Local Businessman's Brother Figures in Bandits' Capture

Chesterville was mildly interested when the story broke of the arrest of alleged bandits in a holdup and robbery pulled Saturday afternoon in the village of Maitland, and the at-attempted escape toward Ottawa through Matilda township where they arrived at the home of Chester Gilroy, a brother of P. J. Gilroy of Chesterville, who unknowingly in doing what appeared to be a good turn for stranded motorists, drove them into the arms of the law and the little affair came to an inglorious conclusion.

At that, Chester Gilroy was lucky that he did not become a victim of the hunted men's activities. Having sold a pair of horses a day or so previously for a handsome sum, he yet had this amount in his jeans, unsuspected by the men who would have looked upon it as almost their own.

The alleged thieves, after making a hold-up at Maitland, six miles east of Brockville, and raiding a gasoline service station at Algonquin and attempting to reach Ottawa over the Prescott highway, on coming to the vicinity of Spencerville, found the hue and cry out against them with constables and civilians lined up on the highway to stop their progress. A sideroad being handy, the bandits sidestepped the blockade by cutting off the highway and taking to the township roads which brought them into the vicinity of Heckston.

Within a mile or so of Gilroy's farm, their car stalled in the mud where they left it. Seeking further rapid transit they arrived at Gilroy's where the latter's car was standing at the roadside. Without attempting any rough stuff, they attempted to bargain for a drive to a point where they could get a train to Montreal.

While Gilroy was not prepared to go that far he did agree to take them to the Prescott highway where they could possibly make further connections to get a train. Having business at a saw mill in the direction he would drive, Gilroy told his hired man to jump in and they would do some required work at the mill which would necessitate a trip at some time.

Just as Gilroy and his passengers arrived at the Prescott highway, a police patrol held him up and inquired whom he was driving. Gilroy replied he did not know. The police with drawn guns ordered the suspects out of the car and took them in charge but failed to find a gun. On search of the back seat where the couple had been riding, a revolver was found.

The arrested men were taken to Brockville and landed in jail where they are now awaiting trial. They gave their names as Orville Hannon, age 28, and Howard Jackson, 25, of no fixed abode. They are said to be Indians from Western Ontario, where they are suspected of having stolen an eight-cylinder automobile in London.

They will face five charges when in court, namely, forcibly detaining Douglas Dalgleish, Maitland garage man; obstructing a police officer in discharge of his duty, stealing gasoline from Harold J. Dawson, Algonquin storekeeper, and firing a gun at James Tarbet, also of Maitland.

Nation Again Normal Here Following Record High

With the high water mark for the year reached by the Nation River during Thursday morning last, the water has been steadily receding since that time, with a drop of more than six feet. There was no damage of any considerable amount reported locally.

Saturday, two local young men, Bus Hummel and Archie Black, had an adventure on the river which which might have had disastrous effects. They where returning from going over their muskrat trap lines when their canoe was caught in rough water and overturned, both men being thrown into the turbulent water. Their rat catch was lost but Hummel was able to swim out and secured the canoe and paddles in calmer water.

Badly Injured by Auto While Walking on Highway

Struck by an automobile while walking along Highway 31 between Winchester Station and Winchester on Friday at 7.30 p.m., Mrs. Jake Ross, 34, of Winchester Station, was admitted to Ottawa Civic Hospital in a serious condition.

She was reported to have suffered a fracture at the base of the skull and a deep scalp wound in addition to numerous body bruises when the car hurled her into the ditch.

Constable Hebert C. Helmer, of Winchester, reported the car was in charge of Walter Merkley, 26, of Dunbar. Mrs. Ross had been walking north on the highway, accompanied by Mrs. Thomas Brown, also of Winchester Station, when the automobile going in the same direction, struck her. She was picked up by the driver of the car and John Fader, who was following behind the car. Dr. Clare J. Locke, of Winchester, gave medical aid at the roadside, and after she was taken home ordered her removal to hospital.

Former Chesterville Couple To Mark Diamond Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beattie, of 32 Marion ave., Toronto, expect to celebrate their diamond wedding anniversary on April 16. They are in good health for their years. They will be remembered by many Chesterville residents as having spent at least the first half of their lives here. Mr. Beattie lived as a boy with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beattie, on the Beattie homestead just north of town where Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Beattise now reside.

Mrs. Beattie lived as a girl in Chesterville with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Gillespie. After their marriage they lived for a time on a farm near Russell and later on the south half of the old Beattie farm down the river road. Later Mr. Beattie had a grocery business in Chesterville for many years, and also was manager of the Bell Telephone company here, while Mrs. Beattie conducted a millinery business in the same building.

Their family of three are all living —Mrs. Effie Fisher, of Toronto; Mrs. Wm. Seymore and Mr. Jas. A. Beattie, both of Montreal. There are several grandchildren and some great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Beattie and family expect to attend Old Home Week in Chesterville.

Sorrell Leading N. H. L. Points in Play-Off Series

Johnny Sorrell now leads the N.H.L. in points for the play-off series, his winning goal on Tuesday placing him with five points, four goals and an assist. Nels Stewart, his teammate, is close behind with two goals and two assists for four points, and each have served two minutes in the penalty box this series.

Blake, Haynes and Gagnon, of the eliminated Montreal Canadiens, also earned four points, as have Seibert, Gottselig, and March, of Chicago. The Toronto sharpshooter, Gordie Drillon, who holds the record for the past season, picked up two goals in the last game to make his total three for three points.

Winchester Man Being Sued Result of Funeral Tragedy

Damages for alleged injuries to Leopold Sauriol, Outremont, Que., are claimed in a writ filed on his behalf against Harry Summers, of Winchester. The claim is a sequel to an accident on the highway just south of Winchester on April 1, 1937, when during a funeral a 7-ton Shell Oil Company truck from Ottawa and three cars were in a collision which resulted in the death of three men and injuries to six other persons. the writ claims damages for injury to the plaintiff by the alieged negligent driving of Glen Summers, deceased, "who was operating a motor car owned by the defendant with the defendant's consent."

Glen Summers, 18, of Winchester, one of the mourners in the funeral procession, was killed. Harry Summers is his brother. Almon Summers, the father, also died as a result of injuries received in the accident.

Leopold Sauriol was travelling in another car with Albert E. Thoms, a prominent Ottawa real estate man, who died while being conveyed to the Civic hospital, Ottawa. Sauriol was taken to the hospital suffering from head and other injuries.

Funeral This Afternoon Of Late Mrs Ozias Durant

Lacking but five years of the century mark, Mrs. Ozias Durant, of The Boyne, passed away on Tuesday afternoon in her ninety-fifth year, at the home of her son, Harold Durant, on the farm where she had spent 72 years of her life.

