Driver charged

CHESTERVILLE — One driver was charged after a May 4 collision on Main Street at 7:49 p.m., Winchester OPP Sgt. Jim Irvine said. Irvine said Craig Smirle, 18, of Chesterville, was southbound on Main Street when his 1986 Dodge Aries crossed the centre line and struck a 1983 Chevrolet Monte Carlo driven by Kerry Irven, 21, of the Crysler area. Both vehicles were damaged and Smirle was charged with careless driving, Irvine said.

401 gets facelift

CORNWALL — A 30-kilometre stretch of Highway 401 from Boundary Rd. to the Quebec border will be repaved at a cost of $3.8 million. Both the east and westbound lanes will be paved, and a portion of the shoulders. The contract, which the Ontario Transport Ministry says will create the equivalent of 78 full-time jobs, has been awarded to Wimpey Minerals Canada of Belleville. The construction, scheduled to be completed by October, is supposed to make the driving surface smoother and improve driving conditions. During 1993-94, the province will spend $900 million on development and construction of provincial highways.

Lottery tickets stolen

CASSELMAN — Provincial police are warning local store owners about stolen Nevada lottery tickets. On April 22, 1,000 tickets printed for the Junior "C" Stars were stolen from the Casselman Cafe Restaurant. Liquor and cash were also stolen. The tickets were lot #209086T. Anyone who receives a ticket from that series should contact Const. Godard at the Casselman OPP.

It's over: Vote ends Nestle lockout

Company, union agree new deal is 'win-win situation'

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Just two hours after production employees voted to accept Nestle Canada's new contract offer, workers began loading the first trailers to leave the plant in more than six weeks.

Nearly all of the 215 workers, who have been locked out since March 27, turned out at the Chesterville Legion Monday to vote on the new offer, which they accepted by 71 per cent.

Workers will be recalled gradually, beginning this week with shipping and warehouse employees, mechanics, and some production workers. All departments will be up and running by the end of the month.

"I can't express how happy I am to have this situation resolved," factory manager Jim Cummings said Monday.

Both sides are calling the ratified contract a positive solution, and note that each gave ground to reach the agreement.

"The overall reaction (from union members) was that it was pretty fair," said union president Dwayne Hall.

"I call it a win-win situation," said Cummings, adding that the end of the dispute is good news for hourly and salaried employees, other Chesterville businesses, and the whole community.

"It's good for eastern Ontario. It's good for the country."

Under the four-year contract, about 20 per cent of Nestle employees will be affected by a plan to stop paying overtime rates for weekend work, the key issue throughout the dispute.

Workers in the Quik department, and people who make juices and puddings will not be affected.

A continental work week, or seven-day production schedule, could only be implemented in the coffee manufacturing department. About 40 people in that department will work five-day shifts, which could include weekends, at regular pay rates. The 50 people who work filling and packaging instant coffee will not be affected.

Employees who give up the weekend premiums will receive a one-time payment of $1,500 — up from $1,000 in the first proposal.

The original offer, rejected by union employees in March, would have allowed Nestle to introduce a continental work week in other departments. The company contended that it couldn't keep paying overtime rates — time and a half on Saturday and double time on Sunday — and compete with other Nestle plants in the United States and Mexico.

Nestle suggested that the Chesterville plant could be closed if its costs were not under more tight control.

Workers feared that under that proposal, weekend work would become commonplace. But the new contract has offered some reassurance.

"I feel it was worth it," Hall said of the last six weeks on the picket line. "At the start, we could have ended up with a continental work week for everybody.

"We accomplished a bit, and the company accomplished a bit."

Because of U.S trade restrictions on sugar products exported from Canada, a seven-day schedule was not as crucial to the Quik department, Cummings said. The yearly sugar quota, which starts each October, was 96 per cent full as of Monday morning, said Cummings. Workers loaded nine trailers of

Back to work: Nestle employees loaded nine trailers full of Quik chocolate beverage powder for export to the United States Monday evening. Plant manager Jim Cummings said the sugar quota, the amount of sugar products that can be exported from Canada to the U.S. each year, is almost full and the Quik had to be shipped as soon as possible.

Proposal to downsize counties council draws mixed reaction locally

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL — A move by Kenyon Township to trim the size of SD&G counties council by removing the 17 deputy reeves is drawing mixed reaction from local municipalities.

Winchester Township Reeve Claude Cousineau said he considers the move a "dead issue" at counties council, which is expected to tackle the matter at its May session next week.

Winchester Township council declined to forward a resolution on the matter when it was brought up at council last week.

Cousineau said it was brought up when he was warden in 1990, and some deputy reeves took it personally rather than professionally.

"They took it personally rather than looking at the issue. It's not the person we were trying to get rid of, it was the position."

Cousineau also said deputy reeves, if chopped from counties council, could still offer their input to the council through the reeve.

"I still think one representative from each municipality would be a good working council," he said, noting that counties council is currently larger than New Brunswick's provincial legislature.

Roxborough Township passed a resolution in favor of the reduction.

Deputy Reeve Gerald Montcalm, who moved the resolution, said the matter for him was purely one of cost.

"It's high time to study costs. Ratepayers are fed up with excess government and excess taxes," he said. "We have more municipal and school board politicians in SD&G than P.E.I. has in provincial and federal politicians."

Montcalm said that in retrospect, he should have suggested that one representative from each municipality, not necessarily the reeve, sit on counties council.

He also noted the cost incurred by deputy reeves, who receive $110 per day plus mileage and are paid for committee work.

Chesterville recently passed a resolution opposing the reduction. In opposing the move, reeve and SD&G Warden Jim Cook said that the $165,000 cost of running the council is less than one per cent of the entire counties budget.

Cook also said that the 17 deputy reeves offer talent and advice to counties council.

Osnabruck Township voted unanimously to oppose Kenyon Township's resolution.

Deputy Reeve Doug Leighton cited a number of reasons in opposing the proposal.

Leighton questioned what would happen to the committee structure if deputy reeves were eliminated.

"Counties council would have to look at downsizing the entire committe structure. There'd be less bodies to carry the weight," Leighton said. " It would mean more meetings and extra responsibilities."

Leighton also said a municipality having two votes, or four in the case of larger municipalities like Osnabruck, adds credibility to the process and makes sure the community's voice is heard.

And Leighton discounted the notion that eliminating the deputy reeves would result in tremendous cost saving.

"There are a lot of ways to save money and I don't think that's the way to do it. If somebody can show me where it's going to save $100,000 then maybe I'll consider it more seriously."

He also noted that if the reeve were absent from a counties council session, a municipality might miss its vote on crucial matter.

Driving a hard bargain:

Teens say proposed restrictions have good points, bad points

Greg Hewitt

The province's plan for tough restriction on new drivers won't affect 18-year-old Kelly Buske of Chesterville — and she is glad.

"It bothers me because getting my licence was a big deal — it's your freedom," she says.

Buske, a North Dundas District High School student who has had her permanent driver's licence for more than two years, says mandatory driver education is a better alternative to make roads safer.

> "You're already limited by inexperience, you don't need to limit yourself further by driving impaired."
>
> -NDDHS student Brendan Shane

Citing "overwhelming statistical evidence that inexperienced drivers pose a very serious safety threat," Ontario's Ministry of Transportation revealed a plan for tough restrictions on new drivers.

The so-called graduated licensing system for new drivers was announced last week and is scheduled to take effect in the spring of 1994.

Under the new system, new drivers will be allowed to drive only Class 'G' vehicles such as cars, vans and small trucks. They must not have more passengers than there are seat belts in the car, must have a blood-alcohol content of zero, must be accompanied by a fully-licensed driver with no less than four years' experience and with a blood- alcohol level less than .05 per cent, and will not be permitted on 400-series highways such as Hwy. 401 or Ottawa's Queensway.

They will also be restricted to driving between 5 a.m. and midnight, and must display a vehicle sign identifying them as a new driver.

After a period of 12 months, or eight after a driver's education course, new drivers will be required to pass a driving test. Upon doing so, only the zero blood-alcohol and passenger limitations will remain in place.

But again after 12 months, drivers must pass an "advanced" test focusing on their ability to recognize and take appropriate action in hazardous situations.

Clint Berry, 15, is taking a driver's education course at NDDHS. And he says he's looking forward to getting his licence — without the new restrictions.

Berry says some of the proposed restrictions are good ideas, like the seat belt and zero-alcohol rules.

But he notes that he lives in a rural area with no public transportation or bus service and being able to drive alone is an important asset.

Berry agreed with Buske that mandatory driver education courses and perhaps a tougher road test are more reasonable ways to ensure that new drivers know what they're doing.

But classmate Brendan Shane, 17, of Winchester Springs, is in favor of the proposed restrictions on new drivers.

