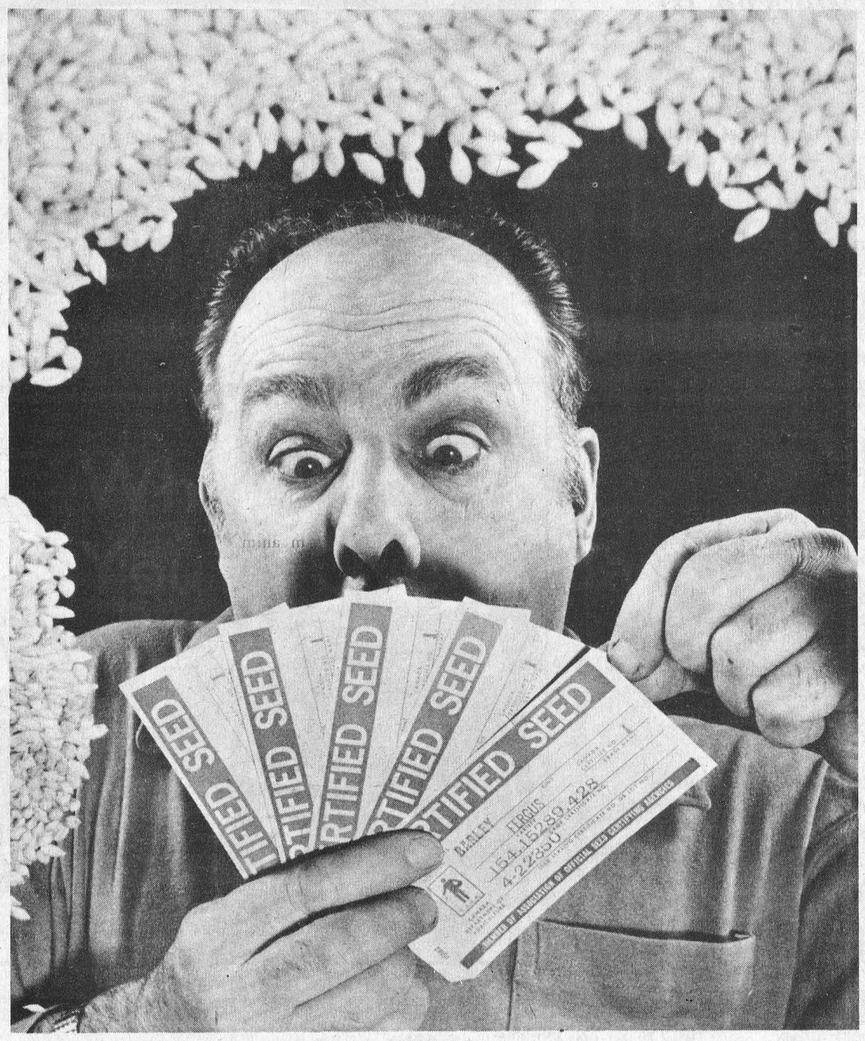
D.D. Walker, President of Funk Bros. Seed Co., Bloomington Ill, presented a specially engraved plaque to Mr. Guy in recognition of this service at the company's annual sales meeting in New Orleans, Louisiana.

In paying tribute to Mr. Guy's record, President Walker stated, "His service to agriculture, knowledge of corn production and genuine interest in those with whom he works have established him as a leader in his field.

Mr. Walker is shown, left, making the presentation to Mr. Guy. Mr. Guy, who resides with his family, at RR3, Prescott, is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Guy of RR1, Inkerman.



Don't Gamble

As the Spring planting season approaches, farmers will now be considering kinds and varieties of crops to plant for the coming season. After deciding on the particular crops, farmers should also consider the advantages of certified seed. To focus attention on the advantages of certified seed, the various departments of agriculture across Canada in cooperation with the Canada Department of Agriculture and the Canadian Seed Growers Association, designate March as Good-Seed Month.

The main advantage of certified seed is crop improvement. Because the seed is genetically pure, the qualities or characteristics of a particular variety are ensured in certified seed of that variety. For instance if a recommended variety of wheat is described as having short, strong straw with good milling qualities, then certified seed is the best bet for arriving at a crop with all of these desirable characteristics.

Disease, drought, and weather are only some of the obstacles to a successful harvest. Planting certified seed can be one of the cards in the farmers' favour.

