Mrs. George A. Beckstead Laid to Rest on Thursday

Aged Lady, Descendant of Williamsburg Township Pioneers, Died at Foxboro.

The funeral of Mrs. George Allen Beckstead was held at the home of her son, Earl Beckstead, on Thursday afternoon last. The aged lady died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Christie, Foxboro, Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Beckstead was the former Elizabeth Beckstead, daughter of the late Jacob A. Beckstead, and his wife the former Sarah Ann Christie. She was in her 88th year, and a descendant of the early pioneers of Williamsburg township. She was married in 1869, and her husband died in 1923. A member of Elma United Church and of the W.M.S. she had taken an active part in the social affairs of the community before going to live with her daughter at Foxboro several years ago.

Service at the house was conducted by Rev. R. S. Smith, pastor of the Elma church, and the choir was under the direction of Mrs. Donald McMarton. A duet was sung by Mrs. R. S. Smith and Mrs. Bernice Barkley.

The survivors are two sons, Lloyd Beckstead, Rosetown, Sask., and Earl Beckstead, of the Beckstead Settlement; one daughter, Mrs. W. J. Christie, at Foxboro; three brothers, W. A. Beckstead, of Elma; I. N. Beckstead, of Watsons Corners, and Norris Beckstead, of Chesterville; two sisters, Mrs. C. Lee Casselman, Winchester, and Mrs. Martha Hummel of Chesterville.

The pallbearers were William Dillabough, Frank Whittaker, Lloyd Froats and Frank Todd.

Interment was in the family plot at Maple Ridge cemetery where Rev. Mr. Smith also officiated.

Mrs. M. Hillis, Lunenburg, Passes Away at Early Age

Death Occurred at Cornwall General Hospital.—Funeral on Saturday.—Married in August, 1933.

The communities of Morewood and Cannamore were shocked to hear of the untimely death of Mrs. Milton Hillis, Lunenburg, which occurred at the General hospital, Cornwall, on Wednesday evening, March 24th. Mrs. Hillis, formerly Nellie Baker, was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. Baker, of Cannamore. She was a graduate of Morewood High school and of the Ottawa Normal school. She taught four years at North Winchester (S.S. No. 7) where her quiet manner and readiness to serve in both church and social circles won for her the respect and love of all.

In August, 1933, she was united in marriage to Milton Hillis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hillis, and they made their new home at Lunenburg, where they have many friends.

The body was taken to Lunenburg and from there to the home of her father at Cannamore. The funeral took place Saturday afternoon at the Morewood Presbyterian church, of which the late Mrs. Hillis was a member. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. A. O. Thomson, assisted by Rev. A. Nimmo, Athelstan, Que., a former pastor, and Rev. K. K. Woodwark, of Lunenburg. The church was filled with sympathizing friends and Mrs. W. C. McQuaig sang "The Homeland." Interment was made in the adjoining cemetery.

Mrs. Hillis leaves to mourn her loss besides her husband and parents, one sister, Mrs. Ross Nurse, Cannamore, and four brothers, Willis, Gordon and Dalton at home, and Clifford, Elma.

The following floral offerings were sent, carrying with them love and respect: The Husband and Mr. and Mrs. W. Hillis and family, Parents, Brothers and Sister; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest McConnell and Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Gordon; United Church, Lunenburg; The Lunenburg Y.P.S.; "The Boys," Lunenburg, and the Y.P.S. of Morewood Presbyterian church.

ICE AND SWEET PEAS.

EACH spring when the ice goes down the river it is always good for a few lines as news, but this year with it having gone and come again half a dozen times the news now is that the last formation is still giving no particular sign of moving out. St. Patrick's Day is the time when its welcome has expired and is expected to vacate very shortly after that, but this year it has lingered a good two weeks and is still with us. While speaking about the season, it reminds us that we planted our sweet peas out doors last year on the thirtieth day of March.

Drastic Changes Planned For High School Education

Hon. L. J. Simpson Announces Scrapping Present Curriculum.—Stress Manual Training.

Very drastic changes in the courses of the secondary schools of Ontario have been made by the Minister of Education, Dr. L. J. Simpson, to take effect with the opening of the fall term. The courses have been laid out with a view to giving a choice of subjects for pupils having ideas for their life work which do not necessarily require a university education such as entering the professional class. One general course will bear on industry, agriculture and art, with one for girls stressing household science which will tend to make them better homemakers. A fourth course will be in the nature of commercial training for those who think of entering business life when leaving school.

Instead of lower, middle and upper school designations, the whole system will be on grades, the public schools running to Grade 9 and high schools taking the grades up to 13, the latter being equivalent to upper school.

Winchester Boy Fatally Hurt Struck By Local Man's Auto

Howard Crawford of Town Unable to Miss Boy As He Fell From Bicycle In Front of Auto.

Monday evening, about 6.30, as Howard Crawford, of Chesterville, was returning from Ottawa, about a mile west of Winchester his car struck Alvin Deeks, 17-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Deeks, of Winchester, when the boy was allegedly thrown from his wheel in front of the car as his bicycle caught in a rut in the road.

Crawford reported that he did not realize that the boy was unable to move to the side of the road until he had not time to stop. It is thought the bicycle caught in a large crack in the centre of the cement highway causing the fall. The boy was terribly injured, besides head and internal injuries, his right thigh and leg were broken.

He was taken by Lorne Hutchinson to his home and doctors called, who had him taken to the Ottawa Civic hospital, where he passed away early Tuesday morning.

It is understood an inquest will be held in Winchester Monday next.

CROWD AT EASTER DANCE WAS A RECORD BREAKER

The Easter Ball sponsored by the Lades' Bowling Club in the Community Hall, Monday night, was attended by 347 persons, the largest number yet to attend a dance in Chesterville's new hall. A glorious time was enjoyed by the big crowd with good music supplied by Johnstone Brothers' Orchestra.

History, Making of Quilts Told to W.I. Yesterday

Miss Helen Moad Gives Interesting Talk And Demonstrates Methods Of Piecing and Applique.

