Villeneuve trounces opponents

Tories keep grasp on SD & G

AVONMORE — A beaming Noble Villeneuve walked through his cheering supporters in the commmunity centre here Tuesday night, just as he'd walked through the provincial election, and took the stage all but oblivious to the disparaging news of a minority Tory government flashing on a nearby television screen.

A heavy favorite going into the election, the Progressive Conservative incumbent for SD & G produced a 6,000-vote winning margin that surprised even his own campaign manager. Villeneuve took all but eight of the riding's 124 polls, a rare feat in a night that saw seven prominent members of the Tory cabinet fall to defeat.

Stormont-Dundas MP Norm Warner could only describe SD & G that evening as "like being in another part of the country".

Liberal candidate Bill Dillabough had a poor showing with 32.2 per cent of the vote against Villeneuve's resounding 60 per cent. The NDP, supporting ailing Rudi Derstroff, was buoyed by its showing of 7.8 per cent.

Speaking to party faithful following his victory, Villeneuve said it had been a night of mixed emotions. "At the provincial level, we don't know who'll be premier tomorrow. But we are one of the few ridings to increase the size of our win," he said.

Following his address, Villeneuve said he was not surprised he had taken four of six polls in Morrisburg, Dillabough's hometown. He said he paid no special attention to the village, concentrating on it during the campaign as he did the other two urban centres in the riding, Winchester and Alexandria.

Glengarry win big

Villeneuve's strongest showing proved to be from his native county Glengarry. There he won big, taking polls in the townships of Kenyon, Roxborough, Charlottenburgh and the village of Maxville by a solid 2 to 1 margin.

Villeneuve had the advantage of being bilingual, holding the ear of the government, and possessing a first hand knowledge of farming issues — qualities his Liberal opponent lacked.

Commenting on the plight of his fellow candidates across the province, some who fell from voter grace and others who just barely clung to their seats, the 46-year-old real estate appraiser and farmer was at a loss.

"I had my mind on 70 seats...I had no idea (education minister) Keith Norton would go down. He obviously was a victim of the full-funding issue."

His forecast Thursday night that the province would see another election in six months has been revised by a weekend's consideration.

"No I don't believe either of the opposition parties want an early election any more than we do — especially in SD & G," he said in an interview Monday.

Villeneuve sided with those political observers who claim the party which brings down the government is likely to lose most at the polls. He said the issue that topples the government is certain to become the main electoral issue and the deciding factor at the polls.

"I just hope it will not become a contest to see who can throw the most money out the doors and windows," he said.

Villeneuve believes a Miller minority government can work, as did that of former premier Bill Davis from 1977 to 1981. But he admits some policy concessions are inevitable.

"Trial and error"

As to how flexible Miller would prove in his dealings with the NDP or Liberals, Villeneuve said he did not know. "I guess we'll just have to use a trial and error method."

Throughout the campaign, Villeneuve said he did not want to discuss separate school funding as an election issue, since all three parties had given it their approval.

Equal funding has since proved the election's hidden Molotov cocktail. But despite his leader's apparent back-pedalling in the issue, Villeneuve stands steadfast.

"I stick by what I said during the campaign. The longer it sits around without positive action, the more misconceptions and threats arise. It seems to be the orange and green arising again and we certainly don't want that.

"Let's get it over with. Who knows, it may be the first step to getting on an equal basis, and maybe we can marry the two (boards)."

Villeneuve is offering an apology to his constituents in advance. With a minority government it is imperative every member of the party be present in the House to participate in the voting procedure.

"I hope they will understand that I may not be able to attend as many functions as I have in the past. I'll miss that, it's one of the most enjoyable parts of being an elected person," he said.

As for rumours started by Tory riding association president Garnet Robertson of a possible cabinet post for Villeneuve, in light of Keith Norton's defeat in Kingston and the Islands and SD&G's excellent election showing, Villeneuve would only say "I haven't a clue."

He said there were some new faces who could prove valuable despite their lack of provincial political experience, and made note of the two very important portfolios of education and consumer and commercial relations left empty by the defeat of Norton and Gordon Walker.

Dillabough optimistic despite major setback

Louanne Munhall
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — As expected Liberal candidate Bill Dillabough failed to turn the tide on 118 years of Tory tradition in SD&G in last Thursday's provincial election. But still the Liberals had reason to celebrate.

Dillabough, 55, suffered a crushing defeat in his first attempt at provincial politics, winning only eight of the riding's 124 polls and entrenching the Progressive Conservative reign here for what could be another four years.

"I'm disappointed I lost, no one likes to lose. But the party won and that's the most important thing. The people have given a message to the Conservatives and we could be facing another election within the next 18 to 24 months. I intend to be part of that team," he told a crowd of cheering supporters gathered at the Loyalist Hotel for the so-called victory party Thursday night.

Dillabough managed to garner only 7,037 votes, well shy of the 13,123 which saw incumbent MPP Noble Villeneuve convincingly re-elected. NDP-er Rudi Derstroff threw the odds-maker for a loop, turning in 1,698 votes — almost triple the 627 he racked up in the 1983 byelection here — despite a back injury which prevented him from actively campaigning.

While disappointed with his personal loss — in the previous outing with Johnny Witteker at the helm the Liberals garnered 8,062 votes — Dillabough and his workers were jubiliant over the party's triumphant showing across the province.

Under leader David Peterson, the Liberals scored a stunning upset, grabbing 48 seats of the 125-seat legislature and relegating the Tories, who dropped to 52 seats from 72, to the position of minority government. The NDP managed only a three-seat increase, bringing that party's total to 25.

Learned from mistakes

Dillabough said he learned a lot about electioneering during the brief campaign but admits three weeks of mainstreeting, shaking hands and travelling the backroads of the riding were not enough to ingratiate him in the hearts and minds of a staid electorate.

He also managed to learn a few things from the Tories along the way.

"We just didn't get our team together soon enough...If we want to make our mark in the next election we have to start working tomorrow. That's how elections are won. The Tories do that, they start working tomorrow to win. That's what we'll have to do."

Dillabough said if the Liberals hope to become a viable force in staunchly Conservative SD&G,

Accident claims local man

PRESCOTT — One Morrisburg man is dead and two others seriously injured following a head-on collision just west of here Saturday night.

Terry Michael Higham, 23, of Mariatown was killed after his westbound vehicle collided while rounding a curve, with a car driven by Mikolaj Talajko, of Prescott. The accident occurred around 11:40 p.m. about one kilometre west of here.

Two passengers in the Higham car, John Schalkwyk, 23, and Thomas Imrie, 21, both of Morrisburg, remain in hospital.

Schalkwyk is in the Brockville General Hospital listed in satisfactory condition with extensive injuries. Imrie is in critical condition in the intensive care unit at the Kingston General Hospital.

Talajko, a 63-year-old Prescott shoemaker and his wife Mary, 51, a passenger in the Talajko vehicle were treated and later released from hospital.

Const. Paul Vanluit of the Prescott OPP is continuing the investigation.

Funeral services were held yesterday from St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Morrisburg. Higham is survived by his wife Mary Ann, daughter Tabitha, parents Russell and Marion Higham of Morrisburg, brother Lance of Long Sault and sister Cathy Nichol of Kapuskasing.

Blackouts "unlikely" in Hydro dispute

WINCHESTER—Ontario Hydro workers here remain off the job, but area manager Vince Lynch said the strike is not expected to cause blackouts. Only builders and new homeowners requiring electrical hook-ups will likely feel the pinch.

About 65 linesmen, forresters, office and customer service personnel here walked off the job at one minute after midnight Sunday. Members of CUPE local 1000 — the Ontario Hydro Employees Union — they joined 15,000 workers across the province after talks with a provincial mediator broke off.

Money is not the major stumbling block in the negotiations. The key issues are threats to job security posed by the utility's contracting out of renovation and repair work at operating nuclear plants to construction workers.

Lynch said the Winchester office, which services the rural area from Iroquois to Cornwall, north to the outskirts of Ottawa and south to the St. Lawrence River, has approximately 29,000 customers.

A skeleton crew of seven management personnel, however, will be on hand to supply only minimal services, he said.

"We're continuing only the most essential services; no new electrical services will be connected until the employees return to work. If there are any major emergencies, workers would be made return to work."

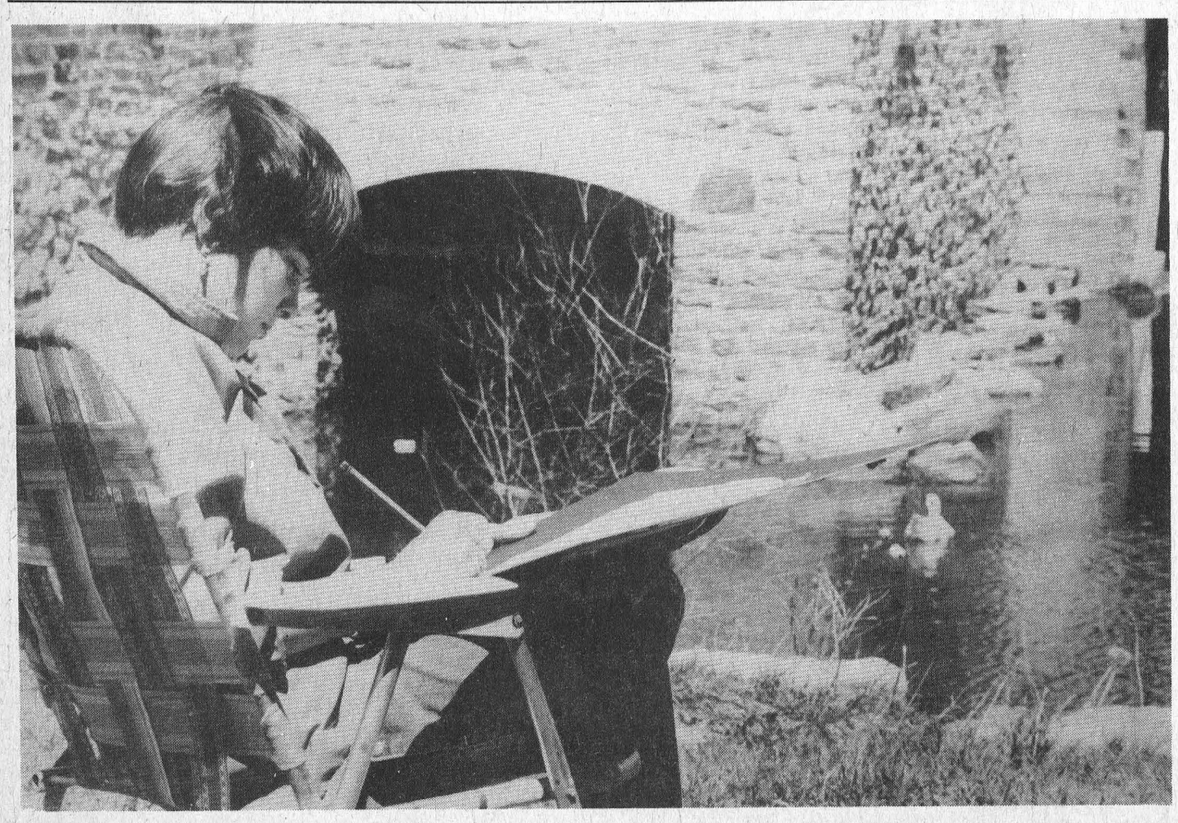
Hydro has confirmed that before there is any risk of rotating power blackouts, the utility would have to have exhausted all its import potential from the United States, introduced province-wide voltage reductions and made public appeals for conservation. If these tactics still leave the utility short of generating capacity, any power interruptions would be kept to 15 minutes.

The most contentious issues, including the contracting out issue, have now gone to a three-man independent panel appointed by the provincial labor ministry. The remaining issues will go to binding arbitration.

Linesman Jim Fawcett, one of 25 local Hydro workers manning the picket lines in shifts outside the St. Lawrence Street office Tuesday, said workers there are fully supportive of the strike action. The union recently voted 72 per cent to reject the utility's latest contract offer.

"But of course we'd sooner be working," he said.

The strike is the first by the union since a four-month walkout in 1972 that ended when the Ontario government persuaded the two sides to accept binding arbitration.



Shelley Quig, a grade six student at Sacred Heart School in Cornwall, was one of about 40 students from Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry who visited Upper Canada Village last Wednesday to draw Bellamy's Steam Flour Mill. The mill is UCV's most recent restoration, and each young artist will have two selections of art work displayed at its official opening later this month. —Racine photo

Bylaw to challenge police village boundary

Louanne Munhall
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG — Township council and Williamsburg police village trustees are hoping a 1907 bylaw will put to rest discrepancies over where exactly the boundaries of the police village lie.

Trustees learned two weeks ago a map of the village, used for years for assessment purposes, is incorrect. It depicts the village's boundaries running east to the United Church, west to Pinkus', north past the old cheese factory and south to the middle of Park Drive.

But a 1907 act of United Counties Council which designated the area as a police village, brought to council's attention by the assessment department last month, shows the southern boundary on the well-used map is inaccurate.

The legal description unearthed after a two-year search, states the southern boundary runs along the eastern bank of Whitteker Creek, now the McMartin Drain, to a point where it cross the Nine Mile Road, today Hwy. 31.

"If that old creek is the line then it's considerably farther south of the southern boundary of the police village than is currently indicated to us," said Rev. Tom Lowry, who with trustee Ron Froom turned up at Saturday's regular meeting to request council's support in redesignating the southern boundary.

Antiquated term

The term "police village" has been carried down through the ages from the days when small communities banded together to police themselves, and to control such things as dogs and horses in the streets. Over the years the term has remained, although today most police villages in the province have been dissolved.

While a section of the Municipal Act still recognizes the police village as a governing body, its main purpose now is to offer municipal services, like hydro, at lower rates than the provincial utility. The remaining areas of jurisdiction are, for the most part, covered by the larger township.

According to Lowry, an extended southern boundary would mean a slightly larger police village, and would include the recently completed senior citizens' complex, township firehall, Triple B Structures and several residences.