Village greets end of lockout with relief

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

It didn't take long for word to spread Monday that the six-week-old Nestle lockout was over. And most people reacted in the same way — with relief and satisfaction.

"We're very happy that it's over," said Chesterville Merchants Association president Mike Dean.

The dispute created anxiety among those on the picket line, and those who watched from the sidelines.

Homeowners, businesspeople, and Nestle employees alike worried about the plant's future.

"I think people will begin to get more relaxed," said Reeve Jim Cook. "I sensed a nervousness about the situation."

But with the relief also comes the hope that any rifts formed during the lockout will be quickly healed.

"I just hope that the community can get back together," said Dean.

Nestle management and union members don't foresee tension now that the two sides are back under one roof.

"People have known each other for years," said union president Dwayne Hall. "I don't think that will be a problem for anybody."

Hall noted that the lockout was the second labor dispute for many union members who worked at the factory when a 1969 strike shut down the plant for 13 weeks.

"A lot of us have been through this before," he said. "We all live together, and we know each other."

Factory manager Jim Cummings said he plans to meet with all employees, in small groups, as they return to work.

"We want to start off on the right foot," he said. "We want to put the past behind us and get on with the future with a positive attitude."

During the last six weeks, unprecedented attention was focused on Chesterville.

The involvement of high-profile labor leaders and nationalists like Council of Canadians chairwoman Maude Barlow and Canadian Labor Congress president Bob White, who blamed the dispute on the North American Free Trade Agreement, helped attract national and Ottawa media to the village.

"Everybody is going to be able to go back to what we would call normal," said Cook.

In a statement released Tuesday, Winchester police commended the two sides for the lack of violence and conflict during the lockout. OPP officers were often seen at the picket line, quietly observing or chatting with locked-out employees.

"With your good spirits, conduct and professionalism, potential conflicts on the line were kept to a minimum in what could have been a very difficult time for all involved," said Sgt. Jim Irvine, detachment commander.

"Once again we would like to express our thanks and admiration to those who participated in the lockout and made our job much easier."

Lockout ends

Quik for export Monday evening.

"Coffee is our number 1 product line," he said. "We need it (the continental work week) in coffee to keep the plant flexible and strong."

Cummings said the new agreement will allow the company to bid for more coffee business.

"It makes us a more flexible factory, and it makes us a more competitive factory," he said.

The ratified agreement, negotiated at a five-hour meeting last Wednesday, came after two failed attempts at mediation by the Ontario Ministry of Labor.

"There was no mediation. I think maybe that's the best way to do it," said Hall.

Other highlights of the contract include a two-per-cent wage hike on an average hourly rate of $15.69, and increases in line with inflation during the next three years.

If Nestle Canada reaches its profit goal of $60 million in 1993, all employees will receive a three-per-cent bonus. Time lost during the lockout — up to 200 hours — will be credited toward the bonus.

Restrictions have good points and bad, teens say

"I think it would be a good thing in the long run," says Shane, who has had his licence for a year.

Shane says if he had been subject to the same rules, he "would be mad but you have to realize it's for the good of everyone and the good of myself."

But Shane noted that a sign identifying new drivers might be "embarrassing" to some and could lead to taunting by other drivers.

He says he agrees with the zero-alcohol rule because "you're already limited by inexperience, you don't need to limit yourself further by driving impaired."

And Matt Robinson says he also agrees with the proposal. The 16-year-old NDDHS student has had his licence for three months.

Robinson says a year of driving accompanied by an experienced driver would help a new driver gain experience. He notes that with a learner's permit, or 365, no experience is currently needed before seeking a permanent licence.

"The longer you're with somebody in the car with experience, the more you're going to learn," he says, adding that the driver education course he took was helpful and should be mandatory.

NDDHS driving instructor John Sloan agrees that some formal training should be compulsory, but says because the courses will no longer be subsidized, boosting the cost. It's a move he says will discourage some new drivers from taking the classes.

But Sloan agrees with the province's proposed restrictions, except for the "new driver" sign. He says it might cause a distraction to new drivers.

"The reduction in road accidents would be worth it in the long run. It's a step in the right direction," he says.

Corn fire prompts warnings

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

ELMA — A huge blaze in a corn field that lit up the night sky west of Elma last Tuesday has prompted Williamsburg Township deputy fire chief Doug Disheau to call for warnings about spring burning.

Williamsburg Township and Winchester fire departments responded to calls around 9 p.m. and beat the fire out with brooms for nearly two hours. The fire consumed about 50 acres in two fields.

Disheau said the fire appears to have originated from an intentionally lit grass fire on a neighboring property that spread to the adjacent field.

And Disheau said those who light fires that get out of control and require the fire department's assistance are usually billed the cost, but the township had not yet issued a warning to residents about burning this spring.

"Normally, we tell them that if you start it, you pay for it, but until (they're warned) through the paper there's not a lot we can do about it," he said.

He said he was going to recommend to council Tuesday night that letters be sent to certain landowners in the township warning them of the consequence of fires that get out of control.

Williamsburg Township fire chief Lyal Kehoe said it cost the department about $1,400 to have 17 men and two fire vehicles attend the fire for two hours.

Job centre hopes to place 1,100 students

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL — It's not easy for students to find summer employment these days.

But the Canada Employment Centre for Students on Pitt Street in Cornwall offers SD&G students a fighting chance.

For 25 years, the centre has opened throughout the summer as a means for students to be matched with potential employers.

Centre supervisor Carolyn Sayyeau says one thing students have in their favor is the compassion and understanding of the community.

"The community understands they're our future and that they're good, dedicated workers. They feel for them."

To use the centre's services, students must register, which is much the same as filling out a job application. It gives the staff an idea of qualifications, experience and what kind of job the student wants.

To be eligible, students must be returning to full-time studies in the fall, including high school, university or college.

Students in the Chesterville area can register with the centre at the Dundas Human Resources Centre on Industrial Drive.

And Sayyeau says that students who live outside Cornwall but have their own transportation are on equal footing with Cornwall students when it comes to Cornwall summer jobs.

Sayyeau says she is enthusiastic and optimistic about the team working at the centre. And she is confident that despite less than favorable economic conditions, it will be a banner year for students.

"They've placed about 1,100 per year here, but I'd like to strive for more. And I will.

"I was once a student and (the three student placement officers) are students so we know what it's like," she says.

Student placement officer Denise Roy, one of three at the centre, admits that more and more, students cannot find jobs through traditional ways and have to market themselves well.

But she says there are jobs out there for those who want to work. And her job, she says, is to try to find something compatible for both the student and the employer.

The centre also offers services such as help with resume writing and information on government programs available.

In attending the centre's opening Friday, Chesterville Reeve and SD&G Warden Jim Cook noted that the centre's services are open to all students in SD&G and said he hopes counties students will take advantage of the centre.

Stormont-Dundas MP Bob Kilger, who also attended the opening, described the centre as "an opportunity for students to make an investment in their own futures and for employers to invest in the youth work force."

In pursuit of Canadiana

Quiz tests students' knowledge of their country

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

Which 1673 governor of New France established a fort at present-day Kingston? What is the provincial flower of British Columbia? What are the four townships in Glengarry County? According to Statistics Canada, which western city had the highest homicide rate in 1990?

That may sound like the Canadian version of Trivial Pursuit, but it's just a sample of what students across Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry were asked this week during the ninth annual Canada Quiz.

Four-member teams from 10 high schools and 23 elementary schools competed in day-long tournaments Tuesday and Wednesday in Cornwall. The quiz tests students' knowledge of Canadiana — politics, sports, art, history, literature, current events, history and geography.

The quiz was started in 1984 by two teachers who wanted to mark Ontario's bicentennial. But is was too difficult to come up with enough questions just about Ontario, says one of the quiz's founders, Fran Laflamme.

Laflamme, who retired in 1987 after a 35-year teaching career, says she's not surprised to see how interest in the quiz has grown.

"As people, we like quizzing," she said. "I guess there's enough questions in our life that we can't answer, so it's a relief when we can."

Students at North Dundas District High School, which sent two teams to the competition this year, began preparing for the tournament in January. They meet three times a week, answering questions for an hour. In the last seven years, the school's senior team has won the tournament four times.

"We have to keep up the reputation of North Dundas," said teacher Doug Graham, who coached the Grade 9/10 team. "We're going to win, not just to show."

Since high school students only have two compulsory Canadian-content courses — history and geography — they have to pick up a lot of information on their own.

"A lot of it is reading the newspapers or having a good memory," says Charles Eadie, a teacher at Rothwell-Osnabruck School in Ingleside. "They have to be up on current events."

All the questions are written by teachers, and some involve the history, politics and geography of SD&G. Teams compete in a round-robin tournament and answer 30 questions in each round.