At the Women's Institute meeting held yesterday afternoon, Miss Helen Moad gave a very interesting talk on the History of Quilts and Quilt Making, also showing pieced quilts and appliqued, and a variety of patterns for piecing and quilting.

Mrs. Geo. J. Hunt had charge of current events, and a number of news items were read by the members. Mrs. Dixon, Mrs. A. E. Bolster, Mrs. Slosser, Mrs. T. J. Bourke, Mrs. W. H. Lloyd and Mrs. Allison had charge of the social hour and served afternoon tea.

MANY THANKS.

THE RECORD wishes to very heartily thank several of our subscribers who responded so quickly with copies of The Record of Oct. 22, 1936, which we asked for in our last issue. The first one arrived from J. J. Blacklock of Toronto, on Saturday morning; the second came from Mrs. J. O. Beckstead, R. R. 1, Chesterville, and the third from Enos Allison of the same route. Mrs. Scott, of Northfield, responded with her copy. Ernest Grey of Ottawa, was still treasuring his copy but cheerfully sent it along, as did Mrs. Geo. Cheney, of Russell, and Fred Shay from down the Finch road.

It was really astonishing that copies almost six months old were still so readily available, while it is a common saying that there is nothing so old and disregarded as yesterday's daily paper.

Presentation by Congregation To Mr. and Mrs. Brooks

Well-Known Couple Left For Osgoode This Week After 20 Years Spent In This Vicinity.

The congregation of Holy Trinity church and the community lost a valued family this week with the removal of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Brooks to Osgoode on Tuesday after 20 years spent in town and vicinity. At the conclusion of the morning service in Holy Trinity church on Easter Day, Rev. G. O. Davies, on behalf of the congregation, presented Mr. and Mrs. Brooks with gifts from the congregation and the Guild.

The rector spoke of the splendid service given by Mr. Brooks in the choir and offices of vestry clerk, representative to the synod, and as a member of the finance committee. Mrs. Brooks has always been much interested in the work of the Guild.

Mr. Brooks served several terms on the Winchester Township Board as a councillor and was also a member of the Citizens' Band. He assisted other choirs of town on many occasions and to many of the concerts of the countryside he gladly contributed.

Many Descendants Mourn Death Mrs. Gideon Barkley

Mountain Township Lady Born in 1854 Had 13 Children, All Living, and 63 Direct Descendants.

The funeral of Mrs. Gideon Barkley, a life-long resident of Mountain township, who died on Wednesday at the family home near Inkerman, was held Monday from the home to Inkerman United church, where service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. C. McConnell. Interment was in the family plot at Knight's cemetery.

One of the oldest residents of the township, Mrs. Barkley was the former Sarah Jones, daughter of the late William Jones and his wife, tne former Rebecca Smith, and was born in 1854. She was married in 1875 and was the mother of 13 children, all of whom are living. She had 63 direct descendants, 37 grandchildren and 26 great-grandchildren. Her husband died 20 years ago. A member of the Inkerman church, she had taken an active part in the affairs of the community and a wide circle of friends mourn her death. Her sister, the only other member of her family, Mrs. Joseph Feader, of Haliburton, is 91 years old.

Chief mourners are seven sons, Wilburn Barkley, of Ottawa; Walter, of Brockville; William, of Melvin Settlement; Lancelot, Winnipeg. James, of Eastons Corners; Frank and Roy of Inkerman; six daughters: Mrs. Emma Johnston, Ottawa; Mrs. Grant Robinson, of Eastons Corners; Mrs. Hackett Quart, La Fargeville, N.Y.; Mrs. Donald Strader, Winchester; Mrs. Robert Kellough, and Nettie Barkley, both of Winnipeg.

NEWS AND INFORMATION FOR THE BUSY FARMER

Furnished by the Ontario Department of Agriculture

SELECTION OF EGGS FOR HATCHING

The Department of Poultry Husbandry, O.A.C., Guelph, in Bulletin 379, "Farm Poultry," advise to "select eggs for size, shape and colour. In view of the weight standard for market eggs, it is wise to select eggs for hatching which are two ounces or better in weight. It is well to keep in mind that two-ounce pullet eggs are equal to a somewhat heavier egg from the same bird as a hen. Continuous selection, year after year, will give results. Do not select dirty eggs or handle eggs with soiled hands. The egg shell is porous, hence there is a possibility of contamination."

"Eggs deteriorate in hatching quality with age. When holding eggs for hatching, keep them in a cool place, at about 50 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit. The temperature should be uniform. Be sure that the place is clean and not musty. Eggs for hatching should be kept not longer than ten days, and the sooner the eggs are set after being laid, the better the hatch is likely to be."

CONSERVATION COMMITTEES

There has been a conservation committee appointed by many of the county councils this year. One of the first questions asked is what activities should and will the committee sponsor? Naturally they wish to accomplish something tangible, and this often leads to a planting scheme. Planting is necessary and all work along this line is to be commended. Is planting the most important and is it not over-emphasized when compared to other activities that a conservation committee might carry on?

Is not the conservation of the remaining woodland the most important consideration? Most people realize that planting would not be necessary to-day if 10 acres of woods had been left on every 100—200 acre farm and all the sub-marginal land left in timber rather than clearing for agricultural crops and allowing fire to run through cut-over lands.

How can we encourage farmers to preserve the woodland that remains on their farms. If a farmer considers the woodlot an asset, he will preserve it. A woodlot that pays dividends is more liable to be preserved than one that doesn't. Much larger returns will be received over a period of years by following forestry principles in the management than in carrying on the common practises of clear-cutting young growth, allowing trees to decay, cutting all valuable weed trees to seed up the woods. Farmers will plant trees more readily if their neighbour is making money from his woods.

All woodland should have small trees coming on ready to take the place of the large trees that are cut. This reproduction may be secured naturally, that is from the seed that falls from the large trees and the farmer does not have to make a cash outlay. It is a guarantee that there will be a woodlot there 50 to 75 years hence. The natural reproduction is interfered with and in many woodlots eliminated by the grazing of livestock. More reforestation could be secured in a few years from natural reproduction if all woodlots had the stock shut out than will by planting in the next fifty years.

