Charges pending in fans' fight

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Hockey in Chesterville made history Friday, although it may not be a night hockey fans wish to remember.

For the first time in the experience of several officials with the Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey League, the police were called to the game when fighting broke out among Chesterville and St. Isidore de Prescott fans attending the fourth match of the league finals here.

Charges of assaulting a police officer are pending against three Chesterville men after four officers from the Winchester OPP detachment arrived when the scuffles broke out.

Ronald Richards, 26; Donald Richards, 24, and Neil Kelly, 59, have been summoned to appear in provincial court in Morrisburg next Thursday.

One man, Marc Legault of St. Isidore de Prescott, was taken to Winchester District Memorial Hospital by ambulance.

Norm Duhamel, league president, said this is the first time he can recall such an incident and the league may have to take action to prevent its repeat.

"It'll be discussed at our next meeting for sure," he said Monday night. He expected the meeting to be held sometime next month.

The events of Friday night were also a first for Mike Armstrong, coach of the Chesterville Flyers."

"It's all right to cheer for your team and that but people have to realize the game is played on the ice, not in the stands."

He said the crowd of between 400 and 500 was the biggest of the season and the incident mars "probably one of the better ones (games) you'll see".

Fighting first broke out after the first overtime period when the score was tied at 5-5. Armstrong blamed the scuffling in part on the tension associated with a close playoff game but said drinking may also have been involved.

"I've been involved in sports many, many years and I've never seen such an ugly thing in the league," said Marcel Lalonde, coach and manager of the St. Isidore Eagles.

"I've got lots of respect for the Chesterville Flyers organization," he said, "but like they say, they run their team well but what can they do about their spectators?"

Despite the ban on drinking in the arena, Lalonde said, "Everyone was walking in with booze and booze and booze".

At what turned out to be the fifth and final game of the series Sunday in St. Isidore, there was no repeat of the spectator violence.

"We had a good crowd. Of course, we had reinforcements from the OPP," Lalonde said. Duhamel said seven officers attended the game with three stationed at the door searching each fan for liquor.

In an effort to deter spectators from leaving the arena and going outside for a drink, he said each fan who left had to pay another admission fee to return.

He too said emotions were running high during the series but had heard that drinking may have been involved.

Duhamel said the league shouldn't have to step in to prevent a repeat of such incidents; each arena, he said is responsible for its own security.

Tom Lee, Chesterville recreation director, said security is the responsibility of the organization that rents the ice. He said the ban on liquor in the arena is posted.

He doesn't anticipate the village will impose tighter regulations on the hockey club's rental of the ice. What could happen, he said, is that the club will be asked to notify the police for playoff games next year.

Last week's incident isn't the club's fault, he stressed. He said 40 or 50 people would be needed to supervise the crowd of several hundred attending the game and that could put too great a demand on the club's volunteers. Violence among fans has trickled down from the professional leagues, he said.

Only a handful of people were involved, he added, and in some cases, violence will erupt regardless of the precautions.

"I don't see this as a big problem," Lee said.

Starstruck

Rise and Shine was enough to bring the dead to life, as actor Mike Bird, right, and Len Trillo discovered Friday night during the Charity Players debut performance. Only 175 fans of amateur theatre attended the two performances on the weekend by the rejuvenated local drama club. Any money raised will support the building fund for a new community hall.

Newsbriefs

Agreement signed

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - The Winchester Trap and Skeet Club has entered into an agreement with the South Nation River Conservation Authority ending almost a year of controversy over the club's proposed site. The club received township council's approval early March for the new site south-west of Chesterville by the South Nation River. SNRCA agreed to approve the site last year provided the club met conditions imposed by township council.

Apartments proposed

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - What was once a furniture store here may become a 15-unit apartment building, pending approval from village council. Winchester Township council approved in principle the rezoning necessary for the project to proceed. Peter St. Germain, owner of the building which presdently houses Bernie's Home Furnishings Registered, said he hasn't approached village officials concerning the project as yet.

Brownie points

INGLESIDE (Staff) - Melissa Markell has earned Brownie points nation-wide. The eight-year-old daughter of Linda and Ivan Markell of Ingleside recently placed second in a contest sponsored by Owls and Toadstools, the organization's Canadian publication. She was awarded a cup for her submission of a poem describing Brownies.

Crossing bill

BERWICK (Staff) - An order from the Canadian Transport Commission to install safety warning devices on the Goldfield Road CPR crossing by the end of the year caught Finch Township council by surprise. At a meeting Monday night, council learned the devices will be installed within the next nine months.

The federal government will pay 80 per cent of the installation costs, or $107,600. The township will pay 12.5 per cent and the railway, the remaining 7.5 per cent.

The township is also responsible for half the maintenance costs.

Council had hoped to postpone payment until next year.

Morewood included

Morewood and area were not mentioned last week in an article about the April drive to raise money for the Canadian Cancer Society. Morewood is part of the Chesterville and area branch which is trying to raise $8,000.

Out on a limb

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Township councillors put themselves out on a limb Monday night trying to decide what compensation to give a resident who had his tree cut down by township employees. Members tried to determine whether the tree was dead at the time, and if it wasn't, what price tag to put on the tree's sentimental value. "To be truthful, we have an exhibit of that tree," reeve Gerald Holmes told the complainant. "I'd say it was half dead, maybe two-thirds dead." The complainant, speaking on behalf of his grandfather, maintained the 50-year-old tree was "alive 100 per cent".

Flood of requests hits Finch Township

BERWICK (Staff) - Finch Township council is preparing to play a reluctant Santa Claus.

At a meeting Monday night, council was almost overwhelmed by a deluge of requests for money.

"This is the worst year, I've seen, the most I've seen in any year I've been on council," Reeve Ralph MacKenzie told a delegation from Finch Ladies Recreation, the first of three to make a personal plea for funds.

Council reviewed a total of seven requests. Councillor Archie Byers jokingly suggested that council choose successful applicants by drawing names out of a hat.

Leading the list was Finch arena, which asked for $8,000 for maintenance of the aging facility. Last year, the township granted the arena $1,500 for the first time after a Finch Village committee stressed the needs for repairs.

Like all the requests it reviewed, township council postponed a decision until at least its next meeting April 20.

Also put off was a request from Finch Ladies Recreation for help to purchase a used dishwasher at about $4,500.

Susan Rainey, association president, said the group has had to turn down catering requests because the women who help don't want to be stuck doing dishes until midnight.

The association is approaching a total of ten organizations to request help. Rainey said the township was asked because she'd read it had been generous to other groups.

"Are you sure that's not hearsay," Byers chuckled. They too were promised an answer in a couple of weeks.

After the delegation left, Dingwall said, "I think that all of these places are going to have to charge more...I agree with what they're saying, they're not saying anthing out of place. But as soon as they get one, Crysler will want one and then Berwick will want one."

The council discussed increasing its donation of $250 last year to $500 to the Stormont County Fairboard, which plans to almost double the size of its cattle barn. Edwin Waldroff, representing the fairboard, said the barn built in 1980 at a cost of about $30,000 isn't large enough to accommodate all the cattle and a showing ring.

Should there be heavy rain (--he recalled it storming only twice during his many years of involvement with the fair) -- the cattle shows could be rained out.

The agricultural society may be eligible for a provincial grant to cover 25 per cent of the construction costs, estimated at between $25,000 and $30,000.

Wally Hare, pool committee chairman with the Avonmore Community Athletic Association, then made a bid for a donation to defray a potential deficit of $5,000 in thhe pool's operation this summer.

While he couldn't specify exactly how many users were from the township, he said 36 students, or almost 30 per cent of the total registering for swimming lessons last year, were from Finch, Crysler and Berwick.

Last year the association was left with a deficit of almost $3,000 for the pool.

After he left the meeting, Hare said the township is considering "pressure tactics" including increasing the fees for lessons or charging residents from outside the municipality higher rates.

Club 60, the Crysler senior citizens group, then asked for the township's help to construct a shuffleboard game, estimated at $800.

"We figured that after 20 years of existence of the club of 74 members (voters) taxpayers we deserve some attention about our situation," a letter from club member Yvon Rouleau stated.

Last year, council gave them $150.

Dingwall suggested that council consider a grant of $300 because the group is a township-based organization.

Council also discussed renewing its grant of $200 to the Stormont Federation of Agriculture.

Finally, it was faced with a request from Upper Canada Playhouse for support.

Quarry may cause qualms

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - If the Winchester Township reeve's predictions prove true there'll be more controversy than stone coming from a proposed quarry.

"I can see we'll have a battle," said Reeve Gerald Holmes at a township council meeting here Monday night. "It will turn into quite a controversial matter before it's done."

Council approved in principle the rezoning of the proposed quarry site for David Grant of Cornwall Gravel Ltd. The land, at the south end of Concession 9 by the Winchester-Finch Township border is presently zoned for agricultural use.

In order to have to a quarry the land must be zoned for mineral extraction. "This is not very good farm land," Grant said. It is quite rocky and rock is exposed in several areas, he explained.

"It won't be a very active site," he added. He estimated about 100,000 tonnes of stone will be hauled out annually.

"That's what they all say," Holmes said jokingly.

Holmes told Grant he wasn't against the quarry but maintained throughout the discussion there would likely be objections made by residents close to the site.

"Why did you pick Winchester (Township), why didn't you pick Finch (Township)," he asked.

