High profile officer joins murder investigation

TORONTO (Staff) - The head investigator in the 1984 Helmut Buxbaum murder case has been appointed to the serial murder case in the Stormont-Dundas area being investigated by the Ontario Provincial Police.

Insp. Robert Guay confirmed Tuesday that Supt. Ron Piers, who helped crack the Buxbaum case, as well as Det.-Insp. Lyle McCharles were appointed by OPP commissioner Archie Ferguson to help wrap up the investigation.

In making the move, Ferguson was simply trying to get the investigation completed, and was not reacting to public pressure, said Guay, media relations officer for the OPP in Toronto. The two men will assist Det.-Insp. James McCormick who is presently heading the investigation.

With the two new investigators, police should have a better chance in wrapping up the case, Guay said. "The more people working on it -- sometimes something comes to light."

While Piers is probably the best-known investigator, "all three of them are crack cops," he added. "Buxbaum was kind of an outstanding case," he said. But while he'd "like to say" Piers was "crucial" in the murder investigation, good work by all the investigators helped break the case, he said.

Like the Buxbaum case, the serial murder case being investigated by the OPP also has had its share of twists. The most recent twist was an apology by the solicitor-general for a press conference held by the OPP two weeks ago, in Long Sault.

The OPP held the press conference to announce they had a suspect in the suspected serial murders but not enough evidence to charge him. They described the suspect as an Ottawa Valley man in his early 40s who knew at least two of his victims. The man fit the description of a serial killer, they said.

McCormick said the person may have "a story to tell" and suggested reporters try to talk to him. Relying on local gossip, reporters converged on a Chesterville home to interview the man they believed was the suspect.

The OPP was blasted by civil rights groups, and a lawyer for the man for releasing information to allow reporters to identify him.

In response to heavy criticism, provincial Solictor-General Joan Smith, issued a statement Friday, saying "an error in judgement" was made and that steps would be taken to ensure the error won't be repeated.

"In this case, there was no specific information given out as to the identity of any individual. But the holding of the press conference contributed to the perception that police conduct has infringed the civil liberties of one or more citizens of this province," she said.

"We are very troubled by what has taken place in the case and we apologize to all for what has occurred," she stated.

As a result she has ordered a review of the guidelines for the holding of press conferences or the making of press releases by the OPP. "This will ensure that the situation is not repeated."

But while an "error" was made, she said she has "full confidence in the ability of the OPP to continue to conduct a full and impartial investigation into these crimes."

Newsbriefs

Parking demand

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Mike Tierney, owner of Tierney's Restaurant, Morewood, has been asked by Winchester Township council to provide off-street parking for his business. The business needs the extra parking space to conform with its bylaws, council told Tierney Monday night. Although he wasn't told of the parking requirement when he bought the business, Tierney said he would co-operate with council and expand his parking. "It's too bad it came to light just about the time you got the establishment," said township reeve Gerald Holmes.

Turning orange

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - North Dundas District High School students want to bring a taste of Florida sunshine to sun-starved local residents. The school annual fundraising campaign selling Indian River grapefruit and oranges begins Friday and continues until Oct. 18. Prices for the fruit, which will be delivered in early December, range from $13 to $25 per box. For more information, contact the school at 448-2328.

Bazaar returns

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - The gymnasium of North Dundas District High School will adopt an international flavor Oct. 17 to raise money for a new food delivery system at Winchester District Memorial Hospital, estimated at $100,000. Ethnic groups ranging from the Irish to the Portuguese will set up displays of their baked goods and crafts and a program of multicultural entertainment will be offered during the hospital auxiliary's second annual international bazaar and bake sale. The bazaar will run from 1 to 3:30 p.m.

Help Santa

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Santa needs you -- and you can find out how tonight. A meeting to organize the village's Help Santa Toy Drive will be held tonight (Wednesday) at 8 p.m. at the Nelson LaPrade Centre. Any group or individual interested in helping is invited to attend.

Rake-a-thon

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Chesterville Public's Grade 6 students hope to rake in a few dollars next Wednesday during the class' first rake-a-thon. From 1 to 3 p.m., students who have collected pledges will rake yards throughout the village, concentrating on the homes of senior citizens. All money raised will help defray the costs of a trip later this year to Ecole de Neige, near Montebello. Anyone wishing to pledge money or offer their lawn is asked to contact the school at 448-2224.

Thanks

MOREWOOD (Staff) - Volunteers who helped during the construction of the Morewood fire hall addition will be getting a well-deserved pat on the back next year. An appreciation night featuring a dinner and dance is being planned for Feb. 27 to honor the volunteer workers, said deputy-fire chief Claude Cousineau Monday night. Former members of the Winchester Township Fire Department will also be honored, he said. "It's kind of a 15 year anniversary thing."

Lockout continues as negotiators return to the table

FINCH (Staff) - Representatives of the locked-out United Counties road workers and counties council are scheduled to meet in Cornwall today (Wednesday) with a provincial mediator in hopes of reaching a settlement.

A week ago, the 37 roads department employees, who have been without a contract since March 22, were informed they would be locked out Thursday.

"We were still willing to work, we want to work," insisted Brent Theede, a strike captain who works out of the counties' Winchester Springs patrol yard.

On Thursday, the workers met at the Finch yard carrying placards denouncing unfair management practices, Warden Keith Fawcett and Raymond Lapointe, the counties' clerk-administrator. On Tuesday, they moved their picketing to the Winchester Springs patrol yard.

Wages and a no-contracting out clause are the main issue in the dispute.

Lapointe said Tuesday morning counties' council met with the provincial mediator, Brian Martin, Sept. 25 and learned its wage offer -- an hourly increase of 50 cents retroactive to March and another 55-cent increase effective in March, 1988 -- had been rejected.

"We were told or led to believe the offer would not be taken back to the local membership so it appeared the outstanding issues would remain unresolved," Lapointe said.

The workers, who are affiliated with the Canadian Union of Public Employees, are demanding an hourly increase of $1 retroactive to the previous contract's expiry for one year.

Last year, Theede said the average employee made $10.06 an hour, an increase of only 10 cents from 1985.

"It's a fact that we can't keep living on what the counties pay us," he said.

Dave McIntosh, who works out of the Finch yard, said he made more in 1983 than he did last year, when employees were cut back to a 40-hour week from 44 hours.

He now makes a bit more than $11 an hour while his Ottawa counterpart, he said, would make up to $16.

"(In a) small town, sure, you're not going to compete with the city maybe but it's quite a drastic drop."

"There's no indication of going back for less than a decent settlement. Morale is good yet, everybody's in good spirits, said Ray Alguire, a former union local president who manned the workers' headquarters Tuesday.

The employees are now receiving $100 a week from CUPE, which is also covering their lost benefits.

Robin McIntyre of Cornwall, president of CUPE local 1715, said the workers are also seeking a no-contracting-out clause in a new agreement.

While the counties have verbally agreed not to contract out work their employees can do, he said they refuse to put it in writing.

Lapointe said counties' council still doesn't favor a no-contracting-out clause.

While Alguire questioned why the lockout hadn't been lifted with the news of Wednesday's meeting, Lapointe said he guessed council would rather wait until the outstanding issues had been resolved.

Negotiations began shortly after the previous contract expired last spring. The provincial mediator has attended only the last three meetings between the counties and its roads workers, Lapointe said.

The last labor dispute between the counties and its roads employees dates back 12 years when workers were also locked out. In 1985, Theede said another lockout had been threatened.

"It scared the membership then but it's not scaring us now."

While some of the workers picketing in Finch last week suspected hard feelings may linger, Lapointe disagreed.

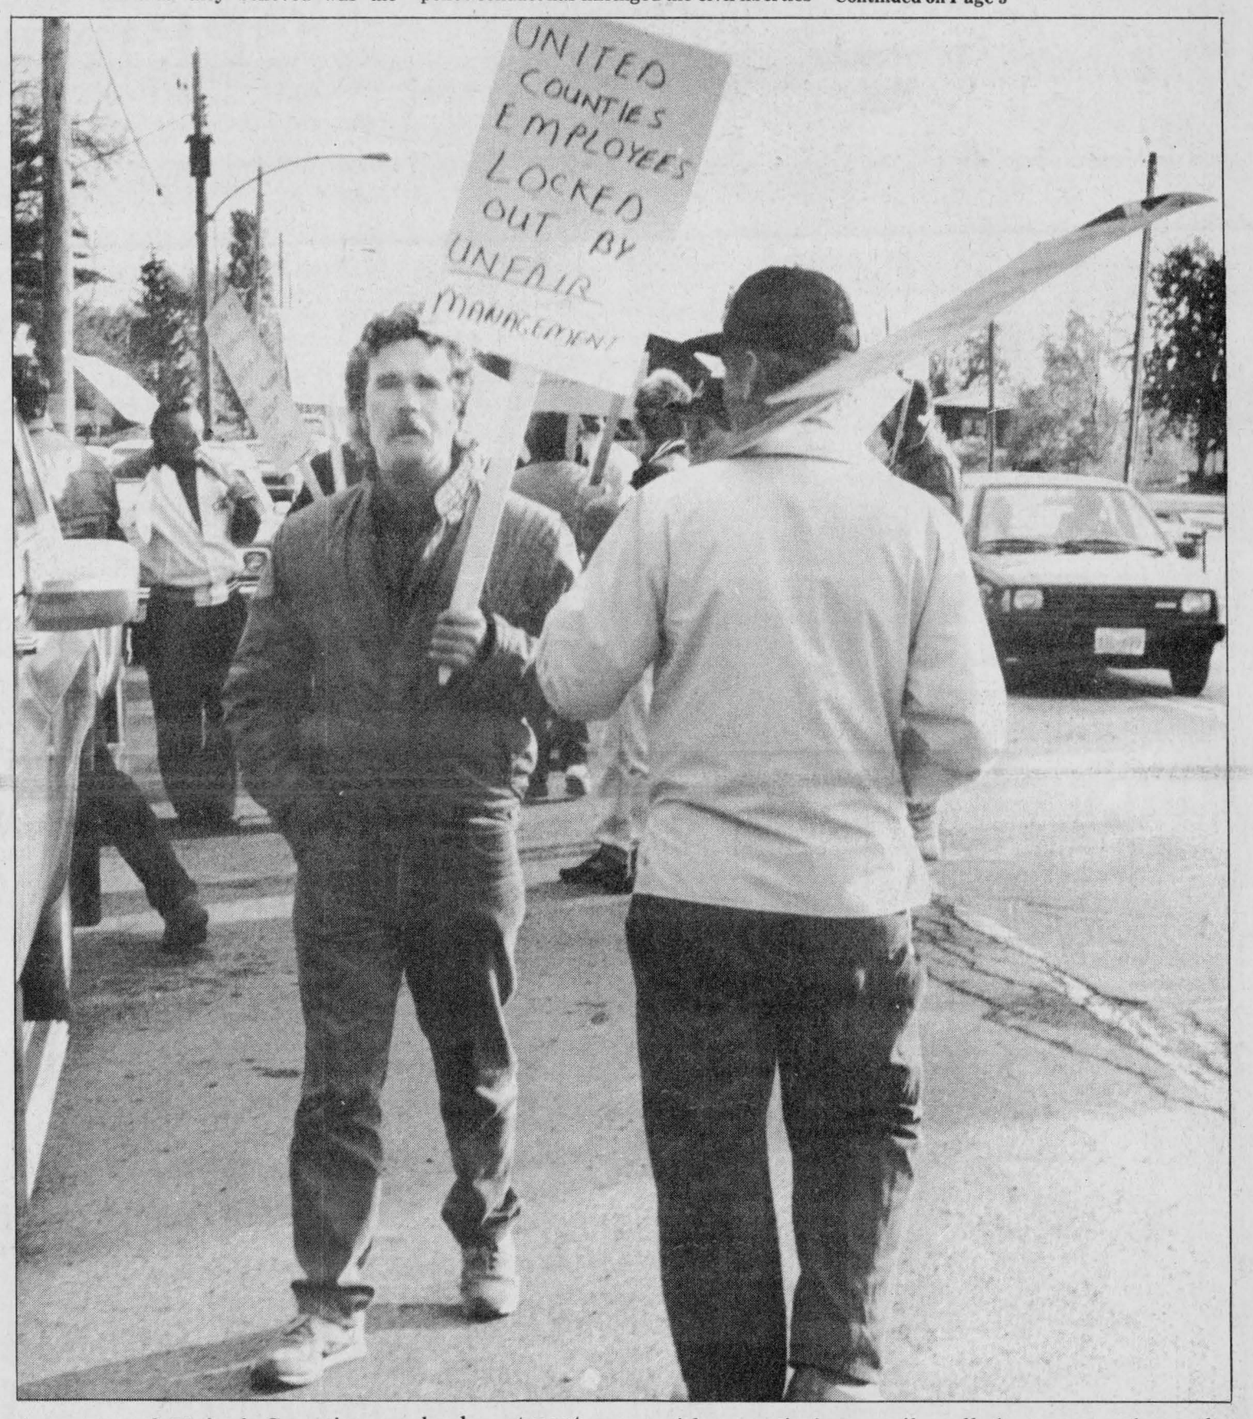
"I would hope that what took place in 1975 doesn't necessarily have a reflection on what's happening here now," he said. He added that a complement of new councillors and employees has come on the scene since 1975.