Village trustees maintain the enlarged area would give a tremendous boost to Williamburg's hydro utility, which buys hydro-eletric power in bulk from Ontario Hydro and offers it to customers at substantially lower rates — $4 per 1,000 kilowatt use less — that the provincial utility.

"The entire village area of hydro is only 150 homes...If we included the seniors' complex that's an additional 35 right there and the firehall is also a great user of electricity. That would be a whopping block of new service, and would help keep our rates low in the future because of the broader base of operation," said Lowry.

He stressed it was not the increased tax base the police village was seeking, but the hydro. Nevertheless, under the Municipal Act the police village is assessed a slightly higher mill rate than the township to pay for services such as garbage and snow removal.

"The taxes will increase but at the same time they'll be offset by the lower hydro rates...It's really six of one, a half dozen of the other."

Potential hot potato

Reeve Johnny Whitteker warned Lowry it was "quite a can of worms" he was opening up, then asked if he knew of any more recent acts than the 1907 bylaw.

Lowry admitted it was unlikely anything more up to date existed, since it would require an act of counties council to change the boundaries set out in 1907, and none had appeared in the course of the two-year search.

Clerk Mike Waddell said there was no question over the location of the sides, just the limits. "The southern boundary can't be determined clearly but the others are quite clear."

He said the discrepancy was probably the result of human error occurring somewhere in the last 25 years since Park Drive was built.

Lowry told council if the boundaries are redrawn according to the 1907 bylaw Ontario Hydro would, in effect, be encroaching on the local utility's jurisdiction. The village, however, is prepared to debenture the cost of services purchased recently, "just like any large project".

A meeting with representatives from the assessment office, Ontario Hydro, council and police village trustees is now in the works to straighten out the matter.

"Some sort of compromise will have to be reached over where the line crossed the highway...That creek (Whitteker) could have been dug out to make way for the McMartin drain, but we'll just have to look for someone whose memory goes back that far," said Lowry.

Barb Berns says she's driving all her customers crazy with incessant talk about her upcoming trip to the Bahamas, but she's got reason to be excited. Berns has won an all-expenses paid trip and leaves May 24 for four days and three nights. Berns, proprietor of Bern's General Store on Church Road, won the trip through National Grocers and Lowney's. Her husband, John, decided to let daughter Marilyn, 18, accompany her mother and the two ladies, as seen in above photo, are already preparing for their trip by wearing floral shirts.

JUNIOR KINDERGARTEN REGISTRATION

The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education is pleased to announce the introduction of a Junior Kindergarten program, effective for the 1985-86 school year.

Subject to registration, this program will be offered in schools which presently offer the Senior Kindergarten program.

Where enrolment is insufficient to operate a Junior Kindergarten program at a particular school, such children will be transported to an adjacent school.

Where enrolment is low in the Senior Kindergarten and/or the Junior Kindergarten, such Kindergartens may be combined into one class with different programs.

Mid-day transportation will be provided in all Kindergarten locations which justify a Junior Kindergarten operation.

Parents of children eligible to attend Junior Kindergarten for September 4, 1985 are requested to contact the school between Monday, May 6 and Friday, May 10 in order to arrange an appointment for registration.

Children are required to be four years of age on or before December 31, 1985 for admission to Junior Kindergarten.

The following information will be required at the time of registration:

a) evidence of your child's date of birth;
b) your lot and concession number or street address;
c) your school tax support;
d) your child's immunization record.

NDP support up, but still lagging

Judy Racine
Leader Staff

CHESTERVILLE — While the other two Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry candidates waited for the provincial election results with a throng of supporters last Thursday night, New Democrat Rudi Derstroff waited at home with his family.

It seemed a fitting way to close the low-profile campaign Derstroff was forced to run because of a back injury. Despite little NDP campaign activity, however, Derstroff garnered 1,698 votes, almost triple the 627 votes he received in the 1983 byelection.

"We were pleased to come up in the polls, but we didn't get as much support as we would have liked," said Derstroff, an Ottawa bus driver and Chesterville councillor. "Fifteen per cent would have been a big break."

If Derstroff had got 15 per cent of the popular vote, the province would have reimbursed the $3,000 the local riding association spent on its campaign. Instead, he received 7.8 per cent of the vote, up from three per cent in the 1983 byelection.

Local riding association president Trevor Tolley said the results were "not disquietening" but he had hoped to get closer to the NDP's overall share of the popular vote, 25 per cent.

But he said Derstroff ran an effective campaign. He said NDP concerns about health and education, for example, were clearly articulated but the Tories "muted" the issues.

"The Tories articulated no issues in this area," he said, noting Progressive Conservative MPP Noble Villeneuve, who won by a more than 6,000 vote margin, didn't attend debates sponsored by local teacher and farmer groups. "I would have been happier if there had been more opportunity for us to openly debate."

In fact, Derstroff has had some trouble getting his message across to voters and has still not matched the party's showing in SD&G in 1981 and 1977, when it received 8.5 per cent and 13 per cent of the popular vote respectively. Still, he considers the results last Thursday a victory of sorts.

"At least we're back to the levels we'd been averaging," he said. "I guess I'm a little better known and there's a general dissatisfaction with PC policies. The fact the Liberal candidate was new helped us too."

Derstroff says he's pleased with the response he received from young people and predicted there's "lots of potential" for the NDP locally.

"I think people have accepted our policies as real alternatives," he said. "More people see it as something to work for."

After the 1983 byelection, the local association doubled its membership to about 60 people and Derstroff hopes to repeat that achievement during the next eight months.

By the next election, Derstroff says the local NDP candidate will have a "solid base" of supporters. He doubts if he'll be that candidate.

"Right now, I probably won't run again," he said. "I think I'll step aside and let someone else try."

Phyllis Dillabough gives husband Bill a comforting peck on the cheek as the results poured in during last Thursday's provincial election. The Liberal candidate managed only 7,037 votes to incumbent Noble Villeneuve's 13,123 but his party came within four seats of overturning the Tories overall.

Dillabough optimistic

more young people will have to become involved.

"We need these young people out working for the Liberal party all the time, not just when an election is called. That's what the Tories do and that's what we're going to do. We're holding a lot of power in our hands right now and next time out we'll destroy them (Tories)."

From the outset of his campaign, Dillabough has been hampered by the lack of a strong party base from which to build on. Though well-known as reeve of Morrisburg since 1975 and the past United Counties warden, the veteran municipal politician is a virtual unknown outside Dundas County.

Party workers were banking on the increasing complaints over the Tories' neglect of education and health care issues, as well as the state of county roads in Eastern Ontario, to put Dillabough in good stead with the 35,424 eligible voters.

But voter apathy, which saw only 21,858 or 61.7 per cent of possible voters take to the polls, and an underlying feeling that the non-bilingual, non-farmer Dillabough did not really represent the majority of SD&G voters, was translated at the polls.

Even Morrisburg, the one area hometown boy Dillabough had hoped to sew up, failed to give him the show of support he wanted, if only by 31 votes.

Tighter race expected

Riding association president John Corbett, a Liberal who did his first campaigning in the riding of the province's last Liberal Premier, Mitch Hepburn, said he'd expected better results, particularly in Morrisburg. But overall he was pleased with his party's showing.

"I admit I thought things would be a lot closer than they were here tonight. We were quite optimistic and had put a lot of stock in Bill, who made a great effort. I know his supporters felt he'd done a lot for the community and that it could be counted on...But Morrisburg let him down tonight."

Outwardly though Dillabough is not bitter. "I told these guys we were going to get a minority government."

He is even cautiously optimistic about his chances down the road should the minority government be forced to call an election.

"I was proud to be part of the David Peterson team tonight and I intend to be part of it in the future."

For the time being another, more immediate, election looms in the offing. Voters go to the polls to choose their municipal leaders in November.

It's not "Miller Time"

The resounding rebuff administered to the Progressive Conservative party led by Hon. Frank Miller in last Thursday's provincial election gave notice to the premier, and to whatever government he may now form, that electors in Ontario, too, know when "it's time for a change", that they will no longer be satisfied with the same old platitudes, dressed up in new names, designed to placate and anaesthetize over-taxed and angry Ontarians who have listened to them for such a long time.

For the first time in nearly a half-century, the Liberal party candidates counted more votes than their Conservative opponents. Our system of government, however, does not always allow the party with the highest popular vote to become the governing body. But Mr. Miller, who saw many of his former cabinet go down to defeat, and his overall majority in the Legislature disappear, is now faced with the almost impossible task of forming a government which can weather the toughest opposition any provincial government can experience. It is almost a certainty that with the necessity of producing an almost immediate budget and a legislative program which will embody at least a majority of the election and pre-election commitments, any government he forms will be defeated in the House long before a normal term of office is finished.

The myth has been advanced that equal funding for separate schools was the major factor in Miller's loss. Nothing could be further from the truth. Both of the other parties involved, including the one which garnered the most votes of any, were also committed to such a program. The simple fact is that Mr. Miller displayed little leadership, that his handlers displayed an almost abysmal ignorance of just how long the Ontario populace would stand still for the arrogant assumption that one party was predestined to rule forever in this province.

Tribute to all mothers

Next Sunday, May 12th, is Mothers Day, the special day set aside each year to honour our own mothers and all the mothers of the world — the single most important group in our society. Without them, the human race, and all its accomplishments would very soon disappear from the face of the earth.

Almost since the beginning of time — since humans first began marking their thoughts in pictures or writings, motherhood has been extolled and honoured. But in some circles today it is not as fashionable, nor is it considered as important as it once was. There is an almost overwhelming pressure on women, and particularly on young women, to "get out in the world and fulfill their lives, not to waste their youth and talents as a homemaker". As one of the direct results of this type of thinking, Canada, as well as many other western nations, today finds herself with a population made up of increasingly older people. There are hundreds of huge, costly, and relatively new schools with no pupils to attend them. There are many thousands of highly qualified and expensively educated teachers with no jobs available. There is an increasingly higher percentage of pensioners in our Canadian society, and an ever-dwindling percentage of taxpaying workers to pay for the very high cost of our most generous social welfare programs.

But in spite of today's smaller families, motherhood certainly remains by far the most challenging, and almost certainly too the most rewarding career of all. Who else is called on to face so many personal emergencies, so many personal sacrifices, so many difficult decisions? No one except a mother either, can possibly know the satisfaction and joy in another's accomplishments, can so intimately share their difficulties and disappointments, their triumphs and tragedies that are bound to come into every life at some time.

This day was originally dedicated to pay tribute to and to give thanks to that important person who has done more for you, and has expected less in return, than anyone ever has, or ever will. This day is an opportunity for every one of us to pay a real tribute to all mothers everywhere, for the important gifts of life and love which they bring to every human who was ever born.

Those who still have the great good fortune to have their mothers close to them should welcome this opportunity to spend some time with her on this special day. The rest of us, who are not so fortunate, could offer a small thank-you, perhaps a prayer for the dearest, most concerned and unselfish friend you ever had or ever will have.

That's a laugh!

"An affection, peculiar to mankind ... the eyebrows are raised about the middle, and drawn down next to the nose; the eyes are almost shut; the mouth opens and shows the teeth; the corners of the mouth being drawn back and raised up; the cheeks seem puffed up and almost hide the eyes; the face is usually red and nostrils open and the eyes wet".

Would you say that is a description of pain or torture. Nope. That is the way the very first edition of the Encyclopaedia Britannica, which came out just over 200 years ago, described laughter. Why not try it today, even if it's in front of a mirror, and start your day a little better.

Happy feet for him

(The Eastern Ontario Review)

In times when a $2.99 pair of plastic shoes gives budgetary pause, it's always interesting to try and imagine being in someone else's shoes.

Consider alligator-skin boots at a mere $2,400 or hippopotamus-skin loafers with a more modest price tag of $924. Perhaps elephant skin would be more to your tootsies' liking; the shoes cost $900. Imagine an ostrich transformed into boots at $1,150.

But it's only the best for Joe Dan Dwyer, a man in the United States (and for his feet). They won $24 million in a lawsuit, as a result of a logging accident. Joe Dan's health is somewhat less than perfect, but he sure knows how to treat his feet.

To imagine being in Dwyer's shoes, you'd have to spend $7,000 on footwear. And his Mexican shoemaker is reported to be very, very happy, too.

Headlines in the May 13th, 1955 issue of The Leader read F.M. Cass, Q.C. Conservative Candidate. Frederick M, Cass, Q.C., prominent lawyer of Chesterville and Winchester, was selected to carry the banner of the Progressive Conservative Party in the June 9th provincial election for the riding of Grenville-Dundas. The 42-year-old Dundas County Deputy Magistrate succeeded Hon. George H. Challies of Morrisburg, who retired from political life after representing the riding for 26 years. Reeve Lloyd C. Davis of Iroquois and Deputy Reeve Allan Farlinger of Matilda Township, opposed Mr. Cass and were the first to congratulate him when his candidature became official.

The Iroquois men's team consisting of A. Bray, H. Morrison, J. Williamson, K. Easter, D. Edgar and W. Williamson won the Morrisburg men's senior bowling league. The Edgerton ladies' trophy was won by Shirley Zalman, Mercedes Hess, Ethel Casselman, Audrey Hummell, Dorothy Merrill and Gertrude Aikman.

At the Dominion 16 ounce jars of Richmello salad dressing were 35 cents each and Paramount sockeye salmon 37 cents a half pound tin.

Gone With the Wind starring Clark Gable and Vivian Leigh was playing at the Cameo theatre and the Picadilly at Williamsburg was showing Beau Brummell starring Elizabeth Taylor and Stewart Granger.

The Aultsville correspondent wrote: Did some one notice this is the year 1955, the 5th month and the fifth day of the week? This will not happen again for some years. Maybe this is the cause of the changeable weather. One day 80 degrees, next 60 degrees, even down to 32 degrees, then rain, and a few flakes of snow — and even hail.

Pictured on the front page of the May 11th, 1945 issue of The Leader was Victory is Ours. Today the United Nations, Partners in Freedom, have triumphed over the beast of Berlin and all his Nazi tyrants. Let us join in joyous thanksgiving, praising God that through His Wisdom, Justice and Freedom have prevailed.

