Art auction

MAXVILLE — Child Haven International wants to put local artists in the picture while raising money for its orphanages in India.

The Maxville-based charity is sponsoring its second annual art show and auction May 11-14 at the Brookdale Mall, Cornwall. A three-piece limited edition collection of prints donated by Jean McCormick and Bonnville Art Publishing Co., valued at $700, will be raffled off the final day of the exhibition. Among the works included in the auction is a framed and signed Robert Bateman print.

Appeal launched

CORNWALL — The Lung Association is appealing for $15,000 from residents in SD&G, Prescott and Russell to launch a family asthma program. "We plan to offer it as soon as possible, probably in the fall," says Marg Alexander, local association executive director.

The educational program will help asthmatic children and their parents understand asthma so they can live with their condition.

Under control

CHESTERVILLE — About a dozen Chesterville firefighters were called Wednesday afternoon to a grass fire burning out of control on the property of Bob McLaughlin northeast of the village. "It got out of hand when he called us, it was getting pretty close to the buildings. In fact, it was right up to the buildings," said Fire Chief Ross Casselman. But firefighters quickly brought the fire under control.

Heartfelt

WINCHESTER — Dr. W.L. Williams of the University of Ottawa Heart Institute will be the guest speaker May 19 at a meeting of the Dundas chapter of the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation. Williams will speak on current trends in cardiac mortality, the risk factors and interesting developments at the institute. The public is welcome. The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m. at the Winchester and District Memorial Hospital.

Under pressure

CHESTERVILLE — The blood pressure clinic advertised in last week's Record will be held in Chesterville on one day only, Friday, from 10 a.m. to noon and from 1-5 p.m. at Seaway Valley Pharmacy. Stormont-Dundas Grits back Turner's leadership

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

CORNWALL — Stormont and Dundas Liberals have thrown their support behind a beleaguered John Turner.

At a regular meeting of the federal riding association's executive last Wednesday, the Stormont-Dundas association unanimously endorsed the party leader, whose leadership has been attacked by 22 rebel Liberal MPs and party officials.

"Any man that can come through this and display the kind of courage that he has certainly will make an excellent prime minister," said association president Sheila Tremblay.

Seventeen of a 25-member executive attended last week's meeting and immediately expressed their support to Turner by telegram. Riding associations across the country were also beginning a campaign to counter opposition to the former prime minister's continued party leadership.

Tremblay said the executive had no animosity towards Turner. "The discussion centred around the fact that a few dissidents were trying to unseat our constitutionally elected and constitutionally confirmed leader," she said.

Morrisburg physician Gerry Rosenquist, the only declared candidate for the riding's federal nomination, agrees.

Rosenquist, who won 36 per cent of the popular vote in SD&G and East Grenville for the party in last September's provincial campaign, voted for Turner at both the leadership convention and the review.

"I feel we owe him a certain degree of loyalty. We put him there and I think we should go with him."

Rosenquist wasn't always a staunch Turner supporter; he came close to voting for Jean Chretien at the leadership convention.

"I almost voted for him, my heart voted for him. But now I would not."

Chretien is the one Liberal who should now stand firmly behind Turner yet he's holding back and doing a disservice to the party, said Rosenquist.

"If he thinks he's going to stand a chance of becoming leader, he's sadly mistaken."

Rosenquist admitted Turner may not have appeared as "the most dynamic leader in the world" but said party division can break out even under a leader as appealing as Ontario Liberal Premier David Peterson.

The debate itself isn't uncommon or even unhealthy, he added.

"The Tories are having their division, the NDP are having theirs and we're having ours," he said.

"I feel it's more important that we're able to talk openly about the differences of opinion that we have."

Rosenquist is confident Turner will lead the party into the federal election, which he predicts won't be called until next spring.

Tremblay believes Canadians share the view of local Liberals.

"I feel from what I've heard most people are appalled by this kind of thing and have a lot of sympathy for a man going through this, and admiration."

Police searching for man who flashed woman, girl

WINCHESTER — OPP here are investigating the second incident within a month in which a man pulled down his pants and exposed himself to a female passerby.

Police believe the same man is involved in both incidents. The latest occurred along a road between Ormond and Marionville at 1 p.m. Thursday.

The man exposed himself to a 20-year-old RR1 Winchester woman who was bicycling past his car parked along the roadside ahead of her.

She was able to give a detailed description of the man and police have also drawn up a composite sketch using the information given them.

The description given to police by the woman matches the description of a man who pulled down his pants and exposed himself to a young girl on Concession 7, near the old Connaught school house in Winchester Township, a month ago.

The girl was riding her bike when a man in a medium blue car drove by her, and then stopped and waited for her to approach the vehicle. When the girl passed the vehicle, the man called to her and the pulled his pants down and exposed himself.

Police describe the man as being in his mid-20s with dark hair. He was wearing sunglasses at the time of the incidents.

Lunenburg water woes could be resolved by 1989

Greg Kielec

LUNENBURG — Work to correct water and sewer problems plaguing more than half the homes here could start by spring next year, says Don Branch, project manager for the consulting firm studying the problem.

The firm, M.S. Thompson and Associates Ltd., held a public meeting at the tiny hamlet Thursday night to unveil its preliminary hydrogeological study and let residents know what their next move will be.

The consultants were hired in January to look into water and sewer problems in the village, detailed in a Ontario Ministry of Environment report released last year.

In 1986 and 1987 samplings, the MOE found more than 50 per cent of the homes in the hamlet had wells with water unfit for human consumption.

"Of the 38 houses sampled, 20 contained fecal coliform or strepococci (bacterium causing serious infections) greater than the maximum acceptable level of 10 organisms per 100 millilitres of total coliform.

Some of the wells sampled contained bacteria levels more than 700 times above normal.

A preliminary hydrogeological report by Water and Earth Science Associates Ltd. of Carp, Ont. has nixed having a communal water system for the village but says the village wells can be corrected.

The 35 village residents who turned up for the meeting seemed pleased with the plans to correct the system and there was little, if any, negative reaction, Branch said.

"For everyone I talked to, there was no problem. They were happy," he said.

Water and Earth Sciences Associates Ltd. are to do more well tests over the month and will likely address the village sewage problems in June.

His firm will probably submit a report to council by September or October. If the report is accepted by township council and the MOE, work could begin in the spring, provided provincial funds are available, Branch said.

But township reeve Stewart Hart was less optimistic about the project. "It'll likely be two or three years before it's all straightened up," he maintained.

Township resident charges village policy of supplying municipal services unfair

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Winchester Township developer Peter van Kessel stormed out of a village council meeting last week, charging the village's policy of supplying municipal water and sewer services to township residents is unfair.

But council said it had little choice but to apply the regulations set by the Ontario inistry of the Environment.

Van Kessel's son, Peter, had requested village sewer services for his property on Queen Street West just beyond the municipal boundary.

Clerk-treasurer Mary McDonell said the Ontario Water Resources Act demands that he first make a formal application to the ministry complete with engineer's drawings. Because the line would cross municipal boundaries, a public hearing would also have to be called. The applicant would bear all the costs.

But Van Kessel's father questioned why his son should be treated differently than several township residents along South Street who draw on the village's services.

He said his son was being discriminated against because he was a van Kessel. "That's a crying shame," he said.

Reeve Carl Ward said the South Street residents were specifically covered by an agreement first struck in 1979.

The only township residents now receiving water and sewer services live in the village's south end and are covered by an agreement specifically denoting properties abutting South Street.

After the meeting, McDonell said the trunk line the servicing the township residents is already in place for village residents along the north side of South Street. But supplying the van Kessel property would mean an extension of the line, she said.

"It really has nothing to do with whether it's Peter van Kessel Jr. or Roger Cole Jr. or Michael McMahon Jr.," Ward told van Kessel Jr. after his father had left.

"I guess there's not much I can do then," said van Kessel Jr.

Deputy-Reeve Bert van Kessel, the developer's brother, declared conflict-of-interest and sat out the discussion. But he too questioned the fairness of the village's policy when a report of a committee reviewing the agreement was later discussed.

In June, he said, council approved the hookingup of Rene VanSchie's South Street shop without a public hearing.