Until the dispute is settled, yard supervisors will have to patrol the counties' roads.

"We'll have to go out and replace stop signs and yield signs and still patch the roads. I suppose other than that everything will be on hold," said Gord McIntosh, Winchester Springs supervisor, from Finch on Thursday morning.

He doubted the lockout would greatly affect relations between workers and supervisors.

When the workers learned of the lockout, "They didn't say anything too much. They knew it was coming, I think, so what was the point."



A group of United Counties roads department, locked out last week when contract negotiations with counties' council stalled, converged on the Finch patrol yard Thursday morning with pickets.

Loss of federal funding drains Payne landowners

AVONMORE (Staff) - Roxborough Township Reeve John McIntyre remains optimistic money will come from somewhere to replace the one-third federal grant on the controversial Payne River drain project.

The township and landowners assessed for the $1.2 million learned recently their bid for financing through the Department of Regional Industrial Expansion had been rejected.

"It's not going to be easy but we're hopeful we're going to get extra funding from some government source," McIntyre said Tuesday from his Avonmore dairy farm.

By Oct. 12, the reeve expected a petition circulated among affected property owners requesting additional federal and provincial funding to cover the loss of an estimated $400,000 to be prepared for presentation to John Wise and Jack Riddell, federal and provincial ministers of agriculture.

"It would appear it's a political issue right now," McIntyre said.

The loss of the federal money, coupled with a 44 per cent increase in the project's estimated cost in 1985, would cause individual costs to skyrocket, said Brian Boyd, engineer with the Ottawa firm of A.J Graham Engineering Consultants Ltd.

At a public meeting last Wednesday night, he presented landowners with examples of the increase.

The gross assessment of a farmer originally assessed at $3,000 in 1984 automatically increased to $4,300 with the project's rising costs, he said. A provincial grant of $1,470 would be available and if the farmer wasn't allowed any compensation for use of his land or damage, he would be billed $2,850.

Three years ago -- with the federal money -- he would have paid only $1,000.

A farmer who benefitted substantially from the drain could have faced a gross assessment of $18,000 in 1984. This year, that figure would have risen to $25,920.

With federal and provincial grants covering two-thirds of the cost, and a suggested allowance of $3,000, Boyd said that farmer would have paid $3,000 in 1984.

Without the federal grant, the province would cover only $8,810 of the increased bill, leaving the property owner responsible for $14,110.

Boyd noted that about 55 farmers are being 80 per cent of the project's costs, a hardship made worse by dropping crop prices and increasing input costs.

"The only relief that I foresee being available is that the federal government does

Crysler communal services inch ahead

CRYSLER (Staff) - Six and a half years after it was discovered that 90 per cent of Crysler properties suffered from substandard water supply or waste disposal, an estimated $6.6 million communal water and sewage system is one step closer to reality.

But the project's engineers caution that construction of the actual system won't begin for at least another two years.

About 45 Crysler residents attended a public meeting Thursday at the Crysler Community Centre updating them on the project's progress. Don Lishman, director of environmental engineering with Kostuch Engineering Limited, said he could understand why residents, attending their third public meeting since 1981, would question whether the project had advanced at all.

But the extensive consultation with residents and all affected government agencies is "just normal process," engineer Fernard Decaire said.

"Even though it adds a couple of years to each project, it is basically the best route to go."

No one at last week's meeting questioned the need for the project.

Tests by the Ministry of the Environment and the Eastern Ontario Health Unit in 1980 and 1981 found that private wells throughout the village were being contaminated through substandard sewage disposal systems, improperly constructed wells and poor surface drainage. Human sewage was also being discharged into the drainage system.

The aquifier which provided water for most of the village's wells was widely contaminated and some well tests revealed high counts of nitrate and ammonia contamination, bacteria and chloride.

A survey four years ago found one-third of residents preferred a communal system.

"I think the time has come that something has to be done. It's that simple," said village resident Irene Armstrong. Armstrong and her husband Jack, she said, moved to Crysler from the city to get good water.

But after six months, during which their children had been sick, their well was tested and found to be contaminated with sewage.

"I just resent it from the ecological point of view," she said.

At the meeting, her husband asked whether residents who had originally supported the project could back out when they learned how much it would cost.

Lishman pointed out the community would have at least two more chances to comment on the project. After the project receives a certificate of approval from the Ministry of the Environment, which Lishman anticipated will come late next year, property owners with objections can take it before the Ontario Municipal Board.

Dicaire assured the crowd with a chuckle Finch Township council would be monitoring costs closely. "Next year being an election, year, I'm sure they're going to be good watchdogs."

The province will pick up 85 per cent of the construction and engineering costs. Installation of the communal sewage system is estimated at $2.95 million, leaving owners to pay for $443,000.

On average, Kostuch estimated each

Fire Marshal to probe blaze

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - The Ontario Fire Marshal's office has been called in to investigate a fire which destroyed a home north of here Friday night.

Claude Cousineau, deputy fire chief of the Winchester Township fire department, labelled the fire "suspicious" but said he could not divulge any details as to why he believed so.

About 25 firefighters from the Morewood and Chesterville fire department responded to the fire which gutted the one-storey home of Leo Pinnard, about 2 km north of Chesterville on Cty. Rd. 7.

It took the firefighters about an hour to extinguish the blaze, Cousineau said. No one was home when the fire broke out.

A neighbor who called the fire department had gone by the house and seen all the lights on, but when he returned 10 minutes later, the house was ablaze, Cousineau said.

A second weekend fire caused an undetermined amount of damage to a home and machine shed east of Berwick.

The shed, owned by Rainer Pethke, just east of the village Petro-Canada station, was destroyed by the blaze Saturday night, said Finch Fire Chief Don McKercher. The intense heat also melted the vinyl siding on one side of the Pethke home, he said.

About 14 Finch firemen fought the late night blaze for three hours. The blaze started around 11:30 p.m. Saturday. There'll be no investigation, McKercher said.

Chesterville firefighters still the best

21-member squad picks up two awards for fire protection programs

SOUTH MOUNTAIN (Staff) - The Chesterville Volunteer Fire Department has once again been named SD&G's premier department for dedication to fire prevention.

The 21-member squad was presented with the Jack MacMillan annual award for fire prevention programs at the annual SD&G Mutual Aid Association banquet here Saturday.

The department received the association's award for attendance and fire prevention knowledge based on competition between the area's 23 department between the area's 23 departments during mutual aid meetings held throughout the year.

It was the second consecutive year that the Chesterville department has swept both awards.

"I really appreciate the work the men in this department do. It's their award," said Chesterville Fire Chief Ross Casselman.

"We work together and I think that's why we've got a good department," said Casselman. "I feel we have one of the best departments in the three United Counties."

The department's fire prevention program has included talks and demonstrations with schools, local groups and private citizens. Chesterville first won recognition for its programs under the leadership of the late Mike Fyke.

"A lot of these programs started with Mike and we've tried to carry on what we did," said Casselman.

Following the awards, members of the Finch Volunteer Fire Department pledged to give Chesterville a run for its money in the competitions next year.

"I hope they do," said Chesterville Deputy Fire Chief Mike McMahon. "That means they're working that much harder and that means their community will be that much safer.

"Everybody benefits when there are fewer fires."

During the banquet, which was attended by firemen from across SD&G, an "unsung hero" was also recognized.

At the annual SD&G Mutal Aid Association banquet at the agricultural hall here Saturday, Gerry Lecuyer of South Mountain was made an honorary fire chief.

Lecuyer, a former restaurant owner who has manned fire phones and radios and helped organize functions for the Mountain Township Fire Department, received the award from association president Dwayne Berry.

According to Mountain Township department member Terry Foley, Lecuyer has been helping the department for about eight years.

"If it was the middle of the night, he'd always bring coffee to us," said Foley. "Anything we'd want anyone to do who wasn't a fireman, he'd do it."

Other awards were presented to the fire departments of Chesterville and Newington. The Chesterville department picked up the points system trophy for top scores in training, and the fire prevention trophy for operating an effective local fire prevention program.

Two trophies also went to the Newington department: a trophy for good attendance at mutual aid meetings, and a training award.

The past president's award was presented to Perry Tinkess. Also receiving a special award was Hugh O'Reilly, former Cornwall fire chief, who was stepping down as fire services co-ordinator.

Through the mutual aid program, the fire departments of SD&G pool their resources to provide increased protection and fighters in case a fire becomes too much for one department to handle.

The mutual aid program was back-up services for neighboring communities. The system is designed to provide back-up equipment and trained fireset up by the Ontario Fire Marshal's office because most small municipalities previously had to depend entirely on their own firefighting force and equipment.

The primary objective of the association is the promotion and development of mutual fire aid within the counties. The association also promotes standardized fire training programs.

Fire training instructors are appointed by individual fire departments to supplement the work of the Fire Marshal's district officer and of the fire services co-ordinator.

The Chesterville Volunteer Fire Department has once again been recognized for playing an outstanding role in fire prevention, capturing two awards at the annual SD&G Mutual Aid Association banquet in South Mountain Saturday. Chesterville, which also won the awards last year, topped 22 other squads. With the trophies are, left to right, Deputy chief Mike McMahon, Chief Ross Casselman, Doug Hess and Dale

Trade show turned arena into showroom floor

Finch means business as trade show draws 1,200

FINCH (Staff) - An estimated 1,200 people trekked through the Finch arena Friday night and Saturday, raising an estimated $3,000 for minor sports and an elevator for the village's senior citizens.