Born in 1844, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shaver, of Matilda township, she was joined in wedlock with Ozias Durant on the first day of the year 1864, the service being performed by Rev. Manson in the Methodist Episcopal parsonage. After a couple of years spent in farming near Dunbar, Mrs. Durant and her husband moved to the farm where she spent the remaining 72 years of her life, and where in 1914 the happy couple celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. Durant died in 1919.

When the Durant homestead in The Boyne was acquired, it was solid bush and a clearing had to be made before a log cabin could be erected. Today, this is one of the best equipped farms in the United Counties, with a handsome home occupying the site of the log cabin.

There were 11 children born to Mr. and Mrs. Durant, seven of whom survive, being: Harold, on the homestead; Roy and Wellington, Ottawa; Mrs. Graham, of Hulbert; Alysworth and Mrs. Annable, of Brooklyn, N.Y., and Mrs. Fisher, of Morrisburg.

The funeral will take place in Trinity United church this afternoon, where Mrs. Durant had been a valued member formerly of the Methodist church and latterly the United church. The service will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. R. C. Tait, after which interment will be made in Maple Ridge cemetery, when the pallbearers will be Douglas Durant, Gerald Durant, Floyd Fisher and Douglas Graham.

AN INTERESTING bit of advice to night-driving motorists is reported to have been given recently by Joseph O. Goodman, manager of the Automotive Transport Association. "When you desire to pass a transport," says Mr. Goodman, "just flick your lights and you will find the truck driver will immediately move over to his extreme right." Here is something that should prove useful to those of our readers who have occasion to drive on the main highways after dark.

THE FARMER has a big advantage over his city cousin, says The Ingersol Tribune. He has good neighbours, in the truest sense of the term. The city dweller may not know his next door neighbour by his first name particularly if he is a comparative newcomer. The farmer knows his next neighbour and his neighbours for miles around. He knows that he can depend upon them in a time of trouble—that they are at his beck and call at any time he needs them.

SEED CLEANING PLANTS.

SEED CLEANING PLANTS have been established in many centres and by their use the grain being sown is much improved in quality and in freedom from weeds. These power plants not only make an excellent job of grading the grain so as to give a uniform sample, but by use of the proper screens and various attachments the weed seeds are practically all removed and it is possible to fairly well separate the different varieties of grain. The Government assists in the purchase of these machines when they are used for custom work. Up to 1937 there were 63 seed cleaning plants in operation and last year over 700,000 bushels of grain were cleaned and nearly 4½ million pounds of clover and grass seed; 11,794 farmers were served by these plants. There are many famers in the vicinity of these plants who might advisedly make use of them, but there are yet many centres where cleaning plants are not available.

The ordinary fanning mill did good service in its day, and with the use of the proper screens and adjusting the wind blast a good job can be done with the fanning mill, but we believe a better job is accomplished by the larger power unit.

ABOUT A FUR SEAL.

Interesting Facts About Our Dominion of Canada.

THERE is no Canadian hunting of the fur seal of the Pacific except for trifling operations by a few British Columbia Indians in their canoes. However, Canada gets a good deal of that coveted fur.

Under the Pelagic Sealing Treaty of 1911, in order to save the fur seal from extermination, nationals of Canada and the United States, except certain aborigines, were forbidden from engaging in pelagic sealing in North Pacific waters. But it was also provided that Canada should receive 15 per cent in number and value of the seals taken by the United States Government at the Pribiloff rookeries and adjacent areas in the Behring Sea. In their migrations the seals pass up and down the British Columbia coast.

For some years all the Pribiloff skins were marketed in the United States, and Canada's share was paid in cash, but in 1933 Canada decided to take delivery of her share of the skins and do her own marketing. The business is handled in London.

Net returns from 8,185 skins of the 1933 kill were almost $68,000. In 1934 the 8,025 share netted $85,000 and in 1935 the Canadian share was 8,594 skins. 2,000 of these were marketed in London, netting in the neighbourhood of $24,000.

FOOLING MOTHER.

DON'T ever try to fool mother, boys. It can't be done. Remember the young man who pawned his nice suit of clothes and didn't want his mother to know anything about it? He finally redeemed it and brought the suit home in a suitcase. While he was busy in his room, his mother, in the parlour, started to unpack the suitcase. She found the pawn ticket on the coat and said:

"John, what is this tag on your coat?"

John lost very little time in calling back: "Oh, I was at a dance last night, and checked my coat."

A moment later mother came across the trousers tagged in the same way. With a puzzled tone she asked: "John, what kind of a dance was that?"

How to Wear Flowers

FLOWERS with their colourful, fragrant beauty give added poise, confidence and the chicness that is so much desired by smartly dressed women. Flowers make a perfect accessory, but, in wearing them, good taste is always expressed through simplicity and naturalness.

For sporting events, large flowers are to be preferred and these can be either pinned to the lapel of the coat or carried in the hand. For afternoon parties, flowers are dressier and may be worn anywhere on the frock but not too large to detract from the lines of the costume. For formal garden parties, a very sophisticated note is struck, with a flowing gown and large picture hat trimmed with the same material, while in the hand is carried a bouquet of spring flowers or delicately shaded roses tied together with the same material to complete the ensemble.

If you are wearing a tailored suit for street wear, your flowers should be worn on the right lapel and for luncheons should be worn high so that they will not interfere with the table.

Many dinner gowns do not call for accessories and so your flowers, which must be petite, should be worn in the hair. Dark red roses or red carnations may be won by platinum blondes, while white carnations, gardenias or orchids look particularly devastating in these new coiffures when worn by a brunette.

For formal wear at night, the corsage should be as light as possible, because heavy, bulky flowers will pull a light flimsy frock out of shape. These can be worn either at the shoulder or the waist and can harmonize or contrast with the dress. For dancing, the flowers should be worn on the right shoulder so as to avoid crushing. Here again it is very important that the flowers should be light in weight.

THREE SCORE AND TEN!

THE horse and mule live 30 years
And nothing know of wines and beers;
The goat and sheep at 20 die
And never taste of Scotch and Rye.

The cow drinks water by the ton;
And at 18 is mostly done;
The dog at 15 cashes in
Without the aid of Rum and Gin.

The cat in milk and water soaks
And then in 12 short years it croaks;
The modest, sober bone-dry hen
Lays eggs for nogs, then dies at ten.

All animals are strictly dry,
They sinless live and swiftly die;
But Sinful, Ginful, Rum-soaked Men
Survive for three score years and ten!

Useless.

A wman went to the bank and asked for a new cheque book.

"I've lost the one you gave me yesterday," she explained. "But it does not matter. I took the precaution of signing all the cheques as soon as I got it. So, of course, it won't be of any use to any one else."

Yowsah!

Whatever your attitude may be on the other issues, you'll have to admit that the Duchess of Windsor has done a tremendous lot to restore the confidence of the girls of 40.