V-E Day was marked in Morrisburg with a spirit of thanksgiving to God for deliverance from the evils and perils of nearly six years of war. A street parade a three o'clock stopped at the monument park to hear the address from King George.

Cpl. Carson Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baker of Glen Becker, who had been freed from a German prisoner-of-war camp inn Austria, was now safe and well in England. He had been captured in Italy on December 13th, 1944 after being wounded three times.

For the third time Walt Disney's unforgettable Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs was playing at the Cameo Theatre and Johnny Weismuller was starring in Tarzan's Desert Mystery at the Picadilly Theatre, Williamsburg.

Despite the inclement weather almost 1,000 people from Williamsburg and the surrounding district attended the V-E celebrations in Williamsburg. A parade marched through the village to the Picadilly Theatre where a service of worship was conducted by local clergymen, Rev. W.C. Noiting, Rev,. R.G. Newman and Rev. E.C. Lacey.

Pte. George Jarvis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jarvis of Morrisburg had returned to his home at Morrisburg, after spending four years overseas with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. Others to return home were PO. Lawrence "Skippy" Clark and PO. Officer Charles Blancher both of the R.C.A.F.

It was reported in the May 10th, 1935 issue of The Leader that George Mattice had been authorized by council to look after and care for the fairgrounds without compensation.

The members of the Young Peoples League of Williamsburg United Church under the direction of Mrs. Strader McIntosh presented a play entitled Mary's Castle in the Air. The cast included Estelle Irving, Stella Herriman, Harold Casselman, Wilbur Garlough, Edna Johnson, Gladys Cunningham, Ethan Alguire, Gerald Norval, Grant Algire, Edna Cunningham and Milles Barkley.

Among those who received the King's Jubilee Medal were Hon. George H. Challies, M.L.A., A.C. Casselman M.P. and Mrs. Casselman, and A.J. Casselman, Williamsburg.

Mother's Day features at Weber's included hand bags for $2.95 and crepe de chene slips at $1.40.

A financial statement for the village of Morrisburg showed total receipts of $62,062.76.

Claudette Colbert and Warren William were starring in Imitation of Life at the Cameo Theatre.

The May 15th, 1925 issue of The Leader reported that a number of the members of the Board of Education, motored to Carleton Place to look over the Institute there. The visitors were favorably impressed with the building but felt it was much too large for Morrisburg. Just how long the Department would continue to delay the preliminary work was a matter of concern to many in Morrisburg and the surrounding area.

Horse races were planned for Morrisburg on the King's Birthday June 3rd. A number of the fastest horses in Ontario had already been booked with $450 offered in purses.

At the East End Meat Market sausage was 20 cents a pound and round steak 22 cents a pound.

W. Shennett was selling black sateen shirts and blue railroad shirts at $1 each.

Charles Hanes had resumed his business on Main Street, Aultsville. He was prepared to do custom work both new and repairs in the line of plumber and was to reopen his coal business again shortly.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario.

Dear Sir — I am writing this letter to share with you and your readers some of my thoughts and concerns about being a Canadian and Christian at this time of our nations life. I envision Canada as a nation which has only recently become of age, in the span of human years about 19 or 20 years old. We began as mainly a product of a mixed marriage, the offsprings of France and Great Britain. Although we started with a struggle for survival we have since grown and developed, blossoming with the promise and potential of youth. Our country has been a land of promise, of opportunity, of new life, with great potential yet to be developed. We began and grew as a new nation trusting and believing in God's help and guidance. Since both of our National Parents were Christian countries, we also began as a Christian country, basing our society, its laws and system of government on Christian principles.

Recently, however, we have come of age. The "Constitution came home" and now it would appear that we, as Canadians, have "complete" autonomy in regard to our National direction: a state which we desired. Like a young man on his own we are "free" to determine our values and beliefs, to take our place in the world community and to determine in the next decades who we will be as a mature and independent nation. We face a time when we will be able to finally come to grips with the old question of "Canadian Identity".

In the meantime, however, it has already become obvious that although we have declared our final independence, we are still none-the-less a part of the larger world family. We are not free from the pressures and ties of our brothers and sisters, indeed our neighbours around us. We are all too aware of the influence that our big brother the United States of America still has on us. Like all young adults we continue to wrestle with the problems of independence and interdependence. As such we live in a dynamic and challenging time in the history of our Nation. A time of great risk and great opportunity.

It is precisely because of this that I am deeply concerned about what we as a Nation believe about God and His supremacy over us. As I perceive Canada today, we are abandoning our Christian roots and becoming a lukewarm theistic nation which mainly ignores the implications of the supremacy of God and instead opts to deal in a humanistic manner with the issues that face us. That admirable quality of "the great Canadian compromise" has brought us to a position of not wanting to offend one another while at the same time causing us to abandon the living God, the Lord of all creation. It seems sad to me, that at the very time when we could use the truth and guidance of the living God most, we turn our backs on Him in favour of collective bargaining. I firmly believe we would all fare much better, now and in the future, if we not only collaborated together but also listened to and followed the voice of God as revealed to us in Jesus and His word.

It has become painfully obvious that as a nation we are no longer listening to God and we are drifting away from His teachings that were given to us that we might have a more abundant life. It would be easy to blame our leaders for this but they are only partly to blame. We as a Nation, Christian and non-Christian, are all party to the choosing of the path we now walk. This is evident in many areas of our lives. For example, lotteries are contrary to God's will for us yet they are allowed and indeed succeed because of those who buy the tickets. God has said, "Keep the Sabbath Holy, a day of rest", yet the Lord's Day Act has been declared unconstitutional. Sunday will not be a day set apart unless each of us so decides and acts accordingly. The rise in the level of promiscuity, abortion, divorce, and many related issues is a direct result of the fact that we as a people have opted to ignore God's teachings and instead follow a morality of personal, instantaneous gratification with little emphasis or regard for personal or corporate responsibility. Our problems of acid rain and pollution are also from our lack of concern for the overall well being of God's creation in the interest of our short term gain. Many of our problems are self created and in direct correlation to our lack of obedience and maturity in our relationship with God.

I pray with a deep sense of sadness and concern for Canada, because I forsee continued difficulty and problems which will be worsened by our disobedience and separation from the Will of God. The scriptures clearly proclaim that peace, truth, freedom, hope, joy and love are to be found in a right relationship with God in and through Jesus the Christ. I pray that someday we will again, as a nation, return to being a Christian country believing in and being obedient to God.

I hope that my brothers and sisters in Christ will witness with me to the truth and love of God, and that together we will continue to serve Him. I pray that amidst the imperfectness of our personal and corporation life we will work together in love, with all, to face the challenges and problems that we as Canadians face. Finally I ask that all pray to God for his help, grace and mercy, trusting that in the end His Will will be done here on earth, according to His infinite goodness.

Thank you for allowing this small town Christian a chance to put his two cents in, and may God be with you.

Yours truly,
Tijs Theijsmiejer

The Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario.

Dear Sir:-

Beginning in 1815 and possibly until 1826, Daniel Myers operated an Inn east of Morrisburg which became known as "The White House". This house was built by Daniel's father Jacob Myers and Daniel. It was moved to Upper Canada Village but Daniel's sign had been sold to Mr. Alvin Myers of Toronto who retired in California.

Now Alvin Myers and his family have decided to donate the sign to Upper Canada Village. A special ceremony, as part of the United Empire Loyalists Association of Canada Annual Convention which is being held in Cornwall this year will take place on June 7, 1985, at 11:00 a.m., at Upper Canada Village. The sign will be prominently displayed inside "The White House" in the future.

Daniel Myers has many descendants in this area and of course many more spread across Canada from Northern Ontario to Vancouver Island and in the United States. Those in this area include.

1) Lloyd Marcellus, who was Clerk of Osnabruck Township for many years, and his brothers and sisters and their families including Ralph Marcellus of Riverside Heights and Mrs. Grant Black.

2) Alvinzie Crites' descendants including Mrs. Audrey Barkley of Williamsburg.

3) The Robinsons and Adlingtons of Morrisburg whose parents operated "The White House" as a tourist home in the late 1930's and early 1940's.

4) Mrs. Norma Shaver of Ingleside and now Cornwall and of her brothers and sisters and their descendants.

5) Mrs. Miriam Salmon of Morrisburg and her sister Mrs. Margaret Rowden of Clarence Creek and her families.

6) Sarah Myers who married Martinus Hickey. I do not know yet the names of any recent descendants because I have not seen "The Ingleside Hickeys' " book.

It would be appropriate if as many descendants of Daniel Myers as possible attend the special ceremony when his sign is returned to Upper Canada Village. I know that I will be there with some of my grandnieces and grandnephews if they are given permission to be absent from school on Friday, June 7th, because we want to thank Alvin for the return of the sign.

How about bringing a picnic lunch and, if they do not already know, I will help as many as possible find out how they are descendants of Daniel Myers and his wife Ann Schaeffer. Maybe that day will be bright, warm and sunny and you will end it with the feeling, as I do, that you own part of "The White House" and of Daniel's sign.

the Kitchen Garden

V.A. Hughes

The frantic season is upon us, you can almost count on it starting with Daylight Saving Time. Warm weather or not, Bob Kerr is playing Gershin's "Summertime" on the radio. The Market bistros have set up their patio tables and are doing a flourishing noontime trade. And the Market stalls that sell maple sugar and wild spring Garlic have been joined by the first of the bedding-plant vendors.

Along with the flats of Pansies and pots of shivering pink Geraniums (that's a wicked breeze that sweeps down from Parliament Hill) there are the spring perennials, Rhubarb and Asparagus. While most gardeners will be giving careful consideration to varieties of Beans, whether to grow head lettuce or leaf, and the earliest Tomato they can expect, few think seriously about putting in rows of Asparagus or a patch of Rhubarb; the vegetable garden is an annual affair, a blank page that you start each year. Reconsider, this year, think perennials when you plan your vegetable patch.

Aparagus, Egyptian Onion, Horseradish, Jeruslem Artichokes, Rhubarb, and Sorrell are just a few of the perennial vegetables that are winter hardy. A bonus to jaded appetites is their early appearance, long before many of the crop of annual vegetables. The Artichokes may be dug as soon as the frost is out of the ground; Rhubarb, that was covered (forced) offers an element of eye-appeal at breakfast instead of orange juice. We've been picking Sorrel for salads or soup, and snipping young Egyptian Onions, the clown of the vegetable garden. While normal onion bulbs swell below ground, Egyptian Onions flower and fruit on stalks two to three feet high.

The Asparagus in our garden isn't showing yet, but wait a few weeks and we'll be hard pressed to keep it picked. The drawbacks to growing this delicacy are keeping it picked to ensure a longer period of harvest, stalks left to grow become hard and stringy, spelling an end to the season — not a crop for the weekend gardener, and maintaining a well weeded bed (groan). Rhubarb, on the other hand, is number one on our list of easy-to-grow crops, just keep it well fed. Cut the flower stalks when they appear, they're quite an exotic flower, free too, besides they just slurp up food that would be better used producing more fruity stalks. Whatever you do, don't peel the stalks, not only will you lose that rosy color, but you'll be throwing away nutrients.

We found an unusual treatment for Asparagus in "Madame Chiang's Mandarin Recipe Book".

Mandarin Asparagus

Snap off the tender ends from ½ pound of asparagus. Cut ends diagnially into 2½ inch slices. Drop into rapidly boiling water for 2 to 3 minutes. Rinse immediately with cold water. Drain. Sprinkly with a pinch of salt, a smaller pinch of sugar, and a few drops of soya sauce. Serve cold. Serves 2.

What could be simpler? Just watch the soya sauce, not the local super market brand, it will kill the flavour of the asparagus, get the light or Japanese soya from a specialty store.

SD & G bucks provincial trend

Judy Racine
Leader Staff

While Tory fortunes throughout the province slipped last Thursday night, Progressive Conservative incumbent Noble Villeneuve kept Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry a Tory stronghold.

Villeneuve routed Liberal candidate Bill Dillabough, his closest opponent, beating him by 6,086 votes. Villeneuve got 13,123 votes to Dillabough's 7,037. New Democrat Rudi Derstroff received 1,698 votes.

Villeneuve's win was no surprise in this traditionally Conservative riding, but the extent of his support was unexpected. He received 60 per cent of the popular vote compared to 32.2 per cent picked up by Dillabough and 7.8 per cent garnered by Derstroff.

Dillabough, Morrisburg's reeve for a decade and warden of the United Counties last year, had hoped to gain support in Dundas County but it voted solidly Conservative.

Of 47 polls in Dundas County, Dillabough won only five—two in his hometown of Morrisburg, two in neighboring Williamsburg Township and Dundas' advance poll. In Morrisburg, he got 31 votes less than Villeneuve.

"When I went into this, I knew I had a hell of a battle...", Dillabough told supporters last Thursday after watching the returns filter into a subdued campaign headquarters. He was not overstating his case.

Dundas has voted Tory since Confederation. The old riding of Glengarry has voted Tory since 1948 when Osie Villeneuve won it, except from 1957 to 1962 when it switched to the Liberals.

The closest the provincial Liberals came to ever winning SD&G was in 1977 when Williamsburg Township reeve Johnny Whitteker came within 2,500 votes of an upset victory. In that contest, Whitteker got 37.8 per cent of the popular vote, NDP Joe O'Neill got 13 per cent and PC Osie Villeneuve got 49.1 per cent. Since then, Tory support has been steadily increasing while Liberal and NDP support has been falling.

Little support in hometown

In 1981, Osie Villeneuve received 55.4 per cent of the vote or 12,017 votes, compared to Liberal Gerry Rosenquist's 36.2 per cent of the vote or 7,846 votes.

Like Dillabough, Rosenquist lives in Morrisburg but received little support from village residents. He won only one of the six polls within the village. NDPer O'Neill got 8.5 per cent of the vote or 1,836 votes.

In the 1983 byelection, which was called because of the death of 35-year veteran Osie Villeneuve, newcomer Noble Villeneuve increased PC support to 58.4 per cent of the vote or 12,197 votes.