A touch of spring

Chesterville Girl Guides Carolyn Smirle, Jennifer Dean and Emily Baker brought the sweetness of spring to downtown shoppers Friday afternoon, when they took to the streets to sell daffodils and raise money for the Canadian Cancer Society. The Dundas branch's objective for the year's campaign is $34,000.

Debut of Charity Players greeted by small crowd

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - By Sunday morning, it was all over but for the counting of the receipts.

For the Charity Players, Chesterville's rejuvenated amateur theatre group, months of rehearsals and preparation ended with the second and final performance of two one-act plays Saturday night.

But the lure of live theatre proved greater for the participants than the potential audience: only about 175 people attended the two shows. Any profit from advance ticket sales and those the night of the performances will support the construction of a multi-purpose community hall in Chesterville.

"I think we were hoping for more people coming out but the weather was bad. A lot of people don't want to go out and drive in the rain," said Len Trillo, the director and driving force behind the productions, Monday.

"It was an enjoyable night for all who attended," he said.

The crowd was treated to two plays: Rise and Shine, a farcical love story spanning several generations and set on the day of resurrection, and My Proud Beauty, a twist on the traditional melodrama.

During the intermission, the entertainment was provided by the Four Jacks, a group of local musicians catering to all musical tastes.

The performances ended about six months of work, which began last October with the call to reform a local drama club to replace the defunct St. Mary's group.

For the participants, the production offered the chance to raise money, have a good time and, for some, fulfil a dream.

"I've never acted before," said Bob Hicks, who in top hat and flowing cape paced the hallway outside the North Dundas auditorium half an hour before the curtain rose Friday night.

Admitting to some opening night jitters, he said acting is something he's always wanted to try. He knew Friday night that he would miss the comaraderie that developed among the volunteer group.

Christine St. John, who portrayed the daughter in My Proud Beauty, said nervousness wouldn't strike her until later. "While waiting to go on, when you're up there (backstage), you just about drop dead."

But she, like many others, keeps coming back. Surveying the science lab at the high school, which had been transformed into a make-up and dressing room, she said simply, "It's fun. They're a nice crazy group."

"They just like the excitement," she said, explaining the attraction of amateur theatre. "You get to make a fool of yourself, I wouldn't call it a star."

"It's fantasy, getting away from the normal," added Pat MacLeod, with a darkened face and hair pinned under a cap in preparation to play the hero.

She said everyone missed the effort after the demise of the St. Mary's group.

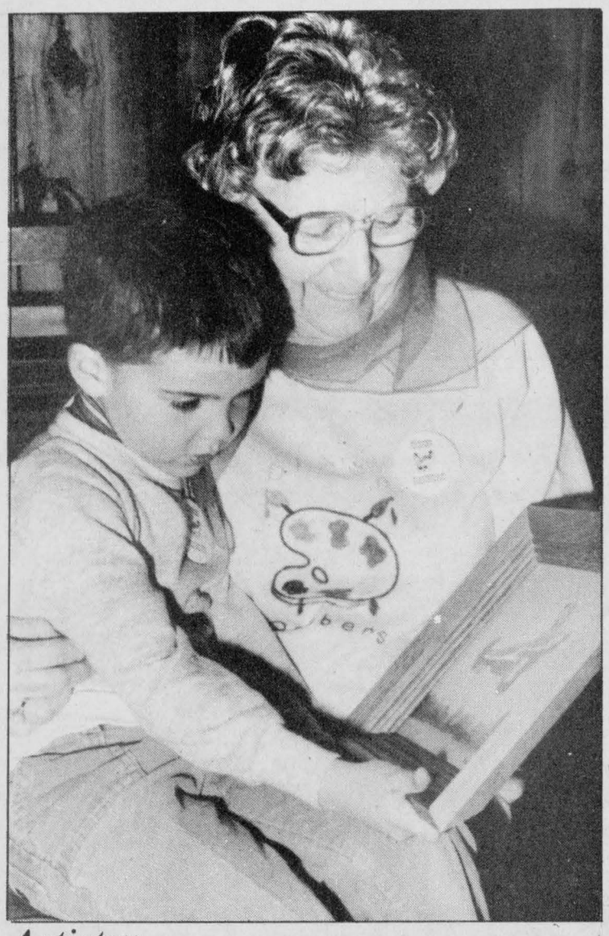
"It was, what do you do with your time? It was always the worst time of the year, from January to St. Patrick's Day...I find during January and February people lock themselves up in the house. You don't even see people on the streets."

For make-up artist Pat Molloy, theatre is a challenge. "We've got a 102-year-old this year and we've got a young girl who has to look 76. It's hard to bring out wrinkles when they're not there."

Since January, the club has been rehearsing at least twice a week for two hours at a time.

Margery Trillo, who operated the lights, recalled with a chuckle the vows made by the local group each year: "We're never going to be ready and we're never going to do this again."

"But anyway, we have a lot of fun. It's a way of raising money and having fun at the same time."



Artistry
Newington painter Janey Poapst admired the work of five-year-old Richard Neville, as well as all the local artists who work out of her home, Saturday afternoon during the Dixon Daubers' achievement day.

A decade of Dixon Daubing

NEWINGTON (Staff) - "I don't call myself a teacher. All I do is what I have learned going to school and learned through trial and error."

But that wasn't the consensus of the women and children who gathered in a Finch living room Saturday afternoon to display their paintings and honor Janey Poapst, co-founder of the Dixon Daubers.

For the past seven years, Poapst, now 77, has opened her home to local art students at no charge during January, February and March.

"It's a wonderful way to spend the winter," she said, surrounded by the work of some 35 students who use her home as a studio.

But not all are students: Finch artist and instructor Jean McCormick also pays regular visits to Poapst's Dixon Road home.

From her perch on the arm of Poapst's chair, McCormick explained that work at her own home is frequently interrupted by visitors and telephone calls.

"When I go to Janey's, she sort of protects me against all that."

"We are two artists working together," Poapst said with a laugh.

Eleven-year-old Alex LeBlanc from Northfield Station has been spending March school breaks painting at Poapst's home for the past three years. Gesturing to a recently completed picture of a cougar, he said he learned from the older woman how to properly paint the eyes.

"He loves it," his mother said. "He just seems to get so absorbed in it."

For Jeannette Beaupre, visits to Poapst's home offer time to paint and the chance to learn from everyone. Her 12-year-old son accompanies her.

"She's got lots of patience," said Lunenburg resident Wanda Rombough, who began studying painting this year.

"She goes from one to the other and she'll make you try what you want and tell you where the mistake is," said neighbor Eleanor Armstrong.

"The biggest thing is sitting in a class learning from each other," McCormick said.

Poapst agreed that the traditional image of an artist laboring alone in a garret doesn't produce the greatest work.

"They paint better in a group, you'd be surprised," she asserted.

She didn't have the opportunity to study art, a childhood dream, until 1977 after retiring from the market gardening operation she'd run with her husband since 1932.

Ten years ago, she attended an art course at St. Lawrence College in Cornwall for senior citizens. The Dixon Daubers began innocently enough, when she invited a neighbor who was also taking the course to her home so they could work together on paintings the weekly classes left no time for.

"The neighbors got wise to what we were doing," she chuckled. That first year, she had seven students painting from her home and away from the distractions in their own houses.

Painting is a form of therapy for Poapst. "I find it's very relaxing and if I get uptight, I sit down and paint."

The open house will continue next winter.

Meanwhile, Poapst shares the art she has helped others create. On Saturday afternoon, she was busily taking snapshots of her fellow artists with their work, for yet another scrapbook which she will later take to Finchview Villa to show the residents.

CHESTERVILLE (Staff)- Twenty-five years of service and fraternal comardeship were recognized at a special evening at the Legion Hall held by the Winchester Eastern Ontario Star Chapter here last week.

About 150 people showed up for the banquet which featured the Worthy Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Vera Heffel, as guest speaker. Heffel spoke about her project concerning adults and children with learning disabilities and was presented a cheque for the project from the Winchester Chapter.

On Feb. 24, 1987, the Chapter held twenty-fifth anniversary birthday meeting at the Henderson Hall, Winchester with more than 100 members in attendance.

The Order of the Eastern Star began around 1850 and is the largest fraternal organization to which both men and women belong, states an organization pamphlet. Although related to the Masonic fraternity, it is an autonomous organization with local groups called Chapters located throughout the world.

The Winchester Chapter was sponsored by a Cornwall Chapter in 1962 under the jurisdiction of the Ontario Grand Chapter. The organization's membership in Ontario is estimated at 36,000 with an estimated 13,750 chapters and 3 million members worldwide.

Job prospects bright for students

CORNWALL (Staff) - Summer job prospects for students look fairly good says Sylvie Seguin, supervisor for student employment at Canada Manpower, in Cornwall.

Once again the student employment centre has been "reborn" and is ready to deal with the flux of students who go out every year looking for summer work, she said.

Although last year's job statistics are not yet available, the centre's already surpassed the number of students registered there last year, Seguin said. Almost 500 students have filled registration cards so far, she said.

The centre also has had a higher number of employer visits, she said, which may mean more job prospects. Many employers tend to forget about the centre because it isn't open year-round, she added.

For employers, the same federal and provincial programs are available for 1987 including Challenge '87 and Experience '87. Challenge '87 is an "embrella" term for a number of programs provided by the federal government, Seguin said.

The government has also designed a booklet for 1987 describing various exchange programs, parks work and RCMP programs, she added. "All kinds of programs are finally reaching out to the public."