Championship of N. H. L. Back at Toronto Maple Leafs

The Gardens, Boston.—Gordon Drillon fired two goals Tuesday night, his second after 10 minutes and four seconds overtime, to give Toronto Maple Leafs a 3-2 victory and the National Hockey League championship over Boston Bruins. It was the Leafs' third straight win in the best-of-five series.

The game, another terrific bumping duel, ended with startling suddenness after Boston twice came from behind in regulation time to tie the score on goals by Bill Cowley. Drillon forged Toronto's first goal in the second period and Pep Kelly got their second goal after five minutes of the third.

Heavy favourites to knock Leafs out of the Stanley Cup playdowns, Bruins went down 1-0 and 2-1 in the first two games at Toronto.. The first game of the series also went into overtime.

Typical Drillon Play.

It was a typical play by Drillon, Canadian Press all-star right wing, that ended the game. Bingo Kampman started it, carrying the puck to Jack Portland on the Bruin defence. When Portland knocked him aside, Syl Apps, who aided in the first goal also, batted the puck toward right wing where Drillon picked it up in full stride.

In one motion he drilled a rising shot that left Goaler Tiny Thompson motionless. Tiny never saw the puck coming at him through players grouped in front of the goal.

A sell-out crowd of 16,523 watched Bruins wage the same futile struggle against tight checking and Walter Broda's superb goal-tending that marked the Toronto games. Leafs were without the injured Harvey Jackson, the only player forced out of a game by the heavy bumping in all clashes.

It was an old story for three periods. Led by Eddie Shore, Boston hammered at Broda from all sides. The Leaf sophomore goalie stopped 42 shots in the first three periods to Thompson's 17. On both of Cowley's goals he didn't have a chance, as the Bruin centre fired both times from within 10 feet.

The game started with a parade to the penalty box, Shore and Bob Davidson going off twice and Red Horner once in the first three minutes. But from then on there wasn't a single penalty despite the rough tactics.

Leafs opened their attack only once—in the overtime as they went step for step with Bruins for the deciding goal. Once again they proved the better opportunists, picking out each opening provided by Boston's burly defence.

THE MOTORIST'S PRAYER.

GRANT ME a steady hand and watchful eye,
That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest Life; I pray no act of mine
May take away or mar the gift of Thine.
Teach me to use my car for others' need,
Nor ever miss, through any love of speed
The beauties of Thy world—and thus I may
With joyous heart and courtesy go my way.

Beloved Maxville Doctor Mourned at Funeral Service

The auditorium of the United church, Maxville, was taxed Friday afternoon, when the funeral of Dr. Duncan McEwen was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. H. Hamilton, assisted by Rev. R. W. Ellis, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, Maxville; Rev. H. D. Whitmore, of Billings Bridge, and formerly of Maxville United church; Rev. Dr. D. N. MacMillan, of Dunvegan, and Rev. N. MacLaren, of Moose Creek United church. The pall-bearers were Dr. W. B. MacDiarmid, Maxville; Dr. M. J. Sproule, Dr. A. J. MacGillivray, Dr. R. M. Nichol, Dr. H. J. Mack and Dr. John A. Alguire, all of Cornwall; Dr. J. H. MacIntosh, of Riceville; Dr. J. G. MacLeod, of Finch, and Dr. Geo. V. MacDonald, of Apple Hill. Interment was in Maxville cemetery.

Dr. McEwen died on Wednesday following a lengthy illness.

Surviving are his widow, formerly Kate A. Bennett, daughter of the late John Bennett, M.L.A., and Mrs. Bennett, of Athol; one son, Dr Bennett B. McEwen, and one daughter, Miss Gladys McEwen, B.A., of the teaching staff of the Maxville High school. Of his father's family, one sister and two brothers survive, Mrs. Louden Johnston, Winchester; Daniel G., and Alexander W. McEwen, both of St. Elmo. A brother and two sisters predeceased him.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller Honoured by Berwick Friends

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller and family, of Berwick, were invited to the Community Hall, Berwick, on Thursday evening where their many friends and neighbours were gathered to spend a social time together before the Millers moved to their new home in the Melvin Settlement. The presentation of a beautiful Victor radio was made by Garfield Nichols while Mrs. Robert Starke read the following address:

To Mr. and Mrs. Roy Miller:

This gathering, tonight, you will easily sense, is one of Community interest; it is so because of your social ability to share with others in the various phases of community life. Further, we desire to assure you that we are here to do much more than say "Farewell," we are here to rather bind those ties of friendship which have bound us in the past. Your removal to another community is of deep regret to us all, but it has the consoling element in that you will not be too far away for us to keep in friendly contact with you.

Allow us to say that we have appreciated the ideals and standards you have held and sought to build in Berwick, and we pray on your behalf you may ever find yourselves in congenial surroundings for the perpetuation of these ideals and standards.

We trust that our friendship may be one of the strengthening influences in your life as you undertake the tasks which lie ahead.

Your family has the distinction of having held many offices in the church, affecting the Board of Stewards, the W. A., the W. M. S., the Sunday School and the Choir, as well as being hearty supporters in Y. P. and Y.P. and C.G.I.T. work.

In the wider community circle, we have many kindly remembrances of neighbourly acts which have merited our highest esteem, and serve as links in a golden chain of lasting friendship.

We hope that you will never forget that we are keeping a perpetual welcome for you in Berwick, and if in the future you should return to our neighbourhood as citizens, may we assure you now that your past friendship will guarantee a future welcome.

And now, to show you our appreciation, we make this presentation.
The gift is small, we must confess,
We hope you will like it none the less.
The value is not in size.
The motive in giving is what you'll prize,
Please accept it for love's sweet sake.
Signed, Your Berwick Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller briefly replied expressing their sincere appreciation for the beautiful gift and for the kindness shown them during the years they had resided in Berwick. After singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows" and "Auld Lang Syne," refreshments were served in the basement.

Johnny Sorrell a Standout As Americans Continue

Madison Square Garden, New York.—Johnny Sorrell, the veteran the world champion Detroit Red Wings turned aside, moved the New York Americans a notch closer to the coveted Stanley Cup. The 31-year-old winger scored the winning goal as the Americans downed Chicago Black Hawks 3-1 in the first game of the semi-final series.

The Chesterville sharpshooter who came to the Americans late in the National Hockey League season on a trade for Joe Lamb, converted a pass-out from Red Beattie late in the third period to give the Americans victory. With less than a minute to go, Dave Schriner netted one for good measure.

As in all three games in their gruelling "subway" series with the Rangers, Red Dutton's men had to come from behind. They spotted the Hawks a goal early in the first period and it was not until late in the second that they drew even. Sorrell's important marker was his fourth in the play-offs. He scored three of the Americans' goals as they eliminated the Rangers, breaking up the first contest in overtime.