Ottawa Valley Farm Show Dates Set For April 4-7

The 1972 Ottawa Valley Farm Show will be held at the Civic Centre, Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, April 4 to 7. The Ottawa Valley Seed Growers' Association, sponsor of the show, says it is arranged by farmers, for farmers, to appeal to many individual interests.

Over one hundred companies will be exhibiting their products, ranging from seed and fertilizer to large harvesting and cultivating equipment.

Visitors will have an opportunity to meet the Ontario Dairy Princess, Miss Nancy Brown; and to visit the Ontario Milk Marketing Board Booth and the Quebec Government Exhibit. The Ontario Government will also have several educational exhibits at the show, including exhibits from the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food.

Special events will include a ladies' day program, a square dance competition, presentation of awards for the Ottawa Valley Seed, Feed and Forage Championship Show, and the Hereford Breeders Show and Sale.

Council Urges Farmers To Protect Ears

Sight and sound are similar in one respect, says Hal Wright, Farm Safety Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food. It's very hard to read anything, when you can't see all the letters, just as it's difficult to hear, when you don't hear all the sounds.

Prolonged exposure to loud noises, such as a tractor, can cause permanent hearing loss. Eyesight can be improved with glasses, but once you've lost some of your hearing ability it can not be replaced or improved. It's a permanent loss.

If you operate your tractor or hammermill for several hours a day, protect your ears. Acoustical earmuffs will screen out noise, but let you hear the engine well enough to know that it's working right. The earmuffs also let you hear conversation better than in unscreened noise.

Don't take a chance on your hearing. It's irreplaceable.

James MacDonald Former Area Man On China Trade Mission

James MacDonald, principal of the college of agricultural technology at Centralis, and a former area resident, is one of two scientists accompanying a party of eight businessmen on Ontario's first trade mission to China.

Led by the Hon. Allan Grossman, who planned the trip when he was trade minister, the group arrived in Peking on March 11th on what Mr. Grossman termed Ontario's first attempt to sell directly to China.

Mr. MacDonald is a son of Allen K. MacDonald of Winchester and was born at Ormond where he received his early education and graduated from Winchester High School.

Mr. MacDonald went along as an authority in animal husbandry since the Chinese had specifically asked for a specialist in animal breeding and genetics.

Crop Insurance Pamphlets Available

According to a recent release from Carleton County Agricultural Extension Personnel, leaflets explaining particulars of crop insurance for corn and spring grain have been received.

These pamphlets provide excellent information for the farmer considering insurance for the 1972 crop and the communique points out that complete details are available from the agents.

In Carleton County, Dan Herrick of RR1, Arnprior (Tel. 623-3789) and McVey Insurance, Box 70, Metcalfe, (Tel. 821-2524) are authorized agents of the Crop Insurance Commission of Ontario.

In Dundas County the authorized agent is Fred Coons, Chesterville, (Tel. 448-2398).

The Commission will have an exhibit at the Ottawa Valley Farm Show at the Civic Centre, Ottawa, from April 4th to 7th and farmers will find this an ideal place to have crop insurance questions answered.

TODAY'S CHILD

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

He Likes Animals

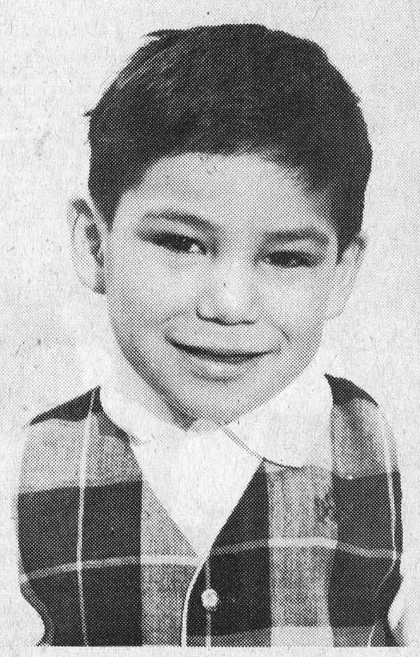
Teddy is a handsome young fellow of four and a half, whose very dark eyes and black hair deflect his Indian ancestry.

He is a healthy, active boy who enjoys any kind of vigorous games. His pleasant personality means adults like his company. Teddy is fond of children but until recently did not know how to play with them without conflict. Now he is attending nursery school and learning better how to socialize with his own age group.

Teddy is felt to have great potential. A bright, alert youngster, he quickly absorbs whatever he sees and hears and he is eager for new experiences.