The main activity of a conservation committee should be education, and the following phases should be emphasized:

1. The value of woodlots to the farmer, community and province.
2. Forestry principles that may economically be practised in woodland on Southern Ontario woodlots.
3. The necessity and the technique of establishing plantations and windbreaks. Municipalties should take the lead in planting, as they can wait the 50 to 75 years that it takes trees to grow to merchantable size.

PLANTING ON THE FARM.

Woodland on the farm is considered an asset by most farmers. The owner of a 10-15 acre woodlot is independent in regard to fuel-wood and lumber for repairs and minor building about the farm. An agricultural district will grow better crops and living conditions are improved if 10 to 15 per cent of the area is in woodland. It is a windbreak for crops in winter and summer and helps to control floods by holding back and reducing the surface run-off. Woodland acts as a reservoir that tends to keep a regular supply of water in the springs and wells.

The area in woodland should be increased in many districts and most farms would be better if some planting was done. Each farmer should carefully survey his farm, and decide on the locations that should be planted.

Very little planting is necessary or will be successful in a woodlot that has not been pastured for years, as nature has attended to the starting of a new crop of trees. Planted trees would be crowded out by the vigourous trees that have started from seed. Trees may be planted in a corner that has not seeded up or an evergreen windbreak may be needed on the north and west sides of the woods.

Planting will be successful in an open pastured woodlot. The planting will speed up the restocking, and it introduces valuable species such as pine, spruce, walnut, oak and white ash. White spruce, white pine and sugar maple will grow under the shade of light foliaged trees such as poplar and paper birch. The trees in the pastured woods and underplanting under poplar do not require the six-foot spacing that is recommended for open land planting as there will be natural reproduction starting if the stock are kept out.

There are areas on many farms that would be better growing trees. It may be a steep hillside that is difficult to work, or that is eroding. Sandy and gravelly soils are often a liability if they are not growing trees. There are small irregular fields that are cut off by a creek, road or railroad.

Every farm should have a windbreak to protect the farm buildings. It improves living conditions by breaking the force of the winds, reduces snow-drifting on roads and around buildings if properly located and gives a beautiful setting for the buildings.

There are odd corners around the farm buildings that are not and never will be utilized. These corners if planted would improve the appearance of the farm, keep down weeds and be growing something of value.

Landowners in Ontario may secure free small trees for planting windbreaks, plantations and restocking woodlots. Application forms and descriptive literature may be secured by applying to The Forestry Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto tree nurseries at St. Williams, Midhurst and Orono or the county agricultural offices.

My girl thinks she knows her arithmetic. She thinks twice dirty is sexty.

Desecrating The Sabbath.

"Last Sabbath," said an elder with glee, "as kirk was letting out, a chap came along whistling and looking as happy as if it was the middle o' the week. Wel, oors is a God-fearing set o' lads, and they gave him a good beating!"

DUKELOW—HELMER.

The marriage of Myrtle Christine Helmer, of Winchester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Helmer, of Monkland, to Arnold Everett Dukelow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Dukelow, of Winchester, was quietly solemnized on Saturday at the parsonage of the Western United church, Ottawa, with the pastor, Rev. John A. Waddell, officiated.
Waddell, officiating.

The bride wore a gown of navy blue crêpe, with blue straw hat and matching accessories.

The couple were attended by Miss Laura Dukelow and Mr. Sparling Dukelow, sister and brother of the bridegroom. After a brief honeymoon they will reside in Winchester.

No Make-Up.

"How did you manage to evade the photographers who have taken so many pictures of you?"

"Easily," said Miss Cayenne. "I disguised myself."

"How?"

"I threw away my lipstick and washed my face."

CHEAPER FARM TELEPHONES.

There is special interest for farmers in the Bell Tepehone Company's announcement of reductions in rates. All told farmers of Ontario and Quebec will save over $100,000 a year. The reduction of 25 cents per month ($3.00 yearly) on rural service should make the farmer's telephone yield more for what it costs than almost anything else he can buy. There should be a substantial growth in rural telephones this spring.

FIRE IN MARVELVILLE.

Damage to the extent of $500 was done the home of John Stearns, Marvelville, Monday when fire started in the cinmney and spread to the roof. Volunters helped to tear off the roof and extinguished the blaze which had spread rapidly after being discovered.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES....AND THEIR BANK

THE FOREST INDUSTRIES

The forest area of Canada on which there is timber of merchantable size is larger than the total area of France and Germany combined, the standing timber on this is estimated at 274 billion cubic feet. An area of even greater extent is covered with young growth.

This vast reservoir of wood is the source from which Canada drew wealth in excess of $110,000,000 in 1934 (the latest figures available) in the form of primary products such as:

- raw material for saw-mills, pulp mills, wood distillation, charcoal plants,
- logs. pulpwood, bolts, etc., for export;
- firewood, railroad ties, posts, poles, fence rails, mining timbers;
- maple sugar, balsam gum, resin, cascara, tanbark, moss, etc.

The total value of manufactured products made principally from raw materials of forest origin was $404,435,948.

Forest products in 1936 afforded an excess of exports over imports—$158,560,000—very important to Canada's international trade.

The Bank of Montreal has co-operated with every activity of the forest industries—assisting in every phase of production and marketing. The Bank has had the privilege of financing a large share of the export business of these industries. Thousands of workers are depositors, sharing in the safety and facilities of the Bank with their employing companies.

Trustees Association Asks Minimum Salary of $700

Association Wants Truth About War Taught.—State Asked to Pay 50 Per Cent Educational Costs.

The Ontario Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association presented a platform including a minimum salary of $700 annually for school teachers when the annual sessions opened in conjunction with the Ontario Educational Association meetings in Toronto on Monday.

The present $500 salary minimum is insufficient, it is stated. The planks of the platform include equal educational opportunities for every child in Ontario; bearing 50 per cent of school expenditure by the state; provincial-wide medical examination once a year during the elementary and secondary school life of the child.

Teachers, the platform says, should teach the truth about war, greatest menace to civilization and democracy. The association's new platform is aimed at developing the school and saving democracy.

House Completely Destroyed Near Winchester, Monday

Blaze First Noticed by Mother as Flames Came Through Roof.—No Insurance on Contents.