The second game of the best-of-three series will be played in Chicago Thursday, the teams returning for a final tilt here Sunday if necessary. The winners will meet Toronto Maple Leafs, N.H.L. champions, who won their way to the finals by beating the Boston Bruins in three straight.

Interest in the Retort

A man visited his creditor the other day, and said: "Are you worried about whether I can meet my note next month?"

"Yes, I am," confessed the creditor.

"Good," said the client. "That's what I'm paying you six per cent for.

Fournierville Hard Hit By Nation River Floods

Bourget. — Farmers whose homes and outbuildings are near the banks of the Nation river, nea Fournierville, 42 miles east of Chesterville, will not forget their flood experiences in many years.

Water estimated at 15 feet deep overflowed their lands at the height of the recent floods, forcing at least 15 or 20 families to upstairs rooms, until the waters dropped considerably over the week end.

Many cattle in barns were destroyed, one farmer, Robert Smith, whose address is Pendleton, losing 10 head, and others were reported to have suffered severely.

It was a common occurrence for families to get in and out of second stories by means of boats and most of the farmers had boats tied up at second floor windows.

Former Township Folks Celebrate 45th Anniversary

On March 15, in Timmins, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Percy Clarence Helmer, former residents of Winchester township, celebrated the forty-fifth anniversary of their marriage which took place in the Methodist Parsonage at Winchester in 1893, with Rev. F. C. Brown officiating.

The bride was Lucy May Hanson, of Hainsville, and the groom, a well-known young man of Maple Ridge. Forty-five years later at their home. 46½ Wilson street, Timmins, a number of their friends gathered to wish them continued success and happiness. Both Mr. and Mrs. Helmer are in good health and find it hard to realize that 45 years have passed since they started life together.

Mrs. Helmer was born at Hainsville on June 28, 1875, was 19 years old at the time of her marriage, her husband being nine years older. For some time the young couple lived in Ontario, afterward going to Regina, Sask., where they lived until four years ago, when Mr. Helmer found it necessary to move to Timmins to look after his mining interests. It is their intention to eventually return to Regina.

A family of eight children are living, a son, Uriah Stanton, passed away at the age of fifteen. The other children are three daughters, Mrs. C. James, Regina; Mrs. Victor Rae Tweney, Belle River, Ont., and Mrs. John Walter Newis, Winnipeg; Robert Ivan Helmer, who spent four years in the trenches; Wilfred Percy and William Charles, druggists, of Regina; Frederick Kenneth, of Vancouver, and Harold Lewis, of Timmins. Mr. and Mrs. Helmer have 18 grandchildren, nine boys and nine girls.

Rotary Away to Fine Start With First Meeting Tuesday

The first luncheon of the "provisional" Rotary Club of Chesterville was held in the Library on Tuesday evening and was thoroughly enjoyed by the members who entered into the spirit of the gathering with zest.

Official organization will not take place until April 26, but weekly meetings will continue under provisional officers and directors. The list of officers, as embodied in a motion by H. G. Bigelow and Dr. H. H. Casselman, includes:

President—P. S. Boyd,
Vice-Pres.—Dr. S. H Hutt,
Secretary-Treasurer—H. E. Wales,
Directors—Rev. R. C. Tait, W. P. Markle, O. L. King, J. H. Fulton and J. A. Morris.
Sergeant at Arms—A. E. Bolster.

The programme consisted of two addresses, by the president and Rev. Mr. Tait, on the history of Rotary and the aims of the service organization whose motto is "Service above Self." Community singing was led by O. L. King, with Jack Morris at the piano, and five questions on Rotary principles by L. E. Bailey, Walter Carr, W. O. Dixon,, J. H. Fulton and K. L. Gauthier, being answered respectively by G. J. Hunt, W. P. Markle, Dr. S. H. Hutt, O. L. King, and H. E. Wales.

The questions concerned classification, necessity of weekly meetings, use of the members' first names, compulsory attendance, and the $4.50 fee to International Headquarters.

Two letters of congratulation and well-wishing for the club were read from the Governor of this district, 172, dated from Binghamton, N.Y., and from Fred. W. Welland,, secretary of the Syracuse club. Votes of thanks were tendered the ladies of the Women's Institute who catered, and to those responsible for the fine programme for this initial meeting.

The club will meet each Tuesday evening at 6.30 in the Library, and it is expected a speaker from Ottawa will be present next week along with a number of Rotarians from the capital, which club is the parent of Chesterville Rotary.

GOOD THINGS TO EAT

- By -

MISS HELEN LACEY, B.H.Sc.

WILL YOU HAVE A SANDWICH?

OF COURSE you will have a sandwich. But will you have it for lunch or supper, or would you prefer it with your afternoon cup of tea or with a cup of coffee after an evening of bridge?

CHIPPED BEEF SANDWICH.

Chop chipped beef fine and mix with cream cheese and horseradish. Use your own judgment and taste in determining the amounts of each ingredient. If you can't get the horseradish, use a few chopped pickles instead. Use this mixture to make canapes (open-faced sandwiches, to you). Or spread on a slice of bread cut from the entire length of the loaf. Roll like a jelly roll and slice just before serving.

Thin slices of chipped beef are good made into the plain garden variety of square sandwiches.

HOT HAM SANDWICH.

Spread slices of bread with butter; add a thin slice of ham and one of cheese; spread lightly with prepared mustard. Top with a second slice of buttered bread. Dip each sandwich in ¾ cup of milk mixed with one beaten egg and ¼ teaspoon salt. Fry lightly on both sides. Garnish with a sprig of parsley, a slice of tomato and a pickle and serve for supper or luncheon.

GINGER SANDWICHES.

Mince crystalized or preserved ginger until very fine. If the latter is used, moisten with enough of the syrup to make it spread easily. If the crystallized ginger is used, moisten with a sufficient quantity of any thick fruit juice. Butter thin slices of white bread and spread with a very thin layer of the ginger filling. Cover, press together, trim off the crusts, and cut in shapes.

RAISIN SANDWICHES.

These are good for the children's lunch box or afternoon tea party.

Put through the chopper ½ cup of raisins and nut meats. Moisten with 1½ tablespoons of lemon juice and make into sandwiches with whole wheat bread, leaving the crusts on.

BAKED CHEESE SANDWICH.

4 slices white or brown bread ¼ inch thick cream cheese
salt and pepper
1 cup milk
1 egg
1 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon salt
few grains pepper

Spread the bread with butter and cover with cream cheese. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and cover with another slice of bread. Press well together. Cut in fingers or squares. Place in a buttered baking dish. Beat together the milk and egg; add seasonings; pour over the bread in the baking dish. Bake in a moderate over 20 minutes. Garnish with parsley and serve at once.