Some "very interesting jobs" can also be obtained through Experience '87. One job available through the provincial program is with the Cornwall City Police, she said. Although the jobs may not pay much, the experience derived from them is extremely valuable, she said.

Current federal summer job programs subsidize 50 per cent of a students wage or up to $3 per hour. Available provincial programs pay the employer $1.25 of the student's hourly wage, she said.

If a student has finished school for the summer and is looking for work, he or she should register with the Canada Employment Centre and fill out a registration card, Seguin said.

When registering, the student should state his or her job preference, she added. Although the student may not get a job in that field, it will help the centre with its job placement.

The student should also look at the student employment board and make weekly visits, as job openings listed usually change from day to day, she said.

As final words of advice to students looking for jobs this summer, "market yourselves on your own", Seguin said. Even if they're registered with student manpower, the should continue their job search," not sit on the porch and sunbathe".

University and college students should have resumes completed to give to prospective employers, she added.

Floyd Bradford, manager of the Stormont-Dundas Farm Labour Pool in Chesterville, said there'll be no shortage of jobs for students looking for farm work.

"I think there are going to be plenty of jobs." The pool may actually run short of workers, he said. The "bottom line" is they'll be looking for workers, he added.

Officials from the labor pool will be approaching schools looking for summer workers and will also take on a "recruitment program", he said.

The hours are there for people who want to work, he said, and a person working a few days at one farm and then moving to another throughout the summer can make good money, he said.

Local history almost ready for publication

August release hoped for Newington book

NEWINGTON (Staff) - It may not be as controversial as Shirley McLaine's Out on a Limb or as intriguing as an Stephen King novel, but fairboard planners here are hoping Memoirs of Newington, 1867-1987 will be a best seller.

After almost a year's work, the book of memoirs and anecdotes of life in the village and area has been finished and sent to the proofreader.

Although the board has no official deadline for the book's completion, board president Harry Webber said he hopes some will be available for sale in August.

The book will be going to the printer any time now and if all goes well, it should be proofed a second time and sent back to the printer again in mid-May.

Memoirs of Newington will include stories from older people and pictures of the village and its residents in earlier days. It will be more of an entertainment piece than a history, Webber said.

"It's not so much a history... as a collection of memories and anecdotes."

This summer will mark the 120th anniversary of the Stormont County Fair and the incorporation of the village of Newington.

To celebrate the event, more than a century-old, the fairboard is organizing a variety of different events, including an old-fashioned costume contest and dance Aug. 8. The dance will be held at Stormont Hall with music provided by the Don Morrell Band from Williamsburg.

A reunion of former residents and their descendants will take place Sun., Sept. 6. There will be artifacts and documents on display, as well as paintings of local scenes. Various paintings will be auctioned off at the reunion.

Webber said the fair was quite successful last year despite the loss of its demolition derby. The derby, which regularly drew crowds in the thousands, was cancelled last year because of high insurance rates.

April and May will be busy months as there has been an invitation to attend a quilt display in Ottawa from the Ottawa Valley Quilters Guild. Our group plans to go on April 26. The display may be seen at the RA Centre on Riverside Drive.

Our annual meeting will be held on April 30 at 8 p.m. at the home of Irene Casselman.

75 and Still Alive is the theme of the District Annual to be held at Osnabruck Centre on May 22. Also in May, Cornwall Centre extends an invitation to attend a luncheon in celebration of their 75th anniversary.

A new bulletin from our F.W.I.O. provincial president, Margaret Munro was read.

4-H project Surviving with Style teaches one to learn how to fix a leaky pipe, get grease and grime out of dirty clothes, change a tire on a car or bike, vacuum a floor, buy wisely, handle a stranger at your door and one can even learn how to sew on a button.

Norm Warner the MP for Stormont-Dundas has extended an invitation to our group to dine at the Parliamentary Restaurant while the house is in session. Members would like to be able to go and sit in for a day while the house is in session. A date has yet to be decided.

Maple syrup season less than sweet

FINCH (Staff) - For local maple syrup producers, the spring of 1987 won't be remembered sweetly.

"It's been two bad years in a row," commented Albert Sanders, owner of Sanders' sugar bush east of Chesterville. With luck, he hopes the season's production will equal the 15,500 gallons of sap produced at his operation last year.

"It's sure we will but not much more," he said last week. Production from the family business stood at about 11,000 gallons last Thursday.

Sap producers across SD&G have blamed this year's poor production on unseasonably cold temperatures early in March, followed by days of balmy weather. Sap production relies on cold nights and warm days.

"Our total production this year was approximately 350 litres. We would have hoped for a thousand," said Trisha Barkley, who with her husband Brian operates Barleyvale sugar bush at Dunbar.

The season is virtually over. Even if the area is hit with the dramatic daily temperature fluctuations needed for the sap to run, it will be too late: the sap becomes milky in appearance and takes on an unwanted flavor when the trees begin to bud.

The season has been even more disappointing for the Barkleys, who this year doubled their tapping capacity with the addition of 500 new taps.

Barleyvale and Sanders both use the vacuum system, which can draw the sap out of the trees. With a vacuum, Sanders said as much as 50 to 75 per cent more sap can be extracted, depending on the year.

He said he knows a Lancaster producer using only buckets who this year was ready to give up. "People on buckets wouldn't have a chance," Barkley agreed.

The Crysler sugar bush, operated by the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, has no choice but to employ the old-fashioned sugaring methods. Eric Dafoe, supervisor of park operations, estimated that the season's production is only half that of 1986.

"The majority of our syrup, the small amount there is, is of good quality but it could change quite suddenly," he said last week.

Sanders said the syrup that has been produced this year is of good quality.

But because of the poor season, consumers can expect the price of the natural sweetener to rise. Barkley predicted that the gallon can would become a rare sight.

But local producers were optimistic about the chances for a good run next year.

In 1985, Sanders said his operation enjoyed a banner year. Even with this year's production figures, he said he can't complain. "I guess the good years go with the bad years," he said.

For her husband, Barkley said the sugar bush is "more just a hobby."

"Last year was bad but this year is worse. But next year we'll do it again," she added.

Mr. Ron Alexander and Mrs. Margaret vanWylick are pleased to announce the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lorraine Ann to Rock Gerald Pineault, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrille Pineault. The marriage will take place Sept. 19, 1987 at St. John's Presbyterian Church in Cornwall. Special Photo

Dropping out: How schools fight to keep kids in

by Greg Kielec
Record Staff

NEWINGTON — If she had a chance to do it all over again she would definitely try much harder.

Shelley Duff was 16 years old when she dropped out at the end of Grade 11. She is just one of an alarming number of students who, for one reason or another, leave school without graduating.

It is estimated that between 30 and 40 per cent of the students in Ontario who enter high school at the Grade 9 level drop out within the next four to five years -- without a diploma.

A Ministry of Education study will focus on that 30 to 40 per cent within the next few months to determine who drops out of high school and why.

Educators have laid part of the blame for the disturbing statistic on large impersonal schools and a perception among students that a high school education has little value today.

Duff recalls that when she was in high school she would cut classes, wouldn't study and wouldn't do any homework. Although she enjoyed Grade 8, when she got to high school she found she didn't like the teachers or the way they taught.

"It was more or less 'read this book...maybe we'll have a test on Friday.' "

She went back to high school eight years later at the age of 24 with the intention of one day becoming a cook or chef. She did well, her lowest mark being 65 per cent and almost all the other were over 75 per cent.

She credited part of her success the second time round on a better attitude. "I was more mature, so I was trying harder," she explained.

She also had good teachers, which she said make a big difference. It's like working for a boss you don't get along with, she said: you either don't do as good a job as you could or you eventually end up quitting.

In order to do their jobs well, teachers have to get co-operation from the students, she added. "They just can't beat them over the heads" in order to get them to learn.

Duff still doesn't have her Grade 12 diploma although she has thought of going back to school again, or taking correspondence courses. She wishes she would've stuck with it the first time around and strongly recommends kids thinking of dropping out to stay in school.

"There obviously is some kind of problem if 30 to 40 per cent of students (in Ontario) are not graduating," says George Radwanski, top adviser for Ontario Education Minister Sean Conway.

Radwanski, former editor-in-chief of the Toronto Star, is heading up the Ministry of Education study looking into the province's drop-out problem.

NDDHS teacher David King helps student in basic art course

The new study is to be finished sometime next spring. It will look at who's dropping out and why along with the predominate characteristics of today's drop-outs.

The study will consider changes in the structure of school programs and what new approaches can be used to bridge the gap between education and the workplace.

Whether it is the type of curriculum offered in Ontario high schools or the relationship between the schools and the work world, he said there clearly is a problem.

High school education is becoming more and more important and the government has to do what it can to make the transition from school to work more gradual, he said. It has to find "how to bridge the gap."

Tight market

A tight job market may also be the reason students quit school early and look for work. If students end up with poor paying jobs or no jobs at all after graduating from high school, they may figure it's not worth getting a diploma, he said.

Co-op education is "one element" that could be used to combat that problem, he said. The program, which gives students credits for jobs outside the school and as well as academic study, has been "quite a success story" where it was implemented.

Dr. Allan King, a leading authority on Ontario high school drop-outs, says the drop-out rate is linked to several factors. Many students today don't set goals, so they have nothing to work towards, said the faculty professor at MacArthur College, in Kingston.

"The problem is not only with drop-outs but with stay-ins," he said. Students today have trouble finding meaning in what they're doing as it relates to their future, he explained.