This laddie is interested in farm animals with which he readily makes friends. He is fascinated by mechanical things, and likes to figure out how they work.

Teddy needs young energetic parents in a loving, stimulating home. It would be best if there were no children close to his age in the family. To inquire about adopting Teddy please write to Today's Child, Box 888, Station K. Toronto. For general adoption information ask your Children's Aid Society.



E.O.D.C. Data Book Receives Award

At the annual meeting of the Industrial Developers Association of Canada held in Winnipeg on March 5, 6 7th, the Data Book which is produced by the Eastern Ontario Development Council received the Superior Award in the Literature Awards Competition.

The E.O.D.C. Data Book provides general economic data and specific statistical information on the municipalities in Eastern Ontario. The purpose of the book is to provide prospective industrialists with detailed information which can be considered when selecting a plan location. This is used not only for direct enquiries, but is also sent to Trade offices throughout the world as well as banks, consultants, and other agencies which are in a position to direct industry into the Golden Triangle.

WHO NEEDS RECORDS . . . ?

By Carleton County Agricultural Extension Personnel

Probably no industry has advanced as quickly nor as far in the past 10 to 15 years as Agriculture. Farming, as an important part of this industry, has kept pace in most respects. However, sad to say, the matter of keeping records, analysing them and using the results has not been as well done as some other aspects.

Keeping books, to most people, is not a very interesting job. And so it is small wonder that if someone else offers to do this job we let him do it.

This appears to be the situation to-day. Several firms presently exist which offer to file income tax returns for farmers for a fee. There is nothing wrong with this, providing the accountant or consultant is given ALL OF THE INFORMATION and the farmer understands exactly what has been done for him. Frequently we hear of cases where some quite significant item is left out of the business statement simply because it was not readily available. In addition, many times, full capital cost allowance is taken when it is not required to reduce taxable income. Usually this is not critical until a good year comes along when the extra capital cost allowance would come in handy.

Unfortunately, all of the blame cannot be directed at the farmer, although in the final analysis, he is responsible for his own business report and management of the farm.

There are still a number of so-called farm business consultants roving the back roads without adequate training and information. Many of them are not trained accountants and so are no more skilled than you can become yourself.

The way we see it, farmers are going to have to be much more particular in the future about records. The new capital gains tax is one example where extreme care must be taken to have complete and accurate records. Stack this on top of the demands of Canada Pension Plan, Workmen's Compensation, farm credit and unemployment insurance and you get a complex accounting picture. You have to make the decision whether you are going to master it yourself or pay a QUALIFIED person to do it for you. No matter what you do, it is still your business and you must be able to understand and use your records if you want to remain in control of your business.

A TIP

From St. Johns Ambulance

A nose bleed can be distressing, uncomfortable and sometimes serious.

In its First Aid Manual, St. John Ambulance recommends that the casualty sit upright with the head thrown slightly forward. Tight clothing around the neck and chest should be loosened.

The mouth should be kept open and breathing through the nose should be avoided. The nose should be firmly pinched just below the hard part.

The nose should not be blown, nor should it be plugged.

If the bleeding does not stop in a reasonable time a doctor should be consulted.

Municipal Governments Produce Over Half Revenue From Local Funds

Canada's local governments still produce more than 50 per cent of their revenues from local sources, but federal and provincial grants continue to supply an increasing proportion of their financial needs each year.

The trend was revealed recently in the publication 'Local Government Finance, Preliminary and Estimates; 1968-70' issued by the Governments Division of Statistics Canada. Its continuation through 1971 was confirmed today when the division issued preliminary estimates for the year just ended.

The publication and the new estimates show that gross revenues from their own sources (taxes, liceses and permits, charges for municipal services, rental of municpal sports and recreation facilities, fines for by-law infractions and tax penalties) represented 56.9 per cent of total local government revenues in 1969, 55.6 per cent in 1970 and an estimated 54 per cent in 1971. The balance of the revenues came from provincial and federal government transfers.

On the other side of the coin, education represents the largest single expense item at the local level. The national average for 1971 was 51 per cent of all expenditures. Public works, sanitation and water services made up the second largest category, accounting for a further 20.8 per cent of local government spending last year.

Ontario local governments spent more, proprotionately, than their Quebec counterparts on the latter functions (22.2% to 17.8%) and on health, welfare and recreation (11.0% to 3.4%). Quebec local governments, on the other hand, spent more than those in Ontario on education (58.0% to 47.9%), the provision of general government services (5.3% to 3.3%) and debt charges (7.2% to 5.2%).