HOT ROAST BEEF SANDWICHES

white bread
butter
sliced roast beef
salt
pepper
horseradish
gravy

Cut slices of rare roast beef and place on buttered slices of bread from which the crusts have been removed. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and grated horseradish. Cover with slices of bread and serve at once with brown gravy. Serve mustard pickles or Worcestershire sauce with these sandwiches.

SAVOURY SANDWICHES.

Spread slices of whole wheat or graham toast with butter. Over these place slices of crisply cooked bacon. Sprinkle generously with chopped pickles and horseradish. Serve with sliced tomatoes.

SANDWICH FILLING.

1. Grated carrot mixed with mayonnaise to moisten.
2. Cream cheese, chopped olives, mayonnaise.
3. Chopped bacon and hard-cooked egg mixed with boiled salad dressing.
4. Chopped shrimp and celery, shredded pineapple and mayonnaise.
5. Peanut butter and chopped ginger mixed with mayonnaise.
6. Chopped chicken giblets with mayonnaise.
7. Chopped egg, sardines and mayonnaise.
7. Chopped egg, sardines and mayonnaise.
8. Cottage cheese and pickles, olives, nuts or pimentos.
9. Chopped peanuts, crushed pineapple, chopped celery mixed with boiled salad dressing.
10. Cream cheese and marmalade.

Hot sandwiches are always served with small luncheon knife and fork.

* * * *

As a rule, one tablespoon of a sandwich filling is enough for one thin sandwich using two slices of bread. For thick sandwiches, use twice this amount.

* * * *

Did you every try rolled, toasted marmalade sandwiches?

* * * *

Try some scraped or grated maple sugar mixed with chopped nuts between thin slices of buttered brown bread.

* * * *

Use bread 24 hours old for sandwiches.

* * * *

Have sandwich filling all ready to spread before beginning to cut bread.

* * * *

Cover sandwiches with a clean damp cloth if they are prepared in advance of serving time.

* * * *

Luncheon or supper sandwiches are a good way to use left-over meat and gravy.

* * * *

A strip of crisp bacon will add interest to almost any luncheon or supper sandwich.

A PREACHER WANTED.

How to Solve the Problem of Inviting a Minister.

A CHURCH was considering "calling" a minister, and before doing so made an effort to get particulars about the man by sending the following questionnaire to a brother minister who was acquainted with the other. This was the questionnaire:

How old is he, and is he married or single?

If married, how many children has he and what are their ages?

Are any of his children unruly or uncontrollable?

Does his wife take an active part in church work?

How long has he been preaching?

What churches has he served and where?

Give name of some official or prominent member in each church served.

Where was he educated;

Is he orthodox?

Has he any oratorical ability?

Does he speak fluently or does he hesitate?

Has he any impediment of speech?

Does he read his sermons or confine himself closely to his notes?

Is he a deep, doctrinal, logical preacher and teacher or of the shallow, popular type?

What is his height, weight and build? Is he portly or slender?

Has he a strong personality, and is he a graceful speaker?

How is he socially? Does he make friends?

Is he a good pastor?

Is he studious or of the opinion little preparation is necessary for his people?

Is he deeply spiritual?

Is he level-headed, cautious and tactful?

Is he a good Sunday School man?

Any musical talent in family?

The Reply.

The brother preacher replied as follows: I have answered your enclosed questionnaire as best I could and return herewith. If I can serve you further in this matter, please feel free to call on me. I would suggest, however, that I would be in a better position to advise you as to this brother's adaptability to your needs if I had information on the following points covered by the questionnaire attached with this, or if you prefer, you may fill out same and send it to the brother in question, as it may assist him in arriving at his duty in the matter:

Why did your last pastor leave?

Has there ever been any dissension in your church?

What salary do you pay, and is it paid promptly?

Are your members faithful in attending public worship as a whole?

If not, what per cent are "absent spirits"?

How is the mid-week prayer service patronized?

What per cent of your elders lead in prayer?

Is the congregation responsive to pastor's leadership?

Do your people enjoy strong sermons on stewardship and missions?

Are the members cautious and tactful with the minister?

What is the average height and build of the congregation?

Are they generally of pleasing personality?

Do you prefer deep, doctrinal sermons or a spiritual, helpful, liveable gospel?

Will the people as a whole throw themselves zealously into soul-winning with the pastor?

How many pastors have you had and the length of each pastorate?

Are there any chronic kickers in the church?

Do the elders ever discipline members for drunkenness, gossip, dishonesty, neglect of attendance and so on?

What proportion of your offerings go to missions and what do you spend on your own church?

Would you recommend your church as an attractive and inviting field for a pastor?

Are your people willing to follow their pastor, or are they inclined to let him go alone?

Do the parents accompany their children to Sunday School or do they send them?

Do your people criticize the pastor before their children or do they pray for him with them?

What constructive work has your church done in your community?

How many souls has your membership led to Christ since your church has been without a pastor?

What special opportunities does your church offer for the investment of a minister's life above that of other churches?

6,000 "HANDICAPPED" BOYS IN SCOUTING

There are now some 6,000 handicapped boys—blind, deaf, dumb, mental defectives and crippled—enrolled in the Handicapped Branch of the Boy Scout movement in Great Britain. The Scout connection and training has proved of important benefit to such boys, notably in the mental result of the discovery that they can share many of the activities of physically normal boys. Canada also has Scout troop and Wolf Cub packs in many of its institutions and hospitals for sick and handicapped children.

WORLD'S FARTHEST NORTH BOY SCOUTS

Believed to be the world's farthest north units of the Boy Scout movement, a Wolf Cub Pack and a Scout Troop have been reported by Alberta provincial Scout headquarters at Edmonton as having been organized at Aklavik. The only possible rival is an American Scout Troop at Point Barrow, Alaska. The Aklavik pack and troop comprise Eskimo and Indian boys, under the leadership of Principal Sherman Shepherd of All Saints' residential school, and Miss Doris Nixon of the teaching staff, formerly of Manitoba. A new Scout troop also has been formed at Fort Smith.

Caught in a Migration

WHILE journeying, it has been my good fortune to see many beautiful lakes: Lake George, Lake Nepigon, the Arrow Lakes, strange Iliamna, the bonny lochs of Scotland, picturesque Lucerne, historic Geneva and the matchless lagos of northern Italy—those and a hundred others. But not one of them all has the power so to stir my heart as the dear old Penneseewassee, stretching southward among its green islands from the foot of our Maine farm, to the village with its academy six miles away.

It was a mile and a half from the lake shore up to the Old Squire's farmhouse, yet plainly in the summer dawn we could hear the mellow alto call of the ever-sailing loons that nested every year on four little wave washed islets far offshore. Still another note, more ominous, was the prolonged roaring and groaning, after the ice sheet formed in December, as long cracks ran suddenly from shore to shore.