"For a population of about 400 in Finch, that's pretty good," said Bryon Stewart, one of the organizers of Finch's first trade fair in a decade.

"All the exhibitors were well pleased, they said they'd come back again."

A poll of exhibitors taken as the fair wound down Saturday found 70 per cent would favor to Finch in two years.

"I don't think next year. I think maybe we'll go every second year if we get it up again. Chesterville is next year."

Proceeds from the two-day display of businesses and crafts will be shared between the minor sports sponsored by the village and Finchview Villa, currently raising money to install an elevator in the two-storey senior citizens complex.

Stewart said the Finch Ladies Recreation Association, which ran a canteen selling the goods of the village's two grocery stores, was pleased with its own profits.

Also satisfied was the Finch branch of the Canadian Cancer Society, which raised more than $660 through a bake sale Saturday.

While businesses on the arena floor ranged from car dealerships to grocery stores, the Community Centre upstairs was partially filled with the work of craftspeople and artists.

A few of the paintings sold and Stewart predicted others would be purchased after thoughtful shoppers had had a chance to think about it.

Jim McMahon of Elma was the lucky winner of a black and white television set in a draw for a door prize.

The booth of Marion Byers of R.R.4, Crysler was judged the best among the 35 on the arena floor and Stewart noted her floral arrangements also graced the displays of other businesses.

Holmes 'glad' OPP reviewed

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Although he's "glad" a review of the Winchester OPP detachment is finished, Winchester Township Reeve Gerald Holmes still has some concerns about local police protection.

Cpl. Al Crocker of the Long Sault OPP confirmed Monday the review was finished, but said details won't be released until the report is reviewed by the OPP's district command staff and the Commissioner's office.

The review was instigated by a complaint letter from Morewood Industries and a resolution from Winchester Township council asking for better police protection. Police would not say which item prompted the investigation.

"I think what we're trying to do is keep the detachment now in Winchester. That's one of our biggest concerns," Holmes said Monday night.

The visibility of the police force is also a major factor in deterring crime, he added.

Both he and Deputy-Reeve Claude Cousineau maintained it's the quantity, not the quality, of the OPP officers at the detachment they're concerned about.

"They're human beings, like you and me. They only can be at one place at a time."

Holmes said the resolution passed by council will be brought up at the next counties' council meeting.

Noble Villeneuve, Conservative MPP for SD&G, said if there are to be major changes, the community will have input first.

If there are going to be changes, "I'll be the first to know," he added.

He also maintained the police force must be more visible. "Let's face it," when a police force is dealing with a largely rural area, visibility is "most important."

Commenting on the OPP press conference concerning a suspected serial killer in the area, he said it was alright for the OPP to "ferret out" information from the community. But it was a "mistake" to lead reporters to the alleged suspect.

"I think we still have confidence in the OPP. I think we have an excellent police force."

But the democratic system must be upheld, he said. A person should remain innocent until proven guilty. "Absolutely, that's sacred."

Joan Smith, the new provincial solicitor general, "basically echoed the same sentiments" that he had voiced when she apologized for the OPP press conference, Villeneuve said. Smith made the public apology in a statement released Friday.

And although the police suggested that the media talk to the serial murder suspect, the media is still at least "partially" to blame, he said.

Apology not enough: rights' activist

But Donald Whiteside, a 55-year-old Nepean civil rights activist, said Tuesday the OPP should have gone further and cleared the Chesterville man of all blame.

"We think they could've gone just one step further and cleared the whole situation." If there isn't enough evidence to charge the man, he should be cleared, Whiteside said.

"At this point of junction...(the suspect) is innocent of all charges."

It's "just outrageous" that a person can be named as a suspect without being charged, he said. "We noticed an increasing use of this tactic by the police."

He named the Richard Hatfield case as one example. News that New Brunswick premier had been caught possessing marijuana was leaked to the media before any charges were laid.

Whiteside also cited the case of Toronto nurse Susan Nelles. Nelles was charged with the murder of a number of babies at the hospital where she worked. In both cases police were forced to drop the charges, he said.

"Increasingly we're seeing the police acting...irresponsibly to the detriment of the people they're arresting for an offense." The Susan Nelles case is probably the "best example of that," he said.

Because of the way OPP has handled the serial murder case it may be difficult to find an objective jury, should the case go to trial, he said. The fact that the solicitor general apologized for the OPP press conference may also affect the trial, he said.

The police may need more evidence to convict the killer, since an apology has already been made, he said.

Whiteside said his group was "very pleased" with the apology, though. "We think that's a very courageous thing to do."

Corporal Al Crocker of the Long Sault OPP refused comment on both the solicitor general's and Whiteside's statements. Police are still waiting for the results of the Archie Collison post-mortem, and the investigation is still continuing, he said.

Collison's remains were exhumed by police last week, under the authority of the attorney general. The 71-year-old Oxford Mills man was found dead in the charred rubble of his home after it was destroyed by fire in November, 1983.

Crocker said there are no plans at present to exhume the bodies of two other people that police are linking to the murders. Kenneth Murphy, of Finch Township, died in a fire at his home Jan. 8, 1981. The charred remains of Lillian Tousant, of Glen Stewart, were found tied to a cot after a fire destroyed her home Sept. 24, 1975.

Feds twice shy on Payne River project stand up and assume its share as promised in various degrees over the years," Boyd said.

McIntyre said the federal government has twice committed money to the Payne project, first through the Agricultural Rehabilitation Development Agreement and then through the Eastern Ontario Subsidiary Agreement, which has expired.

He said it wouldn't be unprecedented for the province to step in to cover the federal share of funding, which it did for other projects left in limbo between the ARDA program and the signing of the subsidiary agreement.

He believes the province may have a further obligation to the project. Work on the Payne was delayed for two years in the early '80s, he said, pending the completion of the South Nation River Basin Study.

Although the province paid for any additional charges to the drain during that time, he noted the study caused some of the more contentious changes that spurred objections and ate up even more time.

The delay may have pushed the project beyond the subsidiary agreement's deadline, he said.

"There's been a number of unfortunate circumstances brought to bear in this case," McIntyre said.

Roxborough representatives met with Wise last spring to push for money and found him sympathetic, McIntyre said. But a request for a second meeting was turned down by the minister's staff:"They said they were doing all that could be done right now."

Boyd said the federal government has agreed to cover its share of the cost of a "relatively small" municipal drainage project on Wolfe Island despite the expiry of the agreement.

The Payne Drain has been the subject of debate since it was first proposed in 1975. Objections to the project's scope and cost forced it before the Ontario Drainage Tribunal twice, with the latest decision being handed down in November of 1985.

At that time, the cost was cut almost $300,000 to $923,500 but Boyd said increased construction costs, interest charges and engineering fees have pushed it back to $1.2 million.

In 1986, Roxborough decided to go ahead with the project even though federal commitment was questionable.

"This thing has been going on for 11 years now. There's been a lot of costs incurred over that period of time," McIntyre said, citing engineering and legal fees.

Crysler water project to cost $3.7 million property owner would pay $1,477 in capital costs (or an average annual payment of $192 over 20 years) as well as annual maintenance and service fees of $145.

The communal water system carries a price tag of almost $3.7 million, of which owners would chip in $550,000.

The typical property owner would pay a one-time bill of about $1,800 (or $239 annually for 20 years) in addition to an estimated annual charge of $189.

"We're a little premature in presenting these costs," Lishman said. Council, he noted, has yet to decide how to apportion costs and cited frontage and property assessment as two possible alternatives.

Council has registered an option to purchase a well site east of the village on land owned by Raymond Provost Cartage Limited.

Two sites -- Roy and Dorothy Middleton's property near the Finch-Cambridge boundary and Roger Grenon's land east of the Payne River -- are being considered for the sewage treatment lagoon. Between 30 and 40 acres of land will be needed for the actual lagoon and the required buffer zone.

The possible selection of the Grenon drew protests last year when residents of the area presented council with a petition of 51 names opposing its choice. Neighboring property owners feared a lagoon would stink and devalue their own land.

Negotiations to purchase land for the lagoon have been turned over to the Ontario Ministry of Government Services.

Kostuch hasn't yet recommended whether the township should construct a sewage treatment plant or a lagoon. As part of the process to find the best project, Lishman said no property purchase decisions may be made until all recommendations are in.

As one of some 20 property owners along the well route to the village, Middleton asked whether they'd be able to hook into the system.

Dicaire said that while the well couldn't service dairy farming operations, it might be able to handle additional homes. Charges, added Lishman, would be different than those levied against village residents.

Residents would be able to retain their wells (although everyone would be forced to connect to the municipal system) as long as they weren't connected to the communal line.

The only treatment the water would receive, Lishman said, is chlorination. "The water's hard, you'd probably have to provide a softener," he added.

150th anniversary committee undaunted

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - The committee organizing 150th anniversary festivities in Chesterville next year will go ahead with its plans although the historical accuracy of the anniversary date has been questioned.

At a meeting Monday night, eight committee members decided to apply for two federal and provincial grants to help defray the cost of Canada Day festivities and celebrations throughout the rest of the 10-day agenda, to run for July 1 to 10.

The grant applications, to be submitted with the help of Chesterville Recreation Director Tom Lee, will be made on the basis the village will celebrate its 150th anniversary next year. Next year will also mark the 50th anniversary of the village's Rotary Club.

Members of the Chesterville and District Historical Society have admitted to some concerns about the 1988 date. If the village's 1890 incorporation date were to be used as the village's origin, Chesterville would be only 98 next year.

Settlement in Armstrong Mills, which later came to be called Chesterville, dates back to 1832 -- which would make next year the village's 156th birthday.

Jim Sullivan, co-chairman of the committee, defended the choice of the 150th date, saying the village will be at least 150 years old next year. And Judy McPhail, committee secretary, said legal advice has approved of the use of the 150th figure. Nowhere, she said, does the committee state the date is exact nor has Chesterville ever celebrated a 150th anniversary.

She suggested at the meeting that the committee approach council for a resolution that it stands behind the organizing committee.

THE CHESTERVILLE Record Editorial / Opinion

Apology accepted

A muted chorus of cheers went up Friday when Ontario's new solicitor general apologized for a press conference held from OPP district headquarters in Long Sault two and a half weeks ago.

The press conference, where police suggested that the media attempt to contact the man they suspect in three grisly killings in Stormont and Dundas, was followed by a stampede to Winchester and Chesterville. Reporters relied on local rumors and staked out the home of a man against whom no charges have yet been laid.

Public pressure, led by SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve, to find the killer was quickly replaced by disgust at the trampling of a citizen's right to privacy and the presumption of innocence by camera equipment, tape recorders and notepads.

It was a sobering thought that the presumption of innocence until proven guilty could be so easily ignored, even amid the real fears of a community unused to violent crime.

The apology by Joan Smith is reassuring, suggesting there will be no repeat of the events of the last couple of weeks.

But for some, it's threatening; a strong faith in the ability of the police to uphold the laws society makes is regarded as a tenet of a safe, stable community.

But the questioning of that authority's judgement when merited is the sign of a healthy, thinking society.

No organization -- however right its cause or good its intentions -- is infallible.

If the solicitor general follows through with her promise, there will be a review of guidelines governing police press conferences and the issuing of press releases.

It'll be a review of the procedures of an organization established by the community to enforce what that same public considers important...and the review was ordered by a government for which the public has indicated its support.