Local debt charges in all provinces except New Brunswick and Newfoundland have been gradually decreasing in the last three years. The national average has moved from 6.9 per cent of total expenditures in 1968 to an estimated 5.6 per cent last year. The relative Quebec figure declined from 10.3 per cent to 7.2 per cent and the Ontario proportion from 6.9 per cent to 5.2 per cent. Quebec, however, remains the third highest province in Canada in this category of expenditure.

On the revenue side of the ledger, Quebec and Ontario follow similar fiscal patterns which naturally are closely related to the national averages. Quebec local governments last year produced 55.3 per cent of their total revenues from local sources (48.2% from taxes) while Ontario's comparable figures were 51.9 per cent and 44.4 per cent respectively.

Ont. Secondary School Teachers To Hold Annual Next Week

The Annual Assembly of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation is scheduled to meet in Toronto March 21-24 the March winter break - as delegates debate topics ranging from new credit system to threats of disappearing teacher positions.

Only 296 delegates may vote during the Assembly on behalf of their 24,000 Ontario colleagues. But the total number who attend what has been called the Parliament of the profession could exceed 350.

President Jean Aceti, a Sudbury teacher, will sum up the achievements and concerns of the profession during the past year on Tuesday, the opening morning. Dr. Don Felker, OSSTF General Secretary, will speak the following day.

For the second year in a row, a provincial ceiling on education costs is expected to be a major topic. All of the major school boards in Metropolitan Toronto have rejected a budget based upon the ceiling terming it unrealistic. The provincial ceiling means a slash of at least $15 million in the Metro Toronto current budget, which translates into a loss of roughly 1,400 teaching positions.

Delegates will also be asked to look at a proposal for increased professional self-evaluation - a move designed to improve standards in the profession and also to place responsibility for those standards more in the hands of teachers.

Gone Are The Days

The above photo, taken at Winchester High School, some sixty years ago should convince young girls that the 'Maxi' is really nothing new.

The neat hair-cuts worn by the boys indicate barbers were much busier in those days, and anyway long hair on a boy would have marked him a 'sissy' and classmates would have heaped scorn on his shoulders.

With stylists bringing back the vogues of long ago, our boys may soon begin clipping off the flowing locks and girls again wearing high-buttoned shoes similar to those above.

This photo was loaned to the Press by Ken Summers of Winchester but unfortunately no one has been identified.

This could prove a real puzzle, but if you see a familiar face drop us a line.

Carleton Board Studying Community Use Of Schools

Carleton Board of Education is studying the steps necessary to make its schools available for community use.

The Communications Committee, at the February meeting held at South Carleton High School Richmond, had before it a staff report concerning community use of school facilities. The report pointed out that, under the present Board policy, various associations, organizations and municipal recreation authorities utilize school facilties after school hours either free or for a minimal charge.

The staff report suggested the Board's policy has been passive in nature and has reacted to proposals of others rather than actively promoting the use of schools after regular school hours.

The report suggested the question of the Board's role in community use of schools be examined in depth, to clarify for the Board and the community the direction the Board will take with Community Councils, Evening Classes, promotion of school use generally, and the whole concept of the "community school". Such a study would review past and present practices, and formulate recommendation for future Board policy.

In this connection, the members of the Committee noted a communication, dated February 1972, from John Smith, Chairman of the Selection Committee on the Utilization of Educational Facilities of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. The Select Committee under its general terms of reference will enquire into the potentialities and possibilities for the increased use of educational facilities throughout Ontario at all levels including post-secondary, and will develop policy guidelines for the provincial government in this respect. This Committee will be touring the province during the year, and will visit the Carleton area later in the year.

On motion by Trustee Alfred Taylor the committee agreed that a Steering Committee be established consisting of a member of the Board, a Superintendent, a secondary school principal, an elementary or middle school principal, a community council co-ordinator, and a night school supervisor for the purpose of studying the Board's position in encouraging the community use of school facilities.

Realizing the time element involved with respect to a complete study on the philosophy and policies of the Board on community use of schools, it was suggested that the Steering Committee prepare an interim report as quickly as possible.

It was also suggested the Steering Committee undertake the preparation of a Brief to the Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly, outlining the Board's position that costs for community use of schools be excluded from ordinary expenditure limitations.