Up from the lake, too, came the ice cakes, load on load, that filled our ice house for the dairy; and it was on that glittering expanse that our ice boat — the Flying Betsy — once suffered dire shipwreck on the Twin Rocks, a disaster that laid up three of us for a week.

But far and away our most bewildering adventure on the lake befell as we were on our way home from the lyceum at the academy one dark, foggy night in March.

The lyceum that evening had been an exciting one, and well I remember the question discussed. Quaint enough it sounds after all these years. The historic fight of Captain Ericsson's little Monitor with the Merrimac in Hampton Roads was still fresh in the public mind. Only a few months previously, too, the Atlantic cable, after one disheartening failure, had been laid and gone into successful operation. Our question read: "The Ironclad Monitor or the Atlantic Cable—which was the greatest invention?"

After a spirited debate of two hours the fifty-three students of the Lyceum Society voted thirty-four to nineteen in favour of the cable. As a supplement to the debate, the girls at the academy maintained a weekly newspaper, called the Coronet, the reading of which usually occupied an hour; so that altogether it was half past ten before we finally made a start for home. There were five of us that night; for Catherine Edwards had come down to attend the lyceum and took passage homeward with us.

It was an hour's drive even had the sleighing been good; but the sleighing was shockingly bad that week, as is likely to be the case late in the month of March. In fact there was almost no sleighing at all, but not quite wheeling.

That morning, while the road was still frozen, we had managed to drive down from the farm in our two-seated pung, by keeping on the icy spots at the sides of the road; but it had been thawing all day, and during the afternoon it turned wet and foggy.

When at last we made a start, between ten and eleven that night, we found that our pung runners cut through to the muddy ground everywhere, and that, with five of us on board, old Billy — our horse — would have a hard time to make the trip. This became so evident when we were half a mile out of the village that Addison concluded to turn off the highway and take the "winter road" on the ice of the lake; for the highway, or town road, skirted the west shore and was nowhere more than half a mile distant from it. Lumbermen always had a sled road on the lake in the winter time even as late as March, and some times until into April the ice was strong enough to bear a team, although care had to be used not to drive on thin spots.

We had misgivings, I remember, about going on the lake.

"I am afraid it isn't safe," Theodora objected, and Catherine thought we would better all walk and keep to the highway; but Addison believed the ice was still strong enough. He got out with the lantern—for the night was very dark — and looked at the place where the winter road diverged from the ice to the highway. There was a little open water close to the shore, but nothing which old Billy could not easily step across, and the ice appeared solid.

"We will risk it," Addison declared and I agreed with him; for out on the ice the pung would run easily, while in the road the grating of our runners through the mud was, indeed, painful—with nearly six miles of it ahead.

"We will let old Billy pick his way," Addison said to reassure the girls. "He knows the lake. He will not set foot on a thin spot."

One contingency, however, we had not counted on; namely, how bewilderingly the fog would envelop us on the lake. As soon as we were away from the dark outline of the trees beside the road, we lost all idea of direction. It was all one dim sea of whiteness which the lantern light penetrated to scarcely a yard. Nor did the winter road now offer much in the way of a trail to guide the horse. Yet he followed it from some instinct of his own; and Addison let him go on as he would.

It was raw and chilly. In places there were puddles of slush and water on the ice which had not yet begun to freeze for the night. Heavy and strong old Billy went splashing along through these as he plodded along. Not a breath of wind stirred the thick fog.

There was then no clock tower at our village; but shortly after we turned onto the lake we heard the clock in the belfry of the Methodist church of the adjoining village, a mile and a half away, strike eleven.

"How weird it sounds!" Theodora exclaimed. "Seems as if it was muffled."

"It is the fog," Addison explained.

"Eleven o'clock," remarked Catherine. "Well, I guess it will be one o'clock by the time we get home, at this rate!"

"We may as well take it easy," said Addison, laughing. "Pull the robes around you, girls, and get comfortable. The fog is chilly."

SO we sat back, wrapped up in the buffalo robes, and chatted of the lyceum and the droll things that were in the Coronet, while old Billy mogged slowly on.

Again after an interval, the clock struck the half hour — half past eleven.

"It is still behind us!" cried Catherine. "That's how we know in what direction we are going!"

"Oh, old Billy will find his way home'" Addison reassured us. "I suppose he follows the winter road by the smell of it."

It was not easy to say how he did keep to it, for as we got farther up the lake there appeared to be even more slush and water on the ice; the horse's hoofs were splashing in it at nearly every step.

"Well, I do hope he can smell the thin spots!" Ellen exclaimed. "So much water on the ice frightens me."

"Oh, the ice is good and strong under the water," Addison said. "The winter ice is still from two to three feet thick, except at air holes and at places near the shore where the brooks flow in."

On and on we went in the misty darkness; and then at last, more distantly, faint and solemn, the church clock struck again—this time twelve.

'It's still behind us," Kate remarked. "We are not wholly lost yet."

"We are going home all right," Addison replied. "We must be within a mile of the head of the lake by this time. I think I can hear Horr Brook," he added, "where it falls over the ledges close to the lake. Or else it is big Foy Brook roaring. All the brooks are running high now, since the thaw began."

Then for some moments, as old Billy went splashing on, we sat listening to the roar of falling waters ahead.

"But what's that queer little noise I keep hearing?" Ellen suddenly exclaimed. "Don't you hear it? There it is again! Sounds 'way up in the sky, overhead — that queer little quok-quok!"

"Your ears are better than mine, Nell," Addison remarked with a laugh. "I don't hear anything but the brook."

But a moment after we all heard it, and now quite plainly.

"It's nearer! It's coming nearer!" Ellen exclaimed. "What is it? It sounds like geese!"

"It is geese!" Addison and Theodora exclaimed, both at once. "Only hear them!"

"Wild geese!" Addison cried. "A big flock up in the sky, flying by night, migrating!"

There seemed to be hundreds of these upper-air voices.

Suddenly, loud and clear, one of the ganders began squalling obstreperously. Old Billy stopped short as the clamour grew. From the outburst of cries we judged that the geese were circling around over the lake. Immediately the fog on all sides appeared to be full of rushing wings and then, splash, splash, splash, down came the geese by the score into the slush on the ice about us.

The uproar that followed was indescribable. One could hear nothing else, not even when Addison shouted to the girls not to be afraid, that it was only a flock of wild geese which had lost its bearings in the fog, and so had descended on the lake.

Quar-quar-quar-quark! Quar-quar-quar-quark! The noise made by their wings was like a railway train passing; and the splashings in the slush were as if a hundred men were lashing it with long whips. By the dim light of our lantern we caught glimpses of great wild-looking gray birds, shooting down on wide-extended wings.