"We can't have double standards" van Kessel said.

But Councillor Roger Cole argued the VanSchie property didn't mean an extension of the existing line.

Ward said council should seek the ministry's advice and avoid accusations it's picking on anyone.

The review of the agreement was spurred by Peter van Kessel Jr.'s request earlier this month.

Councillor Shirley Coons concluded the policy was "fairly good" and "well written". But the 1979 agreement with the Winchester Township specifies only sewer services, she said.

(McDonell said later an agreement with the United Counties, necessary because the installation of lines meant cutting through a county road, includes both water and sewer services.)

According to the agreement, township property owners must pay a $50 connection fee as well as a one-time fee -- two-thirds of the base rate per hundred feet of frontage -- in lieu of the original frontage charge assessed against village residents.

But the agreement doesn't cover monthly fees, said the reeve.

Township residents now pay an $11 monthly charge, compared to $8 for village residents. "This is a concern, I think," Ward said.

The village's taxpayers will cover $343,000 of the $1.75 million bill for developing a new water source in the Maple Ridge Road area, he said. Yet some township landowners will also benefit.

Council rejects proposal to call for designs for hall above Chesterville arena

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Village council has turned thumbs down on a recommendation from Chesterville's recreation committee to seek designs for the construction of a community hall above an extended arena lobby.

Council rejected the proposal, which came out of an April 26 recreation committee meeting, last week.

"We kind of have to keep our priorities straight and it seems to me that the big thing we've got to get in place is our water," Reeve Carl Ward said Monday night.

The proposal to erect a new community hall has been on hold since March, 1987, when the last public meeting to discuss the project attracted only five people. A consultant's study in 1986 concluded that new multi-purpose community centre could be built for between $750,000 and $850,000.

The extension of the arena lobby and the construction of a community hall on the newly created second-storey had been proposed as a cheaper alternative.

The revised project would also solve the need for repairs to the arena roof, which has been leaking where the arena and lobby roofs meet.

"There is a poblem with the roof so one of the suggestions was perhaps we should be looking at the possibility of having a hall at some time," said Councillor Shirley Coons, one of two council members sitting on the recreation committee.

A steering committee in charge of the community hall proposal had offered to bear any costs of calling for designs. The committee has about $3,000 it has raised itself.

Coons endorsed the committee's recommendation. "I felt it had some merit," but she added the decision must ultimately be made by council.

"Anything of that magnitude has to be."

The reeve questioned the advisability of constructing another second-storey hall.

"The whole concept of a new town hall initially and originally would be to have a facility on the ground floor," he said. "We need more room and we need it on the ground floor."

Ward said the village must consider its top priority -- a $1.75 million water well development for which the village must raise $343,000.

"Whatever monies we have would be directed at making that project go ahead."

Van stolen in Sunday break-in

WINCHESTER — OPP here are investigating a break and enter at Johansen Truck Centre overnight May 8 in which three large tool boxes and a 1979 Dodge van were stolen.

Thieves broke into the truck centre through the building's back door, loaded three tool boxes, filled with mechanics tools, into the van and drove away.

The van was discovered in the morning, May 9, in a parking lot at Carleton University, Ottawa. The van was discovered by university security staff, who then called Ottawa City Police.

The identification unit from the OPP's district headquarters in Long Sault were called in and took fingerprints from both the outside and inside of the van.

The prints are being compared to a list of Ottawa area suspects, said Cpl. Jim McWade, of the Winchester OPP detachment.

Long Sault OPP are investigating a break-in at the Crysler Chip Stand Sunday morning. A window in the stand was damaged and $200 worth of food articles were taken. Police have no suspects.

OPP are also investigating an attempted break-in at the Royal Canadian Legion near Finch on either May 1 or 2. The legion's back door was jimmied, causing minor damage and a southeast window was removed from the building and broken on the ground, police said.

Man escapes crash with only minor injuries

WINCHESTER — A 26-year-old Ottawa man was charged with failing to provide a blood sample and driving while his license was disqualified after he demolished the car he was driving in a one vehicle accident Saturday night.

Peter Summers was charged by Winchester OPP after a 1983 Chevrolet he was driving west, on Highway 43, went out of control at County Road 3, into a ditch and rolled over, throwing him from the car.

Summers received minor injuries in the accident.

In a separate incident, 20-year-old Terry Merkley of RR2 Chesterville, was charged with careless driving after she was involved in a one-vehicle accident at the south junction of Highway 31, near Winchester.

Police said Merkley fell asleep at the wheel, causing her car to go out of control and hit a light pole. The accident occurred at 11:45 p.m. Friday.

The car she was driving received major damage, police said. The light pole needed to be replaced.

Long Sault OPP also received a complaint of mischief in connection with an incident which occurred overnight May 5.

Chesterville resident Sean Benbow had parked his car on the shoulder of County Road 12 between Berwick and Crysler. When he came back to get the vehicle he found it had been rolled over in a ditch with all its windows kicked out and the stereo and speakers stolen.

ELMA — Students at Elma Public School could hardly contain their excitement as they waited for their 26 French-speaking "twins" from New Brunswick to arrive at their school last week.

Standing at the front of the school, where a huge Welcome Lameque banner hung from the roof, the grade 5 and 6 students paced, chewed fingernails and jumped up and down waiting in eager anticipation.

It's the second year the school has taken part in the exchange program with French-speaking students from Eastern Ontario. There was such a good reaction from students and parents last year, the school decided to hold it again, said French teacher Gisele Gratton.

"It's excellent. The kid's love it," she said. "It was a very positive experience last year."

The 26 New Brunswick Grade 6 students had a action-packed week, touring two Ottawa Museums, Parliament Hill and the Rideau Centre as well as going swimming at the Transport Canada Training Institute in Cornwall and being involved in various activities at the school.

Twenty-nine Elma students will in return to to Lameque for a week from June 2 to 6. As well as getting to see the ocean, the students will tour lighthouses and see fisheries in the Maritime province.

The students wanted the exchange so badly that they raised $1,400 through a Rock-a-thon for the Lameque students' trip. The money cut the cost of the trip in half for the students.

The Lameque students were at Elma until noon Friday.

Jr. aggies, agricrews return

ALEXANDRIA — Agricrews and Junior Agriculturalists are back.

The two summer employment programs sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food are now accepting applications.

Agricrews consist of four-person teams who can be hired by farmers for eight-hour days or a total of five days throughout the summer for a $110 daily fee. Three crews will be available in Glengarry and Stormont and farmers are advised to book early.

Young people between the ages of 15 and 24 with some farm experience are encouraged to apply.

The Junior Agriculturalist program places young people between the ages of 16 and 24 with no agricultural background with a host farm family for nine weeks during the summer.

Both programs begin June 20. For more information, contact Youth Employment Supervisor Linda Cousineau at OMAF's Alexandria office at 525-1046.

Finch Village showing age with pride

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

FINCH — Like Chesterville, Winchester and North Dundas District High School, the village of Finch is showing its age -- and it's proud of it.

Next year, the village will celebrate the 135th anniversary of what a committee is calling the birth of the community.

"It was 1854 when they put the store in there, when it became Gray's Corners," says Edith Stewart, spokeswoman for an informal group of about ten village and township residents planning 1989 festivities.

The village was not incorporated as a separate municipality until April 27, 1906.

It was only earlier this year that Stewart stumbled across the significance of 1989 in Finch's history while reading a history of Finch Township prepared more than 30 years ago by the township's teachers.

"I got doing all this reading on Finch and I said, 'Aha, Finch is going to be 135 years old next year.'"

Four or five days of events, which will be held on Canada Day weekend next year, will tie in with the 15th anniversary of the closure of North Stormont High School. Stewart said Mavis Morris, a former North Stormont teacher who will retire from Tagwi next year, is co-ordinating the school reunion.

Next year will also be the fifth anniversary of the Finch Antique and Steam Show and Stewart said steam show organizers may sponsor an antique car exhibition.

Organizers have already launched a contest for a logo to represent the village. Finch village and township students attending Finch Public, Berwick Public, St. Mary's in Chesterville, St. Bernard's and Notre-Dame-du-St-Rosaire have been invited to design logos for the village. The deadline for entries is Friday.