Questions Answered

During the meeting which was attended by over 200 the board conducted a question and answer period.

One question concerned institution of a program of junior kindergartens and pre-junior kindergartens (three year olds). In replying to this question it was noted the Board had considered four-year kindergartens, but had chosen to funnel any available resources into the promotion of a system of staggered points of entry. The hope was expressed that as kindergarten enrolments continue to decline resources might become available which would ultimately allow staggered points of entry to the formal school system from the age four.

A member of the audience proffered the opinion that the Board was promoting French immersion programs for the benefit of the few to the detriment of the rest of the children in the regular French program, and to other school programs, by using up valuable resources for this purpose.

It was explained that the French immersion program is still only a pilot project, and must yet be evaluated as to its effectiveness in conjunction with the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education. Regarding deployment of resources it was pointed out that the Board receives special grants in its weighing factors to compensate for the extra costs of the French program totally based on the amount of time spent taking French instruction. Consequently, a Board member explained, grants for immersion classes will be higher by virtue of the amount of time spent in them.

Useful Hints For Correspondents

It is doubtful if any weekly newspaper had a finer, more conscientious group of rural correspondents than does the Winchester Press and their efforts are greatly appreciated by publishers, staff and readers.

In an effort to help correspondents do an even better job the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association lists a few 'DON'TS' which should prove invaluable, and we offer them only as a means of making our correspondents' task a little easier.

Here they are:

1. Don't play up one church at the expense of another. If there is more than one church in your community, give them equal publicity.
2. Don't report the reading of minutes and singing of the National Anthem in accounts of meetings. These occur at every meeting. It is only news if the National Anthem, for some reason or other, is NOT sung.
3. Don't let your personal feelings creep into the news columns. Don't write: "We are sorry to report the illness of . . . ." No one likes to do it. Forget that there are such words as "We and "I".
4. Don't dash off such lines as "Wedding bells are ringing soon." We have a special wastebasket for these.
5. Never write a birth as "A little stranger has come to the home of Mr. and Mrs. So and So. Congratulations."
6. Don't include poetry or lists of donors of floral tributes in your obituaries.

CONCERNING SNOWMOBILE LEGISLATION

Safety League Pleased With Speech From Throne

The Ontario Safety League was pleased to hear in the recent Speech from the Throne that a committee from the legislature will be formed to consider new legislation for the control of snowmobiling in Ontario.

It is obvious from a study of snowmobile accidents where the major problem lies. For the past three seasons in Ontario, approximately three-quarters of all snowmobile accidents, both fatal and non fatal, have occurred on public thoroughfares. Any experienced snowmobiler will vouch for the fact that this machine is extremely difficult to control on the hard-packed and often icy surfaces of well-travelled roadways. In addition, there is the extreme hazard of close proximity with motor vehicle traffic. A high percentage of these public thoroughfare accidents occurred on county and township roads where the control of snowmobile use was designated as a municipal responsiblity by the Motorized Snow Vehicles Act, 1968. Unfortunately, for the welfare of snowmobilers and the good of the industry, too few municipalities have responded to this responsibility.

A further study of snowmobile accidents shows a woeful lack of knowledge on the part of snowmobile operators on how to properly operate or control their machines or of their legal responsibilities. The snowmobile is a motorized vehicle and operators should have training the same as required for any other motorized vehicle.

These are some of the serious problems facing the proposed government committee on snowmobile legislation. It is the hope of the League that this committee will take into consideration the opinions of safety organizations and the snowmobile industry as a whole and take measures to restrict the use of snowmobiles on public thoroughfares and make provision for an adequate program of operator training.

Observer Editor Forrest To Visit Cuba

The Editor of The United Church Observer is going on a busman's holiday to Cuba.

Rev. A.C. Forrest said last week that he hadn't been to Cuba for 12 years and is curious to see what has happened since. He says he is also in need of a holiday in the sun and would rather go to a country that is "politically interesting" than one which is noted mainly for its tourist attractions.

Dr. Forrest said he is specifically interested in the churches although Cuba is a Roman Catholic country, there are about 250,000 Protestants - and has lined up appointments with church leaders. In 1959 when the Cuban Revolution occurred some church members were enthusiasts for Castro, others were bitterily opposed, Dr. Forrest said. (He was there a year later, in 1960)

"Inasmuch as Canada has maintained relations with Cuba and the U.S.A. has not, perhaps the time has come for Canada to play its reconciling role," he said in an interview. "Half the world is now socialist and Cuba is the first in the western hemisphere, so perhaps we should know more about it. I'll be trying to figure out whether its a threat or a promise, a matter for hostiel co-existence or friendly co-operation. The Americans have chosen hostile co-existence and I assume most Canadians would prefer friendly cooperation," he said.

