WEATHER PROBLEMS

With the thaw beginning in earnest, the old Nation is slowly loosening Winter's stranglehold and the rotten ice is up and ready to go out with the next warm rain. The season seems a little late this year. No one has reported the first robin to the Record, although the conclaves of starlings make some remarkably close imitations of the robin's call.

Setting some kind of a record last Tuesday afternoon, we were treated to a small mutter of thunder. A passerby said it meant more cold weather, but we wouldn't know.

WHY PRICES RISE

(The following is an excerpt from a copyright article appearing in the Winnipeg Free Press and the Edmonton Bulletin.)

It is a mathematical and not a theoretical fact that the real wages of working people cannot increase unless their productivity increases. That is to say, if money wages are increased without any increase in production, the extra money cannot buy more goods because the goods are not there to buy. In this case prices will rise, cancelling out for the worker any enlargement of his pay envelope. On the other hand, if the worker produces more goods per day his wages can rise without corresponding increases in prices. He can buy more goods because the goods are there to buy.

The question arising out of those facts in the current situation in America is whether actual production by the workers in general has increased as rapidly as those workers' money wages.

The Cleveland Trust Company has just completed a study of productivity in relation to wages in the United States and has issued an interesting chart to explain its conclusions. The chart shows, in brief, that the wage cost per unit of production—the amount of money spent in wages to produce articles for the consumer—has been rising rapidly since the beginning of the war. This is only another way of saying that the money income of the workers has been increasing, a fact well known to everyone. If the year 1939 be reckoned at 100, the present wage cost per unit of production stands at about 175. It is up 75 percent since the beginning of the war.

The chart in question shows that production per man hours increased by some ten percent from 1939 to 1940, levelled off in 1941, declined through 1942 and 1943, rose slightly in 1944 to the middle of 1945, when it reached a peak some 15 percent above prewar. Then it dropped sharply to the 1939 level at the end of 1945, and by the middle of 1947 was still below the 1945 high.

The net result of these figures is to show that, whereas the wage cost of producing goods has risen by .75 percent, productivity has risen some 15 percent. That is, money paid to workers far exceeds the amount of extra goods they are producing, and under these conditions, in any society whether capitalists, communist or in between those extremes, prices are bound to rise. This is inflation, and it will not be cured unless productivity rises and keeps pace with rising wages or, alternatively, wages are reduced.

Mrs. Leonard Moran Hostess To Girls' Group

A meeting of the MacKay Douglas Group of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Chesterville, was held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Moran on Monday evening, March 8.

The President, Miss Mildred MacIntosh, opened the meeting with the Service of Worship from the Mission Study Book, "Wings Over the World". The theme was "Turn from darkness to light."

The chief tropic of discussion was the Church in Africa. It was learned that there are about 150 million people in Africa, and of these, about one in every 28 is a Christian. North Africa is predominantly Mohammedan in religion, and Moslem people are as anxious to make converts in their religion as Christians are to tell others of Christ, which means that the Christian Church in North Africa has active opposition. In South Africa, where there is considerable European settlement, there are many Christian Churches. In Central Africa, there are still many thousands of people who worship evil spirits. They give of their best gifts in offerings to appease the evil spirits; they dance weird frenzied dances to please them, and they call upon the witch doctor to chase the evil spirits from their sick and loved ones. But Christianity has come to much of Africa. Through the work of faithful Christians—both missionaries and African Christians—the work of the Church is growing rapidly in Africa. Africa has known such great men as Robert Moffat, David Livingstone, Alexander MacKay and also Mary Slessor. Today, Africa still has the great and beloved doctor, Albert Schweitzer. It was also learned that although the Presbyterian Church in Canada has no definite work in Africa, it has made large contributions during the war years to Orphaned Missions. Some of this money went to missions in Africa who had been cut off from the support of their European home churches. The Presbyterian church too makes contributions to Christian Literature for Africa.

This discussion was followed by a short Bible study period from the Group Study Book, "Disciples of Jesus".

The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Mary David.

The Secretary, Miss Jean Feeley, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved.