Tentative plans for the festivities include a parade, school reunion dance and an ecumenical church service.

"It just depends," says Stewart. "We've got a lot of ideas but we need people."

"We don't have a committee as such. It's just the people who are interested in it. We'll take anybody who can help."

Organizers also need money and the first fundraiser -- an evening of musical entertainment at the arena featuring school and church choirs, the Stormont Men's Choir and Tagwi band -- will be held June 5.

In mid-August, there will be a corn roast and in the fall, a family broomball tournament and an auction of goods donated by celebrities.

Back to the basics for OPP: Wood

By Rob Saunders

CHESTERVILLE — Bob Gilroy introduced our guest speaker, Gary W. Wood. Gary was born in the Chesterville area, one of eight children of Burnice and Thora Wood. He attended public school at Bethune Bush, SS No. 16, Winchester and then Chesterville High School. While in Grade 11 he moved with his family to Kingston where they lived for two years.

Gary W. Wood

He went to Kingston Collegiate and Vocational School where, to show his contempt for having to leave Chesterville, he promptly failed his first year as did his younger sister, Linda.

Two years later he returned with his family to the Chesterville area and back to Chesterville High School. Life, by this time, had taken on new meaning for him -- he wasn't as shy and backward as he was before, he had learned how to speak up in class, was more involved in sports and high school cadets, learned how to play pool, sneak the odd cigarette during the noon hour, drive a car, and discovered the existence of the female sex.

Upon the insistence of his father and Gladys Marcellus, Gary decided to leave school and work for the Bank of Nova Scotia here in Chesterville. He spent two years with the bank and left it to work for the National Research Council in Ottawa. Upon reaching the age of 21 he decided to join the O.P.P. His first posting was to the Ottawa detachment.

During the next 12 years or so, he was involved in routine police activities, chasing tail lights, fighting crime, and making life miserable for some people. One of the highlights of his time at Ottawa was his becoming one of the first in the province to patrol highways from an aircraft, and he spent six seasons doing so. He was promoted to the rank of Corporal in 1976 and remained at the Ottawa detachment.

In 1977 he accepted a transfer to O.P.P. General Headquarters in Toronto. Since then he has worked in a number of investiative organizations within the force, including Special Investigations Branch enforcing morality laws, the Anti-Rackets Branch investigating fraud and white collar crime, the Criminal Investigation Branch investigating homicides, serious crime and sensitive public matters. During this time he was promoted through the ranks of Sergeant, Detective Sergeant and Inspector.

In July of 1987 he left the investigative side of the force and was promoted to superintendent, becoming the Director of Field Co-ordination Branch. In this capacity he is responsible for the co-ordination of all the various programs and initiatives of the force in relation to the entire field operation.

Gary attended numerous training courses sponsored by the Ministry of the Solicitor General, the University of Western Ontario and the business sector, and has just completed a four-month senior management course at the University of Toronto.

Gary lives in Whitby with his wife, Moya, and his daughter, Dana, who is now 14. He lists his hobbies as racquet sports, ball, curling, work, studying and reading, work, travelling and work.

Gary entertained the large audience with several of his war stories. He told of his first charge, a traffic violation on Hwy. 31. It was a ticket given to a lawyer who though convicted appealed several times over the next two years.

He recalled the aircraft patrols, which went beyond enforcing the speed limit to include aiding in the apprehension of hit-and-run drivers and marine rescue work.

Gary told us about facing an escaped inmate who had a .22 calibre rifle with a scope (luckily without bullets). He worked with the Liquor Squad, travelling to bars throughout the province checking for minors, bootleggers and to see if the strip acts were obscene.

In 1985 he investigated the Cadillac Fairview Apartment flips. They examined more than 250 companies and 2,000 individual bank accounts and expended over $5 million in accounting fees. Seven people were convicted of this $500 million fraud. The brief prepared for the trial was in 400 volumes, each with 300 pages. During the investigation Gary visited Florida, Switzerland and London, England.

His present duties as Superintendent Director Field Co-ordination Branch are extensive. The Traffic Program contains 1,000 cars, 60 motorcycles, a marine patrol with 70 boats, RIDE program, radar maintenance and training, 50-person underwater group, 300 members trained for breathalyzer, 95 trained for technical accident investigations and five for the Transportation of Dangerous Goods legislation.

The Research and Development group is planning a $135 million telecommunications network. Community services for schools and programs such as Block Parents and Neighborhood Watch are another responsibility.

For field support they have two helicopters, 20 dogs in the canine unit, 35 divers, 300 police for crowd control and another 300 for hostage and crisis situations and three squads of 12 members for tactics and rescue and a backup of 544 auxiliary officers.

Gary foresees the policing of the future being different. There has been an increasing awareness of expenditures and more accountability. There have been strict financial constraints since 1983 and the 5,000 employees are less than in 1975.

Only 30 per cent of an officer's time is spent on police work, the other 70 per cent is social service such as mediating disputes and -- giving advice and assistance. The O.P.P. is judged not so much on the quality of their service by the public but on how fast they respond to a call -- but only five to eight per cent of all calls require an immediate response.

The solution is community based policing -- back to walking the beat -- where an officer is assigned to a town. A local committee decides what the problems are and how they want the town policed.

There is a small office with a telephone answering service for calls that are not urgent. This allows for better planning of the officer's time and there is more sense of community self-help. This sytem is presently successful in Angus and five other communities. This program required careful training and marketing and is being extended to 20 or 30 more communities this year.

Jack Dubois thanked Gary on behalf of the Rotary Club.

Ron Sullivan is our speaker next Monday at 7:10 p.m.

UCW chooses timely subject

NEWINGTON — Dorothy Waldroff in presenting the program to the Newington UCW chose as her subject The Value of Time and noting its rapid passage, questioned -- are we greatful for its gift and are we using it as a good citizen in the life of the Christian Church. Do we often pause to assess the contribution we are making to our church or are we forgetting its claim on us as individuals. This claim can be crippled by our inactivity.

The Christian church stands to remind us of God and there is no other institution which so enriches human life, and it is the only one which asks us to give only voluntarily by identifying with it Its work is the building of a Kingdom.

Jean Shaver conducted business which included final arrangements for the Mother's Day Tea to be held in the church hall on Sat., May 7, 2 to 4, to which the general public is cordially invited. Come, bring your mother and enjoy the program, the art of display and the fellowship.

Plans were also set in motion to sponsor a child to U.C. camp. Ten Heritage books were ordered, and a committee named to purchase a vacuum cleaner for the church.

Chesterville WI recounts the year's accomplishments

By Edythe Foley

CHESTERVILLE — The annual meeting of the Chesterville Women's Institute was held April 18 in the community hall with an attendance of 31 members.

Prior to the meeting, a sumptuous pot lock supper was enjoyed.

The meeting opened with the president, Betty Forward, welcoming all those present. The roll call was answered by the payment of membership fees.

Last year's minutes were read by the secretary. The card, press and treasurer's reports were then given.

The district director's report was read by the alternate, Jean Thompson.

Margaret Casselman read the report on the Tweedsmuir history and resolutions and public relations were presented by Isobel Forward.

The remaining reports which were tabulated were read by Thelma Johnston.

All reports were accepted as read.

The president gave a detailed account of the undertakings and accomplishments of the past year. She then expressed her thanks to the members for their co-operation during the past year.

The nomination committee report was read. Mrs. Orval Fawcett is the incoming president of the district and officiated at the installation of officers for 1988-89.

The singing of God Save the Queen brought the meeting to a close.

Stormont and Dundas count for five of 100 OMAF awards

TORONTO — Stormont and Dundas weren't overlooked when the Ministry of Agriculture and Food sifted through more than 400 nominations to choose 100 of Ontario's most significant contributors to agriculture.

Dundas accounted for four of the 100 winners of centennial awards marking the 100th anniversary of the creation of a department of agriculture. Stormont had one, but Glengarry had no representative.

Dorothy Middleton, president of Women for the Survival of Agriculture and a former teacher and nurse, was Stormont's winner and one of only ten women to receive a medal.