The Life of Riley

by Wayne Riley

I do not own a video camera and I did not borrow one for my first real trip to the United States last Saturday, but I have a tape that brings back all the wonderful moments.

It is a $5 Fuji VHS tape that I bought in a mall in Burlington, Vermont, just after the kids had turned over their Party Meals in Arby's and put the boxes on their heads and just before my wife and I had paid $86 for clothing that we left in the store.

The tape runs for eight hours, which is two hours shorter than our spur-of-the-moment trip lasted, but all the major moments are there. Let me play some of it back:

7:05am. I announce that we are going to drive to Bangor, Maine, and see the house where horror novelist Stephen King lives. We are then going to drive to the ocean, which I have never seen.

"Are you expecting to do this today," my wife, asks incredulously.

"Well, yes," I say. "That's why I want to get started early."

9am. We leave for the United States of America.

9:30am. We leave for the United States of America again, this time with the camera.

10:30am. I stand under a highway sign that says State of New York while my wife takes pictures. It is the first time I have stood on American soil. A motorist drives by and shakes his head. I wave. I want to be an ambassador of goodwill for Canada.

10:45am. We miss the turn to Vermont and end up at the Canadian border again. We turn around and run into American Customs.

"Where are you headed?" the customs official asks.

"The United States," I say.

"Where are you coming from," he asks.

"The United States, "I say. "We were in Canada and we came to the US and we ended up in Canada again. "We're just trying to find the States again."

The official looks at me. He does not smile. "You head south," he says at last.

12:35pm We enter Burlington, Vermont, during a light rain. We have travelled approximately an inch and a half on our map in three hours and Bangor is another five inches away. The children are hungry and my wife is edgey. I do not need to see the home of a horror novelist this day. A tale of fear is already coming together in the car.

4pm. We have eaten, shopped and taken pictures in the United States of America. "This is the craziest thing we've ever done," I say to my wife, bending down by a car to point at a Vermont licence plate.

"But I'm glad we did it," she says, taking a picture while passersby shake their heads. "I've really enjoyed this day. Thanks for suggesting it."

7pm. We arrive at the customs office at the border. My wife and I have talked this over and both decide that honesty is the best policy.

"Anything to declare?" a burly official asks through a sliding window.

"Yes," I say. "We have $86 worth of clothing and a tape."

"Could you park at the left, sir," the man says. "Duty," I say to my wife. "Probably a couple of dollars."

7:10pm. "Are you writing down $38?" I ask through a gaping mouth."

The man nods.

They don't have blank cheques but they do accept credit cards. It takes two men 10 minutes to get the card through the machine. And they are nearly doubled up with laughter. "Ever have one of those days?" one of them asks me.

7:40pm. My wife discovers that we do not have our bag of new clothes in the car. "Are you saying that we spent $84 for clothes that we now don't have and that we spent $38 on duty for clothes we don't have?" I ask.

She nods.

I have a seizure on the lawn.

10:15pm. Wendy's and Zayres in Burlington, Vermont, have been called. No one has seen the clothes. My wife goes to bed feeling terrible.

I sit down at the kitchen table and work out some figures. With the exchange, the cost of gas, the duty, and the money spent on non-existent clothes, I estimate that my $5 Fuji VHS tape has cost me $137, about $130 more than it would have cost me in Canada.

A headlne on a nearby newspaper says Canada and the United States are ready to work out a deal on free trade. I turn it over and get up to go to bed with priceless memories floating in my head.

Chesterville's Past

07 From the Record Thurs., Oct. 17, 1907

Court Chesterville, C.O.F. No. 247, have secured the services of some world-famed Scottish entertainers, to appear in Foster's Hall, Chesterville, on Wednesday evening, Nov. 13th. This is expected to be an exceptional treat. Be sure and keep the date in mind.

The many friends of Mr. J.W. Smith will be pleased to know that he arrived here from Ottawa this week and intends taking up his residence among us. He will be employed in Chester Casselman's store.

Mr. Patrick Masterson of the Cobalt district, arrived in town on Saturday looking hale and hearty. He has been away for about a year and a half.

Mrs. Isaiah Ouderkirk and Miss Jane McLean have returned home after visiting the former's sister, Mrs. Doran of Syracuse, and brother of Niagara Falls. They also visited friends at Brockville and Smiths Falls upon their return.

The Lord's Day Alliance will take action against the railways at Edmonton for Sunday labor.

If you had been at the depot this morning and witnessed the bustling around, and heard the chains on the dogs rattling, nothing more would be expected on the return than some excellent deer yarns. To lovers of such sport it was quite interesting. The event was the going away of one of the hunt clubs from this place, their destination being their hunting grounds in the Labelle district.

27 From the Record Thurs., Oct. 20, 1927

Tuesday evening about eight o'clock a demonstration was given on North Main street, just west of the bridge, showing that the "Care and Courtesy" campaign of the Department of Highways has not yet gotten fully into swing in this place. A Ford touring car came at a reckless pace up Water street and along Main and whether the driver of the Ford saw more than two cars on the street is now known. But as he was passing a car parked at the curb, he smashed into a Chevrolet touring car coming from the opposite direction, stripping it of running board and fender and crippling the steering gear of the front end of the Ford that it made the right-about-face in a very short space.

The pupils of the local Public school held their Annual Field Day last Wednesday afternoon, October 12th, on the P.S. grounds. A very keen competition was noted among the contestants in each event on the programme.

A couple of weeks ago we drew attention to the fact that an unfamiliar species of fish had been taken from a newly dug well on the premises of Reuben Carkner about six miles south of Chesterville, believed to have come there from an underground stream discovered when deepening the well. Rev. Mr. Orok took specimens of these fish alive to the Department of Marine and Fisheries on the matter. "The fish that you left in the Department a few days ago is a variety of killifish which occurs in both fresh and salt water forms. It is among the most hardy of the smaller "minnow" fishes and is used largely for bait on account of their tenacity of life, standing rather rough treatment before succumbing.

"We dare not excuse shallow living on the ground that we are getting broad," said Rev. Hector Beach at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club last Tuesday evening. "Our interest in local affairs is growing too thin, and like all things, when the interest and incentive is lost, there is a withering away of the strength of the local affairs until outside interests find a rich ground for exploitation."

Need of extended Home Mission work among those who live in areas far from an organized church and greater efforts in the Overseas Mission fields were stressed at the Eastern Sectional Rally of the Women's Missionary Society held at Winchester Springs United Church, Wednesday of last week.

Meeting at their regular monthly meeting, the Chesterville Chamber of Commerce decided that the feelings of the local chamber should be felt in the meeting of all the Eastern Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade to be held in Ottawa regarding the import of margarine into this country.

Police chief Leonard Shane will be assisted by extra provincial police next Tuesday night when the goblins are about. It will be Hallowe'en night and as usual, certain loose objects will become the objects of attention of wandering hands. Last year vandalism was at a minimum. The extra police had a good effect in quietening down some of the more exuberant spirits.

Thanks to the fact that the ruffled grouse appears to go crazy in October, these birds often have fatal accidents while in towns and villages. Such was the case recently when a beauty flew into a plate glass window at MacLean's Hardware in Finch. Whether or not this bird's presence in the village was the result of eating too many wild grapes will probably not be considered when it appears on the family platter.

The Misses Rose and Marion MacNaughton of Buffalo, were guests during the past week of Miss Marion Casselman and Mr. and Mrs. H.K. Graham.

A prize for a hunter is a big Canada goose. They are smart and wary and it is difficult to get them in the gun sights, especially when they are feeding in open corn fields. Jack Lannin and Ronnie Cass heard a flock feeding Monday evening and after a silent stock, managed to get their guns into action. The results are three fine Canadas which proved to be very fat, weighing eight pounds, eight pounds - one ounce and seven pounds - 14 ounces respectively.

An engineering firm working in consultation with the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications has completed a study which calls for the replacement of three bridges and spot repairs to four others in Finch Township. The study, prepared by R.M. Kostuch Associates Ltd., urges the complete overhaul of the Payne River bridge on the road between the eighth and ninth concessions.

Chelation Therapy ban a conspiracy

To the Editor:

The College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario have seen fit to recommend to the Minister of Health of Ontario, Mr. Murray Elston, that a law be passed to ban the treatment of Chelation Therapy.

What sort of conspiracy is going on in our College of Physicians and Surgeons to withhold a treatment from patients who freely want it, as opposed to expensive drugs which twist the mind?

I watched my husband become a drug confused man, who had to go to the hospital twice a week for blood tests, have to adjust his coumadin, more, or less, as dictated by his blood clotting time, not able to walk, work, or think clearly.

He had chelation therapy. He was then able to think, work, drive, and take part in community work, was Chairman of Raisin River Conservation Authority, and is still on the Authority.

A by-pass was tried on him, in his third vertebrae, in the neck. Eight hours on the operating table. The surgeons at Kingston General Hospital are good, but were unable to make the by-pass, and he was sent home to die, given maybe two months. I was told not to worry if he took another stroke, there was nothing they could do for him. I was told not to get too excited!!!

Hasn't he been through enough? How dare these doctors take away my husband's right to have the treatment that is helping him live a normal life?

How dare these doctors say it doesn't work, and place a ban on this treatment, in the name of helping patients?

We had to discover this treatment on our own - not one surgeon said, "Try this before we cut you open." This operation was a 5 per cent chance of pulling through. There had been only 2 or 3 of this type done, and they weren't so lucky.

What happens to my husband if he is not allowed to receive chelation? Is he condemned to going back to mind-twisting drugs, prescribed by doctors, and backed by big pharmaceutical companies?

We have paid OHIP all our lives, but because it is not recognized treatment, by the government of Ontario, we have to pay for these treatment ourselves. Now we are being told we can't even be allowed to do this.

Is this what our government is all about? Where is our democracy?

At least let us have the choice. I have not yet received a reply to my letter to the Minister of Health.

I appeal to all concerned readers to write to him, on our behalf, demanding a reversal of this law, so my husband, and others who are taking this treatment, and there are a lot, be allowed their freedom to have the treatment that works for them.

I am asking for help, I can't do this alone. My husband's life depends on it.

Yours truly,
Agnes Cooper
(Mrs. William T. Cooper)

by Wyn Thompson

Our Canadian Thanksgiving Day is but a breath away. On our continent, we trace this lovely day back to the making of the Pilgrims' little party, a continuing national celebration.

But, the Book of Judges reports that the Caanites "went out into the field and gathered their vineyards and trod the grapes and held festival and went to the house of their God and did eat and drink."

Then, too, the Romans held a harvest festival called Cerelia for Ceres, the goddess of grain. They also feasted and drank and danced.

The English celebrated Harvest Home, when the last load of grain was hauled from the field, with singing and dancing and, naturally, a big feast.

The Indians, also, had their Thanksgiving - a three-or four-day celebration honoring the beginning of a new year with a feast of new corn. Singing and dancing were part of their celebration as well.

And so it continues today, one of the best of our national celebrations. It is a long holiday for school children. College students arrive home. Families get together. A good deal of baking and cooking goes on. Houses are fragrant with the smell of pumpkin pie, my favorite.

Even in times of privation, families feel compelled to bring out their best for Thansgiving dinner. Speak to any person who survived our Depression and you will hear of how artfully they worked to prepare a feast worthy of the day.

In many homes there's no religious service beyond a blessing asked by one of the number gathered there, but the habit of "counting our blessings," is probably very strong in all of us.