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Moran served lunch.

"Dick" Fawcett Writes From Ethiopia

Civil Aviation Department,
Box 978, Addis Ababa, Ethiopia.
February 26, 1948.

The Editor,
Chesterville Record,
Chesterville, Ont.
Dear Sir:

The Chesterville Record has just started arriving in Addis Ababa; I think we have received five this week. The one that came today told us about victorious candidates in the Chesterville General Electpion, also Burn Wood's big goose shoot and so on. It was quite a pleasent surprise when the first one arrived, just like a letter from home.

We are enjoying our stay here in Ethiopia quite well, in spite of the fact that it is a long way from Dunbar. We have had several letters from the district around and Chesterville.

Our house is one built by the Italians during the occupation and sits up on a terrace overlooking the runway of the Addis Airport. My office is directly across the airport, over the General Office of Ethiopian Air Lines.

I get in some flying, as I cover Ethiopia by air on inspection tours of the landing strips, which in nearly all cases so far have been on the top of a mountain or up well on the side. The Airport here at Addis is 8000 feet above sea level. The country is very mountainous, so with the mountains and valleys it is quite beautiful. On some flights I go to 12000 and 13000 feet to clear mountain ranges.

At the present time in addition to being Adviser to the Imperial Ethiopian Government in Aviation, I am also official Pilot of the "EMPEROR'S" private planes so I do some flying every week with them. They are two new British aircraft called De Havilland Doves, and are twin engine with tricycle landing gear, and are among the best I have ever flown and are quite fast. Little did I think back in 1937 when we read about Emperor Haile Selaisse and the Italians, that I would be his pilot some day. I have been in conversation with him several times on the airport and in his Palace and I find him a very keen man.

The climate here is very good, the day time is about 85 degrees when the sun is shining and the nights are always very cool; you need a top coat at night. This is due to the height at which we are living. The low lands are hot.

I flew up the Blue Nile to its source the other day in the north of Ethiopia and along Lake Tana, which is the source of the Nile, to Gondor where I was entertained to lunch by the Governor of that province. He is a son-in-law of the Emperor; while there he showed me through an old castle built hundreds of years ago by the Portugese. He has had it restored to its former grandeur, including its original furnishings.

I can hear a hyena outside now; they are an animal about the size of a large dog but bigger in front than behind and very ugly looking; you never see them in the day time, but come by the hundreds at night. The natives have to put all animals in at night for that reason. One got up behind our house the other night and the Guards were shouting at it to scare it off.

Well I could write pages but one must sleep so I will close for this time.

Yours sincerely,
R. H. Fawcett,
Adviser to Director
General Civil Aviation.

Easter Program For Grantley Women's Assn.

Mrs. A. J. and Miss Bessie Shaver entertained the Grantley W.A. last Wednesday afternoon with twelve in attendance and a program arranged by Mrs. Frank Darling.

The President, Mrs. Claude Carr, opened the meeting with the hymn "Crown Him With Many Crowns". Mrs. M. O. Robinson was at the piano.

Mrs. Arthur Beckstead read the scripture from 12th chapter of John. Mrs. Kittle assisted by Miss Feader gave the lesson-thoughts and led in a discussion of the life of the disciple John.

At the roll call each member gave an Easter thought in response to her name.

The scouts are still on the look-out for a suitable play.