"I think it's fabulous that farm women will be represented in the awards," the 52-year-old Middleton said.

"But I only got an award because my husband and son put up with a lot of nonsense," she said, noting her many trips and speaking engagements.

Middleton, who now helps manage the family's dairy farm, also credits WSA members for her award.

The 19 Eastern Ontario winners will receive their awards May 26 in conjunction with graduation exercises at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology. It'll be a special day for Chesterville cash cropper Stan Vanden Bosch.

"Our son is going to be graduating that day and it's our 26th wedding anniversary. So it's going to be quite a day," said Vanden Bosch, 47.

The OMAF award joins a long list of the former dairy farmer's achievements: Dundas Farmer of the Year in 1978, the Angus Smith Memorial Trophy for outstanding contribution to the Chesterville fairboard, the Eastern Ontario Soil and Crop Improvement Association award of merit, and the Outstanding Grassland Award for Farmers and Ranchers, presented by the American Forage and Grassland Council.

Noted Holstein breeder Carl Smith was also a medal recipient. "It was quite an honor," said Smith, 45, who runs a dairy farm northwest of Chesterville.

Smith was one of the first in Eastern Ontario to use embryo transplant technology with dairy cattle and today he sells his Holstein breeder stock all over the world.

In 1970, Smith was named Dundas' farmer of the year and has since won the coveted Master Breeder shield. He has led organizations ranging from the county Holstein club to the agricultural society and is a veteran 4-H leader.

Forty-five-year-old Gordon Garlough, known as "Mr. Agriculture," was modest about his medal. "I knew I had been nominated but then a lot of other people across the province were as well."

Fourteen years ago, Garlough retired from a decade of teaching high school to farm full-time. In 1981, he won Dundas' award of merit and was named the county's Farmer of the Year in 1982. He served as a director to the Ontario Federation of Agriculture for eight years and worked on a committee to extend tile drainage funding to Eastern Ontario.

He continues to raise purebred Ayrshire cattle on the family dairy farm southeast of Williamsburg.

Another Williamsburg man, John Dalrymple, was honored. Dalrymple, now 77, served as an agricultural representative and as head of the animal husbandry section at Kemptville College for 26 years. He was also associate principal of the college.

Among the farm organizations to which he belonged were the Ottawa Winter Fair, the Central Canada Exhibition, the Ottawa Valley Sheep Breeders' Association and the Eastern Ontario Yorkshire Breeders' Association.

DFA seeks to unite farmers split by Grenville Resolution

WINCHESTER — The Dundas Federation of Agriculture is hoping to achieve locally what many feel the Ontario Federation of Agriculture has failed to achieve provincially -- farmer unity.

In a move to heal wounds created by more than a year of infighting and controversy over provincial, national and international farm politics, the DFA has sent invitations to the leaders of Dundas County's 23 farm organizations to attend a June 6 general meeting.

The DFA hopes the county farm summit will produce a concensus of concerns that can be forwarded to government agencies and task forces, said federation president Max Sabey.

Sabey said the idea grew out of the Grenville Resolution controversy and the dissent it created between the OFA and commodity groups.

The resolution, which allowed the OFA to step into discussions on the future of red meat marketing, was torpedoed last month on the strength of a Dundas resolution calling for the withdrawal of beef from the policy.

With pork already out because of intense lobbying from pork producers, the resolution was effectively gutted with a 34-27 vote for the removal of beef.

After such division, Sabey said he hopes the mini-summit will "get people to work together."

"We want to discuss this whole matter of co-operation," said Sabey. "If we can make it work here then we will have created an example here."

While admitting that the DFA itself was split over the decision to attack the Grenville Resolution, Sabey said he is confident the summit will work.

"I think it will because we have a lot of sensible people here," he said.

Ontario farm women to network

Eastern Ontario WSA chapter co-ordinating newsletter

IROQUOIS — An umbrella organization's newsletter representing Ontario's farm women's groups will be put together by an Iroquois area woman.

Women for the Survival of Agriculture member Corry Martens is now accepting submissions to the newly formed Ontario Farm Women's Network maiden newsletter, expected sometime this summer.

"The main objective is to exchange ideas and to work as a clearinghouse of ideas," says Martens.

"The newsletter is going to be from the whole province and I'm going to stress that every farm woman should be part of it."

In a couple of weeks, representatives from 17 farm women's groups will meet in London to discuss the newsletter, which will be only part of the network's work.

While Eastern Ontario has accepted responsibility for the newsletter, to be printed bimonthly or quarterly, Western Ontario has undertaken the network's administration. The biggest job, says Martens, will be the organization of an annual provincial conference.

The idea for a provincial network grew out of the Third National Farm Women's Conference in Saskatchewan. The 1985 national conference had approved a national network but it founded after meeting only once and producing only a single newsletter.

Last November, the third national conference decided to ask the federal government for funds to launch a second attempt.

The subscription fee for the Ontario newsletter is $10. Martens said organizers have already received some start-up funding from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food and will approach the federal Secretary of State.

To submit news items or to subscribe, Martens can be reached by writing to to R.R.1, Iroquois, K0E 1K0.

With which we'll never part
God has her in His keeping
We have her in our hearts.

Gordon C. Smyth

In my experience as a minister, I've come to recognize that the greatest sins aren't those of man's inhumanity to man, whether it be race, war, or the lack of thoughtfulness about our environment. These are all results of a deeper, more basic malady. For the lack of a better word, let's call it the sin of getting into a rut, of being closed, when we should be open and flexible.

Life flows, personalities change, even crumble and fragment. Friends will vacillate, but it's often our friends who, as we work out an effective, creative mix of our personalities, show us that we can reach our fullest potential.

We can get "flocked" into a way of relating to people. It can happen at middle-age or younger. Even at 26, a person can get locked into a philosophy of life that will later defeat him.

I read about a junior executive who was asked by an older person what he wanted from life. The young man responded: "I want to be a successful businessman. I want a little power, a little money," "Anything else?" the older man asked.

"I suppose I want to be the best possible person I can be toward my family and friends." They sat by the fire for a few minutes. Finally, the older individual spoke again: "Young man, you've got it turned around the wrong way. The most important thing on this earth is having a good friend."

Some people, in childish immaturity, would like to think that there will be no uncertainty in their dealings with people, when they give themselves away. However, uncertainty in the presence of vivid hopes and fears, while painful, must be endured if we wish to live without the support of comforting fairy tales.

Our points of contact with people are decisive. They form our aspirations, fears, frustrations, and our knowledge of love, passion, forgiveness that affirm we are alive. Friendship is where God approaches us and compels us to commit ourselves.

Hear the good news: Jesus came saying, "No longer do I call you servants, for the servant does not know what his master is doing; but I have called you friends, for all that I have heard from my Father I have made known to you" (John 15: 15-16).

Ingleside seniors preparing for rally

INGLESIDE — Vice-President Amy Pollock welcomed 50 members of Ingleside Senior Citizens' Club, number 283, to the April meeting in St. Matthew's Church Hall.

After O Canada, Happy Birthday was sung for four members.

In the past month the benevolent committee has sent three cards. Members who have recovered from illnesses thanked for their thoughtfulness.

Mansel Flegg reported on the Zone meeting. The zone is made of 10 clubs for which a rally is planned on June 15 at Dixon's Corners.

Arthur and Lennie Buckmaster are to represent the zone in Kingston at the USCO meeting in August. Partridge will be the representative from Ingleside.

There was a report on plans for the tea and sale being held on Sat., June 4.

The Seniors' Club of Iroquois has invited our members to its dinner meeting on May 10 at 11 a.m. Anyone needing transportation is asked to phone Rita Partridge, 537-2782.

Seniors are to participate in the Moon Walk in the week of May 20-29.

The singing group, Hill's Angels (the leader is Dorothy Hill) of Long Sault Seniors, gave an excellent entertainment of singing. They were thanked by Nellie Stillson, and lunch was served after a blessing by Mansel Flegg.

Table prizes were won by Kay Flegg and John Blue. The jonquils given by Art Ostrander went to Sandy Raymond.