"Not everyone can get high marks," he said, and it's the failing students who usually end up leaving school.

In order to keep their options open, students have to get enough credits in key courses such as maths and sciences, King said. But with significant failure rates in these courses in grades 9 and 10, he said students find they've run out of options and are at a dead end a couple of years later.

King also forsees problems with the new Ontario Secondary School Diploma (OSSD) requirements. Under the program, students graduating next year must have completed 30 rather than the 27 credits previously required.

Drop-out rates will probably increase over the next few years because of the new program, he said. It's "hard to imagine" that the students will stay in school for the full 30 credits, he said.

To keep students in school, the programs offered have to broaden their horizons and give the students hope and incentive for the future, King said.

The schools have to have "a strong support system", he said, including caring teachers and good guidance counsellors. The counsellors play a large and important role in school because they help decide the students futures, he explained.

King strongly supported extra-curricular activities in schools, which he said help keep borderline students in the system.

While the problem has always been there, Don Stephen, North Dundas District High School's head of guidance doesn't think the number of drop-outs is increasing at the school.

The school had 59 students drop out between Sept. 30, 1985 and Sept. 30, 1986, comprising 7.1 per cent of the school's 827 students.

More males

Male drop-outs outnumbered the females by a tally of 34 to 25. The drop-out rate was highest in Grade 12 and most were 16- and 17-year-olds.

The percentage of drop-outs for General Vanier Secondary School and Cornwall Collegiate and Vocational School both in Cornwall, were 22.9 per cent and 20.5 per cent respectively during the same time period.

Stephen also stressed the social aspect of high school and its importance to students. There've been a number students who have dropped out and then came back, he said. "They find it very lonely at home without jobs."

School is like the lesser of two evils for students, he explained. They may leave and go mushroom picking, but they'll find it's a hard job with maybe good pay at the start, but not so good after, he said.

He praised co-op education and life-skill programs as a big asset to high schools. They help students who are "running out of gas" by Grade 10, he said.

When they graduate from high school and start looking for a job they'll probably be asked what kind of experience they have. If they can say they have a year's experience they'll have a much better chance at landing that job, he said.

"Most drop-outs I see have run out of opportunities," or they're the type that like "getting their backs up against the system". "But very few are happy just hanging around," he added.

What to do

The question among people in our society today is what do we do with the young people, Stephen said. "Adolescence is being extended all the time. We want to keep kids in school because we don't know what to do with them at that age."

Stephen and Gill Boyce, head of guidance at Tagwi Secondary School, are both concerned about the new graduation requirements.

The students no longer have that five-course "cushion", Boyce said, and therefore can't fail as many courses.

"One dropout is one too many," and the prospects for drop-outs are "increasingly grim," he added.

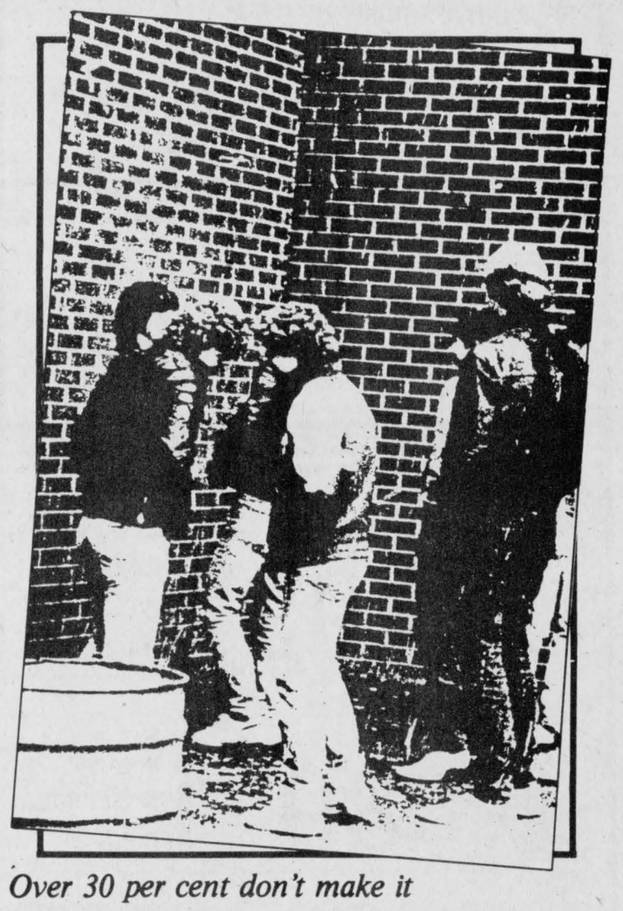
As of Sept. 30, 1986, Tagwi had a total of 526 students. Within the previous year 40 students had dropped out for some reason or another.

Schools are changing, though, and the provincial government is also making strides towards keeping students in school, he said.

"For the most part, schools are a much more relaxed, fun place to be in."

Like Stephen, Boyce also had words of praise for the school co-op education program. "We're quite high on this co-op education business," he said. By having students work on life skills and coping skills the school's giving them "something they can hang onto for the rest of their lives".

Both Boyce and Rothwell-Osnabruck School principal Doug Murray believe a school's size also affects its drop-out rate.



Over 30 per cent don't make it

Theoretically, teachers in a smaller school would have more time for their students. Boyce added he's even seen drop-out rates decline as a school grows smaller.

"I think there's a hell of a lot to be said for small schools," he said.

Along with co-op education and good teacher-student interaction, Murray also cited R-O's small population as a reason for its low drop-out rate. Because of the school's size, the teachers can easily detect when students are falling behind and help them before it's too late, he said.

"A smaller school gets to know its students better."

One way to combat drop-outs is to be responsive to the kids' needs, Murray said. "Schools are becoming more tuned to where kids are at."

Declining school enrolments are forcing schools to hang onto students and take measures to avoid student drop-outs. Ten years ago the popular saying was "keep the best and shoot the rest", he said.

One change that has helped many students achieve their diploma is co-op education, Murray said. The co-op program has now been in place at R-O for four years and it has the highest participation rate in SD&G, he said.

Fifty-one per cent of R-O students in Grades 12 are taking one or more credits through it, he said. He thinks co-op education is one of the major factors in keeping students in the basic and general level programs from dropping out.

Murray also attributed the school's low drop-out rate to its extensive extra-curricular programs. A school like R-O is the centre of rural teenagers' lives, he said. "You're competing with everything else in the students' lives. You've got to keep the kids interested in school."

Although rural high schools may be called "little sticky places" by teachers from big cities, Stephen said, the small school doesn't share the problems of its urban counterpart.

When you go to a mall in Toronto during school hours, "it looks like the school abandoned the building and moved into the shopping centre". Here there are fewer distractions, he said.

"It's a better place to be as far as I'm concerned."

THE CHESTERVILLE Record Editorial / Opinion

Tarnished reputation

Chesterville has entered the major leagues.

While April 3 may not go down in local memory as Black Friday, local hockey fans and community boosters may remember last Friday with shame.

Charges are pending against three Chesterville men in connection with fighting that broke out among fans near the end of a tense Junior C playoff game.

While violence continues to plague minor hockey, it's more unusual to find such sparring off the ice among the fans. Indeed, Norm Duhamel, president of the Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey League, can recall no incidents similar to the Chesterville outbreak in the league's history.

Last week's incident tarnishes the reputation of both the Flyers and the community. That's unfortunate, because it was neither the hockey players nor the bulk of the fans who threw the punches.

Only a handful of the crowd took part but as the saying goes, that's enough to ruin it for the rest.

The blame for last Friday's incident can be spread among many. As the team renting the ice, the hockey club is responsible for security at games, as the rink's owner, the village rents the facility where liquor is banned.

Finally, the public attended the games and, if not aware of the specific prohibition against drinking, should by common sense know how to behave.

For the most part, the crowd of spectators obeyed the rules. But the fracas that concluded the Flyers' final game at home this season could have an impact throughout the league.

The issue will be discussed at a league meeting in May. It's possible the league could -- and should -- decide to beef up its demands for security at games that could attract a large and boisterous crowd.