"The purpose is twofold," says tournament co-ordinator Fern Mainville. "One is to promote Canadianism, and the other is to have students compete in a different field. Usually it's sports, and here they have a chance to compete intellectually."

And as far as anyone knows, SD&G is the only region to have such a competition.

"The only surprise in all of this to me is that we're the only area that does it," says Laflamme.

By the way, in case you were wondering about those questions, the answers are: Frontenac; dogwood; Charlottenburgh, Kenyon, Lancaster and Lochiel; and Regina.

Lockout lessons are plenty

As the media spotlight on Chesterville quickly fades, the end of the labor dispute at Nestle Canada has given many in the village an occasion to reflect on what was gained and, perhaps, what was lost.

Despite the inherent nature of a lockout, which leaves a bad taste in everyone's mouth, the Nestle dispute failed to generate the ill-will and conflict that may have been expected. Indeed, the mood on the picket line was often jovial and light-hearted. There were no reports of major vandalism or violence.

Although the notion of "family spirit" at the plant was scoffed at by union members throughout the six-week lockout, perhaps some of it is there. Something must happen to people who work in the same place for 10, 20 or 30 years. Obviously there must be a sense of loyalty, or the members would not have guarded their right to work there so strongly.

What effect the national attention, both from media and labor leaders, had on the dispute is arguable. While Nestle discouraged third-party involvement, it undoubtedly helped take the issue from a small eastern Ontario village right across the country.

It drove home the notion of power — power on both sides of the picket line. People across the country were forced to recognize the power of large, multi-national corporations to affect change, and the power of the labor movement to resist that change.

Obviously some Nestle employees will be unhappy with the new contract — probably those affected by the continental work week, the most contentious issue throughout the dispute.

But the union did succeed in keeping weekend overtime premiums for most employees, and the company succeeded in cutting costs in its instant coffee department, something it says could help attract new business to the Chesterville plant. And what both sides have now is four years of labor peace.

So what was lost during these last six weeks? Perhaps the feeling that Chesterville is immune to global change, and that a village built 75 years ago around a food-processing plant can forever rely on one industry. The message that the Chesterville plant is just one of many was brought home loud and clear.

The issues confronted during the lockout are ones that go far beyond the gates of Nestle and even farther beyond the borders of the village.

OFF THE RECORD

Just a short hop to the short stop

By Robin Morris
Author of Clueless Joe

Now where were we? Oh yes. On the way to the fort field to end the longest hold-out in the history of the Prescott Grasshopper League, longer than Rocket Ismail's hegira in the wasteland of the CFL, longer than Pat LaFontaine's prolonged snit on Long Island and longer than Eric Lindros's assertion that Quebec is for the Quebecois, seulement.

To recap briefly: for three years I had signed up to play shortstop in the Grasshopper League. I had no more idea what the duties of a shortstop were than I had of the workings of quantum mechanics, but it sounded like the neatest position on the field and after all, what, in the mind of a 10-year-old, could be expected of someone who played *Short*Stop? Period. Bugger all, I figured.

Little did I know that a short is expected to have the speed of a cat on dexedrine, a range equal to the Himalayas, the eyesight of a peregrine falcon and the reflexes of a mongoose.

Everything was going to be just jim dandy once my dubious athletic talents were exposed for all the world to see.

I can't even remember the name of the team I had been boycotting for these three long seasons. The Indians, or the Reds or something Native North American or having to do with baseball hosiery. All I remember was that the coach, Harry Gilchrist, immediately went into a high dudgeon on finally sighting me.

This was what he had waited three years to see? A kid who couldn't find short, let alone play it? A kid who didn't know that the fields were designated left, centre and right from the perspective of the batter and not the pitcher? No wonder I'd had so much trouble finding deep right. But at the distance from home plate that the captain preferred I play the position, the rest of the team had to use semaphore to signal to me that we were getting our raps. And it never ceased to amaze me how few of them knew semaphore.

So I failed to make much of a first impression on Harry, who I remember as a particularly irascible sort of coach, immediately shifting me when I couldn't quite determine where to play short, to deep right and then yelling from the bench that I was to play the other right. And the timbre of Harry's voice was such that he didn't need semaphore flags to signal his displeasure, even at the distance at which I was removed from the rest of the English-speaking world.

One of the least enjoyable aspects of little league is that sooner or later everybody gets a turn at the plate. Mine came later rather sooner, as I vaguely remember that we were on the short end of a particularly one-sided slugfest, a fact that was not helped by having a player in deep right who was wearing his father's ball glove, an athletic anachronism that would have been more at home in Cooperstown than the Fort Town of the fifties. Jack, now in his eighties, got the glove when he was a kid, which, it seemed to me, viewing the trappers, pumpkins and fielders gloves worn by the other members of my team, came from the period when Abner Doubleday was codifying the rules of Town Ball.

So I finally got my raps, sometime in the late innings, facing my grade five classmate, Stevie Wormington, who was the third generation of his family to stare down batters from the mound in the southwest corner of the fort field. Bert and the Bomber were baseball legends. And young Stevie appeared to be following in their cleat marks. He'd pitched for the travelling team, even taking the ferry boat to pitch against Ogdensburg, where he had been unceremoniously undressed and left naked on the hill by the better-coached young American hitters.

But we'd gotten our revenge on the Yanks, hooting with derision when the announcer at their ballpark tried to pronounce catcher Mike Urquhart's name. It came out sounding vaguely like Yugle Hart. But then again, Urquhart is not the kind of name that trips lightly off the tongue, unless your tongue is used to getting around "bra bricht moonlicht nichts".

"Come on Steve," I thought, "we're friends. Give me a butterfly; float her down the middle, buddy, chest high and right over the plate. At least walk me. Or better yet, hit me. Here, I'll stick my head right over the plate and give you a good target. Just let me get to first and you can ride my bike forever. I'll carry your books home for the rest of the year. Oil your glove. Anything. Just don't strike me out."