THE CHESTERVILLE Record Editorial / Opinion

Cheques and balances

A new community hall for Chesterville has once again been bumped lower on the village's list of priorities.

Village taxpayers should be grateful.

Last week, village council rejected a recommendation from Chesterville's recreation committee that the steering committee directing the community hall proposal seek plans for a hall to be located on top of an extended arena lobby.

Admittedly, building a new hall above the lobby area could solve two problems at once, by providing the village with a new facility while repairing a leaking roof.

The proposal -- scaled down from the original $750,000 multi-purpose facility originally proposed by consultants two years ago -- would be cheaper.

But what would be the ultimate cost to the village?

Chesterville is committed to the development of a new water source in Winchester Township that will ensure a supply adequate to meet its needs over the next 20 years. The village's share of the estimated $1.75 million bill is $343,000. Part of that money will be recouped through charges to developers and the long-promised development that has been stalled by the absence of an adequate water supply.

But regaining that original investment will be a slow process.

Meanwhile, the village wants to clean up the shoreline of the South Nation River and create a second park. At $40,000 -- the village's share of the $80,000 cost -- it's not an expensive project when compared to the water search and the proposed community hall. But council has promised to phase in development over several years to conserve funds.

A brand new community hall would be nice. But it would be in addition to facilities of various sizes scattered about the village -- the Nelson LaPrade Centre, the existing town hall, the Royal Canadian Legion, the arena, churches, and two schools. Additional facilities are available at North Dundas District High School and in nearby Winchester and Finch.

Municipal budgets are always strained, meaning the pros and cons of big ticket items, however appealing, must be carefully weighed.

In Chesterville, it's water that tips the balance.

Put a few councillors together, add on deputy reeve and finish it off with a dappling of one reeve and there you go -- you have one municipal government.

How this municipal government works for you is totally in your hands. If you voted it into power, you can vote it out of power.

If you have a complaint, you go in front of your municipal representatives and let them hear it.

But unfortunately, like all governments, their electorates have to rely on the information which filters down to them through various means to see just what their government is or isn't doing for them.

That's why unbridled access to public information is so important to the electorate of any government.

Governments are accountable to the public, and the public, by law, is entitled to know what their government is doing with their hard earned tax dollars.

Unfortunately, not all municipal officials realize just how important the public's right-to-know is.

After turning down on separate occasions a number of requests for public information prior to or after a council meeting, members of the press decided last week to find out just why they, in their attempt to inform the public, were being denied this information by Osnabruck Township Council.

Looking somewhat tamer than the scrum sessions held on Parliament Hill every day, we, the press, decided to explore what, if any logic was involved in witholding public information at the end of a township council meeting last week.

It's amazing what results can be had through the use of a tape recorder and microphone, a camera and a few note pads and pens.

Instead of the reporters being on the hot seat the next morning (in some cases that night) delving for information they should have had the night before, council was on the hot seat, explaining why we weren't getting the information.

The conversation went sort of like this:

"Tell me Mr. Hart, how come other municipalities hand out copies of correspondence to reporters before their meetings and you aren't doing so?"

"Well, ah, ah, um, we didn't really know you fellas wanted all the information before meetings."

Honest misunderstanding. We reporters didn't really want any information all the other times we pleaded, cajoled and tried to reason with one or another municipal offical.

We were just funnin', foolin' around, hobnobbing with the boys. Why would we actually want public information actually entitled to us by the law?

After all, we can just try and call the municipal office sometime between nine in the morning and deadline Tuesday. If we're lucky we might even be able to get through and reach someone.

If we're even luckier, this person might even know what we're talking about and be able to offer some sort of help.

But wait a second. We can't do that. Silly me, I just remembered, the township clerk treasurer doesn't like giving information over the phone because it could get all mixed up.

Oh well, no phone interviews, no public documents, no news. These officials have been elected by the people and therefore should be doing whatever is best for the public.

If restricting the flow of information to a mere trickle is something our officials want to do, it must be the right thing.

Change may eventually come about, but it's been a long time coming.

Documents were handed out after a confrontation at the end of the latest regular meeting; whether that trend will continue, only our elected officials know.

But if our officials want to take an adversial role, it's only making their jobs and our jobs that much more difficult.

Unfortunately, it's the public that loses in the process.

Chesterville's Past

08 From the Record Thurs., May 7, 1908

At the Liberal conservative convention held at Winchester Springs last Saturday, the Hon. J.P. Whitney was unanimously elected to contest Dundas County in the Conservative interests in the approaching Provincial election.

During the past six months there have been many Limerick competitions, but one in which a Chesterville person has been successful, is the Laurentian Land Co., of Montreal, and in which Mrs. A. McMahon, grocer of this place, was successful. The prize was given for filling in a piece of poetry regarding a summer resort at Newaygo. Newaygo is 1,700 feet above the level of the sea, on the Canadian Northern on Lake St. Francis, two hours ride from Montreal city. Every lot fronts the lake.

At a meeting of the Conservatives of Stormont County, held on Saturday at Newington, John Milligan, a rising young barrister of Cornwall, was selected as the party standard bearer for the coming provincial election.

Class no. 12 of the Methodist Sunday School gave a farewell tea to their classmate, Leila Smith, before leaving for her future home in Ottawa.

Mr. Geo. B. Allison of Montreal, spent a day last week with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J.R. Allison, on his way east.

On Monday evening in the Music Hall, the citizens of this village and surrounding district gathered to bid farewell to Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Orok, upon the occasion of their removal to their new mission at Maitland. After a few remarks by the chairman, Mr. Hamilton, an interesting and pleasing short programme was carried out with due solemnity. A song by Mr. O.L. King, superintendent of Nestle duet by the Misses Gertie Weegar and Florence Millea, violin solo by Mr. Halfpenny, cornet solo by Mr. Tim Johnston, and the Oddfellows' Quartet by Messrs. Brooks, Seymour, Peake and Shaver, and the Community singing under the direction of Mr. O.L. King were all received with loud applause.

Last night in the Music Hall, a fairly large audience attended the concert sponsored by the First Troop of Chesterville Boy Scouts, when the chief entertainers were "The Two Jacks", Jack Powell and Jack Grace, heard many times over the air from station CNRO at Ottawa. Many have enjoyed their singing and stories over the air, but the audience last night laughed until their sides were sore.

Prince Eric of Denmark has abandoned definitely his prosaic role of chicken farmer, and has left with his wife, the former Frances Lois Booth, of Ottawa, and infant daughter, for his ancestral halls in Europe.

Chesterville Rotary club held their annual elections last Monday. Those chosen for the new directorate were: Dr. H.G. Barton, Wm. Barker, H. Brown, Walter Carr, L.A. David, Don Hutton and F. Moriarty. Vice-president F.M. Cass becomes president and L.H. Doering will be member of the new board as immediate past president when the new officers assume their duties on July 1.

The contest for the largest mud pout caught in the Nation River by a school boy received its first entry last night when Jackie Julyan came to the secretary with a nice one caught up at Hummel's. It was eleven inches long and was nearly a pound in weight.

Fire broke out in the attic of the home of Ernest Boyle on College Street last Friday night and for a while it was touch and go if the house could be saved. Thanks to the efforts of the Chesterville Fire Brigade the flames were controlled and the damage limited to charring and water.

The members of the Evening Auxiliary met in the Sunday School Hall with sixteen present. In the business part of the meeting, readings read by Mrs. C. McMillan and Mrs. M. Brownlee were "Race Prejudice", and "The scrap is not enough."

Despite heavy rain during the afternoon and evening, upwards of 300 men and women from all parts of the riding attended the convention which was held in the Assembly Hall of Hallville Consolidated School.

Quebec's view of English Canada criticized by reader

To the Editor:

Saskatchewan's decision to opt out of translating its laws into French presents a curious study in attitudes.