Old Billy quite lost his head and started to run. Addison pulled him up, but still he snorted and attempted to bolt away sidewise or anywise; he was dazed by the racket and the cries. Generally he was a steady horse, afraid of nothing on the road. But now he appeared terrified—and when a steady horse once takes fright he is the worst of all to manage. He ran back, then plunged ahead; and at length Addison let him go, thinking he would probably head for home and keep to the winter road.

On we dashed, amongst squalling, flapping, spattering geese, at a great pace, but with little idea in what direction.

Suddenly our horse went down with a splash! For the moment Addison and I thought he had merely fallen in a puddle! Then the pung settled and pitched downward, water rushing into it; and we all jumped for our lives, the girls springing out behind. Ice cakes tipped and rocked under foot; but by good luck we all gained the firmer ice behind the pung. Addison with the lantern still on his arm.

"We broke in! Old Billy's broke in!" were his first words; and he held up the lantern, trying to see the horse for we herd him splashing and groaning fearfully.

There was black, open water directly ahead of us. Old Billy had run blindly into the bay at the mouth of Horr Brook. A horse's instinct is not to be relied on when he is frightened.

Things were beginning to assume dangerous proportions. At any moment, that spongy ice was likely to give way again.

While the girls stood back on the ice ankle-deep in slush and water, Addison and I stole up as near the open hole as we dared, with the lantern, to see if we could help the horse. He rose to the surface several times, struggling very hard, splashing, groaning piteously. But the ice was too insecure to approach the open water, and after a few seconds the horse went down, pung and all, and did not rise again, being carried under the ice, probably by the force of the currrent setting out from the mouth of the brook.

"He's gone!" Addison said with a long breath, as he stood holding up the lantern. "We've lost our horse, and pung, too'"

The girls were naturally filled with consternation; Ellen was weeping, all three were very wet. It was necessary to get them home as speedily as possible. Luckily we now knew just where we were, in spite of squalling geese and dense fog, for before us was Horr Brook roaring hoarsely; and the winter road, as we knew, left the lake about a hundred yards west of it. We discovered the place without much difficulty, and, making all possible haste, walking and running, in order to keep warm in our wet clothing, we soon left the squalling flock behind. In short, we made the mile and a half up to the farm in half an hour and arrived quite warm and out of breath.

THE OLD SQUIRE rose, and let us in when we knocked; but he looked somewhat grave when he heard of the loss of Old Billy.

"It was all my fault, sir," Addison explained frankly. "The girls wanted to drive home by the highway and offered to walk; but the pung runners cut through to the bare ground so badly that I took a chance of coming up on the ice of the lake.

"There was more water on the ice than I expected to find," he continued. "But I think we would have made it all right if a big flock of wild geese hadn't come down all around us. That scared the horse. He started running. The fo was so thick I couldn't see where we were going; and he bolted off the ice into the open water at the mouth of Horr Brook."

"I see," the Old Squire commented. He even volunteered a word of excuse for Addison. "Naturally you couldn't foresee that wild geese were going to alight there," he remarked with a smile.

In fact the old gentleman bore the loss quite patiently. "I am only glad it was no worse," he said. "Some of you might easily have been drowned."

It was useless to go back to the lake that night; but next morning we procured long poles with grapples and ropes and, taking our three hired men, proceeded to the scene of the disaster, hoping to recover at least the pung, robes and harness.

The weather continued thick, foggy and lowery; and hundreds of wild geese were still squalling and splashing about the lake. By this time, however, numbers of young fellows had collected along the shores, with guns; and soon there was firing on all side. It was reported afterward that fifty geese were shot and secured before the great flock finally took wing and resumed its flight northward.

By daylight we found that it was safe to approach quite near the edge of the ice about the open water; and for an hour or more we made repeated efforts to grapple and fetch up the pung and drowned horse. The water there was nearly twenty feet deep, however, and apparently the outset of the current from the brook had wafted both horse and pung under the ice out of reach. One of the buffalo robes was all we were able to recover.

Mother: "Jimmy, did you get that loaf of bread I sent you for?"

Jimmy: "No, mother; the store was closed."

Mother: "What! Closed at this hour of day?"

Jimmy: "Sure; there was a sign on the door that said 'Home Baking.'"

HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

This is the first of a series of six articles, in information being absolutely authentic, has been carefully checked, and we believe the series will be of great interest to readers of The Record.

WHAT TO EAT TO BE HEALTHY

GREAT ADVANCES have been made in the science of nutrition during the last few years, and no doubt further advances will be made in the future. However, a number of fundamental principles essential for your good health have been established and are now universally recognized. In this series of articles entitled "What to Eat to be Healthy," we propose to tell you how our present knowledge can be applied in your life and the life of your family.

Follow this series closely and you will be in possession of absolutely reliable information on what foods you should eat and the importance they play in maintaining normal health

Many persons today, and you may be one of them, do not eat an adequate amount of all the food elements necessary for the highest possible level of health. As a consequence, malnutrition may result. But malnutrition is not a spectacular condition. For example, everyone knows that a lack of iron will result in the development of anaemia. The mildly anaemic person usually does not realize he is anaemic. His weight may be quite normal, and he may be able to carry on with his every-day life, but he lacks energy and vigour. A deficiency of calcium in the diet may take years before it obviously affects your health but eventually it will. These are only two examples but many others might be given. Therefore, it behooves us to watch carefully that our diet does contain all the necessary food elements in adequate amounts.

What food elements are necessary for life and health? You may be surprised to know that there are no less than 30—iron, calcium, iodine, fat, carbohydrate, proteins, vitamins, and others. They may be arranged into five groups of food substances, the vitamins, the minerals, the proteins, the fats, and the carbohydrates. A deficiency of any one of these essential food elements endangers your health.

To get these five groups of foods and enjoy the highest possible level of health, take each day one-half to one pint of pasteurized milk (children one and one-half pints), one egg, some meat, two vegetables besides potato, and some raw fruit. Vitamin D is also necessary in the winter months.

The next article will deal with the dangers associated with deficient intake of these 30 food elements.

Real Philosophy.

Mrs. Mawkins and Mrs. Hawkins were having their daily chat over the fence. Mrs. Hawkins inquired after her neighbour's married daughter.

"Oh, she's doing fine," said Mrs. Mawkins. "She's got the prettiest little flat, and lovely furniture, a nice little car, and she's never had so many frocks. The only thing is, she can't stand her husband. But there's always something."

Doubtful Admonition.

The teacher was not satisfied with the efforts of the singing class.

"Open your mouths wider," she said, "and sing as heartily as you can Little Drops of Water,' and for goodness' sake put some spirit into it."

BEAVERS ON DIET.