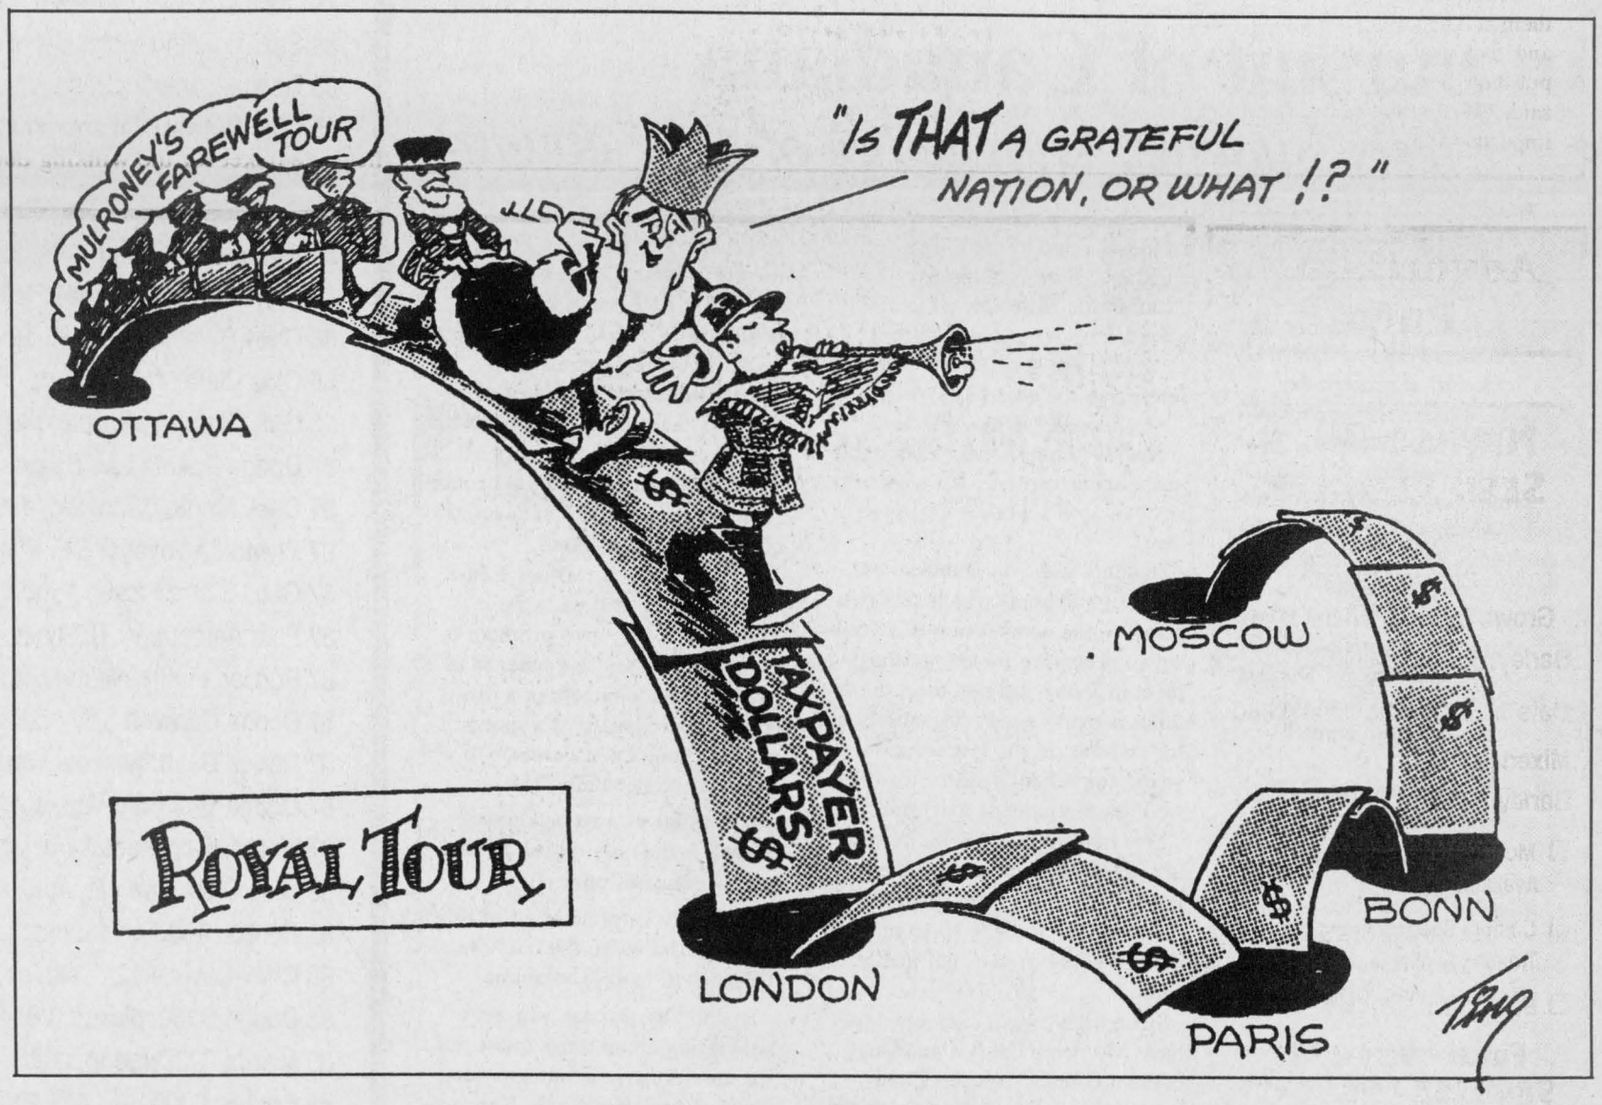
So I did the only thing I could. I closed my eyes and steadfastly ignored the ball when it should have been nearing the plate.

It only took about three minutes, but pain doesn't have to be prolonged to be memorable. And the defining moment of a 10-year-old's athletic career was over.



THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

Nobody asked me but...this week I am laboring under difficulties. The painters are here and yes, since I never do anything by halves, I decided to have the whole house painted at once. Inside and outside.

To the question of why would you do that, my only answer is that it all needed it at once and I might as well be in a good mess and be done with it.

It took me a week to dismantle the house and pack it into two rooms and I anticipate it may take me all summer to put it to rights again.

Into all this, I had guests arrive from Western Ontario, yes, overnight guests. Well, since all the cupboards and stove were draped in plastic, the Farmer suggested we eat out. I heartily agreed.

Fortunately for us, and even more fortunately for the guests there is a new little restaurant opened for business recently in the village to the east of us. They serve excellent food, the service is good, the price right. I never fed guests so easily.

Now the sleeping arrangements were not so easy to handle but sleeping bags laid out on sponge mattresses on the living room floor sufficed, more or less. Yes, they were old friends and campers of long standing.

It was good to see them and great to visit with them while dodging first one painter and then the next. If it hadn't rained the day and a half they were here life would have been a piece of cake for we have the gallery, a big lawn and much lawn furniture. But, we did need the rain, for I planted more trees this year, really only replacing the ones that didn't make it over winter. But, like a true Farmer, "We needed rain, we needed it bad."

The Farmer had a doctor's appointment in the city the other day and as we drove to it, men and women alike were out doing lawn and garden work. The Farmer said he had read the following quote recently, "What a man needs in gardening is a cast-iron back with a hinge in it." I'm sure by evening, the men and women we saw would say "Amen" to that.

Everything was lovely and green and spring was certainly worth waiting for, although we thought about mid-March that it never would come. The peepers and birds are thoroughly enjoying the evening hours. I guess they have a lot of catching up to do, as well.

For Mother's and Father's Day, the Farmer and I received a combined gift, tickets to see and hear "The Rankin Family" at the National Arts Centre. They are great favorites of ours and they certainly did not disappoint the packed Opera.

We came home and played their tapes again as the Farmer had received their music for his birthday. There is nothing nicer than a gift of tickets or musical tapes, or so it seems to us.

I heard a lady, sound in mind and body, say, "This will help pass the time away." I took a real good look at her thinking she surely must be kidding. I doubt that she was!

I wondered at her. We all have just so much time and just "passing it away" is rather like throwing precious gems into a bottomless pit.

For even fairly healthy people, it seems extremely selfish. I doubt whether there is a place in Eastern Ontario where there is nothing at all to do. Help is always needed.

Strangely enough, the handicapped or ill rarely speak of just passing the time away. One of the most occupied women I know is a serious diabetic, has a weak heart, cancer in remission, and yet, is busy all day, keeping her house, tending her plants, playing her organ and piano. She plays by memory and said to me recently, "Wasn't it fortunate I was a music teacher and choir leader and have so much music memorized."

"In fact," she laughed, "isn't it fortunate my memory is good even if the diabetes has almost robbed me of my sight."

She never complains and when she dies she will not leave a memory of a useless life and of suffering, but a memory of a useful and busy time.

We took a rather long drive this past week to spend a few hours with friends who live beside a river. Behind the house the land rises to become a good hill, and this gives the home what I can only call a snug look, although I'm not all that fond of the word snug.

The country always seems wilder than ours although very, very beautiful. It must be because we're not used to it, not used to hills and rocks and even small mountains. It is a pretty drive as the road winds along in a timeless sort of way, quite enjoyable.

Inside the house you enter a big, comfortable dining-living room, and beyond it is an addition they built which is what I call a summer and winter room. It has comfortable couches, low tables, and a wonderful view down the river.

On this particular day we sat around the Franklin stove for it was cool enough for the "small busy flame" that Keats described so well. Oscar was on the bearskin rug and we talked about him, a quiet dark brown German Snepherd who drifted in during a January snowstorm more years ago than they care to remember.

Oscar is very old but has great dignity, great reserve, and if I tried to relate a few of his adventures, I would be copying from my friends column about him, for he is one of her favorite subjects. In the written word as well as the spoken word, and I could easily see why.

We had a grand visit talking of birds and flowers and many country things. And when we leave, we drive away in the sunset light. They stand on the steps waving, smiling their warm quiet smiles, Oscar by their side.

"It's always hard to say good-bye to them," I say to the Farmer.

"But, we had a useful and rewarding visit," he replies.

St. Lawrence Parks attractions vital to Ontario economy: study

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

MORRISBURG — Four St. Lawrence Parks Commission attractions, including Upper Canada Village, contribute $79 million to Ontario's economy, says a report released last week.

The economic impact study, by Econometrics Ltd., analyzed survey data taken during the summer of 1991. Visitors to Upper Canada Village, Long Sault Parkway, Riverside-Cedar Campsite and Kingston's Fort Henry were questioned about their spending habits both at and away from the tourist attractions.

The study found that people spent $4.4 million at the four sites, and $27.4 million on travel, food, beverages, accommodation, recreation and souvenirs in the local and surrounding areas.

Parks finance manager Stephen Gourlay explained that when the spinoff effects are considered, including jobs created and taxes paid by those employees, the attractions contribute $79 million to the province's economy.

"We thought (the contribution) would be significant, but we estimated it at a figure lower than it was," he said.

Gourlay noted that the survey was taken at the height of the recession, and that actual economic impact is probably higher. The report said the numbers in the study are "gross underestimates" of true tourism potential of the Parks of the St. Lawrence.

"These contributions could and should be increased," the report said. "The potential for growth is real and realizable."