We have, on the one hand, Saskatchewan, with a two per cent Francophone population, deciding to exercise its legal right to forego translation, because of the numbers and the absence of any great need. On the other hand, we have Quebec, with its imfamous Bill 101, which virtually eliminates the English language rights in that province, protesting to all who will listen, how unfair the Saskatchewan ruling is. How does one equate the difference in attitudes presented here? Saskatchewan does not interfere in educational selections, yet Quebec does. Saskatchewan does not forbid the use of a second language on its signs, Quebec does. Quebec suppresses minority language rights, Saskatchewan does not. The lack of fairness and logic in the Quebec attitude is mind-boggling, and yet our esteemed Prime Minister sided with the Quebec position when he endorsed the motion of censure by the Quebec government. How the Prime Minister can get his foot in his mouth on so many occasions is astonishing. He either has great dexterity or has masochistic tendencies, I am not sure which.

To sum up the foregoing attitudes, we have Quebec saying that they will function in one language (French) but the rest of Canada should provide services in two (French and English). Am I missing something here or is this logic as convoluted as it appears?

Language has always been an emotional and divisive issue, not lending itself to any easy solution, Belgium and Switzerland being classic examples. Our own problems with this issue date back to 1969 when bilingualism was introduced by Pierre Trudeau, and nineteen years later it is still with us. Any serious problem requires compromise on both sides. I think it is fair to assume that the English have made compromises, to the tune of billions of dollars spent on bilingual services, translation costs, "French only" schools and school boards, minority language grants, French immersion, and a variety of other concessions. All of this while the humiliation of the English continues in Quebec. This raises the question of why this attitude continues. Perhaps it has something to do with the perception of the English by the French.

Consider the following examples made by three prominent Francophones, then ask yourself whether any meaningful dialogue could follow the statements made by them. The first was made by Claude Ryan, the present Minister of Education for Quebec. In 1982 Mr. Ryan made the following statement:

"English Quebecers are dreaming if they think they will ever again enjoy language equality in Quebec. French will be the rule even if Quebec Liberals one day oust the Parti-Quebecois government and return to power".

The second statement was made by Serge Joyal when he was Secretary of State for the Trudeau government. Joyal was addressing the Acadian Society in Nova Scotia. His remarks went something like this:

"Everything we undertake and everything we are doing to make Canada a French State is part of a venture I have shared for many years with a number of people" -- He continues: "You know, the idea, the challenge, the ambition of making Canada a French State, both inside and outside Quebec, an idea that some people consider crazy" -- He concludes by saying: "As hard as it was in the seventies for some of our fellow Canadians who speak the other language to accept the fact that Canada is a French State."

The final example, a more recent one, involves an incident at the Canada Council and Olympic Arts Festival in Calgary. Governor-General Sauve presented a prize of $5,000 to Jean Larose, the winner of the 1988 French Non-fiction category in literature. Mr. Larose is a professor of literature at the University of Montreal. Here is a quote from that book:

"Everything that weakens and humiliates Canada must cause us to rejoice."

Mark Abley of the Gazette says: "Larose characterizes English Canadians as vulgar and small-minded, and claims that they have nothing to offer us by their stupid mediocrity".

Would you say from the foregoing statements that there is any hope of settling this language question? These statements contain an element of hate, real or imagined, but in any case I believe the time has come to consider other options. I am referring of course to separation. The unyielding attitude reflected in the statements made by the three gentlemen earlier in this letter, seems to rule out any chance of linguistic harmony in this country. Since Mr. Parizeau goes public on the issue of separation, I see no reason why we shouldn't consider that option ourselves. Economically, we would be the winners. The enormous amounts of money spent on the two language concept could be better spent on social services which benefit all Canadians. Our hospitals and schools could be better funded, and perhaps we would see the end of economic appeasement of Quebec.

Yours Truly,
Owen Mekitarian

The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

Asparagus graces the shelves of our supermarkets now. And, I am told, if you haven't turned on to asparagus by now, you're not keeping up with the trends.

The Farmer says he prefers to be out of step with the trends but I love asparagus. Like rhubarb and spring onions and fiddleheads, asparagus spells spring for me.

I read recently that in the past five years, sales of this sleek, elegant, green vegetable have increased 300 per cent, which puts its popularity right up there with pasta and brown bread.

But asparagus has been eaten and written about for centuries, and the way we love it best has changed hardly at all.

As early as 200 B.C., the Romans had how-to-grow directions for asparagus, and Julius Caesar decreed that it was best only when eaten with melted butter.

The Emperor Augustus must have known something about preparing it himself, as he once described "haste" to his workers as being "quicker than you can cook asparagus."

In the 19th century the French considered asparagus an aphrodisiac, and it was always served at wedding feasts, but not for the bride.

But don't get the idea that the French knew what they were talking about and rushed out to plant some seeds. Asparagus takes at least three years before it is ready to harvest.

In case there's any doubt as to how popular asparagus has grown recently, there's even an asparagus museum, established in 1985 in a town in upper Bavaria, known as Schrobenhausen. The museum is in the middle of 1,250 acres of asparagus, and it's only white asparagus, preferred by the German and Dutch, who mound the soil over the plant so the entire spear is blanched.

Growers in this Bavarian area check the field constantly, both in the early morning and late afternoon, looking for the emerging snow-white tip. The spears are immediately cut some 10 to 12 inches under ground so they are shielded from the sunlight until cooked.

North Americans, however, like their asparagus green, as do the English. So that's the way you'll find it in the local supermarkets or farmer's markets and it will be delicious for the next month or so.

Spring has taken its own good time about coming this year. The leaves are unfurling ever so slowly and the lilacs have no notion of flowering yet. But my lawn grass is green and the weekly lawn mowing season is at hand.

I picked up a magazine in the waiting room of a doctor today, and to my surprise found that it was a current issue. As I leafed through it, I was apprised of the fact that the fashion scene this spring is to be dominated by racy swimsuits and sexy dresses.

Not being of the age or stage when this fashion dictate would do justice to me, I consoled myself with some thoughts on the subject of clothing.

I decided that, perhaps. we are led oftener by the love of novelty and a regard for the opinions of men, in procuring it, than by true utility. A friend who did not follow fashion's dictates, but who always looked fashionable, said once that he who has work to do should remember that the object of clothing is, first to retain the vital heat, and secondly, to cover nakedness.

After that decision has been made, she said, one can then judge how much necessary work may be accomplished without adding to his wardrobe.

My thoughts turned to the subject of patches which seem to be popular now and I recall the time when one thought one's prospects ruined if one had to wear a patch. We considered, I believe now, not what was truly respectable, but what was respected.

I wondered how far men would retain their relative rank if they were divested of their clothes. Could one, in such a case, tell for sure, in a large company of men which belonged to the most respected class?

"Mrs. Thompson...Mrs. Thompson...MRS. THOMPSON, the doctor will see you now!" a frustrated nurse emphasized.

"So sorry, I was wool-gathering," I apologized, greatly embarrased.

As I sat at the doctor's desk, awaiting his arrival from the depths of his other ante-rooms, I recalled the words of a speaker I had listened to during International Women's Week. She spoke on the subject of woman as an apologist.

She said one of the recent agents of change in woman's world was never apologize as there is no need to. Simply state the reason but never apologize. I recalled that out in that waiting room where I had so profusely apologized for wool-gathering, a man minutes before, deeply engrossed in a book, had to be called several times by the nurse for his appointment.

Did he apologize? In a pig's ear, he did! He simply stood up, took his own good time about putting his book into his pocket, and said thank-you to the smiling nurse. She did not glower at him.

Five minutes passed, ten minutes passed, fifteen... The doctor appeared. Did he apologize? In a pig's...

I was returned to the nurse. I wish to change my next regular appointment I told her. She looked sour. "Could you not have let me know sooner, this upsets my whole scheduling!"

She leafed through the appointment book while I smiled sweetly and under my breath said, "Tough bananas." I did not apologize! But I expect she'll get me. However, not before a month, I mutter as I leave.

Conlin expects North Dundas runners to be on the fast track

Todd Hambleton
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE — Rebuilding or reloading?

Twelve months after North Dundas' finest performance at the SD&G Track and Field Championships in several years, Devils track track coach Hugh Conlin has set his sights on even loftier achievements for this year's 60 member edition, as they prepare for the tri-county meet Thursday at St. Lawrence High School in Cornwall.

"I think we have a little more depth this year than we've had in previous years, and I think we should do a little better because of that depth."