The Farmer and I attempt to get our wood in before Thanksgiving but this is being hampered somewhat by the Farmer having badly smashed a toe just three days after we returned from our little holiday down south.

Speaking of the southern states news reports - not a word was carried on the Free Trade Deal which was falling apart during our stay down there, much less the Ontario election results. We did get a good review of the election results from a Vineland couple we met there, though. Rather deflates one's ego.

Scamp

We returned to find that old reprobate of a cat Scamp, who had shared our home and life for 27 years had died. It was inevitable, we know, but we did miss the mean-mouthing he always gave us upon our return. Now there's only Lady and the house seems strangely quiet.

The lawns are lush and green once more after the late September rains and mowing is again the order of the day, as well as bulb planting and leaf raking.

The woods are a picture now and I am told that the Slavs call this month 'Yellow month' from the fading of the leaf, while the Anglo-Saxons, it was know as Winter flylleth, because at this moon (fylleth) winter was supposed to begin. Hopefully, it will hold off for a while yet.

But the days do grow shorter now, and the nights chillier. Bit by bit, the trees will give up their finery, and the world around me will come into view once more. It is good to have my horizons widened again.

When I walk now I bring home a harvest of burs on my slacks and socks and dog. Even a brief walk back the lane gathers a good many to me and my dog. Plucking them off, I marvel at the variety of ingenious ways a seed can hitch a ride.

Muskrats are already stocking Winter pantries with cattail roots, I am told. Frogs and turtles have already hibernated in the mud.

Cows stand in pleasant aimlessness in a corner of the field as I go by on a warm autumn afternoon, of which we get quite a few now. A rabbit goes lippety lippety into the bush. A wandering country cat pauses to eye us soberly, then sleeks away on her own serious problem. Lady pays her no mind.

As I drove to town for groceries this morning I saw people putting their gardens to bed. This is a satisfying job. Burning the cornstalks, pruning and tidying the borders and raking leaves are all sound pursuits. Planting of bulbs goes on until the ground freezes or "until I play out" as Sam's wife says of her fall planting

Suppers on the gallery are a thing of the past now as nights are cold and twilight is brief. So we settle for supper by the fire, and lean toward rib-sticking dishes.

October weather makes for good appetities. We seem to be always hungry, from the scrambled eggs at breakfast right through to the cheddar cheese and wedges of crisp McIntosh apples in front of evening television programs.

Add a bowl of buttered popcorn and spend an evening viewing or reading and nibbling. Our popcorn is out of the can. This is not very romantic I know, but we tried raising our own many years ago, and for some reason it did not pop. So we get the can opener and the butter and salt and heat the old pressure cooker (without the pressure valve), and there we are. Fluffy, buttery popcorn.

Oh yes, I had two automatic poppers but found neither successful. Both spewed unpopped corn at my feet so I returned to my trusty old pressure cooker.

The soup kettle sits on the back of the stove and the air is savoury with onions and carrots as a beef stew simmers. Now we regret the lack of roses in a bouquet, but forget the bugs and beetles. Summer, viewed now, seems to have been idyllic. Soon the storms will assail our homes, and when they pass we will breathe easier.

Suddenly summer's work is over, as is autumn's. My heart is light. I am standing in a newly-minted world and I can step toward a new season of interesting activities.

New proposal could end home for aged woes

INKERMAN (Staff) - A new proposal being worked on by the United Counties and the City of Cornwall could mean construction of the new home for the aged could begin in spring, says counties Warden Keith Fawcett.

Although present legislation won't allow the counties to build satellite homes, a similar concept, in which small independent homes could be located throughout SD&G, might be the answer to county council's problems, Fawcett said.

The city and the counties hope the proposal will be ready in "a couple of weeks", he said. It will then be sent to the provincial government and county council for approval.

"But we've got to get that on paper before we give up the present home," Fawcett said. The City of cornwall asked to buy the site at a meeting two weeks ago. But Fawcett said the counties aren't giving up the home until they know for sure they can build some type of satellite home or homes.

The counties now own Glen-Stor Dun Lodge and its 15-acre site. Two years ago, county council decided to build a new lodge, rather than renovate the present one. Because the City of Cornwall also has residents at the lodge, it too was forced to make plans for a new home for the aged.

Fawcett said the counties will include a number of options in its proposal to the ministry. Putting additions on existing homes or sharing beds with private homes are two of the "many different things" the counties will be proposing, he said.

Raymond Lapointe, United Counties administrator, said the construction of smaller homes throughout the counties will be an asset to residents.

"It will certainly enable the counties to provide service in areas where there's an identified need."

United Counties officials were to meet with government officials Tuesday night. When counties officials learn what concepts are acceptable to the government, they can resume negotiations with the city, he said.

Lapointe said last week's meeting went very well and the two sides are beginning to understand each other's situation. "I think the city understands the counties' dilemma."

Motion favoring plaza scrapped

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Winchester Township council has rescinded a motion favoring the construction of a gas bar and mini-plaza in the township after learning the land has not been properly zoned.

Council passed a motion in favor of the development in early August with the condition a buffer zone be put in place where the development borders on residential land.

But councillors didn't know when they passed the motion that the site was zoned for residential, not commercial use.

In an interview in mid-August, a spokesman for the company doing the project said he hoped to start construction in October. The 4,200 square foot development was to contain three stores, a gas bar and an auto repair shop.

But the firm, Richmond-Glen Estates, Ottawa, now won't be able to start construction until spring, said Councillor Dwayne Holmes at a council meeting Monday.

The zoning change could hold up the project anywhere from three months to a year or more, should there be objections. The proposed change must first be advertised in the local newspaper for 30 days. A public meeting must then be held and the public is given 20 days to comment.

The proposed development was to be located on Concession 6, east of D&J Motors, near Winchester. As well as the gas bar, it was to include a coffee and donut shop, a convenience store and possibly a hairdressing salon.

Bake sale a huge success

FINCH (Special) - The Finch Branch of Canadian Cancer Society held a very successful bake sale at the Finch Trade Fair Saturday.

The President, Mrs. Gary Nugent, and her members of Finch Branch were pleased with the many items of food we received for the sale. The total sum was $663. Thanks go to the many kind donors to this special event to assist in our fundraising.

The Vollrath Hair Styling and Barbering Shop made the donation to pay for our booth.

The cookbook, donated by Gaye Benoit, Crylser, was won by Betty Vinet, Ingleside.

A cake decorated by Debbie Smith, Finch was won by Tony Mekker, Finch.

To the many volunteers for time spent in decorating the booth and selling the food, we extend a hearty thank you.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM

McMILLAN — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Doreen, who passed away October 5, 1985.
We do not need a special day,
To bring her to our minds,
For the days we do not think of her,
Are very hard to find.

Lovingly remembered by,
Gerald and family

IN MEMORIAM

FYKE — In loving memory of a dear brother and uncle Paul, who passed away on October 11, 1974.,
A tribute of love and remembrance,
To a brother who was one of the best,
The joys that he missed on life's highways,
May he find in God's garden of rest.
He was taken without any warning,
His going left hearts filled with pain,
But though he is gone from among us.
In our hearts he will always remain.

Sadly missed by Sharon, Allen
and Chris VanBridger

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM

PRINCE — In loving memory of our father, father-in-law and grandfather who left us Oct. 8, 1981.
Your end came sudden,
No time to say good-bye.
You were gone before we realized,
And only God knows why.
A golden heart stopped beating,
Two busy hands at rest,
God only takes the best.

Sadly missed,
always remembered by
Chris and Janice McMillan
and family

IN MEMORIAM

GREER — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Harold who passed away October 8, 1984.
We who loved you sadly miss you,
As it dawns another year.
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of you are ever near.

Sadly missed by
Harry, Shirley,
Kevin and Darren

IN MEMORIAM

VanBREUGEL — In loving memory of a very dear father, father-in-law, and Pappa, Dinegman VanBreugel, who left us all so sudden on Oct. 8, 1973.
A bouquet of carnations just picked,
Sprinkled with teardrops instead of dew,
In the centre, a forget-me-not,
To let you know, Dear Dad, we haven't forgot.

IN MEMORIAM

FYKE — In loving memory of a dear son Paul, who passed away on October 11, 1974.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.

Always remembered by mother Marie

IN MEMORIAM

CRAIK — In loving memory of Audrey Craik who passed away on Oct. 8, 1984.
Upright and just in all her ways,
Loyal and true through all her days,
Silently suffered, patiently bore,

God took her home to suffer no more.

SALES CAREER
Cornwall Motor Sales has openings for two career minded sales persons with the ambition to seek a rewarding career in automotive sales.
The candidates that we are looking for are people with or without GM or other automotive sales experience, with a positive attitude and who are prepared to dedicate themselves to becoming top sales professionals. A knowledge of both french and english would be an asset.
This opening gives you the opportunity:
- To become associated with Cornwall Motor Sales, one of Eastern Ontario's oldest, most prestigeous and still fastest growing dealerships.
- To sell General Motors cars and trucks. These vehicles have a proven reputation for advanced design, quality and re-sale value.
- To work out of a new, spacious, modern dealership.
- To become part of a dynamic sales team.
- To attain the status of a sales professional.
- To set your own financial objectives.
- To receive the training and backing to achieve those objectives.
- To have the use of a company demonstrator.

If you share our commitment to customer service and have high income potential this is the time to start a rewarding career in automotive sales. Join now for the Fall market.
Applications will be held in strict confidence. Call or apply in person to:

CARDS OF THANKS

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to express a sincere thank you to my family, friends and relatives for their cards, flowers, treats and visits while in hospital, also at home. Special thank you to Dr. D. Justus and nurses on first floor. Your kindness is very much appreciated.

Belva Swerdfeger

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to everyone who helped to make our golden anniversary such a success. To our family a special thanks and to our neighbors and friends, thank you for your cards and lovely gifts and for coming to share our anniversary. We shall treasure these memories for many more years. We thank you one and all.

Tina and Alfred Carkner

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our friends, neighbors and relatives for the cards, gifts and good wishes received on our 50th wedding anniversary. A very special thank you to the Finch Friendly Circle for making the afternoon a success and to the family for the lovely supper afterward. Thanks again to everyone who helped make this occasion one we will long remember.

Mac and Leola Otto

CARD OF THANKS

The relatives of the late Ralph Wagner wish to express sincere thanks to friends and neighbors for their messages of sympathy, floral arrangements, memorial contributions, and visits to the funeral home. We extend special thanks to the nurses and staff at La Palme Nursing Home for their excellent care and attention; the nurses and staff at Montfort Hospital, Ottawa; Rev. Roy Harwood for his spiritual message; Jim Daniels of J.R. Vice Funeral Home and the pallbearers. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank everyone who came to visit us, sent flowers, cards and gifts while we were in the hospital and at home. Special thanks to Dr. Hall and the nurses and staff of the High-Risk Unit at the Ottawa General Hospital and Dr. Domanko and the nurses of the maternity ward at W.D.M.H.

Debbie and Lindsay Hunt

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to relatives, friends, and neighbors for the many acts of kindness shown us and sympathy expressed in the loss of a dear husband, father and son, Donald Baker. For floral tributes, memorial donations, cards, gifts of food; to VON, Dr. S. Chande, Home Care Staff, Dr. Young, staff of G1 Ottawa Civic, W.D.M.H., Lab staff; Rev. Herb Klaehn, Iroquois for his pastoral visits and comforting words; J.R. Vice Funeral Home, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Clapp and family, Edith and Bill Sherwood, Hazel Besheim, Red Cross Home Makers, Boyd Hamilton, Ontario Hydro, the ladies who served lunch and anyone else who helped at this difficult time to ease our sorrow, we thank you all sincerely.