The report also noted that since attractions like Upper Canada Village are unique, money spent there doesn't take revenues away from other facilities.

"The expenditures and impacts are net additions and incremental benefits to Ontario and Canada," the report said.

Gourlay said the study, the first in about 20 years, will be used for budgeting and planning.

"When we're going to budget or do any investment, we'll look to this as an indicator," he said.

"If we're going to invest a dollar in a project, we'll look at what is going to create the most benefit to the economy."

A preliminary plan for extensive waterfront development at Upper Canada Village was presented to the commission in February. The members approved it as a concept, but as yet there is no word on when the project could get underway. Construction costs for the first phase of the development was estimated at $3.17 million.

The study covers about 79 per cent of the commissions's money-making facilities. Other attractions not part of the 1991 study include Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary, 100 Islands Parkway, Crysler Park Marina and Upper Canada Golf Course.

The commission says every dollar spent by visitors at the surveyed sites contributes about $17 to eastern Ontario's economy.

Tips help young cyclists stay safe

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

Jennifer Foster and Kristy Wood learned much about bicycle safety from an Ontario Provincial Police officer last week, but there's one thing the two Chesterville Public School students already knew — wearing a helmet can prevent a serious injury.

The two ride their bikes to school each day, and always put on a helmet beforehand.

Eight-year-old Jennifer said she asked her parents for a bicycle helmet "because I don't want to hit my head and split it open."

"It was my idea because I want to be on the safe side," she said.

But Const. Al Lummiss, who conducts bicycle safety workshops at area schools, said many children don't think about the potential for accidents before they ride.

"Unfortunately you see a lot of them at lunch time or after school, and they just get on their bikes, put their head down, and go," he said. "It's getting home that's the important thing."

Lummiss teaches children how to stay safe on their bikes — from knowing the rules of the road to having the proper equipment.

Ontario law, for instance, requires that all bikes have a bell or horn, a front light for night driving, and a reflector or light on the rear. Whether to make helmets mandatory is also under consideration.

Lummiss said the $30 pricetag on most helmets can deter parents from buying them. "But when you think about what you're risking," he said, the helmet is worth the cost.

And some children are uncomfortable with the "look" of helmets, although Jennifer Foster says her helmet, decorated with shiny purple stickers, "looks pretty nice."

"My brother thinks the helmet looks dumb on him," added nine-year-old Kristy. "But it protects his head, so I don't think it looks dumb."

Lummiss's workshop for children includes reviewing 13 rules for cyclists. Recommended by the Ontario Ministry of Transportation for bikers of all ages, the rules are:

- Obey all traffic signs and signals;
- Drive on the right-hand side of the road, not in the middle or on the left;
- Ride single file on the street and don't follow other cyclists too closely;
- Stop before driving into the street from your driveway or lane to allow motorists to see you;
- Walk your bike at busy corners;
- Give the correct hand signals before stopping, slowing or turning;
- Carry parcels or books in a carrier or basket;
- Never ride two on a bicycle;
- Never hitch a ride on another vehicle, such as the side of a truck;
- Don't "trick ride" on streets or highways;
- Be alert to vehicles about to pass you;
- Equip your bike with safety devices;
- Keep your bike in good workingorder by checking brakes, lights and tires regularly.

For the entire family
1963-1993

Holm-El Styling Salon was established in May 1963 after I graduated from Marvel Hair Styling Academy with honours. Several years later, I took an advanced styling course at "The House of Coupal Hair Academy". Business started with a small, modest salon and grew to a new, larger salon in 1972, with an emphasis on service and the highest quality products for my clients.

I think of my clients as not only clients, but friends as well.

We are truly thankful for the support the community has given us for the past 30 years. We plan to be here to serve you for many more.

A special "Thank you" to all from

Terry Bigot, a native of Pakenham, along with daughter Julie, decided to start a business eight years ago. After a three-year search from Sharbot Lake to Lancaster, they finally settled in South Mountain in the heat of July, and will be celebrating five years in business this summer. The famous mother-daughter team have a very successful business due to their friendly and personal atmosphere.

The Country Girls General Store and Wool Shoppe, known to Terry and Julie as "their heavenly little nook", employs three full-time and three part-time people. Terry and one of the full-time employees do all the homemade baking, made fresh every day. You can find everything you need at the Country Girls, ranging from ice cream to wool, a quick, fresh lunch to go or a movie rental.

Terry, Julie and their friendly staff invite you to stop by and say hello the next time you visit South Mountain.

The Brinston General Store has played a significant part in the small hamlet's history. Years ago it was more than just a general store, it was a place where people could stop and chat over a piping hot cup of coffee.

A year and a half ago, Kelly Peters and his wife Cindy bought the General Store in Brinston. Re-arranging the interior, a table and chairs where added, and once again coffee is served up hot. The store has returned to a meeting place in the community where friends can sit for a while and discuss current events.

As well, the store offers a wide variety of affordable craft supplies and crafts made by local people. Groceries, gas, party supplies, helium balloons, movies, carpet cleaners, candy, and a slush machine, can also be found at the General Store, and if you're feeling lucky, you can pick up a 649 ticket while Kelly makes you an ice cream cone (all your favorite flavors).

If you're in the area, pop in, sit down, relax, have a coffee, and pick up your groceries. Kelly, Cindy, Trish and Julie Ault, are always happy to serve you.

Kelly & Cindy Peters – Proprietors

Owners and operators of the Rise N Shine Family Restaurant, Rose and George Fawcett have been in business in Iroquois for five years. These friendly, down home folks specialize in home cookin'!

Two years ago, they renovated and updated their dining area, creating a bright and cheery room to enjoy a great meal in, any time.

The addition this summer of a take-out section will provide the area with a late night eatery. Expecting to serve pizza, burgers, dogs, fries, ice cream and such, Rose is seeking a responsible person to operate this part of the restaurant. If things go well, a second person will be hired to help out, nights and weekends. This will bring the employee total to seven. A growing place where great food is a certainty, the Rise N Shine is the place to stop for a snack or a meal, alone or with the whole family.

Tucked in beside Iroquois Enterprises this establishment is one place you will leave completely satisfied; the food and the service are top notch.

PUBLIC NOTICE
FIRE HYDRANT FLUSHING

The Utility Operations of M.O.E. will be conducting scheduled maintenance of village fire hydrants. This program is designed to ensure that our hydrants will be ready if needed by the Fire Department.

The hydrants are inspected for proper operation and their flow capacities are checked. This maintenance procedure is routine but may result in some temporary minor inconveniences such as reduced water pressure or "red" water.

IF COLOURED WATER IS DETECTED

1) Please open your COLD water taps to clear the system.
2) The coloured water is not hazardous to health.
3) This situation is temporary and should last no longer than two hours.

The flushing operation will commence on May 17th through to May 28, 1993.

The staff of the MINISTRY OF THE ENVIRONMENT thanks you for your cooperation and understanding.