Conlin expects between 25 and 30 Devils, nearly half his squad, to qualify for the Eastern Ontario championships (EOSSA) in Kingston one week later.

Last year 21 Devils qualified.

Top four finishers in field events, top three in track events and top two relay teams at SD&G will qualify for Kingston.

Despite heavy graduation toll, Shelly McDonald, Jenny Ganter and long jump specialist Sam Gibson, in particular, Devils appear primed to better last year's performance.

Led by junior Karim Oliver, fifth in the province in triple jump last year, Devils should be a force in field events. Oliver will also perform long jump, and will join teammates for the 4x400 relay. "He should do very well," says coach Conlin.

Another junior to look out for is javelinist Chuck Van Winden, boys bronze winner a year ago.

Conlin expects a big day from senior runners Jeff Holmes (400m and 800m), Raymond Sherrer (800 and 1500m), and Jevon Groves (3000m). Groves was second in the junior 3000m at SD&G '87. Holmes won the 800m race last season, also competing at the junior level.

Devils 4x100m senior boys relay team (Tom Savery, John Mackler, Jeff Holmes, John Tessier) is also strong.

Senior girl Kerry Lynn Thompson, coming off a fine indoor season, winning the 300m run at the Opeogo Invitational in Ottawa last month, will compete in the 200m and 400m event in Cornwall. "She has a very good chance of winning one or both of those events," says her coach.

Junior sprinter Stacey Berry, "one of our strongest runners," says Conlin, and Michelle Laflamme (1500m, midget) are other Devils keys. "Laflamme has done well indoors and in cross country. She's our strongest midget girl."

Back to the boy's side, Conlin expects midgets David Harper (sprints and jumps) and Darrin Lampman (high and long jump) to be at or near the top of their events.

Another midget, Darren Hutt, fourth in javelin and shot put last year, should be ready to climb the rankings ladder. "He did very well last year and should be strong again," says his coach. Conlin says Hutt may also try the discus throw this year.

As for winning the overall school title, Conlin says that's not a realistic goal. "Last year we placed fourth. If we can move up one, that would be very good. Schools like La Citadelle, Glengarry and St. Lawrence are very strong and have good track programs. La Citadelle is always hard to beat. They've been the best for the past couple of years."

Meanwhile, a half hour east on highway 43, Tagwi track coach Sean Lee says the Warriors have assembled what should be a very competitive unit.

"We're not a strong track school like North Dundas is, but there are hopefuls here."

Lee says one of his hopefuls, Andrew Brown, is threatening the SD&G midget boys high jump record. "He's off by centimetres. He's an excellent jumper and has the potential to break that record. I look for him to take the competition."

Brown recorded a 1.66m jump at the Tagwi mini-meet last Wednesday (May 4). The SD&G record is 1.7m.

Brown tasted victory five times at the in-house meet, winning the high jump, long jump and 100m dash events. He also anchored the winning midget 4x100m relay team, and was selected top midget boy.

Top junior boy Luc Curotte, sweeping the spring events Wednesday, is another Warriors leader. Says Lee: "He's a very smooth, fast runner with good times that will be competitive at the SD&G level. If I have any concerns about him it would be his 400m sprint time. He'll have to bring that down a little."

Curotte won at Tagwi in 56.95 seconds, but Lee thinks he'll need a 54 second clocking to win at St. Lawrence.

Top senior boy Matthew Haley, a sprinter and long jump specialist, could also go all the way at SD&G. "He's quite talented. He didn't have as big a field to compete against but he still won three events and he's done well in the past," says Lee.

Warriors main strength lies with the junior boys field events. "We're looking for Todd Blaine to win the junior boys pole vault. He's the current SD&G record holder and should take that event."

Blaine climbed 3.0m (10 feet) at the mini-meet.

Lee says Rick MacKenzie (shot put, discus) and Sylvain Hebert (long jump) will both challenge in an extremely competitive field.

He also looks for a possible gold medal performance from his 4x100m junior boys relay team (Mark St. Denis, Rock Benoit, Brad Maloney, Luc Curotte).

On the girl's side, athletic director Dianne Law says it's difficult to predict what may transpire at St. Lawrence. "We have competitive girls here in all three divisions, but it's hard to say if winning mini-meet times will be good times at SD&G."

However, Law does point to mini-meet overall champions Heather Loynachan (midget, 100m, 200m), Karen Beehler (junior, 100m, javelin, long jump) and Tammy Laframboise (senior, 100m, 200m, long jump) as potential high placers in Cornwall.

Regardless of Thursday's results, a quality track and field program is beginning to take shape at Tagwi. "I don't think track has really been emphasized here in the past. It's been a strong soccer, basketball and volleyball school, but track wasn't one of those sports that was given a high priority. But there's a lot of potential here and we've started to turn it around. I'm really satisfied with what has happened here this spring," says Lee, referring to Warriors high hopes at SD&G and last week's mini-meet, in which half the student body participated.

Tagwi mini-meet draws 200 as sun and athletes shine

AVONMORE — Seasonable temperatures and sunny skies provided 200 Tagwi track and field athletes with perfect conditions for the annual Tagwi mini-meet held here last Wednesday (May 4).

Organizer Sean Lee said the ideal weather conditions was a factor in the meet's success. "The sun didn't drain the athletes like it would on an extremely hot day. It was cool enough so that everybody was able to perform at peak level all day. And because of the conditions it ran smoothly and on time."

160 students pre-registered for the events, but with last-minute signups, Lee estimates more than half of the schools 400 students participated. "Students were allowed to go and enter events with the judges right before the competition. We had enough last-minute entries to push the total over 200".

Students were able to enter up to three individual events and two relays.

Top two placers in each event qualified for Thursday's SD&G meet at St. Lawrence High School in Cornwall.

"It's an annual event (mini-meet) but I don't think it's ever been run on as big a scale as it was this year. I think there were more athletes involved at a deeper level this year," said Lee.

Morewood Vikings get baptism by fire

WINCHESTER — Morewood Vikings first game in the Winchester Lob Ball League isn't one they'll tell their grandchildren about.

New-entry Vikings were clobbered 27-8 by the Winchester Blue Knights in the 12 team loop's opening night of action last Monday (May 2).

Winchester scored eight first inning runs on six hits and four walks to welcome Vikings to league play. Knights added seven second frame runs and the rout was on.

Gary Gallinger, Dolton Henry, Kevin Henry, Brad Hanes and Paul Helmer all scored four runs for the winners.

Hanes and Kevin Henry slammed round-trippers. Henry's was a three run shot.

Other runs were scored by John Guy (3) while Keith Moore, Mark Smith, Don Marcellus and Gord Milne scored two apiece.

Gerald Eby crossed the plate in the second for Vikings' inaugural run. Brian Como, Jeff Vanderveen, Brian Thatcher, Vince Cousineau, J. Hebert and Rene Boulanger also scored.

Vikings squared their record at one three nights later, rebounding to beat Country Boy 15-8. D. McMahon led Vikings with three runs. Brian Como and N. Beehler scored twice, while Gerald Eby, Brian Thatcher, C. McKibbon, J. Brown, J. Stewart, J. Armstrong, Rene Boulanger and B. Walker all scored single runs.

Yvon Boudreau and Robin Bierworth tallied twice for Country Boy. Scoring single runs were Dan Emon, Dwayne Barent, Ron Morrow and Jim Burton.

Sophomore jinx struck early for second year club Chesterville Selects as they dropped their Monday opener 13-12 in extra innings to the ShoneRoy Splinters.

Rudy Grisel scored on Pete Schoones' hit in the bottom of the eighth lifting ShoneRoy to the victory.

Selects led 5-1 after three, but Splinters tied it with a four-run fourth. The lead changed hands several times and the game was sent into overtime when Greg Beckstead and Bob Deleavy scored in the seventh, knotting the score at 12.

John Milne, Dan Imrie and Neil Beckstead scored twice for Selects. Single runs were scored by Greg Beckstead, Bob Deleavey, Sean Boulerice, Randy Elliott, Todd Kirkwood and Brent Fawcett.

Rudy Grisel and Wally Vandekemp, with three runs apiece, led ShoneRoy. Darrel Shelp, Chuck Verhoveen and Blake Fawcett scored twice, Leo Vanderlaan once.