Fire, breaking out from some unknown cause late Monday afternoon, destroyed a two-storey frame dwelling occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nicholson and their four children on a farm one mile north of Winchester. Loss of the building is estimated at about $1,000, covered by insurance, while the contents, valued at approximately $350, were not insured. The farm, dwelling and outbuildings are owned by the Soldiers' Settlement Board of the Dominion Government.

Mrs. Nicholson, outside at the time, first noticed flames shooting through the roof. A bucket brigade was quickly formed among neighbours and residents of Winchester, but so quickly did the blaze spread all efforts to save the dwelling failed.

QUIRK OF FATE?

Kitchener Record.

STRANGEST of all fates was the one which caught up with Samuel Whitaker, convicted Los Angeles murer, recently.

Whitaker was convicted of having hired a thug to kill his wife. When he was called up for sentence he was asked, according to custom, if he had anything to say in his defence. Raising his arm, he cried dramatically:

"If I am guilty, I hope God will strike me dead before I reach my cell.

Unimpressed, the judge ordered him to San Quentin prison for life. Whitaker was taken away. He fell ill en route to the prison and was lodged in the prison hospital. He seemed to improve and a cell was prepared for him. But before he could enter it, he fell dead.

Sheer coincidence — or grim working-out of a mysterious and inscrutable fate?

Without.

Teacher (to a smart pupil): "Spell 'straight'."

Pupil: "STRAIGHT."

Teacher: "Correct. What does it mean?"

Pupil: '.Without ginger ale."

Astounding.

Husband (reading from newspaper) "Three thousand, four hundred and twenty-six elephants were needed last year to make billiard balls."

Wife: "Isn't it wonderful that such great beasts can be taught to do such delicate work!"

Same Old Method.

Sitting in a concert hall waiting for the concert to begin, a man, seeing a small boy in front of him looking at his watch, bent forward and asked: "Does it tell the time?"

"No," answered the little boy. "You look at it."

Farmers Benefit Most from Telephone Rate Reductions

Farmers will benefit by over $100,000 yearly through reductions in rural telephone rates, effective April 1st.

In this district rural telephone rates are reduced 25 cents per month—$3.00 yearly.

Other reductions are—

Hand (cradle) telephones—
reduced from 30 cents to 15 cents per month over Desk type (effective with May bills).

Inside move charges—
reduced from $2.00 to $1.00 (effective April 1st).

Short haul Long Distance Calls—
20-cent person-to-person calls reduced to 15 cents. The extra cost for reversing charges on calls to nearby points is cancelled (effective April 1st).

Deaf Sets—
The special type of equipment available for the hard-of-hearing is reduced from $2.50 to $1.50 per month.

These reductions, especially those affecting farmers' telephones, will tend to increase the general use of telephone service, making it of greater value to every user.

ONUS ON THE MOTORIST.

NEARLY ten years ago the motoring public was shocked to learn of a decision by the United States Supreme Court which defined the driver's responsibility in the case of grade crossing accidents. The highest court in the land held that the motorist had not discharged his full responsibility until he had stopped his car at a grade crossing, got out of the vehicle, and walked to the tracks to look in both directions, and listen for an approaching train.

This was stating in pretty definite terms that the railroad was almost never at fault in a collision between a train and a car at a crossing. The legal point was that when the driver comes upon a hazard in the highway he must take every needed precaution on his part before venturing across the tracks.

Careful motorists tucked the meat of that decision away in the back of their minds, and it probably has served to make them more cautious in approaching crossings. Train-car collisions have kept right on happening, ever since, but the small fraternity of drivers who regard their lives as more important than getting to their destination at a certain time never take the question of liability for granted at railroad intersections.

THE PROBLEM OF CHEESE.

WHEN butter is shipped to Britain it has to compete with producers in Australia, New Zealand and also Denmark, which makes marketing very difficult. On the other hand, apparently, Canadian cheese is not subject to this keen competition.

Hence it would appear to be the part of wisdom, with increasing milk production in Canada, to build up the export trade in cheese. The United States, under the reciprocity pact, is prepared to purchase large quantities of Canadian cheese, and the British market is ready to absorb a greater supply.

The problem for the cheesemaker is to solve the matter of prices paid to the farmer, so that he will get a fair share of the price paid by the fair consumer.

INTERESTING FACTS ABOUT THIS CANADA OF OURS.

Hose.

BY hose or half hose we mean stockings or socks to-day, but the term formerly included breeches when both were a single garment. Early in the 16th century the two became separate articles.

Visitors to Hatfield House, London, have the opportunity of seeing a very early pair of silk stockings. They belonged to Queen Elizabeth; and if they were not the first silk stockings in England—for both her father and her brother are reported to have had a pair—they are the oldest extant.

Past times, no doubt, could produce marvels of fineness—a pair of silk stockings that would fold up into a nut shell or pass through a wedding-ring; but at the present the wood-pulp age, which has made fine hose the rule and not the exception.

Homespun, home-knitted stockings were worn by the greater part of the population, female as well as male, not very long ago. The solidity, the warmth, the comfort of such things are still known to men who wear—and guessed by women who darn—hand-knitted stockings, for these are not yet extinct; but where are the white stockings that women wore with elastic-sided boots? Where are the black stockings that played their sombre, puritanical part in shadowing the ankles half a century ago?

In Canada we make about sixty-five million pairs of stockings in a year—cotton, wool, silk and artificial silk.

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

COMMON ERRORS IN CHILDREN'S DIETS

EVERY MOTHER wants a healthy child. There is no way in which can be better influenced than by giving the child a proper diet. Due to the desire of parents to prepare attractive looking food and to give the child foods that it likes, very often some of the food elements necessary for good health are not present or have been removed in the preparation of the food.