He also plans to try to penetrate what he termed the 'sugar-cane curtain', because all that he has read on the subject has been published in American magazines. "I've discovered in some other parts of the world that things weren't the same as I had concluded from reading U.S. magazines," he said.

Dr. Forrest left on the first charter flight from Canada to Cuba last Sunday.

THE MIRACLE WORKER

Osgoode Twp. School Drama Club Receives High Praise

Osgoode Township High School Drama Club received high praise for their presentation at the Ontario Drama Festival Finals at Lindsay recently.

Despite faulty sound system, adjudicator, Alan Nunn was high in his praise of the presentation of William Givson's "THE MIRACLE WORKER".

"Helen Keller, as portrayed by Karen McLaughlin, was a Michelangelo statue which refused to remain a rock," he said after the second of five plays at the festival.

The veteran of Canadian and British stage said it was difficult to imagine Miss McLaughlin was playing a role in the play because she appeared so convincing in her blindness.

"The play was a most courageous choice for young people to produce", he said, "and one main challenge was the use of multi-level stage settings because timing for the actors' entrances are critical".

"Special lighting effects in creating a 'softer' mood was required for the Victorian setting, but again the students came through", he concluded.

Board Also Pleased

Trustee George Drew of Carleton Board of Education also drew attention to the fine performance and the board agreed that a letter of commendation should be sent to students and staff at the school expressing sincere congratulations.

32 Graduate As Baby Sitters

Forty students registered for a 'Baby Sitters Course' at Russell recently and following a written examination thirty-two were awarded certificates.

The course was conducted at Russell Fire Hall under the supervision of Fire Chief Russell Phair who was assisted by Russell W.I. president Mrs. Nancy Romme.

The course included lectures and instruction by Chief Phair and the group were instructed on First Aid and Artificial Respiration by Gerry Lavictoire of Embrun Fire Department.

Dr. F.A. Kinnaird gave an interesting lecture on poisons and the dangers of pills in the home.

Dangers most often encountered in the home and problems that challenge baby sitters were outlined by Mrs. Martine Gow, an area welfare worker.

Mrs. Leo Bekkers and Mrs. Romme, both members of Russell village W.I.; Mrs. Jean Campbell, R.N. and Mrs. Jeannette Rothenburger R.N., all answered questions arising from the valuable course.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION

Committee May Revise School Curriculum

Education Minister Thomas Wells has announced the formation of one of the largest and most representative curriculum committees ever established by the Department of Education.

The 55-member committee will recommend revisions to the present curriculum guidelines for the primary and junior divisions. For the first time, parents and trustees have been included on the Committee. The members have been organized into a system of overlapping sub-committees with responsibilities for four broad areas of curriculum; Social and Environmental Studies, Communication, Pure and Applied Science, and The Arts.

These are, in turn, supported by two specialist groups, one dealing with appropriate media for communicating decisions of the Committee, the other providing expertise on child development and those handicaps that require special attention if each child is to realize his full potential. The activities of the group will be co-ordinated by a steering committee whose members will act as chairmen of individual committees or as co-ordintors of the whole review.

A primary responsibility of the Committee will be to study the reactions and recommendations collected at over 700 meetings held during the past year with educators, parents and trustees during the input phase of the cyclic review of curriculum. This information is being organized for the Committee by a research assistant. Additional data is presently being collected through research activity sponsored by the Department and conducted by O.I.S.E. This information, along with the study of current guidelines for the primary and junior divisions, will provide a base which will be expanded and modified through the work of the Committee.

The Committee will also recommend specific kinds of support materials to assist teachers, principals, and others to develop programs relevant to the needs of their children. The combined responsibilities of recommending revisions to the current guidelines and proposing ways and means for implementing these changes forges a vital bond between the philosophical and practical sides of curriculum development.

"These innovative features in the terms of reference for this Committee hold great promise for the development of curriculum guidelines that, while firmly based on what is presently going on in the schools of this province, will mark the way to new patterns of co-operation and better strategies for learning than ever before," Mr. Wells said.