Darlene, Craig and Kristopher Baker, Isabel Baker and family

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to extend our sincere thank-you to all who helped us in any way to celebrate our Fortieth Wedding Anniversary. Many thanks to our family for arranging a trip to Montebello for brunch at which time our family presented us with diamond rings. Our sincere appreciation to all our relatives and friends for the surprise party when we returned home. We are most grateful to all for their gifts and good wishes, also for the delicious meal served. Your thoughfulness and kindness will long be remembered.

Laurence and Hector Courville

CARD OF THANKS

Sincere thanks to everyone who came to visit me, sent flowers, cards, and gifts while I was a patient in C.G.H. Special thanks to Dr. Rae, Dr. Achar, Rev. P. Gaudine and my sister Kay for all her help while I was in the hospital and after I came home. Your kindness was much appreciated.

Mary Flanagan

CARD OF THANKS

To all my dear friends, my family and my relatives, a very sincere thank you for the beautiful cards and gifts which I received on my 90th birthday. I enjoyed the visit with each and every one who called at my party on September 27. A very special thank you to the ladies who helped in the kitchen before, during and after my birthday celebration.

Lyle Hunter

CARD OF THANKS

I wish my friends, relatives, neighbors and my family a sincere thank you for cards, gifts and flowers while I was a patient in Winchester District Memorial Hospital. I also want to say thanks to Dr. D. Justus and the nurses for the good care.

Thanks to all,
Ada Johnstone

Leon Deguire of Glen Robertson paid a repeat visit to the annual Stormont County plowing match Saturday, competing in the popular antique class with a 49-year-old McCormick-Deering 10-20. Record Photo - Johnston

Stormont plowing match success from the ground up

FINCH (Staff) - On a day many farmers would have wished to remain inside, participants at the annual Stormont County plowing match ignored dismal skies and low temperatures to plow for points.

"Rain or snow, this match goes ahead," chuckled Archie Cloutier, one of the event's organizers, as he sat in the warmth of a car registering late-comers.

By 4:30 p.m. Saturday, the field of Dean Hough, about a mile east of Finch, was checkered by the carefully plowed plots of 31 entrants. "We were quite pleased," said Berwick's Murray Manley, one of the event's organizers and one of Stormont's premier plowmen.

Had the match not conflicted with the Metcalfe Fair, Peter Manley, county director to the Ontario Plowmen's Association, said the event would have drawn plowmen from the North Gower area who traditionally compete in Stormont.

Some of the plowmen had difficulty explaining what compels them to do for fun a chore they could have been doing on their own land.

"I've been sick with a cold for a week now and then I come out for this here," said Derryl McLean of Finch, competing for the first time in a dozen years.

McLean and Gordon Burd competed in the antique class with a plow they purchased a week earlier for $80. "All I know is it's a Massey Harris 26," McLean said.

His return to the Stormont match was prompted by interest in the Finch antique and steam show. "We just took the notion to come out and try it," he said. Practice on the newly acquired machine was limited to "a couple of trips up and down the field to get the rust cleaned off."

It's the neighborly competitive spirit that's been drawing Berwick's Tom Grady to the county match for the past decade. Grady, also competing in the antique class, glanced at the completed plots of carefully turned furrows and wished the entire field could be plowed up.

Barry Smith, 20, of Berwick was making his first appearance at the match. "It's something different," he shrugged, viewing his own work critically. "I plowed right here," he said, gesturing to his right. "It should be turning it over nicer, but it's pretty straight."

When scoring a plowman's work, straightness counts, said Peter Manley, 84, who has passed on his love of the skill to sons Murray and Doug, who in turn coach their own children.

A judge, Manley said, also considers the shape of the land, how neatly the work is started and completed, how well the grass is covered and the firmness of the overturned land.

Competitive plowing draws participants seeking the event's "good fellowship," he said. "It's an educational day as well."

McLean agreed:"You go the field at home and you just drop the plow and go and you don't care what it looks like after, but here you've got to care."

"If we all went home and plowed the way we plowed here, we really would have nicer fields."

Interest in the sporting aspect of farm work continues to be high in its traditional areas of support. While the Stormont match once rotated annually among the county's four townships, it has remained in Finch Township, home to most of the county's plowmen, for the last few years.

While Glengarry continues to organize an annual match, the Dundas plowmen's association disbanded a few years ago when interest faded, Manley said.

But the international match continues to draw thousands of spectators to its tented city and packed programs.

At the local match, most of the awards were shared by the Manley family of Berwick. Seventeen-year-old Crista won the class for plowmen under the age of 18 as well as reporting her class' best crown and finish.

A cousin, Daniel Manley, 12, plowed the class' best ins and outs.

The Beehler Trophy, awarded for the best plowed land in the field, went to Curtis Manley, 19, who also won the competitive open class.

Doug Manley -- Stormont's only participant at the International Plowing Match in Meaford this year -- took home a first ahead of his brother Murray in the competitive class.

The antique class, one of the most popular, was won by John MacLeod of Lancaster. Berwick's Don McDermid improved on his second place finish last year in the farm standard class to take home a first.

Guy Shane of the Casselman area placed first in the four- or more furrow class.

Ten-year-old Kevin McRae of Finch was recognized at the Saturday night banquet as the event's youngest participant.

Plowman follows father's furrow

BERWICK (Staff) - Plowing a straight furrow earned Doug Manley a trip to Chicago 35 years ago.

This year, the Berwick hotel-keeper returned from the International Plowing Match in Meaford recently with a third in his class of 15 plowmen and a continuing commitment to "a job well done".

Manley was the only Stormont plowman competing in the prestigious event his year and his own participation dates back to 1945. "I was 12 when I went to my first international match," the 54-year-old father of three said Saturday after competing in the Stormont County event, where he beat his brother, Murray in the competitive class.

He capped his performance at the international match seven years later when he was named the top junior plowman, winning the trip to Chicago.

He left competitive plowing for five years for school and work, then returned in 1958 when the Stormont Plowmen's Association hosted the international competition in Crysler. "I've just been back into it for the last three years," Manley said.

A passion for staight furrows runs in the Manley blood. Brothers Doug and Murray are the second generation of competitive plowmen -- their father Peter, now a director to the Ontario Plowmen's Association, dates his initiation to plowing for judges' points to the 1920s.

"We used to go to all the local plowing matches," his son recalled.

"It's something I grew up with so it's something I'd like to continue with. It's a hobby more than anything. I don't go hunting, I don't go fishing...It's just an enjoyable competition.

And part of the fun, he added, is "the laughs and the teasing each other afterwards."

While matches offer plowmen the thrill of competition and the satisfaction of accomplishment, he said they also appeal to spectators.

"They like to see furrows turned, a nice job. They also ask you all sorts of questions about your equipment, how to set it."

Manley used a second-hand Fiat tractor he purchased three years ago specifically for competition. It's easy to handle and not too heavy to transport but most importantly, he said, are its wheels, which are exactly the proper distance apart to accommodate a Kverneland plow.

Like many veteran plowmen, he favors the older equipment models. "When we started plowing, it was the two-furrow, 10-inch trailer plows and they would do a real good job," he said with a smile.

Competitive plowing is a precise skill that bears little resemblance to its practical application on the farm. Competitors at the international match have up to three hours in which to work up their small plots are pushed to the deadline.

Manley, now a non-farmer practices on the family dairy farm west of Berwick and coaches his children -- Curtis, 19, Crista 17, and Conrad, 15 -- in the painstaking art.

Seated on his tractor Saturday under grey skies and whipped by a chill wind, he glanced around the field scored by blocks of freshly plowed earth.

He has no plans to retire from the hobby he's enjoyed since childhood:"I enjoy working with the machines and the plowing and the looks of a job well done."

Pyke fights to reverse OMMB cut

AVONMORE (Staff) - Milk isn't making it for the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

OFA president Brigid Pyke has asked county federations of agriculture to lobby their local milk committees to reverse the Ontario Milk Marketing Board's recent decision to cut its annual contribution to the provincial farm organization by more than half.

The Stormont and Dundas milk committees haven't yet decided whether they support the board's move at a meeting earlier to drop its donation to the OFA to $10,000 from more than $25,000 in 1986.

David Whetter, president of the Stormont federation, approached the county milk committee and found them noncommittal.

"No one said, "Yes, we feel the federation deserves more support than that," Whetter told the federation's executive last Monday night.

But Joe Jackson, milk committee chairman and the federation's Osnabruck director, said Stormont milk producers are "open to lobbying from the federation."

He admitted to mixed feelings on the issue. While he believes the OFA is doing a good job, he said it's the only organization the OMMB supports and fears other broadbased farm groups -- such as the Christian Farmers Federation of Ontario or Women for the Survival of Agriculture -- could also make a bid for money.

Grant Cameron, a Green Valley dairy farmer who represents milk producers in Stormont, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell on the 12-member board, said the OFA is actually fortunate it received $10,000 this year.

"We felt we had to do it sometime," he said. "It could have been zero, you see. It was kicked about."

Reducing the board's support was first discussed at the 1982 Geneva Park conference and the 1983 spring regional meetings. At that time, he said milk committees decided by a two to one ration to maintain the board's status as a non-OFA member.

Cameron said the OMMB's support was "for services rendered", specifically for a joint campaign to sell marketing boards to the public. "It was solely on that basis," he said.

He added the board has found it difficult to justify to its members such a large donation.

"Really, what we've said to the milk committees is that we're going to stand by our $10,000 grant this year and we're giving the federation of agriculture time to go out and discuss it with milk committees."

Since 1980, the OMMB has contributed more than $20,000 annually to the federation, reaching a peak of $25,340 in 1986. Jackson suggested the federation should have begun lobbying for continued support three years ago, when cutting the board's funding was first proposed.

Both Jackson and Gord Johnson, secretary of the Dundas Milk Committee, believe the issue will come up at this year's Geneva Park conference next week.

Johnson said he can understand the resentment of some milk producers who pay individual membership fees to the OFA when they see the board pay once again.

Johnson said many milk producers are already paying individual members NIP fees to the OFA and may resent seeing the OMMB pay the federation again.

Other producers who support the National Farmers Union or the CFFO may resent supporting the OFA with their money through the OMMB.

The OFA's Pyke made a strong bid to the county federations to push for an increased grant from the OMMB.

In a Sept. 2 letter to the federation presidents, she wrote, "It is true that dairy farmers, like others, can join OFA directly and so some may feel that there is no need to have their organization support us as well.

"There are broader issues which we get involved in. The OFA has diligently supported the supply management system and in the face of attacks by academia and others concerning quota values, or whatever, will continue to support producers."

Among the OFA's efforts on behalf of all farmers she listed were calls for interest rate relief, assistance for beginning farmers and changes to the property tax rebate system.

Cameron admitted it's difficult to put a dollar value on the federation's work.

Relations between the OFA and OMMB are still amicable, he said, adding the current debate may even serve a purpose if it makes the federation realize the board must account to the province's milk producers for how it spends their money.