Running for the Liberals again, Whitteker was unable to repeat his strong performance of 1977. He got 38.6 per cent of the vote, losing by more than 4,000 votes. Derstroff ran for the first time in 1983, and watched NDP support devastated to three per cent of the vote or 627 votes.

This year, the election results were in line with the 1981 general election results. Still, the Tories picked up about five per cent more support at the expense of the Liberals.

Local observers say Villeneuve did so well because he is bilingual, has kept a high profile in the constituency and emphasizes farm issues, all important factors in this bilingual, rural riding. Dillabough is not bilingual and admitted he didn't know much about farm issues.

All three candidates ran lacklustre campaigns. An all-candidates meeting attracted little attention, with less than 100 people attending.

A demonstration staged in front of Villeneuve's Morrisburg headquarters, in which local residents asked the province to provide a bathroom for a poor Dundela family, provided the most excitement of the campaign.

The quiet campaigns translated into apathy at the polls. Of 35,424 eligible voters, only 21,858 or 61.7 per cent voted. This was a slight increase from the 1983 byelection, when 20,886 or 60.7 per cent of 34,406 eligible voters turned out.

However, byelections usually generate little interest and the 1981 turn-out is a better indicator of last Thursday's showing. In the last general election, 21,699 or 65.7 per cent of 33,024 eligible people cast a vote.

UC Playhouse gala unveils second season

The second gala dinner of the Upper Canada Playhouse was held Sunday at Best Western Parkway Inn in Cornwall. Attended by over 160 people, it was a tremendous success, showing the enthusiastic interest which people are taking in the Playhouse's second season.

Doug Grenkie, president of Upper Canada Playhouse, welcomed the guests and, following an excellent dinner, turned the evening over to Mark Morton, artistic director of the playhouse.

Entertainment was provided by Allan Hume, an area folksinger, Mary-Jo Rosenquist on the piano and by Diane and Marcel Dion and Mark Morton, performing a variety of songs. The audience enjoyed the performances very much.

During the course of the evening, Morton officially announced the playhouse productions of this year. The season will begin with a hilarious comedy, 'Nurse Janes Goes to Hawaii', presented by Theatre 5 of Kingston. Next will be 'I'll Be Back Before Midnight', a suspense thriller performed by the Thousand Islands Playhouse from Gananoque. The final production of the summer will be the musical, 'I Do, I Do', mounted by Upper Canada Playhouse.

The board of directors of Upper Canada Playhouse has been delighted by the warm support shown by the people of this area, and welcomes new patrons for the upcoming season.

A patron membership of $50. ($32 of which is tax deductible) entitles the holder to attendance at all three plays, as often as he or she wishes, providing that on subsequent visit he brings a paying guest. The patron will also be invited to attend opening night receptions for each play, which include an opportunity to meet the actors.

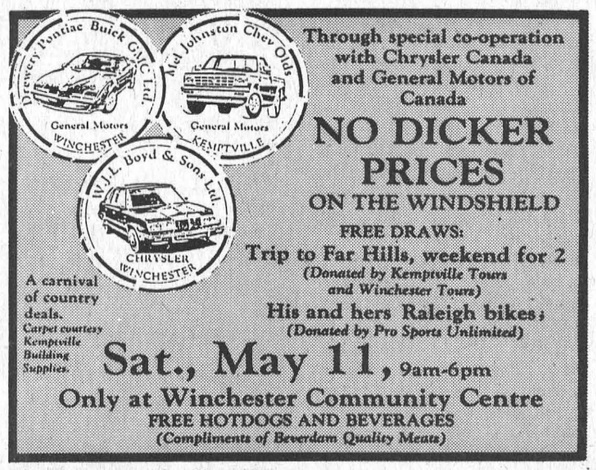
People interested in purchasing patron memberships may do so by sending a cheque or money order, made out to Upper Canada Playhouse, P.O. Box 820, Morrisburg, Ontario.

Foundation sets annual meeting

WINCHESTER — The Dundas County Chapter of the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario will hold its annual meeting May 15 at Winchester District Memorial Hospital.

This year's get-together is being touted as an information night, with the emphasis on showing the public what exactly it is the foundation does. A film depicting the group's accomplishments across the province will be shown and a recruiting drive for volunteers initiated to work on projects undertaken by the Dundas chapter.

The public is invited to attend the meeting, which takes place in the hospital's conference room beginning at 7:30 p.m.



NOTICE

Blue Cross "pay direct" non-group coverage available to all Ontario residents until June 15, 1985.

Blue Cross announces that it is making available to all Ontario residents during the period May 1 to June 15, 1985, a wide range of health benefits not included in the government sponsored Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

Between May 1 and June 15, 1985, any Ontario resident, regardless of age or previous medical history is invited to apply for Blue Cross coverage on a "pay direct" basis for the major portion of the cost of such benefits as

- prescription drugs
- private duty registered nursing
- use of semi-private and private room in hospital; and others.

Blue Cross is a private, non-government organization.

If extra health coverage is not available to you through your place of employment, consider this Blue Cross "pay direct" opening.

Detailed brochure/application forms are available at the "Infocentre" at most Ontario supermarkets, shopping malls, at regional offices of the provincial Ministry of Northern Affairs, or by writing

Township council overrides opposition to scout donation

WILLIAMSBURG — Township council will provide funding for the St. Lawrence District Council of Boy Scouts to begin developing two properties along the South Nation River.

Council moved at its regular meeting here Saturday to provide a token $250 donation, despite opposition from the Williamsburg cub and beaver pack.

The scouts have proposed two developments on land recently acquired from the South Nation River Conservation Authority. The first, a wilderness camp, would require only minor developments.

The second property, however, is to be developed as a standing scout camp, complete with headquarters building, washroom and shower facilities and several cabins. The building will also be used as training facilities for area scout leaders who must now travel to either Perth or Petawawa.

Rudi Derstroff, representing the district scout council, told council a building has already been donated by Nestle in Chesterville and funding is needed for a well and septic system.

All municipal councils, service clubs and major industries, as well as local beaver, cub and scout groups in Dundas and Grenville counties, have been approached in an effort to raise $10,000. They have also applied to Wintario for a $10,000 grant.

"With the $20,000 donation we could look at placing a block foundation with a basement underneath," said Derstroff.

He added the facility would also be available to church groups and organizations like the brownies and girl guides for a nominal fee.

Council agreed to the donation even though the Williamsburg cub and beaver pack is against the proposal.

"The local committee is unanimously opposed to the venture. We're not prepared to support it either financially or in principal. We have so many camps in the area already that are underutilized," said Rev. Tom Lowry, on behalf of the local group.

He mentioned specifically nearby Camp Nairn and Camp Kagama, on land provided them free of charge by St. Lawrence Parks Commission for camping purposes, as well as the KOA campground north of Cardinal.

"With all the parks commission land around here we don't need our own site...It's ridiculous to talk about putting dollars, time and energy into it. They have scouts, they want it for scouts, we don't have any scouts here," he said.

Council in making its decision, felt it was a worthwhile undertaking as Williamsburg might, in the future, have a boy scout troop that would like to make use of it.

Morrisburg's Friendship Circle honored area residents who are more than 90 years old last Friday night. Four people were honored with Mae Watt, 97, the only recipient unable to attend. Archie Murphy [left] accepted the award for Mrs. Watt. The other recipients were: [l. to r.] Charlie Crober, 90; Willa Johnston, 95; and Ethel McInnis, 90. —Racine photo

Secrets of longevity revealed

MORRISBURG — Asked to share his secret of longevity, long-time resident Charlie Crober smirked. "Well, there's an old saying that says the good die young," he subsequently deadpanned.

Crober, 90, was one of four local residents given a plaque by Morrisburg's Friendship Circle senior citizens' group last Friday night to honor them for reaching 90 years of age. The other recipients were: Ethel McInnis, 90; Willa Johnston, 95; and Mae Watt, 97.

were: Ethel McInnis, 90; Willa Johnston, 95; and Mae Watt, 97.

Mrs. McInnis agreed with the old saying that hard work makes for a long life. As well, she said music has helped her live a long, happy life and proved it by playing a piece on the piano as others sang along.

Mrs. Johnston maintained old age is not in years, but in health and state of mind. "I know many people, as they grow old, live in the past, but I don't," she said. "Too many people sit in their rocking chair just waiting to die, but I don't feel that way."

Mrs. Johnston said she's interested in what's happening now, mentioning the economic summit in West Germany and the world hockey championship in which the Canadian team earned the silver medal earlier Friday.

Mrs. Watt, now a resident of Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge, was unable to attend the presention so Archie Murphy accepted the plaque on her behalf. She was a member of Morrisburg's Friendship Circle for 14 years.

Library books get new home

MORRISBURG — After years of being shuffled around like wayward orphans, the 5,000-plus library books at Morrisburg Public School have finally found a home.

Dedicated to the honor of the late Hosea Droppo, principal at MPS from 1959 to 1969, the Hosea Droppo Library was officially opened in a brief ceremony last Tuesday before the entire school population and a host of school board and civic officials.

In his opening remarks, Dr. Gerry Rosenquist, Morrisburg trustee with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education and the person largely responsible for getting the library off the ground, said it was a double pleasure to open the facility named in honor of such a fine person.

"He (Droppo) upheld all the traditions and objectives a principal was supposed to do and involved himself in all aspects of the community, especially in the field of sports."

Turning to Marjorie Droppo, widow of the late principal, Rosenquist said "a little part" of Hosea would be left behind in the library.

"When we look through the books in the school library we hope Hosea will be around us in spirit."

Located in a portable classroom on the school grounds, the library is a much-needed addition here. Principal Al Bain admitted the past few years have been shaky ones as the beleaguered library attempted to find a permanent home.

At one time, he said, the library was located in the classroom now occupied by the French kindergarten class, then was forced to seek new quarters when the learning disability class was introduced and space was needed.

"We went almost a year with the books on shelves at the front of the school but that obviously didn't work. They were accessible but perhaps too accessible. It was unorganized and the books were all over the place. They really needed a home."

He said thanks to Rosenquist, who was able to secure the portable classroom, and librarian Marian Wells, who organized the classroom as a library, the facility was able to begin functioning as a library mid-way through last year.

Education director Rosaire Leger, in urging students to use the library instead of the video games and television screens which today occupy too much of their time, said it was fitting to dedicate a place that is really the centre of the school to an educator like Droppo.

Separate board rates increase $13.25

CORNWALL — Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Separate School supporters are facing a modest 4.34 per cent increase in their board's budget this year, despite increased costs in transportation, special education and instruction in the English panel.

The Separate School Board approved the $29.1 million budget last Tuesday, up $1.1 million over the 1984 budget.

An average separate school supporter, with a home assessed at $5,000, will pay $318, or an extra $13.25. Last year the average increase was $15.

Wages and benefits account for 85 per cent of the budget, almost $20.5 million.

The budget for French panel instruction is down slightly this year due to wages not paid to teachers during a recent strike, while the portion set aside for English instruction is up by more than $500,000 due to increased enrolment figures.

Enrolment figures for 1985 show the French panel lost 25 students, while the English panel gained 160.

Tuition fees to the county board of education for separate school children in schools for the trainable mentally retarded shot up to $675,000 from $245,036. This is the first year the separate board has had to buy the services directly from the county board.

Transportation costs are also up this year almost $300,000 due to increased operating expenses and the addition of seven routes.

Capital expenditures will fall to $80,000 from last year's $918,172. Costs last year included the installation of six portable classrooms at St. Andrew's West School.

This year Ecole Elda Rouleau in Alexandria, originally built as an "open concept" senior school will be turned back into conventional classrooms.

Foster W. McPherson

Foster W. McPherson, a native of Morrisburg, died recently at Winter Haven (Florida) Hospital. He moved to Florida in 1979 from Trenton, Michigan. He was employeed by Stillman-Mobil Oil Company, and was of the Methodist faith.

Survivors include his wife, Dorothy McPherson of Winter Haven; five daughters, Dorothy G. Paupst of Norristown, Pa., Midred E. Illum of Lincoln Park, Mich., Jacquelyn Wilson of Gross Pointe Farms, Mich., Janice J. Range of Trenton, and Joanne McPherson of New Jersey, a son, James O. McPherson of Vancouver, Wash., a sister, Mrs. Alice Krefeld of Flint, Mich., ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Donald Carson Hare

A former chief custodian at Seaway District High School, Donald Carson Hare died at his home, 315 Church Street, Iroquois, on Friday, April 26th. He was 72 years of age.

Born at Iroquois, March 22, 1913, he was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Hare. He was a member of Friendly Brothers Masonic Lodge No. 143 Iroquois, Riverside Lodge No. 145 I.O.O.F. Iroquois, Order of the Eastern Star, Moonlight Chapter No. 224 Iroquois.

He is survived by his wife, the former Violet Mae VanAllen, a son Alan of Peterborough, and a sister Vera (Mrs. Lorne Strader) of Brinston.

Funeral service was held at Iroquois United Church on Tuesday, April 30th at 11:00 a.m., with Rev. Herb Klaehn officiating. Interment followed in the United Cemetery at Iroquois Point.

Pallbearers were: Ambert Brown, Archie Bray, Jack Valcour, Aden Marcellus, Ross Whyte, Frank Bates.

Obituary

Franklin J. Smith

A well known resident of 12B Victoria Park, Morrisburg for many years, and retired worker from Ontario's Ministry of Transportation and Communications, Franklin Joseph Smith died suddenly on Thursday, May 2nd. He was 71 years of age, and a former resident of Mariatown.

Born October 9th, 1913 at Mariatown, he was a son of the late Alexander Smith and his wife Laura Hutt. He attended the Mariatown Public School, and Morrisburg Collegiate Institute, and on January 18th, 1944, was married at Morrisburg to Gladys H. Summers, who survives. He was a member of Morrisburg United Church and of the I.O.O.F.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons: Wayne of Wasaga Beach, Ont. and Timothy at home; one daughter Barbara (Mrs. Robert Foster) of Burlington, Ontario; four grandchildren, Andrea and Derek Smith, and Matthew and Laura Foster.

Other survivors are two brothers, and one sister, Paul and Arnold Smith and Mrs. Vera Ney, all residing in Iroquois. He was predeceased by four brothers: Harold, Gilbert, Ted and Gordon.