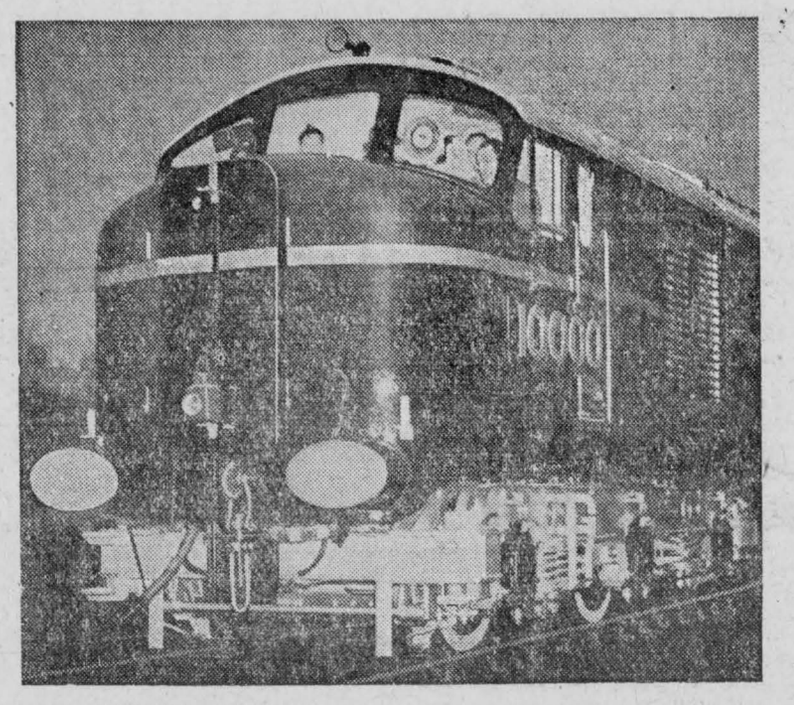

A Sunshine box was sent in February to Mrs. Joseph Paul who expressed her appreciation to the association.

Mrs. Beach gave the story of the first Easter carol. Miss Doris Kittle read "Three men in a boat" and Mrs. S. B. Casselman sang that beautiful favorite "The Old Rugged Cross".

Following the Mizpah Benediction and a hymn, lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Miss Feader. Mrs. Hesson, Mrs. Kittle and Mrs. Claude Carr. The hostess was tendered a vote of thanks by the ladies.

The April meeting will be at the home of Mrs. James Hesson, and the disciple to be studied is Andrew.

FIRST BRITISH DIESEL ELECTRIC EXPRESS LOCOMOTIVE

Locomotive No. 10,000, publicly shown at Euston recently, is Britain's first main line Diesel Electric locomotive. Designed by Mr. H. G. Ivatt, M.I., Mech. E., the locomotive is the first of two identical units to be constructed, each having a Diesel engine of 1600 h.p. and a driving ca end. It is planned to use both units coupled together to give 3,200 h.p. to haul expresses on the Euston-Glasgow main line, when the second unit ic completed. Meanwhile, after preliminary trials, No. 10,000 will go into regular fast passenger service between London and Derby and London and Manchester. The unit in the new Diesel locomotive is a 16 cylinder V-type Diesel, the largest yet manufactured by the English Electric Company. Maximum engine revolutions 750 r.p.m. for maximum tractive effort 41,400 lbs.

GARDEN CHATS:

By Lillian Allison

Hello Neighbour: How I'm going to concentrate long enough to scribble down some sense or nonsense for my space in the Record this week, I'll never know. You see I spent last Wednesday night on the train, Thursday and Friday at the Horticultural Convention, Saturday and Sunday visiting friends and Monday (eleven hours of it) on the train coming home. Do you wonder I am tired and that my brain wanders a bit

Besides all that, I don't want to tell you too much about the Convention because I would rather you would come to a meeting as soon as we can arrange it and hear all about it. Then I can answer questions and really tell it much better than I could hope to write it.

I will give you a few impressions of Convention now, however as a sort of preview of my report. To begin with, Niagara is a perfect sitting for any Convention. The General Brock Hotel with its soft carpets, its beautiful Crystal Ball room, its Rainbow dining room and all its splendour gives us country folk an insite into an entirely different world. The breath-taking view from my room and most particularly from the Rainbow Room makes one pause in awe and amazement. Niagara was dressed for winter. A fresh fall of snow the day we arrived (arranged entirely for our benefit, the Mayor said) added to the beauty and grandeur of the scene. I'm sure no one would ever tire of seeing this masterpiece of Nature. It portrays such strength and magnitude that we must say with the Psalmist, "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" But this is a brief account of a Horticultural Convention not an article for a tourist bulletin.