Milk, meat, eggs, vegetables (including salad greens) and fruits are our most valuable foods. Although it seems at first glance a very simple task to have your children's meals, or for that matter your own meals, built up around milk, meat, eggs vegetables and fruit, it is extremely easy to give too much of other foods which result in an unbalanced and unhealthy diet. One of the greatest dangers is giving an excess of sugars such as candy, jam or marmalade. Sugars are of value to supply calories or energy, yet due to their pleasant taste children invariably are inclined to take too much of these sweet foods. Frequently children take too much starchy foods, such as pastry, cakes, cookies, and even bread. Although sugars and starches are of value as a source of energy, if too much are taken they are harmful as one does not then take enough of the other foods which are necessary for a balanced diet.

It is a simple matter to take pains to see that your child gets each day a pint and a half of milk, including the milk used in cooking, one egg, some meat, two vegetables besides potatoes, and some raw fruit. If your child receives too much of the starchy or sweet foods, although he may appear to be quite well, on close examination it will be seen that he tires easily, is somewhat pale, is not as firm or solid as he should be, and frequently is subject to constipation. In this state he is much more apt to get colds or other illnesses which may permanently undermine his health. It is essential for a healthy happy child to get a well balanced diet.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

O CHLORINE O

CHLORINE is a gas, but unlike other gases it has a greenish-yellow colour and a suffocating odour. Chlorine is a poisonous gas. It is heavy, weighing nearly 25 times as much as air.

Much chlorine is used in the bleaching industry. It is also used in the purification of water, in making bleaching powder and chloroform. It is compressed in strong steel bombs or cylinders for shipping. Nearly 500 tons a day are produced in the U.S.A.

Here are three methods of preparing chlorine. Two of these are laboratory methods and one is commercial.

1. First Laboratory Method.

This method consists of warming a mixture of hydrochloric acid and manganese dioxide. The hydrogen of the acid and the manganese change places, forming water and manganese tetrachloride. This last is unstable and breaks down, forming clorine.

2nd Laboratory Method.

A second method consists of iodizing hydrochloric acid and using potassium permanganate for an oxidizing agent. No heat is required for this preparation.

3. Commercial Method.

When an electric current is passed through an aqueous solution of sodium chloride, chlorine is given off at the anode and sodium is set free at the cathode. The sodium unites with the water, forming hydrogen and sodium hydroxide. This method has advantages in that sodium chloride is cheap and the sodium hydroxide formed has many commercial uses.

MAIL CARRIER INJURED.

While A. H. Stirtan, mail carrier in charge of Spencervile R.R. 5, was on his return trip, he was injured when a car driven by F. Kinsella, R.C.H.A., of Kingston, struck the mail sleigh and threw Stirtan out on the road. The car was travelling the same direction as the mail vehicle and in making a curve the car skidded and struck the rear end of it.

PREHISTORIC VILLAGE SITE.

Interest in a prehistoric village site near Roebuck, in Grenville county, has been revived through the publication by the National Museum of Canada, Ottawa, of a volume detailing an examination of the site carried out by W. J. Wintemburg, a member of its staff, in 1912 and 1915. The site, eight acres in extent, occupies part of the farm lands of James Kelso, Nathaniel White and J. Henry, and is believed to have been occupied by Indians before the coming of the white man to Canada, to have been abandoned by them for some unknown reason. A large number of relics has been recovered from the site, which was first investigated in 1854 by the American scientist, Guest. Various skeletons have also been recovered.

Johnny: "D'ye mean my big brother or my little one."

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

- By -

MISS HELEN LACEY, B.H.Sc.

FRESH MAPLE SYRUP WILL SOON BE HERE.

HOW GOOD that first dish of fresh maple syrup tastes every spring! And what a welcome addition it is to our spring menus. Piping hot griddle cakes practically swimming in maple syrup; cornmeal muffins and popovers with maple syrup; maple syrup made into a decious pie; a cottage pudding with a maple sauce. There are countless possibilities for using this ever-popular syrup which tells us more surely than anything else that spring is truly here to stay.

MAPLE SYRUP PIE.

½ cup maple syrup
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons sugar

Heat milk in a double boiler; add syrup, beaten egg yolks, cornstarch and salt mixed. Stir constantly until thick. Cool slightly and pour onto a baked pie shell. Beat whites of eggs stiff and add sugar. Spread on top of pie and brown in a slow oven.

MAPLE SYRUP PUDDING SAUCE.

1 cup maple syrup
1 cup water
1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon flour
Salt
Nutmeg

Heat syrup and water, add flour made into paste with a little of the cold water. Stir until thickened; add butter, salt and a few gratings of nutmeg.

SOUR MILK PANCAKES.

2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
⅜ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups stale bread crumbs
1 egg
1¼ cups sour milk
1½ tablespoons melted butter

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Soften bread crumbs in boiling water. Drain off surplus water. Beat bread until smooth; add flour. Add beaten egg, milk and butter. Mix as little as possible. Bake on a greased hot griddle or iron frying pan. Turn only once during baking.

CORNMEAL MUFFINS.

2-3 cup cornmeal
1 1-3 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-3 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2½ tablespoons sugar
1 egg
1¼ cup sour milk
2½ tablespoons butter

Mix and sift flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and sugar and mix with cornmeal. Beat eggs; add milk. Make a small depression in the centre of the flour mixture and pour in egg and milk mixture, and lastly melted butter. Stir as little as possible in mixing; turn into wide greased muffin tins and bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes.

MAPLE MOUSSE.

Whip one pint of heavy cream. Sweeten to taste with maple syrup. Turn into a mould, cover and pack in ice and salt and let stand from 4 to 6 hours to freeze or place in the freezing unit of a mechanical refrigerator.

MAPLE CHARLOTTE.

1 tablespoon gelatine
½ cup cold water
½ cup scalded milk
¼ cup brown sugar
½ cup maple syrup
1 teaspoon heavy cream

Soften gelatine in cold water. Add to scalded milk, stir until dissolved. Add sugar and maple syrup, and stir until dissolved. Add vanilla. Set in a cool place until partly set. Beat until foamy with a dover beater; fold in whipped cream. Line individual molds or one large mold with a thin layer of sponge cake and on this pour the charlotte mixture. Chill, unmold and serve.

Stiffly beaten egg whites may be substituted for part of the cream if desired.

In setting a table, the napkin should be placed at the left of the forks and parallel with them. If the napkin is folded in a square, it is placed so that the open corners are at the lower edge toward the plate.