Friends were received at the Fairbairn Funeral Home, Morrisburg, where the funeral service was held on Saturday, May 4th at 2 p.m. with his minister, Rev. William Stewart, officiating. Interment followed at Fairview Cemetery.

The long gone but obviously not forgotten art of hoola-hooping was just one of the many games offered to the children at Morrisburg Public School's fund-fest Saturday. In the above photo 13-year-old Laurie Helmer gets into the swing of things. The fund-fest, which attracted hundreds of participants was pegged an unqualified success bringing in slightly over $1,500 — much of which is to be put toward the purchase of athletic supplies. —Mantell photo

Executives meet

Hockey amalgamation possible

MORRISBURG — The executive of the Morrisburg and District Minor hockey association realizes that there will be a lot of work to be done but the possibility of an amalgamation with the Iroquois-Cardinal Association by this fall is certainly within reach.

The two groups were to have met last night (Tuesday) to take the first steps toward the amalgamation.

Morrisburg President Keith Robinson, in explaining the situation to his executive last week, told them not to kid themselves, "There will be all kinds of problems, the least of which will be a new name and colors."

"It's my personal opinion that we try to get away from the names of the three communities altogether," he said. "I think they want to go for a total amalgamation and we'll try to combine as much as possible."

Morrisburg director of scheduling Billie Donaldson said she couldn't see much trouble with scheduling ice times in two arenas. She did suggest however that if numbers allow it, it would be better to try and keep the novice and squirt teams separate and not force parents from Morrisburg to have their players in Cardinal for 5 p.m. games or vice versa.

Robinson explained that the Iroq-Card association is having problems with numbers. They had about 10 peanut players last year and only 14 players at the Atom level. Two peewee, two bantam and two midget teams were also iced. According to Robinson a majority of their midgets have graduated due to overage.

Robinson said that with the amalgamation it could be possible to see three teams — level one, two and three — from Atom through Midget.

"If we want our players to have the opportunity to play A hockey then we should amalgamate," said Robinson. "If not we'll have to stay with B and C teams."

"Having teams at all levels would be an advantage to all of our players," said Robinson. "Not only would it get the A players up where they belong but in getting them off the B teams it would also benefit our B calibre players."

"What we are really looking at here is the chance to give our kids a better opportunity...a chance to improve," said Robinson.

If the two associations can come to an agreement then the matter will have to be okayed by the Ottawa District Minor Hockey Association, District One and the Upper Canada Minor Hockey League. Robinson said though that he understands Ottawa wants to see the amalgamation.

One of the biggest considerations will be the financial aspect of the amalgamation. How much each association will put into the amalgamation and the question of fundraising.

"We'll just have to go to them, discuss our ideas, hear theirs and meet half way," said Robinson. "They've already amalgamated once so they'll know all of the problems."

The cost element of the amalgamation could be the biggest road block. According to figures released by outgoing Morrisburg treasurer Kathy Johnston it cost $154 per player in the Morrisburg association this year. Figures were not available on the cost per child in the Iroq-Card program.

In a recent amalgamation meeting between Winchester and Chesterville associations, Winchester turned down the proposal because it would have raised the average cost of getting their players on the ice from $169 to about $230.

Robinson pointed out that Morrisburg and Iroq-Card were paying the same ice rental fees at their respective arenas indicating that costs involved, after the amalgamation may not change drastically.

"If we can come to an agreement with Iroquois-Cardinal then we'll come back and call an amalgamation meeting with our parents," said Robinson.

Few wrinkles

Minor ball program right on schedule

MORRISBURG — The minor ball program is right on schedule in the village here but there are still some rather large wrinkles to be ironed out.

The first involves the lack of coaches. To date 138 children have registered for minor ball and the Morrisburg Minor Ball league has divided them into nine teams. Coaches have been arranged for seven.

The lack of coaching is at the squirt level which includes players from seven to nine years. The 41 players have been divided into three teams but so far only Jim Saunders has volunteered his coaching services leaving two vacancies.

Minor ball president Peter McCooeye says he has spoken to at least 18 parents in the group and no one would volunteer.

"They all say they'll help out but no one wants to take charge," says McCooeye. "It's really frustrating considering the good registration at this age."

The second wrinkle concerns the lack of umpires. The minor ball association has decided to pay a home plate umpire $7 per game and seek out high school students who have been unable to find employment for the summer.

"I think we have to pay to solve our problems," said McCooeye.

Wrinkle number three is the lack of a league for bantam girls softball team which includes players 13 to 15 years. Morrisburg was the only community, attending an Osnabruck league meeting, to have a bantam team. An effort was made to enter the girls in a league in Augusta Township but the bid was refused by the Township due to distance.

"We can't manufacture a league for them," said McCooeye. "There's no league to the north or east and the west league doesn't want us because of the travelling."

Judy Hoenselaar and Fran Lapierre, who have volunteered to coach, have the option of setting up an exhibition schedule for the girls or folding the team. They are looking into the possibility and are hoping to be able to put something together.

Rick Darling and Joe Marshall have volunteered their time to coach T-ball. Twenty-six players have registered for T-Ball and it was decided to go with one team.

There are to be three teams at each of the squirt and peewee levels-squirt from seven to nine years and peewee from 10-12. Jim Saunders will coach one squirt team and the peewee teams will be divided among Jim Ball and Leonard Beckstead and Bill Devaul, Brenda Scott and Vince Tysick. A total of 41 players registered for squirt baseball and 40 for peewee.

Jim Scott and Ray Gibeault will handle the bantam boys team consisting of 19 players.

League schedules are now being drawn up and league play is expected to begin before the end of the month.

Race season at Gartree opens despite weather

LUNENBURG — Sunday was a day of vindiction for Motocross promotor John Milnes because, in weather that would have caused most sports to be cancelled, Gartree Park was the scene of an event with 123 competitors from Sarnia to Baie Comeau.

Motocross fans, watching the fun from their cars, were treated to rare displays of skill and daring as the competitors forced their motorcycles through mud which covered the bottom half of the machines.

Kevin Moore, last year's Ontario champion at the 125cc and 250cc levels, had travelled from Sarnia to demonstrate that he has no fear of taking on the Experts in the top league. In the 250cc Expert Class he powered his machine into first place from the starting line and then, like a ballet dancer on a wild machine, often seeming to glide over the top of the mud and water, he forged further ahead of the crowd to a beautiful win.

Scott Best, of Cornwall, showed his promise of last year was no 'flash-in-the-pan' by taking a third place spot in the Schoolboy Class with a courageous display of racing. Oftentimes Scott was forced to jump off his tiny 80cc racer to help it through the deepest mud sections.

John Rogers of Lachute won the Schoolboy B class sponsored by Rosemount Tire, Cornwall and Christian Ver der Ber of Candiac was first across the finish line in the Schoolboy A class sponsored by Warner Insurance, Cornwall.

The junior 125 cc class sponsored by Shepherd Motors Alexandria went to Claude Bergeron of Victoriaville and Hawksbury's Doug Kego claimed the Junior 250cc class sponsored by Ottawa Goodtime Centre.

Chris Shipclark of Stittsville topped the Cornwall Gravel-Grant Ready Mix senior 125 cc class and Carl Vaillancourt of Dummondville won the senior 250 cc class sponsored by Hurst Yamaha, Ottawa.

Pierre Couture of Magoc rode his way to a first in the Expert 125cc class sponsored by Benson Spring Service, Cornwall and the final win in the Expert 250cc class sponsored by Ryder Truck International went to Kevin Moore of Sarnia.

Registration slow for Morrisburg Tennis Club

MORRISBURG — Morrisburg Tennis Club secretary-treasurer John Corbett isn't being rushed off his feet taking registrations but says most of the problem lies with the weather.

"We have 28 members now and considering the weather that is not bad," said Corbett.

Registration fees for 1985 have been set at $15 for junior, $25 for seniors, $45 for husband and wife and $50 for a family up to 12 children. Corbett says he hasn't run into the 12 children figure yet.

For anyone who doesn't wish to become a member of the club day passes can be purchased at Becker's at $1 per person. A $5 deposit is also required for the key. Corbett is taking registration at his home.

Saturday's Ingleside-Osnabruck Rotary Club bike-a-thon was better than organizers had anticipated. Despite cool temperatures and strong winds the Rotary club grossed $1900 half of which is to be donated to the Rotary Club of Ottawa Rotel project. The remainder is to be put toward local projects as needed. A total of 103 riders participated in the bike-a-thon held in the Long Sault Parkway. —Mantell photo

Car rally. Two words that suggest a good time, comradeship . . . lots of fun and laughs. Suggestions that couldn't be farther from the truth.

Saturday we participated in the Odonto Corporation Car Rally sponsored by the plant's recreation association. As guests of another couple, we started out on good terms — which as the day wore on turned from good to bad to worse. Imagine four people at each others throats for more than six hours of a four-hour car rally.

We eagerly started out in the industrial park in Morrisburg's east end and unwittingly made our first mistake before we even got going.

As a result, instead of ending up at the Morrisburg beach where we were to answer our first question, we were parked in the field by the Morrisburg water tower. The question: How many steps are there? While everyone else was counting the steps on the lifeguard chairs at the beach, we had binoculars in hand counting the number of steps on the water tower. Naturally everyone came up with a different answer before we all agreed on 114. The correct answer was four.

The answer to question two should have been the Mac's Milk cat but, since we started out wrong, we were nowhere near the location of the corner convenience store. The truth of the matter is that we were on old number two highway in front of Catherine Scott's home. Of course, the cat in Catherine. The Kool Cat's name just had to be Catherine Scott.

By this time, you would think it would have dawned on us that there were no other rally cars in sight. Wrong! We naively believed that they were all on the wrong track and we were the only ones to have figured it out. Wrong again!

While everyone else was answering question three (Spinning Wheel Restaurant) we were looking at the air vent on Hartley Hodgson's house in Mariatown, spinning in the wind.

Now comes the clincher. For question four we ended up in front of a house just west of Hodgson's where a tree had recently been planted and the bottom was wrapped in a burlap bag. The question: What's in the bag at the left? Unfortunately, by this time we should have been on Laurier Drive in Morrisburg and the golf course should have been on our left.

Somehow we did manage to get back on track for the last three questions on rally sheet one and even made it to our first check point.

By now we were experienced. Having made it to the end of the first part of the rally and confident that all our answers were correct, we headed out for part two. And that's where we really took off completing the section in record time and ended up near the Church Road. This time our answers were correct.

We even got off to a good start on sheet three and made it to Highway 31 just north of the overpass. With the question of what bugs you on this road and our answer fleas (McHaffie's Flea Market) we were once again all on the best of terms.

But from then on it was chaos. Missing our next turn and continuing on anyway we got so far off course that we still haven't figured out where we should have been. Question 45 was what kind of TV should you buy and we knew by the question where we had to go but we couldn't figure out how to get there.

We did, however, travel every road running west off Highway 31 between Morrisburg and Williamsburg and we eventually ended up at the third and final checkpoint McHaffie's hall. This was only because we had noticed other rally cars at McHaffie's on one of at least five trips past the place.

But to every story there should be a happy ending and we certainly weren't disappointed. Out of close to 20 cars in the rally, we won third place. We don't know how and we didn't ask why. All we can do is sympathize with the passengers in the car that at one time was travelling on roads north of Cardinal and wonder what happened to everyone else.

Sunday's heavy rainfall which kept most of us in the house had its affects which are clearly seen in the above photo. Morrisburg Golf Club employees are busy trying to catch up with the mowing. —McNairn photo

MORRISBURG GOLF

The 19th hole

MORRISBURG — The official opening of the Morrisburg Golf Club is now just two weeks off and staff here are busy preparing for the summer schedule.

Greenskeeper Harry Nicolaassen has been on the course for several weeks and he and Andy Benes have been busy getting the field into shape.

The clubhouse staff consisting of Roseann VanMoorsel and Judy Markell began work Saturday and memberships are now being accepted at the snack bar. Supplies have been ordered and the clubhouse should be in full operation by the end of the week.

The official opening of the Morrisburg Golf Club is set for Monday, May 20th. Draws are scheduled for 11:30 a.m. and a pot-luck supper will follow play at 5:30 p.m. The annual-general spring meeting will follow. Members should plan to attend the meeting whether or not they take in the tournament earlier in the day.

The ladies' club will kick off its season a week earlier, Tuesday, May 14th. Tee-off is at 5:30 p.m. and after a few holes of golf the ladies will sit down to a pot-luck supper at 7:00. The annual spring meeting will follow.

Through the work of ladies' club president Hannah McAuley club shirts are now on sale as are "Putter in the Kitchen" cookbooks. Both are available at the snack bar or from Bonnie McNairn.

Monogrammed Morrisburg Golf Club towels and visors are also available at the snack bar, proceeds from these going to the junior golf program. Carie Brodie, junior program co-ordinator, has lined up a good program which is expected to begin shortly after school finishes for the year. The juniors will have priority on the course on Monday afternoons and along with instruction it's hoped films will be available.

The club booklets have gone to the printers and our thanks goes to the advertisers who made them possible. Of special interest are our new score cards complete with a picture of our clubhouse. Here too our advertisers are to be thanked.

We would like to send our best wishes to members Les and Kathy Hodgins and their family who are leaving us next week to take up residence in Ottawa. Both have been very active members in our club and dedicated workers.

The Hodgins' move left us without a club treasurer, the position held by Les. However club president Nora Markell reports that past-president Nick Lee has agreed to fill the spot. We are without a club captain and there are still vacancies on the golf committee.

Anyone interested in either of the above can contact a member of the executive.

Williamsburg golf

. . . Among The Cedars . . .

BOUCKS HILL — Cedar Glen club champion Rick Barkley began the 1985 golfing season in the same fashion he ended 1984 — in the winner's circle.

Barkley fired a 71 here on a windy Saturday last weekend to capture the Cedar Glen Golf Club's Opening Tournament title. The win came as no surprise.

Last year Barkley won practically all the hardware up for grabs at the Bouck's Hill layout, including the club championship, the most prestigious award. Later this month he will take that crown with him to Kitchener to represent Cedar Glen at the Ontario Golf Association's Tournament of Champions.