It was most inspiring to be one of three hundred or so other people who were likewise interested in flowers and gardening, and in making this old world a little more beautiful. It was encouraging to learn that ours is not the only Society with problems and that all across the province these problems are, more or less, the same. For some we received some helpful suggestions from other Societies; for others there seems to be no answer.

Then, of course, there are the people we meet at such gatherings—all such charming and interesting people. There, I met a young school teacher from near Coburg who took back to her school a huge silver trophy, won by her and her class in a School Beautification Contest. When we heard a list of improvements for which she was responsible the look of pride which showed in her face when she received the trophy was quite justified.

I also met a young couple from Arthur. He was the new President there, and he and his wife were just bubbling over with enthusiasm for putting Arthur on the map horticulturally.

The Secretary of Kitchener Society was just bubbling over with pride in her Society. They boasted over eleven hundred members—the largest group in Ontario. They seemed to have the secret of getting things done too. I'm sure she was one of the secrets.

Yes, it is a real experience to attend such a gathering of kindred souls. It is assuring to know that we are one of many such groups, and that they have the same aims and the same problems. I wish you could have all been there.

Now if you will watch this column you will learn when you can hear all about the Convention. We hope you will be interested.

(Intended for last week)

Hello Neighbours:- You know it isn't easy to talk about gardens and flowers when the radio says "Scattered snow flurries", especially when your brain is almost as scattered as the snowflurries. You see, tomorrow night I leave on the "midnight" for the Horticultural Convention at Niagara Falls. Mrs. Eric Casselman and Mrs. Allison Graham are going too so we are anticipating a most enjoyable trip. If you're a housewife, dear reader, you'll understand that I have things to do. before that train leaves. We women have a tendency to do things up, before we leave on a little holiday, as if we didn't intend to come back. It reminds me of the old lady who always took a bath before she left home, in case she had to be taken to the hospital, she said.

This Convention begins Thursday morning and ends Friday afternoon. There is to be a banquet the first night. The programme lists addresses and discussions on all kinds of Horticultural subjects. So for those of us who are interested in that type of thing, it should be most beneficial.

Then once again, we shall see the beautiful Falls. In fact I read somewhere that the may even illuminate them for us, but I prefer to see them as the Indians did centuries ago. I think I would never tire of just standing and gazing, it is such a sight. I can't help feeling with the Psalmist "What is man that Thou art mindful of him?" Niagara will always give me that awful feeling of reverence for One who is mighty enough to create such a majestic spectacle.

So as you read this, think of us attending the Horticultural Convention. I wish you could all come along with us.

How are your bulbs doing? Now aren't you glad you joined the Horticultural Society last year? How about doing it again for 1948, just a suggestion you know. I've had two hyacinths bloom and fade. Haven't they a delicious odour? I can't understand how one little flower can produce sufficient perfume to fill an entire room. One of my daffodils is in bloom too. It's a dainty little one more like a narcissus. I've plenty more bulbs yet at different stages. Another "daff." will bloom when I'm away, doggone it. I love to watch them unfold.

Mrs. Donald Cross who told me last summer about planting a whole tomato for seedling this spring, has brought her's in grow. So if you planted a whole tomato too, how about bringing it into the heat and sunlight now so the seeds will begin to grow? I hape you have good luck with it.

It is time to sow pepper seeds now too. They seem to develop slowly and need an early start if you want to have ripe peppers next summer. Some people think it is time to sow tomato seeds. My experience is that if they are planted too early the big plants get to be a problem before the weather is warm enough to transplant them into the garden.

Next week I'll tell you some of the doings at Convention. Until then,

So long.

WINDSOR CASTLE

Dear Reader:- As, in the near future Princess Elizabeth and her husband, will be taking part in the Garter ceremonial, I thought you might like to learn of some of Windsor's history. A lot of information I shall give you, is derived from a book written by Harrison Ainsworth many years ago.

We often associate ancient castles with gloom and ghosts and people being bricked up in walls. In the mist which hovers over Windsor Castle we faintly define many of these.