Committee Chairman is Mr. J. R. MacLean, Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum, Ontario Department of Education. Miss Sylvia McPhee, Assistant Superintendent of Curriculum with special responsibility for Primary Education, and Mr. Herve Cyr, Assistant Superintendent responsible for Francais, will serve as Vice-Chairmen.

GORDON BLAIR, M.P.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT - PENSIONS AND CHILD CARE

An almost completely male parliament obviously is overlooking things important not only to women but all of us. The Royal Commission on the Status of Women made many recommendations, all of which are now being "studied" by the Government. One important and controversial recommendation was that married women, who do not work outside their homes, should have an opportunity to participate in the Canada Pension Plan. This has attracted great attention even though it has been hardly mentioned in the newspaper.

PROBLEMS ABOUT PENSIONS

There are many pros, cons and difficulties in the proposal. On what basis would married women at home or their husbands contribute to the Plan? What should be done about women or their husbands who do not wish to, or could not contribute? Is it desirable to provide an independent pension to married women who have not entered the labour force? On the other hand, would such a policy recognize the major contribution to society made by women in their homes and the fact that their husband's careers or businesses prosper from their marriage partnership?

FURTHER IDEAS NEEDED

This striking idea has many attractions, but at the same time creates many practical problems. Like many ideas in politics, it needs to be expanded by discussion. Too often new proposals are dissected only by a small group of politicians and bureaucrats and the juice is squeezed out of them. I would welcome your ideas and suggestions on whether the proposal is a good one, and how it might be made to work in practice.

CHILD CARE EXPENSES

Your male-dominated parliament thought it had done a great thing by the new Income Tax Act provision for the deduction of babysitting or child care expenses of working mothers. These expenses are now deductible to the extent of $500.00 per child, with a maximum of 4 children - that is $2,000.00. But the men forgot one important fact. How can people prove that they have paid these amounts to babysitters? The obvious answer is to get a receipt. But now complaints are developing because babysitters do not wish to give receipts for the obvious reason that this will expose them to income tax. I am unable to determine how serious this problem really is in the constituency. I would welcome your views on it and also any suggestions you may have as to how it can be dealt with.

A LEGISLATIVE BACKFIRE

The response to this problem by men, politicians and officials has not been sensible or helpful. Men say "get a babysitter who will give a receipt". They might even say it is better to establish public day care centers - and these are being set up now at long last by provincial and municipal authorities at considerable expense. But women are more practical. They do not regard the placing of their children with a babysitter as a simple business transaction. They want to find a person who will love and respect their children. They have great hesitation in trying to impose a harsh business relationship on their dealings with their babysitters. We really face the problem that this altogether desirable taxation move may result in a further impersonalization of our society, the destruction of initiative by people in their own homes and lives and, in the long run, much greater public expense if our only final solution will be publically supported day care centers.

...and from queen's park, toronto

DONALD R. IRVINE, M.P.P.

I'd like to preface my column this week with some remarks about the criticisms of the Throne Speech given by the leaders of the opposition parties.

Their speeches, especially that of Liberal Leader Robert Nixon, were far from impressive. Mr. Nixon's address was rambling and ineffectual, giving an indication that he has lost considerable interest in his party since announcing he won't re-seek nomination for the party leadership.

The announcement has led several Liberal members to attempt to gain favorable press coverage for themselves in a bid to gain prominence in seeking the leadership nomination.

The NDP's Stephen Lewis' attack on the Throne Speech was equally disappointing as effective criticism. Mr. Lewis based his speech on election procedures, a topic which was dealt with at length at the sitting in December. It was mainly a rehash of previous criticisms, which has caused many Conservative members to believe that his grip on the NDP is slipping.

Standing Committees have been named and all will begin to meet within the next week. Each member of the House is appointed to at least two Committees. I have been appointed to the Administration of Justice Committee and the Regulations Committee which meets for the first time on March 16th.

The report of the Select Committee on Economic and Cultural Nationalism was presented ON TIME to the House on March first. It recommends that the Ontario government be ready to evaluate any forthcoming federal policy regarding the protection of our economy while at the same time immediately developing its own studies into the particular needs of Ontario.

The report continued, saying that because of widespread concern over the high level of foreign control of Canadian businesses both the federal and Ontario governments should devise not merely policies, but a practical approach to the problem to secure the best advantage for Canadians.

This can be brought about in part by the implementation of an incentive program for wholly and majority Canadian owned businesses.