Usual rival Gary McMillan won low net in 'A' flight with a net score of 69.

Don McMillan stroked a 77 to top the field in 'B' while Pete Brown and Brian Hill topped 'C' and 'D' divisions with scores of 89 and 103 respectively. Net winners included Rick Morrow (B) Mac Feely (C) and Ron Brown (D).

Eunice Munroe returned to a familiar spot in the ladies section, carding a 46 over nine holes for a five-stroke win over Janet Hillis. Edyth Cameron and Pat Reaney were net trophy winners.

In this junior section, Mike Sargeant, reigning club champion, coasted to a twelve-shot win over brother Jeff, David and Rob Casselman turned in the lowest net scores.

Prescott Dixie Lees win Spartan soccer tourney

MORRISBURG — Robert Carr counted once for the Prescott Dixie Lees enroute to the A championship of the Seaway Spartans indoor soccer tournament played at the arena here on the weekend.

The Dixie Lees posted the 1-0 victory against the Hellenic Stars after downing Cornwall City 2-1 in the semi-final.

The Spartan tournament, the last of the indoor schedule for the local soccer league, attracted 14 entries. They were divided into four divisions.

Cornwall City put together a perfect three-win record in its four team division, starting off with a 3-0 win over Greece United. A 3-0 shutout against the Spartans and a 4-2 victory over Prescott Everton advanced them to the semi-final.

Brockville United topped division B with a pair of wins and one tie. After downing the Prescott Juniors 6-1 they won over Charlan 3-1 and settled for a 1-1 tie against Kingston Beira Mar.

Division C went to the Hellenic Stars with wins over Osnabruck 3-0, Osnabruck Cosmos 4-0 and the Prescott Dixie Lees 3-1 and the Dixie Lees took Division D with wins over St. Andrews 7-0 and Charlan United Two 4-1.

The semi-final matchups resulted with a 2-0 Prescott Everton win over Charlan United Two, a Prescott Dixie Lee 2-1 win over Cornwall City, a 2-1 Ogdensburg Pepsi win over Kingston Beira Mar and a 3-0 Hellenic Stars win over Brockville United.

Ogdensburg Pepsi took the B championship with a 2-0 win over Prescott Everton and the Dixie Lees won over the Hellenics 1-0.

Most valuable player awards went to Robert Carr of the Prescott Dixie Lees, Kelly Geary of Ogdensburg, Steve Watt of Hellenic and Paul Kashube of Prescott.

The Seaway Spartans earned one point in the two-day affair. They opened with a scoreless tie against Prescott Everton and then lost to Cornwall City 3-0 and Greece United 4-2.

Winners of the draws sponsored by the Spartans were Phillip Thompson of Iroquois, Violet Baker of Morrisburg and Dan McGann of Williamsburg.

The local outdoor soccer season begins May 18th with a two-day tournament and league games are scheduled about a week later.

Jay Merkley, spokesman for the Spartan club, says his association will again this season be sporting three teams — two men's and one ladies'.

"Hopefully we'll be playing out of Morrisburg but we don't know what is happening with the soccer field," said Merkley. "If there is a chance they may move the field to the waterfront midway through the season we could be forced to go to Iroquois to play."

Tryouts for the two men's clubs are scheduled for Wednesday, May 8th at the Morrisburg soccer field.

Guys and Dolls aiming for dart league sweep

MORRISBURG — The Guys and Dolls seem to be eager to make it a clean sweep in Legion dart play this season and after one night of playoffs it appears that they are well on their way.

Still basking in the glory of their first place regular season finish last week the Guys and Dolls continued the charge Tuesday night winning six of a possible seven games in the first round of the playoffs.

In the round robin affair their only loss was against the Lucky Sevens when Dorothy McBain hit for the Sevens spoiling the Guys and Dolls chances of a perfect night.

Terry Laurin struck for three wins in a row for the Guys and Dolls and he was backed by Rick Zabloski with a pair and Alice Tinker with a single.

The Three Plus Ones claimed five wins to move into the second place playoff spot. Edith Baker and Sandra Julien each struck for a pair of wins and Sarah Merkley added a single.

Right on the heels of the Three Plus Ones are the Hopefuls with four wins. Dick Kirchin was the top shooter for the Hopefuls with a three-out performance and Rick Vaughan added a single.

The Nightriders, the A-Team and the Swatters created a traffic jam and all are stalled in fourth place with three wins. Pat Filiou, Irene Chapman and Hartley Graham all had single wins for the Nightriders and Elsie Guindon led the A-Team effort with two outs backed by Don Whelan's single. Alec Whittaker struck twice for the Swatters and Judy Laurin found the spot once.

Bringing up the rear are the Valiants and the Lucky Sevens with two wins each. Elva Baker accounted for both Valiant wins and Dorothy McBain and Garnet Bilmer had one each for the Sevens.

High scores of the night went to Dick Kirchin 115-110 and Rick Vaughan 100.

Brushbacks win big

IROQUOIS — The Odonto Brushbacks got off to a good start in the newly formed Iroquois Town Fastball league here Monday night when they posted a lop-sided 16-0 victory over the Riverside Raiders.

Fred Harper was on the mound for the win and Rob Reynolds and John Kolff shared the catching duties. Fred Osler handled the Raiders' loss.

The Brushbacks started off with four unanswered runs in the bottom of the first and added another six runs in innings two and three. They fininshed it with a six-run fifth inning.

Doug Byers led the offensive effort with a fifth inning home-run and a two RBI double in the first. Rob Reynolds batted in a pair of runs and Mike Felker and Fred Harper produced RBI singles. Larry Cooper, Tim Smith and J. Roach all had singles.

The Odonto Brushbacks are one of four teams that made the move from the Riverside Town Ball League to Iroquois. They were joined by the Morrisburg Merchants, South Williamsburg and Riverside Raiders. The Iroquois Midgets and the Iroquois Warriors brought the league to six teams.

Each team will play a 20 game regular season schedule wrapping up in mid-July.

The Brushbacks see their next action Wednesday, May 8th when they meet the Morrisburg Merchants at 9:00 p.m. and Tuesday, May 14th they tackle South Williamsburg at 8 p.m.

The Raiders play South Williamsburg Monday, May 13th at 9:00 p.m.

Merchants score win in Iroquois opener

IROQUOIS — The Morrisburg Merchants are crediting a strong start for their first entry in the win column of the Iroquois Town Fastball League following a game here against South Williamsburg Monday night.

The Merchants jumped to a 4-0 lead in the bottom of the first and then hung on as South Williamsburg battled back to narrow the advantage to 4-3.

Tom Hodgson, Wayne Domanko, Kevin Casselman and Lloyd Wells all scored for the Merchants in the first and it turned out to be the only major scoring effort put together by either team.

Sean Baker crossed home plate for Williamsburg in the second and Bill Duvall and run number two in the fifth. They made their final bid in the top of the seventh. Steve Burd, Bill Duvall, Gary Hutt and Sean Baker all reached base but only Burd managed to cross homeplate narrowing the Merchants lead to 4-3. Neil Straders' third-out strikeout left three runners stranded on base and the Merchants claimed the victory 4-3.

Kevin Casselman was the winning Merchant pitcher and he was relieved by Jim Whelan for the last three innings. Neil Strader handled the loss for South Williamsburg.

The Merchants next game is Wednesday, May 8th at 9 p.m. when they take on the Odonto Brushbacks and Monday, May 13th they are scheduled to meet the Iroquois Midgets at 7:30 p.m. South Williamsburg plays the Riverside Raiders Monday, May 13th at 9:00 p.m.

Williamsburg Dodgers call it quits for a year

WILLIAMSBURG — Last year it was the senior Pioneers and this spring the Williamsburg Dodgers followed suit....leaving fastball, beyond the minor level, dead in the village here.

According to Jeff Casselman, spokesman for the now defunct intermediate team, there were several reasons for the decision but basically it boiled down to lack of commitment from the players.

Several are planning to get married this summer and the Grenville-Dundas league decided to join the South Rideau league which would have meant more travelling. Pitchers Jim Whelan and Casselman were not sure if they would be in the area due to work commitments.

"Right now it's a tentative thing," said Casselman. "Everyone is saying it's just for a season but I'm not holding a lot of hope for next year."

Casselman, in referring to the future, says there are not many young players feeding into intermediate ball and pitching is becoming a big problem.

"Softball is really dead," he said. "There are only three teams playing in the senior softball league this year."

Casselman feels that town league ball is partly to blame for the demise of intermediate and even senior fastball.

"Townleague is what intermediate was a few years ago," he said. "It's much more economical because it has removed the travelling and this is where the players are going. Some of our players are playing in the Iroquois town league this year."

The intermediate schedule keeps a player tied up for most of the summer. A couple of league games a week and tournaments every weekend can saturate a player.

"You're on the road a lot and if you play for a competitive team you could see as many as five games of ball in a tournament on one weekend," said Casselman. "It requires a lot of time and as the players get older it just gets harder to commit themselves."

CORRECTION

A story in last week's issue of The Leader concerning the May 4th Ingleside-Osnabruck Rotary Club bike-a-thon implied that the Rotel Project was established by the local group when in fact it is a three year $3,000,000 project of the Rotary Club of Ottawa.

The Rotary Club of Ingleside is donating half of its proceeds from this year's programs to the Rotel project and the remainder is to be used for local community projects.

The Leader apologizes for any inconvenience this may have caused.

Horticultural society provides a little-known public service

The villages of Iroquois and Morrisburg have flower beds announcing their names. Flower boxes at Morrisburg's library and tourist bureau add a touch of color and individuality. And Williamsburg's new senior citizens' apartment building will soon be beautifully landscaped.

What these isolated examples of local horticulture have in common is the Morrisburg and District Horticultural Society. The association has undertaken community projects, at its expense, for the past several years to help beautify this area.

"It does make a difference for a tourist driving through town if there's trees or flowers," says society secretary Muriel Robertson. "And I think it is the horticultural society that is responsible for a lot of the work around here."

In fact the local club, which boasts a membership of more than 100, has enough talented members that it has expertise in various fields of gardening. For example, past president of the club Carson Elliott recently spoke on starting and transplanting seeds.

"We have a good group of knowledgeable people," said Robertson. "Some of them are so expert they're almost professionals."

The club includes members from Morrisburg, Williamsburg, Iroquois, Riverside Heights and Ingleside. Even a few people from Chesterville have started attending meetings because there is no cl › in that village.

"We're spreading out further all the time," said Robertson. "Someone invites someone to a meeting and they come and the first thing you know they're hooked."

New members don't need any particular skill or aptitude, just an interest in gardening. Members and visitors chat about different problems and there's a guest speaker at every meeting to discuss some aspect of horticulture.

And those who have black thumbs, take heart. Not all members have the touch with all varieties of plants.

"I can't get along with African Violets at all," admitted Robertson. "I can get a Violet that's perfect and in a month or so it's dead."

Robertson started gardening while living on a farm and teaching. Since retiring and moving to Iroquois, her fascination with her hobby has grown so that she now estimates she spends about half her time gardening.

"When I was teaching, I would come home exhausted and I'd go out and work in the garden for half an hour and I'd be rested," she said.

Besides acting as a social and recreation club, the local society has set out an objective for itself: to encourage interest and improvement in horticulture.

To fulfill this goal, it holds meetings for instruction and discussion of horticulture; improves private and public grounds by planting trees and flowers and shrubs, holds flowers, vegetable, fruit and plant shows; distributes seeds, bulbs and plants; and promotes the protection of the environment with various projects such as planting pine trees last year to commemorate Ontario's bicentennial.

It also tries to interest young people by meetings, trips and competitions, but Robertson admits attracting youth is one of the club's shortcomings.

"We don't have a youth group because we don't have anybody who will lead it," she said. "We just can't seem to stir up interest."

Nevertheless, the club does offer special youth sections in its various shows. As well, it has a home and business beautification competition each year in hopes of appealing to a wider audience.

Besides special flower shows such as the spring show which will be held May 16, the club operates a monthly competition. In March, house plants and dried displays were required while this month features violets.

Winners receive small cash prizes. There's a door prize each meeting, a $10 gift certificate from Upper Canada Nursery.

The extent of the club's popularity can be seen in a former nickname of Morrisburg, "Lilac Village". It seems the horticultural society used to give lilacs as a door prize and bushes were sprouting up all over the village.

The club operates under the auspices of the Ontario Horticultural Society and that umbrella group provides $1,000 funding, because the area club has more than 100 members. Each member also pays a $3 fee.

The 79-year-old club is beginning to compete against other clubs. Last year, it won a trophy for most improved club in Eastern Ontario. This year, it will send slides showing its members' handiwork to a provincial competition for the first time.

But competition is not the most important aspect of the horticultural society. Bus tours such as a three-day trip to the Niagara-Hamilton area slated for June and "fun" nights in which members perform skits are more important.

And its most important function is to give members a chance to share their interest in horticulture. Robertson, for example, has belonged to the club for more than a decade and has gradually expanded her interest in gardening.

She proudly shows off her tulips and daffodils and anticipates the blossoming of perennials such as roses. She also anticipates the growth of an Arctic peach tree, a recent purchase.

She's started a herb garden and plans to season her salads with home-grown garlic, chervil, tarragon and garlic chives. There are bright yellow forsythia growing in her front yard and, in the back yard, there are, of course, lilacs.