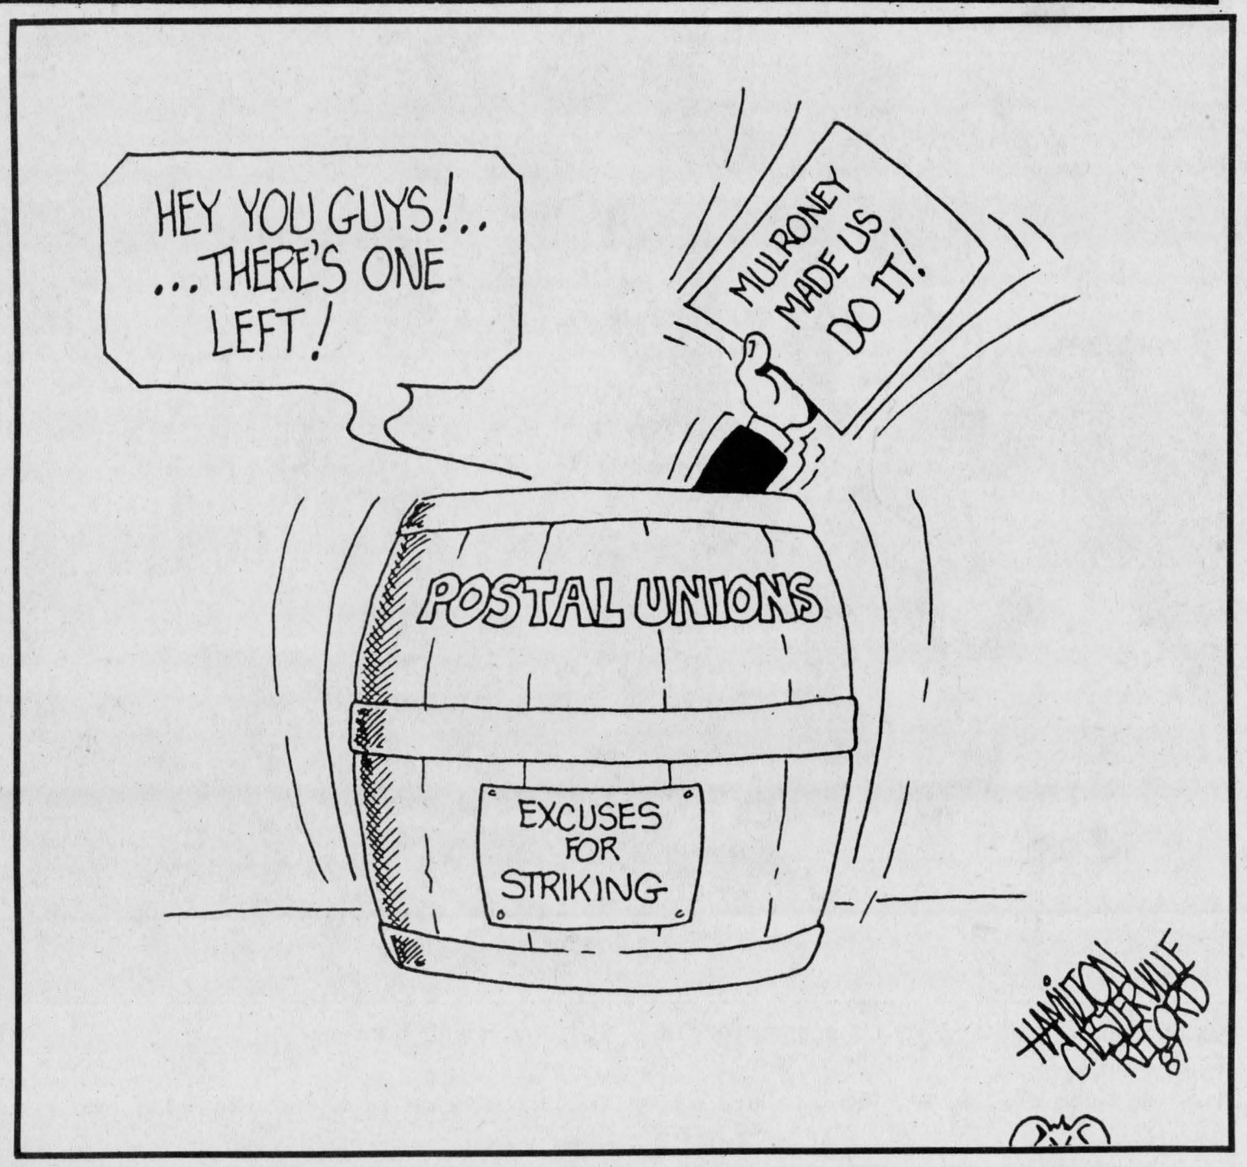
Even with improved security, it may not have been able to prevent what happened last Friday. In the charged atmosphere of playoff hockey, tensions run high; when combined with alcohol, the chances of an outburst are even greater.

And despite the greatest safeguards, violent outbursts can erupt anywhere.

It's surprising the league has avoided such incidents for so long. In the long run, last Friday may even prove beneficial.

It's up to the hockey club and village to ensure the ban on liquor, which is suspected as largely responsible for Friday's incident, is respected.

Once the community realizes the potential for violence and tragedy are there, it has taken the first step towards preventing it.



Chesterville's Past

07 From the Record Thurs., April 11, 1907

The dam question in Chesterville at present is a very serious one, and also an expensive one to the citizens. Through their liberality there has been two dams constructed across the Nation River in a short space of time, and still they have only a piece of one left as a remembrance. The remmants were viewed by a great many during the past week, and all have returned with their hopes blighted.

Stories from citizens living in the vicinity of the Nation River tell of the exceedingly high flood experienced this spring. In this connection, a son of Wm. Shaver, a farmer residing in the 1st concession of Mountain narrowly escaped drowning.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Robinson invited a number of the little ones to their residence on Tuesday afternoon, in honor of the 8th birthday of their son Wellington. The youngsters enjoyed themselves right royalty.

Quite a number of from this place took in the excursion to Montreal yesterday. It was under the auspices of the Methodist Church of South Mountain.

27 From the Record Thurs., April 14, 1927

Last night a large number of hockey fans went from Chesterville and surrounding district to witness the final game of the National Hockey League in Ottawa when the Senators won from the Boston Bruins by 3 to 1 and therefore cinched the championship. The game was very rough, even to the extent of an attack on the referee, Dr. Jerry Laflamme.

During the past week or more, this section has been experiencing almost unclouded weather which would have been delightful for Spring work had it not been accompanied by very keen winds during the day and followed by considerable frost at night.

The annual meeting of the Philathea Woman's Bible Class of the United Church, Chesterville, met at the parsonage Thursday evening, April 7th. Elected officers at the meeting were Mrs. Houlehan, Mrs. Forward, Mrs. Allison, Mrs. Graham, Mrs. (Dr.) Clayton, with Mrs. Helmer elected secretary and Mrs. W.O. Dixon elected treasurer.

Mrs. H.R. Jones, of Montreal, has returned home after spending a couple of weeks at her parental home. Mr. and Mrs. Leroy, of Ottawa, spent Sunday with the latter's parents Mrs. and Mrs. Melvin Durant.

47 From the Record Thurs., April 14, 1947

More than 150 ladies of Chesterville and the surrounding district met on Thursday last in Trinity United Church for the Easter Thank-Offering meeting of Trinity Woman's Missionary Soceity. Six neighbouring auxiliaries and the Presbyterian and Anglican ladies of Chesterville were the guests of the Trinity Auxiliary.

James Fleming, president of Chesterville Branch of the Canadian Legion told of his life in the Canadian Army, last Monday night, at the regular meeting of the Rotary Club. Joining the army on the 6th of September, 1939, Mr. Fleming was in continuous service until February, 1945, when he returned to civil life.

Last night at the McCloskey House a banquet was tendered the members of the Hockey club by the Legionaires' executive, at the completion of a successful season of play.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. Norman Rae spent a day recently with Mrs. Stuart's and Mrs. Rae's father, Johnston Ouderkirk, who was hurt in an accident a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miller, of Newington, spent last Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Scott.

67 From the Record Thurs., April 20, 1967

Chesterville village stores are on their own following repeal of the closing by-laws for shops, stores and barber shops.

Chesterville village is to be zoned so that the use of land, the character, location and use of buildings and structures can be controlled. That is the object of a draft by-law that will come before the public on April 27 in Community Hall .

At the annual meeting of the Dundas County Federation of Agriculture, held in the Town hall in Winchester, Arthur Milne was chosen president for the next two years. Other officers are: Past president Howard Mellon; 1st vice-president, Bernard Brunt; 2nd vice-president, Hugh Blaine; executive members, Doug Irvine, Harold McMenomy, John Wells and Martin Schneckenberger.

Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Fulton and Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Sullivan returned home on Sunday night from a week's holiday in Paris, France.

77 From the Record Wed., April 13, 1977

As the seconds counted down in last Tuesday night's NSLJHL final series game and with Chesterville holding a commanding 4-2 lead over Char-Lan Rebels, Jets goaltender Steve Droppo began his victory dance before being mobbed by his teammates. Droppo played a steady game in the Chesterville nets as his mates took the eight-point series 9-1 and claimed their first-ever league championship.

Following the failture of mediation Saturday to change the situation in the week-old secondary school teacher strike, the SD&G County Board of Education has asked the Education Relations Commission to supervise a vote by teachers in the United Counties on its latest contract offer.

Erik Thompson was elected president of the Chesterville and District Chamber of Commerce at its annual meeting in the Community Hall last Wednesday evening. Mr. Thompson is joined on the executive by past president Dr. Bryan Kennedy, second vice-president Brian "Rocky" McMillan, first vice Bruce Morrison and secretary-treasurer Jim Moran.

Paul Elliott's Afghan Hound, Rocky, has yet to celebrate his first birthday but is already bringing home the ribbons from competitons. The nine-month-old pup recently appeared in his first two shows and won three first-place finishes.

Wyn Thompson

From her wheelchair my old friend looked out through the patio doors of the nursing home and over the fields to a distant bush. "Already you can see spring coming," she told me as I entered her room," - days getting longer, the sun stronger, a yellow fuzz on the pussy willows even with snow lying about in patches. Spring is the season I like best," she concluded laughing merrily.

Another lady came in supported by two canes but very aware of our discussion of spring. She said, "So much that some of us loved about the country is disappearing from sight; but every year still brings seedtime and harvest, and each new season - particulary spring - stirs such nostalgia for yesteryear that we retain some of its joys."

A wheelchair approached from down the hall. An old gentleman informed us that he heard us discussing spring and decided he'd come along and add his two cents worth. He was an avid gardener and still did a bit of container gardening in his nursing home room and thus, provided a great deal of stimulation for the residents who could come to his room.