It also recommends that the availability of adequate land for recreation deserves immediate attention and strongly suggests the curtailment on all sales of both privately owned and crown lands to foreigners for commercial recreation purposes.

The Ontario Development Corporation in the near future will be able to assist Canadians wishing to stablish commerical recreation facilities by making loans available to them.

With the large volume of tourists passing through Eastern Ontario every holiday season, this presents an excellent opportunity for exploiting this relatively untouched commodity in our area.

Everyone is aware of the large influx of visitors during the summer to Ottawa, Fort Wellington, Fort Henry and Upper Canada Village but I believe there are certain places in our area where the tourists business suffers because of the lack of adequate local facilities.

As announced in the Throne Speech, newly appointed Minister for the Environment, James Auld has announced that the most immediate action for his department will be the removal of all abandoned auto bodies throughout the province. Also, the Minister stated that in recognition of the great concern for our environment, his department would continue to implement environmental regulations, but not to the extent of proposing legislation that could lead to people being arbitrarily put out of work.

The Question of bringing nursing homes into the provincial health program has been receiving a great deal of attention in the media following statements made by Provincial Health Minister, Dr. Richard Potter.

Dr. Potter has announced that all nursing homes in the province will come under the Ontario Medicare Plan as of April first. Those homes unwilling to accept the government rate of $12.50 per day for standard ward will lose their licence.

I approve of the plan as the cost of maintaining someone in a nursing home is a great economic burden which many people are unable to bear without considerable personal sacrifice.

But there is a difference of opinion between the department and myself on the situation of nursing homes in Grenville-Dundas. I do not feel that we have adequate nursing home services in the riding as the minister claims. My argument to increase bed space in Grenville-Dundas and in the adjoining county of Leeds have been presented to the minister and I expect a departmental decision in the very near future.

The decision to locate the new international airport in the Pickering Township is one of importance to the continuing development of Eastern Ontario.

The government has met with considerable opposition from the residents of the selected township, as could be expected of a development requiring the expropriation of 40,000 acres. If the opposition is strong enough to make the government decide to change the site of the airport, residents of Eastern Ontario will be interested to know that one of the proposed sites now is the Kingston area, with high speed train connections to Toronto and Montreal.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission's decision to establish an office in Prescott is a commendable move and credit to MP Gordon Blair, although only open one day a week, it is of benefit to those people who have had trouble in the past dealing through the regional office in Cornwall. I know of several of these cases first hand because of the numerous complaints and requests for assistance I receive. The claims officer in Cornwall cooperated with me to the fullest, but I did not feel this was a tolerable situation because of the delays involved for claimants.

Important legislation to be implemented this year has been announced by the Minister of Finance and Intergovernmental Affairs, the Hon. Darcy McKeough, which will allow tax credits, to be deducted from our 1972 income tax.

The new plan will be more effective because it deals more directly with the individual than the old system which it will replace, of tax rebates handled by municipalties through the Residential Property Tax Reduction Act, 1970. It will also be of more benefit to those with lower incomes.

It's a full-size luxury car.
It has the biggest interior, the largest trunk, the most powerful standard V8, in its class.
And yet we ask less for it.*

Newport Royal 4-Door Hardtop

*Based on manufacturer's suggested retail prices for similar models comparably equipped

We measured the room inside our luxurious Chrysler Newport Royal, and we measured the trunk capacity, and we noted the power of our standard 190 h.p. 400 cubic inch 2-barrel V8 engine. Then we set out to see what the competition had to offer, in its class. Chrysler Newport Royal came out tops on all three counts. There is more comfort room inside, its trunk does have more usable space. And it certainly has more power. In fact, its standard engine has more power than two of its competitors optional V8's. Also, we have an Electronic ignition system available on all V8's. That means less engine maintenance, more reliable performance and lower engine emissions. The other luxury cars don't offer you this system, they still use condenser and breaker points.

There are other Chrysler advantages too: Newport's body and frame are welded into a one piece body and frame called a Unibody. Then the complete unit undergoes a 7-stage dip-and-spray process to fight rust and corrosion. For comfort and quiet, handling and stability, there's Torsion-Quiet Ride and Torsionaire Suspension. To make life a little easier, 3-speed Torque Flite automatic transmission, power steering and front power disc brakes are standard. And you'll appreciate the choice of rich, plush, Chrysler interiors.

We're asking less for our Chrysler Newport Royal than the others do for their luxury cars. And we're giving you more. A good deal like that is hard to find these days.