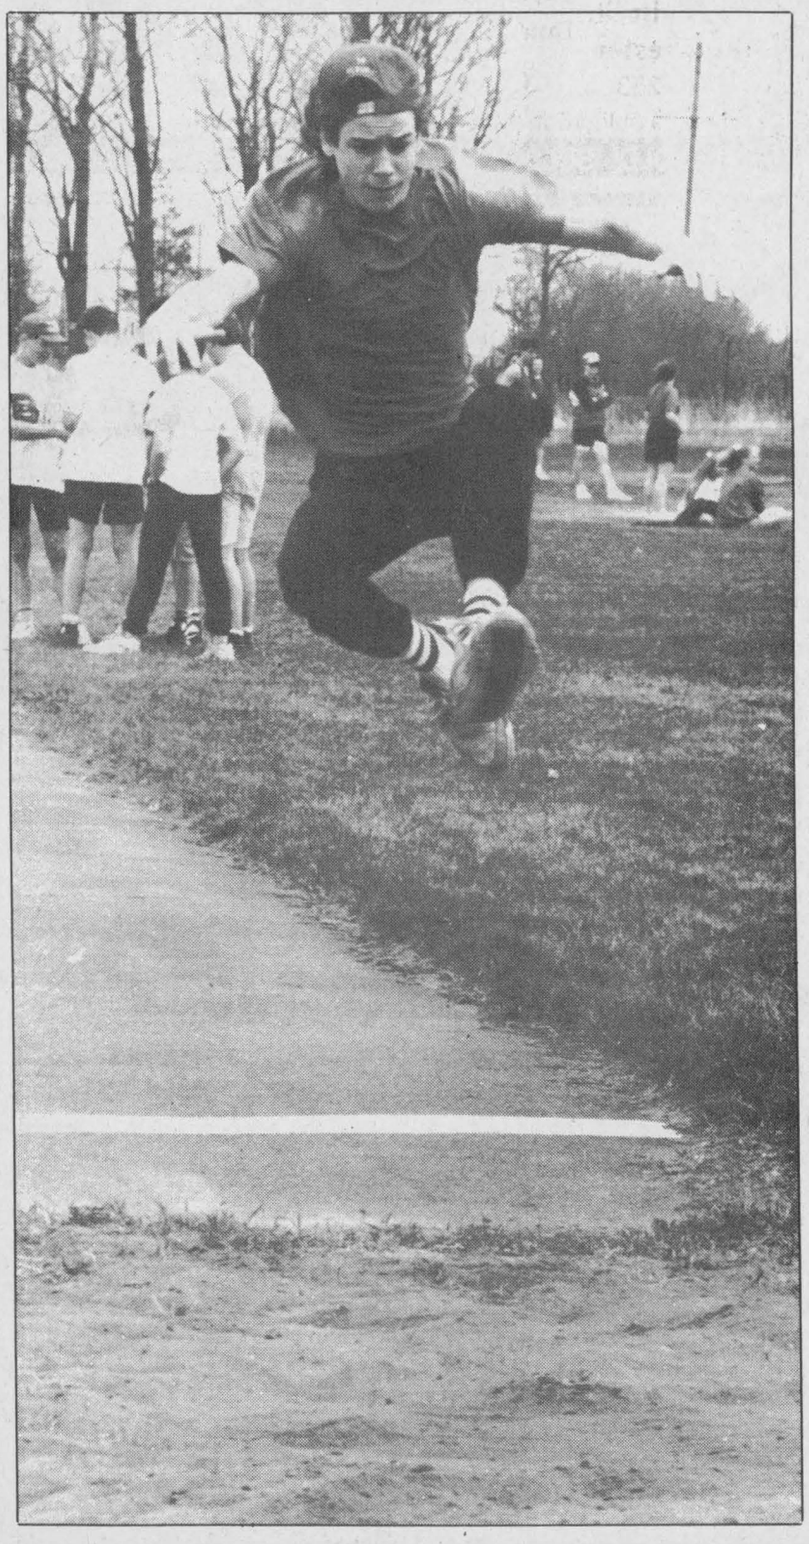
The Record Sports



Chesterville's Kris Young (above) takes to the air in the long jump while Andrea Sharkey (right) clears the bar in the high jump during North Dundas District High School's annual house track and field meet Tuesday. Green House upset Black for the school title.

Green breaks lock on track crown

There was a changing of the colors at North Dundas District High School last Tuesday.

The championship Black House flag was lowered and replaced with the pennant of the new champs from Green House.

Athletes from Green House earned a total of 436 points and finished 29 ahead of the defending champs from Black (407). Gold House finished third with 327 and Red House fourth with 235 points.

While some veteran members of the North Dundas Devils school track team took the day off to recover from the aches and pains of the Stevens Memorial Relay Meet and recover for this week's SD&G Championship Meet, track team coaches were able to spot some new talent from the annual in- school competition.

Lauren Clobridge carried Black House colors to victory winning the midget girls 400m, 800m and 1500m events. Senior Catie Clapp, also of Black House, struck gold three times grabbing the red ribbons in the high jump, shot put and long jump.

Girls showing the way for Green House included Tanya Williams, Mary Linton, Tamara Bond and Carrie Fawcett.

Williams won the midget girl's 200 metre sprint in a time of 32:53 and placed second in the 100 metre final. Fawcett took gold medals in the midget javelin and high jump and landed a silver in the triple jump.

Linton, a junior, won the 800 metre race in a 3:12.40 clocking and earned a bronze in the 400 metre final. Bond claimed gold in both senior middle distance events, the 800 and the 1,500, with times of 3:06.46 and 6:43.67 respectively.

Green House got three first-place finishes from senior Sean Hache, who ran up wins in the 400m, 200m and 100m races, and midget Chris Wicke, who gained first-place points in the 200m and 400m runs.

Robbie Raistrick (Red), Murray Link (Red), Geoff Hardy (Black), Jamie Nolan (Gold) and Ryan Buske (Black) were all double event winners in boys' competitions.

Raistrick took firsts in the midget boy's 800 and 1,500 metre events while Hardy won double gold in the field events, taking the triple jump and the long jump.

Link cruised through the junior 400 and 800 metre races while Nolan, also a junior, won the high jump and long jump.

Buske fired a 37.50 metre toss to win the senior javelin event and landed a jump of 4.38 metres to claim gold in the long jump competition. Buske also earned silver medals in the 100 and 200 metre sprints.

Clobridge, Link win gold medals

North Dundas District High School middle distance runners Lauren Clobridge and Murray Link came away with gold medals at the prestigious National Capital Invitational Track and Field meet last week.

Clobridge won the midget girl's 800 metre event in a time of 2:35.33 minutes while Link crossed the finish line of the junior boy's 800 metre race with a 2:02.73 clocking.

Over 1,200 athletes from 36 high schools participated in the annual meet that attracts many of the region's top runners.

Mountain's Chris Williams takes his first cut for the senior Kemptville Thunder in the season opener Sunday in Kemptville.

New lineup still hits with power

Thunder win home opener over Quebec City

Catcher Wayne Morris' sixth inning home run carried the Kemptville Thunder to its first win of the season Sunday.

Morris, acquired in the off-season to replace power-hitter Bruce Casselman, hit a two-out line drive over the right-field fence to give the Thunder a 5-4 win over Quebec City in the home opener at Riverside Park.

Chris Barbeau, who singled with a grounder past first base, also came in to score. The two-run hit broke a 3-3 tie.

Later Sunday afternoon, pitcher Marc Sigouin survived the sweltering heat — the temperature on the diamond exceeded 30 degrees celsius — to come within one hit of a perfect game as Kemptville pounded out a 5-0 victory over Ponte Rouge.

The doubleheader kicked off the 1993 campaign for four of the seven teams in the east division of the ISC Travel League of Eastern Canada. Quebec City clipped Stittsville Turpin Pontiac 2-1.

JUGGLING A NEW ORDER

Prior to Sunday's contests, Thunder coach Paul Sheard was speculating how to juggle a lineup slim in power-hitters.

"Derek Byrd (out indefinitely with a broken ankle), Casselman (now with Toronto), Don Burnett (retired) and Jeff Seed (unavailable for two weeks) were my two, three, four and five hitters last year," he said, referring to the batting order.

"It's very difficult to win a doubleheader, no matter who you're playing, especially in 30 degree heat."

But the blazing sun had little effect on the rearranged Kemptville lineup; the Thunder hit six home runs in the two games.

That, however, hasn't convinced Sheard to change his plans.

"We didn't hit the ball that well in any of the exhibition games," he said. "I thought we'd have to play a hit-and-run game — last year we pretty well let the guys swing away — and I'm still not totally convinced it's going to be any different."

Against Quebec City, Kemptville did most of its scoring in the third inning.

Centre fielder Ian McLaren lifted a towering solo shot over the scoreboard in right field and third baseman Tim Patterson lined a two-run bullet over the centre-field fence.

Quebec got one run back in the top of the fourth on Alain Garneau's home run, and tied the game in the sixth when Jean Talbot singled to centre field, driving in Marquis Gagon and Alain Garneau, aboard on a single and a walk respectively.

Talbot was tagged out at second trying to stretch the hit into a double.

Pat Marceau scored Quebec's fourth run with a solo homer in the top of the seventh off Barry Ellerbeck. But Ellerbeck, who replaced Price in the sixth, fanned three of the next four batters for the win.

Price struck out 14 batters, including six of the first seven he faced.

FLAWED CALL, COACH

Barbeau, Price and Kevin Byrd hit homers in the romp over Ponte Rouge.

Sigouin lost his bid for a perfect game in the fifth when the first base umpire called a Ponte Rouge runner safe on a close play at the bag.

"It was a very debatable call," said Sheard.

Devils win two at soccer tournament

Al Van Bridger
Special to the Record

CORNWALL—Devils' coach Doug Carroll says the play of keeper Sandra Brunner was the highlight of the day but the overall results were also very encouraging.

"If there is a better keeper in the league (SD&G Senior girls' soccer league) I certainly don't know who it would be," Carroll stated Tuesday morning.

"Sandra was amazing, superb in nets against Glengarry. They beat us 2-nil but if it hadn't been for Brunner it could have been 10."

Coach Carroll is taking his NDDHS team to the field for the first time in at least three years so it is a bit of a reorganizational job as well as a coaching postion he has taken on.

'If there is a better keeper in the league (than Sandra Brunner), I certainly don't know who it would be.'
Coach Doug Carroll

His team enjoyed a healthy turnout for early practice sessions and he was able to sign 22 girls to his final roster.