Muriel Robertson, secretary of the Morrisburg and District Horticultural Society, tends to some of her flower beds. She's been a member of the horticultural society for more than 10 years and enjoys the chance to share her love of gardening with like-minded people. The group usually meets the third Tuesday of the month and welcomes all visitors. —Racine photo

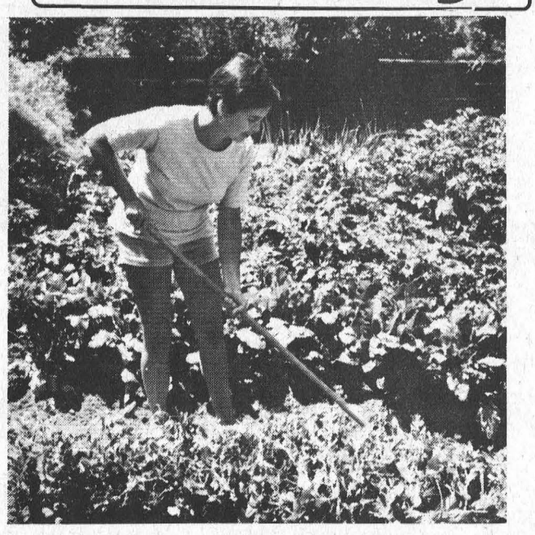
Gardening



GROUND WORK — Many seemingly unrelated activities have an ultimate bearing on the success or failure of your insect and disease control program. One of the first steps is preparing and fertilizing garden soil to give plants optimum growing conditions. Cold, wet or unprepared soil will not allow plants to grow successfully; they will be left weak and susceptible to disease and insect attacks. Choosing disease-resistant varieties, spacing rows far enough apart to allow you to hoe and weed effectively and watering regularly every seven to 10 days will lead to healthier plants. Lawn and garden tips for 1985

Winning the war against garden pests

Controlling insects and diseases in your vegetable garden is not a simple matter.

You must have an understanding of the habits and behavior of insects and know about the environmental influences on diseases and a score of other details, says Plant Pathologist Craig Hunter with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's plant industry branch pest control section, Simcoe Research Station Simcoe, Ont.

"It's impossible to know and remember all these different things so your best solution is to keep a good source of reference handy," he said.

An up-to-date copy of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food Publication 64, "Insect and Disease Control in the Home Garden", can help.

It is available free of charge from your local agricultural office or from the Consumer Information Centre, 801 Bay Street, Toronto, Ont., M7A 2B2.

With this manual in hand, you'll find out about timing, materials and methods of application to help control garden pests.

"But there are many steps along the path to successful gardening. Many seemingly unrelated activities have an ultimate bearing on the success or failure of your control program," he said.

First, the garden soil should be well-prepared and properly fertilized to give plants optimum growing conditions.

Cold, wet or unprepared soil will not allow plants to grow successfully; they will be left weak and susceptible to disease and insect attacks.

"Remember, a healthy plant can resist these attacks much better than a weak one," he said.

It's also important to choose varieties which are resistant to various diseases.

Avoid plant seeds collected from last year's crop because these could be infected with disease.

Before planting seeds, protect them from damping-off fungi in the soil by placing seeds in a jar with a pinch of captan.

Shake well to give seeds a good protective coating.

The soil you plant the seeds in could be infested with wireworms, cutworms or white grubs — and be particularly cautious if your site was grassy last year.

Consult Publication 64 for suggested chemicals to apply before you plant.

Tin or tarpaper cylinders, placed around the plant and partly sunken in the soil, can protect crops such as tomatoes or cabbage against cutworms.

Tarpaper collars, 10 centimetres to 12 centimetres (four inches to five inches) in diameter, will help prevent root maggot injury to cabbage and broccoli.

Collars must lie flat on the soil and fit snugly to the stem of the plant.

Other such non-chemical methods are listed in Publication 64.

Planting distance varies for each crop grown. Bear in mind that wider spacing is preferable since it allows humid air, around and under the crop canopy, to escape.

Dense plantings allow humidity to build up, providing ideal conditions for many diseases to develop.

Rows should also be spaced widely enough to allow you to hoe and weed effectively.

Weeds often attract insect pests which damage adjacent vegetables. Weeds also consume huge amounts of water, thus robbing your crops.

Plants need regular watering or certain physiological problems, such as blossom end rot of tomato, may occur.

Heavy soakings, once every seven to 10 days is preferable to daily, light watering. Light watering promotes only surface rooting and is quickly lost to evaporation. Less frequent, but heavy soakings promote deep roots and lead to healthier plants in the long run, he said.

During the spring and summer months, insects, such as caterpillars, aphids and beetles, will attack various plants in the garden.

Chemical controls are listed for each crop in Publication 64.

The same thing holds true for diseases, such as leaf spots, mildews, and blights.

It is very important to read the label of pesticide containers. Only spray if the crop is listed on the label. Follow the rates exactly.

"Pesticides are designed to provide the desired control. You can't kill an insect twice, with twice the rate of material. You may also be applying more than is safe to provide harmless residues at harvest. So play it safe with pesticides and obey the label rates," Hunter said.

Many problems can be solved without using pesticides.

Close observation on a frequent, regular basis, allows you to prevent problems.

Pick off and kill beetles, such as the Colorado Potato Beetle.

Pull out wilted and dead plants and dispose of them with your garbage.

Be careful not to touch other plants until you have washed your hands because this will help prevent further spread of disease.

Avoid walking through wet plants; bacterial diseases spread very easily on boots and pant legs, as well as on hoes and cultivators.

"If you are aware of problems and stave them off in advance, you have a better chance of success, than if you wait for a full-fledged outbreak," he said.

The harvest does not end your pest control vigil.

Most vegetables are tender and must not be squeezed or bruised in handling.

Various rots, which develop in storage, result from that last day in the field — so take time and care to wash and dry your produce carefully.

Handle produce gently before you store it and keep it in an appropriate storage location, depending on the crop.

When everything is stored, do not neglect your final chores. Work in, or remove crop debris.

Allow debris to compost or rot in the soil.

Preparation next spring will be easier if you work the soil after harvest.

Weed out problems

In established lawns, most weeds can be controlled by following good lawn care practices such as fertilizing, topdressing, mowing, watering, aerifying and re-seeding sparse areas.

That's because a dense, healthy turf competes so strongly for water, light and nutrients that weed seedlings can't survive.

But if your lawn is not yet well established, a little advance planning can help you keep most lawn weeds under control, says Pest Management Specialist Kevin Ker of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's plant industry branch, Vineland Station, Ont.

Lawn weeds can be divided into two major groups: the broad-leaved weeds such as dandelions, plantain, chickweed and clover; and the grassy weeds like crabgrass, quackgrass and creeping bent grass.

For broad-leaved weeds, the most commonly used herbicide for lawns is 2,4-D.

It works well on dandelions and plantain but less effectively on chickweed and ground ivy.

The best general weed killer for turf is a three-way mixture of 2,4-D, mecoprop and dicamba.

For best results, follow directions on the label and be aware of other lawn plants when treating; some susceptible woody plants may absorb the herbicides.

Reduce the potential of spray drift and damage to susceptible plants nearby by applying pesticides with a low-pressure sprayer.

For further information see Publication 448 on "Lawns" and Publication 529 "Weed Control in Lawns and Gardens" available from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Consumer Information Centre, 801 Bay Street, Toronto, Ontario, M7A 2B2 or from your local agricultural office.

What's bugging your lawn this spring?

Bugs could be at the root of your lawn's problems, says Pest Management Specialist Kevin Ker of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture Food's plant industry branch, Vineland Station, Ont.

"Insects and diseases can rapidly transform an attractive lawn into an eyesore, producing large areas of dead and dying grass. Worst of all, insects can be difficult to detect in a lawn," he said.

The most common insects are the grubs of June beetles and European chafers, as well as the moth or larvae of the sod webworm and the hairy chinch bug.

Grubs are root feeders that cause leaves and stems of grasses to first wilt, then turn yellow and die in patches.

Lawn damage such as numerous holes caused by skunks and other other rodents is often an indication of grub presence.

June beetles and European chafers can appear from early May through late June.

Best control is achieved by applying an insecticide after heavy adult flights are observed. Treatments can be applied after yellowing and wilting of the turf has occurred.

Damage by the sod webworm first appears as scattered irregular patches of brown turf.

The dead grass pulls away easily in clumps, revealing masses of silk with soil particles and excrement from the caterpillar embedded in the silk web.

Often, webworm damage does not appear until late summer — yet early-season control is the best tactic.

The presence of the small tan moths during mowing in late May to early June can indicate infestation.

Insecticides applied during heavy adult flights on warm evenings in May to June can be very effective.

The hairy chinch bug has been the primary pest of home lawns and can be controlled easily if insecticides are applied properly and at the correct time.

Overwintering adults congregate in protected areas such as flower beds, hedge rows and near foundations.

Peak egg-laying occurs in early June with hatching shortly thereafter.

Apply insecticides after most of the eggs have hatched because at this stage, the grubs are most vulnerable.

An easy method of detecting chinch bugs is to remove the top and bottom of a large container, such as a coffee tin, and force this into the turf in the area where early damage has occurred.

Fill the can with water and rake the turf with your fingers and watch for nymphs and adults to float to the surface.

Before applying any pesticides for control of lawn pests, be sure to read the label; pesticides work efficiently when applied safely and at the proper time.

For further information see Publication 64, "Insect and Disease Control in the Home Garden" available from the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Consumer Information Centre, 801 Bay Street, Toronto M7A 2B2 or from your local agricultural office.

Plant trees shrubs early

Plant trees and shrubs in spring before top growth begins to avoid cold weather damage, allow some root growth before top growth resumes and to ensure ample soil moisture, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. Most trees and shrubs should not be transplanted during late spring and summer because this is a period of rapid top growth.

PLAN AHEAD — Half the fun of gardening is planning the layout of your garden for the coming season. In your plan, be sure to stay away from the shaded areas with vine crops, tomatoes and beans and avoid placing peppers in the shade of sweet corn. Check leftover seed packages from last season and decide which seeds to re-order. Be sure to order some new varieties too — just for fun. (photo by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food)

Small trees fit small lots

If a large tree won't fit your lot, take heart.

There are a number of smaller trees which can fulfill functional and aesthetic roles, says Horticulturist Glen Lumis at the University of Guelph's department of horticultural science.

First of all, a small tree may be more in scale with your house design.

And a smaller tree will be less intrusive to neighbors as it grows.

A small tree may also fit in better with your family's needs.

For example, if you want to plant a garden in the backyard, provide a play area for the children or put in a patio, then a small shade tree will fit right into your plans.

When deciding which small tree fits your needs, be sure to integrate function with year-round interest and beauty.

Small trees can function in many ways.

They can screen an unwanted view, provide an area of shade during the summer or act as a resting or nesting place for birds. Some have edible fruit too.

Trees which have pretty flowers, bright-green disease-free leaves, interesting fruit, vivid fall color and showy bark will be an asset throughout the year.

The following list includes some small trees you may be able to incorporate into your home landscape. They do not normally exceed 10 metres (33 feet) in height: Amur Maackia (Maackia); Bluebeech (Carpinus); Carolina silverbell (Halesia); Cherries (Prunus) either Amur, Pin, or Sargent; Crabapples (Malus) available in many types; Dogwoods (Cornus) either Cornelian cherry, Flowering, or Pagoda; Hawthorns (Crataegus) either Cockspur, Toba, or Washington; Goldenrain tree (Koelreuteria); Goldenchain tree (Laburnum); Hophornbeam (Ostrya); Hop Tree(Ptelea); Magnolias (Magnolia) either Merrill, Saucer, or Star; Maples (Acer) either Amur, Hedge, Japanese, Paperbark, or Striped; Mountain-Ash (Sorbus); Pawpaw (Asimina); Redbud (Cercis); Russian-Olive (Elaeagnus); Serviceberry (Amelanchier); Smoketree (Cotinus); Staghorn Sumac (Rhus); Tree Lilac (Syringa); Witch-Hazel (Hamamelis).

CUT CANES

Cut raspberry canes at the end of the harvest to help control diseases, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. Make the cuts close to the ground.

TEST SOIL

Sulphur is used to reduce soil pH, while lime is used to correct soil acidity, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. For your own soil testing kit, contact your local Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office.

SEED LAWN

Late summer and early fall is the best time to seed a lawn, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. The best lawn seeding rate is two kilograms to three kilograms of seed per 100 square metres, where Kentucky Bluegrass forms a high percentage of the mixture.

HOLDING POWER

Light, sandy soils need watering more than twice as often as clay soils. Increase the water-holding capacity in lighter soils by adding organic material, SEASON-LONG COLOR — A perennial garden adds beauty to your home, year after year. But a good plan is essential. Here the garden is designed with an eye to the plants' height and blooming times as well as their color. You can add "spice" to your garden too by including a few perennial herbs in your plan.

Plan before planting perennials

A perennial garden is special because it brings season-long beauty to your home, year after year.

But planning is essential for a successful perennial garden, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto.

Begin by considering blooming time, plant height and color.

The duration and time of flowering varies with different plants.

The main blooming times are spring, early summer and late summer.

Spring flowering perennials include Tulips, Daffodils, Moss Phlox, Peony and Bleeding Heart. In early summer, you'll find Lupine, Coneflower, Delphinium, Iris and Yarrow in bloom; and in late summer Stonecrop, Perennial Salvia, Flossflower, Globe Thistle, and Monkshood are blossoming.

Once you have chosen your plants, place them in the garden according to their height.

In an island-shaped garden which is viewed from all sides, place the shortest plants around the border and taller plants in the centre.

In a garden with a back drop such as a wall or hedge, place shortest plants along the border and the taller plants behind them. Place tall climbing perennials against the back drop.

Color is another important point to consider during the planning stage.

Try using one color or a combination of two or three, such as pink and blue and white or yellow and white.

A single color combination of reds can also create a beautiful garden, she says.

To "spice up" your perennial garden, plant a few perennial herbs such as chives, sage and thyme.

Herbs may be eaten fresh or, after they have flowered, they can be harvested and dried to be used in cooking.

The most commonly-used plant parts are the leaves and seeds which contain the flavoring oils.

But harvesting must be carefully timed.

Harvest leaves in early morning, after the dew has evaporated and before the heat of the sun dissipates the fragrance.

Dry leaves by hanging the cut stalks upside down, tied together in bunches.

Harvest seeds when they are mature. Dry seeds by spreading them out in single layers on a screen or netting.

When thoroughly dried, separate seeds from the pods and husks.

Seal seeds in containers — and they're ready to use.

Careful planning of your perennial garden now, means you'll be able to enjoy your perennials — of all types — year after year.

PROMOTE GROWTH

Prune your fruit trees to stimulate new wood growth. The ideal time to prune is in the spring just before buds swell, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. Fall pruning is not recommended because of the increased possibility of winter injury; summer pruning has a pronounced dwarfing effect on trees.