It is said that Merlin reared a magic fortress here, with a great hall wherein were trophies of war and the hunt and in the place of honor: the famous Round Table. If you look closely I am sure you can see the mighty phantom shapes of King Arthur and his Knights. It is pleasant to recall this ancient tale and imagine an enchanted castle on this hill.

Windsor, or "Wyndleshore," so called from the winding banks of that lovely river Thames flowing past it, was the abode of the ancient Saxon monarchs.

A legend related by William of Malonsbury tells of a woodman who was stricken with blindness, and after seeking cure from many Saints, was restored to sight by the touch of Edward the Confessor. This story may be doubted but it is certainly true that the above King did grant Windsor to the Abbot and Monks of St. Peter at Westminster, "to the praise of Almighty God."

William the Conqueror, laid covetous eyes upon beautiful Windsor and prevailed upon Abbot Edwin to accept three other places in its stead: obtaining possession of the coveted hill, William began to erect a castle upon it; around this he formed large parks: to enable him to pursue his favorite pastime of hunting. In due time William Rufus frequently hunted in the forests of Windsor.

Henry the First caused the castle to be entirely rebuilt and enlarged, but nothing remains of this structure except perhaps the keep.

Proof that Windsor Castle was regarded as the second fortress in the realm is afforded by the treaty of peace between the usurper Stephen and the Empress Maud, in which it is coupled with the Tower of London.

In the reign of Henry the Second vineyards were started, as the cultivation of the grape was being extensively practiced throughout England. On the departure of Richard Coeur de Lion for the holy wars, the government of the castle was entrusted to the Bishop of Durham, who, disputing with the Bishop of Ely, was imprisoned by the latter and compelled to surrender the castle. The Bishop of Ely was ousted in his turn and when the news came of Richard's capture and imprisonment in Austria, the castle was seized by Prince John.

Soon afterwards the Barons took possession of Windsor on the King's behalf and consigned it to the custody of the Dowager Queen Eleanor.

We all know of the perfidy of King John and during his reign a foul and evil deed took place. William de Braoese, a powerful baron offended John, who ordered the Baron's wife to deliver her son as hostage for her husband. She rashly returned her answer—"That she would not entrust her child to the person who could slay his own nephew."

John the Cruel, then seized her and her son, and enclosing them in a recess in the wall of the castle, built them up within it. No wonder the barons rebelled and caused John to sign at Runnymede in 1215, Magna Charta and Charta de Foresta.

Henry the Third was an ardent encourager of architecture and his reign marks the second great epoch in the annals of the castle.

Within a large and newly decorated chamber in 1240, on the day of the Nativity, a vast number of poor persons were collected and fed by the King's Command. During the greater part of Henry's long reign, carpenters and others worked without ceasing, and one of the buildings was a chapel, which structure was still in existence in the latter part of the reign of Henry the Seventh by whose orders it was pulled down.

In 1241, the Third Henry erected the three towers now known as Curfew, Garter and Salisbury. These three towers present unquestionable features of the architecture of the Thirteenth Century. The lower story of the Curfew Tower, which has been but little altered, consists of a large vaulted chamber twenty-two feet wide, with walls of nearly thirteen feet in thickness. The walls are covered with the inscriptions of the prisoners who have been confined within it. The Garter Tower is in a ruinous condition and Salisbury retains only externally and on the side towards the town, its original aspect. On November 24th, 1244, Henry gave orders "that the clerks must work night and day to wainscot the wall of the chapel." In this reign too, it is probable that the Norman Tower which now forms a gateway between the upper and middle ward was erected. This tower was used as a prison lodging during the civil wars of Charles the First's time, and many noble and gallant captives have left inscriptions of their loyalty and ill fate upon its walls.

In 1260, Margaret, Henry's daughter and her husband Alexander the Third of Scotland, visited the castle and here their daughter was born.

Next week D.V., I hope to tell you more of the history of the castle and the Order of the Garter, and of Herne the Hunter, who has haunted the castle grounds for centuries.