* * * *

If properly laundered a tablecloth should have only one crease, the straight central crease, which should always be in the exact centre of the table. A cloth should fall from 12 to 15 inches below the edge of the table.

* * * *

The temperature of a slow oven is between 250 and 350 degrees Fahrenheit; a moderate oven is between 350 and 400; a quick or hot oven is between 400 and 450; and a very hot oven from 450 to 500 degrees.

* * * *

Oven-Poaching is cooking in the oven in a dish set in hot water. This is a method often used in the cooking of custards, soufflés and other egg mixtures of a delicate texture.

* * * *

Simmering is cooking in water at a temperature below the boiling point of water.

Oliver's Overcoat and Sweater

"YOU SEE, Florence,' 'said Mrs. Banks, "we divided the society into as many parts as there were members of the family, and you are the chairman of one committee in your mother's place. No, I positively can't come in and sit down. We pack the box three weeks from to-day; so have your things ready by that time."

"But I don't understand," said the young girl. "Please come in and tell me."

"Well, just a minute." Mrs. Banks seated herself on a chair and opened the paper in her hand. "You have Oliver; he's seventeen and needs a sweater and an overcoat. His dimensions are given here. Oliver wants to go to college, and he is pretty well fitted out with things his mother made from the contents of former missionary boxes, but he lacks those two things. You have a list of persons to solicit, and you must have the articles at Mrs. Percy's house by the fifteenth.

"Well, of all things!" cried Florence as she looked hastily at the list of names. "Here's Mrs. Trent, a lone widow, and has been for ten years. Where would she get a sweater or the money to buy one? And here's Mrs. Block. She wouldn't give a penny to anything or anybody. I must say they gave me a fine list."

"Florence," said Mrs. Banks, trying to keep the chuckles out of her voice, "your mother and I have been imposed upon in the missionary society so long that we tamely submit. I did try to say a word for you, but you know how hard it is. I'll admit that your committee is discouraging; but do your best, dear. The minister's wife sent a brave letter, but the case is very pathetic. They are up in the bitter cold of Montana, trying to minister to the needs of the forlorn miners and they deserve encouragement. There are seven in the family, and the salary is pitifully small. Mrs. Emerson took the baby on her list; the others are well provided for."

"I'll do my best," said Florence.

"You have an easy task," said Mrs. Banks. "Ask Jack Hughes or John Temple or some of the boys in your crowd for the overcoat and sweater and collect what money you can for neckties, shoes and the small articles that boys need at college."

"I don't see anything easy about it, Mrs. Banks. Here I am housekeeping for mother while she's away for the winter, and taking care of little Paul- i e for my married sister, and—"

"I'll trade with you," said Mrs. Banks soberly. "I have the minister; and all he needs is a fur coat, a heavy lap robe, a sweater, a pair of—"

"I'll stick to Oliver, thank you," interrupted Florence nastily.

The instant that Mrs. Banks left the house Florence Orton rushed to the telephone. A few minutes later she was saying into the transmitter, "Jack, can you spare an overcoat or a sweater?"

"An overcoat?" came back over the wire.

"I want an overcoat for the missionary box," explained Florence. "You have too many clothes for one young man, and out on the frontier is a boy who needs an overcoat and a sweater. Oh, thank you! You'll have them down here sure by the twelfth. Thank you!"

But as she hung up the receiver she remembered that Jack Hughes was forgetful; it might be well to try another place. So she telephoned Fred Vincent and explained once more.

"Of course I will," said the young man cheerfully. "I've been thinking of giving two sweaters away to the garbage man. I wore them at college and they are good, but I have no use for them now."

With the aid of the telephone Florence solicited all of the persons on her list and by night she had a neatly written memorandum of articles and of sums of money promised for Oliver.

"I'm sorry I made such a fuss," she said penitently as she looked over her paper. "It was easier than I expected, and Oliver will be nicely fitted out. I'll use the money to buy pretty ties, handkerchiefs, books, school supplies and gloves—no, I won't do that. I'll ask some of the other boys for those things and send him the money."

Oliver's clothes soon became to be a joke among Florence's friends, for every young man was personally solicited time and again for some contribution. The more Florence worked the more interested she became. In glowing terms she pictured the boy's struggles to get an education, and so often did she repeat the tale that it grew to be very funny to all her friends.

"Florence, I haven't had time to hunt up that overcoat and sweater, but I will," said Jack Hughes when he met her on the street one snowy day.

"If you find a pair of discarded overshoes bring them too," said Florence hastily. "I'm on my way now to solicit some reference books from Tom Gresham. Do you know, I'm getting a little bit worried about the clothes that have been promised. This is the tenth, and nobody has sent a thing."

"You can depend on me," said Jack.

"I hope so," replied Florence. "There's Bruce Corbin; I'll see if he can't spare some neckties for Oliver."

As she sped down the street in great haste after the other young man Jack laughed softly to himself.

ON the morning of the eleventh, Florence was awakened before daylight to tell a man at the door what to do with a large box that he had been paid to deliver at the Orton house. "There must be some mistake," said Florence sleepily.

"I have orders to bring it here. I'll dump it on the porch. It says 'Miss Florence Orton' as plain as anything."

Florence was back in bed again when the Maid came up softly to say that another box had arrived. Her little niece, Pauline, began to tease to see what was in the boxes, and Florence, now thoroughly awake, dressed in a hurry and ran downstairs. On the front porch she found the second huge box. She went back to dress Pauline, but before she had finished the maid came to the room again and exclaimed, "A third box! I wonder what's happened, Miss Florence."

"I don't know; but as soon as Pete comes to attend to the furnace have him pry off a cover. We must see what is the matter."

Pete obligingly pried off some boards, and Florence drew out a neatly wrapped parcel. At that moment three more boxes arrived.

"Sweaters!" said Florence, as she ran to the sitting room to examine the parcel. "From Jack Huges."

By nine o'clock, after several more boxes had come, Florence discovered that the young men had played a joke on her; but she was far from resentful. She was too busy telephoning here and there to think of being angry. Two dozen girls received hurried calls to report at the Orton house that day. Pauline was sent to the home of a neighbour, and Pete tried to run three ways at once in doing what the girls told him to do.