The idea of the Canadian beaver counting his calories is a little unusual and would hardly occur to the staunchest devotee of a balanced diet. But the beaver and all the other interesting members of the animal kingdom who make their homes in Canada, or in any other part of the world, for that matter, proceed very much as the human race does in an enlightened civilization when it comes to the daily menu. Professor A. F. Coventry will explain how this branch of animal economics works out, how food in abundance and variety is secured from the streams, the forest and the soil; how jaded palates are enlivened and how supply keeps pace with demand, when he presents his next talk on "Conservation" to the national network audience of the CBC. This discussion, continuing his series on the balance in nature, will be heard Wednesday, April 6, 7.45 to 8.00 p.m.

Mainly About People

Miss Florence Flynn, of Montreal, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Flynn.

Mr. Martin McGowan returned from Buffalo, N.Y., Monday evening to spend the summer here.

Mrs. A. A. Nichols, of Cornwall, visited with her sister, Mrs. J. A. Morris, over the week end.

Ernest McCaulay, local barber, has been off duty this week as a result of fracturing a couple of ribs in a fall.

Miss Madolyn McAvoy, of Montreal, visited with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McAvoy, over the week end.

Mr. H. G. Bigelow will leave on Saturday for Winnipeg where he will join Mrs. Bigelow and spend a ten-day holiday.

Mrs. Donald Hardy and three little daughters, of Huntingdon, Que., are visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Beattie.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Shay and the Misses Dorothea, Eileen, Doreen and Eva Shay were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Harper on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dannie Hehir, Sandtown, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. Harper on Monday, Miss Melva Harper returning with them to spend a week in Sandtown.

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Coulthart were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stata and children, Miss Mabel Stata and Betty Beckstead, all of Melvins; Master Eric Stata, of Chesterville, and Mr. John Steinberg, of Morewood.

Mr. Clarence Labre, accompanied by his friends, Mr. John Simpson, Miss Elsie Glen and Miss Rita Murphy, of Montreal, motored to town and spent the week end the guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Labre.

The Boyd Sisters, Evelyn, Lois and Marjorie, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Boyd, and their accompanist, Miss Shirley King, presented a 40-minute programme of harmony songs at the annual "At Home" held at Mountain on Wednesday evening by the members of the Mountain I.O.O.F.

A large crowd of members of the Oddfellows and Masonic lodges with their friends enjoyed an 'At Home" in the I.O.O.F. rooms Tuesday evening when euchre prizes were won by W. O. Dixon and Miss Cassie Droppo and Miss Leila Thomas and Bert Gillard. After lunch, dancing was enjoyed, music being furnished by Eugene MacMillan, P. G. Hewitt, Gordon Lannin, Mac Gordon and Jack Morris. The proceeds are in aid of a fund to paint the exterior woodwork of the combined I.O.O.F. hall and Masonic temple.

Needs of the Community Suggested by W.I. Members

The Women's Institute met Wednesday afternoon for the March meeting with a good attendance. The roll call was answered by the members naming a community need, and many and varied were the wants: members on Victoria street wanted a new sewer; Albert street, more lights, others asked that streets be cleaned, more trees in the village, electric range for the Community Hall kitchen.

Mrs. Melvin Durant had charge of current events. Mrs. W. N. Fulton contributed a solo, accompanied by Mrs. Gilroy; and Miss Moad gave a very interesting account of part of her trip to British Columbia.

The social hour was in charge of Mrs. O. Colquhoun, Mrs. C. W. Casselman, Mrs. Ford, Mrs. F. K. Smith, and Mrs. H. Hamilton. A very fine meeting was brought to a close by singing the National Anthem.

HOCKEY NOT OVER YET.

Many may think the hockey season is over in Chesterville but such is not really the case and won't be until a freak bet is paid by one or the other of a couple of prominent business men. It will be worth the price of admission when you see the winner taken for a ride around a village block in a wheelbarrow. Just who will supply the motor power will not be decided until the winner of the Stanley Cup has been decided.

The Symptoms.

Father: "Your young man is going to propose to you."

Daughter: "How do you know that?"

Father: "I hear he's been looking up my financial rating."

Departing Pastor Presented With Purse and An Address

Following his farewell sermon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian church on Sunday evening, Rev. Geo. Extence, B.A., was presented with an address and a purse of money in appreciation by the congregation of his faithful duty during the past two years.

Rev. Mr. Extence replied very feelingly in voicing his thanks to the members of the congregation. The choir sang "Only Shadows," the solo being taken by Mrs. Jas. Campbell, and the closing hymn was "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again."

Mrs. K. Woods made the presentation and Mrs. Geo. Crawford read the address.

Rev. Geo. Extence, B.A.,
Chesterville, Ont.
Dear Mr. Extence,—

We realize the time has come when we will have to sever our relationship insofar that you are taking your departure from our midst to continue your work elsewhere. We feel we are losing one of our best members of our community. You have always taken a deep interest in the welfare of choir, Sunday School, Young People's Society as well as the Church. You have always been ready to bear your share of any responsibility that came along. In times of discouragement you were ever ready with your sympathy and encouraging words. Your place in our church and community will be hard to fill. We hope and trust that your influence in another charge, whether at home or abroad, will be as beneficial and uplifting as it has been for us. We hope and trust that while we may part for the present, we may often have the honour of a visit from you. Words cannot express to you our appreciation of the work you have done for us and the great esteem in which you are held by us. We would ask you to accept this, not as a reward of value, but as a small token of remembrance from your Chesterville congregation. May it carry memories of happy times we have spent together.

Signed on behalf of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Congregation.

Mr. Extence wishes the editor of The Record to most heartily thank St. Andrew's people for their sentiments of appreciation of his two years of work here and their generous purse.

He has formed many friendships among the people of St. Andrew's, which he is not likely to forget. He hopes to come back and renew them from time to time. He has also met very fine people in the other churches of Chesterville and outside of them.

Chesterville has much to commend it. Its people generally are quite sociable, happy and progressive. He hopes that all things that make for the prosperity and happiness of its citizens will be maintained and advanced.

BOYS' BAND TO PRACTICE MONDAY EVENINGS

Practices for the Boys' Band have been changed to Monday evening at seven o'clock, and all members are asked to be on hand to start on time.

SCHOOLBOY BREAKS ARM.

Malcolm Garrett, 13-year-old son of Mrs. Olive Garrett, suffered painful injuries when he fell from a swing at the Public school yesterday at the noon hour. While swinging, he fell, landing head foremost and sustaining a fracture of his left arm besides cuts on his face and head.

BABY ESCAPES DEATH FELL IN PATH OF TRAIN

Peterborough.—Two-year-old Stewart Brooks, who fell directly in the path of a railway locomotive, has only minor bruises to remind him of his experience. When the train crew jumped from the engine, expecting to find a mangled body, they discovered the baby lying between the rails, the cow-catcher having missed him completely.