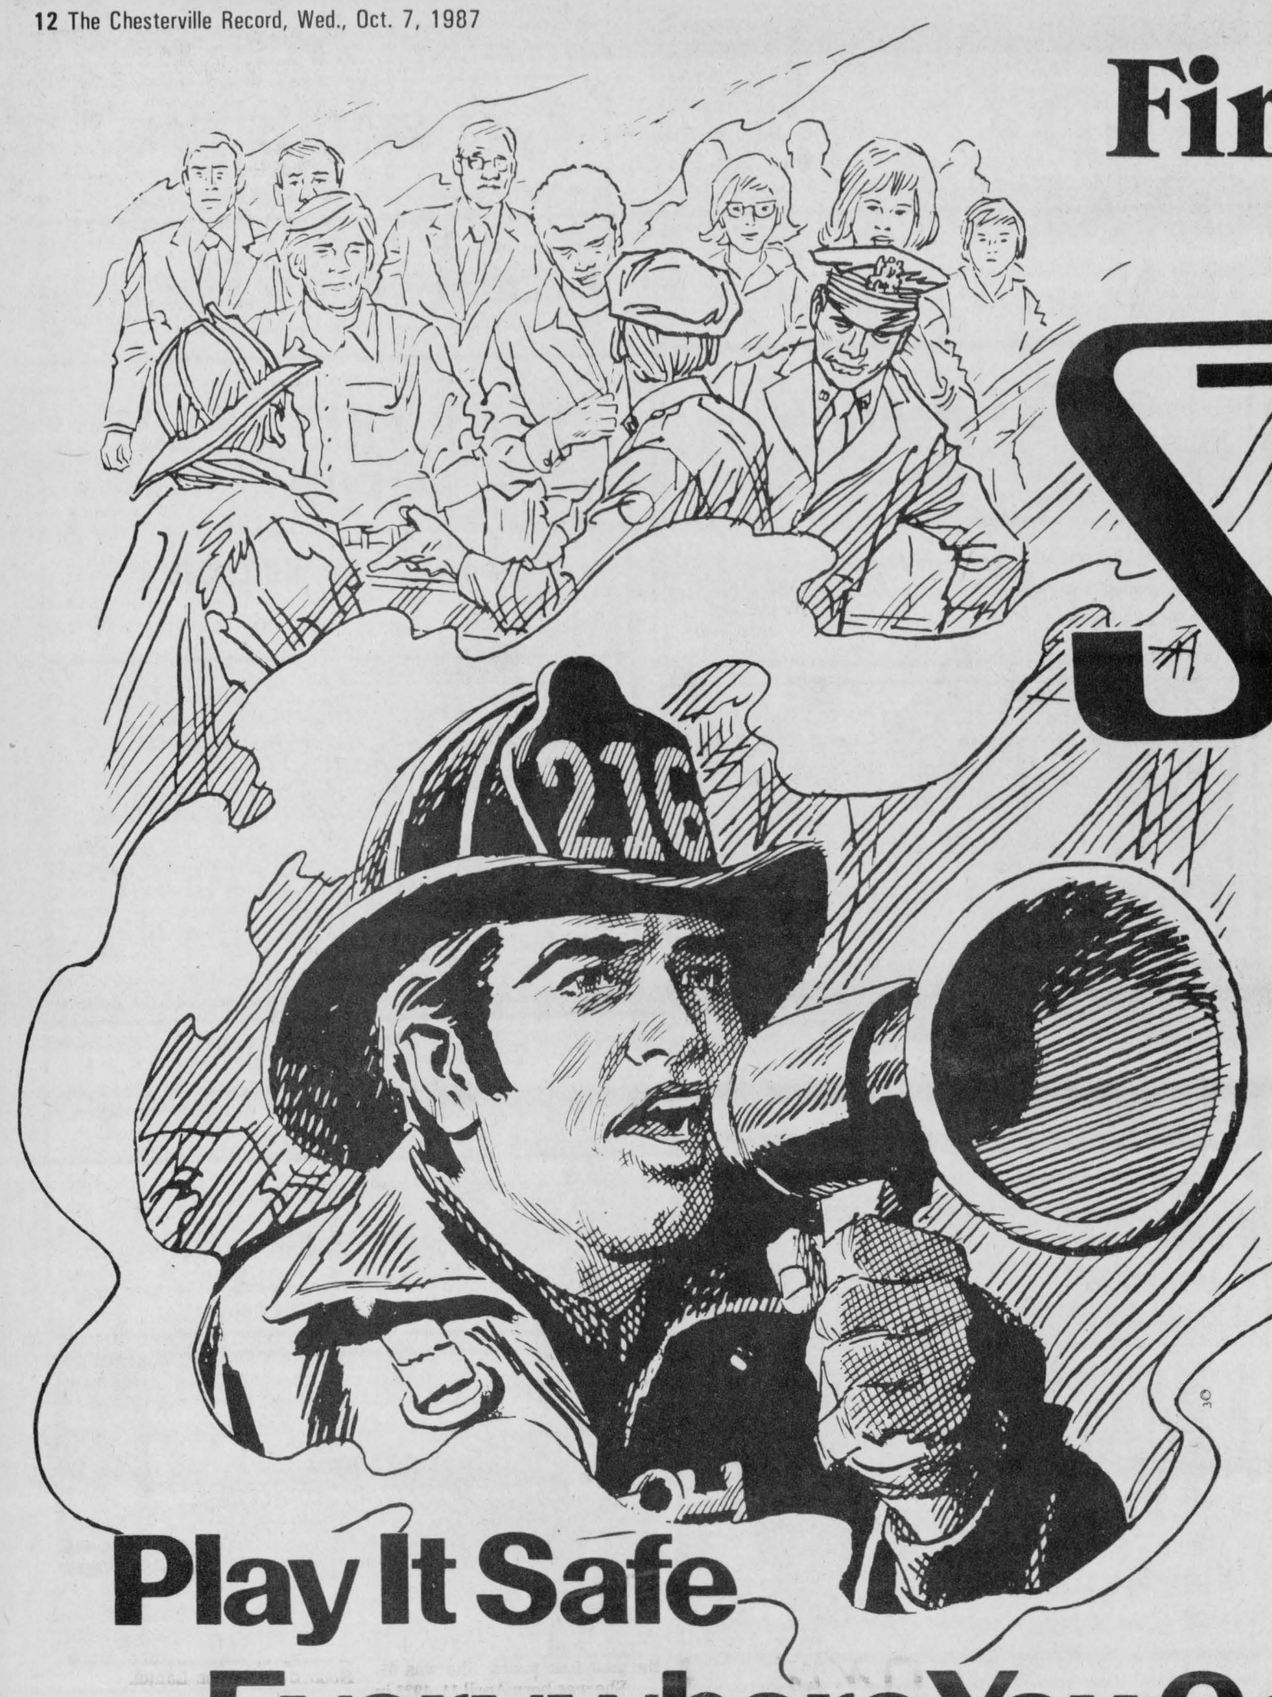
Fire Prevention Week



STOP FIRES

Check your home for FIRE HAZARDS

MESSAGE FROM CHESTERVILLE FIRE DEPARTMENT'S FIRE CHIEF - ROSS CASSELMAN

All across Canada, Fire Prevention Week is being held from October 4 - 10.

As your Fire Chief, I would like to ask each and everyone of you to make a fire safety check of your home and property. Some of the things you might consider checking are as follows:

- WOOD STOVES: Make sure your pipes and chimneys are clean.
- BARBEQUES: Never store the propane tank in the house.
- FUSE BOXES: Check fuses for the right ampage.
- EXCESS PAPERS: Get rid of stacks of old paper, old paint rags and cans.
- SMOKE DETECTORS: Make sure your smoke detectors are working. There should be one on each level in your home and also a fire extinguisher available at all times.

MOST IMPORTANT: Discuss and plan with your children and family a safe escape route from your home in case of fire and practice it!

Available at the local fire hall are:

HEART STICKERS: To be placed in the window of children'sand invalid's bedrooms.

PHONE STICKERS: To be placed on your telephone listing emergency numbers.

If you have any questions or would like more information feel free to contact any of your Volunteer Firemen.

Play It Safe ...Everywhere You Go!

Carelessness has no boundaries. No one can predict when or where the next tragic fire will happen. That's why it's important that we all do our jobs and practice fire prevention in every way. Make it your business to look for fire hazards...in the home, on your property and where you work! Fix any faulty wiring...immediately; empty trash regularly...avoid buildups; keep heating and cooking equipment in top repair; store old oily rags in metal containers. Make sure you and everyone in your family knows what to do in a fire emergency...before it happens. Play it smart...be fire safe!

Know your fire area and its fire call!

Shutouts still rule broomball league

WINCHESTER (Staff) - Shutouts are still prevalent as three of the four teams in the Winchester and District Broombal League were blanked Sunday, Oct. 4.

Dunbar and Russell have yet to allow a goal against them as they won 2-0 and 5-0 respectively. Toyes Hill got its first win with a 4-0 victory. In the fourth game, Morewood gave up its first goal of the year as they won 4-1. Morewood, Dunbar and Russell are tied for first place.

Jos Melenhorst scored with two minutes 42 seconds remaining in the first half as Toyes Hill defeated Newington 4-0. Bill Steele added a goal with 24 seconds left in the half to give Toyes Hill a 2-0 lead.

Erik Petersen scored twice in the second half as the team won its first game 4-0.

Newington has allowed 15 goals in its two starts and not yet scored.

Toyes Hill is in fourth place of the A pool with three points.

Dunbar has a share of first place after their 2-0 win over Prescott Road.

Lyn Whitteker scored both goals with seconds remaining in both halves.

The shutout win is the second in two starts for Dunbar after they won 12-0 over Winchester Sept. 27.

The loss puts Prescott in first place of the B pool.

Steve Bekkers scored four goals, three in the first half, as Russell defeated Winchester 5-0.

Bekkers also got an assist on the only goal he didn't score. Frank Bols scored the final goal for Russell.

The team is in a three-way tie for first place after getting its second win.

In the only game that wasn't a shutout, Morewood beat Ormond 4-1.

Ed Leger scored to give Morewood a 1-0 lead at the half.

Carl Patterson tied the game in the second but Brian Como restored the Morewood lead 29 seconds later. Morewood scored two more to win the game 4-1.

The Ormond goal was the only given up by Morewood in its two starts.

The win puts Morewood in a three way tie for first place.

There may be one team in first place by next week after the upcoming games. On Oct. 11, Dunbar will play Toyes Hill at 7 p.m., Winchester will meet Newington at 8 p.m., Prescott Road and Ormond will play each other at 9 p.m. and Morewood will play Russell at 10 p.m.

Flyers readying for hockey season

WINCHESTER (Staff) - The new look of the Chesterville Flyers will get a taste of action this Saturday when they play their first exhibition game of the year.

The Flyers, not only have many new players but a new coaching staff, headed by Kevin Mackler with Steve Plummer his assistant and Steve Ball the trainer.

The team will play an exhibition game against North Stormont 86's here Oct. 10.

Although the coach is still waiting for cuts from the Hawks' training camp, he said players are beginning to come together.

"The boys are coming along," he said.

Thirty-five players signed up for the Flyers' training camp. Team president Tom Van Dellen said this was a good number for the coaching staff to handle.

"You don't want too many on the ice since they're harder to control," said Van Dellen.

Two new teams have been added to the Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey Legue this year - Clarence Twp. Beavers and Rockland Nats. This has reduced the number of games from 30 to 28 with teams meeting each other four times instead of six.