"Hello! What's this?" said Jack Hughes that afternoon as he and John Temple were on their way to call at the Orton home. A grinning small boy on the street corner had thrust a handbill at him. "Great Sale of Clothing. Good as New.'" Jack read. "'Sweaters once worn by the Famous Football Star, Jack Hughes!' What do you think of that, John? Florence has turned the joke on us sure enough."

Temple held another bill in his hand and was staring at the three inch letters:

"Articles Generously Donated by our Famous Fellow Townsmen! Sale Now Going on in the Brown Block! Neckties, Gloves, Shoes, Overcoats, Sweaters and Articles too Numerous to Mention. Come! Come! Come!"

"We'll have to be game," said Jack. "They've evidently hired that empty store on Main Street."

The two young men quickened their pace and soon reached the Brown Block. There they found a good-natured, laughing crowd of men, women and children fingering goods and talking and buying.

"Those girls must have worked like beavers!" said Jack as he elbowed his way to the sweater department. "I thought we had begged, borrowed and dug up enough old duds to swamp a second-hand store, but they have system and order here. I can't resist the temptation to buy something. Madam, what do you ask for that beautiful all-wool sweater?" he asked as one of the girls came to wait on him.

"You may have it for two dollars," said the young lady. "It' was once worn by the celebrated—"

"Yes, that's the reason I want it," interrupted Jack, getting out the money.

"And I'll take this one," said John Temple. "I see it has been worn by the famous Mr. Temple; so I must have it before someone else comes this way. Bruce! Bruce! Here's the thing you've been looking for!" he added, turning to a red-faced man who had just come in. "Here's a bargain! A sweater almost new marked sixty-nine cents and once the property of the distinguished Mr. Corbin."

"I'll take it," said Bruce Corbin, producing a dollar. "Never mind the change."

Finally the crowd thinned a little, and the tired, hungry, excited clerks had a chance to get their breath.

"This afternoon we took in one hundred and ninety-one dollars and eleven cents," said Florence when she had counted the cash on hand. "And look at the stock we have left!"

The great sale of clothing lasted three days and more, and in the end everything was converted into money.

When the box reached the poverty stricken home on the frontier, the family gathered around to unpack it.

"Nothing at all for Oliver except that envelope!" said little Amy in a disappointed tone. "No overcoat! No sweater! That's a mean shame."

Olive was gazing wide-eyed at a strip of paper that he held in trembling hands. "Yes, there is something, baby," he said. "Here's a cheque for enough money for overcoat, sweater, and everything, and with the work I am going to do there's enough to see me through several years of college!"

Some Gal.

Newcomer: "I was struck by the beauty of this town."

Native: "You shouldn't get so familiar with her."

EDITORIAL.

WE celebrated the birthday of St. Patrick on March 17th. St. Patrick became the patron saint of Ireland and the day of his birth is dear to every Irishman.

His life was spent teaching, preaching and caring for the inhabitants. He believed in the three persons in the Godhead and to make his listeners understand this he used the Shamrock, showing the three parts and yet the one whole. The Shamrock as a result of this, has been chosen as the emblem of Ireland. It is worn and used as decorations on this date that the Irish especially love.

THIS winter in Eastern Ontario has been a very peculiar one. We have had very little snow but much ice on the roads. Young and old have been able to enjoy skating, not only on the fields, but also on the highways. Our first real snow storm came in March and after a night and a day of high winds and whirling snow flakes, we found our roads blocked. As a result, we had the inconvenience of late trains and mails, and snow drifts that prevented our cars being used. However, the snow-ploughs were soon called out and the highways cleared. King Sol smiled most radiantly and the heaps of snow were greatly diminished.

LENTEN season with its prayers and fasting has been brought to a close. We realize the significance of Good Friday with Christ's death on the cross, and Easter Sunday, the Day of the Glorious Resurrection. It seems to us to be the door of spring through which we see the bursting buds, the grass and the flowers. To High School boys and girls it is the reminder that the home stretch has come and final examinations with good or bad results are not far distant.

ALL newspapers are full of records of the plans for the Coronation. Buildings are being erected in London and decorations are planned. Royal invitations have been sent out; a few fortunate boys and girls of Ontario schools have received them also. The ocean liners have passages booked ahead and suites in English hotels are at a premium. Even the fashions are affected. We hear of the "Coronation blue" and the "Royal yellow" for ladies dresses. Jewels are shown in crown shapes of all sizes. The children of to-day can gather souvenirs of this wonderful occasion and when they become men and women, will be able to say, "I received these the year our King and Queen were crowned." We who cannot go to London, shall be able to listen to the ceremonies over the radio, and we shall find ourselves saying with true patriotism, "God bless our King and Queen."

SPORT NEWS

THE winter of 1936-37 has been an unfortunate one for Morewood. Unfavourable weather prevented the local rink from getting into operation, although good hockey flourished on the fields in this vicinity. Taking everything into consideration, the junior boys have done fairly well. Glen MacGregor, Douglas Nadeau and Stuart Carruthers aided the Chesterville Cubs in winning the Dixon Trophy by defeating the Winchester Stars of To-Morrow in sudden-death games at the Winchester and Chesterville Arenas. These boys, returning home, gathered a sufficient number of junior rookies and went to the Russell Arena to take part in a tournament. A cup was donated by a Russell sportsman to be competed for by junior teams from Metcalfe, Russell and Morewood. Morewood played Metcalfe, winners of the cup last year, and defeated them by a score of 4 to 3. Then Russell, remaining idle in the first of the series, defeated Morewood in a 20-minute-overtime game by a score of 4 to 3. It is hoped that next year Morewood will have a rink and will be able to place a junior team in competition.

DURING the summer, tennis and softball are played. Before the summer holidays the High School boys play tennis and after the holidays they play softball. Last year the best tennis players in Morewood lost to Chesterville, but defeated Crysler. After the vacation, the M.H.S. softball club plays regular games with a team from Russell Continuation School. Morewood won last year but this year it was a tie. The first game at Morewood was a victory for Russell, but Russell was defeated in their home game.