"Having 22 players to get into the games makes it a bit difficult but I managed to get everyone playing time by the end of our third game," he explained.

North Dundas played the powerful Glengarry Gaels, CCVS Golden Raiders and General Vanier Vikings in Monday's opening SD&G Senior "AA" tournament here in Cornwall.

Next Monday they will complete their regular season meeting the St. Lawrence Saints, St. Joe's Panthers and La Citadelle Patriotes in Alexandria.

If they earn enough points in their first six matches the Devils will advance to the semi-final round on May 21. A victory would then push North Dundas into the SD&G championship game the same day.

"I would have to say Glengarry, St. Lawrence and La Citadelle would be the favorites," Carroll said.

Winchester lob ball league

Defending champs win shootout

The Chesterville Selects started the defense of their Winchester Lob Ball League title Monday night, edging the Shone Roy Splinters in a shootout 19-18.

The Selects, three-time defending champions, got four runs from Greg Beckstead and three apiece from Neil Beckstead and Dale Beckstead to win the season opener.

In the other contest at the Winchester diamond, the Hallville Trojans out hit the Morewood Vikings 22-9, despite three home runs from Jeff Armstrong.

Chesterville rendered most of the damage in the first three innings, scoring 14 runs. Shone Roy answered with two in the second frame and six in the third, including a grand slam from Kent McMillan.

The Splinters cut the lead to 14-11 in the bottom of the fourth, but RBI singles from Paul Reinhardt, Neil Beckstead and Greg Beckstead in the fifth restored the six-run cushion.

The lead held up till the bottom of the seventh when Shone Roy rallied for five runs, including a three-run shot from Darrell Shelp.

TROJANS 22, VIKINGS 9

Darrin Coleman hit a pair of home runs, a three-run blast and a solo shot, to give the Hallville Trojans their first win.

Terry Richardson connected for a two-run homer in the first and John Patterson added a solo dinger in the fourth. Mike Patrick went three-for-four at the plate with three RBIs.

Despite the loss, Morewood pounded the Hallville pitching staff, lifting five hits over the outfield fence.

Armstrong tagged three hom runs in his first three appearances at the plate, while Brian Thatcher hit two and Brian Como drove out one.

Men's ball hockey

Top Valu Jokers jump Jack's in overtime

Jerrold Boulanger nets winner

Ken Byers struck three times as the Cooperators remained undefeated in three Chesterville/Winchester Men's Ball Hockey League starts.

Byers' hat trick lifted the Cooperators to a 5-2 win over Sierra Grande, which slipped to 1-2 on the season.

In other action at the Chesterville Arena Thursday night, the Top Value Jokers needed overtime to clip the Jumpin' Jack's Flashes 4-3 while the Winchester Legion Blues kept the Red Wings out of the win column with a 6-4 decision.

Gene McInnes assisted on four goals and Chris Holmes scored one goal and added three helpers as the White team collected its second straight win.

McInnes and Holmes combined on Byers' goal in the first and then set up Kevin Edgerton for the winner at 4:11 of the second.

The Sierra Green Machine briefly tied the game early in the second when Dave Lannin tipped in a Jason McIntosh feed. Kevin Byers scored the team's second goal midway through the third. Kevin Moore assisted.

Ken Byers and Holmes both scored late third-frame markers to put the contest out of reach.

JOKERS 4, FLASHES 3

Jerrold Boulanger beat goaltender Pat Brugmans with four seconds left in overtime to lift the Jokers to their third consecutive win.

Dennis Ouellette, who scored once and assisted on three goals, set up the marker after taking a pass from Will O'Conner.

Ouellette gave Top Valu a 1-0 lead in the first and then helped engineer goals by Corey Van Delst and O'Conner in the second and third frames respectively.

The Flashes tied the contest late in the first when Rob Fournier deflected a Sandy Johnston shot from the point.

Mike Desormeaux gave Jumpin' Jack's a 2-1 lead at 8:10 of the second, with Jeff Holmes and Jeff Hyndman assisting.

Gerald Jorgenson sent the game into overtime, capping a Chris Berkers and Johnston play with 1:10 left.

BLUES 6, WINGS 4

John Mackler netted a hat trick and Scott Barkley scored a pair as the Legion Blues won their second game of the season.

Despite two goals from Mackler in the first frame, the Blues fell behind 4-2 in the second.

Jason Kennedy and Rodney Casselman gave the Red Wings a short-lived 2-0 lead in the first. After Mackler tied the contest, Gary Beisheim and Casselman restored the two-goal cushion in the second.

But the roof fell in in the third for the Wings. Mackler capped his hat trick less than 20 seconds into the period and Barkley scored twice unassisted, 30 seconds apart, with under four minutes remaining.

Dwayne Bazinet, who assisted on two of Mackler's markers, put the nail in the Wings' coffin at 2:38.

Boulanger posts second straight shutout

Rhonda Kelly broke a scoreless deadlock with less than 10 minutes remaining to give the Aqua Aces their second win of the Chesterville/Winchester Ladies Ball Hockey League season.

Kelly completed a Jackie Morris and Michelle Laflamme passing play with 8:37 left in the third to give the Aces a 1-0 win over Yellow.

Aqua netminder Jackie Boulanger recorded her second consecutive shutout. It was the second straight loss for the Yellow squad.

The low scoring affair in the first game set the tempo for the other two tilts at the Chesterville Arena Thursday night.

The Pink Ladies improved to 2-0 with a 1-0 victory over Purple while Green shaded the Orange-a-Tangs 3-2.

PINK 1, PURPLE 0

Despite a goaltending clinic from Nancy Vanderveen, Purple lost its second contest of the new season.

Vanderveen, who faced the majority of the shots, held the Pink Ladies at bay until the last four minutes of the third period.

Kim Simms finally beat the goalie with 3:17 left, tipping in a Shana Marriner shot. Marriner let a bullet go from the left face-off circle after Julie Armstrong dug the ball out from behind the net.

Pink goaltender Sherry Stewart posted the shutout.

Purple goaltender Nancy Vanderveen stops Pink's Heather Graham (18) Thursday night in Chesterville.

GREEN 3, ORANGE 2

Charlene Johnston scored a pair of goals, including the winner at 13:03 of the third, to give Green its first win and even its record at 1- 1.

Green opened a 3-0 lead on the Orange-a-Tangs on Johnston's first and third frame markers and a second-period goal from Debbie Pitt.

Wendy Castle assisted on Pitt's marker and Noreen Skuce set up the winner.

Orange broke Laura Sherrer's shutout at 11:15 of the third when Catie Clapp tapped in a Kristina Kelly pass.

Jane Sachs narrowed the difference to 3-2 with 1:50 left. Clapp and Amy Vermilyea assisted.

Brunner backstops Devils to two victories

"Glengarry certainly looked pretty awesome against us in our first match Monday. They beat us 2-nil but Sandra Brunner made some unbelievable stops to keep the score close."

In their second encounter the Devils' coach said the talent he knew was on the team began to shine through and playing and ball-handling patterns began to take shape.

"Shannon Brown put the ball over the bar in the first minute and we had some other early opportunities by Laura Zrymiak and Rebecca Kennedy but just couldn't score."

"It was just a case of not being accurate with our shots."

North Dundas did pull off a 1-nil win over CCVS with Sandra Brunner posting the shutout.

Rebecca Kennedy notched the game-winning goal when she isolated herself on the keeper and touched home the ball with the whole net to choose from. The Devils' marker came with one minute played in the second half.

In game three the Devils blanked the General Vanier Vikings 2-nil to finish with a record of 2-1-0 and a goals for and against mark of 3-2.

"We didn't always have our strongest combinations on the field for that game but our fastest forward line was evident when they were playing."

Rebecca Kennedy gave North Dundas a 1-0 lead on a nice run up the left side. She crossed the ball to Amy Vermilyea on the post but the ball skipped out of harm's way. Vermilyea recovered it and crossed back across the goal mouth to Kennedy who pushed it into the corner.

Vermilyea made it a 2-0 final in the second half when she eluded three Viking defenders and punched home a low shot after winning a final one-on-one battle in the 18 yard box.

"We were very pleased with the day. We had some good individual efforts and the team play developed over the course of the day....I'm looking forward to next Monday," Carroll said.

Chesterville fastball team aims to defend NSFL title

Sunnylodge Farms will kick off its 1993 North Stormont Fastball League campaign Tuesday, May 18, in Newington.

Sunnylodge Farms joined the six-team league, now in its fifth season, after Brinston folded.

The other teams in the NSFL include the Finch Falcons, 1991 champs Berwick Hotel, Heagle Plumbing, Ingleside '93s and the Redmen.

Chesterville's home games will be on Wednesday nights at 8 p.m.