"Spring still begins for me when I find a seed catalogue or two in my mail," he informed us. "Even if it is below zero, here is something to warm my day - a splash of gaily coloured summer flowers across the cover and growing things on every page inside."

I dream of the garden I will make. I see the riot of colour, hear the bees humming, feel again the wonder of going out in the early morning to see what flowers are about to come out.

"In the same way my pioneer grandmother must have felt when she planted a lilac bush near the west wall of her log cabin, stuck in hollyhock seeds to produce plants to screen the little house behind the big house, and bachelor's buttons and bleeding hearts by the front door. As long as country folk can have their flowers, the country is still country," he concluded.

The lady of the two canes told of her big kitchen garden that had once given the family something approaching a gourmet table. Now her granddaughter said it cost less to buy vegetables than to grow them. But the lady said she didn't feel this was the same at all. She said to my friend: "Remember the spring evenings when we used to light the lantern and go out to the garden and pull a few green onions and radishes for a bedtime snack?" I, too, remember my grandmother doing that same thing!

The hunger for something green in spring my grandmother thought in her last years might be a hangover from the days when, at the end of a hard winter, you would say to your doctor, "I'll be fine as soon as I can get out and pick me a mess of greens."

Now I don't gather 'greens' but I make quite a ceremony of the first rhubarb pie. Though we don't have much maple syrup in a diabetic household, this is the time of year when we have buckwheat pancakes and a syrup appropriate to the individual...just old farm customs.

My old friend said there were other things that hadn't changed with the changes in farming. She said: "Despite the clatter-bang of farm machinery and the poison sprays put on the crops a goodly number of birds still return each spring. We set up a number of bird houses and my husband always said that so long as the birds come back each spring we know we're still in the country."

The old gentleman in the wheelchair said, "As dependable as the freshets in the creeks, out come little girls' skipping ropes and little boys' bikes. This happens in towns and cities, too, but there are children's games I recall from my school-teaching days that seemed to be uniquely country...Prisoner's Base or Run Sheep Run. I suspect these games have been replaced by organized sports." No one seemed to know for sure.

The lady of the two canes said, "There's one aspect of the past that is being partially retained in the area I came from...the little country church service.

"Of course, the little church had closed many years ago, but it still is maintained by the community, and every spring there is a memorial service there.

"Families come during the week before the service and do a few extra things to the building and the graveyard that is in the next field.

"In the afternoon the one service of the year is held in the old church. Visitors come from far and near; they linger by family plots in the graveyard, exchange memories and inquire for old friends. And when the church bell rings, the pews are filled again as they have not been for seventy years.

"A couple of friends always take me to the service and for one short hour country ways have not changed. Sunbeams play on the walls, the choir loft blooms with flowers, the moo of a cow or whinnie of a horse might come in the open windows; and surest of all signs of spring a pewful of young people at the back of the church bring out the marbles."

The old gentleman's face shone as he said, "There's so much that's good in spring to make us remember."

This day, laid in the heart, was a day of spring wind and soft sunshine. And I would rather think of it as such, than ponder the destructive forces of the universe.

The Life of Riley

by Wayne Riley

1:30 a.m.

I have been lying awake in bed since midnight. Except for the occasional grinding of my wife's teeth, all is quiet. And it is not so bad, either. Lying in a warm bed with the woman I love, our two children sleeping quietly in the other bedrooms, a cat purring on the dresser, I know there are no shortage of topics to keep me occupied in the small hours of the morning. Like insomnia, for example.

1:37 a.m.

When I was a kid and couldn't sleep I sometimes listened to the steady tick of my alarm clock until it eventually faded away into silence. I glance over at the clock on the nightstand. Digital.

1:49 a.m.

Marvin Hagler, the middleweight boxing champion, is going to receive $12 million for having a fight with Sugar Ray Leonard. Leonard will receive $11 million. Both could conceivably walk away with the money after just one well-thrown punch. When I think how my mother was always telling my brothers and me not to fight, I could just spit.

2:01 a.m.

Time change.

1:01 a.m.

No, wait a minute. Spring forward, fall back.

3:01 a.m.

Do the guys on night shift get paid for that hour? Or was that their hour for lunch?

3:11 a.m.

My wife has just said "ricky ticky, ricky ticky, ricky ticky ticky" in her sleep. I lean over and quietly ask, "What's ricky ticky?" She rumbles. "The ricky ticky man," she says, and turns over.

3:17 a.m.

The refrigerator light is hard on the eyes. I squint and look over what's available. An apple would be good for me but I feel like something more substantial. I settle on three hot dogs. As I am about to microwave three wieners, common sense takes over. I put one back in the fridge.

3:19 a.m.

I am back in bed. It's very quiet. I wish I had made the third hot dog.

3:27 a.m.

This is absolutely ridiculous. I have to clear my mind, think about nothing at all, relax my brain. I recall a meditation technique in which the meditator blocks out everything around him by concentrating on a single point of light in his mind. I close my eyes and concentrate. There is the light. I concentrate harder. The light becomes a 40-watt refrigerator bulb. I can see the hot dog again.

3:31 a.m.

"Heidi, are you awake?," I ask my wife quietly. She does not respond. "Are you awake?" I ask again, and this time there is movement. Unfortunately, it is only because I am shaking her. I decide she is not awake.

3:35 a.m.

I have resigned myself to the fact that I will never sleep again.

8:02 a.m.

I am being shaken apart. What? What? Time to get up? What are you saying? My wife comes into focus. "Wayne, do you want to be late for work this morning?"

I half sit up and look at her. "I'm not sure," I say finally, dropping back to the warm comfort of the sheets. "Why don't you let me sleep on it?"

Parents' group opposes liberalization of liquor laws in Ontario

TO THE EDITOR:

OPEN LETTER TO THE PREMIER OF ONTARIO

We, the members of the involved Parents Group of Gananoque, Lansdowne and District wish to oppose some of the recommendations of the Ontario Advisory Committee on Liquor Regulation released 3 March 1987 at Queens Park.

We too, would aim for "individual responsibility and moderation in the consumption of beverage alcohol". However, we believe that liberalization of liquor laws, specifically, extension of hours for licenced premises, patrons being allowed to bring their own beverage alcohol to restaurants, 24 hour room service and de-regulation of some Special Occasion Permits IS NOT RESPONSIBLE. Our area in Eastern Ontario spends its share of the estimated half billion dollars cost of alcohol abuse in the Health Care, Social Welfare, Law Enforcement and reduced prodictivity problems.

The legislation to reduce the drinking age from 21 to 18 to 19 a few years ago effectively put legal consumption of alcohol into the high school age group. In that age group, Peer Pressure dictates that if friends do it, it's o.k. for me (age 19 is not the measure). This same student Peer Pressure is resulting in alcohol consumption at the public school age level.

Our Community is only one of many which is suffering from the epidemic of underage drinking. In October, 1985, we lost three students in an alcohol related car crash.

At the Inquest of these deaths, the Coroner's Jury recommended that the drinking age be raised to 21 and that there be stricter controls on the sale of alcohol. The Leeds & Grenville Board of Education (25 November, 1985) passed three resolutions, 1) legal drinking age be raised to age 21, 2) the sale of beer and wine should not be permitted in grocery stores, 3) Government review lifestyle advertising of beer and wine.

In this Province now, millions of dollars are spent in prevention programmes for students and adults alike (VIP, SADD, Alcohol and Drug education, etc.). Many groups such as ours, have formed to find the ways to protect our children and ourselves from further pain and cost brought about by alcohol.

We believe that liberalized liquor laws do NOT "reflect the attitudes and expectations of the public" as Mr. Offer believes they do.

We feel so committed to opposing liberalization of liquor laws that we are also sending this letter to 240 weekly newspapers across Ontario. We will also address the Gananoque Town Council with the hopes of seeing a resolution sent to the Association of Municipalities of Ontario.

Chesterville Flyers lose series, championship streak ends

ST. ISIDORE (Staff) - Sentences, in passing can ring prophetic later.

Before the Chesterville Flyers-St. Isidore Eagles game Friday, Tom Van Dellon, president of the Flyers, said, "If we don't win tonight, we go into St. Isidore in a lot of trouble."

The Flyers lost the game and then lost Sunday, thereby, losing the series 4-1 and their bid for winning the J.G. Stewart Trophy and the championship three years in a row.

Alain Lapensee of the Eagles, scored his first with five minutes remaining in the first period with assists from Jean Lauxon and Joel Lalonde.

The St. Isidore team went up 3-0 with two more goals in the second. Mario Galipeau scored with Lapensee's assist and Lapensee scored with assists from Lauzon and Claude Leroux. Mark Guy put the Flyers on the scoreboard when he scored an unassisted goal with the Eagles shorthanded. Before the second period was over, the Eagles had scored again. Leroux had a goal with Marc Bercier assisting with 2:44 remaining.

The score was 4-1.

Two minutes into the third the score read 4-2 when Vince Cousineau scored with help from Gary Klein Swormik and Ken Byers. Three goals were then scored in the span of two minutes. Jean Maisonneuve put the Eagles up by three minutes into the period. Mario Bertrand had the assist. Fifty seconds later it was 6-2 when Mario Charlebois scored with assists from Galipeau and Lapensee. Nine seconds later Mark Guy scored for the Flyers with Cousineau assisting. with Cousineau assisting.