On Tuesday night, Morewood Marauders opened with a tough loss, dropping an 8-7 decision to 40 Pounders.

Marauders blasted three solo homers, including two in the top of the seventh to overcome a 6-5 deficit, but Pounders counted a deuce of their own in the final frame to eke out the win.

In other opening week contests, defending "A" pool champions Backs and Drewery Blue Jays needed Dave Coleman's sixth inning run to slide past J.R.'s Vice Squad 7-6, Top Valu-Hansma beat Inkerman Vice 11-5, Blue Knights topped 40 Pounders 11-7, ShoneRoy blasted Blue Jays 14-4, and Country Boy knocked off Stage West 11-7.

Shelp leads Rowdies to victory

CHESTERVILLE — Darrel Shelp's blueline blast with 4:29 remaining lifted Rowdies to a 3-1 victory over Sports Unlimited in the opening game of the Chesterville Men's Ball Hockey League Wednesday (May 4) night. Shelp's goal broke up a 1-1 tie. He assisted on Todd Hambleton's insurance marker two minutes later.

Rowdies opened the scoring in the first period on a goal from Jeff Van Moorsel.

Sports Unlimited drew even in the second frame when Jim McIntosh connected, with help from Rene Boulanger and Ron Richards. Just one penalty was handed out by the officials.

Paul Bjerson recorded an opening night shutout as Pacers drubbed the Chargers 4-0 in the middle game. Mike Fawcett netted the only goal Pacers needed five minutes into the contest. Marty Baldwin and Richard McMillan assisted.

Doug Fawcett put Pacers up by a deuce four minutes later on a set-up from George Bell and Baldwin.

Pacers put the game away with two late goals. Baldwin recorded his third point of the night scoring on a pass from Doug Crowder, and Ken Byers closed the scoring with a minute to go.

The night's final game saw Looney Toons rebound from a 3-1 first period deficit to earn a point in a 3-3 draw against the Flyers. Ken Shay scored the equalizer with 4:23 remaining in the third.

Toons Bill Trillo set the stage for Shay's late-game heroics when he cut the margin to 3-2 on an assisted effort midway through the second.

Beginners luck?
Until Saturday, 80 year old Cal Dillabough of RR2 Chesterville had never entered a fishing derby. At the Napanee walleye tourney over the weekend, he reeled in this nine pound winner, good for second place in a field of 6000 competitors. Grandson Ron Munroe displays their prize, a Mercury outboard motor valued at $2,000.00

This one didn't get away

NAPANEE — Calvin Dillabough, 80, of RR2 Chesterville thought he'd just be "getting in the way" when grandson Ron Munroe invited him along to the Sixth Annual Napanee Walleye Fishing Derby over the weekend.

At the derby's awards ceremony Sunday afternoon 6000 anglers had to make way for Calvin Dillabough.

Dillabough claimed second prize hooking a nine pound pickerel, and earning a 9.9 hp Mercury outboard motor valued at over $2000.

He missed first prize by a mere three ounces.

An estimated 6000 anglers converged upon the Bay of Quinte, a chain of lakes and rivers between Trenton and Napanee, for the two-day event. The derby was organized by the Napanee and District Rod and Gun Club, and featured over $30,000 in prizes.

"I was surprised to catch something that big," admitted Dillabough, who until Saturday had never entered a fishing tournament. His previous angling experience was limited to the Nation River and area.

Dillabough's winner was caught Saturday afternoon in a boat with rod and reel, at Sherman's Point, just off Hay Bay near Picton.

As for entering future derbies, Dillabough says, "You never know. Winning this kind of puts you in the notion."

Munroe says the pair will definitely be back next year. "We'll be going back for sure. He knows how to fish 'em and I know where to go."

WHY WEIGHT?

Muscles!?? Whether we want them or not, we've got them -- over six hundred and forty-nine of them. They all come in pairs, except, of course, our most important muscle -- the heart. And, to stay healthy, we exercise them. But to what extent, how often, and how much, and, honestly, which ways are best?

Thousands of men and women use training with weights to very successfully exercise and reshape or tone their bodies. Bodybuilding, as a sport, has grown so rapidly in recent years, that one hundred and seventeen countries participate to make it the seventh most popular sport in the world. There is even talk of its becoming included in the Olympic Games.

The sport of bodybuilding is terrifically demanding; the competitor must be an exceptional athlete and very dedicated. So much so -- it's a full-time career, and often precludes everything else in the individual's life at least a few weeks several times a year. I wish to deal more fully with this most interesting subject in a future article.

For now, let's discuss weight training as an excellent means of exercising and body-shaping. This is called a progressive resistance way of exercising because free weights (i.e. barbells and dumbbells) and certain appropriate machines are used to work the muscles.

As terrific form of exercise, weight training can make us healthier than the average person, give us reserve strength, normalize our body weight, make us look more attractive, help us in effective spot reduction, and, perhaps best of all, make us more postively aware of our bodies. We also develop positive personal qualities useful in our day-to-day living (i.e. self-discipline).

As with all forms of exercise, there are skeptics. The myths are one-hundred-fold. Probably the biggest myth of all is: Training with weights will make us gross, huge, and muscle-bound. Women, especially, seem to worry about this. Actually, truth be known, the individual (man or woman) controls the muscle growth he or she wishes to obtain. In other words, you go as far as you want. Of course, men are able to make much more dramatic muscle gains because they secrete much greater amounts of the muscle-building hormone testosterone. But any woman can beautifully tone and reshape her body through weight training and diet.

Our muscles grow and develop after a work-out, not during. So a good, basic, weight training program done three times a week is most desirable.

Why bother? Muscles are beautiful! They weigh a little more than fat, but they take up less space (i.e. inches), and are so much more attractive.

Beginners should never train alone (this is true of any form of exercise). Go to a well-equipped facility where quality counts, not just quantity, and where well--informed, caring instructor can put you on the right path. She (or he) will want to get to know you on a one-to-one basis; to learn your limitations (medical or otherwise), and your personal wants and needs. She'll design a personal program for you, teach it to you, help you through it, and always be on hand to spot you or to answer your questions.

Regardless of where you train, you can be a winner if you are persistent, consistent in your workouts, and willing to put a little effort into it.

There are a million negative people in world, and many of them will do their best to discourage us from persuing a Fitness Lifestyle.

We mustn't give in to them -- the rewards are too great.

My Silent Achiever this week should have a whole column devoted just to him. He is a handsome young man of just twenty-three, who, a few years ago weighed in the neighborhood of three hundred pounds. He decided he had to do something about this state of affairs once and for all (having already gone the usual gambit of losing and gaining over the years before). So he put himself on a sensible diet (i.e. losing one to two pounds a week) and in just one year, managed to lose one hundred pounds. He was only twenty-one years old at the time. Talk about self-discipline! It often meant turning off the tv and radio, and passing up favorite magazines and outings when food was a priority, but he did it. And through weight training and knowledgable eating habits has kept his weight off for over two years, and is even contemplating bodybuilding competition.

Well Done!!

We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.

League overcomes pre-season crisis as players rally around ball hockey

WINCHESTER — Winchester Ladies' Ball Hockey League has overcome a preseason crisis. A successful second registration session held Monday, May 2, in Winchester, resulted in an additional 25 players signing up, bringing the league player total to 50.

"We will have more than enough players to form four teams," reports league president Rhonda Winters.

Just 25 players registered at the league's initial sign-up period in mid-April, forcing the second registration drive and prompting speculation the league would fold.

League play begins Thursday with games from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Chesterville Arena.

Captains have been selected and were to have met yesterday (Tuesday) to draft clubs from the player pool.

Players will be notified today as to what team they have been drafted by and what time they play tomorrow evening.

Nation River Anglers to hold second derby

CHESTERVILLE — Nation River Anglers will be holding their Opening Day Derby this weekend. It's the second of five annual competitions.

Five hundred dollars in prizes will be awarded for winning pike and walleye catches.

Weigh-ins are from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday. For tickets and more information Nation River Anglers vice president Rick Shaver can be contacted at 448-2282.