Hydrate!

Jennifer Gregoire, Reg. N. N.D., B. Sc. Nu.

Water is the most commonly overlooked endurance aid. Proper hydration is essential for proper exercise performance. During exercise in a warm environment, the body relies primarily on the evaporation of sweat to dissipate heat.

The loss of body fluids gradually compromises the body's ability to circulate blood and regulate body temperature, because the blood transferring oxygen to muscle tissue must be diverted to the skin to transfer heat from the body's core to the environment. This competition for blood between the muscles and the skin places a greater demand on the cardiovascular system. As a person becomes dehydrated the heart rate increases, the blood flow to the skin decreases and the body temperature rises steadily. In practical terms, performance begins to decline and exercise becomes labored. If the body temperature continues to rise, the participant may suffer heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

An adequate intake of fluids is obviously the best way to prevent dehydration. Normally, a person's water intake is governed by the thirst mechanism, which is regulated by the hypothalmus. However, a person exercising and losing a large quantity of water through sweat may become dehydrated before feeling thirsty.

During exercise, the participant should drink 4 to 8 ounces of fluid every 10 to 20 minutes to replace sweat losses and to maintain blood volume.

Cold water is the best fluid for exercisers. Cold drinks empty more rapidly from the stomach than warm drinks and also help lower the body's core temperature. Drinks containing too much sugar are absorbed into the system more slowly and, therefore, function less effectively as a fluid replacement. Fifteen minutes after drinking one cup of water, 60 per cent to 70 per cent of the water has been absorbed into the system. But if the one cup of fluid is a beverage containing 10 per cent sugar (the sugar content of soft drinks), 95 per cent of the fluid will still be in the stomach 15 minutes later. Commercial sport drinks containing more than 2.5 per cent sugar, could be diluted to 2.5 per cent before being consumed. Water is a much more effective, and much less expensive, fluid for aerobic exercise.

A person planning to exercise in warmer weather could drink two to three cups of water about two to three hours before exercising, and another one or two cups about 15 minutes before exercising. This is known as hyperhydration.

My Silent Achievers this week are all of you who are back on your bikes and taking advantage of the great bike paths in the area, as well as the great scenery. We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.

Munro, Villeneuve win opening day golf tourney

The sun shone brightly on the Cedar Glen layout for Saturday's annual open day tournament. But it did not shine any brighter than club members Lea Anne Munro and Craig Villeneuve.

Munro, of Winchester, topped the ladies "A" class with an 87 while Villeneuve carded a 75 to win the men's "A" class.

Joan Wibberley's net score of 79 was lowest in "A" class. Chesterville's Kirk Barkley shot a net 67 to round out the "A" division leaders.

Travis Froats was the runaway winner in the junior division with a low gross of 91. The juniors' low net went to Jason Warner who finished with an 80 on the back holes.

The ladies "B" class winners were Angie Reaney with a 100 (gross) and Norma McIntosh with a 79 (net). Carolyn Clement shot a 114 (gross) and Elke Brown a 76 (net) to top the "C" class leader board. The "D" class winners were Suzanne Lacombe at 134 gross and Marlene Miles with a 79 net.

Winchester's Darrell Shelp fired a "B" class winning 80 while Tom Mills posted a net score of 69. Syd Davies led the "C" class field with a 94. Chris Miles put together a net score of 72. Jerry Auger with a 102 and Dave Barkley with a 72 (net) topped the "D" class golfers.

MEN'S AND LADIES' NIGHTS OPENER

Last week also marked the beginning of Cedar Glen's weekly Ladies' and Men's Nights.

The ladies began their season last Wednesday with Winchester's Lea Anne Munro warming up for her performance in Saturday's Open Day tourney. Munro topped the "A" class field with a gross score of 44. Cyndie Summers' net score of 37.5 also took top honours.

In "B" class, Marlene Faulkner shot a 49 to win the low gross while Angie Reaney came in with a low net of 34.

Low net in "C" class had to be decided on retrogression. Janet Levere's 35 was enough to edge out the competition. Low gross honours went to Janice Casselman who shot a 54.

Lori Cook went the distance and won the long drive of the night. Marie Beckstead came in with the lowest putts.

Julie Jarvis' low gross of 57 was tops in "D" class while Sue Alexander's 38 won the low net.

The men were out swinging last Thursday and Rick Barkley picked up where he left off last season, winning "A" class with a 39.

Barkley edged Larry Harper who finished one stroke back at 40. Francis Barkley carded a low net 34.5. Kirk Barkley was close behind with a net of 35.

In "B" class, Winchester's Lloyd Guy broke away from the pack with a 38. Second low gross went to Dale Casselman (43 on the back nine). The race for low net was tight but Bert McIntosh finished with a 34 and beat Darrell Shelp's 34.5.

Closet to the pin honours went to Syd Bird while Marty Little out drove the competition to win the long drive of the night.

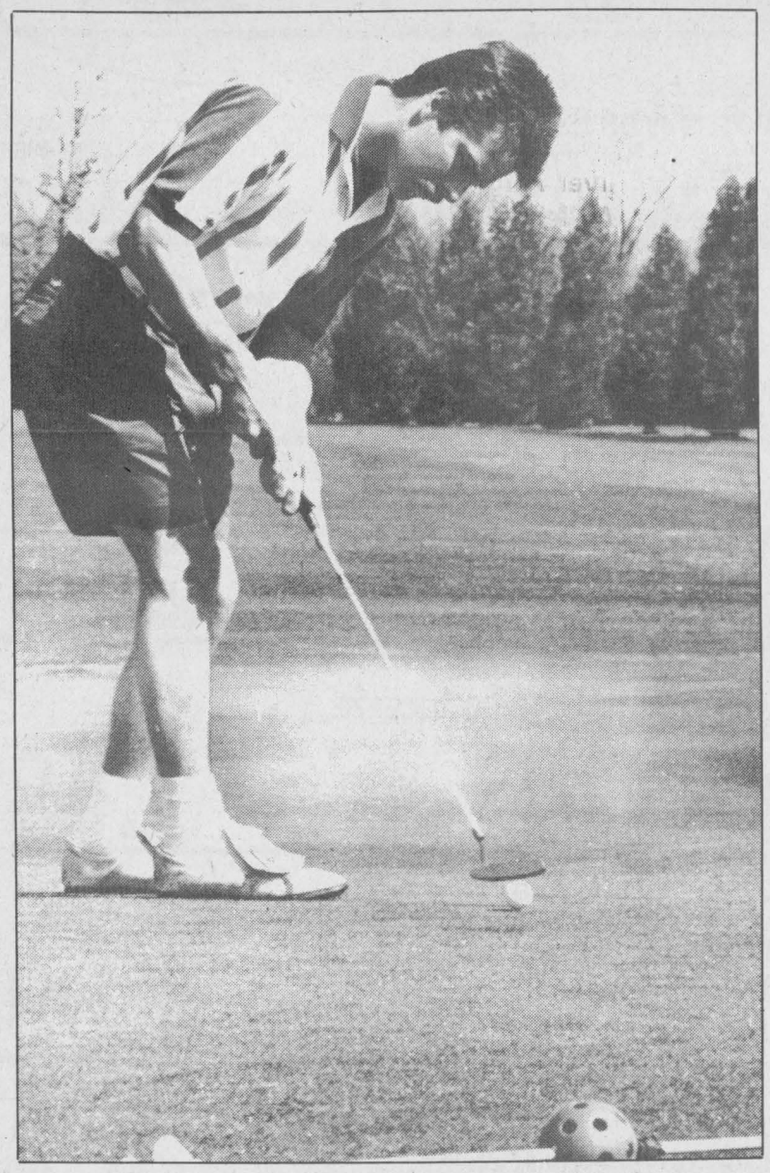
Vince Cousineau shot a 47 to beat Sid Davies' low gross of 48 in "C" class. Shawn Lapier's low net of 35 was challenged by few golfers.

Gabriel Slowey's 52 was the best in "D" class. Ron Gibson's 56 was second low gross score. Dave Dignard ran away with the low net honours. His net of 33 was followed by Dave Barkley's 38.5.

CHIPS AND PUTTS

The Dr. Locke two person scramble is set to take place on Saturday May 15. There is a men's and a ladies' division. Mixed teams are also eligible, but they must play in the men's division. Each team must have a minimum combined handicap of 20.

The first juniors' night of the season is set for May 17. The much anticipated mixed two ball will start on May 23.



Vince Cousineau lines up a putt during opening day tourney.

Jumpin' for Heart

Students at Morewood Public School participated in a Jump Rope for Heart marathon Thursday. The warm temperature didn't hinder the students in any way as they raised $2,600 for the Heart and Stroke Foundation of Ontario.