The Flyers cut the lead to two with 4:44 remaining when Chris Lynch scored with John Guy and Cousineau assisting. Lapensee capped off a five-point night by scoring his third goal, the final in the game.

The Eagles had won the game 7-4.

Lapensee was named first star of the game for his five-point performance.

Van Dellon said the players must have become frustrated when they couldn't score on Eagles' goalie Martin Renaud (he was named the second star of the game).

"They were pounding the St. Isidore net but couldn't get a goal. It must have frustrated the guys when they couldn't get it in. They came out hard and should have had three goals by that time."

Mike Armstrong, Flyers' coach, said: "We just couldn't control the puck. The chances were there and they scored but we didn't."

St. Isidore was ready for Sunday's game and wanted the win, said the Eagles' coach, Marcel Lalonde.

"Last night (Sunday) was a big factor. If we lost we would be going back and might have to go to game seven. You never know what could happen if it goes to game seven -- a lucky bounce could end it.

He added the team was getting tired of playing the games leading up to the final series.

"The guys didn't want to go back to Chesterville so they gave about 150 per cent. After playing all the games they were getting a little tired."

In contrast, the Flyers had 26 days of rest but Armstrong said, "You can't make excuses, you have to be ready."

The Eagles took a 3-1 lead in the series when they won Friday's game 6-5 in double overtime.

Overtime win

The Flyers seemed to want the win and built up a 2-0 lead after the first period. Mark Guy scored with Cousineau's and Darren Kelly's assist. With the Flyers applying pressure to Renaud, Jerrold Boulanger scored with Mark Guy's assist.

Early in the second the Flyers appeared to have a two-on-none break but it occurred because there were too many men on the ice.

The Eagles ended up getting the first goal in the second. Bertrand scored with Charlebois and Pierre Grenier's assist. With four minutes remaining in the period, John Guy parked himself beside the Eagles' net and tipped in Todd Findlay's pass to restore the two-goal lead. Boulanger also got an assist on the play. The Eagles scored with 27 seconds in the period after a face-off in the Flyers' end. Lapensee had the goal while Bercier and Galipeau got the helpers.

The two-goal lead was once again restored early in the third when Boulanger scored with Mark and John Guy's assist. With 8:37 remaining Maisonneuve carried the puck over the blue line and left it for Charlebois, who went in and put it between Brad Droppo's pads to cut the lead to one. With under three minutes remaining, the Eagles applied pressure to Droppo and, although he made some initial save, Lapensee finally put it in to tie the game. Paul Maisonneuve and Charlebois assisted.

There wasn't any more scoring as the game went into overtime with a 4-4 tie. The Flyers scored with four-and-a-half minutes remaining to go ahead. Rene Boulanger got the goal while Lynch and Cousineau got the assist. It seemed the Flyers would tie the series at two games apiece but one minute later the score was tied when Leroux scored with the help of Bertrand. The overtime period ended in a 5-5 tie.

Then a fight broke out. Then six. Not on the ice but in the stands. Spectators were fighting each other and the police were called in to control it. The referees delayed the game 15 minutes not allowing the players out onto the ice until order was restored.

When it was, the game went into a sudden-death overtime and one-and-a-half minutes later, Lapensee completed a hat-trick with the winning goal as the Eagles downed the Flyers 6-5. Paul Maisonneuve got the assist.

The fighting then resumed among the fans and by its end one person, Marc Legault of St. Isidore, was taken away with injuries.

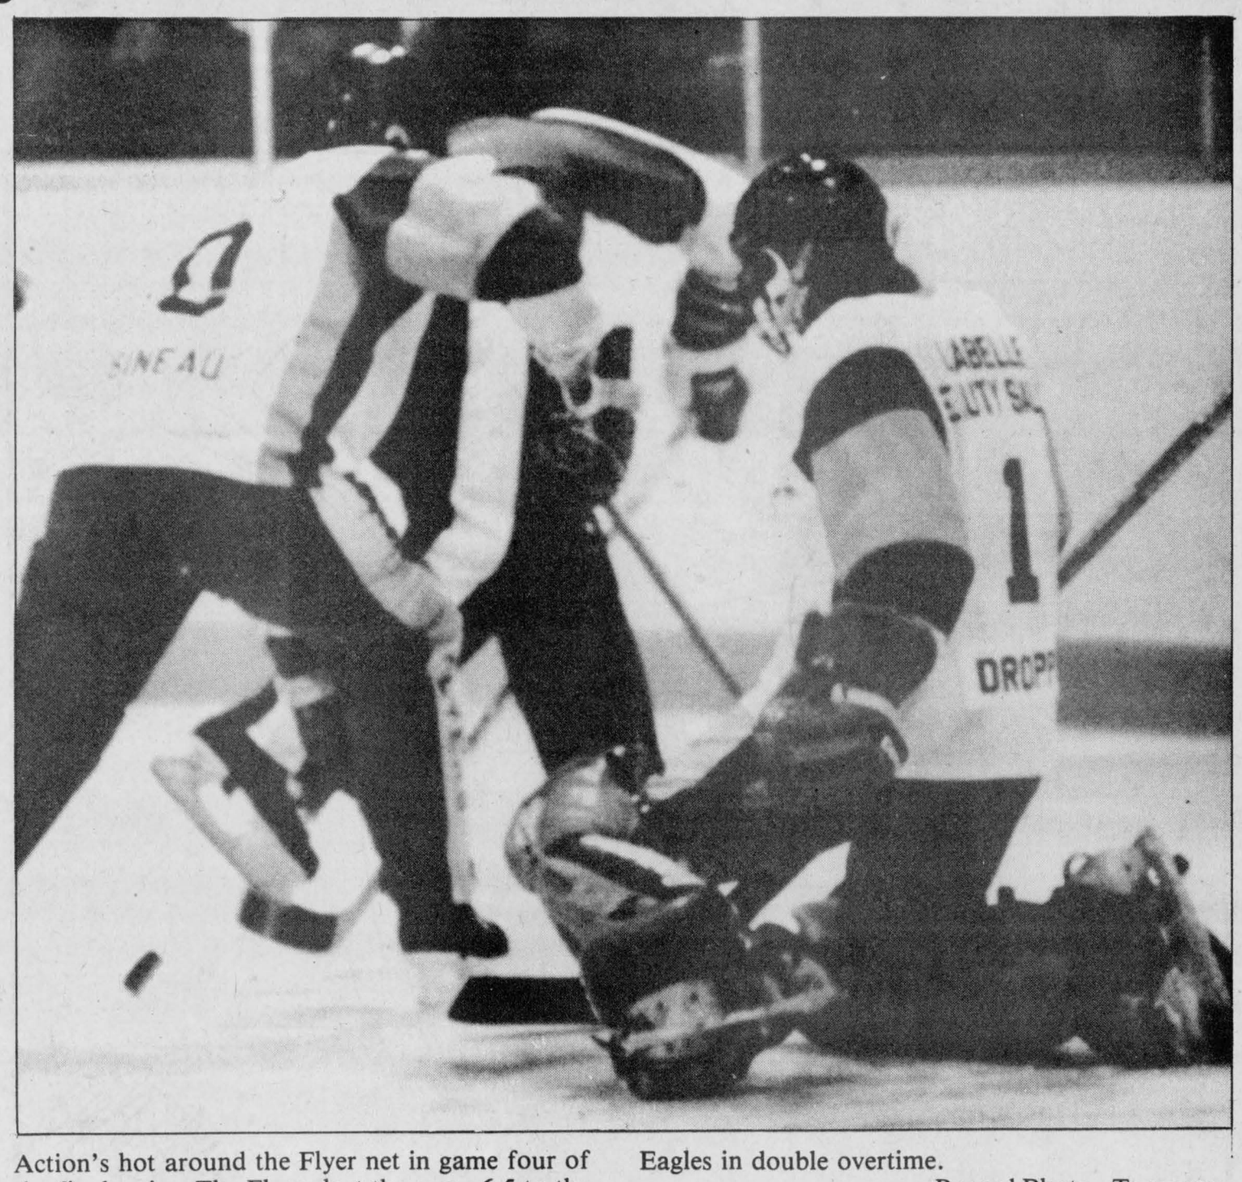
Van Dellon said of the game, "We really played hard on Friday and if we had won it would have made a difference."

Armstrong added: "It was sort of a swing game. It made it an awfully hard hill to climb."

Paul Maisonneuve was added to the Eagles lineup after Guy Quesnel separated his shoulder in the game before.

"They (Flyers) had a full bench and we needed someone to fill up ours. Paul had played a few games for us earlier in the year and we brought him up."

Other than the last game, the scoring was always a one goal difference. The Eagles won game three, April 1, by a score of 3-2.



Action's hot around the Flyer net in game four of the final series. The Flyers lost the game 6-5 to the Eagles in double overtime.

Up by one

They scored first when Leroux put one in the opening minutes of the game. Bertrand assisted on the play. With five minutes remaining in the first, Kelly tied the game with Byers and Sam Gibson assisting.

There wasn't any scoring in the second.

St. Isidore went up by one in the early stages of the third with Bertrand's goal from passes by Leroux and Jean Maisonneuve. Findlay scored with over five minutes left in the game to tie it. Boulanger and Lynch assisted.

It seemed the game would be going into overtime when with 18 seconds left, Bertrand scored with Jean Maisonneuve's help and gave the Eagles a 2-1 advantage in the best-of-seven final.