Van Dellen said this not only makes the league more competitive but will also cost less.

"You don't have to get bored playing the same team so many times anymore. You also don't have to travel to the opponents arena as many times."

Teams will now visit an opposing team twice instead of the three times as last season.

The regular season of the EOJCHL begins Friday, Oct. 16 with two games - Clarence Twp. visiting Russell Lions and Casselman-Cambridge Stars visiting Embrun 72's. The Flyers' season opener will be at home against last year's EOJCHL champions St. Isidore Eagles, Saturday, Oct. 24.

R-O, St. Joe play to 0-0 tie in soccer

CORNWALL (Staff) - Two evenly matched teams played and it showed in the 0-0 tie when the Rothwell-Osnabruck and St. Joseph senior boys' soccer teams met Monday.

Assistant coach Elton Beckstead said the teams didn't allow too many chances with "a lot of mid-field play."

Beckstead said the teams both came out ready to play in the friendly rivalry.

"Most of the players from both teams know each other," and this created a sort of rivalry, he explained.

Beckstead said the blowing wind was not much of a factor since "it blew across the field rather with one team."

The senior R-O Lancers now have a 0-4-1 (win-loss-tie) record.

The team lost its fourth game Sept. 30 when Char-Lan won 4-0.

Char-Lan scored its goals in the first half while the Lancers were a little slow in starting off.

"There was a little downfall in the first half and they (Char-Lan) scored but it was scoreless in the second half."

The junior boys' game with St. Joseph was won by the Cornwall team 3-2.

Although the teams were fairly even matched, Beckstead said," (St. Joseph) made better on their chances than we did."

Neither team could capitalize on chances when the junior Lancers met Char-Lan Sept. 30, said Beckstead.

"There could have been more goals by either team. Either team could have won," he said. The score ended in a 2-2 tie.

The junior Lancers now have a 1-3-1 record.

R-O is at home today (Wednesday) as they host Seaway.

The junior Tagwi Warriors soccer team came back from behind to tie the game at three with the Glengarry Gaels. The senior teams also tied their game at three with the Gaels having to come from behind and do it.

Warriors, Gaels tie two games, Tagwi takes both from NDDHS

AVONMORE (Staff) - The Tagwi and Glengarry boys' soccer teams played it out Monday and both the juniors and seniors came away with 3-3 ties.

The junior Tagwi Warriors came back from behind to tie the Gaels while the senior Gaels did the same to the Warriors.

In the juniors' game, Glengarry led 2-0 at the half before Kevin Vill scored in the second half to give the Warriors a point.

The Gaels went up 3-1 but Kevin MacCormick put one in for Tagwi and later scored the tying goal with just seconds remaining the game.

Juniors' coach Bernie Julien said the blowing wind was a minor factor.

"Even though we were against the wind, we had better control and this gave the boys confidence."

Over-confidence may have been a factor in the game for Glengarry, said junior Gaels' coach Ed Turpin.

"When kids are over-confident they don't play all that well," he said. The junior Gaels brought a 3-0-0 (win-loss-tie) record into the game.

Turpin said, however, he didn't want to take anything away from Tagwi.

"Tagwi had a good defence and this surprised our forwards."

Jeff Lowe, Scott Graham and Allan Kennedy scored the goals for the Gaels.

The junior Warriors now have a 2-1-1 record.

In the seniors' game, the Warriors had, at one point, a 3-1 lead on the Gaels. Warriors' senior coach Mike Nalepa calls the Gaels the toughest team in the league.

Brad Lalonde got credit for the first goal as it went off a Gaels' defenceman into his own net. The Warriors were up 1-0 in the game but Steven Cameron tied it up before the half.

Lalonde put Tagwi back in front and Brian Villeneuve gave the team a 3-1 lead but the Gaels didn't let down.

Richard Daniels made it 3-2 and Glen Campbell tied the game with minutes to spare.

Senior Gaels' coach Laurent Rivard said it was the closest game they've played.

"We usually win games big."

Nalepa said it was a "good game to watch."

"It's so rare to get a lead on this team. The game will give our guys a boost."

The senior Gaels are still undefeated with a 3-0-1 record while the senior Tagwi team is now 2-1-1.

The senior Warriors won a 4-2 decision over the North Dundas Devils Sept. 30 for their second win.

The Devils led 2-0 but the Warriors came back to tie it at two before the end of the first half.

Tagwi added two more in the second half to win the game 4-2.

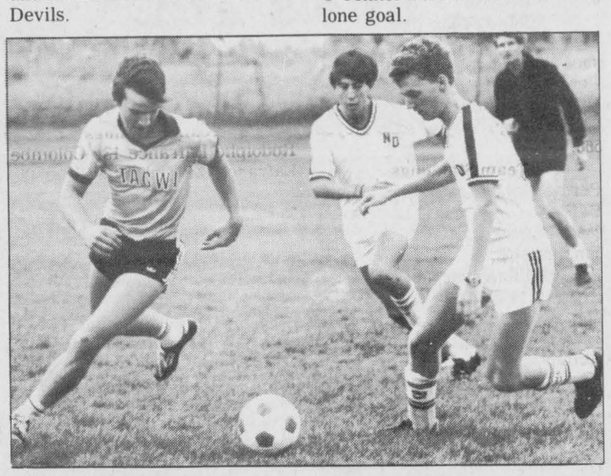
Senior Devils' coach Carl Ward said while it was close in the first half, "(Tagwi) played a better offensive game in the second half."

Steve Honti, Villeneuve, Lalonde and Bill Sobering scored for the Warriors while John Tessier and Kevin McLeod scored for the Devils.

The senior North Dundas team now has a 1-3-0 record.

The junior Devils also lost their game to Tagwi. The Warriors won 3-1 to give the Devils a 0-3-1 record.

Rodney MacGillican, Geoff MacLean and Brad Maloney scored for Tagwi while Willie O'Connor scored North Dundas' lone goal.



The North Dundas Senior Devils couldn't hold onto a 2-0 lead as the Tagwi Warriors won 4-2 in high school soccer Sept. 30. The junior Warriors beat the junior Devils 3-1 on the wet field.

Smith's hattrick pulls out win

MORRISBURG (Staff) - Mark Smith completed a hat trick by scoring the winning goal as the Winchester Hawks came back to win 7-6 over Morrisburg Lions in junior B exhibition action Sunday, Oct. 4.

Smith scored from Kirk Barkley with minutes remaining in the third period to give the Hawks the win.

The team was down 3-2 after one and 5-3 at one point in the second before they tied it at five at the end of two periods.

The Lions regained the lead early in the third but the score was tied again just eight seconds later when Tim Ouderkirk scored at 16:48. Smith put in the winning goal, with 4:30 remaining in the game.

Barkley, Dwayne Bazinet and Mike Grady scored the other goals for the Hawks. Ben Henry and Norm Bougie shared the goaltending duties.

The Hawks didn't have much success against the Canton A.T.C. squad from New York. The Hawks lost both exhibition games - 12-1 Sept. 30 and 11-6 Oct. 2.

Corey McIntyre scored the lone goal in the 12-1 loss in Canton Sept. 30. Henry and Brad Droppo split the goaltending on the team which featured many midget-aged players.

On Oct. 2, Canton took a 3-1 lead after one and 6-2 lead after two. The Hawks' two goals came on power plays.

Nine goals were scored in the third period. Canton scored four goals in the span of four minutes 50 seconds before Winchester put something else on the board. They then scored three goals to be down 10-5 with 4:30 to play.

Forty-eight seconds later, Canton scored their eleventh. Winchester closed the scoring with one minute nine seconds remaining as Canton won 11-6.

Don Laroque scored twice and had one assist for the Hawks. Bougie and Barry Kennedy were the goaltending tandem for the team.

Winchester plays its next exhibition game Friday at the arena against Kemptville at 8 p.m. They will also be at home Sunday when they take on Morrisburg again, at 2 p.m.

Gophers force seventh with 7-6 win over Mets

WILLIAMSBURG (Staff) - It's come down to a one-game affair in the Dundas Industrial Fastball League.

Cedar Glen Gophers won 6-5 over Mountain Mets here Sept. 29 to tie the best-of-seven final at three.

Gophers' pitcher Suds Whelan helped his own cause going three for four and scoring one run. He struck out four runners and gave up eight hits but walked six, three in the seventh.

Whelan received help from the bat of team-mate Bruce Casselman. Casselman went three for four with a single, a double and a triple. He was also walked once, scored two runs and batted in the winning run in the bottom of the first extra inning.

The score was tied at four after the regular seven innings. The Mets went up 5-4 after their half of the eighth but Cedar Glen got two runs in the bottom of the inning to win the game 6-5.

Mets' pitcher Greg Workman struck out seven batters and walked one Casselman) but gave up 12 hits including four in the extra inning. The Mets also committed three errors, one eventually costing a run.

The Mets' Dale Simms went two for three and batted in two runs, he also took a walk after being hit by a pitch.

The Gophers took the lead in the game with two runs in the first inning with runs from Casselman and Whelan.

Chris Williams reached base on a walk and eventually scored for Mountain in the second inning to change the score to 2-1 after two.

The Mets took over the lead in the top of the fourth with two runners coming home. Burt Ewars reached on a walk and Williams got on base via an error, they both scored in the inning to put Mountain up 3-2.

Cedar Glen tied the game, however, in the bottom of the inning when Bruce Mullin, who reached base on an error, was hit home by Doug Brunt.

Casselman hit a triple in the bottom of the fifth and was brought home on a single to put the Gophers up 4-3 after five.

With one out and the bases loaded, by three straight walks Les Selleck hit a single, sending home Kevin Byrd in the Mets' half of the seventh to tie the game at four and send it into extra innings.

Victor Puddy put Mountain on top when he scored after hitting a two-out single in the top of the eighth. The Mets led 5-4.

In the bottom half of the inning, Mitch Hutt and Brunt hit singles to get on base with one out. Lyle Schell hit a single and Casselman hit a double to send home Hutt and Brunt winning the game 6-5 and tying the series 3-3.

After the Gophers lead 2-1 in the series, Mountain came back with two straight to take a 3-2 lead and threatened to end it Sept. 29 before Cedar Glen tied the series. The final game was scheduled for yesterday in Mountain but the result was not available at press time.

Lancers lose in final of tourney, win in regular action over St. Joe WILLIAMSTOWN (Staff) - Rothwell-Osnabruck went to the final before losing the girls' basketball tournament.

The Lancers lost 71-41 to St. Lawrence in A final of the tournament here Oct. 3.

Bob Thompson, seniors' coach, said the SLHS team was strong, as are most of the urban teams.

The Lancers won their other two games of the tournament, defeating Char-Lan 46-32 and St. Joseph 27-26. Stephanie Wells was the leading scorer for R-O in the win over Char-Lan, getting 17 points. Cheryl Servais led R-O with nine points in the St. Joseph game.

Also attending the six-team tournament was North Dundas and Glengarry.

In regular action, the senior Lancers won 52-34 over St. Jospeh Oct. 1.

Wells was the top point getter on the team with 17. Tammy Ware was second with 10, she also had 13 rebounds.

St. Joseph was ahead after the first quarter but Thompson said R-O began covering St. Joe's top score, Wanda McDonald, "so she couldn't score her baskets."

The strategy paid off as R-O won 52-34.

The junior team also won their game with a 34-26 decision.