ALUMNI

IT is a pleasure to be able to record that a number of the pupils of the past year are striving to obtain a higher education. The following have graduated from the M.H.S.:

1936,

Marjorie MacGregor—attending the Normal School at Ottawa.

Kathleen Steen — attending Ottawa Normal School.

Glenn MacGregor—at home.

Dalton Stewart—at home.

Dora Loucks — studying Queen's extramurally.

THE PUPIL'S PROGRESS.

(With Apologies to Bunyan)

I DREAMED a dream, and behold, I saw a young man clothed in the garments of this age, standing with a book in his hand, and a great burden upon his back. Student (for that was his name) set out with his face toward the east. As he journeyed, a young man caught up with him whose name was Punctuality. "Haste thee!" said Punctuality unto him, "for it is now ten minutes to nine, and we may not be late, for fear of one 'Detention.'" So saying, he passed him by.

After a time, Student came to a building over the door of which were inscribed the words "Morewood High School." In the building were many Rooms, and a long Hall. First, did Student go to the door of a smaller room upon which was printed "Office." He gained entrance here, and began to talk with the Master of that place whose name was Principal. He said unto Student, "Thou mayst rid thyself of the burden High School Work, which is upon thy back, if thou wilt use these weapons, Attention in Class and Homework, which I shall give unto thee. These will truly aid thee in thy journey to the Goal." Student gave him many thanks and went on with his journey.

Now, not far off was the Slough of Despondency, which men called Chemistry. Being not watchful of the mire, student fell in. He was unable to get himself out because of the burden on his back, when one Persistency came and helped him out.

So these two went on together until they found themselves at the foot of the Hill of Difficulty, named Mathematics Mountain. With many groans, they gained the middle of the hill, where was a resting place. In this place they entered into combat with the giant Inaccuracy, who was lord of that hill. Student killed the giant with the weapons which had been given him, and they journeyed on. They had not gone far when they met Talkative and Popular, who made themselves their company. As they walked, they talfled of many things which had to do with School Life.

As they spoke they neared the Valley of Humiliation (known as English) where they suffered greatly at the hands of the evil ones therein, Oral Composition and Memorization. Popular and Talkatve put to use their good swords Oratory and Concentration, whereby the evil ones were vanquished.

Now, their way was smooth until they came to another great valley, wherein the ogre Latin abided in a cave, not far from where they were. He rode out to meet Student and his fellows, who became sore afraid when they perceived him coming, for he was terrible to behold. Latin slew Popular and Talkative with one mighty blow from his club Scansion. After a long battle, Student and Persistency overcame the ogre and went on their way, all the while mourning the death of Talkative and Popular.

After a time they came to the Delectable Mountain, where they found many things of great interest, such as Sports, Dramatics, Glee Club, Orchestra, and Debates. And they got much benefit and pleasure from these things.

So many, many days passed wherein good Student and Persistency met with foe and friend alike. At length they come to the great River of Final Examinations, which in crossing they were like to drown But after much struggle in the waters, they came out at the other side and were received with great joy upon the shining shore Success. For they had reached the Goal. So I awoke, and behold, it was a dream.

LITERARY SECTION

DEPENDABILITY.

IF someone speaking of you says "You can depend on him," it is one of the highest compliments that can be paid you.

No matter what your ability may be, if you are reliable, this characteristic alone will take you a long way. Always be on time. When you say you'll meet a friend some place at a certain time, be there. If school starts at nine o'clock, get there at nine. If dinner is at six, be ready to sit down at the table when the hour arrives. Tell the truth, and keep your promises. Never exaggerate. It is much better to underestimate a fact than to overstate People will say of you: "If he says so, it is so," and will depend on what you say.

Friendships have been broken, men and women have lost their jobs—all because they could not be depended upon. See to it that you keep every promise you make.

To be dependable is the first step toward success in life.

A BIT OF ADVICE.

YIELD not to flirtation,
For flirting is sin,
Each sister will help you
Her brother to win.
Shun dark lanes and lamp posts,
Shun dark alleys too,
Look ever to Leap Year,
It will carry you through.

SCHOOL ACTIVITIES.

AT each of the last two meetings of the Literary Society, pupils of Middle School have very capably presented a scene from Shakespeare's tragedy "Macbeth." The first scene was the Appearance of the Witches on the Heath." The other one was the scene showing the Murder of Duncan. If our actors continue, you may see them on the stage in the near future.

THE annual High School Concert was held on December 18th in the United Church Hall and was well attended. The programme consisted of choruses, physical exercises, human pyramids, folk dances, exhibition of chemistry experiments, and two short plays "Brothers in Arms," and "Lake Doré." The concert proved a success in every way.

WHEN I leave this mortal shore
And mosey 'round the earth no more,
Don't weep, don't sigh, don't fret, don't sob,
I may have struck a better job.
Don't go and buy a large bouquet
For which you'll find it hard to pay,
Don't hang around me looking blue,
I may be better off than you.
Don't tell folks that I was a saint,
Or anything that I ain't,
If you have dope like this to spread
Please hand it out before I'm dead.
If you have roses, bless your soul,
Just pin one in my button-hole.

Doug F.: "When was the farmer surprised?"

Gladys C.: "When he saw the barn dance."

Miss Sheppard: "Would you like to sell tickets for the lecture in the church next week, Stewart? If you sell ten you get one free."

Stewart: "Then I'll sell twenty."

Mr. Loucks: "Who was the smallest man in history?"

Mac Moffat: "The man who slept on his watch."

Marjorie Loughridge had to take her uncle to a dance with her one night. "I bet you never saw such dancing in your days, uncle?"

"Once," said her uncle, "but the place was raided."

Relief.

Sunday School Teacher: "What Parable do you like best?"

Little Jimmie: "The one about the multitude that loafs and fishes."

:: RETURN ::

IF I go back to Morewood Green,
Now that the summer's there,
What shall I see I have not seen,
What find that is more fair
Than Youth's long lost and haunted days
And love's far-off remembered ways?
On Morewood Green they linger still
And call me back—
And always will.