After losing the opening game of the series, March 29, by a score of 5-4, the Flyers tied the series in the second, March 31, winning it 6-5.

Series tied

Kevin Byers scored on a powerplay with an assist from Cousineau to open the game up. Boulanger scored with help from Findlay to put the Flyers up 2-0 six minutes into the game. They increased their lead 16 seconds later when Kevin Byers scored again, this time with the assist of Doug Newman.

With the game six minutes old, the Eagles changed goalies. Rejean Amyot, who had stopped only four of seven shots, was replaced by Renaud, who finished the game and the series.

With the goalie change, the Eagles got three goals of their own with more than half a period to play.

Joel Lalonde got a powerplay goal with assists from Bertrand and Jean Maisonneuve. With Boulanger in the penalty box for interference, and 29 seconds remaining, Leroux scored with the help of Charlebois and Jean Maisonneuve. Five seconds later the score was even when Galipeau had a goal with Lapensee's assist.

Six minutes into the second Swormik put the Flyers up by one with an assist by Ken Byers, however, four minutes later the game was tied once again. Lalonde scored with Lapensee's assist. The second period ended in a 4-4 tie.

In the early minutes of the final period Lynch hit one off of Kelly's pass to put the Flyers up by one again. They went up by two after Mike Harper scored with assists from Kelly and Lynch. The Eagles were able to get one back with Galipeau's goal, assisted by Lapensee and Jean Maisonneuve. The game ended in a 6-5 decision for the Flyers.

Close series

As most people had predicted the games were close and no team was going to run away with it.

Van Dellon said, "We had a good series, nobody got blown out and we gave it our best."

He added, "They are a good team and the better team won."

Lalonde said, "They always say the team that wins is the better one and I think we showed that but I'm still going to say Chesterville has a good team, no two ways about it, they had a good organization."

St. Isidore has been in the league for four years and this is the first win for them.

Green/Maroon tied at two in town league hockey

CHESTERVILLE (Staff) - Green came back rom a 2-0 deficit in the best-of-five series to tie it with a win Monday.

Green scored first a minute-and-a-half into the contest when, with assists from Jamie Utman and Pete Marriner. Jim Peters scored. Maroon tied it with six minutes remaining. Darrell Shelp got the goal with assists from Andy Windsor and Greg Kelly. With 39 seconds remaining in the opening period, Terry Barkley went in alone and got an unassisted goal to give Green a 2-1 lead at the end of the period.

Maroon got the only score in the second. Green's goalie Blake Henderson made several stops but couldn't control the rebound as Tony Kelly drove the puck home with Shelp assisting.

Utman put Green up by one early in the third when he and Marriner went in two one one with the defence. Marriner carried the puck over the line and forced the defence onto him, he then passed it to Utman who scored the goal. Dave Cross got the other assist on the play. The score was tied at three, three minutes into the period with a Shawn Chambers' goal, assisted by Pat Kelly and Ken Rose.

After spending three minutes off the ice for a hooking penalty, Marriner got onto the ice and scored an unassisted goal six seconds later. Green went up 5-3 with five minutes remaining when Marriner scored again with Dwayne Fawcett assisting. Maroon has pressure on Henderson. While he tried to make a save and was falt on the ice, Barry Fulton lifted the puck over Henderson to score. Greg Kelly and Shelp got the assists.

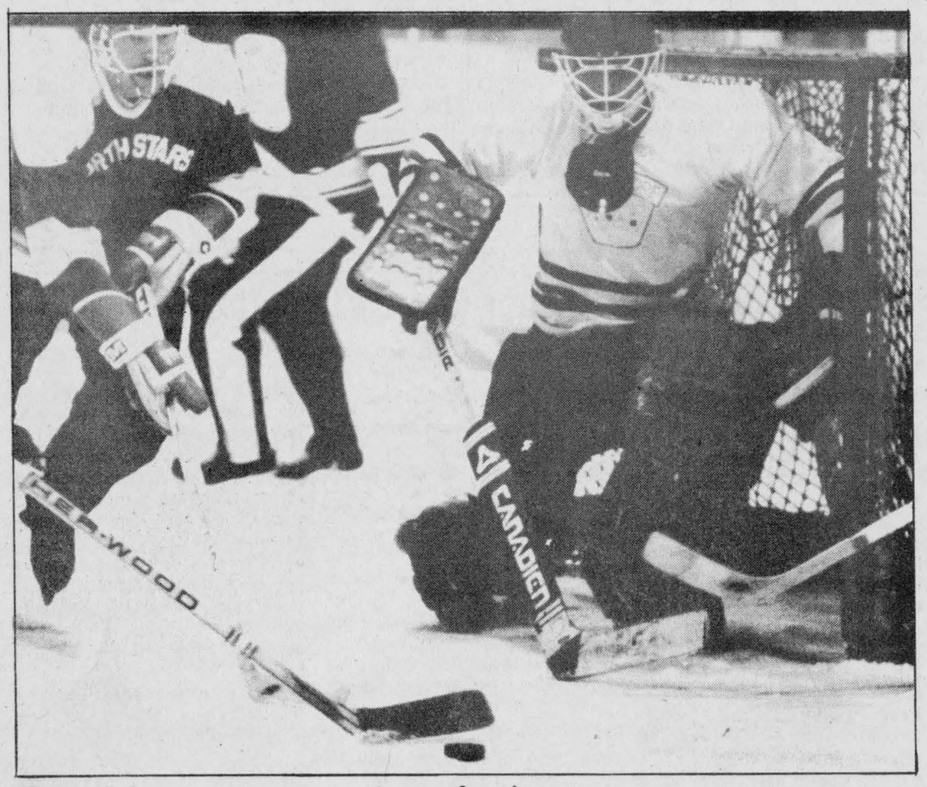
Maroon had a scoring chance late in the game. Having pulled their goalie, for the extra attacker, they got a further advantage when Green's Dave Richards received a penalty. With a six on four situation Maroon couldn't score and the game ended in a 5-4 decision for Green, extending the series to its final game. It was to be played Tuesday.

Green came out and won game three of the series to extend the series.

Winger Barkley had the first goal six minutes into the game when he scored off the face off in Maroon's end. Thirty-nine seconds later Marriner scored with the assist of Utman. With 30 seconds remaining in the first Henderson made the initial stop on the net but failed to control the rebound and Greg Kelly pushed the puck over the line, putting Maroon on the scoreboard. Pat Kelly assisted on the play.

Green had the only scoring of the second. Fawcett, with Ken Shay assisting, scored 1:49 into the period. With five minutes gone, Marriner scored his second, an unassisted goal.

There was no more scoring as Green extended the series, winning the game 4-1.



Green/Maroon play game three of series. Green won it 4-1.

Nine North Dundas H.S. gymnasts advance to all-Ontario after strong EOSSA showing

MAPLE RIDGE (Staff) - Nine North Dundas gymnasts will be heading off to Scarborough this week after qualifying at EOSSA here last Wednesday.

Although 10 girls qualified, nine will be going since Cheryl Freda aggrevated her weak knee at the meet here and won't be able to attend.

"She is philosophical about it," sais team coach Fran Kelly.

The juniors will have four representatives from NDDHS: Marianne Scheuner, in the vaulting, floor and bar events; Tracy Bothwell, in the same events; Karen Gilroy, in the bars and floor events; and Marie Fazzino, in the beam event.

Three members will be represented in the intermediate: Marcie McClatchie, in the bars and floor events; Janet Matthew, in the vaulting and bar events; and Michelle Helmer, in the vaulting event.

Carol Graham will be in all four events in the senior category as will Shelly MacDonald for the Club B category.

Freda was to have competed in the Club A category.

The team members had strong showings at the EOSSA and it reflected in the team standings. NDDHS finished first with a total of 312.6 points, ahead of GDHS's 304.5.

Kelly said: "I was fairly optimistic (going into EOSSA) but didn't want to jinx myself. A fall could have cost key points."

In the meet, Scheuner took best all around for the juniors after finishing first in the vaulting, second on the floor and third on the bars. Bothwell finished third all-around junior with her first place finish in the floor exercise, second on the bars and third in the vaulting.

Gilroy finished fourth in the floor and bar events, while Fazzino was third in the beam event.

McClatchie was second in the all-around intermediate category. She finished first on the uneven bars and second in the floor exercise. Matthew was third overall with her second-place finish in the vault and third on the bars. Helmer was first in the vault.

Graham was first in the all-around for seniors finishing first on the uneven bars, vaulting, floor exercise and fourth on the beam.

Freda took second in the all-around Club A category. She finished first in the vault and beam and second on the floor and bars.

MacDonald swept all four events and took first in the Club B category for best all around.

Kelly said she was confident the team members would do well.

"Individually we have the strongest team."

She was, however, sceptical of finishing first in the team standings since she thought the lack of senior members would limit the number of points available.

Going into the all-Ontario meet in Variety Valley in Scarborough Friday and Saturday, she is not sure how well the team will do.

"You're only competing against the best in Ontario, so the chances of winning are slim."

The school runs from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. with registration at 10 a.m. While there is another school scheduled for Nov. 3, Irwin said there is a possibility of another during the season.

Irwin has been teaching since 1981 and taught at six other schools.

The 25-year-old Irwin has been riding since he was five and competed for the first time when he was 14.

He will be competing for the Canadian and world championship again this year.

His best at the world's has been placing 63 among 500 racers from among 24 countries. This year he hopes to get into the top 30.