The event of the spring season has come and gone, namely March 13, Mr. Geo. C. Merkley's birthday. This is one time and place you go on your own invitation and receive a glorious welcome. On Saturday evening last about thirty-six relatives and friends gathered at the home to help Mr. Merkley celebrate his 78th birthday. He is staying young and looking fine and gets such real enjoyment from the annual event of getting together for a chat on the "Good Old Days", when you walked to Morrisburg to do your shopping, when butter was packed in tubs and sold once a year, when a wife took her turn on the end of a crosscut saw, when potash and pearl ash bought the boots for the winter, when this country was cleared by a strong arm and the sweat of the brow, the days that produced real men and women and how often, if ever do we thank God for these pioneers who made it possible for us to enjoy the luxury of today. Many of us remember real live stories told by our parents such as fanning grain by night and be half way to Morrisburg at sun up with a load of barley. And cutting a load of wood at $1.25 per cord, taking it to Morrisburg taking their own and horses feed in order to spend all the $2.50 for groceries.

In the "Good Old Days" some of our parents and family walked to Williamsburg to church and later to Toyes Hill. Now its impossible to make church in an automobile.

Messrs. Wm. Forward and Kenneth Merkley won the prizes for progressive euchre. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Lloyd Merkley. Mr. Harry Holmes and the Misses Munro including the usual birthday cake which is getting top heavy as each year adds another candle. Plenty of good wishes and a happy birthday were extended to Mr. Merkley on behalf of those present by Miss Helen Jamieson, closing with "For he's a jolly good fellow". Mr. Merkley sincerely thanked all for being so kind to remember him on March 13th.

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN
Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! With many people looking over seed catalogues in anticipation of succulent garden-fresh vegetables, it is difficult to settle down to the prosiac task of talking about carrots and potatoes and turnips. However, we find that there are many new ways of handling these stand-bys to make lenten meals interesting. There are other foods recommended that we often neglect because the family were not enthused at first—namely parsnips, dried peas and beans, and canned pumpkin.

SPICED PUMPKIN

3½ cups pumpkin (1 can) 1 tbsp. butter, 1 tsp. salt, 1|8 tsp. pepper, ¼ tsp. ginger, 1 egg, beaten.

Pour pumpkin into saucepan and add beaten egg and seasonings. Heat thoroughly, stirring frequently. Six servings.

CARROTS IN ORANGE BUTTER

4 cups cooked diced carrots, 2 tbsps. butter, 2 tbsps. orange juice, 1 grated orange rind, 1 tbsp. corn syrup.

Combine all ingredients and heat.

PARSNIPS WITH TOMATO SAUCE

4 large parsnips, 1½ cups tomato juice, 1 bay leaf, ½ onion, sliced, 2 whole cloves, 1 tsp. salt and 1|8 tsp. pepper.

Wash and parboil parsnips. Drain and skin, then dice. Combine with other ingredients and simmer 20 minutes. Pick out cloves and bay leaf. Serves 6.

TURNIP AND APPLE CASSEROLE

2 cups thinly sliced turnip strips, 1 cup sliced raw apples, 1½ tbsps. brown sugar, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. lemon rind, 3 tsps. lemon juice, 2 tbsps. butter.

Alternate layers of turnip and apple in casserole. Sprinkle each layer with salt and sugar, over top put the lemon rind and juice and dot with buttre. Bake, covered in preheated electric oven at 375 degrees until turnips are tender. Bake sausages or tenderloin in oven at same time to conserve fuel.

BOSTON BAKED BEANS

(pressure cooked)

1 lb. pea beans, 1|3 cup salt pork, 1 chopped onion, 2 tbsps. molasses, 1½ tbsps. salt, 1|8 tsp. pepper, ½ tsp. mustard, 3½ cups water.

Pick over the beans. Cover with 4 cups boiling water, put on a lid and let stand 1 hour. Cut the salt pork in cubes and lightly brown in the pressure cooker. Drain the beans and put into cooker with all the remaining ingredients. Close the cooker, bring to 15 lb. pressure and process 35 minutes.

Baked Beans Boston Style with Tomatoes: Omit ½ cup water and add 1 cup canned tomatoes before pressuring.