COVER UP

Protect roses from winterkill by mounding up soil around the plants to a height of 20 centimetres to 25 centimetres (eight inches to 10 inches), says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre, Toronto. After mounding, leave the roses until the ground has frozen and then cover with evergreen boughs to hold the snow.

BE PREPARED

To prepare a Magnolia tree seed for planting, remove the fleshy seed coat and cover the seeds with moist peat moss for 90 days at five degrees Celsius (41 degrees Fahrenheit) and then they can be directly planted outside.

Follow pesticide label for best pest control

If the recommended pesticides aren't doing the job for you, the problem is likely due to faulty calibration and failure to follow label instructions, says Horticulturist Joe Uyenaka of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office in Milton, Ont.

Before using any pesticide, carefully read the label to determine if the pesticide is registered for domestic use for the crop to be treated.

"Check the label to see if the product is effective against the targeted pest, and look at the rate of pesticide recommended, the safety precautions to be used and the "no spray" before harvest interval, particularly if the plant to be sprayed is a food crop," Uyenaka says.

Application rate depends on the concentration of active chemical ingredient in the product. Rates also vary according to the pest to be controlled.

The rates for pesticides applied as a spray, are given based on a set volume of water. The spray should be applied so as to cover the total plant to the point where the spray drips off.

Applications of soil-and-lawn-applied pesticides are based on surface area. These pesticides must be applied with sufficient water volume to properly cover the area to be treated.

Dusts are ready-to-use and should be applied in such a manner that all parts of the plant are covered by a thin layer of dust.

Under all circumstances, use the specified label rate. Lower rates will result in unsatisfactory pest control while excessive rates may result in plant injury, destroy beneficial insects and leave harmful residue on edible crops.

Using the proper measuring devices ensures accurate measurements. Never use kitchen utensils or milk and pop bottles for measuring any pesticide. And once a measuring device is used for pesticide calibration, it must not be used for any other purpose.

"Too often safe pesticide use is ignored. All safety precautions must be followed carefully as given on the label and where recommended, proper protective clothing must be worn," Uyenaka says.

Other safety precautions that should be observed include: keeping pesticides locked up in a safe place, out of the reach of children and pets; keeping pesticides in original containers; discarding empty containers with the garbage; and thoroughly washing all pesticide spray equipment after use.

CUT BACK

When deciduous ground covers become straggly, cut them back well in early spring to promote new growth, says Horticulturist Anna Ballantyne of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Consumer Information Centre.

VE Day: Morrisburg residents recall 40 years ago

Morrisburg native Ralph Hummell, as a member of the carrier platoon of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders, moved into Emden, Germany May 7, 1945. But there was no celebration for the young soldier, who played a role in the final victory of the Allied forces over Nazi Germany 40 years ago.

"The streets were lined with people when we rolled in, but there was not a sound out of them—not a cheer or a boo," reminisces Hummell, who was a four-year veteran of war-torn Europe at 28 years old by the time of Germany's unconditional surrender.

"We got into the barracks at Emden and into the grounds, and the Germans refused to throw down their arms. There weren't very many of us—thousands of Germans to 26 of us if we were at full strength, which I doubt. So all we could do was sit and wait for the rest of the batallions to get there."

Bill Eady, another Morrisburg resident was 21 at the time of victory in Europe. He was "dug" in a dike outside Emden.

"There'd been a ceasefire prior to VE Day so we weren't fighting a great deal," recounts Eady. "There was always somebody dropping a bomb on us, but it was pretty quiet."

An infantryman with the Cameron Highlanders, Eady went into Aurich, Germany as part of the occupation troops. He'd been in battle for almost a year when VE Day arrived and remembers the relief.

"It was June 6, 1944 when they started shooting at me," he says. "I even get scared thinking about it."

"People were running out into the streets and hugging their neighbors..."

In June, Eady moved to Holland, then the home of another Morrisburg resident, Hetta Cassell. She grew up in Deventer and was 13 when the war started. She well remembers when her homeland was finally liberated.

"It was a joyous time—a riot," she says. "People were running out into the streets and hugging their neighbors...And there were orchestras. It was wonderful."

In Morrisburg, the news of victory precipitated great celebrations too.

"They rang the fire siren all day and most of the night," says Art Laurin, editor of The Leader. "Everybody in Morrisburg was celebrating like crazy. It was a real explosion of joy and relief and happiness. The killing was over and our people would be coming home."

May 8, the day after the news broke, a hastily organized parade and religious services were organized to mark VE Day. "V-E Day was marked in Morrisburg with a spirit of thanksgiving to God for deliverance from the evils and perils of nearly six years of war," read The Leader May 11. Its front page proclaimed "VICTORY IS OURS! "

The parade included members of the Canadian Legion, the reserve army, Boy Scouts, the local branches of the Red Cross and the Women's Institute, civic officials and Morrisburg Collegiate's cadet corps. Ross Hummell, now president of the local branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, was then 16 years old and a member of that cadet corps.

"It was such a hot day and one of the boys behind me fainted," he says. "But we all wanted to march. We were so greatly relieved. I had two brothers and two cousins overseas. Everybody had someone serving in the armed forces. It had been a long war and we'd lost quite a few people from this area."

Charlie Crober, a veteran of World War I and a company commander with the SD&G Highlanders during World War II, said he was "awfully glad to see the fighting finished, but I was awfully sorry to remember some of the boys sent over."

Crober also had a son in the air force and remembers the worry he felt when his son volunteered for the Pacific Squadron. There were 99 more days of WWII until Japan surrendered.

"I was glad for victory, but the war wasn't over yet..."

"My thoughts that day were mixed — I was glad for victory, but the war wasn't over yet," says Crober. "There's no winner in war anyway except the armament people and a few people like Hitler."

The war may not have been over yet, but for one day people permitted themselves to believe they were celebrating the beginning of the end of the "war to end all wars."

Morrisburg resident Miriam Salmon was training at a hospital in Kingston when the news came in. She and a couple of friends got a "late leave" and joined revelers on Princess Street.

"It was just a mob scene," she recalls. "We couldn't walk on the sidewalks and no traffic could get through. People didn't drink beer then on the streets during parades like they do now, but they were that day. It was exciting. That's for sure."

And the most important aspect of the spontaneous celebrations, says Salmon, was the friendliness of the crowd. "I never saw a fight at all," she says. "People were just singing and dancing."

Sarah Merkley of Morrisburg was in Toronto when she heard the news that meant her husband, Roy, would be coming home.

Although some people had mixed feelings because their husbands and sons were re-enlisting to fight the Japanese, Merkley characterizes the general reaction as joy.

"We went all through Chinatown that night with big parades," she says. "It seemed everybody was out rejoicing."

Morrisburg's Doug McGillis also spent VE Day in Toronto. He had recently returned from Europe where he had completed 26 missions as a pilot for the Royal Canadian Air Force and instructed new recruits.

"I went over as a flying pilot attached to the bomber command in March, 1941 and was scared for 3½ years," said McGillis, who joined the air force when he was 22 years old. "So I was relieved that it was partly over."

Ruth Sturgess, now living in Morrisburg, was stationed in Montreal as part of the naval service. Working in a commander's office, she received a telegram from Prime Minister W.L. Mackenzie King to inform the public that "Germany is beaten again."

"This moment of victory, I know you will be saddened when you think of those who have given their lives that we all might live once more in peaceful homes," wired King. "This is their great day too, and while they are not with us to rejoice, we must see to it, and ever will see to it that their memory is kept forever green, that they have not died in vain.

"There still remains another enemy to subdue and while we all realize that that task will be bitter, we must still rejoice today and thank God for the strength and the victory which he has given to our arms."

Indeed, the people of Montreal, like others across Canada, did rejoice.

"It was a mad house," says Sturgess. "There had been a false alarm before and there were a lot of windows broken on St. Catherine's Street so when the real day came along, they were all boarded up. But everything else went haywire.

"There was a stockbroker across from the Mount Royal Hotel who had a son in the navy and he had open house for all the naval reserve. There were long tables with bottles lined up and I had my share."

Sturgess also accepted a telegram officially proclaiming May 8 a national holiday. "All ships are to splice the main brace on that day," it reads. Translated into laymen's terms, the message ordered that all men were to get double their normal allocation of rum.

Lloyd Smirle of Riverside Heights was headed across the English Channel that day and enjoyed the extra rum.

"We weren't too sure that it was over because we were in the middle of the channel and radio communications weren't too good," he says.

There'd been other false alarms, so we missed out on the main part of the celebrations in London."

Smirle, a member of the Cameron Highlanders, was scheduled to go home. He joined the service in 1940 at 18 was hit, with shrapnel three weeks after D-Day, leaving him with "a couple of holes" in his hand.

Cpl. Carson Baker, then of Glen Becker and 22 years old, was in a repatriation camp in England on VE Day after being released from a German prisoner-of-war camp in Austria. A member of the Hastings and Prince Edward troop, he had been captured in Italy in December.

"We were out in the wilderness when peace was finally declared though we knew the war was near the end," says Baker, who now lives in Morrisburg. "We celebrated a bit among ourselves, but we were just content to be free again."

Ronald Cameron of Morrisburg isn't exactly sure where he was on VE Day, but knows he was in Holland near the German border. At 24 years old, he was returning from a hospital where he had been treated for "a little gun shot wound."

He remembers celebrating. "There was still a lot of smoke in the air and it was misty," says the then-platoon sargeant with the SD&G Highlanders. "After a while, though, the sun came out."

Real Estate

with Gloria Foot

Where's the "Scrivener"?

Much of the tradition and ceremony has disappeared from the business of transferring real estate. You might enjoy learning how it used to be done in the old days.

The law has always regarded the transfer of real estate as one of the most solemn acts and thus a great deal of formality attended the transfer. In the early days of land tenure, transfer was accomplished by "livery of seizen" which literally means transfer of possession.

The buyer and seller would go upon the land in question and there, in the presence of witnesses, the seller would take a clod of turf and a twig from a tree and hand it over to the buyer as a symbol or token of the transfer.

The transfer was then made a matter of record by having the "scrivener" (the person in the community who could write) do his thing and write out the transfer on a parchment and affix his seal.

First MPS Fund-fest clears $1,500 for sports equipment

MORRISBURG — Last Saturday's fund-fest held to raise money to buy sports equipment for Morrisburg Public School was such an overwhelming success, organizers are already talking about making it an annual event.

Held in the classrooms and auditorium of the school the fund-fest cleared slightly over $1,500 — more than Suzanne Strader, the day's co-ordinator, ever hoped for.

"We are very pleased. Everything ran according to plan and we had nothing but positive responses, especially from the kids," Strader said.

Over 150 children pressed into the auditorium to play one or all of the 10 games run by enthusiastic grade 7 and 8 students.

The games brought in $163, and the children of all sizes who participated in the noisy free-for-all loved every minute of it.

The bake table was the most popular spot for parents and kids alike, collecting $200 for a large array of home-baked goodies.

The crafts table turned a profit of $88, the adult mini-raffle of gifts or certificates donated by local businesses made $80, the cakewalk $88, and the food concession $80.

By far the largest money maker for the event was the raffle for the painting by principal Alan Bain. Donna Barkley finally carried the work home, but not before it had culled $600 in revenue.

"Mr. Bain is to be thanked for the donation of his painting. It's something we won't have next year. We'll have to rack our brains for something to replace it for next year," said Strader.

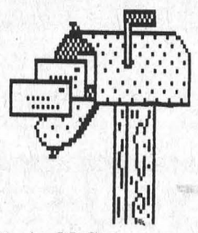
Bain will be leaving Morrisburg Public School at the end of this school year to become principal of Newington Public School.

Bain himself let out a little whoop of delight when he heard the large total raised by the day's activities.

He said that kind of money would buy "very good" sports equipment for the school's basketball, baseball, football, soccer and broomball participants.

Some of the money, he added, might also be used to hire buses for special field trips or for new educational computer software.

BOOK REVIEW



Monica McColl, Grade 4, Morrisburg Public School

What would you do if you saw this ad in a comic book?

MONSTER!!!
Forty-eight inches tall
Walking and Talking Monster
only $2.99

If you want to find out what Julius did you should read "A Monster in the Mailbox" written by Sheila Gordon.

Julius didn't know how much a really good Monster should cost. His mother didn't know either, but the price sounded right, so Julius earned the money and sent his order off.

Julius didn't know if the Monster would fit in the mailbox. He was quite worried. Just when Julius had almost lost hope the Monster arrived.

Get this book from the Public Library, I'm sure you'll like it.

Gillard pleads guilty to impaired charge

MORRISBURG—The sentencing of Williamsburg Township deputy-reeve Robert Gillard on charges of impaired driving will be postponed for two weeks when his lawyer will make further submissions to the judge.

Defence lawyer Roger Mills said the evidence read yesterday in provincial court here was correct, but he requested the additional time to prepare submissions to temper the sentence to be handed out by Judge Bruce Hunter May 21.

Evidence given by crown attorney Bruce McPhee showed Gillard, 42, was spotted by Morrisburg OPP Const. Don Flemming driving at high speeds and weaving.

Flemming stopped the Gillard vehicle on County Road 8 near Hosaic Creek. Gillard had no licence, insurance or car registration forms with him at the time.

McPhee said the accused drove off when Flemming returned to the cruiser to identify Gillard. The officer chased the accused for 3.1 km before stopping him on a township road between concession 4 and 5.

Gillard was again told he was under arrest for impaired driving, but he repeatedly refused to return to the detachment for a breathalizer test.

McPhee said Gillard told the officer "don't do anything you'll regret".

Flemming physically removed Gillard from the car and he was transported back to the detachment. The breathalizer readings of 160 mg and later 140 mg of alcohol were found in 100 ml samples of blood.

McPhee noted that at the time of the occurrence, Gillard was under probation with conditions of abstension from alcohol.

Charges of resisting arrest and of having a quantity of alcohol exceeding 80 milligrams in 100 millilitres of blood were withdrawn. The accused cannot be convicted of two offenses relating to the same occurrence.