TAKE A TIP

1. Burnt vegetables may be salvaged if they are caught in time. Shake them into another pan and add a little cold water. Heat or finish cooking. (Do not scrape any burned pieces into fresh pans.)

2. Slice a Spanish onion into the juice left from a jar of sweet mixed pickles. Leave in pickling syrup for a week—then use as pickle...very good.

3. Next time you make cream sauce, make twice as much as you need and put half of it in the refrigerator to use in a day or so. This saves both time and labour.

4. Prepare vegetables to bake, roast or steam in the oven at same time and so conserve electricity.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. W. M. asks: What makes parsnips bitter?

Answer: Some varieties have a strong flavour if they are cooked too slowly, and they should be drained as soon as tender. Others may not have had good climatic conditions.

Mrs. T. R. asks: What can be done with curdled cream soup?

Answer: Beat the curdled soup at high speed and add ½ cup fine cracker crumbs.

Mr. C. C. asks: How long do you cook oysters and what are the ingredients in Old Fashioned Stew?

Answer: Over-cooked oysters become tough and hard to digest.

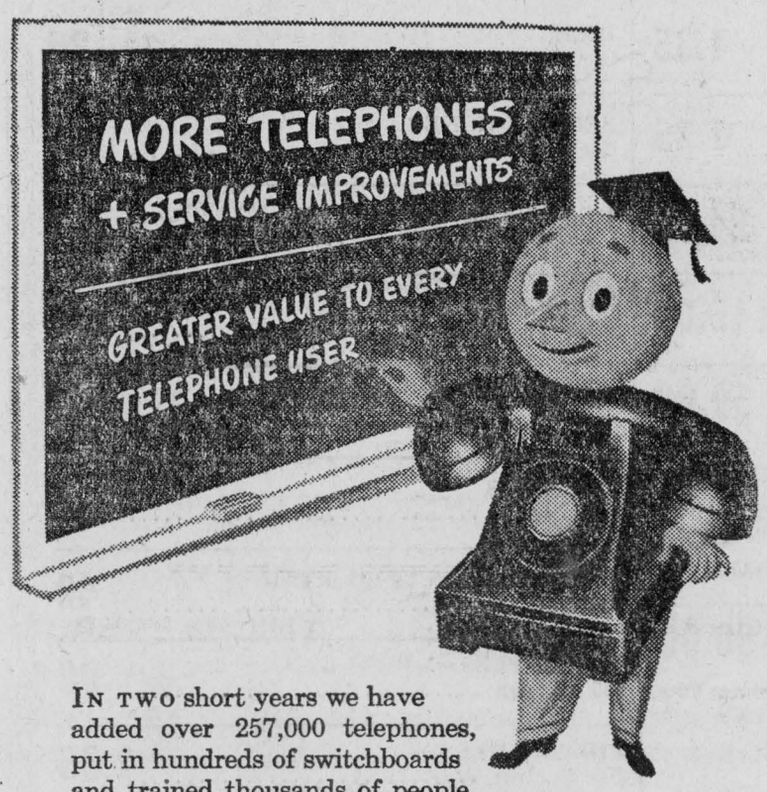

Recipe: 1½ cups scalded milk, 1 tsp. butter, 1|8 tsp. pepper, ½ tsp. salt, 4 tbsps. fine crumbs, ¼ pint oysters, paprika.

Add butter, pepper, salt and crumbs to milk. When hot add oysters and cook only until edges curl—about 3 to 5 minutes. —Sprinkle with paprika. Serves 2.

Mrs. J. T. asks: Recipe for Corn Fritters.

Answer: 1 cup canned cream corn, 1 cup flour, ¾ tsp. salt and f. c. pepper, ¾ tbsps. butter, 1 egg, 1½ tsp. baking powder.

Sift dry ingredients and add to corn. Add butter and beaten egg. Beat all together and fry in spoonfuls on a hot, greased griddle, or drop in hot fat at 375 degrees. Drain on brown paper and serve at once. Makes 8 fritters.
